SCREEN | HOLLYWOOD | BROADWAY | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 25¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th St., New York, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $10. Single copies, 25 cents.
Entered as second-class matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.
COPYRIGHT, 1930, BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

VOL. 100 No. 21 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1930 72 PAGES

$250,000,000 GIVEAWAY

America Opening the Parlor Door To Once-Snubbed Show People

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Performers in midwest companies report a new attitude towards troupers by the natives. Where once the performers were snubbed they are now taken into local society and are the privileged pets of the city.

No party in any midwest town with a stock company today is considered a success unless two or more of the stock performers drop in after the show. So much are the troupers in demand that parties which were formerly over at 11 p.m., now just get into their stride at midnight, to give the actors a chance to go over from the theatre.

Can It Be?

Performers, once on their own in these towns, looking upon it only as a job, are now contemplating settling down. This is due to the offers performers are receiving from the local business big shots.

Much of this change is attributed to the effect of the back-stage books

(Continued on page 71)

A "Morrissey Miracle" Saved Colored Show From Sheriff in N. J.

Will Morrissey's "Hot Rhythm" troupe opened with seven attachments against it at the Orpheum, Paterson, N. J., last week and closed at Jamaica Saturday (29), with the seven attachments still standing. The noted impresario grabbed a last minute follow-up date in Jamaica and the show moved out quietly from Paterson.

(Continued on page 48)

ALL-NIGHT FILM HOUSES FIND TRADE SKIDDING

Detroit, Dec. 2.

Once any all-night grind house could make enough money. Then 10 all-night houses opened up. And now they are all starving.

Too much competition and now too few available people. Large part of the night business formerly were hands on their way to or from night jobs in the factories. Latter are working only part time. All closed at nights, except for watchmen. Other night patrons were cab drivers. They still remain the biggest part of the trade. But the cabbies too have taken it on the chin.

Now only headaches for the owners of these kind of night hawk shooting galleries. Even price cutting failed to help. Some reduced to 10c.

Further cuts than this prevented by the Film Board agreement not to exhibit pictures at less than a dime.

Overfed Unemployed

So many Times Square places are giving free feeds to the unemployed, the unemployed is growing fat.

Their only exercise nowadays is walking from place to place for their three, four or five square meals regularly and daily.

N. Y. 'TIMES' AND 'WORLD' MAY MERGE?

Adolph Ochs is said to be getting ready to do a Munsey. Only legal technicalities are reported holding up one of the biggest of newspaper mergers. When—and if—these legal difficulties are done away with, the New York "Times" and New York morning "World" may become one, the "Times" to continue.

Information is that a number of meetings have been held to discuss the matter, but the joker in the deck is supposed to be the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the "World." The will is said to make it almost impossible for the younger Pulitzers to let go.

According to temporary plans, if put through, the morning "World" will pass from existence but the evening "World" will continue along the same lines as at present.

When the elder Pulitzer died in October of 1911, he left a will bequeathing institutions and funds and outlining the future of the "World" and St. Louis "Globe Despatch," which he also owned. The papers were left to his sons and their sons—with stipulations about what should be done with the money they earned over certain sums, etc.

Some of the legal talent now handling the problem is of the opinion it will be impossible to make a merger, or sale, of the paper without breaking the will. This, it is said, some of the persons involved are willing to attempt. Others are supposedly inclined to decline. If possible to proceed, the deal may go through within the next few months.

Meanwhile, both parties refuse to discuss the merger or admit its possibility.

If consummated, and the "Evening World" included, it would give "The Times" an evening edition for the first time. Now "The Times" o'nights gives its news away through a running ribbon electric sign banding its N. Y. Times building.

SUNDAYS' GROSS IN 9,000 HOUSES

Paramount Offers to Lend Its Closed "Sunday" Houses for Benefit of Communities All Over Nation — Other Circuits, National and Local, Prepared to Follow Suit

BLUE LAWS' HIGH COST

The same blue laws that keep people away from about 9,000 film theatres on Sundays are boomeranging to their enforcers in that they are keeping an initial $2,000,000 weekly away from hungry mouths.

This amount from one circuit only and to be more than doubled by others.

The film industry wants to be philanthropic nationally. Paramount-Publix is taking the lead in this direction, offering to turn over entire receipts of its theatres on that day in cities and towns where the Sunday lid is in effect. With P-P alone it is calculated that Sunday shows in such places would bring in an average one-day total of $2,000,000.

With such accord by Fox, Warners, R-K-O, and, doubtless, many of the independent circuits throughout the country, Washington wouldn't have to worry about taxing the white collar boys in jobs, a lot of them sustaining salary cuts as it is.

If the mossbacks scraped off some of the grass, as observed by some theatre men, the breadlines could have more than butter on their bread with pie and coffee thrown in on this Sunday turnover to designated civic organizations.

The figure, on the part of the industry as a whole, would mean a yearly donation, free of all cost, deduction, worry, tax or solicitation, of conservatively $250,000,000.

CHEST-SHAVED GRID STARS GO ADAGIO

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Ex-football stars are shaving the hair off their chests and going in for adagio dancing, according to theatrical schools specializing in the catch and carry art.

The footballers used to go in for boxing and wrestling, but the present crop of pigskin graduates have fallen for the feminine influence.

The former sphere carriers can

(Continued on page 25)

Embittered Wives Keep Husbands In Jail—Can't Work So Can't Payoff

Thanksgiving in the Alimony Club, known as the little Big House (prison) on West 37th street, was a very good time, the husbands without wives. Just 33 members, incarcerated for faulty alimony payments, sat down to a feast, by the grace of Sheriff Farley who sent eight turkeys and a dozen mince pies. The dining room was draped in orange and black.

Several professionals are in the flock and a pretty good show was staged after the dinner. Kraemer's sent one of those little pianos for the use of George Walsh, he of the Yacht Club Boys. Walsh is on a second visit to the hooscgow because Josephine Davis says he owes too much back all. George had just opened in Texas Guinan's place and

(Continued on page 20)

Raw Meat Stuff

How important the strip and teaser lassies are in burlesque was indicated at the Irving Place theatre, New York, Sunday night, when the audience refused to let the show go on after Peggy Wilson had finished her number.

Peg came on with practically everything off. That eliminated a waste of time to strip, but the saps weren't satisfied.

Someone shouted, referring to a lonely strip, "Take it off," and it was taken up by the house. Peg shouted back, "I will not" and continued.

After about eight encores, house lights had to be put on to stop the clamor for that strap removal.

JILTED GIRLS BEST TATTOO CUSTOMERS

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Why get tattooed?

Randy Webb, who had the tattoo store on the Johnny J. Jones carnival the past season questioned all customers as to why they wanted emblems and names embroidered on different parts of their anatomy. Nearly all confessed the reasons for the markings.

Leading the list are disappointed girls who drifted in to have the name of the swain who turned 'em down put on the body where it couldn't be erased. All expressed the hope the man they loved would some day hear of the operation and return to them. Most of these femmes had the name "Henry" or "John" only, which was billed across some part of their legs.

Second in percentage of customers are high school seniors and college boys who go for the fraternity markings on their frames, generally on the lower wrist, where they can be seen.

Many men, over the course of the

(Continued on page 25)

Dupont's Expensive Band

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Guy Lombardo, and his orchestra have been engaged to play in the Dupont home at Wilmington, Del., Dec. 26, at $5,000 for the evening.

Figure breaks a record in the east for private affairs.

Wine Buying Same As Rubbing Aladdin's Lamps in Night Clubs

Wine buyers are so scarce in the nite clubs now that any one who shows a tendency to order the fizz water automatically gains permission to do as he pleases. A chump who starts ordering champagne at $25 a quart can about name his own behavior.

Broadway is ripe right now for the advent of one of those spending maniacs who tosses his dough around without a care for tomorrow. With the average check for a party of four in the class spots rarely running over $50, any nut intent on spending $1,000 in one night in the clubs can get more for his money than was possible at any time within the past 6 years.

Maude Adams' Play Off

Unable to cast "That's the Way with Them," the John Cotton play which was to have marked Maude Adams' return to the stage this season after a long retirement, John D. Williams, who was to have produced the show for the Erlanger office, has called it off.

The play, a fantasy in five episodes, has a short cast, with Miss Adams insisting that she have the final say on these supporting players. The main obstacle to the play's production was the inability of Miss Adams and Williams to get together on a leading man.

BROOKS
THE NAME YOU GO BY WHEN YOU GO TO BUY
COSTUMES
GOWNS AND UNIFORMS
1437 B'WAY, N.Y. TEL. 5580 PENN.
ALSO 25,000 COSTUMES TO RENT

Double Feature Bills Declared N. G. by Mid-West Indie Exhibs

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Final blow against double features was struck here last week at a meeting among the leading exhibs and exhibitor associations, with an agreement that the twin bill must be killed.

Emil Stern led off by stating for Essaness theatres that they were willing to go back to single programs. Midwest Booking Circuit, controlled largely by Stern, would also abandon double features under the plan.

No exchange man or representative of a producer-owned circuit was present, with both James Coston and Max Balaban out of town. Understood, however, that Publix-B. & K. is set to force the situation by going double feature at their big neighborhood stands and even the de luxe houses unless the indies slough the two-picture idea entirely. Up to now, B. & K. has not double featured.

Everyone Anxious

Indies themselves are eager to get rid of double features, which have proven an extra burden rather than a help. But many exhibs, in competitive situations, are afraid to be the first to abandon the idea for fear of alienating their patronage.

Idea of the leaders and associations is to get the entire exhib field to give up the idea simultaneously. Several exhibitors, not in competitive spots, have already gone back to the single feature.

U-HOBART COMPROMISE

Legit Girl Wanted to Raise Salary from $500 to $2,000

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

It looks like Universal and Rose Hobart, legit, are getting together, Miss Hobart went east a couple of months ago when U refused to boost her salary from $500 to $2,000. Before Miss Hobart had signed for $500 she moved over to Fox for a picture and $1,500 weekly, so that by the time U was ready to talk again, her price had gone to two grand.

Now, the studio and actress are reported compromising, and Miss Hobart may return to Hollywood.

Adapter with Buy

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Fox has purchased talker rights to "The Masquerader" for Warner Baxter. Rights were owned by John Hunter Booth, who made the stage adaptation and was brought here by Fox a year ago. He was let out during the recent shake-up.

Booth's sale to Fox included him as adapter and dialogician, and he's back on the lot.

POET'S FILM URGE

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Patrick McGill, Irish poet and playwright, is here, with the probability of making a film connection.

The Gaelic savant, on an American lecture tour, came west to join his wife, who also has been lecturing.

Back After Absence

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Margaret Livingston, away from Radio since "Seven Keys to Baldpate," is returning to appear in "Children of Streets" and may be placed under contract.

She has been free lancing.

Ginger Rogers Doubling

Paramount has recalled Ginger Rogers, contract player, now on Broadway in "Girl Crazy," musical, to double in "Strictly Business" at the Astoria, L. I., lot.

New talker, starring Claudette Colbert, with Dorothy Arzner directing, starts next week.

Others in the cast are Fredric March, Charles Ruggles and Robert Owsley.

"Don't let us work all our life to make a living, but let us work to live all our life."

MR. AND MRS. JACK NORWORTH
130 West 44th Street
New York

Dusting the Attic

JESSEL and EDWARDS
Songs and Talk
18 Mins.; One
Jefferson
(From "Variety," Nov. 15, 1915)

These two boys are presenting a combination singing and talking turn that will get over on any small-time bill. They have a novelty bit at the opening and create a favorable impression.

The Jessel boy is somewhat of a ringer for Willie Howard in the manner in which he works. He sings a couple of songs. The closing number with Jessel doing a female impersonation bit sends the act away to an applause finish.

Fred.

This was after Georgie Jessel had graduated from Gus Edwards' schoolroom acts. Gus probably would deny he taught Georgie female impersonating.

Read the Willie Howard line and then see Howard give an imitation of George Jessel the next time he does it. He did it at the Palace a few months ago and is doing it in "Girl Crazy." It seemed the most uncanny bit of mimicry on Broadway in years.

Jessel at that time might have been doing a Howard without knowing it. Recently he was doing brodies as a legit producer on his own coin.

GAG MEN EAT AS SHORTS GO HOKE

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

The Hollywood gag man, who made pratt falls and custard pies famous, is coming into his own again. Although his art has been the football of the industry and looked upon as three degrees lower than a Goldfield professor, the mugg who used to create the hokum and slap stick bits in the old silent comedies is smiling again and getting ready to wrap himself around three squares per day.

All because he has heard that the theatres are hollering for more action and less dialog in their shorts, a reaction already taking effect at the studios where the order is out for a reversion to the former and coarser type of humor.

Low Production

Since talkers, short comedy production has been lighter in Hollywood than in many years. Indications are that within a year this end of the business will get back to the old normal. Universal is planning to have four units working simultaneously on this type, more comedy production than the lot has seen in five years.

Pathe took a six weeks' layoff on its comedies but now has resumed. Sennett, who got far away from his old bathing gal type to parlor comedies, is also going back via the hokum route and will increase his output.

Hal Roach, who has been leading in the contribution to the two-reel market, never got far away from the old order.

WEATHER

Washington, Dec. 2.

The Weather Bureau furnishes following outlook to "Variety" for week beginning tomorrow:

Cloudy and warmer with snow or rain over Central and Western sections Wednesday, and over Central and Eastern sections Wednesday night; Wednesday mostly fair and colder; Friday (5) cloudy and warmer with rain or snow.

Saturday, moderate temperature with chance of some rain.

London, Dec. 2.

Fog and rain helped to intensify depression in the theatres last week.

WILL MAHONEY

In Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book"

The Philadelphia "Public Ledger" said, "Will Mahoney works indefatigably, winning for himself the whole-hearted applause of the audience. He is in a class by himself and the Mahoneyphone invention, which is the last bit in the show, awoke gales of applause that kept up thru the entire finale."

DIRECTION
RALPH G. FARNUM
1560 Broadway

Colleen Moore Finds Night Eating So Bad She's Quitting Legit

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 2.

Colleen Moore is washed up on legit acting, she admitted during a visit to relatives here.

Miss Moore said she dislikes dining in the middle of the night. This was one of her principal objections to legit, and wore her down to the extent of making a visit to the Battle Creek Sanitarium necessary.

While legit has cured Miss Moore of stage acting, picture people have cured Arch Selwyn, producer, of attempting stage plays starring picture "names." At the close of the Vilma Banky-Rod La Roque show, currently touring, Selwyn will be through with that idea, it is said.

REPEAL EXPECTED OF PENN'S OLD BLUE LAW

Reading, Pa., Dec. 2.

Repeal of the old Pennsylvania blue law of 1794, which forbids theatre entertainments, baseball games, fishing and other recreation and sports on Sundays, is going to get a decisive boost, theatre men in this State hope, in January, when the next Pennsylvania legislature opens.

This city and some of the rural towns have had Sunday films for a year, without box office sales, admission being by tickets sold in theatre lobbies by members of charitable organizations which receive 10% on all ticket sales.

The plan has apparently worked out well in this city. As a result four of the members in the next State Assembly will vote for repeal or radical modification of the old blue law. One of the four is a Reformed Church minister. Another is a woman.

LeBaron on Part Time

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

William LeBaron, ill and away from the Radio studio for more than a week, returned Monday (1) on part time.

LeBaron intends to come in every day for a short period until he has fully recovered.

Ann Still Trading

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Ann Harding and Pathe are still unsettled as to contract renewal.

Legit girl is reported asking better terms besides the usual stellar consideration of having the privilege of passing upon scripts and directors.

JEANETTE MacDONALD WEST

Jeanette MacDonald will end her eastern vacation this week to return to the coast.

She is due there for Fox and "All Women Are Bad," with Edmund Lowe opposite. Picture is listed to start production Dec. 8, but that's a tentative date. It is Miss MacDonald's first feature under her new Fox contract.

2,000 Chorus Girls on Coast Pass Out as Musical Talkers Stop

Things Is Tough

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Things are getting to be somethin' fierce here. The gate for Notre Dame-U. S. C. Saturday is only expected to reach $600,000, officially.

Those 10 and 40-yard line tickets stamped $5 are getting $50 and listing on the local stock exchange. They're playing the 50-yard line ducats on percentage.

KIDS SHOPPING CAREFULLY FOR FILMS

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

The kids are shopping for their pictures.

This much is indicated by Herman Wobber, Paramount's distribution boss on the Pacific, who maintains it's a question whether the recent infantile paralysis scare around San Francisco, where he makes headquarters, has been cutting in on patronage to any great extent.

Wobber declares that normally kid business at Par houses around Frisco has been four per cent but when pictures come in that direct appeal to children this percentage of attendance shoots away up despite epidemic scares.

No Bankruptcy for Mrs. Nathan Robbins

Utica, N. Y., Dec. 2.

Scheduled for trial at the term of U. S. District Court Monday, the petition of the First Bank and Trust Company of Utica to declare Mrs. Anna Robbins, wife of Nathan L. Robbins, up-state theatre operator, an involuntary bankrupt was withdrawn Saturday (29).

Mrs. Robbins had indicated earlier that she would fight the action, which, it was announced, had been settled out of court.

Metro's Dutch Actor

Amsterdam, Dec. 2.

Metro has engaged the Dutch actor, Rolant Varno, for work in Hollywood.

JANET GAYNOR'S VACATION

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Janet Gaynor again leaves today for Honolulu and a three weeks' vacation, having completed "The Man Who Came Back" at Fox.

This is her first at that studio since adjusting her dispute with the executives there last summer.

SAILINGS

Dec. 10 (Paris to New York) Matt King (Lafayette).

Dec. 9 (Paris to New York) Grace Tibbets (Mauretainia).

Dec. 6 (London to New York) Hassard Short, Max Gordon (Europa).

Dec. 5 (Barcelona to Buenos Aires), Jean Letsch (Julius Cesare).

Dec. 5 (New York to Berlin), Marlene Dietrich (Bremen).

Dec. 4 (New York to London), Dr. Ludwig Berger (Hamburg).

Dec. 3 (London to New York) Edna Best, Herbert Marshall (Majestic).

Dec. 3 (Paris to New York) Jeff Crane, Ethel Levey, Graham White (Ile de France).

Dec. 3 (New York to London) Mr. and Mrs. Frank LeDent (Aquitania).

Dec. 3 (London to New York) Arthur Dent (Majestic).

Nov. 29 (New York to Naples), Mr. and Mrs. John Wilstach (Ausonia).

Nov. 28 (Capetown to London) McLaughlin Sisters, Cal and Nona Kay (Winchester Castle).

Nov. 27 (Paris to New York) Hugo Brick (Bremen).

Nov. 25 (Sydney to San Francisco) William Clark (Malolo).

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Big mystery here is what happened to the tribe of 2,000 dancers and show girls which came out of nowhere in a few months and disappeared as quickly.

Nine months ago, with big choruses in order, these gals were hoofing in musicals. Today only an ambitious handful is still around. Rest are said to be in other lines or out of pictures.

Big percentage is supposed to have gone into stage shows or vaude, from whence a lot came. Most of the girls were kids compared to the Broadway prototype, and younger. When production of musicals took a dive the gals were on their own.

No Calls

Central Casting had 887 dancers and 150 showgirls registered. The calls for them today are few and far between. There were about 1,000 unregistered.

Those who followed up the girls when they couldn't find picture work report them in various places. Some went back to college or high school, became extras, or began studying dramatics, hoping for a break later in a role.

The gals created a lot of color and excitement while they were here.

If musicals get onto studio programs again it's a cinch the bright-eyed tribe will pop up again.

JOE COOK PROBABLE IN FILM "FINE AND DANDY"

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Joe Cook in "Fine and Dandy" as a talker for Columbia on the 1930-31 program is in prospect.

Columbia has an option on the picture rights to the musical, now at Erlanger's, New York.

Col introduced Cook to pictures with "Rain or Shine."

Ralston Probably U

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Unable to agree with Metro on money under a term contract following work in "The Southerner," Esther Ralston may swing over to U.

A contract is in the offing, with the former Par star in line for Monta Bell's "Fires of Youth," to play role done by Jeanne Eagels in the original silent, "Man, Woman and Sin." Lew Ayres stars in John Gilbert's silent role.

Dorothy Peterson has been set for third important part, and Bell will be ready to start work as soon as Ayres finishes up in "Many a Slip." That will probably be by Dec. 10.

CENSORS' 30 OCT. FILMS

Berlin, Nov. 22.

Just 30 features were censored during October; 17 were domestic, 2 were from other European countries, and 11 were American. Three domestic, 8 American and 1 film from Denmark were silent.

GOULDING EAST

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Edmund Goulding is due to go east to do a picture for Par at Long Island in two weeks.

He's through cutting "Reaching for the Moon" (UA). It is in 10,000 feet and will be cut some more.

Lily Damita's Leads

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Lily Damita is set for the lead in the French versions of "Romance" and "The Divorcee."

They were originally scheduled for Grace Moore before she was dropped by Metro.

Miss Barnes Arrives

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Carmen Dee Barnes, young author of "Schoolgirl" and "Beau Lover", arrived here Monday (1).

She has a contract with Paramount.

Marion Shilling's Spot

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Marion Shilling is replacing [illegible] nor Millard in the [illegible] "Victory."

PERCENTAGE PRODUCTION

Fan Photo Requests Drop 50% Since Two-Bit Tax; Rogers, Bow Top List

Hollywood, Dec. 1.

Requests for fan photographs from the studios have fallen off 50% since the studios started charging for the pictures. Each studio is now sending out a printed form telling the fans that their request for a photo must be ignored unless they enclose two-bits for an 8x10 or a dime for a 5x7.

Among the male players, Lew Ayres has jumped up to a commanding spot in the estimation of the fans. Requests for his picture equal that of Jack Oakie and Gary Cooper. Standing of the male stars, according to Hollywood's biggest fan picture outfit, is Buddy Rogers, Richard Arlen, Gary Cooper, Lew Ayres, Jack Oakie and Ramon Navarro.

Reason For Arlen

While Arlen is not rated the draw that the others are, reason for his popularity is that he sticks to westerns and the kids are the biggest collectors of fan pictures. Most requests for Navarro's pictures come from the Latin countries where he is pretty much an idol.

Topping the femme list is Clara Bow, who has been the ace request for the past three years. Following her are Greta Garbo, Janet Gaynor, Nancy Carroll, Norma Shearer and Colleen Moore. The inclusion of Miss Moore in the first six is interesting because she has not worked in a picture for almost two years.

To a great extent, the requests for fan pictures of individual stars depends entirely on where the pictures are shown. In a check up of the letters, few come from people who patronize the de luxe houses. Great percentage of requests comes from small towns.

High Asking Price for Loan of Player in Lead

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

With Universal ready to go into production on "Fires of Youth," femme lead for the picture is still to be located.

Columbia asked $75,000 for the loan of Barbara Stanwyck so Genevieve Tobin, U contract player, may get the part.

Bancroft on Par Stage

George Bancroft has a week dated for Dec. 12 at the Paramount, New York. It was arranged on a percentage basis between Henry Fink, Bancroft's rep, and the Morris office with the Paramount.

Fink left New York Saturday (29) for the coast. He will likely return with Bancroft for the engagement.

A report there is a flat salary guarantee on the Bancroft appearance could not be verified.

Wm. De Mille-M-G Part

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Metro will not exercise its option upon William DeMille, director. His last picture for the firm is "Passion Flower" which has been completed.

Bessie Love's contract will also be permitted to lapse.

Par's Engineer Resigns

London, Dec. 2.

B. B. Buchanan, Paramount's engineer of construction in the U. S., is expected to name the successor of C. C. Hamilton, construction engineer for Par over here.

Hamilton lately resigned.

Helen Ferguson Marrying

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Helen Ferguson Russell, widow of William Russell, will be married shortly to Richard Hargrave, president of the First National Bank of Beverly Hills.

Doubled for Dogs

Sid Carry, who went to the coast on spec some months ago, is back on Broadway, telling his friends his only job in Hollywood was a hurry call from the Metro lot to double for a dog in one of the canine series produced by Zion Myers.

Short was titled "Dogway Melody," a barker, which kidded Metro's own "Broadway Melody." Carry did his Jolson imitation off screen while a dog in focus went through the routine "mammy" motions.

The Bronx Sisters and Cliff Edwards, also voice-doubled in the shorts for dogs imitating their respective acts.

Mother on Stand Says Her Son Is Thief, and Conviction Follows

Toledo, Dec. 2.

Adam Bialorucki, former manager of Ohio theatre, now O'Connell chain, convicted for burglary and larceny. Defendant charged with stealing apparatus from the house when he left it.

His mother, former owner, appeared against him and aided in conviction. Adam contended the machinery belonged to him.

U Joins "Another Garbo" Clan With Tala Birell

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Another "Garbo type" is about to be given the big push.

Following Par's lead in building up Marlene Dietrich, German import, through "Morocco" and big ballyhoo, U is getting ready with one of its own Garbos.

U has under contract Tala Birell, well known German actress, who is described by insides as a dead-ringer for Greta Garbo and from photographs does not belie this description.

U's plans for pushing their "Garbo type" call for an English role for Miss Birell in a forthcoming domestic tiffker.

Sanger In "Seed"

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Margaret Sanger is being considered for a bit part or prolog in "Seed," birth-control story John Stahl will direct at U. Without even mention of birth-control, her presence in cast would figure at box office, it is felt.

Charles G. Norris, author of the best-seller, is now on the U lot working on adaptation with Gladys Lehman.

Greta Nissen in Fox Film

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Greta Nissen has been engaged by Winnie Sheehan in New York for the Fox talker, "Women of All Nations." She will have the lead femme role. Raoul Walsh is to direct and the picture will start about New Year's. Miss Nissen has been out of the screen for some time.

Dennis King on Chi Stage

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Dennis King will personally appear for a week in Public, Chicago theatre starting Jan. 12 with a salary of $5,000.

William Morris made the date, with Jathing reported about further stage time for Par's "Vagabond King" player.

BEST STUDIO WAY FOR PROTECTION

Hollywood Heads Have Under Consideration Percentage of Gross Over Negative Cost for Directors, Authors and Stars—Details Not Worked Out

LESS COST; MORE PROFIT

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Percentage protection in the production of talkers by the major studios is believed to be on its way. Ultimately it is claimed percentage of the gross to directors, authors and stars of pictures, will be universal out here and conducive to lower production costs, better pictures and higher grosses.

The statement has been made by the conferes on the percentage subject that a royalty payment of this character to the three principal factors in the making of films will largely aid in eradicating what is conceded to be a yearly waste in the studios of this colony of not less than $150,000,000. That, however, is but one of several advantageous features the percentage system possesses, it is also stated.

While no details have as yet been worked out nor is there any understood agreement among the major studios on the percentage scheme, it seems to be acceptable in its main outline at present to the studio heads. It appears to be the crux of a long discussed problem as to how to secure the maximum of economical effort on what practically amounts to a co-operative basis for the leading principals in the studios' product.

One point guessed at is that about 30% of the gross rental, but not to the studio, after distribution costs, will be divided between the author, star and director. This will be conditioned, however, upon the picture at least returning through rentals its production cost. With that condition the director is expected to hold down the production cost sensibly, especially in the present system of over-shooting, accumulating a large mass of film that in times past has gone as high as 600,000 or 600,000 feet; the author will give his best thought to stories and the star will add the whole as far as possible, giving the studios for the

(Continued on page 12)

Somehow Film Fans Wind Up On Chump List

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Picture fans who write to the studios for a picture of their fav performer are registering a squawk with the studios about their names getting into west coast chump lists. Fans claim that as soon as they have made a request for a picture, they get a flock of mail from Los Angeles advising them to buy California real estate, oil, subscribe and what-not.

Studios claim that at no time do they permit any one outside the studio to get a slant at the fan mail list, but they admit it's possible for someone in the studio who has access to the files to copy the names and sell them to promoters.

A number of fans have threatened to do something about the promiscuous use of their names. None of them are definite as to what they'll do outside of threats.

$1,000,000 'Life of Washington' Now Private Venture Backed By Bluebloods; Start in Jan.

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

"The Life of George Washington", to be produced as a picture for the Bi-centennial celebration of Washington's birth in 1932, will go into production here shortly after the first of the year.

Picture was to be produced originally as a government subsidy with Congressman Sol Bloom and Col. U. S. Grant at the head of the committee in charge. It was found that if the government got behind the production it would have to be on a non-commercial basis. Proposition was then taken over by the New York Historical Society, which organized the Historical Cinema Association for production of the picture. Financing is in the hands of Clarence Mackaye, head of Postal Telegraph, Mrs. Edward Bok, widow of the Philadelphia publisher, Samuel Insull, Senator Watson of Indiana and others. Actual production is in charge of Charles Forrester, believed related to Mackaye.

Only Furniture Set

Forrester was on the Coast for the past three months lining up a staff, with no one really set yet. He is now in New York arranging for the shipping west of furniture and other authentic props that were used by Washington.

Forrester claimed that although he had signed no contracts he had practically set on Alan Crossland as the director, with House Peters and Francis X. Bushman being considered for the title part. The story, written by narrative form was compiled by Forrester over a period of six years.

No studio has been set for the production and film is still without a release tie-up. Picture will be made partly here, with a number of the exteriors being shot in the actual locations.

It is claimed that the production cost will run over $1,000,000.

Can't Fool Kids

Chicago, Dec. 2.

With nearly all independent houses in town running double features as a draw, and generally one of the two a bit weak, the kid populace has become wise.

One lad, still in his teens, sidled up to a box office where two features were heavily billed with this enquiry:

"What time does the good picture start?"

Mass. Mayor Finds New Way to Keep Out Sexy Picture Show's Exhibit

Wortham, Mass., Dec. 2.

A sex film show coming into this town can't use local girls for its models, is the new idea promulgated by Mayor Duane as a reason to bar the exhibition.

The segregated audience gag with the sex film embellishm its was to have shown at Nutting's dance hall. Mayor said it couldn't and it didn't. Informed no local girls would be employed to kid bathing suits, the mayor said he didn't believe it.

Garbo Checking Marlene's Disks and Colony Is Agog

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Metro lot is buzzing about Greta Garbo playing Marlene Dietrich's German phonograph records at the studio to compare the Teutonic girl's intonations with her own. It's supposedly an outcome of the general gossip around that the Miss Dietrich is simulating the Garbo style.

Unless you've been out here, you can't grasp how vital such matters as this become to the film colony.

Jolson's Appendicitis

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Al Jolson may undergo an operation for appendicitis before the week is out. It's the outcome of recent internal trouble which has had him constantly visiting the doctors the past week or so.

Jolson will try to postpone the operation until his wife, Ruby Keeler, gets here.

Ruby (Keeler) Jolson left yesterday (Tuesday) on another flying trip to the Coast to be with her husband while he undergoes an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Keeler expects to return to New York in about two weeks, which will make her a week late on rehearsals for "The Gang's All Here." Show starts getting into shape next Monday (8).

Cantor Dialogician

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

When Eddie Cantor returns from New York after the holidays he'll move over to the Fox lot to operate a typewriter.

Officially, he'll be writing the dialog on Mr. Lemon of Orange's next M. Brendel story. John Blystone will direct.

Roberta Gale in Plays

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Radio is not dropping Roberta Gale, as reported. It has taken on option for another six months.

Miss Gale may understudy lead in new plays which Radio will stage.

Playful Antelope Adds Days to Location Stay

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Location manager's job is tough at times.

Take the case of the l.m. of a major studio's unit shooting African scenes in Mexico.

There's only one scene left to shoot—a scene where a lion is supposed to attack and kill an antelope. Both were former residents of a local zoo.

With the company several days overdue, studio wired down for the alibi.

Back came a telegram: "We can't get the lion to do his stuff. The antelope keeps chasing him."

INDEX

Pictures	2-37
Foreign	6-7
Picture Reviews	14
Film House Reviews	44
Talking Shorts	45
Vaudeville	38-42
Vaude Reviews	43
New Acts	43
Hills	46
Times Square	47-51
Editorial	55
Women's Page	52-53
Deaths	53-63
Literati	61
Music	65-67
Obituary	68
Correspondence	69-71
Radio	66
Night Clubs	66
Outdoors	68
Letter List	71
Inside—Pictures	20
Burlesque	54
Foreign Show News	56-57
Inside—Legit	55
Legit Reviews	63
News from the Dailies	54
Inside—Vaude	55

Paramount Leasing Its Coast Houses to Fox WC for 20 Years; New Deal Set and Ready to Sign

Paramount and Fox are agreed upon a lease of the Paramount Pacific coast theatres, excepting the Paramount, Los Angeles, for a term of 20 years, to Fox West Coast. The latter will have complete control of the seven Par houses in San Francisco, Portland and Seattle.

The Paramount, Los Angeles, is exempt from the long lease through its close proximity to Paramount's and as a local monument for the studio's morale.

Par houses included are the Granada, California, St. Francis and Imperial, San Francisco; Paramount and Rialto, Portland (Ore.); and Paramount, Seattle. Paramount has been reported holding a site in Oakland for a 3,500-seater and prepared to start building there. It is not reported what disposition will be made of the Oakland proposition. Warners also holds an Oakland site, while R-K-O and Fox and now operating in that city.

The Paramount-Fox West Coast deal was first engineered by Harold B. Franklin, when he was with Fox West Coast. Following his resignation, the negotiations were lukewarmly continued until recently, when they spurted. It is said the leases will be signed during this week, if not already executed.

A first suggestion of pooling the Par houses for operation was reported at the time vetoed by the Department of Justice. It ruled there must be an outright buy or lease.

Hole Filled In

The coast has been a losing problem for Paramount for some time. Par has been virtually isolated out there, causing it to make long and expensive leaps for travelling stage shows or locally produce. With this red hole closed up by the Fox leases, Paramount likely receives a guaranteed profit through the Fox rentals, while added, it is believed, is an advantageous Par product deal with Fox for all of the west coast theatres.

Nothing has been said on the New York end regarding personnel through the switch when it occurs, probably by Jan. 1, nor of playing policies.

Hollywood Economics

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Producer called for 100 beautiful girls, and looked over the $7.50 gals (extras) and decided they wouldn't do. Sending for another batch he found that he'd have to pa. $10 and $15 a day for the lookers.

So he called for the script and changed the scene to a masked ball.

Flappers in Panic Fear Photos They Posed for A.W.O.L.

Chicago, Dec. 2.

A handful of flappers still faithful to Paul Ash made the trip to Cleveland to attend the opening for Loew of the former rajah. While there they called on their pash and posed for the photographers.

On the way back the girls suddenly tumbled to the serious facts that the photographs might be reproduced in Chicago newspapers with damages to themselves. Most of the girls are stenogs and were playing hookey from their offices on pleas of sickness.

As former members of the Paul Ash Club the flaps were more or less familiar with the newspaper offices in Chicago which they used to pester on behalf of the Goliath of Jazz. They made the rounds asking that the papers omit publication of the Cleveland pictures if they were turned in. Apparently luck or kind-hearted editors favored the faithful fans.

WB-FN COLD ON MAGPIES

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Warners-FN are opposed to their publicity offices utilizing more than 50% of their time for purely local publicity breaks. Orders are now to forget the local sheets and concentrate on national coverage.

New policy is expected to be a blow to Hollywood chatter writers, who depend strictly on local breaks and plants.

From now on the combined press departments will be conducted on the lines of a newspaper with Hubert Voight in charge, and George Thomas acting in the capacity of a city editor.

Jack Cohn's Starter

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

First picture at Columbia to go into production under Jack Cohn's reign at studio is "The Last Parade."

It's an underworld picture with Jack Holt, Tom Moore and Constance Cummings in featured spots.

Vajda's Next at L. I.

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Ernst Vajda, Hungarian playwright, stays on in New York to do the next Lubitsch-Chevalier story.

This substitutes for the previously scheduled Lubitsch assignment.

Stange on Fox Lot

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Fox has added Hugh Stange, playwright, to its scenario roster.

Stange, author of the stag play, "Veneer," produced in New York last year, has the usual six months' ticket with options.

CIVIC COMMITTEE FOR R-K-O TICKET SALE PLAN

Providence, Dec. 2.

Beginning next week the two R-K-O houses in this city are sending from 75 to 100 men, out of work, into every section of Providence to sell tickets on a percentage basis. R-K-O men here say idea is to help unemployed.

Heads of families are being picked for the work. City has been zoned and each man will be given a section in which to make a house-to-house canvass. Tickets will sell at regular evening prices and will be good for three months.

R-K-O is calling workers "contact men." Their pay will be 25% of daily sales. Every worker enrolled in the plan will be bonded by the R-K-O office of New York.

Plan has the backing of the Citizens' Unemployment Committee. Men selected will be hired by the theatres only upon recommendation of the committee.

Theatres are working on newspapers to give plan backing.

"Angels" at $2 on Subway

"Hell's Angels," Howard Hughes air picture, has been booked for day and date openings December 25 (Christmas Day) in four legit subway circuit houses operated by the Brandt brothers. "Angels" will play each house for 10 days.

Brandts have taken the picture as a sharing roadshow proposition, with a $2 top.

Jules Mastbaum Mass

At the Cathedral, 5th Avenue and 50th street, this Saturday (6) at 9:30 a. m., a mass will be held for Jules Mastbaum, the noted and popular Philadelphian picture figure who passed away four years ago.

Mons. Lavelle will officiate.

Jack McKeon made the arrangements.

Hawkes' 2d for Col.

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Howard Hawkes, who completed "Criminal Code" for Columbia, has been engaged to direct another.

DRYS FIGHT WET GAINS

Because of increase in number of votes in House of Representatives Dr. Wilson's argument based on new census. Nobody ever fights or argues about the number of laughs we get from our gags as the Originators of "Tintype."

(CHIC) (ROSE)
YORK and KING
Week Nov. 29; Riverside, Milwaukee, Wis.
R-K-O Direction LEE STEWART

'FILM DAILY'S' ONLY CHARITY XMAS FUND

Depression is introducing into the holiday season more solicitors for phoney charities than in any other year. The Hays office, investigating those making a play for film easy money, warns that the only legitimate fund for these purposes in the east is that conducted by the "Film Daily."

One outfit looked into by the Better Business Bureau several times and which the Hays office declares has not the approval of the industry, is called "The Film Players' Club."

This organization is giving a ball at the Claridge Hotel Dec. 14 and is soliciting show people at $10 per ticket. It is ballyhooing the hard times angle and promises to help the out-of-work actor "insofar as possible." The slogan is to keep the wolf out of the screen thespian's kitchen. One phase of the ballyhoo has aroused the curiosity of Broadwayites. It is the promise that the entertainment will include "a novelty show for the sophisticates."

Incidentally, the club used the names of a lot of prominent show people on its letterhead, but these have been stricken out, the BBB investigators getting almost 100% denials that any of the stars or producers had ever heard of the outfit.

PAR PRUNED ENOUGH IS STUDIO BELIEF

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

The Par lot personnel looks to a cessation of conversation and economy when Adolph Zukor goes east next Friday. When the big boss of Par came out here and found the studio was overboard on contracts and people, the word went out to slash, with the sub-execs taking his orders as opportunity to do much pruning.

Par is actually overloaded on people, brought about by more productions being shifted to the Long Island studio. With the original west coast production schedule cut down, many writers, supervisors-to-be, et al, found themselves extraneous.

Horace Liveright, being groomed as an associate producer, fell by the wayside along with a flock of writers.

Harry Cohn's "Vacation"

Harry Cohn, Columbia's producer, seems to be spending his announced vacation watching all plays possible on Broadway. It's his idea of a rest in New York.

Before leaving the coast Cohn left Col's two next important releases made by him in shape for exhibition. They are "Criminal Code" and "Dirigible."

Hollywood Bulletins

Briefly rewritten extracts from "Variety's" Hollywood Bulletin, printed each Saturday in Hollywood, and placed as a wrapper upon the regular weekly "Variety."

The Bulletin does not circulate other than on the Pacific Slope.

News from the Dailies in Los Angeles will be found in that customary department.

End came last week to free strip shows as come-ons to build up local art schools. Classes studying the femme figure from an artistic standpoint have been letting in visitors on the idea that perhaps they might become interested in art and go for the courses. Muggs went for the free look, but not for the tuition.

Hollywood scenario writers are burning again over the screen credit problem. They claim the authors who do the real work don't get the by-line mention.

Fact that Warners made Samuel Wineland musical director of its radio station KFWB instead of using Leo Forbstein and Louis Silver, musical directors, now idling but drawing checks, is looked upon as an indication that the WB-FN combination may intend to go back to musical production.

Noel Francis, ingenue, dropped by Fox recently, has gone to Radio on a five-year optional contract.

Paramount will make 17 pictures at the Long Island studios between now and June, record production for that period.

Margaret Ekdale, "Miss America" at the Galveston beauty contest, is en route here for picture work, according to a wire to the studios from her manager. Hollywood is yawning.

Radio has torn up its contract with Robert Woolsey and substituted a new ticket calling for $3,000 a week until April, 1932. After that it's $3,500 a week for one year.

Columbia has decided against making "Arizona." Contract it had with Victor Fleming to direct has been mutually canceled.

"Street Scene" cost Joseph M. Schenck $157,000, including broker's commission. William A. Brady, producer, and Elmer Harris, author, were asking $200,000. Schenck has no one in view for the proposed picture.

Murray Phillips has plans for a Hollywood showcase theatre where plays could be put on for one night only with free casts for the profession exclusively. Idea is to let the picture producers get a load of new plays.

Indications are for an increased number of directly shot and synchronized foreigns at Warner's-First National. Versions will be French, German and Spanish. Synced will be Scandinavian, Italian, Polish and southern European countries.

Ben Piazza, Metro's talent scout, shipped over 300 tests of stage players to the studio during his eight-week visit east.

Since U. A. hallyed its "declaration of independence" the studio has been deluged with offers of property and theatres.

Universal borrowed Francis Edward Faragoh from F. N. to write an original, which he will also adapt, for Hobart Henley.

Marie Dressler will probably do "Lullaby" from the play by Edward Knoblock for Metro. If she doesn't get the lead Marjorie Rambeau is second choice.

Forbidden by the Hays organization to use the title "Spring Cleaning" for Ruth Chatterton's next, Paramount will switch the tag to "New Morals." "Cleaning" tag was spotted on an original story by John Van Druten. Same story gets the new title.

Ernst Lubitsch will remain at Par's Long Island studio for three more pictures. Two will be with Chevalier.

Lloyd Hamilton goes to U for one short which may lead into a series. Hamilton is getting $5,000 apiece on any he makes.

George Bancroft and Paramount unsettled. Par wants him under a weekly salary and Bancroft is holding out for $150,000 per picture.

"Swing High," "Grand Parade," "Her Man," "Night Work," "His Money" and "The Painted Desert" are being synchronized by Pathe for foreign distribution.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s French version of his "Aviator" version so F-N has spotted him in two more versions before he returns to English.

Chaplin's "City Lights" will open at $1.50 top at the new Los Angeles theatre. House will go pop after the Chaplin run.

Courtenay Terrett, writer, let out in the recent Paramount shake-up, goes to Fox as a writer with a promise to direct.

Land rush scenes for "Cimarron" set Radio back $150,000. After a week's waiting for good weather itinerant workers engaged for the mob scene at Bakersfield walked off with most of the costumes.

Radio is holding off on production of "Broadway Headliner" shorts until the first has had time to give an indication.

Al Ray will direct the Walter Catlett shorts at Pathe.

U is trying to borrow Barbara Stanwyck from Columbia for the femme lead opposite Lew Ayres in "Fires of Youth."

With new contract coming from Metro at better than $3,000 a week, Frances Marion rates as highest paid scenarist in world. George Hill, her director husband now on "The Secret Six," is asking for new contract on weekly instead of picture arrangement.

Al Lichtman returned east after negotiating new contract as UA distrib chief. While in Hollywood he made no effort toward resuming producing deal with Fox-West Coast.

Radio has let out Hugh Trevor, nephew of William Le Baron and Roberta Gale, featured artists.

Tom Mix is ready to return to pictures, with $75,000 picture the asking price. No takers yet.

Al Jolson's show for Erlanger office will be done in August instead of next spring, to avoid summer layoff. At result his next talker for UA goes in first sometime after New Year's.

U's U-boat story, "Comrades," on which Ray Schrock is working with John Wexley, may be cha ged so much the U boat won't be in it.

Metro's option on "Ladies All" has lapsed, but studio has taken its adaptor, Elmer Harris, to do treatment on "Stepping Out," another of his plays.

Splitting matrimonially, Ricardo Cortez and Alma Rubens are arranging a property settlement.

Sergei Eisenstein got a three days' extension on his visa and is still hanging around in hopes of a contract.

According to reports, Pathe will not release "Beyond Victory," made with Bill Boyd in the lead several months ago.

"She Had to Marry," stage play by Al Bridge, actor, will be produced at the Vine Street opening Dec. 7.

Harry Edington moves up from supervisor to head of the foreign department of Metro as the first step towards concentrating all foreign activity in one building. It will be practically an intact studio by itself. George Kann and Frank Davis continue as associate producers of foreign versions.

Harry Green is opening "The Shyster" at the Curran, Frisco, Dec. 27, with the show later to be filmed by Jos. Schenck, who owns half of it. Green is after Una Merkle for the femme lead, with either David Burton or John Wray to stage.

Jose Carner Ribalta, Spanish writer, gets a nine months' contract at Paramount. Dorothy Lee starts a new five-year term at Radio next April.

Gilbert Emory replaces Paul Lukas in Par's "Ladies Man" because Lukas won't be available.

Verne Porter, head of U's home office story department, is here for usual confabs.

Gordon Kahn, writer, has been dropped by Metro after three months. Kahn was taken from the N. Y. "Mirror."

Harry Rosenthal will probably get his original stage role in Par's screen version of "June Moon." Harry Green is out of the running now.

Louis Moore is overlooking Spanish production at Fox Moore.

(Continued on page 30)

'30 FILM PROFITS TOP '29

"Help the Needy and Help the B. O."; N. Y. Exhibts Assist Mayor Walker

Approximately $1,500,000 is expected to be raised by film theatres in Greater New York during the week prior to Christmas for the out-of-workers.

Because conditions are different in other parts of the country with most of the third class city and small town exhibitors automatically donating all the way from $500 to $5,000, whether depression is manifest or not, filmdom is not putting its money-gathering on a national scope.

If small town exhibs had mayors like Walker, it is pointed out by some of the far-seeing indie members of the philanthropy committee, they could turn the hammer of community welfare leagues and such into benefactors. Instead of digging, just for the sake of standing in well with the townsfolk, they could get a slant on tickets, similar to the one being used in New York, then they could not only donate but make the week before Xmas a real tree for receipts.

"Help the needy and help your box office" is the inside New York slogan. It's a psychology that is working with all of the local boys.

The move in New York is being made as a part of Mayor Walker's campaign. Between now and then exhibitors, who are conferring with the Hays organization on the matter, will decide whether a nickel will be added to each ticket sold during the prescribed time or whether the box office will donate it from standard admission.

So far it looks as though the money will be a donation, it being argued that the extra nickel, despite the philanthropy of purpose, might boomerang and make the worst week of the box office "worser." Even as a donation theatres should make above average business with the ballyhoo afforded, it is argued.

Psychology

Mayor Walker is giving each house entering the drive a nice placard with the city's seal. Even parking privileges on Broadway may be extended during the week so that for just an extra nickel, or the same admission, car owners can flock into town and save the 50c the parking space usually gets. This would mean bargain week all around at the same time affording the apple sellers a day off.

V.M.A as Central Office For Charity Disbursements

The five major theatre circuits will do all future national and local charitable work through the Variety Managers' Association. Division and house managers of Paramount-Publix, R-K-O, Warners and Loew's are being notified to that effect this week.

Change places all charity funds of the circuits in the hands of the V.M.A. for distribution. It relieves the theatres and chains of the individual responsibility.

Theatres will regulate their own philanthropic work as always, with the V.M.A. distributing the money under advices from its members.

Gene Marcus Making Buffalo Bill, Jr., Series

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Gene Marcus, oldtime picture producer and formerly a distributor in Philadelphia, is out here making a series of westerns with Buffalo Bill, Jr.

Marcus is working at the Fowler studio on Gower st.

Circuits Scare Easy And Shrewd Realtors Capitalize on Rumors

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Midwest circuits which have made a religion of controlling towns, are getting bitten occasionally by the same shrewd business men who have been scaring indie picture owners to sell out cheap.

One big circuit is now paying huge ground rentals on two large vacant lots in a midwest town because some smart somebody started a rumor that an outside circuit was coming into the town on that particular piece of property.

Controlling circuit immediately went into a panic and paid $120,000 for the two lots that were on the market the previous week for $80,000.

35 IN COLOR DURING '31-'32

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Current indications are that at least 35 pictures will be made in color by the major studios on the '31-'32 programs. Color will be utilized almost wholly on comedy and farce types, and on musicals if the audience reaction to this type of picture changes.

Almost all the majors have standing contracts with Technicolor for pictures originally for the current yearly schedule, but postponed when musicals went into disrepute. Plus these are new contracts.

Current plans call for Warners-First National to make 15, Paramount 12, Radio six and United Artists two. Metro has not yet decided on any.

Music Tax Not Agreed To by Canada Exhibs; Just Waiting to See

Ottawa, Dec. 2.

Canadian exhibitors say that J. C. Rosenthal of New York, representing the Performing Rights Society, is wrong when he declares that they are prepared to pay annual music license fees on a seat or any other basis. Exhibitors are merely watchfully waiting until the society abides by the decision of the Privy Council to register its assignments of musical compositions at the Copyright Office in Ottawa—a mere $500,000 in registration fees. After that the exhibitors will give the proposed annual 10c. seat tax a thought, it is declared.

Warnings from the Performing Rights Society about its rights have been filed without reply or comment by the exhibitors.

Pope Exonerated

Arthur Pope, stock broker, has been exonerated of charges filed against him before the board of governors of the Stock Exchange. The hearing, it is reported, was held last week.

Pope, a 'bear' at the time, is said to have issued a statement concerning Fox Films that the Fox interests didn't enthuse over.

"Steel" Postponed

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Arthur Ungar's first as supervisor at U, tentatively called "Steel," will not go into production until after the first of the year.

No director nor cast chosen as yet.

SEE LULL IN '31, NEW BOOM IN '32

Production Quiet for Near Future — Admitted in Wall St. Quarters Last Quarter Saw Drop in Earnings, but Rest of Year Was at High Rate

QUALITY FACTOR RULES

Despite general depression, the film industry's leaders will pass the fiscal period of 1930 to their biggest net profit in history, amounting in all to nearly $55,000,000. This is for the six principal companies, and exceeds the 1929 figure by nearly $500,000. These figures are after interest and taxes have been paid.

Bankers downtown concede that third quarter earnings showed a sharp falling off, probably attributable largely to inferior quality of product, and are frankly willing to venture the opinion that 1931 may show no definite improvement, although the belief is expressed that next year's profits probably will equal those of 1930 or nearly so.

Production is likely to proceed at a reduced pace for the near future, with activity on an ascending scale from early summer on in anticipation of a new era of progress, starting with January of 1932.

Par's $18,000,000 Net.

Paramount with its $18,000,000 estimate tops the 1930 list. This

(Continued on page 29)

FRANKLIN AIM; CIRCUIT OF 300 INDIE HOUSES

No Chain or Producer Connection—Doing His Own Financing

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

It's almost a certainty the current trip of Harold B. Franklin to New York is to arrange his own financing for a proposed circuit of 400 independent picture theatres in the U. S. This is the original report on Franklin, following his resignation as president of Fox West Coast.

Franklin's objective is a combine over the indies, over which he will predominate as the general theatre operator. It will be wholly independent, without chain or producer connection. Franklin's decision is said to have been reached after his withdrawal from the United Artists-Jos. Schenck-Howard Hughes' proposals to him in conjunction with theatres contemplated by Schenck and Hughes.

Nothing is known at this end as to Franklin's banking affiliations, or whether they will be in the east or west. Franklin's headquarters will be in this city, and he will operate from this point when his circuit shall have been brought together.

Harold B. Franklin expects to leave New York for the coast today (3). Informed of the L. A. wire, he said nothing either way, nor would he commit himself on any financing plans underway.

It is understood Franklin has been in communication with several indie theatre owners, of current and past activity.

This Franklin proposition with the 300 indie houses included is said to have been considered by R-K-O. It came before the R-K-O board meeting last week without securing approval.

W.B. Opens 621 Houses to Industrials On %, With Equipment, Personnel

Fox's Dancing School Playing 300 Pupils On Stage Xmas Week

Detroit, Dec. 2.

The Fox Theatre Dancing School is putting 300 of its pupils on the stage of that theatre for a special Xmas week showing.

School has been open about three months under direction of Ethel Riddle, of the Fanchon & Marco organization, and has 11,000 pupils enrolled.

No fee is charged except an admission ticket to the theatre. Majority of the attendance is in the afternoon. This admission is 25c, giving the child a free dancing lesson in addition to the show.

Attendance at classes range from around 800 on a week day to 1,700 on Saturday.

B. I. P. STICKS

British International Pictures expects to exhibit its own product at pop prices in the Cohan to the end of its six-month lease for that theatre, although a break will occur week Dec. 18, when the Cohan will house the sounded version of Griffith's "Birth of a Nation." Though overtures have been made to sub-lease the Cohan from BIP, so far Capt. Harold Auten, who represents B. I. over here, has decided a regular run of the B. I.'s will be gone through with.

The Cohan has been showing the BIP talkers for around 10 weeks. The British company is satisfied to date, having taken a weekly loss in the operation of the house, but not an unexpected one for its unusual experiment of going so far away from home, into the heart of its international competitors, for sales in America.

Special B'way Title

While it's on Broadway the lights in the Rivoli from Dec. 17, on will call it "The Royal Family of Broadway." But when the Par talker goes into general release, especially in the sticks it'll be just "The Royal Family."

Paramount has had more trouble over the title for this one than any picture in months.

The compromise is so that the payees on the big stem won't think it's strictly a dress affair.

Radioing 'Round Star

Commencing with its reduced-time broadcasts on Dec. 2, Paramount-Publix will work up its programs around a star or some particular phase of its company.

Claudette Colbert is to be the first. Every number on the early December broadcast will be dedicated to her.

"New Moon" at $2

Metro is touting "New Moon" musical for Broadway at $2. Opening will be at the Astor, following "War Nurse" (current), during Xmas week.

"New Moon" is the only picture booked for $2 two-a-day playing on Broadway for the future. Chaplin's "City Lights," only other film mentioned, and not a talker, is but a possibility.

Verrico's Travelogs

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Alfredo Verrico is planning a series of one-reel travelogs, starting with three to be taken of Hollywood.

Travel pictures are aimed to be distribution in four languages, with different m. c's.

Under Warner Bros.' plan for extensive expansion in the industrial field, the brothers will provide distribution to advertisers in 621 theatres in 22 different states at a cost to the advertiser of $5 for every 1,000 admissions during run of ad films. Charges to be based on box office checks, same as for percentage booking.

Varying somewhat from the Paramount distribution idea on industrials, with a nominal cut to advertiser on business done, WB also will provide commercial pictures of only one reels' length or less, with all industrial film to be used in Warner houses as "filler."

Hollywood Office

Laying a campaign for nation-wide solicitation of commercial accounts, WB is planning to open branch offices over the country. First opened is in Hollywood, managed by Davis S. Ballou, who has been in the picture field there four years and is familiar with industrials.

Hollywood branch will take in territory embracing California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming.

First commercial one-reeler accounts for distribution in WB theatres will be Chesterfield cigarettes and Listerine.

In going after industrials, WB is tieing up with advertising agencies through the country for business, with cost of pictures to be based on what is wanted by the advertiser. WB is supplying scenario writers, cartoonists, people, musicians, artists and all necessary equipment and service.

Can Pick Territory

Advertiser can use all the 621 theatres available or part.

All industrials will be made on disc, with some product to be produced at eastern studio and the balance in Hollywood.

As an additional service to advertisers, it is planned to provide sound trucks for ballyhoo purposes wherever wanted.

Warner Bros., through absorption of Stanley Co., acquired the advertising picture producing unit of Stanley and for some time has maintained that, but up to now has not gone after industrials.

Seiter for Blending Of "Hells'" Cut-Outs

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Howard Hughes has practically set on William Seiter to direct his comedy to be made from the laugh sequences cut from "Hell's Angels."

Story is being written around the sequences by Joe March, Hughes' contract writer. Boys on the avenue are betting none of cut-outs will be in the final picture.

Hughes will start production on "The Front Page" about Dec. 15.

Lewis Milestone, who will direct, is here with the completed script after working it out with Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht, the authors, in the east.

Tiff Keeps "Voice"

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Tiffany renewed its contract for "Voice of Hollywood" another year. Lewis Lewin will make the 24.

This is the "Voice's" third year on the Tiffany lineup.

Benet's Coast Trip

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Stephen Vincent Benet is due here Dec. 16.

Writer's affairs handled by Joyce & Selznick, are still in the air, with several propositions pending.

Aus. Gov't's Methods Fail to Please "Down-Under" People on Amusements

By Eric H. Gorrick

Sydney, Nov. 1.

Theatrically, Australia is probably the most Americanized country in the world. Lots of folk may regard this statement as unpatriotic, but it is true. Despite being a British possession, Australia buys mostly all her entertainment from America. Even the managers take trips to the U. S. A. ever so often and return with all the latest ideas, promptly introducing them to the public. What America does, Australia does. Everybody connected with the theatrical and picture industry thinks and talks American, perhaps unknowingly, but American nevertheless.

Unfortunately for Australia, certain governments have let the country drift into such a position that now Australia is under a cloud of depression and finding it hard to meet her monetary obligations overseas. Drastic taxation measures have resulted in enormous unemployment. To combat this managements have been forced to lower their admission to bedrock in an endeavor to get business at the box office.

Instead of assisting the theatrical industry, certain anti-foreign governments have so burdened it that many managements have had a hard fight to keep going. In the past anti-foreign element looked upon the entertainment field as a sure bet for raising revenue. Today a showdown has nearly been reached.

The industry cannot be further burdened with any more trumped up revenue grab. Apparently American distributors are about tired of

(Continued on page 62)

England's 2d Newsreel House Opens in Leeds

London, Nov. 24.

Second newsreel theatre in this country opened at Leeds today (Nov. 24). Theatre is the Savoy, owned by Associated British, and British International circuit subsidiary.

Experiment follows the success achieved by Gaumont in establishing its Avenue Pavilion, London, as a news house.

O'Brien's Version

Auckland, N. Z., Nov. 5.

Thomas O'Brien states that he doesn't own any theatres in Australia, reported to have gone bankrupt, that his circuit in New Zealand (some 1,200 miles from Australia), has not been taken over by the Fuller-Hayward group and there are no financial difficulties as reported. He also knows nothing about intention to build de luxe houses in small towns as reported.

O'Brien, who claims control of the O'Brien Theatres in New Zealand, declares, however, he is reconstructing finances for same.

Vilches' Own Co.

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Ernesto Vilches, Metro's Spanish import who attracted attention at the opening of the Spanish version of "Mr. Wu," at the International theatre in Los Angeles, by stating that English supervision had spoiled the picture, will organize his own Spanish producing company here.

Vilches' company will be formed after his Metro wind up in "Cheri Bibi," which goes into production before the English version.

Best Xmas Present

Subscription to

VARIETY

$10 for One Year

Always Welcome

BANKS BALK INFLATION

Argentine Banks Shy on Notes Against Unreleased Product

Buenos Aires, Dec. 2.

The banks here are backing away from discounting the notes given by Argentine distributors to independent producers as advances on unreleased product.

Banks hold the practice amounts to note inflation, although they admit its legality, and is calculated to defeat the banks' desire to restrict film production on credits.

WB-FN Versions Continue As Profitable Investment

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

WB and FN will continue making foreigns along with American talkers on resumption of production Dec. 15 or earlier.

Reports that the balance of foreign versions to complete original schedule of 18 may be ditched due to poor returns do not jibe with New York dope showing they are making money.

There are seven foreigns yet to be made, following "Show Girl in Hollywood" (FN) and "Kismet" (FN) now in production.

Tobis Reduces Charge On Copying Sound Prints

Berlin, Nov. 22.

After long negotiations the Tonbild-Syndicate Tobis, also on behalf of the three Tonfilm-copying works, Afifa, Geyer and Droege & Lorenz, made known the following:

Effective as of April 1, 1930, the copying price for talking film print is to be reduced, taking as a basis 21 pfennig per meter. Accordingly the prices will be as follows (without copying license and material) for quantities more than:

About 217,400 yards annually, 20 pfennig (6c); about 330,000 yards annually, 19 pfennig; about 550,000 yards annually, 18 pfennig.

At the same time Tobis reduces, as of Nov. 15, 1930, the copying license from 10 pfennig to 5 pfennig (1c) per meter on positive. This result is very pleasing.

Coming weeks will see further negotiations with a view to a definite settlement after the signing of the German-American agreements, and the conclusion of an intended investigation of the bases of calculation here and abroad. Tobis hopes that by this action other costs relating to the film industry will be reduced.

Many Films in Cairo

Cairo, Dec. 2.

Picture attractions are crowding into this territory in spite of business depression and political unrest in every direction.

A new house, Cameo, is opening shortly, bringing in the Tobis Klangfilm German equipment and billed to offer American and French product.

Kursaal is offering talkers besides its legit attractions, current bill having "Ataches d'Athenes," by Dag Films.

Lya Lys for Leads

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Metro will use Lya Lys, French import from the Paris stage, for leads. She is the latest M-G-M addition to foreign contingent.

BERLIN'S OWN VERSION

Berlin, Nov. 22.

"Menschen im Kafig" has been named "Kap Forlorn" after its English title, "Cape Forlorn." Cast principals are Conrad Veidt, Fritz Kortner, Heinrich George, Tala Birell, Julius Brandt.

Film opens at the Gloria-Palast early in December.

Hays' Rep. Moves

Paris, Nov. 24.

Harold Smith, Will Hays' local representative, has shifted his offices to the New York "Herald" building in the Champs Elysees section.

Cartoon Acclaim

Paris, Nov. 24.

Screen introduction of American comic strip characters has made them so popular in Paris that they will be placed on the market in book form.

The important publishing house of Hachette has bought the book rights of "Mickey Mouse" and "Felix the Cat" from King Features Syndicate, intending to publish them in two colors as an Easter album.

Hungarian Exhibs, Big And Small, Just Start To Discover Things

Budapest, Nov. 20.

Bad economic situation has rendered the position of Budapest de luxe picture houses critical. One seating 1,000, had $110 gross one evening after three performances.

Small houses, where seats are cheap, prospered. This compelled deluxers, called premiere houses here, to reduce prices of seats. Up till now seats on an average cost 1 to 4 pengos. Most of them have now gone down to from 60 filler (11 cents) to 2.50 (64 cents) a seat. Another way to get rid of the rivalry of small houses is to demand of the distributors to give four weeks' protection before sending films from deluxe to the smaller exhibitors.

Such an arrangement might ruin the small exhibitors. Prices of seats have been reduced to such an extent that they are now scarcely higher than those of the second-rate houses. Above all, they protest against the four weeks' postponement before being able to show good pictures. They would lose all their patronage.

One thing on which all exhibitors agree is that they want the distributors to reduce rental terms. Some of the deluxers are returning to the system of two double picture program, as in silent days. Rather risky for two big pictures in one program increase expenses, and can result in a dearth of pictures.

Only one picture among those shown here during the last fortnight had any success. "Sous les Toits de Paris," at the Forum. This French picture is a brilliant example of modern directing and modern photography. Albert Prejean is featured.

Those Portos

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Fox foreign production department received word from a San Juan, Porto Rico, picture house which experimented with a double version of "Common Clay" on the same program. English version, with Constance Bennett, shown first; then the Spanish, under title of "Del Mismo Barro," with Mona Maris.

Follow-up contest was then held to determine which actress was better liked.

Picture house cabled the experiment to Fox, but forgot to mention who won the contest.

"Angel's" 2 1st Runs

London, Dec. 2.

"Hell's Angels" has already been booked into two houses here following its run at the Pavilion which shows no signs of lapsing.

Future bookings are for the United Artists house and the Marble Arch Pavilion where it carries a guarantee of a four weeks' stay. These are first run bookings.

Par's Film in Dutch

Amsterdam, Dec. 2.

Paramount European director, Dick Blumenthal, is here preparing to cast a talker with Dutch actors, title being "Television."

Production starts in Joinville Dec. 8.

HUBERT LEAVING UFA

Berlin, Dec. 2.

Manager Hubert is stepping down from his post of UFA foreign distribution at the end of the year.

Manager Wilhelm, who recently became a member of the UFA board of directors, takes charge of UFA's domestic and foreign distribution upon Hubert's departure.

British Film Field

By Frank Tilley

London, Nov. 21.

The English Market

Lou Metzger is no nearer getting Columbia over its troubles here. Up against much the same snag Joe Brandt hit when he tried to raise money to form a British company to handle the Col product on this side.

Joe got as far as talking Herbert Williams, former member of Commons, and a noble lord into being interested in going to the city for money, but when they found all they had to raise it on in the opinion of the city was the value of their two names, Herbert Williams and the noble lord told Joe, no, sir.

Columbia could have gotten another year's release through Gaumont, only Brandt wanted to raise the guarantee, while Gaumont was only prepared to lower it. Brandt was and is making the mistake most of the New York head offices are still making: Figuring the 1930-31 potentialities on the basis of those common in 1929-30 season.

That's going to cause a lot of heartburning when the figures come through eventually. What with the wiring of most houses, the passing of talker novelty and the refusal of exhibitors any more to stand for 50% and tall guarantee, this field is not what it was and never will be again.

Last year took all the money out of it. Entertainment (seat) tax yielded $3,500,000 more than the previous year. As roughly, tax is around 10%, it's easy to see where your foreign came during the slide of all your other markets.

When you figure there were only half as many films in the field and fewer than half as man houses wired, it's still easy to see how the

(Continued on page 25)

MEISEL DIES

Death of Composer Deemed Distinct Loss in German Picture Circles

Berlin, Nov. 22.

Edmund Meisel, 33, died suddenly of appendicitis. He scored Einstein's "Panzerkreuzer Potemkin" and had also been Piscator's musical coworker.

Some weeks ago he had been working in British sound studios. In the midst of a new picture, "Stars Over the Montblanc," he fell ill.

His death is considered a distinct loss in German talking picture circles.

BERLIN BIZ BETTERS, BUT THERE'S THAT TAX

Berlin, Nov. 22.

According to the Berlin Chamber of Commerce monthly report, business shows satisfactory progress although the public becomes more discriminating in its talkers. Patrons' increased interest in sound pictures and cooler weather brought better attendance, but the high entertainment tax, together with heavier overhead expenses, left no margin for theatre profit.

Of the 13 sound studios 12 were occupied, and of 338 working days only 41 were idle.

Chamber of Commerce points to the oversupply of domestic talkers resulting in shorter runs which lessen the producers' possibilities of amortizing their capital outlay. The consequence, the C. C. fears, may be cheaper production leading to inferior quality. Under present conditions, even with an increased turnover, a corresponding rise of renters' profits is very doubtful. Renters cannot expect compensation from exhibitors, as the economic conditions now prevailing, and the growing unemployment, put higher admission prices out of the question.

'Angels' Getting Lame Press Break as 'Dawn'

London, Nov. 24.

Storm in a teacup is the alleged report from Berlin saying the London run of "Hell's Angels" may be the subject of diplomatic representations between Germany and Great Britain. Idea is that the film is anti-German in tendency.

Three years ago the German Embassy here was drawn into a rave over the Nurse Cavell film, "Dawn," made in England. The result was the banning of the film by the censor, its sanction by district authorities all over the country, and a big boost at the box office.

No doubt United Artists here reckon it's all just as agreeable for "Angels."

Rowson's Return

London, Dec. 2.

Harry Rowson, recently resigned from the directorate of Ideal Films, subsidiary of Gaumont British, contemplates a comeback in pictures on the producing end.

His first picture will be "Officers' Mess," a wartime farce, featuring Richard Cooper.

Social Premier

London, Dec. 2.

British International's film "Love Habit," starring Seymour Hicks, opens at the Plaza Jan. 9 with a gala charity premiere.

Event will be made a brilliant society function, the list of those present being headed by Prince George.

Mirande's New Ticket

Yves Mirande, French playwright, has been given a new term contract by Metro. His first called for one year. Mirande has been working on French versions.

He will leave for Paris shortly to produce a new play, returning here in March.

Weds Einstein's Daughter

Berlin, Dec. 2.

Dr. Marianoff, formerly publicity manager of the Prussian Film commercial department here, married a daughter of the famous scientist, Prof. Albert Einstein, this week.

N. Z. Exhibs Feel Loss Of American Pictures

Auckland, N. Z., Nov. 5.

Main picture interest here is the fight between the Hays organization and the New Zealand Government.

American distribs have been refusing to make further contracts here because of the high taxation. Apparently the exhibs are beginning to feel the pinch as British films can only supply 10% of the demand. Indications point to the Government modifying its demands, but it's difficult to predict if it will be sufficient to bring about conciliation.

Americans are afraid that the principle of taxation which is 25% of the gross earnings after allowing for local expenses and nothing for production cost of printing, may extend to other countries.

Holland Limits "2 Worlds" To 18-Yr.-Olds and Over

The Hague, Dec. 2.

"Two Worlds," the E. A. Dupont film over which there has been some dispute, was helped in its premiere here by the presence in Holland of the producer. Censors have limited it to audiences of more than 18 years.

The importers appealed from this decision, but the original ruling was sustained. Here the picture is all right, but it is not likely it will be received in the south of Holland where the Catholic population makes a barrier.

Censorship standards differ in that section also.

Wide Screen Probe

London, Dec. 2.

Arthur Dent leaves for Hollywood tomorrow (3) on the Majestic, taking advantage of the slack season here to make a survey on the Coast with particular reference to the possibilities of the wide screen.

Dent is managing director of Wardour Films and a director in British International Pictures.

Goldstein with Col.

Columbia Pictures has Louis Goldstein, formerly with M-G-M as Central American sales manager. Goldstein left for Mexico last week.

Col is plugging the foreign market. It recently added Mary Spaulding and Ed Chodorov to its New York publicity office. Both are handling foreign publicity.

10% CUT ON ALL THEATRES

3 of 4 U. S. Films Click in Milan, Italy; House Howls Down 'Flight's' Protester

Milan, Dec. 2.

"Devil May Care" (M-G), under the title of "Napoleon's Lieutenant," is doing bang-up business at the Corso cinema, partly because Napoleon subjects are liked here, but more due to the presence of Ramon Novarro, a favorite screen personality with the Italians.

All dialog is out and, perhaps, for that reason the sound synchronization is faulty. Slowness of action is noted, likewise due to the marred version for use here.

The same fault is found with the print of Mary Pickford's "Coquette" at the Excelsior cinema, revealing the star silent. This subject brought audible protests from a crowded house because of the absence of sound while the characters were visibly talking.

The Byrd North Pole picture (Par) is finishing a remarkable fortnight. Local authorities arranged for special performances for school children and business people, especially bank workers. Picture is an absolute bull's eye.

"Diavoli Volanti," which is Columbia's "Flight," drew capacity plus at the San Carlo cinema. Picture is shown here with about 10 percent dialog remaining as provided for in the Italian regulation.

An illuminating incident was noted at the first showing of this picture, which had many people standing. One spectator found his view obstructed by a standee and protested by saying:

"It's only another stupid American film."

"That's it," snapped the seated man. "If it were an Italian film it wouldn't make any difference. But these American pictures are always good."

The retort brought a chorus of approval from the people within hearing. Picture was well liked, especially the aerial maneuvers. Love story proved agreeable also.

Small Australian Exhib Doomed as New 5% Tax Hits

Sydney, Dec. 2.

A new government income tax of one shilling (25 cents) in every pound (about $5) of income, including salary and earnings and applying to the entire community, has struck the theatrical business another terrific blow. Tax amounts to a flat 5% on income.

The impost is sure to come out of the amusement money spent by working people, and the statement is generally made among theatre men that it spells the ruin of the small exhibitor.

German Thrillers

The Hague, Dec. 2.

The week marks a splurge in film melodramas. Two German thrillers are in opposition, one, UFA's "Der Schusz im Tonfilm Atalier" at the Asta, and at the City, "Der Andere," based on the play by Paul Lindau.

The last named is viewed as too Freudian and morbid for mass appeal although Fritz Kortner, known here from "Atlantic" makes it something of a draw.

America is represented in the line up with Metro-Goldwyn's "The Bellamy Trial," current at the Flora.

FILM GOLFERS DISBANDING

London, Dec. 2.

The Film Golfing Society will meet Dec. 9 with the object of winding up the organization and later resuming under a new set of rules.

Group lost a legal action recently when counsel stated their rules were badly framed.

Turkey in Berlin

Clayton Sheehan called New York on the phone Thanksgiving, to say that he and a few American friends were having a turkey dinner.

Germany has no Thanksgiving Day, so Clayton's info started guessing over here where they got a turkey over there.

The understanding has been Thanksgiving was originally an exploitation for turkeys, and that a country without Thangsgiving car have no turks.

It's another chicken and egg thing.

SHAW WON'T STAND FOR FILM BEING 2D FEATURE

London, Dec. 2.

Negotiations are pending for British International to put the G. Bernard Shaw film of "How He Lied to Her Husband" into the Carlton early in January as a second feature to Lubitsch's "Monte Carlo" (Par).

However, Shaw's contract specifically forbids the use of his filmed works as a second feature and he refuses to budge from compliance with the letter of the agreement.

BYRD OUTDRAWS EMIL IN JANNINGS' BACKYARD

Vienna, Dec. 2.

No telling about films and film fans.

The big boxoffice event in Vienna this week is "With Byrd at the South Pole" (Par), which showed to packed houses night after night at the Urania, an educational institution rather than a picture theatre. Audiences comprised the whole fan public and was not confined to the serious minded.

By all the dope the mob should have flocked to the Ufa talker, "Darling of the Gods," with Emil Jannings. Jannings' recent stage appearance here was an enormous success and he is the darling of the Vienna screen fans.

Ufa's direction of the new picture has been much criticized. The camera work and technical production generally are regarded as faulty.

Reviewers Like Seastrom's Film More Than Public

Berlin, Dec. 2.

Victor Seastrom's new picture, "Father and Son" (Col), won favorable reviews upon its premiere here, but the fan reaction is not enthusiastic.

Old-fashioned direction is blamed. Seastrom remained in Berlin to see the opening.

Correll Resumes

Berlin, Dec. 2.

UFA's production manager, Correll, has returned to Berlin after a long absence spent in search of restored health.

He has resumed activity as head of the Germany company's production.

Paris Par. Conference

Paris, Dec. 2.

A conference on Paramount production will be called upon the return of Robert Kane to Paris.

Improvement in local productions and abandonment of the idea of mass production of adapted American stories, make necessary a revision of the Paramount schedule.

MUSSOLINI ISSUES EDICT FOR NATION

Admission Slash Part of Italian Scheme to Reduce Cost of Living—Includes Legit, Vaude and Film Houses — Opera House First to Announce Drop

5 TO 20% ON SALARIES

Rome, Dec. 2.

Theatre managers, cinema exhibitors, production men and all others in the theatre are required to come into line with the general cost reduction scheme sponsored by Mussolini for reducing the cost of living.

Admission scales of all legitimate, vaudeville and film theatres must be reduced 10%, effective as of yesterday (Monday).

Show business in Italy is far from prosperous and is not in a position to afford the cut, but there is no arguing when government orders are given. The ruling has not the form of an actual legal enactment, but it is the same thing in effect since anybody who does not obey promptly lays himself open to trouble with his "syndicate" (trade association), from which he may be expelled. Expulsion would automatically put such an insurgent out of business.

Coincident with the reduction in admission scales, there comes a cut ranging from five to 20% in the salaries of performers, stage hands, and all other salaried people in the theatre or cinema.

The 20% slash applies only to stars receiving the equivalent of $400 or more for each performance or appearance. The number of persons to which this rule applies is extremely small.

The Opera House here was the first to announce the new scale.

New Tobis Terms Make Fox Berlin Studio Possible

Paris, Dec. 2.

The group of Fox executives who went to Berlin to make a survey of studio prospects for production there, are back in Paris. They found several Berlin studios available and excellent facilities.

At the last sound patent conference the excessive demands of Tobis for license to record killed all chances of a deal with the Americans. As a result, Tobis has changed its attitude and is ready to make concessions to induce the Americans to produce in Berlin.

One important difficulty remains. In Berlin the sound operator is necessarily from the Tobis organization and has important powers over direction of the picture. This is unacceptable to the Americans. In Paris the sound man merely advises.

Story is that Fox won't lease a studio in Berlin for more than three months pending a readjustment of this situation. Dickering is still going on here as to whether the Fox production center shall be here or Berlin. Decision awaits the return of Clayton Sheehan from a 10-day visit to Italy.

LETSCH FOR AIRES

Buenos Aires, Dec. 2.

Jean Letsch, formerly in charge for Metro-Goldwyn in Spain, is sailing for Buenos Aires this week to take charge here.

New assignment is a promotion.

Canada's Inquiry Into F-P Can. Affairs Opens Very Mildly in Ottawa

Ottawa, Dec. 2.

The public hearing of the investigation into the affairs of Famous Players-Canadian under the Combines Act, held Nov. 27, as authorized by the Canadian Department of Labor, proved a washout. No evidence was taken although independent exhibitors had been instructed to appear with their lawyers.

The time of the sitting was taken up by Commissioner Peter White in describing what might happen under the inquiry and in asserting that it would be a shame to permit the private business of the picture firms to become public property. Sessions might be held in Montreal, Winnipeg and the Maritime Provinces before findings could be presented to the government at Ottawa.

M-G'S MANAGER ABROAD QUELLS EMELKA REPORT

Paris, Dec. 2.

Laudy Lawrence, European manager for Metro-Goldwyn, has put an end to gossip over the possibility of a tie-up between that company and Emelka, German producing and theatre operating unit. He issues a flat denial that any such idea is entertained.

Story previously cabled from Berlin was that Arthur Loew might seek to negotiate a deal with Albert Kohan, French banker, heading a syndicate which not long ago acquired Emelka stock control. Berline version was that Loew wanted control with Kohan willing to consider a community of interest with Metro, in Emelka.

'ART' FILM THEATRES GAINING SOME GROUND

The Hague, Dec. 2.

The Avant Garde film movement, corresponding to the sure-seater idea in the States, seems to be making headway.

At a midnight show at the Tuschinsky in Rotterdam announcement was made that the Film Society would presently have its own theatre in that city, as the Amsterdam branch of the society has there. Latter house is called The Outlook. It has been running about a year.

The Socialists who are now holding an exhibition in Amsterdam calculated to advance their political theories, gave a morning screen matinee, but the pictures were a flop, disclosed merely as a rehash of an old film by Ivens called "The Breakers," shown in The Hague lately under various titles.

The Avant Garde movement seems to have attracted capital in some way. Dutch money going into a new film concern started in Berlin and managed by a German lawyer named Erich Frey, who also appears from time to time as a scenario writer.

Tallulah's Salary

London, Dec. 2.

When Tallulah Bankhead goes home to make films for Paramount in January, for whom she is supposed to make two pictures in 12 weeks, she will get $3,750 weekly, according to local report.

"Let Us Be Gay," play in which she is now appearing at the Lyric, folds Dec. 13 after which she goes into vaude at the Palladium for a fortnight.

Heinrich George-Metro

Berlin, Dec. 2.

Metro-Goldwyn has engaged Heinrich George, well known German actor, for 12 weeks of picture work in Holiywood

British Picture Deal Is Let on Music Copyrights

London, Dec. 2.

Frank Hill, secretary of the Renters' Society, has signed an agreement with the Music Publishers' Association fixing the terms under which British producers may reproduce copyright music for talking pictures.

Contract involves 15 producers and 48 music publishers and the terms are looked upon as more favorable than those obtained by Western Electric for its license.

The agreement divides recording rights into territories, the blanket price for world-wide recording being $100 a number. The recording fee for the British Isles alone is $25 and that for the States $20. This arrangement means that British producers may pay for recording rights piecemeal according as they extend their markets.

The Publishers' Association, having signed the contract, is offering better terms yet, providing it gets a guarantee.

New Censoring Head in Montreal Expected to Better Film Judgment

Montreal, Dec. 2.

Marquis de Roussy de Sales, chairman of Quebec Board of Moving Picture Censors, retired and Eugene Beaulac appointed. Beaulac is a well-known French newspaperman, on staff of "Le Canada" for 20 years.

Picture men looking forward to more reasonable treatment in contrast to harsh methods of past. Beaulac is not a foreigner, unable to assimilate new ideas like his predecessor.

Two other members of board are unchanged.

Oslo Thinks It May Get Par Studio If 'Versions' Connect

Copenhagen, Dec. 2.

Paramount's acquisition of Norwegian players for talkers being produced at Jolnville, near Paris, may possibly lead to the building of a Paramount studio in Oslo for the making of native dialog pictures.

Norwegian versions have an advantage of a wider field than many other languages, since it is the most widely understood of all the Scandinavian tongues and would have potential markets in all the Scandinavian nations, Denmark and Sweden, besides Norway.

The Paramount Oslo manager declares that if its Norwegian pictures get over satisfactorily, Paramount may build a studio there.

Oslo was formerly the capital of Norway but is now a suburb of Christiania, the harbor of which is ice-locked for three or four months of the year.

Resigns So Fast Leaves Yanks Waiting Outside

Buenos Aires, Dec. 2.

Eugene Lautier, Minister of Fine Arts, which includes pictures, has resigned from the Argentine cabinet, following the mention of his name in connection with the local Oustric bank scandal. His object, he says, is to establish his innocence without involving his official status.

Action came so swiftly that 11 American girls, guided by Eddie Moore, Pathe official, waited in vain to keep a previous appointment with the minister, unaware of his resignation, which had just been presented.

Zero in Chi.—"Angels," $39,800, Big; "Nurse," $39,700, Light—Siamese Flop, Oriental, $19,800, Brutal

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Weather got suddenly mean in midweek and spoiled the chances of loop houses in spite of the closing holiday days.

"Hell's Angels" was set for the record at United Artists, running far ahead of schedule for the first four days. Then ran into a squall of zero weather and snow and had to be content with a great $39,800, largest gross for this spot in many months.

Five and six-day week was the order at several houses. At the Oriental, the freak Siamese pair, the Godinos, let the house down badly, and out after six days to $19,800, brutal. Picture, "Bad Man," drew raps aplenty from the dailies, and accounted for much of the poor take. Even the haughty Chicago continued to sulk, managing only a weak $39,700 with "War Nurse." Picture drew fairly consistently from the women in spite of the panning from the critics. Hints of sex present were enough to overbalance the poor press comments.

"Sin" Opens Big

Other houses changed pictures in midweek. State-Lake dropped its wide-film on Thanksgiving day, and went for "Sin Takes a Holiday," which started out excellently, $10,500 for its first two days. Wide-film dropped away in its 3d week, and for its final five days managed $15,500.

Orpheum supplanted "Widow of Chicago" with "Sailor Behave" early in the week, and the comedy picture drew excellently into the holiday, with Olsen and Johnson, local favs, meaning much at the b. o. "Woods kicked out "Only Saps Work" and went in "Today," indie flicker. Doing well, with the holiday days balancing the rotten weather break.

Estimates for Last Week

Castle (Beck) (299; 35-50-60)—"Tiger of Berlin" (Ufa). German talker detective tale first foreign make to get panning generally from the press. Foreign element remained loyal. $4,900.

"Third Alarm" (Tiff) replaced Sunday (30).

Chicago (Publix-B. & K.) (4,000; 50-75-85)—"War Nurse" (Metro). Stage show. Sex angles on this one kept up the femme trade, meaning only fair total at $39,700. "Tom Sawyer" tremendous as kid attraction over Turkey Day week-end.

McVickers (Publix-B. & K.) (2,100; 50-75-85)—"Feet First" (Par). After good start, word-of-mouth and press panning ruined chances, and finished its first week to not so good $26,800. Screams tomorrow (5) with "Min and Bill" (Metro) replacing.

Monroe (Fox) (1,000; 25-40)—"Scotland Yard" (Fox). Nice $4,200 on its 2d loop run.

Oriental (Publix-B. & K.) (3,200; 50-75-85)—"Bad Man" (FN). Stage show. Freak attraction on stage, Godinos, Siamese pair, had been in town a few months ago at the

(Continued on page 26)

FOX. DETROIT, $38,200; RKO, $17,500, AND GOOD

Detroit, Dec. 2.

"Min and Bill," at the Michigan, led last week. Thanksgiving brightened up the end of an otherwise dull week.

Fisher for the first time opened ("Tom Sawyer") on Thursday, to take advantage of the holiday business. Separate show had to be built for this one day, as the unit didn't come in till Friday.

Estimates for Last Week

Michigan—"Min and Bill" (M-G-M) (4,045; 35-50-75). Started off bigger than "Caught Short," but mid-week let off unexpectedly. Thanksgiving day helped close out what is considered these days as tremendous. $49,000.

Fox—"Just Imagine" (Fox) (5,100; 15-25-50). Started well, but dropped, needing the holiday to get over average. Not bad at $38,200.

Fisher—"The Virtuous Sin" (Par) (2,300; 35-50-75). Six-day week, with current picture, "Tom Sawyer," brought in on Thanksgiving day. Not bad. $23,300.

R-K-O Downtown—"Cat Creeps" (U) (2,700; 15-25-50). Holiday and week-end business not bad. $17,500.

United Artists—"Hell's Angels" (UA) (3,000; 35-50-75-99). 2d week still big. Very good.

Paramount—"Feet First" (Par) (3,300; 35-50-75). Held over because of necessity, with "Sunny" opening Wednesday. Only fair.

State—"Widow From Chicago" (WB) (3,000; 15-25-50). Drew fairly. Name was box office. $9,300.

BUFFALO AVERAGE

"Derelict" Liked But Couldn't Hold Up—$24,000

Buffalo, Dec. 2.

(Draw. Pop., 500,000)
Weather: Cold

Takings flattened out to average last week.

Estimates for Last Week

Buffalo (Publix) (3,600; 30-40-65)—"Derelict" (Par), "Masquerade" on stage. Excellent picture and well liked but dropped to $24,800.

Hip (Publix) (2,400; 40-60)—"Maybe It's Love" (War), Vaude. Held up with little deviation from preceding weeks. $17,500.

Century (Publix) (3,400; 40-60)—"Whoopee" (UA). Drew good opening week with indications drawing power exhausted after that period. Held over. $16,800.

Great Lakes (Fox) (3,400; 25-35-50)—"Min and Bill" (M-G). Clicked. Best here in several months. $15,000.

Lafayette (Ind.) (3,400; 25)—"Reno" (Worldwide). Good at $9,000.

LOEW STATE AT $28,100 CLOSE TO MET'S $33,500

Boston, Dec. 2.

Good all over town, with only the Metropolitan slipping from its usual high gross. Loew's State, playing "Min and Bill," furnished the surprise with $28,100.

R-K-O-Keith's went up over its usual figure to $27,400, with "Sin Takes Holiday." Other R-K-O house, Keith-Boston, did $17,500; fair.

Smaller houses all over town did well, with the Scollay clicking for $17,000 and showing the way.

Estimates for Last Week

Met (Publix) (4,380; 50-75)—"Derelict" (Par). Low at $33,500.

Loew's State (4,000; 30-40-50)—"Min and Bill" (M-G-M). Led town "Min and Bill" (M-G-M). Good; $28,100.

Keith's (R-K-O) (4,000; 35-50-60)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). $27,400, good.

Keith-Boston (R-K-O) (3,000; 50-60) (vaudfilm)—"The Payoff" (Radio). $17,500, fair.

Fenway (1,360; 30-60)—"Doorway to Hell" (War). $7,500, good.

Uptown (1,700; 30-60)—"Feet First" (Lloyd). $7,000, good.

Scollay (vaudfilm)—"Doorway to Hell" (War). Vaud. $17,000, good.

Olympia—"Feet First" (Lloyd). $7,000, off but oke.

Loew's Orpheum (4,000; 35-50-60)—"Remote Control" (M-G-M). $23,000 usual biz.

'NURSE' $50,000, FRISCO; TOWN HAS GOOD TOTALS

San Francisco, Dec. 2.

An upward trend in business is evidenced. There wasn't a real flop on the street for Thanksgiving week, and some of the figures were rated heavy.

The Fox and "War Nurse" opened big and kept up a stride exceeding that of many weeks. Publix and R-K-O houses were also well above average.

Estimates for Last Week

Fox (5,000; 50-65-75-$1)—"War Nurse" (M-G). Started well and kept it up, finishing at $50,000; very good.

Warfield (Fox) (2,672; 50-65-90)—"Min and Bill" (M-G). In fourth and final week closed big at $11,000; tapering was normal and better than average.

Paramount (Publix) (2,698; 35-50-65-$1)—"Sea Legs" (Par). With pressure behind Jack Oakie this recorded $19,000, highly satisfactory total.

California (Publix) (2,200; 35-50-65-90)—"Sunny" (FN). A disappointment, since it didn't meet inside predictions; slightly sub-normal at $14,000.

St. Francis (Publix) (1,375; 35-50-90)—"Naughty Flirt" (FN). Takings of $6,500 mean profit for house, but not as much as was expected; folks didn't go for it the way it was hoped.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (2,270; 35-50-65)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). Gross of $13,000 very good and well above average.

Golden Gate (R-K-O) (2,185; 30-40-50-65)—"Silver Horde" (Radio). Almost a record week at $20,000; picture plus the vaude show and a lot of publicity.

NEWS MAKES NEWS

When the newspaper fraternity and their legion of friends gather once a year to make merry, it's the NEWSPAPER CLUB that sponsors the occasion.

This year, November 28, at the ASTOR HOTEL, with a spectacular array of the theatres' best, including MEYER DAVIS' ORCHESTRA for dancing.

"Angels" Easy Pushover To $28,000, Big in K. C.; Other Good Grosses

Kansas City, Dec. 2.

Loew's Midland celebrated its 3d anniversary with a smash last week. With "Hell's Angels" and Jean Harlow, Kansas City's own, in person four times daily the first two days, the 4,000 seats, so often vacant in recent weeks, were not enough to accommodate the customers. Business held up after Miss Harlow left.

The Mainstreet also stepped out with a good week, with "Tol'able David," the talker, and drawing vaude.

At the Royal, "Tom Sawyer" got the kids, and their elders also ate it up. Local management got right behind the picture and certainly sold it. For the first time in months a picture was held for the second week here.

The Newman with "Derelict" was not so lucky as the picture with George Bancroft appeared not to appeal. Pantages featured "Africa Speaks," but made the mistake of tilting the prices from the regular 25-50 to 25-50 for mats and 40-60 at night. Business was not so good for the first three days and the prices returned to the regular scale, but too late.

There was some surprise when the Uptown announced Olsen and Johnson's "Oh, Sailor Behave" as it was expected the picture would get a downtown showing on account of the popularity of the two comics.

With most of the houses getting away to a good start, and also getting the benefit of the Thanksgiving holiday, week proved profitable.

Estimates for Last Week

Loew's Midland—"Hell's Angels" (UA) (4,000; 25-50). Friday and Saturday with Jean Harlow in person record breakers. They kept on coming the balance of the week; 3d anniversary for house and huge organ was put back in service after months of quietness. Date also saw the return of the 50c price after a 40c top all summer. $28,000.

Mainstreet—"Tol'able David" (Col) (3,200; 25-35-50-60). Those who saw Dick Barthelmess in silent version eight years ago, and those familiar with the book wanted to see it again. Together with those drawn to the house by the vaude, made capacity audiences at some shows. Papers gave both feature and stage show remarkable notices. $17,200.

Newman—"Derelict" (1,800; 25-35-50-60). It, liking the he-man stuff, this one made to order, but it failed to get the femmes. They are the ones who count here, which means the business was below normal for the Publix de luxe. Hitting pretty even for a number of weeks, so can stand a bad one once in a while. $10,200.

Royal—"Tom Sawyer" (Par) (840; 25-40-50). Jackie Coogan-Mitzi Green, what could be sweeter for the kiddies? They flocked to the little house. But the kiddies were not alone and the lines were in front of the house for the first time in months, with the result picture held over. Fine. $8,000.

Pantages—"Africa Speaks" (25-40-50-60). Regulars were astonished when asked for advanced prices when they asked for tickets and many turned away with the result first three days not so good. Then prices reverted to familiar 25-50, but it was just too late. Tilted prices killed week's business. $9,200.

First run picture at the Globe was "Man in Trouble."

'Sunny' Leaps Mastbaum to $49,000; Fox Near $32,000, and 'Angels' $19,000

FOOTBALL FINISH

Extra Gross for New Haven Houses "Imagine" Good, $15,300

New Haven, Dec. 2.

(Draw. Pop. 300,000)
(Weather—Favorable)

Climax of football season (Yale-Harvard) brought extra shekels to local boxoffices with the exception of Paramount. Roger Sherman had heavy week-end with "Maybe It's Love" and Fox-Poli took upward jump with "Just Imagine," Paramount's "Tom Sawyer" drew kids, but had no particular appeal otherwise. Stage show pulled gross to satisfactory. Bijou closed one day for installation of heating equipment, did good six days with McLaglen.

Estimates for Last Week

Paramount (Publix) (2,353; 65)—"Tom Sawyer" and Publix Unit. Fair. $17,300.

Roger Sherman (WB) (2,200; 60)—"Maybe It's Love" and "Night at Susie's." Switch of weekly opening day cut showing to five days. Good at $6,500.

Fox-Poli (Fox) (3,040; 65)—"Just Imagine" showed results of earlier newspaper plugging. Good at $15,300.

Bijou (Fox) (1,536; 50)—"Devil With Women" (six days only). $5,000, good.

'TRAIL'S' FREAK 2D WK., EQUAL'S 1ST, $10,000

Portland, Ore., Dec. 2.

(Draw. Pop., 400,000)

Hamrick's Music Box slashed prices 5 to 10c, running 15c mat and 35c nights. Gross remained about same for a fair week with "River's End."

New Dufwin legit stock with $1.25 top nights ran for a second good week with "Apron Strings." House has new Sunday policy of 25-60c and will have guest stars.

F. & M. stage show, "Fountain of Youth," rescued Fox Broadway's b. o. for the week, saving M-G-M's "Way of a Sailor."

R-K-O Orpheum's ticket selling for unemployment relief and four other major exploitation stunts sent that house into big money for this burg. Feature was fair draw, "Tol'able David."

Estimates for Last Week

Broadway (Fox) (2,000; 25-60)—"Way For Sailor" (M-G-M). Very weak, but strong F. & M. stage show, "Fountain of Youth," held up gross. $13,000; fair.

Paramount (Publix) (3,500; 25-50)—"Sea Legs" (Par). Okay comedy did fairly. $8,300; light.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (2,000; 25-60)—"Tol'able David" (Col). Good week. Exploitation stunts. Also vaude. $13,500; good.

United Artists (Parker-Fox) (1,200; 25-60). 2d week of "The Big Trail" (Fox) and held up to first week $10,000; freak occurrence.

Rialto (Publix) (2,000; 25-50)—"College Lovers" (FN). Program. $2,600; poor.

Music Box (Hamrick) (2,000; 15-35)—"River's End" (WB). Fair for this house with eye price cut another 5c. $5,200; fair.

Dufwin (Dufwin Co.) (1,500; 25-$1.25). Dufwin legit stock. Another winning week with "Apron Strings." Helen Wallace in lead. $6,200.

"FEET FIRST" GOES FLAT IN TOPEKA AT $4,200

Topeka, Dec. 2.

(Draw pop., 85,000)
(Weather, Cold and Rain)

Lack of outstanding films, coupled with bad weather further cut down b. o. scores this week. Early start of Christmas shoppers blamed as additional cause.

Compared with Lloyd's former totals here, "Feet First" couldn't, as fans spread the news Harold didn't have a new situation or gag.

Estimates for Last Week

Grand (1,400; 50) (Fox) "Feet First."—Lloyd big hit in silent films, but fell nearly $1,000 below "Big Trail." $4,200, poor.

Jayhawk (1,500; 50) (Fox) "Dancers."—First three days bad at $1,400, but last half with "Maybe It's Love" got this play on Thanksgiving Day because of fourth attendance. Total on right side of ledger, $4,100, but poor.

Novelty (1,200; 50) (Fox)—Despite praise from usually hard boiled critic, public didn't go for "Monte Carlo." $2,200, good.

Isis (600; 35) (Ind.)—McOwen Players in "Light Cylinder Love," with vaude on wrong side, despite play for children patronage. $600; bad.

— Philadelphia, Dec. 2.

Thanksgiving holiday had its usual helpful effect on the theatres although attendance in the downtown houses was spotty rather than universally good.

Mastbaum spurted sensationally to hit around $49,000 with "Sunny." This represented a gain of almost $12,000 and is the best figure the house has had since last season. No big names on the stage show either. Runner-up was the Fox, also been in the doldrums of late, which jumped to $32,000 with a picture that was generally panned, "Renegades," and with a stage show minus names or any particular distinction.

The Aldine turned in sensational business for "Hell's Angels" in its first full week. Gross was $19,500, aided by an extra showing Thursday. This was without the aid of any boost in scale and represents very close to capacity. Keith's reported a fine $20,000 for the second week of "Feet First," which, thanks to the holiday, had the best fortnight house has had since Paramount took it over. The Earle was also strong on "Last of the Lone Wolf" and an ordinary stage bill. On the other hand, the Boyd was way off with only $18,000 for "Mother's Cry," figured a poor booking for a holiday week. It was taken out Saturday, not being thought strong enough for the usual two week policy of the site.

The Stanley got around $18,000 for the second week of "Half Shot at Sunrise," good but not sensational. The Stanton got about $12,000 with "Africa Speaks," recently shown at the Aldine, and good enough to warrant holding over. The Karlton was healthy with "Leathernecking" and the Arcadia

(Continued on page 26)

BALTO BENEFITED BY HOLIDAY—GOOD B. O.

Baltimore, Dec. 2.

(Draw. Pop., 850,000)
(Weather—Cold)

It was a real day of thanksgiving at most of the local b. o.'s this year. Clear, cold weather brought out the crowds. The first three days were rather light (with the exception of Century and Stanley). Stanley had "Min and Bill," while the Century, with "Remote Control" on screen and Ted Claire heading stage show, copped a big gross.

Business was also up at the Rivoli with "Sin Takes Holiday." Keith's turned in a satisfactory week with "Morocco" and "Just Imagine" held over at the New to excellent second week biz. Helped by the holiday, "Feet First" got good intake for the uptown Parkway, while the other uptown house, Metropolitan, was up fairly well with "Maybe It's Love." "Hell's Angels" got a fair second week at the Auditorium. The elevated Valencia, with a first run, "Only Saps Work," not so good.

Estimates for Last Week

Century (Loew), "Remote Control" (3,100; 25-60)—Very good week. Stage attraction overshadowed screen fare. Ted Claire, local fav, since his resident m. c. engagement here, headed "Off Shore" and scored. Picture liked. Excellent at $26,000.

Stanley (Loew), "Min and Bill" (3,600; 25-60)—Biggest week since "Caught Short." Broke Thanksgiving Day record, $28,500.

Keith's (Schanbergers), "Morocco" (2,500; 25-50)—Von Sternberg's direction brought critics' raves and Marlene Dietrich, Garbo's headache, scored big. She was unknown to fans, however, and picture lacked general appeal. Holiday helped. About $12,000. Very good.

New (M. Mechanic), "Just Imagine" (1,400; 25-50)—Held over. Holiday aided in exceptional second week at $10,000.

Rivoli (Wilson Amus. Co.), "Sin Takes Holiday" (2,000; 25-60)—Best week in months for this house. $9,000.

Valencia (Loew), "Only Saps Work" (1,500; 25-35)—Didn't draw on own and failed to benefit from Century overflow. Low week at $2,200.

Auditorium (Schanbergers), "Hell's Angels," 2d week (1,500; 50-$1.50)—Deluxer didn't hold up any too well. Previous week film apparently took edge off the super, particularly for $1.50 top. Big competition held gross to about $8,000.

Parkway (Loew), "Feet First" (1,000; 25-35)—Lloyd film did comparatively better here than downtown. Holiday aided and got a mile draw out of school on kids' week holiday. $4,100. Best since "Whoopee" and good.

Metropolitan (Warner-Ehrlich), "Maybe It's Love" (1,300; 25-50)—Didn't get holiday increase of downtown houses. To over previous weeks for fair $5,000.

"Min and Bill" at $35,800, Penn., Only Standout Film in Ptsbgh.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 2.
(Draw pop, 1,000,000)
Weather: Cold

Lone bright spot here last week the Penn, where "Min and Bill" had box-office lines blocks long for a sizzling $35,800. House needed something like this pretty badly, for last couple of months here have been just less than awful.

Aside from this, main stem spots stood still, with couple of outstanding disappointments. "Big Trail" did badly at Aldine despite rave notices, and out after single week, original booking having been for fortnight. Under $8,000. "Sunny" sunk the Stanley several grand to $23,500, although figure by no means represents the depths to which pictures used to sink this house before arrival of Ed Lowry as m. c. He's building steadily. "Renegades" likewise at Warner and got $10,000, light but satisfactory.

Bottom fell out of "Feet First" in 2d week at Fulton, with picture pulled after five days to permit "Sin Takes a Holiday" to open Thanksgiving. Under $3,200 for Lloyd picture in last half of fortnight. Sheridan Square stood still with "Silver Horde," about $3,000 for five days, while Enright sagged badly with "Life of Party" at $9,100 after picture previously had played week downtown at Stanley to fairly important money. Harris, with five stage acts and 2d-run "Maybe It's Love," eased off in 2d week of vaudfilm, $6,000.

Estimates for Last Week

Aldine (Loew's) (1,900; 35-50)—"Big Trail" (Fox). Disappointment at $8,000, poor for this attraction, and out after first week. Originally in for fortnight. Picture drew rave notices, but mob wouldn't have it.

Enright (WB) (3,700; 25-35-40-60)—Pictures which make money downtown at Stanley are occasionally despatched here for a second run. Occasionally one turns the trick in East Liberty as well. "Life of Party" (WB) didn't. About $9,100, poor.

Fulton (Shea-Benham) (1,750; 10-25-50)—"Feet First" (Par.). In 2d week terrible at $3,200. One week would have been plenty. Lloyd picture got only five days in second stanza, yanked to permit "Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe) to open Thanksgiving.

Harris (WB) (1,800; 10-20-30-40)—"Maybe It's Love" (WB) and five acts attract close to $6,000, fair. Picture previously had played week at Stanley.

Penn (Loew's-UA) (3,300; 25-35-60-75)—"Min and Bill" (Metro) Mop-up at $35,800, best figure here in several months and house needed it. Box-office lines blocks long common both afternoon and night. Henry Santrey on stage.

Sheridan Sq. (Radio) (1,200; 10-25-50)—"Silver Horde" (Radio). Pretty mean trick on the salmon, poor fish, and just as mean on the box office at $3,000 or under. Poor. Got only five days, house pulling it to get holiday start on new bill.

Stanley (WB) (3,600; 25-35-50)—"Sunny" (FN) eased off several grand to $23,500, fair. Figure signifies growing strength of Ed Lowry on stage as m. c., for this is sort of picture two or three months back used to do $18,000 or $19,000 around here.

Warner (WB) (2,000; 25-35-60)—"Renegades" (Fox) okay at $10,000, fair.

INDIANAPOLIS ZERO 'SUSIE'S' $17,600, LIGHT

Indianapolis, Dec. 2.
(Draw. Pop., 450,000)
Weather: Zero

Sudden drop of the mercury to the coldest Thanksgiving since 1880 put a crimp in business.

Lyric held extremely well with RKO vaudeville, although the Indiana is putting up a strong fight on vaudeville, advertising the Skouras presentation and Charles Davis band as "Glorified Vaudeville."

Estimates for Last Week

Indiana—(Publix) (3,300; 35-50-65) "Sin at Susie's" (FN). Poor at $17,600.

Circle—(Publix) (2,600; 25-40-50) "Feet First" (Par). Helped by stunt to collect shoes for the poor. Justified "hold over at $10,900. Crosses off $2,600 from first week.

Palace—(Loew's) (2,800; 25-35-50) "War Nurse" (M-G-M). Fair at $11,400.

Apollo—(4th ave.) (1,100; 25-35-50) "Big Trail" (Fox). Saved by special holiday price Thursday. Not what expected. Fair at $6,900.

Lyric—(4th ave.) (2,000; 25-35-50) "Devil with Women" (Fox). Karl Dane and George K. Arthur in person. Ads splurged RKO Vaudeville. Good at $11,700. Splendid opening.

Ohio—(Publix) (1,400; 10-25) "Check and Double Check" (RKO) held up fair considering 2d run here. Prices cut to catch patrons of Lyric and nearby second run houses. Fair at $2,500.

Publix Stage Unit Big Aid at Capitol Last Wk., Montreal, $23,000

Montreal, Dec. 2.
(Draw Pop, 600,000)
Weather: Very cold

First week's ballyhoo with Helen Kane in person and new Publix units at Capitol went over big first couple of days, and then faded into normalcy. Two houses, burlesque and legit, dark, former permanently except for occasional Monday fight show, didn't help films any. Famous-Players is satisfied with costly Capitol experiment which it is continuing for next three weeks.

Capitol topped the town with $23,000 on "Little Accident," but Helen Kane and new stage presentation were responsible for most of this gross.

Palace banked heavy on Amos 'n' Andy as pull for fans, but Capitol took lot of biz first nights and they were lucky to get away with $14,000, just fair.

Loew's with $13,000 for vaude and "Lone Wolf" had nice gross, continuing pick-up of previous week with money split 50-50. Princess had one of its best weeks with raffles." For week $16,000, very good. Imperial's double bill couldn't do better than $4,500, poor. Roxy faded right out into the red with $1,200, worst in months on repeat of "Flame of Love," British picture.

Nolghbs show some falling off.

Estimates for Last Week

Palace (FP) (2,700; 40-75) — "Check and Double Check" (RKO). Not enuff radio hounds in town to make go of this one. Fans only just hearing Amos 'n' Andy. $14,000, not good.

Capitol (FP) (2,700; 40-75)—"Little Accident" (U). Picture didn't mean a thing, but Helen Kane and Publix unit went over big for season with $23,000, very good.

Loew's (FP) (3,200; 40-65)—"Lone Wolf" (Col). Crook yarns dead issue here, but better-than-average vaude pulled in shekels and $13,000 fair average.

Princess (CT) (2,300; 35-60)—"Raffles" (UA). Panicked femmes and interested meal tickets who piled in $16,000, excellent. Held over.

Imperial (FP) (1,900; 25-40)—Double bill. House still off with strong opposition on street. $4,500, near red.

Roxy (Ind) (600; 50)—"Flame of Love" (British) (2nd week). $1,200, record low.

"WAR NURSE" LED IN PROVIDENCE, $21,500

Providence, Dec. 2.
(Draw Pop, 315,000)
Weather: Fair and cold

Grosses well over average at all stands here last week. Loew's State led with big $21,500 with "War Nurse." "Sin Takes a Holiday" at RKO Albee was another standout, and held over.

Estimates for Last Week

Loew's State (3,500; 15-50)—"War Nurse" (M-G-M). Burton Holmes travel picture and Charley Chase comedy. Big bill. Feature reacted much more favorably than expected. Big jump in gross. $21,500, very good.

RKO Albee (2,500; 15-50)—"Sin Takes Holiday" (Pathe). Over big despite stiff opposition. $14,000 reported. Held over.

RKO Victory (1,600; 15-50)—"Extravagance" (Tiff) and "South Seas," travel picture by Gifford Pinchot, governor-elect of Pennsylvania. Both features liked. Off with bang, but bad slump last half to $7,500. Fair.

Majestic (Fay) (2,200; 15-50)—"River's End" and "Life of Party" (WB). Double-feature program always big with this town. Only house here giving two pictures. Very good at $13,500.

Paramount (2,300; 15-50)—"Tom Sawyer" (Par). Good kiddie picture. Elders kept away. Just fair at $11,000.

Fay's (1,600; 15-50)—"Scotland Yard" (Fox) and vaude. Fair at $7,500.

TACOMA PERKS UP

$6,900 Strong for "Billy"—"Du Barry" O.K. and "David" $4,100

Tacoma, Dec. 2.
(Draw, Pop., 125,000)
Weather—Cold and rain

"Du Barry" was oke at the Blue Mouse with heavy billing for Norma Talmadge. "Billy the Kid" also struck the public fancy at the Broadway.

Estimates for Last Week

Broadway (Fox) (1,500; 25-60) "Billy the Kid" (M-G)—Good at $6,900.

Orpheum (RKO) (1,500; 25-35-50) "Tol'able David" (Col)—Fair with $4,100.

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (650; 25-35-50) "Du Barry" (UA)—Moderate on $3,000.

Rialto (Fox) (1,200; 25-35-50) "Renegades" (Fox) and "Playboy of Paris" (Par)—Good week with "Playboy" getting the edge. $4,000.

'Derelict' $15,000 and 'Sawyer' $5,100 Best BO Figures in New Orleans

New Orleans, Dec. 2.

Outstanding draw last week was Tom Sawyer," the Twain epic, bringing the Strand its best business in a year. Strand has always been the "class" house of the town in flatronage, the clientele wants only the feature picture and a weekly. They walk on everything else. "Tom Sawyer" getting $5,100 at the Strand spoke volumes for the picture.

State was in front in the matter of grosses, "Derelict" brought the house $15,000. Saenger was off considerably when Bill Haines in "Remote Control" failed to click. "Moby Dick" was treated kindly at the small Tudor, where it got $3,500.

Estimates for Last Week

Loew's State (3,218; 60)—"Derelict." George Bancroft remains in popular esteem here. Picture commended; $15,000, and nice profit.

Saenger (3,568; 65)—"Remote Control." Let the Saenger down materially. Showed very little, house going into red. $14,000.

Strand (1,800; 50)—"Tom Sawyer." Unusual strength by giving Strand best biz in year. $5,100.

Tudor (800; 50)—"Moby Dick." Surprisingly well, all things considered, and $3,500 meant profit.

2D RUN CAPITOL IN NEWARK, $8,200; HUGE

Newark, N. J., Dec. 2.
(Draw Pop, 850,000)
Weather: Fair

Proctor's broke the one day record Thanksgiving previously held by "Rio Rita" and also made on a Thanksgiving. House resumed vaude Wednesday and changed picture Thursday. Branford and Mosque figures do not include Thanksgiving as they advanced opening date a day. Surprise is business of Capitol with second run.

Estimates for Last Week

Branford (WB) (2,350; 25-50-65) —"Doorway to Hell" (WB) (2nd week), 6 days). Fine for H. O. $16,800.

Capitol (WB) (1,200; 15-25-35-50)—"French Girls" (Metro) (2nd run). Broke record for months. Picture on first run was weak. $8,200. Great.

Little (Newark M. P. Guild) (299; 35-60)—"Liebestraum" (UFA) (?). Fair at $2,200.

Loew's State (2,800; 25-35-50)—"Virtuous Sin" (Par). No pull. $12,500. Only fair.

Mosque (WB) (3,281; 25-50-60)—"Cat Creeps" (U), (6 days). Good compared to recent grosses. $16,500.

Playhouse (Mindlin) (473; 25-50) "Big Money" (Pathe). Close to previous week. $2,700.

R-K-O Proctor's (2,650; 25-40-50-60)—"Tol'able David" (Col) (5 days). Vaude (3 days). "Sin Takes Holiday" (2 days). Vaude brought 'em back for last 3 days. $18,800. Good.

KIDS FOR 'TOM SAWYER,' $17,900, FAIR IN DENVER

Denver, Dec. 2.
(Drawing pop, 400,000)
Weather fair.

"Tom Sawyer," with appeal to children, put Paramount out in front with the best gross of the houses without a stage show. Over 1,000 youngsters saw this film Saturday and cheered it. Older folk who saw it were enthusiastic, but many remained away thinking it a child's picture.

Three of the first runs were Paramount pictures.

"Santa Fe Trail" did fairly at the Rialto, but "Big Trail" having been at the Tabor a couple of weeks previous hurt it.

Ted Mack and the stage show

(Continued on page 26)

13 B'way Houses Run $106,000 Behind Same Holiday Wk. of '29; "Imagine" $93,000—Capitol $78,800

Broadway picture houses had rather a glum Thanksgiving week, compared to Turkey Week of '29. Business in 13 houses was off $106,000 from this holiday week of a year ago.

"Morocco," in its second week at the Rivoli, was the only item to really stand out. It got $45,200. It's probably the depression after all, because the past week had some pictures well above average in merit, and stage shows to correspond. Plus this was the holiday, although three frigid days may have discouraged b. o. shopping.

"Min and Bill" boosted the Capitol way up, yet, after a great week end, the total was just $78,800. That's okay now, but it wasn't a smart holiday figure 18 months ago. It marks the difference in conditions.

"Just Imagine" and the Roxy couldn't better $93,000, and there was no hold over.

The Paramount, with Bancroft and "Derelict" was disappointing at $69,400. But the figure isn't too bad if the average of the past few months is considered.

All four Warner houses were down a bit. "Viennese Nights" should be excused, having only three days, but in that time nabbed $7,800 at the Warner, which is all right. Six days of "Old English" at the Strand did not do so well on $19,000.

Rather a peculiar twist is Paul Stein megaphoning "Sin Takes a Holiday," which got $26,400 over the week end at the Mayfair, and also having directed "Lottery Bride," which only attracted $13,000 over the same week end at the Rialto, and is a very poor start. "The Blue Angel" (Par) is being held in readiness, certain of following after "Bride's" second week, and maybe sooner.

The Globe did excellently with "Big Money" at $22,500. Same story for the Astor, Central, Gaiety, Criterion and Cohan. The latter houses for a good six weeks have been on a par so far as average intake is concerned.

Estimates for Last Week

Astor—"War Nurse" (M-G) (1,120; $1-$1.50) (6th week). Around $10,000. Corrected and correct figures of this Metro special to date are: 1st week (short), $14,000; 2d, $16,400; 3d, $14,700; 4th, $11,800; 5th, $11,700. Some inaccurate figures previously on "War Nurse" caused or brought about by careless reporting on both sides.

Capitol—"Min and Bill" (M-G) (4,620; 25-85-$1.50) (2d week). Fair at $78,800; got flash start and liked, but they're evidently just not attending the way they used to; however, holds over.

Criterion-Gaiety—"Hell's Angels" (Caddo) (1,678; $1-$2.50) (18th week). For over a month now picture has been kept in these two houses at sacrifice; neither house up around where it counts.

Cohan—"Two Worlds" (BIP) (1,127; 25-50-75) (2d week). A little better than predecessors, but uphill struggle. Racial side of this foreign made attracting, through ads in foreign tongue papers.

Globe—"Big Money" (Pathe) (1,065; 25-50-75). Got this house up to $22,500, excellent; could have held over.

Hollywood—"Kismet" (WB) (1,066; $1-$2) (5th week). Slight improvement for $10,000, but that's still low.

Mayfair—"Tol'able David" (Col) (2,200; 40-$1). Second week only six days for $16,800; better than expected, though poor; "Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe) got big week end, $26,400.

Paramount—"Derelict" (Par) (3,665; 65-85-$1). Started well, but closed to only $69,400, despite Bancroft name.

Rialto—"Feet First" (Par) (2,000; 40-65-85-$1). Closed and out in fourth week to $19,500; year ago this time sixth week of Lloyd's "Welcome Danger" got $32,900 at the Rivoli.

Rivoli—"Morocco" (Par) (49-65-85-$1) (3d week). Did $45,200 for strong second week; will stay here until Dec. 17, when "The Royal Family" (Par) moves in.

Roxy—"Just Imagine" (Fox) (6,205; 50-75-$1.50). Did around $93,000, fair money and house has been holding over on $90,000, but not in this case; "Lightnin'" current.

Strand—"Old English" (WB), (2,900; 25-50-75). Two-dollared a few weeks ago, and at pop prices only $19,000 for six days; light.

Warners—"Viennese Nights" (WB) (1,300; $1-$2). In first three days, $7,800; indications are it will not be a long-termer.

Winter Garden—"Life of the Party" (WB) (1,424; 35-85-$1) (5th week). "Mother's Cry" coming Dec. 4; $21,000 for Lightner picture.

Intense Cold Last Wk. in Cincy Cost Downtown Houses $9,000 Drop

Cincinnati, Dec. 2.
(Draw Pop, 700,000)
Weather: Rain and Cold

A bad toss from the weather works for indoor amusement here last week. Zero temperature had the natives getting around the fireside. With the thermometer drop the takings of downtown picture houses tumbled off $9,000 from the previous week. Not one theatre escaped.

Estimates for Last Week

Albee (RKO) (3,300; 35-75)—"Scarlet Pages" (FN). Vaude. So-so picture overcome by dandy stage fare, with Moran and Mack, toppers, in effective charity ball and other tieups for special press attention. Very good at $28,000.

Palace (RKO) (2,700; 30-50)—"Derelict" (Par) and "Homerun Hawkins," a local RKO-screen work connected with Sekatary Hawkins' serial feature of the "Enquirer." Below average at $15,000.

Capitol (RKO) (2,000; 30-50)—"Her Man" (Pathe). Fair at $12,000.

Lyric (RKO) (1,400; 30-50)—"Abrahaim Lincoln" (UA). Critics took exception to liberties taken with history in this picture. Helped by contact with "Times-Star," which offered turkeys as prizes for best snapshots taken by kiddies of famous bronze statue here of Lincoln. Under average at $10,000.

Strand (RKO) (1,350; 25-50)—"Truth About Youth" (FN). Added nightly amateur tap dancing contest with watches and hoofing shoes as prizes. $5,000; fair.

Keith's (Lisbon) (1,600; 30-50)—"Maybe It's Love" (WB). Over average at $6,000.

Family (RKO) (1,140; 20-40)—"Eyes of World" (UA) and "One Night at Susie's" (FN). Split. Good at $4,000.

EARLE'S MIXED BILL, $22,500; VERY BIG

Washington, Dec. 2.

Even Thanksgiving holiday could not help some of them hereabouts last week. Those that had them coming though got plenty.

"Just Imagine," at the Fox, was a money getter; so was "Min and Bill," second week, at the Columbia. "Remote Control" did well at the Palace, aided from the stage by Wesley Eddy. That goes for "Sunny," too, at the Earle, but there it was Belle Baker on stage credited with the draw.

Among the week stars were "East is West," at the Rialto, and "Tol'able David," at the R-K-O house.

Estimates for Last Week

Columbia (Loew) "Min and Bill" (M-G) (1-232; 35-50).—Forced out after 2nd week to $13,000.

Earle (Warner) "Sunny" (F. N.) (2,424; 25-35-40-60-70).—Vaude on stage with Belle Baker. House continues to stand way up with new policy; $22,500 claimed; big money.

Fox (Fox) "Just Imagine" (Fox) stage show (3,434; 15-25-35-60).—Extra advertising helped but comment excellent on novelty angle; $29,000.

Met (Warner) "The Gorilla" (F. N.) "Outward Bound" (last half) to two-a-day policy at $1.5-$2.—"Gorilla" continued to today (2), probably getting less than $1,500 on the two days allotted it. "Outward Bound" opened well.

Palace (Loew) "Remote Control" (M-G). Stage show (2,363; 25-35-40-60-70).—Getting back in stride at $22,000.

Rialto (U) "East is West" (U) (1,987; 25-50-60-70).—Not up to high of late but improvement over old figures; $8,500.

R-K-O (Keith's) "Tol'able David" (Col.) (1,875; 35-50).—Six days only to picture switching on Thanksgiving Day; $6,000, light.

$255,000 in L. A.—A Pleasure; Two Houses Hit $30,000 and Four More Top $20,000 for Swell Week

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.
(Draw Population, 1,500,000)
Weather: Fair.

Los Angeles and Hollywood picture fans spending over $250,000 in 14 key spots is a marked improvement for general business hereabouts. This nifty gross paid at the theatre box offices was helped in no small measure by the healthy trade done by the two specials at the Carthay and Chinese. These split over 50 grand between them on their first full weeks period.

The Carthay's $21,000 is snappy takings with "Min and Bill," and the Chinese, plus Marlene Dietrich's solo personal appearance occasioning a midnight frolic Saturday, came out with $31,000 on its first six days.

"Tom Sawyer's" $26,000 at the Paramount, helped further by Jackie Coogan making a personal opening night, got the kid trade over Thanksgiving as anticipated and jumped the house $7,000 over its preceding week.

"Doorway to Hell," playing day-and-date at both Warner houses, uptown and downtown, and with benefit of some startling ballyhoo, further helped by the Warners' radio station, KFWB, assisting with a nightly radio plug, was turning them away almost from the start. The week-end alone split $30,000 between both houses.

Another mild surprise is "See America Thirst" at the R-K-O, with $16,000 for the week indicated. That's exceptional trade here. Conversely the Orpheum's mildness with "Sin Takes a Holiday" (although this one has matinee building potentialities) is quite a disappointment. It's the second disappointer here in two weeks, "Her Man" also not drawing as anticipated last week. Local R-K-O people are playing with the idea that the Orpheum probably needs vaude again.

In line with other strong grosses "Scotland Yards" was above par at the State. Just what a stage show means to one independent is the Majestic's leap of $5,000 with its initial week of presentations. Equally as noteworthy is that last week's feature, "The Big Fight," might be said to have had greater box office appeal than the current flicker.

Estimates for Last Week

Carthay Circle (Fox)—"Min and Bill" (M-G) (1,500; 75-$1.50) (2d wk.). Got great word of mouth and strong at $21,000; received strong exploitation.

Chinese (Fox)—"Morocco" (Par) (2,028; 50-$1.50) (1st wk.). Enjoyed terrific start on heels of big ballyhoo and local high fevered curiosity over Dietrich; $31,000 first six days; got almost as much on Saturday's three shows as at $5 premiere.

Criterion (Fox)—"Jenny Lind" (M-G) (1,600; 25-75) (1st wk.). Not bad at $11,500; rechristened from "A Lady's Morals" and also got special exploitation attention.

Egyptian (UA-Fox)—"Big Money" (Pathe) (1,800; 20-65). They liked this Eddie Quillan picture; $6,000 fair enough.

State (Loew-Fox) — "Scotland Yard" (Fox) (2,024; 25-$1). Joined the snappy procession for a healthy $29,000; very satisfactory.

Orpheum—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe) (2,270; 50-75). Not good but may build; $13,000 is under previous week with "Her Man" and latter's figure was no rose; far from what was expected of Connie Bennett, and talk around again that house may reintroduce vaude to help.

Pantages (Fox)—"Virtuous Sin" (Par) (2,700; 20-40-65-90). Didn't mean anything and $14,000 in down groove house doesn't seem able to escape from; plays features a week after the Fox Wilshire and is agitating for day and date break with downtown showings, or immediately thereafter.

Paramount (Publix)—"Tom Sawyer" (Par) (3,595; 25-75). Primed for kid patronage over Thanksgiving and got it; also evidenced that Publix units definitely building biz; $26,000 a happy total.

R-K-O—"See America Thirst" (U) (2,950; 30-65). Being smartly heralded and title responsible for frank curiosity draw; $16,000 will be the biggest week in a year at this stand.

United Artists (Pub-UA)—"Puttin' First" (Par) (2,100; 25-$1) (3d wk.). Held up fairly at $16,000 but "Lottery Bride" replaces Thursday (4); this house will also get first non-priced display of "Hell's Angels" early in January.

Downtown (WB)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB) (1,800; 50-75) (1st wk.). Indicates $30,000, and that's swell; had seating capacity been reversed with the Hollywood would have hopped this figure; may linger a third week.

Hollywood (WB)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB) (2,756; 25-75) (1st wk.). Also got plenty here, $27,000, but won't go beyond second week; "River's End" for Xmas Week next day and datter at these two Warner houses.

Majestic (American Theatres Ltd.)—"Last Dance" (Tec-Art) (1,600; 25-50). Jack Russell's musical tab shot house up from $2,000 to over $7,000; stage policy continues indefinitely.

Million Dollar (Circle Theatres Ltd.)—"Laughter" (Par) (2,300; 35-50). Another indie stand using its stage; picture has played all around here and $7,500 only fair.

Early Xmas Carnival On Streets of Louisville Walloped Picture Biz

Louisville, Dec. 2.
(Draw Population, 500,000)
(Weather, Zero)

Best array of films this year failed to hold grosses to normal last week, when the recent closing of eight leading banks began to have its effect, coupled with sudden weather consistently below freezing. Final sock was administered in the form of a Christmas Carnival Parade Friday night, which offered a free and big show on the streets.

This Christmas Carnival, the first here and probably anywhere, was a gag to kid the public into spending during the Yuletide. High light was the comic strip contingent representing Mickey Maguire, Moon Mullins, Andy Gump, Mike and Ike, and others. Prizes for best costumes pulled plenty of entrants until anyone not participating in the Carnival was an observer.

Six theatres did the best possible to combat the free show by giving away coupons in all stores which, with 25 cents, served as admissions. National, Strand, Alamo, Brown, Rialto and Mary Anderson went in on the stunt, leaving out only the State among the first-runs. This house compensated and competed by advertising the latest complete performance in town, which started at 11:30.

Estimates for Last Week

Alamo (4th Ave.) (1,100; 15-25-40) "Devil With Women" (Fox).—Victor McLaglen usually good for high take but competish too much to hope for better than fair $3,900.

Brown (Brown) (1,509; 15-25-40) "To'able David" (Col).—Good receipts held this near normal; $3,760.

Mary Anderson (R-K-O) (1,387; 30-50) "Night At Susie's" (WB).—Programmer and less than usual $3,225.

National (Bass) (2,300; 30-50) "Hell's Island" (Col.) and Fanchon and Marco unit, "Civil Service" idea on stage.—Best screen and poorest stage combo since opening three weeks ago. Gross took tail-spin to $12,000, proving best draw here is in flesh.

Rialto (R-K-O) (2,940; 30-50) "Feet First" (Par). Good comedy, but too like "Safety Last" (Par). Disappointing, $3,700.

State (Loew) (2,252; 35-50) "Min and Bill" (M-G).—Off, but not much to $9,900.

Strand (4th Ave.) (1,865; 35-50) "Big Trail" (Fox).—Outdoor spectacle thrilled those who attended early in week. Later everyone too cold to enjoy it. $4,700.

War Memorial Auditorium (American Legion) (2,400; $2.50 top; 50c. with coupon).—Torreblanca's Tipica Orchestra. Here in vaude, if recalled correctly. Good show for Mexicans and they're almost the only ones who attended. Legion could have doubled take with an able p. a., but followed false economy move. A "Tipica" mistake of some houses. $790, poor.

SEATTLE'S FAIR WEEK, 'SAPS' TOP AT $14,000

Seattle, Dec. 2.
(Draw Pop, 450,000)
Weather: Cold

The holiday helped biz a little the past week, which hit just in ordinary stride. Hockey is now getting a good play, league season just opening, which is no help to the shows.

The two stage shows are getting the top picture money, Fifth Avenue and Orpheum. Fox is making a strong bid for it has Owen Sweeten's band.

Estimates for Last Week

Paramount (Pub) (3,100; 25-35-50)—"Laughter" (Par). Biz cool at $8,200.

Fifth Ave. (Fox) (2,500; 25-60)—"Only Saps Work" (Par). Title didn't mean a thing; stage unit weakened by couple of principals being out. $14,000, fair.

Fox (2,500; 25-60)—"War Nurse" (M-T). Just one week, big plug being for incoming "Big Trail." $6,300, poor for "Nurse."

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (900; 25-50)—"Soldier's Plaything" (WB). Bad at $3,000 for six days.

Music Box (Hamrick) (1,000; 25-50)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB) (2nd week). Fair; $5,000 in six days.

Liberty (Jensen-von Herberg) (2,000; 15-25-35)—"College Lovers" (WB). Last week of low scale prices. "Sunny" arrives at 50 cent top; "Lovers" weak at $4,200 in six days.

Orpheum (RKO) (2,700; 25-60)—"To'able David" (Col). Opened slow but built; vaude okay; $12,500 nice enough.

PAR'S 2D ANNI. IN BKLYN. GOT $55,900

Brooklyn, Dec. 2.

Biggest attraction last week was the G. K. Chesterton-Cosmo Hamilton debate at the staid Academy of Music on the hot topic, "Is Immorality in Modern Books Justified?" Crowded house discovered the traditionalist (that's Chesterton) and guffawed at Hamilton's arty wise cracks. Great turnout for this sort of stuff.

At the Paramount the Bancroft film, "Derelict" and Rudy Vallee in the stage show drew $55,900, not bad. Anniversary show at the Paramount. (2nd birthday) with a snappy front and hefty exploitation got results.

Fox had "Just Imagine" and lengthy stage show. Strand held over "Doorway to Hell" (2nd week). "Loew's Metropolitan, "What a Widow" and vaude. Albee "Cat Creeps" and vaude.

Estimates for Last Week

Paramount — "Derelict" (Par) (4,000; 35-50-75). Anniversary show rather pleasant. Front looked good. Stage show with Vallee okay. $55,900.

Strand—"Doorway to Hell" (WB) (2,800; 25-35-50-60-75). 2nd week $16,000.

Fox—"Just Imagine" (Fox) (4,000; 35-50-60-75)). Light film. Stage show aided. $42,800.

Albee — "Cat Creeps" (Radio) (3,248; 35-50-60-75). Helen Twelvetrees, lead, local. Some response. Vaude good. $26,300.

Met—"What a Widow" (3,577; 35-40-50-75). Vaude. $21,300.

Minneapolis Unresponsive to Rated Films—Minn., $21,200, Light

Minneapolis, Dec. 2.
(Draw Pop., 500,000)
Weather: Unfavorable

Reversal of the upfrend apparently started several weeks ago and is gaining headway. The first heavy snowfalls and below zero weather of the winter gave it impetus the past seven days. Present indications point to a hard winter ahead.

It looked for a long time as though the theatres were to be immune from the adverse effects of the hard times, but now it seems a different story.

If it had not been for the Thanksgiving holiday there would have been some record low grosses. Because of below zero weather as well as other causes, Turkey day was far under par for such a holiday, but even at that it brought in much better crowds than would have been the case for an ordinary Thursday.

The chief sufferer so far is the big ace Publix house, Minnesota. Part of this theatre's troubles undoubtedly is due to a weak lineup of pictures in recent weeks, but such strong attractions as "The Big Trail," "To'able David" and "Feet First" in other houses failed to lure customers in satisfactory numbers last week, giving grounds for the belief that general condi-

(Continued on page 26)

Comparative Grosses for November

Table of grosses during November for towns and houses listed as previously reported weekly. Where title and gross of picture omitted, frequently is "sex" film or picture played in "sex" film style for that week.

NEW YORK

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
CAPITOL	"Big House"	"Big House"	"Lady's Morals"	"Brothers"
High..$109,286	$87,300	$69,000	$45,000
Low... 30,000	(1st week) Stage Show	(2d week)
PAR-AMOUNT	"Virtuous Sin"	"Playboy of Paris"	"Playboy of Paris"	"Laughter"
High..$95,000	$68,300	$56,000	$66,000	$73,700
Low... 49,100	Stage Show	(1st week)	(2d week)
ROXY	"Big Trail"	"Big Trail"	"Renegades"	"Dancers"
High..$173,658	$134,000	$74,000	$74,800	$64,200
Low... 59,800	(1st week) Stage Show	(2d week)
STRAND	"Golden West"	"Doorway to Hell"	"Doorway to Hell"	"Doorway to Hell"
High..$81,200	$29,800	$46,500	$37,000	$35,300
Low... 15,000	All Sound	(1st week)	(2d week)	(3d week)

CHICAGO

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
CHICAGO	"Laughter"	Renegades"	"French Girls"	"Derelict"
High..$71,300	$45,300	$33,100	$41,100	$43,700
Low... 33,000	Stage Show
McVICKER'S	"Big Trail"	"Big Trail"	"Big Trail"	"Big Trail"
High..$53,000	$16,000	$38,300	$29,000	$23,000
Low... 13,000	(3 days)	(2d week)	(3d week)	(4th week)
MONROE	"Sea God"	"Devil with Women"	"Caught Short" and "Spoilers"	"Lady Surrenders" and "Cocoanuts"
High..$12,500	$3,300	$3,100	$3,100	$4,300
Low... 2,700
ORIENTAL	"Maybe It's Love"	"Way of Sailor"	"Wedding Night"	"Remote Control"
High..$52,500	$32,500	$42,500	$38,200	$28,100
Low... 20,000	Stage Show
ROOSEVELT	"Old English"	"Old English"	"Up the River"	"Up the River"
High..$36,500	$16,500	$8,500	$19,400	$13,600
Low... 8,500		(New low)	(1st week)	(2d week)
STATE-LAKE	"Check & Double Check"	"Check & Double Check"	"Check & Double Check"	"Danger Lights"
High..$45,300	(Amos-Andy)	$25,100	$19,200	$31,000
Low... 16,000	$45,300	(2d week)	(3d week)
	(1st week) (Record high)
UNITED ARTISTS	"Du Barry"	"Du Barry"	"Lottery Bride"	"Lottery Bride"
High..$38,700	$19,700	$14,800	$20,000	$15,500
Low... 11,000	(1st week)	(2d week)	(1st week)	(2d week)

LOS ANGELES

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
EGYPTIAN	"Last of Duanes"	"Wedding Night"	"Africa Speaks"	"Up the River"
High..$14,000	$4,000	$4,200	$5,600	$5,000
Low... 2,800
LOEW'S STATE	"Lilom"	"Way of a Sailor"	"Renegades"	"Remote Control"
High..$48,000	$30,000	$25,000	$25,000	$24,000
Low... 15,600
PAR-AMOUNT	"Virtuous Sin"	"Derelict"	"Fast and Loose"	"Sea Legs"
High..$57,800	$15,000	$23,000	$17,000	$19,000
Low... 15,000	(New low)
UNITED ARTISTS	"Du Barry"	"Du Barry"	"Feet First"	"Feet First"
High..$38,700	$15,000	$8,000	$25,000	$17,000
Low... 6,200	(1st week)	(2d week)	(1st week)	(2d week)
WARNER'S DOWN-TOWN	"Life of the Party"	"Life of the Party"	"Gorilla"	"Sunny"
High..$38,800	$21,000	$16,000	$14,000	$14,000
Low.... 9,000	(1st week)	(2d week)
WARNER'S HOLLY-WOOD	"Life of the Party"	"Life of the Party"	"Truth About Youth"	"Sunny"
High..$37,300	$20,000	$13,000	$13,000	$13,000
Low... 10,000	(1st week)	(2d week)

SAN FRANCISCO

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
WARFIELD	"Big Trail"	"Min and Bill"	"Min and Bill"	"Min and Bill"
High..$48,000	$14,000	$33,000	$25,000	$17,000
Low.... 8,200	(2d week)	(1st week)	(2d week)	(3d week)
PAR-AMOUNT	"Gorilla"	"Saps Work"	"Derelict"	"Tom Sawyer"
High..$36,000	$14,000	$17,000	$15,000	$18,500
Low.... 6,200
CALI-FORNIA	"Golden West"	"Feet First"	"Feet First"	"Lincoln"
High..$34,000	$16,000	$25,000	$15,000	$15,000
Low.... 6,200		(1st week)	(2d week)
ST. FRANCIS	"Playboy of Paris"	"Playboy of Paris"	"College Lovers"	"Truth About Youth"
High..$28,300	$7,000	$6,000	$7,500	$9,000
Low.... 3,000	(3d week)	(4th week)
EMBASSY	"Life of the Party"	"Life of the Party"	"Life of the Party"
High..$24,300	$8,000	$5,000	$3,500
Low.... 3,500	(1st week)	(2d week)	(New low) (3d week)

TACOMA, WASH.

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
BLUE MOUSE	"What a Widow"	"Across World"	"Old English"	"Doorway to Hell"
High..$8,280	$3,000	$2,500	$3,100	$4,500
Low.... 1,400
RIALTO	"Let's Go Native"	"French Girls" and "Men of North"	"Wedding Night" and "Dancers"	"Sea Wolf" and "Devil Women"
High..$8,500	$2,400	$3,100	$4,000	$4,500
Low.... 1,500
R-K-O	"Check & Double Check"	"Check & Double Check"	"Golden West"	"Pay Off" and "Cat Creeps"
High..$14,500	$6,100	$4,900	$4,100	$3,700
Low.... 3,300	(1st week)	(2d week)

(Continued on page 26)

FILM STOCKS' MINUTE GAINS

NO SINGLE GAIN MORE THAN POINT

Most Score Fractional Advances — General List Shows Some Strong Spots in Dull Trading—Warner Bonds Jump 4 Points—Gen. Theatre Debs. at New Low.

MARKET WAITING

By AL GREASON

The stock market waited most of last week to see what President Hoover would say in his message to Congress. The message was read yesterday; it contained exactly nothing that seemed to bear on security prices.

So the market continued to wait for something else, meanwhile leaving the ticker to continue at a snail's pace and prices moving inside narrow swings.

The turnover yesterday scarcely exceeded the million and a half mark. A few of the leading industrials gave a good account of themselves, notably Steel, which moved up more than 2 points, but few stocks took the cue for a splurge.

The amusements showed some firmness in the absence of any pressure—and also in the absence of any aggressive bullish initiative. It is expected that the Pathe acquisition will be closed today (Wed.) or tomorrow, although what that would mean marketwise is not clear except that indirectly it strengthens R-K-O on the product side.

Loew's did nothing either way, continuing its listlessness of the previous day. Trade understands that all thought of an actual Fox-Loew merger has been abandoned which takes away from both stocks the favorable aspect of a consolidation that would mean economy of millions in operation.

In the bond list General Theatres sank to 71 for a new bottom, while the Warner Bonds showed a violent rally, moving up 4 points net on the day on fairly large dealings.

Waiting Game

Last week closed and this week began with traders in a waiting attitude, holding off at least until the short Congress session got the Presidents message. Volume of business fell off to a minimum, with the Monday turnover of 1,129,000 shares the smallest since Aug. 1.

Position of the market appears to be that the short interest has pretty completely covered its lines while long pull investment buying refuses to follow prices up. Both elements bring the market into a state of stymie until some new development furnishes a fresh impetus.

Monday's trading was inconclusive. Some of the standard issues made minor gains; Steel selling "ex" gained a point and other leaders did fairly well, but the amusements did not get into the mild upturn to any extent. There are too many adverse conditions working against an advance for the moment.

Most important is the still unexplained lull in theatre attendance in the last quarter, a factor which Wall street frankly recognizes without seeing any immediate betterment. When autumn earnings drop to the summer average as they have done in some cases this year, it becomes apparent that prospects for a favorable new year first quarter are not bright, thus putting a damper on the best half of the whole year for the industry. Quality of produce at the moment is accepted as the answer with the near future resting on the prospect of a betterment in studio output as a hoped for remedy.

Lacking such a spur to the theatre, one alternative is whispered—possibilities of lower admission scales in line with reduced prices in pretty much all retail lines.

Only direct market news of the week was the vote of the Loew directors of a $1 extra, which curiously came out as actually a bearish development.

New Rate Disappointment

A speculative buying play had come into Loew from the outside, based on the oft-repeated rumor that the concern would increase its regular rate from $3 to $4 a year at least. Loew's showed net profits close to $10 in the year to Aug. 31 and it was figured could well afford to be more generous. A higher rate would be welcome to Fox also, was the logical argument, since Fox is under heavy carrying charges for its new financing last spring.

Instead the directors decided on the $1 extra, raising its customary annual bonus only 25 cents. Loew for several years paid an extra of 50 cents always late in the year. Last year the directors met just after the November crash and raised their special disbursement to 75 cents as a welcome gesture.

Sweeting the extra by so small a margin this year was a disappointment, particularly in the face of general uncertainty among traders over the probable rate of current earnings in the whole industry. In other words, it created a suspicion that Loew, the company in the best net per share position of them all, was taking pains to husband its resources.

Anyhow, Loew, which had made a brisk recovery from a November low around 50, moving up to around 62 and better, sold off sharply when the dividend action was announced as new longs walked out.

Weakness in Loew quickly spread to Fox and General Theatres, both of which slipped gradually into new low ground since the recovery reached its peak Nov. 21. It was noted that volume fell off abruptly on the set back, giving encouragement to the view that it was merely the undoing of a speculative plunge, in Loew that brought about momentary retreat in the Fox-Loew coterie.

Par Lags Behind

Another bearish element in the situation is the seeming inability of Paramount to get out of the rut. For weeks now this old leader has been moving through narrow swings between 43 and 46, at which price it was under active accumulation following the market crash a year ago. It is remembered that in the early phases of the 1930 break Par receded determined support above 60 and fought the decline through the 50's with utmost aggressiveness. That it receives only nominal backing now in the middle 40's seems to speak of a changed situation.

R-K-O continues to stand out as the only member of the group that enjoys aggressive support and that seems to have its basis in the mystery character of the issue. On analysis and record R-K-O has little to attract outside following. It is conceded that its earning power shows improvement, but even at the recent rate the outlook for a near future dividend is somewhat remote.

Nevertheless the stock is entirely surrounded with optimism created by the strength of its sponsors and well authenticated reports that it is being bought in volume by strong and well informed traders. R-K-O held above 20 during the most severe of last week's pressure, except for a few scattered trades fractionally below that level. No apparent effort is made to move prices up here, the stock being merely held pegged. Probably an artificial run-up anywhere in the list would invite attack, especially in a stock so far removed from solid investment rating.

The Warner Puzzle

Confused aspect of Warner Bros. continues. At one time last week it had a severe sinking spell, getting within a fraction of 10, and its tail-spin to near 13 recently is well remembered. Nevertheless, during the dull Monday session it rallied courageously to 18 and carried its improvement through intact to the gong.

Stories are still current of disagreement between company officials and banking associates. Trade reports seek to make it appear that DuPont interests and the Warners are not co-operating, but Wall Street information is that the two sides look to be as one as far as ticker operations are concerned.

The minor upturn in Shubert was short lived and seems to have been designed for clique liquidating purposes. Recovery in the bonds from below 17 to 30 may have been brought about as part of the same campaign. Anyhow, the volume in the bonds was not large enough to give the operation the convincing aspect of a turn in company affairs. Shubert is quoted as declaring the bond interest will be paid. Semi-annual interest charge on the bonds of about $200,000 is due Dec. 15. Sinking fund requirements also call for $800,000 a year to be applied semi-annually to the redemption of the bonds at 105 up to June, 1932, less ¾ of each year thereafter until 1942. Nominal transactions Monday were at $29 for the $100 bonds, creating eloquent inference.

Bond situation among the amusements has several sick spots, notably the new Paramount-Publix issue, which continues to hit new lows week after week; the General Theatre 6s which slumped to new bottom at 72 and the Warner fixed return securities which have now gone off perilously close to 65 last week, declining nearly 6 points last week alone.

Situation of the bond section is particularly disheartening and a new phase of the amusements status in finance. Weakness is confined to the new bond issues. The old Paramount-F-P bonds are stable, near par, as are the old Loew bonds, except that fluctuations appear in the value of the stock purchase privileges. The Warner bonds are of standing less than a year, while the new Par-Pub issue came out only a few months ago. The Gen. Theatre issue made it appearance with the Fox reorganization last spring.

Aggregate Swings

Sixteen of the big board amusements last week declined an aggregate of 26 points, the losses being spread over all the active shares. Only one stock showed an advance and that was a nominal gain of 4 in the Warner Bros. preferred on a single transaction of 100 shares. Heaviest decline appeared in Loew, off 4¼ on sales of 92,000 shares, representing disappointed longs, probably of recent date, on the dividend action. Fox dropped 3¾ on sales of 142,000 shares, and General Theatres went back 1¾ on sales of 17,000 shares, a light volume for that stock.

On the Curb was no movement of importance. Columbia Pictures, watched with interest as a promising speculation, appeared only once for each description, 100 shares of the old stock and another like lot of the voting trust certificates. Old stock was unchanged at 24 and the certificates off 1¾ at 22. Such transactions, of course, mean nothing in a stock so closely held and so inactive.

Technicolor was dull, unchanged around 11.

Yesterday's Prices

STOCK EXCHANGE

		High.	Low.	Last.	Net Chge.
500	Con. F.	13¾	13⅝	13⅝	+ ⅛
1,400	East K.	108½	105¾	107¼	+ ¾
31,200	Fox F.	32⅞	31¾	32⅛	+ ⅛
6,300	Gen. Th.	18⅜	17⅝	18⅛	+ ⅜
6,200	Loew	58⅜	57¼	58	— 1¼
8,100	Par.	45⅝	44½	45⅝	+ ⅜
600	Pathe	31½	31⅝	31⅝	+ ⅛
32,700	RCA	11⅞	11⅝	11⅞	+ ⅛
24,100	R-K-O	21⅜	20⅝	21⅜	+ ⅛
400	Shubert	6⅝	6½	6⅝	+ ⅛
29,900	W. B.	15⅞	13⅞	15⅞	+ 2

CURB

500	Col. P. cf.	22	22	22
800	Gen. T. pf.	35⅜	32	35	—1¼
700	Fox T. A.	7⅝	7⅜	7⅝	+ ⅛
300	Tech.	10¾	10	10	— ⅝

BONDS

$25,000	Gen. T.	72	71	71	—1
22,000	Par-P	83½	83½	83⅝	+ ⅛
5,000	Pathe	50½	50½	50½	+ ½
5,0	Shubert	30	29¾	30	+ ¼
$3,000	W. B.	71½	67¼	71	+4

Summary for week ending Saturday, Nov. 29:

STOCK EXCHANGE

1930 High.	1930 Low.	Sales.	Issue and rate.	High.	Low.	Last.	Net Chge.
26½	5¼	500	American Seat	6¼	6¼	6¼
27⅜	12⅛	1,700	Consol. Film (2)	13⅜	13	13⅜	— ⅜
28¼	10½	1,500	Consol. Film pfd.	18	18	18
155¼	156¼	10,800	Eastman Kodak (8)	170½	161¾	167	—7
57⅜	16¼	142,500	Fox Class A (4)	35	29¼	31	—3¾
51½	14	17,000	Gen. Pict. Equip	20	17	17½	—1½
45⅜	42¾	92,400	Loew (4½)	62¾	54¼	57	—4¼
99½	84	1,000	Do pref. (6½) ex w	95¾	94	94	—1¼
17⅝	6	3,000	Madison Sq. Garden (1)	14	13	13	—1
28⅜	23½	400	Met.-G.-M. pref. (3.50)	25⅜	25½	25½	—1
77¾	40½	40,125	Paramount-Fam.-Lasky (4)	46⅜	42¾	45	—1¾
9	2¾	5,700	Pathe Exchange	3⅜	3⅛	3⅛	—¼
106½	9	1,500	Pathe, Class A	9	8	8½	—½
60⅝	12⅝	244,480	Radio Corp.	18½	16	16⅞	—1⅝
50	17½	140,800	Radio-K-O	23	19¾	20¾	—2½
99¾	63	50	Orph. pref. (8)	66	66	66	—3
35	4½	4,800	Shubert	6½	5⅝	5⅝	—1⅜
76	30		Universal pref. (6)			42½
80¼	13¾	91,900	Warner Bros.	18¾	16½	17	—2¼
70¼	34	100	Do pref. (2.20)	39	39	39	+4

CURB

53⅞	22¼	100	Columbia Picts (1½ p)	24	24	24
51½	20⅝	100	Do v.t.c. (1½ p)	22	22	22	—1⅝
17⅜	7¾	4,900	Fox Theatres	5⅞	5	5⅛	—1⅜
64½	12⅝		Loew deb. rts.			25
20⅝	3¼	1,000	Loew war.	4⅞	3¾	3¾	—1¼
18½	8	3,700	Gen. Thr. E. w. i.	12¾	10	10	—2¾
37¼	32⅜	2,100	G. T. E. inf. w.	35	34	35	+2
32⅝	12½	100	National Screen (5)	20	20	20	—3½
36½	7⅛	2,800	Technicolor	12	10¾	11	—1

BONDS

100¼	72	$32,000	Gen. Thr. Eq. 6's '46	74	72	72¾	—1¼
79	74	20,000	Keith 6's '46	77	74½	76½	—1
139	101⅝	11,000	Loew 6½ '41	104	102	103	—1
101½	91½	83,000	Do ex war	97¼	96½	97¼
94⅝	82⅝	116,000	Par-F 5½ '50	85	82¾	83	—2½
90	38	29,000	Pathe 7's '37	51	50	50	—3
103¾	92⅜	47,000	Par-Fam-Lasky 6's '47	98	90½	96	—3
69½	16¼	5,000	Shubert 6's	20	28	24	—5
113½	65¼	159,000	Warner Bros. 6's	70	65¾	67¾	—4

ISSUES IN OTHER MARKETS

All Quoted for Monday

Produce Exchange, N. Y.

...	...	100	Jenkins Th.	3	3

Over the Counter, N. Y.

Bid.	Asked.
15	19½	.....	Roxy, Class A (6.50)	...	...	...
21	...	.....	Do do	...	...	...
75	2	.....	Do do	...	...	...
1	3	.....	Dr. Pepper (1)	...	...	...

Los Angeles

		Sales.
...	...	.....	Roach, Inc.	...	...	...
...	...	200	Fox Thrs.	...	...	...
...	...	200	R-K-O	25¾	25¾	25¾

Yesterday's Prices

STOCK EXCHANGE

		High.	Low.	Last.	Net Chge.
500	Con. F.	13¾	13⅝	13⅝	+ ⅛
1,400	East K.	108½	105¾	107¼	+ ¾
31,200	Fox F.	32⅞	31¾	32⅛	+ ⅛
6,300	Gen. Th.	18⅜	17⅝	18⅛	+ ⅜
6,200	Loew	58⅜	57¼	58	— 1¼
8,100	Par.	45⅝	44½	45⅝	+ ⅜
600	Pathe	31½	31⅝	31⅝	+ ⅛
32,700	RCA	11⅞	11⅝	11⅞	+ ⅛
24,100	R-K-O	21⅜	20⅝	21⅜	+ ⅛
400	Shubert	6⅝	6½	6⅝	+ ⅛
29,900	W. B.	15⅞	13⅞	15⅞	+ 2

CURB

500	Col. P. cf.	22	22	22
800	Gen. T. pf.	35⅜	32	35	—1¼
700	Fox T. A.	7⅝	7⅜	7⅝	+ ⅛
300	Tech.	10¾	10	10	— ⅝

BONDS

$25,000	Gen. T.	72	71	71	—1
22,000	Par-P	83½	83½	83⅝	+ ⅛
5,000	Pathe	50½	50½	50½	+ ½
5,0	Shubert	30	29¾	30	+ ¼
$3,000	W. B.	71½	67¼	71	+4

Picture Distribs Asked to Share In R-K-O National Ad Campaigns

R-K-O theatre department, as an exhibitor, has petitioned the picture producers from which it buys product, including Radio Pictures, to share equally in the expenses of national exploitation of all pictures. The companies, besides Radio, are Pathe, Columbia and Universal.

Claim of R-K-O in making the demand is that since all films are played on percentage in the R-K-O theatres, national exploitation is as beneficial for the distributors as for the theatres.

R-K-O has established a national exploitation bureau for pictures, with Jack Hess in charge. Hess was brought to New York from Chicago, where he had been in command of R-K-O theatre publicity for the west.

Hess, under R-K-O's direction, is reported obliged to formulate national exploitation campaigns for all pictures booked for playing by R-K-O, with nature of the campaigns to be guided by merits of the films, regardless of brand.

This mainly involves newspaper ad placements, featuring the "run of the paper" type of daily advertising. The distribs are requested by R-K-O to share 50% of such expenditures. On pictures warranting that amount of plugging, the distribs will be asked to share in exploitation for as high as $40,000, taking in the advertising nationally, with R-K-O to contribute the same amount.

Radio, Pathe and Columbia are said to have agreed to the proposition. Universal is reported as practically sold.

TRADE PAPER DEALS REPORTED CLOSING

Within another week Martin Quigley may have his trade paper acquisitioning completed and functioning, it is reported. Already the "Daily Review" in New York is in its second week as a Quigley publication and everyone, including Arthur James and Jimmie Cron, seems satisfied.

The "Herald-World" publisher is not stopping with "Motion Picture News," final details for which are now being handled. He is set upon being represented along the West Coast by a daily. There are two out there now, one scarcely known, and the other not much better, but both handicapped by red ink. Quigley, who is reputed wealthy in his own name, will probably start a third daily film paper for Hollywood.

Calvin Brown, former executive vice-president of Pathe, is interested in the trade paper merger. A personal friend of Quigley's for years, Brown, it is disclosed, also played an important part in Quigley's negotiations for the "Moving Picture World," now titled with the "Herald," four years ago.

At the offices of the "News" all reports were denied.

Incorporations

CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

Wilshire Mountain Front Co., Ltd., County of Los Angeles. Capital stock $50,000, subscribed $300. D. E. Zdnarly, E. C. Myers, R. H. Myers.

Animated Pictures Corp., Ltd., County of Los Angeles. Capital stock $20,000, subscribed $500. Ubbe E. Iwwerks, Mildred S. Iwwerks, Carl W. Stalling, Win Smith, Emil Offeman.

Owl Amusement Co., Ltd., County of Los Angeles. Capital stock $50,000, subscribed $25. Ray D. Rawson, Clifford E. Hughes, Laura Sandquist.

Sacramento, Dec. 2.

Consolidated Amusement Society, County of Los Angeles; no capital stock. Victor Connors, Irene L. Selvidge, Arthur E. Delmore.

Teatro Hidalgo, Ltd., County of Los Angeles; capital stock $10,000; subscribed $30. Harry E. Ewing, Ruth S. Ewing, Odilon Ybarra.

Bennett Pictures Corp., Ltd., County of Los Angeles; capital stock 1,000 shares, none subscribed. J. Stadmann, Ira Thyner, M. Goodman.

Freeman Lang Enterprises, Inc., Ltd., County of Los Angeles; capital stock $150,000, subscribed $600. Freeman Lang, Nick Stuart, E. K. Barnes, Archie Josephson, C. Bert de Bliu.

Canada Indie Co. Earns Increased Net Profit

Toronto, Dec. 2.

Net earnings of United Amusements, operators of 20 theatres in eastern Canada, was $3.75 per common share, compared with $3.41 last year.

Surplus was $724,200, increase of $113,400. Net profit was $296,452. Last year it was $270,440.

United Amusements is an independent organization affiliated with Famous Players-Can. F. P. holds a minority block of stock. It tried to get control some time ago, but offer turned down.

Selig on Spot

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

Col. Wm. N. Selig is cited to appear at the court house next Monday (8), and tell what he has in the way of property.

Order was obtained by Exclusive Features, Inc., New York corporation, which holds a judgment for $13,821 against the Selig Polyscope Co., Inc.

The judgment handed down last April settled a distribution agreement that started in 1922 when Exclusive Features demanded an injunction against the sale of Selig features and comedies to any other distributor.

JUDGMENTS

John Swanstrom, Connolly & Swanstrom, Princess Charming, Inc., Selva & Son, $1,242 (dancing shoes).

Coney Island Stadium, Inc., et al., Glens Falls Indemnity Co., $2,719.

BANKRUPTCIES

Roxy Music Stores, Inc., 1715 Broadway.

U's 'Iron Man'

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Universal has bought "The Iron Man," by W. R. Burnett, author of "Saint Johnson," also owned by U. Tod Browning will direct.

Publix Figuring on 10 New Weeks for Stage Shows; Fox-WB Also Add Acts

The human angle on the stage as an important adjunct to screen fare is receiving more consideration in large film theatres throughout the country than ever before. Where the tendency at the beginning of 30 was to cut the stage fare and depend upon the picture for as near 100% of the entertainment as possible, the end of 1930 is exactly the reverse. The new year may usher in an all-time maximum for top-notch acts on bookings which can exceed in duration some of the longest secured in the hey day of vaudeville.

Paramount-Publix, Fox, and Warners are all preaning for stage amplification of their biggest screens. P-P is considering introducing presentations in 10 new spots shortly after Jan. 1. At the present time units are booked for 29 weeks with only a three-week layoff. This means that 26 key houses are included in the run, eight more than P-P had last January, when it was making efforts to reduce even that number.

Fox, in addition to its Fanchon-Marco activity, is reported preparing to bring its total of combo houses this side of the Mississippi to 60.

Warners, in competitive spots, and despite an early inclination to shelve vaude, is being forced to go for livestock. While, officially, the film still asserts itself as being all for the picture, the number of WB houses playing is admitted to be increasing. The Brothers, still in the acquiring state, have a few months to go before their general theatre policy can hope to be standardized.

Competition Doing It

Competition is generally conceded responsible for the consideration acts are now receiving. Fox and R-K-O on Coast, drew Publix into sending its best talent Pacific-ward.

This circuit may soon be extended from 29 to 39 weeks, and among the houses given as prospects for stage attention in the 10 additional cities are those in Birmingham, Atlanta, and Kansas City.

HUGHES DEALING WITH PAR FOR 4 RELEASES

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

With 10 stories tied up and only three to be produced on his UA contract, Howard Hughes is dickering with Paramount for the release of at least four pictures following.

"Aces Up," "Front Page", and "Scarface" are now being rewritten, with "Queer People" not slated for adaptation or dialog.

Gag Crew on Cutouts

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Clyde Bruckner, Feliz Adler and Lex Neal, Harold Lloyd's gag crew, have been engaged to write the comedy for "Aces Up." It's Howard Hughes' comedy to be made around cut outs from "Hell's Angels."

William Seiter directing.

DELAY ON "MOON"

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Paramount is held up on its filmization of "June Moon" through the part of the piano player not being set.

While tests of Harry Rosenthal, creator of the part, have been okayed, it's improbable that he can keep the screen date because the show is still on the road in the east. Meanwhile, Par. is testing Murray Smith, who played the character in the coast legit company.

Best Xmas Present
Subscription to
VARIETY
$10 for One Year
Always Welcome

Censors Never Agree; Reports Only in Mind, Says Theatres' Atty.

Indianapolis, Dec. 2.

Censors cut scenes from pictures to make their reports sufficiently impressive rather than to make them pure and wholesome, charged Charles R. Metzger, attorney for Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, in an address here before the Service Club.

"Of the seven states having censorship boards no two agree on the scenes to be eliminated from pictures," Metzger pointed out in his criticism of the censorship plan.

Recalling that in 1909, when the censorship board was established in Chicago, it was predicted that through the censoring of motion pictures, crime would be eliminated, Metzger said, ada

"Look at Chicago today," he said, "and it has the most rigid censorship rules in the country."

Percentage Producing

(Continued from page 2)

first time, generally, complete team work in the making of pictures.

35% More

In what pro rata the talent split will be divided isn't mentioned. It is said a director can increase his income by the percentage method of not less than 35%, with the star securing about the same increase over what would have been the regular flat salary of either for that picture, while the author for the first time will be on a royalty basis, the same as though writing for the stage.

It is not contemplated from the account to guarantee either of three on percentage any substantial sum, against the royalty. It will be a pure percentage arrangement as an incentive for all to get together and do their utmost for the picture that will reflect in the box office. In fact the new scheme is referred to as a box office angle for the first time, for talent. While the picture is in the making either one of the persons in on percentage in it will be allowed a moderate drawing account weekly, if requested, with that weekly advance to be charged against their share of the gross.

At present it requires a talker to tour the world and make a complete rental return around 20 months. In the U. S. and Canada the first return will be secured and a probable royalty payment within 100 to 120 days after general release.

Partners

So far no opinion has been heard expressed by the talent involved. It is anticipated by the producers, according to reports, that the directors, stars and authors will readily take to the plan since it actually makes them partners in the pictures they contribute too, while the authors, for the first time in pictures, will go on the royalty return they seem to believe, from stage tradition, is a portion of their work.

In inside circles here the entire plan is hailed as a probable solution to many of the studios' present problems. Its first effect, from reports, will be to weed out the decayed or old styled director. The percentage payment it is believed will be a great urge to the younger directors and stars.

In years past the percentage idea with silents was tried in a way, principally by Metro, but with directors only. It was not successful in keeping down the cost of production. That failure is thought to have been caused through Metro in those days having guaranteed the director his usual salary, on top of the percentage split, resulting in the director merely figuring the picture percentage engagement the same as any other, since his regular money was secure.

Production waste up to $15,000,000 annually in this colony is not contradicted by studio heads. Some says it is a conservative estimate. It is also claimed to be unavoidable under the present production systems. The percentage plan will largely correct this, it is stated, and the best informed appear to agree with that opinion.

1st Runs on Broadway

Subject to Change

Week Dec. 5

Paramount—"Follow Leader" (Par).
Globe—"Boudoir Diplomat" (U).
Capitol—"Remote Control" (M-G-M).
Rivoli—"Morocco" (Par).
Strand—"Scarlet Pages". (WB).
Winter Garden—"Mother's Cry" (WB) (4).
Rialto—"Blue Angel" (Ufa) (4).
Mayfair—"Sin Takes Holiday" (Pathe).
Cohan—"Yellow Mask" (B. I. P.).

Week Dec. 12

Paramount—"Only Saps Work" (Par).
Globe—"Boudoir Diplomat" (U).
Capitol—"Way of Sailor" (M-G-M).
Rivoli—"Royal Family" (Par) (11).
Strand—"The Gorilla" (WB).
Winter Garden—"Mother's Cry" (WB).
Rialto—"Blue Angel" (Ufa).
Mayfair—"Sin Takes Holiday" (Pathe).

$2 Pictures

"Viennese Night" (WB) (Warners).
"Hell's Angels" (UA) (Criterion).
"Hell's Angels" (UA) (Gaiety).
"War Nurse" (M-G-M) (Astor).
"Kismet" (WB) (Hollywood).

RADIOING FOR PICTURE CO.'S ON LOCATION

Washington, Dec. 2.

An unusual privilege extended by the government has just been granted picture companies engaged on production in remote areas. Short wave radio facilities, where no other means of communication are available, are placed at the disposal of the picture people by the Federal Radio Commission.

To enable them to maintain communication between their studios and parties on location the commission amended a previous general order (No. 74) having to do with the allocation of frequencies in the continental short wave band. Two frequencies—1,552 and 1,556 kilocycles—once reserved for ship and coastal stations are now available "for temporary use in connection with the production of motion pictures."

5 War Heroes

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Pathe is not shelving "Beyond Victory," the quintuple war story, but is retaining most of the James Gleason portions and has assigned Gleason to do added sequences.

Original story of five war heroes, each recounting his martial experiences, resulted in Pathe finding it virtually had five different pictures on its hands.

E. H. Griffith will direct the added sequences.

Gleason is almost set for the fresh reporter part in "Front Page" (Hughes), played by Lee Tracy in original stage production.

L. A. to N. Y.

Arthur F. Driscoll.
Evelyn Wilson.
Adolph Zukor.
Marlene Deitrich.

N. Y. to L. A.

Myron Selznick
W. R. Sheehan
H. B. Franklin
Jeanette MacDonald.
Joe Pincus
Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lewin

The Social Side of Filmdom

(In the East)

By Joe Hoffman

Fox basketball squad accounted for its fourth straight victory Nov. 26, when the DRIP team was met and conquered 36-6. Tubby Plotkin and Willie Cohen showed some smart playing for the Fox five, which plays R-K-O in the initial film league contest tonight (3) aboard the U. S. S. "Illinois." Warners quintet, going great guns recently, meets Pathe also tonight at the same place.

By winning two bowling games out of three from General Sales, Publicity maintained its four-game lead in the Fox bowling tourney last Wednesday (26). Auditing No. 1, in second place, also won two of their three games. Standing of teams to date is:

	Won.	Lost.
Publicity	17	4
Auditing No. 1	13	8
Fox Theatres No. 1	11	10
Play Date	10	11
Auditing No. 2	10	11
General Sales	10	11
Fox Theatres No. 2	9	12
Laboratory	4	17

Fred Rath's Play

Fox home office personnel extended congratulations last week to Fred Rath, of the advertising and publicity staff, upon the premiere of his play, "First Night," which opened at the Eltinge Nov. 26. And what's more, the Foxites are turning out in a body to see the play and root for their favorite playwright.

Tiffany

Jessie MacDonald and Gladys Mooney, two newcomers in the Tiffany family, arrived just in time for the holidays...Ed. Stapleton, the best loved man at Tiffany on Thursdays, celebrated his fourth wedding anniversary...Phyllis Goldman, who recently took the fatal step, refuses to lose her identity for mere man. She's still Phyllis Goodman...Charlotte Baker is the owner of a poodle dog, and says the mutt keeps her awake nights.

Fox

A lovely addition has been made recently to the personnel of the accounting department. Her name is Gladys Wees—and guess what? She lithps!...Solomon Gilbert Bronitsky, reprint teller, has a pash for wearing green suits...Somebody's been an egg in the pocket of Paul Franke, draftsman, which burned him so much he fried it...The dramatic urge among Foxites has led to the organization of the Fox Film Frolickers...Sam Schlein, former captain of the C. C. N. Y. basketball team, is serving likewise for the Fox quintet...Ralph D. Whitmore, foreman of the machine shop, was at one time professor of mechanical engineering at the Imperial Tsing Hua College, Peking...Morton Sellner sends a telegram to his g. f. saying he can't meet her, and the operator signed it Moron Sellner. The g. f. doesn't like gags, and gave Mo g. a.h., Lillian Nitzberg tells strangers her surname is Pittsburgh. ...Willie Tippner was unanimously nominated the sheik of the purchasing dept...Agnes Murphy is back on the job and got a heavy welcome... Maurice Spencer was a wrestler and football man for the U. of P. in his heyday...Florence Gilbert didn't want her engagement to a certain young doctor to leak out...John Whidding writes some swell poetry.

First issue of the Fox A. C. news was distributed last week. Newsy two-page sheet of the latest gossip about the club members and club. Snappily titled "Fox Flashes." Staff getting out the sheet: Fred Bullock, Milton Rosenfeld, Davis Sorokin, Morton Sellner and Milton Green, with Hettie Gray Baker, E. H. Collins and Alan E. Freedman as the council representatives.

Staff will publish the organ now and then, but did such a good job with the first they will probably be called upon to get out a second sooner than they think, with regular dated issues to follow.

Columbians' Mask

Columbians, social Columbia, staged a smash masque party at the Hotel Manger Thanksgiving Eve. Richard Cromwell appeared. Jeanne Dressler got the first dance with him. Clarence Slenker was full of smiles when Richard called out No. 164 as the winner of the 15-pound turkey, raffled off free. Four prizes were awarded for ingenious costumes for boys and girls. Ruth Cohen as Mickey Mouse walked off with first prize. Rose Handler, draped in towels, soap, toothbrush, bath sponge and other things of the same sort and tagged as the "Saturday Night Kid," gleefully accepted second place. Charlotte Stearns impersonated "Charley's Aunt," even to the extent of smoking a cigar. Harry Foster, among the unfair sex, won a nifty cigaret lighter that worked by virtue of his bear outfit. Ben Fox copped second as a bedraggled football player just out of a battle royal.

A Wise Crack

Fay Rothman pulled a Will Morrissey all evening, making crack after crack about every one, all in fun. Best was about Floyd Weber, office manager. Ray said if she had the power she would make Floyd president of this country, because he can find more work for the idle than any other man.

Members were admitted gratis, the necessary dough coming from the execs and the club treasury. Another plume goes for Jeanne Dressler for the manner in which the affair was run off.

Now everybody is getting ready for the big feed and shuffle at the Hotel Astor, Feb. 14, which will be formal.

Warners

Phil Narod getting his $3 discount at a tailoring shop....Harry Keppekin, Stanley reception lad, doing a Nurmi with an important document in his hand....Abbey Puskin exaggerating his basketball plays ....Whatever happened to Billy (Gilbert Goldy) girl of the "Times"?....Some members reminiscing about the send-off for Sylvia (S. C. Einfeld) Gutterman ere her espousal.....Also Gerry (Foreign) Keyeser's trip up to the altar and that honeymoon to sunny Bermuda....Claire Bronson won't tell off-color gags; she writes them.... Those dressy suits that Larry Golob effects with fancy lapels up to here ....Lewis Dennis wishing the newlywed Miss Neibel much happiness ....Lee Goldberg and her brilliantly colored gown....Herb Crooker writing a novel which may reach the stands; he authored "Hollywood Murder Mystery," listed among the best sellers....Elsie Pronhagen may join the "Galeties" if starred....George Bilson rushing to the A. M. P. A. meeting....Harry Zapt with an apologetic friendly smile and Jim Brennan returning same.... Florence (Stencil Dept.) Green and her friendly "fences"...."Telegraph" Lerner shooting wires to the Coast ....Keyes hurrying to his new quarters....Morty Levin relays Miss Goldberg of the Hollywood theatre, secretly married last July ....Two well-liked in the Warner Club—Archie Van Leer and Eddie Bonns....One of the better known film organizations has made some tempting overtures to Al Zimbalist for a short story which A. P. Waxman's assistant authored....Warner members extend congratulations to Johnny Maxwell on his recent marriage. Asked whether he was improving financially after the ceremonies, he replied, "Yes; my wife demanded money the first day, and I've been advancing steadily ever since"....Billy Mailman of the Warner Club theatrical committee, reports the second edition of the "Warner Club Galeties" will get under way within a week or so....Warner Club basketball team won a grudge game against the Continental Accessories Friday (28); victors donated their $25 winnings to the unemployment fund of New York.

Metro

Did Flo Ehrlich cop the booby prize at Rose Klein's bridge Sunday night?...Half pint Hattie T. Hecht, choice for mascot of the basketball team...J. S. MacLeod's hankies look more like tablecloths ...Hyman Klein has a "poiple" suit....Ruth Lewis, Rose Morgan and Rose Klein go Turkish bathing every Tuesday night at the Penn ...Rita McCarthy just moved across the street from "Benny the Tailor"...Eddie Aaron is becoming more and more popular as the Christmas holidays approach....Selwyn Levinson, personal answer to any maiden's prayer, is back in town...Who is H. Postman's red-headed g. f.?...Fred Quimby likes to eat apples...Rose Morgan's current passion is parsimmons... Jeanne New Neuwirth almost lost a turkey...Now the football season is over Morris Alin will have to get a new Saturday p. m. pasttime... Norman Kapha now suggests a rifle club...With such spots as Hal Burrows, Johnny Held, Jr., and Val Lewton, they should fare well... Paper called the "Mimeographic" compiled by the mimeographic dept. boys, will again be circulated ...As late in the season as this may be, the girls are still playing pony golf...Due to the length of Don Clarke's dining room table he will install phones at each end... One of Frank Sanfillippo's main ambitions is to make wood nuts like John Held, Jr's....A courteous office boy is Kenneth Crane. Mary Ryan just mentioned.

Tanar and G. T. P.

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

Len Roos, vice-president of the Tanar Company, indie sound recorders and manufacturers of the Tanar portabl sound unit, left here Sunday (30) for New York. It's understood Roos left on a deal whereby General Talking Pictures may take over Tanar.

Lee DeForest is associated with Tanar as consulting engineer.

Texas Indies Turn and Form Against Houston's Horowitz Mess

Dallas, Dec. 2.

Some 50 indies called a mass meeting yesterday to start the first fireworks against Will Horowitz's suicide campaign for Texas censorship.

The indies, representing geographically the entire state, and headed by R. L. Walker, lawyer-exhib, and Sam Hefley, exhib-legislator, both on the directors' board of Texas allied states, organized what is to be known as the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Protective Assn. of Texas. Its chief aim is to whip Horwitz at his own game.

The indies are plenty hot, first because they accuse H. A. Cole, former prexy of Texas Allied, of having declined renomination in October because Horwitz offered him a job as manager at $5,000 a year and assurance that "I'll see to it that you get it." Furthermore, Horwitz is alleged to have sent threatening wires to allied members to drop in line or take the gaff from local pressure from churches and femme clubs.

Districts Out

Local film exchanges and representatives of both Publix and R-K-O were present at the meeting but motion to have distribs in on the move was batted down. Indies figured P-P and R-K-O can do plenty of fighting alone, and Horwitz might have the axe on them with the gag that they in turn had "sold out" to the distribs to raise campaign money.

Robb & Rowley, largest indie circuit in Texas, with around 75 houses, has joined the indies with W. G. Underwood, one of R. & R.'s big shots, on directors' board. Just how much financial support R. & R. will give the cause is uncertain, but certain that they can give Horwitzism plenty of trouble.

Hiding

Present modus operandi will likely involve educating Texas public on Horowitz's personal squabble with P-P in Houston and his attempt to hide selfish motives by a smoke screen of women's clubs and churches.

To raise initial operation cost, indies assessed themselves dues ranging from $5 to $50 per, according to size of towns, similar to Allied's financing plan. Majority of the indies also figure that state censorship would cinch Texas' famed Sunday law, against which exhibs have spent considerable for four years. In Houston, Horwitz's ads are cooling down and less frequent. Report is Cole has brought pressure on Horwitz figuring the mess is going too far.

U. A. BUILDING, AND HUGHES, TOO

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

United Artists is prepared to proceed with its announced theatre building campaign on the Pacific Slope, but in what numbers is a question.

Howard Hughes may also start to build a house here or there, it is reported, but entirely on his own. The near-partnership of Jos. M. Schenck and Hughes has evaporated.

It is not thought that Schenck for U. A. will attempt to extensively build at present, but rather select a few choice towns in the west for the U. A. product.

"WHOOPEE' FIRST H.O. AT LOEW'S, TORONTO

Toronto, Dec. 2.

For the first time since Loew's opened here 17 years ago a picture was held over for a second week.

The film was "Whoopee" (UA).

Par Wants "Dishonorable"

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Paramount is interested in "Strictly Dishonorable," to which Universal has screen rights, as a probable talker for Maurice Chevalier. As yet Par has not approached the other studio, but is mulling it over.

Universal paid $165,000 for "Dishonorable," with John Boles considered for the top spot.

WB'S DIRECT B.O. TEST ON ITS OWN WIDE FILM

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

The chance to directly test the box office value of wide film will come up here when Warners sends "The Lash" (formerly "Adios") into both its local houses in 65 and 35-mm. (standard) widths.

WB's Vitascope (65) print of this picture will play the Hollywood while the standard reels will be screened at the Downtown. Feature is due to open in both houses Christmas Day.

If the difference is too much in favor of the wide screen at the Hollywood, a 65mm. print will be substituted at the Downtown.

UA AFTER 3 GLENDALE HOUSES AS FIRST MOVE

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

First theatre deal by Joe Schenck in organizing his United Artists theatre string out here is expected to be closed this week, UA either buying Carl Young's indie houses in Glendale, Cal., or taking Young in under partnership. An outright buy is the most likely.

Young is reported asking $150,000 as a first payment for his three houses. These are the California, seating 800; Cosmo, 400, and a new house, to open around the holidays, accommodating 900.

Glendale is a Fox West Coast stronghold and a Los Angeles suburban town getting pictures under local zoning plan immediately following L. A. first runs. Young's product franchises are all with Independents outside of Warners and First National.

ERPI Wins Decision On Infringement Case

San Antonio, Dec. 2.

Judge Worth in Federal Court Friday (28) dismisses the patent infringement suit brought by Alcograph Company against ERPI on the grounds that the plaintiffs had presented no cause for action. The validity of the patents involved were not gone into by the Court and the decision was rendered from the bench.

The trial opened Monday (24).

Alcograph asked for an accounting and sought an injunction to prevent ERPI from utilizing the disc method of talker projection.

Attorneys Woodward and Ashton, of Western Electric counsel, represented ERPI. They argued that the Alcograph patent was invalid as being inoperative and not accomplishing anything new an useful in result.

Ad. Co. Gives Contract For 100 One-Reelers

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

William Lackey, indie producer, has been given a contract for 100 advertising shorts by the Alexander Advertising Co. of Denver for the coming year. Alexander formerly produced its own pictures, but closed down its studio when silents went out.

Shorts will be one-reelers, each with a picture name. Three different products will be advertised in each reel. Sales talks will be in the form of black-outs, with the local dealers names on a title card at the end of each gag.

Sheehan Returns West

Winnie Sheehan left New York Saturday after being east for two weeks. He arrives in Los Angeles today (3), having stopped over Sunday in Chicago to confer with Harley L. Clarke.

Accompanying Sheehan is Joe Rincus, Fox's N. Y. caster, who will remain on the Coast for several months.

New Color Process Feb. 1

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Consolidated Laboratory states its new color process will be ready for producers Feb. 1, 1931.

MAYFAIR'S WIDE SCREEN

Radio's "Danger Lights" Will Appear on Spoor Invention for First Time in New York

George Spoor's wide screen, adopted by R-K-O for wide film in any of its theatres, will first show in New York, following the current run of "Sin Takes a Holiday" at the Mayfair. The picture for the occasion is "Danger Lights," Radio Pictures. It is a railroad story.

Only other showing publicly of the Spoor screen and "Lights" was at the State-Lake, Chicago.

"Sin," Pathe, may stay at the Mayfair for three weeks or longer.

RKO-PATHE BUY NOW ALL SET BY BOTH SIDES

Both sides to the purchase of Pathe by R-K-O have agreed. The contracts are to be signed today (3) if they were not yesterday.

With the purchase at $5,000,000 reported, R-K-O will secure all of the Pathe assets excepting Pathe's stock holdings of the Dupont raw stock. Included in the assets are the players' contracts held by Pathe, its studio and sound news reel, besides library. Stars under contract to Pathe are Constance Bennett, Ann Harding, Helen Twelvetrees and William Boyd.

It is understood the Pathe New York staff, with Pathe continuing under its own name, will virtually remain undisturbed, other than that Ted O'Leary, Pathe gen. sales mgr., may leave. It is likely the Pathe sales exchanges will be consolidated with those of R-K-O.

Another report is that Lee Marcus, R-K-O gen. sales mgr., will succeed E. B. Derr as the Pathe president. Whether Derr remains as producer for R-K-O in charge of Pathe has not been determined, it is said.

Dupont Valuable

The Dupont stock to the amount of 49% is claimed to be Pathe's most valuable possession, and an income maker that will increase largely in the future as in the past. The Dupont concern has been exceedingly profitable.

Last week, when the R-K-O board meeting failed to ratify the Pathe deal, reports followed that other distributors were in the market for Pathe. These distribs are said, however, to have stated they did not care to interfere with any deal R-K-O has started and might want to go through with.

It is reported the transfer of Pathe to R-K-O will at once follow the approval of the Pathe stockholders. A Pathe stockholders' meeting will be called 20 days after notice is sent out.

Coast's 2d Foreign Version Spot Is in San Diego

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

The Balboa, Fox West Coast house in San Diego, dark several months, is reopening Dec. 5 to play Spanish versions exclusively. It's the second house on the Coast used for this purpose, the other being the California, Los Angeles.

Paramount foreign product has been booked solid, opening with "The Sea God." Premiere will be in the one and only Hollywood arc light style with personal appearances for Par's Spanish players.

Local Film Gags

Dallas, Dec. 2.

Hugh Jamieson, once in screen biz here, believes in sticking to an idea. With his biz pank, last summer, took a shot on making local film with native celebs. Said film pulled after three days of scheduled week at Capitol.

Now he's at San Marcos, south Texas school town, pulling the same stunt, using everything in his flicker from beaut contest and city dads to a gridiron scrap. Picture to show at Palace in that town Dec. 3-4.

If idea clicks with the showbiz burg Jamieson will probably go after others like it.

Long Delays by Coloring on Film May Near-Erase All Color From Talkers During Season of '31-'32

If '31-'32 production schedules, tentatively set are a criterion, then color is definitely shelved by the film industry. Every producer in the field is avoiding it. Warner Brothers, involved in the biggest color contract, is reported inside to be negotiating a compromise.

Color has already cost the industry millions. According to a survey, alleged to include every company, hues haven't added a single nickel to a picture. This survey was made by the Fox organization.

In Warner quarters it is estimated the angle of time, exclusive of all material charges, has during the past year and a half cost the industry an approximate $10,000,000. Brotherites substantiate their claims along this line by pointing to some of their pictures on the January and February release schedules which have been delayed a year solely because of the color angle, they say.

Universal, reported making 20 features for '31-'32 is off color. The rainbow job on "The King of Jazz" alone cost the company $300,000, it is disclosed.

Metro will follow to a sister company in the color way, it is stated. Paramount is as positive in its declaration against tints as the other big companies.

Requirements

Until a process possessed of a clarity of definition not so far registered, also economical and easily and quickly applied, is discovered, there will be no more color in the industry than wide film. It is said the lesson learned by moving slowly on the giant screen has metamorphosed filmdom from a hectic, first-in-the-market idea of competition to one of conservatism when it comes to treating "new era."

Color cameras have proven not only expensive but trying to the science of sound since their many gadgets have record d static during filming.

Joseph Urban, celebrated stage constructionist for Ziegfeld and architect, is the latest to thumb down color. Despite the exclamations of his "show boss" several months ago about color, Urban, who has studied every process, voted for black and white in the Fox production of "East Lynn."

FOX NEWSREEL SPLITS EUROPE IN 2 PARTS

For its foreign service Fox Movietone Newsreel has adopted the Rhine as a dividing line. Having established a "publication" center in Berlin, this office now takes care of all countries east of the famous river while Paris headquarters stands responsible for all editions west of the Rhine. This is with the exception of England, served by British Movietone News.

Truman Talley, general manager of both the Fox and Hearst reels, recently returned to New York after spending three months abroad mapping out the new assignments. It is probable Talley will hereafter make two trips a year over there to keep in touch with a newsreel service which is now getting out 40 editions to include every country outside of Russia.

It is also reported that Eddie Reek, news editor of the Fox-Hearst reels in New York, may soon exchange places with Gerald Sanger, editor of British Movietone News. Understanding is that this interchange is but temporary and is merely to permit both men to pick up the angles here and there for future guidance.

1,500 Theatres Abroad

The Fox newsreel claim is that it is now serving between 1,200 and 1,500 theatres abroad with each country having its own special edition. This is being accomplished by about 20 sound trucks attached to the European organization, besides five more trucks scattered across the Far East and Australia. Five of these trucks are in France, England has four trucks and Germany also has five.

Unexpired contracts abroad are the only spots still getting silent newsreel footage from Fox, with these spools being as much "magazine" as news.

The European executive lineup now stands as Ben Meggins, European director; Gerald Sanger, British editor; Russell Muth, German editor, and Harry Lawrence in the same post for France. For the States the departmental heads remain the same with Talley as general manager, E. L. Harvey managing editor for Fox, M. D. Clothe managing editor for Hearst and Eddie Reek news editor for both reels.

Pagis, Nov. 24.

Pathe Natan newsreel, shown for several months at the Paramount in lieu of Fox newsreel, will shortly disappear from the house.

Fox reel, unreservedly acknowledged top in France, is already back at the local Paramount and Paramount's Marseilles theatre.

Roxy Back at Roxy

S. L. Rothafel resumed active charge of the Roxy theatre Monday (1). He returned Sunday from eight week abroad.

His supervision includes the stage upon which, it is understood, he will produce the show for Christmas Week, become the past few years the nearest thing New York knows to the annual pantomimes in England.

As far as known there is nothing certain on Rothafel's anticipated switch to RCA or the date thereof. At the time this move was first reported, it was believed the theatre director would abbreviate his contract with the biz house to take charge of all broadcasting programs for RCA. Roxy will probably depart around Jan. 1, 1931, to take up his new radio post.

Roxy's for Serials

Serials have proven so big in the biggest house in the U. S. that the Roxy Gorgeous has booked in the Universal serial, "Pinocchio," to follow "The Indians Are Coming." Second serial follows "Indian" Dec. 20, to be played [illegible] matinee and supper show [illegible] conclusion.

U A TAKES CRI-GAIETY FOR DOUG AND RONALD

United Artists has taken both the Criterion and Gaiety theatres for two of its new pictures which are to have $2 displays on Broadway.

"Devil to Pay," the Ronald Colman film, will debut at the Gaiety Dec. 18, and "Reaching for the Moon," the Fairbanks-Bebe Daniels picture, is to open at the Criterion Dec. 29. Securance of this latter house send "Royal Family" (Par) to the Rivoli for a grind run.

"Hell's Angels" will move out to make room for the incoming duo, and the Caddo film will play four "subway circuit" houses during the holidays on a twice daily basis. United Artists is also handling the latter bookings.

The Rogans Are Better

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Mrs. Roy Rogan, wife of the Publix district manager in Joliet, was pronounced out of danger Monday (1) after a serious auto accident last week. It was feared she would lose her sight.

Rogan is also rapidly recovering.

Censor Says He'll Ride On Hays Code—Portland

Portland, Ore., Dec. 2.

The Hays code is now the rule for this burg's censor board. Bob Mount, censor chairman, backed by church folk, for stricter censorship, stood pat on the Hays dictum.

Mount tells viewers to interpret the code with reasonable regard for picture needs. That rattles the [illegible] 7,000 fans to clamp on the lid.

LIGHTNIN'

Fox production and release. Starring Will Rogers. Directed by Henry King. Adapted from the play of the same name by Frank Bacon and Winchell Smith and produced by John Golden. Photographed Chester Lyons. Running time, 94 minutes. At the Roxy, New York, week Nov. 28.

"Lightnin'" Bill Jones..... Will Rogers
Mrs. Jones..... Louise Dresser
John Martin..... Joel McCrea
Milly..... Helen Cohan
Mrs. Lowry..... Sharon Lynn
Lem Townsend..... J. M. Kerrigan
Thomas, a lawyer..... Jason Robards
Margaret Davis..... Ruth Warren
Diana..... Joyce Compton
Ronaldo..... Rex Bell
Sheriff..... Frank Campeau
Zeb..... Luke Cosgrave
Walter Lanman..... Thomas Jefferson
Mrs. Brooks..... Goodee Montgomery
Monte Winslow..... Phil Tead
Everett Hammond..... Walter Percival
Mrs. Thatcher..... Charlotte Walker

Will Rogers creates anew for another generation the classic figure of Lightnin' Bill Jones, his first legitimate character role, and at the same time reveals a new Will Rogers, a player of mellow humor and fascinating, artless charm.

The screen play is a production of the highest quality in all its phases, a picture of compelling merit and, first of all, a happy introduction of the Oklahoma wit as an actor of opulent humor and heart appeal. That it can fall of important returns doesn't seem possible.

The screen for once has done ample justice to a play of fine tradition, both in its celluloid interpreter and in the spirit of its translation to the new medium.

Frank Bacon produced the play at the New York Galety in late August, 1918; it broke all run records there and afterward simply devastated the country. All that made it achieve the outstanding success of its generation is intrinsically present in the new film version, with Rogers an honorable successor to its creator, Frank Bacon, who was appearing in the piece on the road when he died.

The story is that Rogers had yearned for years to do "Lightnin'" because the part was his pet fascination. Thus the playing was a labor of love, and Rogers' achievement in it reflects as much.

Here's one old play that can't be called "old-fashioned," for the blending of sage philosophy and child-like naivete that go into the wisdom of Lightnin' hasn't any age or era. Play is a composite of haw-haw comedy and a peculiar twist of drollery that encourages a lump in the throat.

There is the scene where Lightnin' discourses solomnly with a bevy of fluttering Reno divorcees the ins and outs of alimony, and it's a gem for homely philosophy. There's also Lightnin's epic tale of how he "drove a swarm of bees across the prairie in the single bee." The play is a mine of artless nonsense of the same sort, rising to the final scene, old Bill in court, where his devoted but headstrong wife has been inveigled into a divorce suit. Here is a bit of carpentry's unerring touch upon the heartstrings, with Rogers handling it for every ounce of appeal.

It was to be expected that Rogers would make the most of the comedy, but his shrewd shading of sentimental passages puts the finishing touch to a picture that is a stimulating emotional experience.

An almost flawless group of players backs up the main character; first in importance and contributing force to the whole picture is Louise Dresser playing Mrs. Jones, adding a new and appealing portrait to her extensive gallery. Joel McCrea and Helen Cohan, juvenile and ingenue, fit trimly into the picture, with subsidiary comedy types neatly played by Frank Campeau as the Sheriff, who can never catch his man on the right side of the California-Nevada line that runs through the Jones hotel, and Luke Cosgrave playing the decrepit Zeb, the octogenarian bellhop. It's Miss Cohan's (George's daughter) first screen role.

A number of fluttering divorcees range in and out, supplying a contrast to the homely domesticity of the humdrum Joneses, without ever getting into the picture except by unspoken suggestion. As an illustration of the restraint that went into the making of the screen version, one notes, for instance, volumes. There is a mountain lake near the Jones hotel where the gay wives-not-to-be go bathing, and the circumstance is referred to once or twice.

Opportunity is ready made for the display of plenty of one-piece bathing suit display so dear to the hearts of film makers, but the opportunity is never employed. The beauty parade is always off stage and unimportantly invisible except as an unseen detail.

Picture was taken at and around Lake Tahoe, actually close to the Nevada-California state line, the story's real locale and the picture is full of scenic splendors that are breath-taking. Rush.

LOTTERY BRIDE

(With Songs)

United Artists production and release. Directed by Paul Stein. Production credited to Arthur Hammerstein. Featuring Jeanette MacDonald. John Garrick, Joe E. Brown. Original story by Herbert Stothart. Adaptation by Horace Jackson. Continuity and dialog by Howard Emmett Rogers. Music by Vincent Youmans. Musical arrangement by Hugo Riesenfeld. At Rialto, New York, Nov. 28; indef., on grind. Running time, 85 minutes.

Jenny..... Jeanette MacDonald
Chris..... John Garrick
Hoke..... Joe E. Brown
Flint..... Zazu Pitts
Olaf..... Robert Chisholm
Alberto..... Joseph Macaulay
Burke..... Harry Gribbon
Ned..... Carroll Nye

Theatrically, this is nondescript. Just a hopeless potpourri of meller, comedy and operatic situations with a couple score of songs and choruses.

Plug all this, there isn't a worthwhile performance in the entire cast, even Joey Brown flattening into the general jumble of pitched and highly artificial hokum. Only fans in the theatres can safely venture this one in their bookings.

The story and dialog include every bromide in an effort to be "novel." The actors use their hands, sing without provocation, and make all kinds of grimaces. With some of the recording, which is raspy, the melody end of this production reminds of little Singing Nellie's first audition for the town hall.

Rudolph Friml composed some numbers that it sung under the proper circumstances, and with less machine-gun-like staccatoness of introduction would be impressive.

And one scene had to be in color. That emphasized the badness of the entire production. But while color was underway, Stein had to okay an illusion of the cafe girls in heaven. Then Chris shouted:

"It's madness."

And Caf, a Pagliacci in cowskin, retorts: "It's hopeless. We're lost." Wally.

VIENNESE NIGHTS

(With Songs)
(In Color)

Warner Bros. production and release. Original musical romance, written by Sigmund Romberg and Oscar Hammerstein II. Directed by Alan Crosland. At Warner theatre, New York, opening Nov. 26, indef., twice daily at $2 top. Running time, 105 minutes.

Otto..... Alexander Gray
Elsa..... Vivienne Segal
Hocher..... Jean Hersholt
Franz..... Walter Pidgeon
Lanner..... Louise Closser Hale
Barbara..... Alice Day
Gus..... Bert Roach
Mary..... June Duprez
Bill..... Milton Douglas

It is pretty and clean musical romance, with pleasing music, does not get over, it will settle any question of present as to whether the theatre-going public wants musical talkers. On Broadway at $2 where "Viennese Nights" is current at the Warner theatre, is not the test, however. That test is to come with the general release.

At the premiere the house seemed divided, although there was substantial applause at the picture's end, unusual nowadays in picture theatres. This picture should get over, it deserves to, for the screen story runs along smoothly and pleasantly, like a novel, broken into by the times that are a part of its score by Sigmund Romberg and Oscar Hammerstein II, who wrote the book and music of this original. At the conclusion of the performance both writers were called to the stage to briefly speak. Mr. Hammerstein mentioned the musical effort and originality of the pictured story, adding likewise that if "Viennese Nights" is not a success, Mr. Romberg and himself might as well retire from the film field until a demand returns.

The picture runs in four periods, 1880-1890-1900, and 1930, in two locales, Vienna and New York. There's nothing striking in the story, except its complete abstinence from any possible sexy angle. That sort of thing once seemed to be injected in this talker. Many believe the purely romantic story may now have its chance, as interesting a wider range of film fans, taking in the young and old, as other than the flapper bunch that has doted so strongly on the sex picture angle.

The period of 50 years embraced includes three generations, with the first characters gradually aging, notably Vivienne Segal, who did better under her snow white hair than as the 17-year-old girl, something difficult for Miss Segal to illustionize, as she did not always take well on photography. Alexander Gray is opposite, until his death, most miserable age. He's probably looking all right as the young musician in love with the girl who married a Baron instead of himself, but you must like blond men before liking Gray overmuchly in this picture. It was Gray's grandson who finally married Miss Segal's granddaughter, while the widowed and aged Baroness passed away with her memories awakened by the symphony her early lover had composed and sung the words for her only 50 years before.

How Gray lost his sweetie may be a lesson for all men on the make. When the young Gray musician found the girl's father wanted her to marry the Baron, the adjutant of the regiment in which Gray was the drummer, Gray temporarily went off his nut. He had seen his girl go to the opera with the Baron. But she had intended telling the Baron his marriage idea was a flop, but waited until after the performance when the Baron's large party was in a fashionable restaurant. Wandering dazed-like through the streets, Gray sees the same restaurant and is about to enter when the starter tells him men without women not allowed. Saying he will fix that, Gray picks up a girl on the street and enters the place with her. By this time Gray is half-stewed. Noticing a party he knows, Gray sits down and slips the strange girl a note just as Miss Segal has started to tell the Baron it's cold.

She gets a flash at the moment though of Gray, whom she intends to marry instead, and that hug business, whereupon Miss Segal tells the Baron the marriage thing is okay and gives Gray an on way. That is Vienna. They meet again 20 years later in New York, when both are married and have children, etc.

One excellent comedy scene is while the musician in his New York flat is still after that symphony with visions, otherwise double exposures, and his wife in bed bawling him plenty meantime for monkeying around music when a job in a pickle factory is waiting for him.

Plenty of good production all in acceptable color, direction beyond reproach, well assembled cast and everything, but it's a musical. Let's see. Sime.

Sin Takes a Holiday

Pathe production and release. Directed by Paul Stein. Story by Robert Milton. In cast: Constance Bennett, Basil Rathbone, Kenneth MacKenna, Zasu Pitts. At RKO Mayfair, New York, Nov. 28, indef. on grind. Running time about 75 minutes.

Here is the nearest thing to all-round appeal for sophisticate and moron, for stenographer and society girl, for housewife and matron. It's a money bet taking in a box office sphere of rare generality, including Constance Bennett. It's one of the few real bull's-eyes which Hollywood scores annually by reason of this. Story is about a poor stenog in love with her boss, who goes through a sham marriage to get him out of a jam with an alimony huntress, and never a wrong phrase is uttered by this stenog, the blond Miss Bennett, who gets a chance to display some gorgeous evening gowns.

Not even by move or gesture is Haysism transgressed. There is a simple purity of surface throughout, and yet there is an insinuation in many of the lines and a suspense allow to mount through sheer cleverness of the situations and their handling. Sin does take a holiday in this. But the Parisian boulevards, hotel rooms, cafes and life aboard ship with champagne and cocktail parties in the smart Park avenue manner—they're all in it.

A nice girl can hold her audience just as tense if Miss Bennett's work in this is any criterion—and it should be. Disarming wish men with frankness is the theory of this writing. It comes out not only an achievement at the box office but one at which no censorious finger may be pointed.

Kenneth MacKenna and Basil Rathbone have the male leads, those of a divorce lawyer and roustically inclined young men, respectively. Waly.

Miniature Reviews

"College Lovers" (FN). Laughs here, but not consistent nor many. Story of light weight with no acting personality. Will need support and strong exploitation.

"Razlom" (Amkino). Russian film made in the Soviet and based on the revolution of 1917. Blunt stuff with nothing to recommend except cutting. Photography mostly bad.

"Lottery Bride" (UA). Something that even amateurs would be ashamed of. One of the very worst of the really very bad features released since sound.

"Sin Takes a Holiday" Real hit from Hollywood for any type of fan, meaning money picture.

"Fast and Loose" (Par). Light weight comedy lacking marquee strength in its cast. Familiar story of bored adolescence offset by neat work of legit players and its brisk pace. Normal quality footage as a whole which can't hope to better moderate grosses.

"Lightnin'" (Fox). Will Rogers playing the Frank Bacon classic old rascal up to the hilt. Notably strong release, with special references to a sterling performance by the star.

"Madonna of the Streets" (Col.) Ancient hoke and sombre photography on the Frisco waterfront. Appealing to certain type of womanhood with title an aiding draw to certain males. Fair programer.

FAST AND LOOSE

Paramount production and release. Directed by Fred Newmeyer. Based on Avery Hopwood's play, "Best People." Made at the Long Island studio. Doris Anderson, adaptation; Preston Sturges, dialog; staged by Certain Heyburn. Cameraman, William Steiner. At the Paramount, New York, week of Nov. 28. Running time, 70 minutes.

Marion Lenox..... Miriam Hopkins
Alice O'Neil..... Carole Lombard
Bronson Lenox..... Frank Morgan
Percy Morgan..... Charles Starrett
Bertie Lenox..... Henry Wadsworth
Carrie Lenox..... Winifred Harris
George Gaston..... Herbert Yost
Lord Rockingham..... David Hutcheson
Millie Montgomery..... Ilka Chase

Frothy bit of celluloid practically void of names familiar to the film public, which will go to Par's box office trouble. Otherwise, it's a pleasing release for light entertainment apt to have its worries in reaching average figures. It seems destined for a moderate career at best.

Detrimental angle of the story, which again rehashes the unruly children of wealth, is compensated for by the cast. In this respect it is Miriam Hopkins' first picture. This stage artiste plays tick-tack-toe with the camera, sometimes winning, sometimes losing, but the merit of her performance will be universally obvious. As is true of most of the legit girls, Miss Hopkins is adroit at light comedy, although her forte may be heavier subjects. It's likely that Miss Hopkins' future in pictures will rest with the camera boys, or executive supervision to see that the cameramen give her adequate attention. That she can be photographed is acknowledged by various shots in this footage.

Cast principals are almost entirely from the stage, with Charles Starrett opposite Miss Hopkins and Frank Morgan again playing the financier father. Carol Lombard is the only picture name which comes to mind in the lineup, although Ilka Chase, who can admit to previous Fox experience, is included.

Theme is aimed to split the interest between Miss Hopkins and Miss Lenox. Former is engaged to a theatric silly-ass and titled Englishman, while the boy is in love with an on-the-level chorus girl. Marion seeks an out on her prospective marriage for a title and grasps her chance when accidentally meeting young Morgan. Later discovery that he's merely a garage mechanic merely enhances the romance for her, and it's a grand mixup when the entire family meets in a road-house raid. The understanding father of the Lenox lad is incognito on a date with his wife's former flame along with the boy's straight-laced uncle. Following blowoff in the courthouse has the mechanic and chorister turning down the Lenox children as marital partners, which situation the father straightens out with the remark that the youngsters need the level-headed guidance of the working couple.

That's pretty hokey, including the old formula of hooking up one wild chorister with the Puritanic uncle. Theater has some trouble getting started, but the sequence between Miss Hopkins and Starrett, battle of wills based on pride of sex, is the dialog footage which should make them linger to see what happens. Hence, these two hold up the film, with the story giving them the major break anyway. Neither Miss Lombard nor Henry Wadsworth do accomplish much as the second couple, while Morgan is fast developing into a standard support type. Winifred Harris plays the continuously fainting mother and David Hutcheson is passable as the British nobleman of American stage vintage.

Feature carries some good-looking interiors and has been well photographed and recorded, but it's not a heavy production outlay. The direction and the players hold the much used script together, its brisk pace, after the initial footage, being important. Film is down to 70 minutes, decidedly in its favor. Sid.

COLLEGE LOVERS

First National production and release. Marion Nixon and Jack Whiting featured. Story by Earl Baldwin. Directed by John Adolfi. At the Strand, New York, week Nov. 27. Running time, 61 minutes.

Frank Taylor..... Jack Whiting
Special Hastings..... Edgar Kennedy
Al "Tim" Courtlay..... Guinn Williams
Eddie Smith..... Russell Hopton
Coach Thomas..... Edgar Norton
Mary Hutton..... Marion Nixon
Josephine..... Phyllis Crane
Gene Hutton..... Richard Tucker

Laughs in this comedy on college life and football, but they do not arrive consistently, and not enough to send this film over strong without support in the key spots. In season football is almost as much a national pastime as baseball and the b. o. may work inverted on this pre-aimed satire that cuts into dramatics deliberately at times.

The story is unimportant except for gag action. That comes at the close when the two football pals do an Alphonse and Gaston on the field. With three inches for a goal and three minutes to play, they outbid each other for the pleasure of carrying the ball across until the game ends. Both thus losing the opportunity to glorify themselves and their alma mater.

That spot is the mainstay of the story and the punch that leaves nothing fit to follow. The picture attempts it with reversible pants kicking by each of the two, but that flops, to give the film a dull windup.

The yarn is built on gags and takes a musical comedy slant on action, without the song and dance routine. It may have been that musical comedy angle which planted Jack Whiting in this film. He's from that part of show biz. But gets no chance to show anything and sizes up as may be fitting that way but that's all. It can't be told from this picture.

There's a good laugh when the two footballers are ambushed without trousers on the campus and jump into a coeing pair arguing about a goodnight kiss. But as the trouser doffing begins, its crude and old stuff.

Queer things may happen in colleges but slanting films onto a tack of having a student fixer at any school like the kind Whiting rolls off is a big hunk to swallow for present day audiences. This bird even advises the coach. And between Whiting and Miss Nixon the romance is thinner than ishinglass.

There's a lack of acting personality that will make this picture tough for exploitation. Miss Nixon is visibly forced to overwork her charm to get that wall flower and coyish college girl attitude across. It makes the comedy go offside, too that way. That's miscasting both ways. Sid.

Usual radio announcer stuff here. Richard Tucker plays a most inconspicuous role. Outside of Bade Woteler as the coach there's little to speak about, although Guinn Williams looks natural.

Gags alone, without dramatic action, can't hold up b. o. if this biz caught Friday night or supper and following Thanksgiving Day is any criterion. It was the film's second day and showed one-quarter the house filled.

Some of those college footballers as shown in closeup and students would make another "Alibi." The flaps here don't compare with grace of manner to Meyer Peterson's waitresses and there's something awkward on film researchers that makes them put a small-town football team in a huge stadium before 100,000 royal rooters. That's a flourish that may not help.

BIRDS OF PREY

(All Dialog)
(ENGLISH MADE)

London, Nov. 21.

Produced by Associated Talking Pictures in conjunction with R-K-O, released through Radio Pictures (R-K-O's English subsidiary). Adapted and directed by Basil Dean from A. A. Milne's stage play, "The Fourth Wall." Recorded RCA Photophone. In cast: Robert Loraine, Warwick Ward, Dorothy Boyd, Frank Lawton, C. Aubrey Smith, Ellis Jeffreys. Length 8,832 feet. Censor's certificate "A." Running time, 90 mins., approx. Reviewed Piccadilly theatre, London, Nov. 18.

One of those slow moving, frightfully good-mannered, best-country society British pictures, in which the lesser orders of humanity behave suitably and the elite get murdered as a welcome change.

The whole trouble with Basil Dean as a picture producer is that he appears to have precisely no idea of the makings of a picture. In this particular specimen of the bean leisurely species, he is helped by all the smooth efficiency of American technicians, has art direction which knocks most British films galley-west, has a camera team which beats most of the grinders this side, and a cast of stage players of whom the more mature troupers can always be depended upon to give sterling performances. And the most he gets, out of this line-up, is a slow moving series of photographed sequences, with players mouthing melodramatic lines in a melodramatic fashion and a lot of hokum dialog which it seems unfair to blame on A. A. Milne.

As a box office proposition this adaptation of Milne's stage play, "The Fourth Wall," looks as though it might do good business in the better class houses this side, where patrons will appreciate smooth technique in a British film, and will forgive much for the sake of the players. It should be remembered the cast here is particularly strong for this side.

As a stage play the yarn made a fair success, largely on the author's name. Stripped of the playwright's theatrical sense its story is just so much hokum, leading up to the preposterous situation in which a girl, who had otherwise shown little intelligence, succeeded in trapping two murderers.

Point about the yarn as a stage show was the novelty—in its day—of producing a murder meller in which the audience knew the crooks at the outset. As a method of development on the screen the idea loses all punch.

Story values, such as they are, are spoiled by melodramatic dialog, and the insistence, presumably by Dean, of making such fine actors as Robert Loraine register the broadest meller. Recording gets the benefit of the doubt, as the reproduction at the press show was not too hot.

Best trouping is by Warwick Ward and Lorraine as the murderers, although its tough they should have to strut some of the stuff they put over. Frank Lawton is just any juvenile lead, and Dorothy Boyd is insipid as the girl. Supporting roles, especially the retired police chief, as played by C. Aubrey Smith, are mainly polished.

Atmosphere generally is good, particularly the touches at an English village fair. The whole thing is very self-conscious, over-polite, and everyone looks as though they were on the best behavior all through. This reviewer didn't spot a single trick shot in the whole production, which is just motionless stage photography on rather more elaborate lines than usual.

Film suffers with the customary English drawback of being much too long, a fault which may be remedied in the States—where it gets a release through R-K-O—but not here. Sliced by two reels it might be a novelty booking in America; this side its okay for the spots where they like to sit back and meditate on their best behavior. Chap.

OH, FOR A MAN

(With Songs)

Fox production and release. Featuring Jeanette MacDonald, Reginald Denny, Marjorie White and Warren Hymer. Directed by Hamilton MacFadden from a story by Mrs. F. Watkins adapted by Philip Klein. Dialog by Lynn Starling. Songs by William Kernell. At Fox, Brooklyn, week Nov. 29. Running time, 78 min.

Frothy farce woven around the love of an operatic prima donna for a burglar. One of those physical romances nicely shaded through Hamilton MacFadden's suave direction and capable performances by Jeannette MacDonald and Reginald Denny. Picture is hardly of deluxe house calibre, but in the neighborhood spots with some judicious cutting of the draggy opening sequence it should get by nicely.

Film gives Miss MacDonald a light comedy role and she delivers as the temperamental operatic star. Denny, as the physically perfect burglar who steals her heart, also turns in a first rate characterization.

Denny enters the operatic star's boudoir intent on robbery, but when he learns who his victim is tells her that he is also a singer with ambitions and a great admirer of her voice. The star's attempt to make an operatic baritone out of a burglar meets with little success. When he treatens to walk out on her she, very much on the make for the husky, proposes marriage. When Denny insists he does not relish being pointed out as merely the husband of an eccentric prima donna she decides to give up her career and they leave for Italy.

Life in the Italian villa soon gets on Denny's nerves, his friends and those of his wife failing to have anything in common. Following a quarrel he clears out and Miss MacDonald returns to her first love, the opera. Following her opening night, Denny, a burglar once more, climbs into her bedroom in the same manner that they first met and they are reunited.

Best laughs come when Denny is having his voice trained for the opera and is giving an audition before the impresario, baritoning a pop ballad off key. Miss MacDonald also handled several comic situations with finesse and sings two interpolated songs, one operatic, to set her among the best of the screen sopranos.

Another song, "I'm Just Nuts About You," is crammed over by Marjorie White, playing a big opposite Warren Hymer, and looking as if it had a chance for pop appeal. Alison Skipworth and Albert Conti in minor roles round out an unusually able cast. Except for the dull opening of the final act of an opera, phone, mainly in long shots, Hamilton MacFadden's direction of this picture is far better than the story deserves.

RAZLOM

("THE BREAK-UP")

(RUSSIAN MADE)

(Silent)

Produced by Mejrabpomfilm. Amkino release. Directed by Zemkovsky. Cast of artist. Grebner. Adapted from Russian play of same name. Photographed by E. Alexeyev. American titles by Shelley Hamilton. American premiere at Eighth Street Playhouse, New York, week Nov. 24. Running time, 80 minutes.

Capt. Bersenev ..... M. C. Narokov
Mme. Bersenev ..... A. I. Bourkova
Tiucana ..... M. A. Zhadanova
Oxana ..... Lydia Koulkova
Lieut. von Shtube ..... A. D. Smirnin
Godun ..... G. Gladkov
Petrenda ..... B. G. Yaroslavtzev
Shaack ..... V. S. Brkov

This picture is propaganda with a frank flourish. It's clearly meant indicator how a revolution may be undertaken. At the same time the detached view of the film serves to stifle the purpose because of the blunt way the Russians put forth their argument. Russia, nor any other nation can offer more affirmative evidence of the destructive efficacy of a revolution than this film. It's an exhibition of how limited Russian progress has been in arts and education.

Intended for a limited clientele and spotted at this house that is close to the Russian and Polish colonies in New York, besides the super cultivated hair growers of the pikey Greenwich Village. Neither entertainment nor educational, the film will have run out its purpose in short order.

One spot shows the revolutionists clubbing a couple of double crossers to death. Maybe that's propaganda or an alibi. It's equally unbidding to suppress this stuff. Being offered as entertainment its n. g. and up against the more brighter intelligence of American audiences, the stuff turns over. Revolutions may be steened by the intellectuals but its greater work and heavy stuff are done by the bludgeon minds. In Russia the peasants who make up most of the population under the czaristic regime neither were able to read nor write, in the great majority.

America is different and no amount of Russian bidding, whether official or otherwise, can change that attitude. Where else this danger here gets minimized is that certain nationals have innate differences to Russians and others. That's inherent. Every other angle is strictly an immigration problem.

But the Russians have stepped a bit in this picture by slanting it down as an adaptation of a play. Maybe that was so but the play could hardly have been any finer piece of art, and if anything, more blunt and limited.

No continuity of story or purpose is apparent except the propaganda angle. Customers paying any kind of money for that must resent it. Histrionics are mostly monotonous. The peasant characters all act the same way. Once anybody has seen a Russian film he's seen everything Russia has to offer in characters. The upper classes are always given as imbecilic. No quarrel on that point maybe, but some must be different.

Yet on the contrary viewpoint, the Russians themselves, forgot themselves apparently in one spot. The ship master, a captain, is the best actor of the lot. He's subdued and withal, shows the best knowledge of makeup.

One or two good photographic shots, principally on seaboard. The rest don't matter because the photography is too sombre for the eye. Altogether it's an over produced affair, as usual, with soldiers and sailors and foolish types of officers.

Even as propaganda, too long. Shan.

L'Amour Chante

("Love Sings")

(With Songs)

(French Dialog)

(GERMAN MADE)

Paris, Nov. 22.

Braunberger Richebe production and release. Made in Berlin. Directed by Robert Florey. Scenario and dialog by J. Bousquet and Henri Falk. Music by J. Bousquet and L. Hermant. Recorded Klangfilm. Running time, 100 minutes. Aubert Palace, Paris, Nov. 21.

Claude Merferait ..... Pierre Bertin
Lieutenant ..... Baron Fils
Crepin ..... Saturnin Fabre
Armand Petitjean ..... Fernand Gravey
Madame Merfermois ..... Yolande Laffon
Loulou Darling ..... Jeannine Mercey
Yvonne Crepin ..... Josseline Gael
Chorus ..... Plaza Tiller Girls

This is a French film, but throughout it is evident it has not been made in France. The direction by Robert Florey evidences his Hollywood experience and the facilities in Germany studios lend him to use dialog otherwise than in narrow sets.

Story is that of a grammar teacher, led by circumstances to impersonate a music teacher, whose daughter he eventually marries. He is first impressed into service to teach music to a woman whose husband is butter and egg man to a musical comedy girl who later jilts him to marry an Egyptian prince. The story occurs in Paris, but no Paris theatre enjoys such backspacing possibilities as the theatre where the musical comedy is shown, nor do French choruses usually work as smoothly as the Plaza Tiller girls in this talkee.

Pierre Bertin steals the show as the grammar teacher. Baron Fils is good, and Josseline Gael, who was to be the juvenile lead in the English version of "Lady Lies," is excellent as the music professor's daughter. Jeannine Mercey, currently in legit in "Sexe Faible" as an ingenue, is anything but that in that film, using to best advantage her directly less than the character of a bad actress. Rest of the cast is fair.

Direction excellent throughout, with some happy shots. Direction is the strong point in the film. Photoing is very good. Besides an obvious mix-up in the recording monitor room, sound is irregular, voices frequently appearing deadened as by cotton wool. Music is good, and the theme song "L'Amour Chante" quite catchy.

Many scenes draw favorable comments from the audience, particularly the one where the butter and egg man arrives whilst his wife is plucking. Only the lower part of her legs can be seen, but she is naked, having just run out of her bath to answer a phone call, and her naked feet tell the story.

There are no dull parts in the film, except for the last few feet showing the wedding of the fake music teacher with the daughter of the real one. No question this film is distinctly above the average French production. Mari.

Madonna of the Streets

Columbia production and release. Directed by John Robertson. Based on "The Rugged Messenger," by W. B. Maxwell. Adaptation and dialog by Jo Swerling. Photographer, Sol Polito. Starring Evelyn Brent. Featuring Robert Ames, Josephine Dunn and Ivan Linow. At Globe, New York, week Nov. 27. Running time, 72 minutes.

May ..... Evelyn Brent
Morton ..... Robert Ames
Slungullion ..... Lennie Hayton
Marion ..... Josephine Dunn
Chink ..... J. Edwards Davis
Blink ..... Zack Williams
Ramsey ..... Ed Brady
Kingsley ..... Richard Tucker

Ancient hoke related simply amid the drab surroundings of the Frisco waterfront. A keptie widowed when her rich companion gets run over by an auto aims for the fortune he otherwise might have willed her and winds up by marrying his nephew heir, a hobo missionary boy, a fair programmer and though obvious considering the age we live in it has an appeal. Mainly to a certain frustrated type of womanhood. That looks like neighbs mostly but plenty quirky on the frustration to most women. The title will get the latter and certain males with "Madonna" exploitation on the modern. A cheap draw.

Only about three sets and nothing looking new, with sombreness in photography rivaling the drama, means plenty of lighting saved for Columbia, too, and a profit for the firm. Even Wall Street with its economy might have desired more light. Not enough light and shade except the finale shot. That's outdoors when the happy pair are looking over the rising new hobo palace built by the money the girl wanted but the missionary got.

If "Madonna" means something lovely looking sad, it wasn't Evelyn Brent in this film. Gayer colors suit her. When Miss Brent gives that far-away look to her lawyer at the opening about aiming to get her dead companion's money, some way, any way, it's a clincher she's going for love with the almer, even though the latter is known at the time.

Beginning the film sounds a warning. It goes both ways here and presents something to think about for dialog continuity. Richard Tucker as the lawyer is fronted for a speech. He makes it in music fashion, apparently for the audience, to reveal a spoken prolog as happenings not recounted in photography. Then it's shown he was merely acting for the keptie client. That's the girl introed.

Another time dialog goes offside to explain the audience might expect a fight between waterfront rats for her. No action up to then and much later to warrant it.

That waterfront fight was hokiest. Looks like it was slanted after much of the film drama had been written. Serves to fill the finish.

Robert Ames is the usual Ames. Nothing exciting. Shan.

CHEMIN DE PARADIS

("The Road to Paradise")

(GERMAN MADE)

(French Dialog)

Paris, Nov. 17.

French dialog. Erich Pommer UFA production. Released in France by Gaumont-Metropolitan Cinematographe Europeen. French version directed by Max de Vaucorbeil. Supervised Wilhelm Thiele. Made in Berlin UFA studios. Recorded Tobis. From the scenario by Franz Schulz and Paul Frank. Music by Werner R. Heymann. Lyrics by Jean Boyer. Running time, 89 mins. At Imperial, Paris, Nov. 15.

Willy ..... Henry Garat
Jean ..... Rene Lefebvre
Fifty ..... Jacques Maury
Mr. Bourant ..... Gaston Jacquet
Lolotte Bourant ..... Lilian Harvey
Edith de Rougiff ..... Olga Tschechowa
First Lawyer ..... Albert Dinan
Second Lawyer ..... Jean Joffo

Film is locally an entirely new departure, and as such attracted considerable curiosity. It is a mixture of operetta, comedy and revue. The international parentage of the French version made in Berlin from a German farce with strong musical comedy elements by a French director with Hollywood experience is strongly felt. That one drawback is, that Lilian Harvey, the heroine, has a foreign accent. This is now sufficient to handicap heavily any production here.

Story is that of three boys, broke, running a gas-filling station. They all fall in love with the same wealthy girl without knowing it until they all meet in a night club. The girl's rich father arranges for a big gas company to be formed headed by the three boys, but when the one the girl herself loves finds out that he is not holding the job on the side grounds of his merit he resigns, but is nevertheless finally persuaded to pocket his pride and marry the girl.

The film is stamped Berlin all over as clearly as some productions are hall-marked Hollywood. What gives the film some originality for the French is that scenes of street

(Continued on page 30)

Talking Shorts

JUDITH ANDERSON
"Madame of the Jury"
8 Mins.; (Dramatic)
Warners, New York
Vitaphone No. 1121

Judith Anderson legit star, makes her screen debut in this rather unconvincing miniature melo that fails to carry any suspense or pack a punch.

Cast as the only woman on a jury trying a man for the murder of his wife and lover, Miss Anderson holds out against the 11 men in the jury room, who are all for sending the accused man to the chair. Her insistence that the man is innocent of the double murder results in a deadlock.

Court is reconvened, with the alleged murderer telling his story to the judge and jury once again in dreary, incoherent style. Back in the jury room the lady juror still refuses to find the accused guilty. Pressed for a reason, she enacts the events leading on to the tragedy, and finally confesses that she is guilty of the crime, having dropped a pill into the drinks of the man who was about to give her air and the woman who had replaced her in his affections.

Miss Anderson emotes in a style that is more suitable for the stage than for the screen, while the material here is of no great consequence. A poor recording job also counts against this dramatic short.

LULU McCONNELL
"Tonguetied"
7 Mins. (Comedy)
Rialto; New York
Paramount

When the screen husband of Lulu McConnell physically chokes her off in this one, the only regret of the audience is that he didn't use his hands seven minutes earlier.

Sometimes Miss McConnell's prattle is entertaining. In this one there is no entertainment, only boredom of the most irritating sort. She talks so fast even fans who try can't get half of her lines. Wally.

"COPY"
20 Mins.; (Comedy)
Stanley, New York
Metro

Interesting newspaper yarn, lacks action from start to finish, which is given a surprise twist. Newspaper stuff is exaggerated a bit, but the laymen will think it's the real thing and go for it in a big way. Authors of this deserve credit for a good job.

Reporters are lolling about the office talking about the dearth of news. Editor, away the good part of the day with wife and kid, comes in and pounds out a yarn about how dangerous are one company's excursion boats.

Next day the owner wants a retraction from the editor, who refuses. Publisher calls the editor in and fires him. Just then the office gets the fire signal. It turns out to be one of the company's boats, which finally burns, killing 300 persons.

Editor discovers his wife and kid had been on the boat, and among the names of the dead later wired in were those two. They were identified by a lunch basket which had the girl's name on it. Publisher asks the editor to stay on the pay roll, but the latter says he'll quit after he gets that edition to press. He later discovers that his wife and kid were okay. They had loaned the lunch basket to another family, and later missed the boat.

Interwoven in the story are the usual sure-fire newspaper talk and action, which pads the story out nicely.

"THE HEADACHE MAN"
8 Mins. (Comedy)
Warner's, New York
Vitaphone No. 1114

Amusing comedy skit that holds enough laughs to get a favorable reaction in any house. Dudley Clements and Robert Cavanaugh, both from legit, turn in okay performances.

Clements is the proprietor of a department store, with its slogan, "The customer is always right," while Cavanaugh's job with the firm is to bear the brunt of all complaints.

Any time there is a squawk "the headache man" is called in and is theoretically fired. One customer who really believes she has caused him to lose his job, finally gets him in a business of his own.

Twist to the story comes when his former boss goes bankrupt and final sequence finds him working for his former employee in the same menial job.

Situations nicely timed for laughshake. Idea old story of the worm that turned altogether pleasing shots.

A HOLLYWOOD THEME SONG
Sennett Comedy
20 Mins.
R-K-O Mayfair, N. Y.
Pathe

This burlesques the theme song era in talkies and very well. It is crowded with laughs, with each accentuated by the skill of the three musicians, supposedly all-set, but always awaiting an incident to get under way.

Harry Gribbon does his job as chief burlesquer in a natural way which makes him the funnier. As the lad going off to war he commences yodeling. Putting the boys through the paces at the front gets another song. Going over the top inspires another, and so on. Gribbon's handling of the part kills chances of boredom from over-singing. It's apparent that some other voice is fitting notes into the movement of the actor's lips.

Yola d'Avril as a German spy in exotic surroundings shows much body movement, but Harry doesn't succumb. It's all cleverly ridiculous and for that reason should be enjoyed by all types of fans. Wally.

RUSSIAN NEWSREEL
(Silent)
7 Mins.
Film Guild, New York
Amkino

This reel's compactness which shows only five clips suggests that it must have been cut plenty.

Its non-propaganda clips are a novelty coming by way of Russia. The five might be classed a combo of magazine and news shots, but on the Russian angle trying to get arty the latter might also be classed that way.

Conversely the straight magazine shots are the best photographically. These concern a race among the Karelean mountaineers, swimming race at or near Moscow, and the opening clip of some Soviet officials.

Titling is off.

Costumes of the mountaineers and the lack of interesting spectators at the swimming race offer extra thinking. Shan.

JOHNNY PERKINS
"Lady, You Slay Me"
Comedy, Songs
8 Mins.
Loew's New York
Paramount

Pretty terrible. Playing, recording and direction all missed. Must have been made some time ago, since Louis McLermott is the director billed. He is one of the Pathfix presentation unit (stage) producers, all of whom doubled for a while at the Paramount studio a year or so ago. Not even a filler.

Jerky pace suggests the director had 10 or 12 minutes in mind, but what's left runs eight minutes. Johnny Perkins, favorite stout boy of the picture house circuits, is starred in this short, with nothing very funny in the material line. The first handicap for Perkins is his make-up, and he never overcomes it. Male quartet sings a couple tunes. Bige.

"EXCUSE THE PARDON"
Dramatic Sketch
10 Mins.
Strand, New York
Vitaphone No. 1069

A good drama short produced with Ralph Morgan and Katherine Alexander, both from legit, but it winds up aimlessly.

As Morgan, playing the released convict hired back to prison because he was pardoned by mistake, walks out of the picture and into a cell, the story gets cut off.

It's a helpless finish that may put audiences athwart and knock this piece out of the de luxe class into the neighbs.

Ruth Reynolds, New York newspaper girl, authored it. Arthur Hurley directed. Photography and recording okay.

Miss Alexander plays the wife role briefly but well. Shan.

"THE CRYSTAL GAZER"
With Eddie Buzzell
12 Mins. (Comedy)
Globe, New York
Columbia

An entertaining subject, but for adults only. Action and dialog on pecade lines with two separate blue-point scenes.

Buzzell as a mystic single on the vaude stage advises two separate and married blondes on domesticity. In the flashbacks he plays with them. One as her lawyer; the other as a miniature golf salesman. Both good that way.

Dialog is witty but colorful, and aimed on the bedroom order. Buzzell's usual mannerisms and voice texture gets the women on and off the screen. Shan.

"THE BIG CHEESE"
Van Buren Cartoon
7 Mins.
R-K-O Mayfair, New York
Pathe

Phoney animal pug goes through his training in the regular cartoon way. Many of the pen incidents are familiar, but the thing as a whole is up to standard and carries enough to make it good filler. Wally.

Foreign Language Popularity Is Giving State Righters Hope

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Foreign talkers, once considered wasted effort as far as this country was concerned, are now recognized as b. o. if spotted correctly.

In the past year more than dozen foreign flickers have been exhibited in Chicago and the midwest. Majority of these carried off records for grosses. Several indie exchanges, which thought themselves washed up with the death of independent production, has awakened to the new idea and are planning to devote their entire efforts to foreign films.

Foreign fad started last year when the tiny Warner Orpheum stuck for product, took a chance with the German film, "Royal Box." This house which has a great week when it gathers $5,000, went to a new high with $12,000, and held the picture for three weeks. After that it was a cinch.

Castle, another loop grind house depending almost wholly on spot booking, went into the foreign field in a big way. Every dialect flicker playing that house has done big business. "Meodies des Herzens," first German musical, smashed the house mark with $11,500 in a tiny 300-seat theatre, and held over for 19 days. Punch and Judy, ritzy spot in an out-of-the-way corner of the town, got its best week with "Because I Loved You," German flicker.

Yiddish Grosses

Down on the "East Side," a picture called "Yiddishe Mama," more than tripled the average gross of the 20th Century and Gold theatres, where it played simultaneously.

These results have been duplicated at other theatres throughout the city, and in other towns in the midwest. Foreign films have the ability of bringing out persons who otherwise would never go to theatres, either because of a native dislike for shows or because of the inability to understand the English talkers. To them the pictures are more than entertainment; to them the foreign flickers are representations of the old country.

Foreign product has found its best outlet in the midwest, where so many old country groups are located. German, Polish, Russian, Swedish, Dutch, Lithuanian, and others, have all shown an eagerness for their native pictures.

It is to these groups that the indie exchanges and particularly the state-righters, look for future biz. State-right distributors travel to New York now, not for American productions, but for foreign films. They are definitely satisfied by the results of the past year, that there is a large and profitable field in the great midwest for dialect pictures.

George Brown's Plan to Feed Feminine Chicago

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Under a publicity tie-up with Delmonte Coffee, Ward's Cakes and a couple of other foodstuffs the Palace here will feature during December an all-day free eats inducement.

It will be a shoppers' lunch and a stenographers' supper, getting the home girls early in the day and attracting the office beauts after hours. Thought is that the women can avoid stopping into cafeterias in the afternoon or going home for the night meal. With most women on a diet it's figured the theatre can safely undertake to keep them fodered.

Idea originates with George Brown, R-K-O's new divisional publicity chief.

Best Xmas Present

Subscription to

VARIETY

$10 for One Year

Always Welcome

TURKEY GIVEAWAYS

No Panic in Theatres or to Winners in Detroit

Detroit, Dec. 2.

Thanksgiving meant a lot of live stock shows in various neighborhoods. Picture houses gave away everything from live pigs to Austins. Any kind of livestock small enough to carry home was included in the giveaways.

After winning the animal or fowl winner had a headache how to kill and prepare it for cooking with exhibitors merely sympathetic. In some cases it cost as much to have the prize prepared for use as to buy it outright.

One theatre interrupted its stage show to give away 50 live turkeys. One hour to give away the birds and another hour to clean up the stage.

Fox's Alternating Men, With Shapiro-Allvine and Pincus-Todd; Others, Too

Around New Year's Vic Shapiro, Fox coast publicity head, will exchange post and place with Glendon Allvine, the Fox p.a. in New York.

Another similar movement at the same time will take Joe Pincus, the Fox New York caster, to Hollywood, replacing there Dave Todd who will follow Pincus in the New York Fox offices. Todd is in Jack Gardner's casting division in the west.

Other alternating moves probably will be announced.

The alternating system will give the Fox organization an interexchangable staff, acquainted with all coasts.

QUESTIONS RULED OUT ON LOEW-FOX SALE

A. N. Y. Appellate Division has decided that Nicholas M. Schenck, Dave Bernstein and Arthur M. Loew, as directors of Loew's, Inc., sued for Edwin M. Stanton and other stockholders for $9,000,000 they are alleged to have made by buying up 450,000 shares of Loew's at $102.50 and selling them to William Fox for $125, needn't answer the 24 questions propounded by counsel for Stanton in an examination before trial, but will have to answer only six, under an Appellate Division decision last Friday.

The court directed the defendants to produce all books and documents relating to the questions to be answered. These have to do with the Fox contract to obtain control of Loew's, and the details of the purchase of the 450,000 shares from David Warfield, David L. Loew, Lee Shubert and Leopold Friedman, also directors of Loew's.

Timid "St. Johnson"

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Doing an on again off again with "Saint Johnson," Universal has again postponed production on the filmization of the western novel.

U is rather leery of the western market at this time, in view of recent out-door flops.

Lonergan's Second

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Lester Lonergan, former stage director, who has done one picture for Paramount, starts Dec. 15 on his second. He will co-direct "Cavalier of the Streets," next William Powell story, with the other director not yet decided on.

Harry Green is trying to get Lonergan to stage his play, "Shyster," in San Francisco next month.

No Rush on "Rush"

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Scheduled for December production "Land Rush" may not be made by Fox now until February.

Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe will not be ready for the picture before that time.

SHEEHAN VS. FOX

Action to Recover $315,000 Placed on Preferred Calendar

A motion made and granted last week placed the recovery action by Winfield R. Sheehan against William Fox on the New York Supreme Court's preferred calendar. That guarantees an early trial date.

Fox's attorney, Samuel Untermeyer, immediately gave notice of appeal.

Amount Sheehan is suing for approximates $315,000.

U. Has Paid Around $375,000 for Rights To 8 B'way Plays

The status of the story material shortage in the film industry is now being passed by some studios to the exhibitor's door. It is maintained that the little indie wants only Broadway plays for his screen, or successful novels. Both types have to be hot or he refuses to pay anymore for them than for films based on original screen stories. As a result, hundreds of manuscripts go begging while the industry is shouting a material famine.

Because it is of this belief, Universal's 1930-31 line-up speaks louder in the legit play direction that that of about any other company. Of the 20 features on the U list, 10 are legit adaptations, studio paying top Broadway prices for a few of them. By the same token only three original manuscripts are worked into the rest of the program which is given over to novels.

While Universal isn't going in for any more million-dollar epics, scrapping "Merry-Go-Round" because a talker and musical version was figured too costly, it is ambitious enough to go after such plays as "The Greeks Had A Word for It," which even Howard Hughes couldn't "afford" to buy. U offered $100,000 for the rights and Hughes went $10,000 better, but the holders are holding out for $15,000 more than that.

So far the top play price of the season has been paid by U, $110,000, for "Strictly Dishonerable." This is a dead investment, however, until the play quits.

On the other hand "Dracula," figured by the company as its "All Quiet" of the new season, cost under $40,000. "The Up and Up," a play, got $37,000 from the Laemmle treasury. U left $50,000 with Broadway for "Many A Slip," and the same for "Little Accident." "Free Love" rated $35,000 before it could be transferred to Hollywood and, for the dialog rights to "Cat and Canary," released as the "Cat Creeps," U paid another $30,000. $100,000."

"East Is West" rights cost U

Tiff's 1931-32 Slate Getting Early Start

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Making a radical departure from former years, Tiffany will start its 1931-32 production schedule in February, six months ahead of its closing on '30-'31 product.

Switch is being made for sales reasons, with the idea of building up the Tiff pictures earlier in the season instead. Studio is already beginning to line up story material, so as to be set to go by February.

Meanwhile production for this year is going ahead, with 20 pictures yet to be completed by July.

That Tiffany intends to expand production cost for future pictures is indicative by the $50,000 it has already gone on the nut for with "Barbarian," with no cast or director set yet.

Weak Extra Week

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

A bump for the mob again with only 2624 extras working during the week. This is some 37 degrees below average.

Peak was Monday with 638 called out. Biggest crowd that day was 138 in a Pathe short, "Harold Sees the Indians." That was also the biggest set of the entire week.

The Newsreel and Inattention

There has been little or no disposition shown by the theatre circuits to give their respective newsreels a break in the presentation houses, the major spots in the key towns. Arguing for a representative number of minutes on these programs takes up a certain amount of the newsreel boys' time each week. Meanwhile it's plenty discouraging to the men concerned in this high speed work.

It might almost be said that one theatre operating outfit added insult to injury recently, when it flashed only two news clips in an ace house. It didn't take the newsreel mob concerned very long to hear about it. They burned and prepared to stage a more drastic offensive in the matter.

Around New York Publix has maintained a wavering attitude on its Paramount News. Tendency mostly has been to hold it 'way down. On the other hand, the New York Paramount often treats the news events to a full fledged display on the de luxe shows which is most unusual. Whether this inaugurates a new scheme of added minutes to Manny Cohen's subjects is not known although it's possible. If so it may be an edict to cover the entire circuit.

The Capitol has ever held the middle course on its news, strictly depending on the running time of the full layout.

Fox Movietone News at the Roxy hasn't really meant anything since the Embassy theatre undertook its all-newsreel policy. The big emporium used to specialize in this phase of its program unto becoming known for it to the point where the news actually was known to be responsible for a certain percentage of the weekly gross. Suspected of being true, this was traced and found a fact. That was over a year ago.

Lack of Exploitation

It is likely that the Roxy has curtailed its news on the theory that to do so would chase newsreel fans into the Embassy, as otherwise they'd have to go on a long Broadway search and their only chance would be the Rivoli, Rialto and Strand. Despite this, those handling the Embassy give it little or no exploitation.

Having worked itself into a steady groove, which doesn't vary much on gross from week to week, the lads in charge seem satisfied to let it go at that. No telling how many "punch" subjects they've passed up heralding to draw extra business. It's obvious that they can't spend as little coin as possible in the daily papers, but what is surprising is that they don't even stir themselves for any kind of a lobby display when they've got a hot subject which newspaper stories have made a "natural."

Hence, if it's too much trouble to occasionally poke the Embassy out of its channel to attract special attention (and it's the only house of its kind in this country) the reason for practically humiliating Fox Movietone News at the Roxy to help the Embassy isn't exactly clear. This also must impress out of town exhibitors who certainly drop into the Roxy when in town.

Neither does there seem any particular cause for boasting about what the Embassy has accomplished. It remains the only newsreel spot which has gotten over and, perhaps, only because of the hundreds of thousands of pedestrians who weekly thread their way through Times Square. The publicity end has done nothing to exhilarate it, not even every so often, and it's almost certain that those who don't habitually visit this immediate district are entirely unaware that there's a newsreel house in this city.

The thought behind this Embassy policy was national publicity for the newsreel—since which first splurge what has been heard of it? It's not only possible but probable that the Embassy hasn't pulled a patron in months to see a special subject from as close as Central Park South (59th street). They've got to walk by the lobby, stop and scan the small signs of the complete bill, to see what is inside. One or two items are emphasized by card stands.

All newsreel policies have flopped in Brooklyn, Chicago, Los Angeles, and maybe one or two other spots. Which would tend to show that the initial and national publicity on New York's newsreel theatre didn't help out of town and that this Times Square site is an oddity of a peculiar sector. Exploitation is certainly not responsible for the Embassy's success. Rather is it due to so many people a Times Square having half hours to kill. England has just launched two newsreel sites. The one in London so far is a success.

Another of view is that the Embassy was started on it. newsreel grind to bring to the attention of house managers the importance of the current events. But a house manager is helpless when under circuit orders. With the various film companies pouring so much money, time and energy into their newsreels it seems obvious that they're hardly getting any publicity or attention in relation to the three-way expenditure. At least one sound newsreel seems satisfied with its financial income. How the others are doing is an open guess.

Theatre inattention for the newsreel is an old complaint. The peculiar part is that nothing much has ever been done about it.

WILL HAYS AND WIFE BOTH FROM INDIANA

Indianapolis, Dec. 2.

The marriage of Will Hays to Mrs. Jessie Herron Stutesman, former Hoosier society leader, occurred Nov. 27 at Bethesda, Md., recalled the fact that Hays was divorced from his first wife June 30, 1929.

The present Mrs. Hays was born in Crawfordsville, Ind., and received her early education there. She was the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. William P. Herron. For a number of years Mrs. Hays has been living in the east and prior to that in Bolivia as the wife of the late James F. Stutesman, former U. S. Minister to that country and prominent in Indiana society and politics.

The first Mrs. Hays also was from Crawfordsville. She was the daughter of Judge and Mrs. A. B. Thomas. The couple were divorced after living apart several years with Hays granted custody of his son, Hays, born in Sullivan, Ind., attended Wabash College at Crawfordsville, graduating in 1900.

SELLING LOCALES

Agent Plans Revealing Unfilmed Locations—For a Price

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

A new angle for picture agents here is "selling" producers on a locale for a picture by first showing photos of it, and then divulging the spot for a price.

The business is so new, methods and prices are not yet set, but Guy Coburn, actors' agent, has announced he will do it as a side line, and expects handsome and easy profits.

Coburn has travelled in out of the way places and has many photographs of his journeys. He will show the photos to the producer, adds an estimate of the time and cost of getting a company there, and then reveals the place at a price.

Photog Important

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Experimental shooting on "Creation" is still being carried out secretly on the Radio lot, with the company now concerned chiefly in finding a cameraman who can photograph the difficult scenes.

At least six cameramen have been tried out, but none were assigned definitely to the picture.

Man for "Blind Mice"

"Blind Mice," all-woman play which Par has bought from Crosby Gaige, will be rewritten as a picture, to do away with the one-set idea and the cast without a man.

No writer has been assigned yet.

Sullivan on Dialog

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Tiffany has taken Edward Dean Sullivan for the dialog on "Ex Marks the Spot," gangster picture. He is expected in Hollywood this week.

James Whal directing.

★ EL BRENDEL ★

El Brendel's meteoric tumble into fame came with the talking screen. God gave him a comedy pan but he lacked the comedy punch. Then his Swedish accent was released and he was made. Incidentally, he was born in Philadelphia, so the accent—like a taste for olives—is acquired.

Brendel's style is Swede and low; he gets violent laughs by gentle methods. He quit school to become an actor—but there was some delay. He arrived in Hollywood via medicine shows, vaudeville and Broadway revues. A natural comedian off stage and on, he likes baseball, music, scenery, his wife and comfortable shoes. No one ever calls him "Mr." Brendel.

This comedian first flashed like a Neon light in "The Cock Eyed World". He helped warm "Hot For Paris", was one of the bright beams of "Sunny Side Up", and spread laughs along "The Big Trail". Featured in "Just Imagine". His next is "Mr. Lemon of Orange."

MR. LEMON OF ORANGE

JUST IMAGINE

THE BIG TRAIL

MOVIETONE FOLLIES 1930

THE GOLDEN CALF

SUNNY SIDE UP

HOT FOR PARIS

HAPPY DAYS

FROZEN JUSTICE

THE COCK EYED WORLD

FIRST OF A SERIES OF FOX SCREEN PERSONALITIES

FOX

HUMAN pictures! HUM

PART TIME WIFE

with

EDMUND LOWE
LEILA HYAMS

Tommy Clifford Walter McGrail

It's hard to tell about marriage — but "Part Time Wife" makes it easier. It's a wise and witty antidote for what ails matrimony —a preventive and cure for domestic disorders in both sexes.

Into the grown-up love story enters the world's more endearing pair — a boy and his dog. The result is a knockout of solid, richly human comedy.

And how it bubbles with this great cast! Edmund Lowe, husband and super-grouch; Leila Hyams, gadding, golfing wife; Tommy Clifford, who understands men and adores dogs.

From "The Shepper Newfounder" by Stewart Edward White. Superbly directed by Leo McCarey.

FOX BIGGER and BETTER

OR laden! HEART tugging!

THE PRINCESS
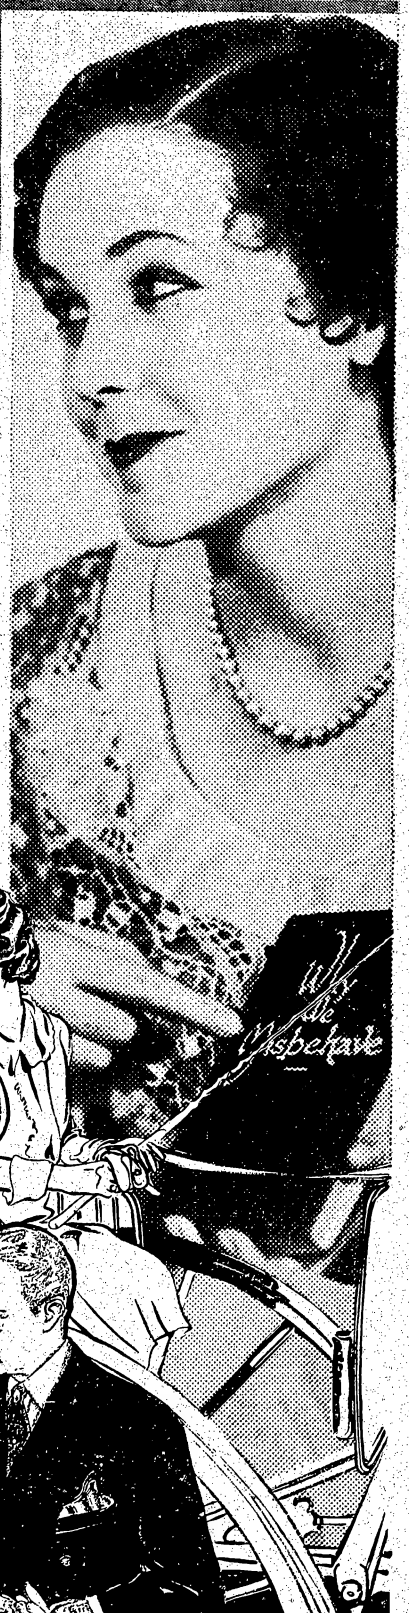
(MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN)
AND THE PLUMBER
(CHARLES FARRELL)

with
H. B. WARNER



Directed by ALEXANDER KORDA

First he made her horse shy. Then he made her heart gallop. He thought she was a make-believe princess—and she thought he was a real prince.

Piquant comedy of errors in a romance that sparkles like dew.

Chivalry a la 1930. A nobleman outsmarted by American quick thinking.

Gay, delightful comedy movie-toned from the Saturday Evening Post story by Alice Duer Miller.

Inside Stuff—Pictures

R-K-O's employment of the unemployed in its several cities to sell R-K-O theatre tickets on a 25% commission arrangement on the ticket's cost price seems to be working both ways. It is keeping the unemployed employed, besides selling the tickets. On top of that, when the unemployment siege is over, the R-K-O theatres in their towns will have a complete list of possible theatregoers. It is reported the commission ticket sale will continue until Feb. 1, at least, and perhaps may become permanent.

Some trepidation is said to have been felt by R-K-O heads over the innovation, believing that local feeling might resent using the unemployed in that manner. But just the opposite has occurred. Wherever so far tried, the scheme of the semi-promotion has struck the civic organizations and general public as laudable, this probably in part through R-K-O paying 25% commission to the salesmen on the exact admission price, thus leaving the theatre as the bearer of all expense in the operation. Besides which any plan giving legitimate employment to a number of unemployed at the present time must be advocated in all communities where unemployment may become a menace. With the theatre no longer looked upon as a luxury but as a necessity, decided in war times, the selling of theatre tickets on a canvass can carry no objection, any more than any canvassing salesmen.

Something the show business is unaware of likely is the sales promotion recently and still put over by the "Saturday Evening Post" and its associated group of weeklies. This outwardly included the school children of town and cities to solicit subscriptions for the Curtis papers, with the exploitation starting with sales talks in the public schools by Curtis salesmen, before the kids were sent on their way to find out what they had learned out of it. The Curtis papers benefited a million or more added subscriptions within a short time.

And the towns applauded, without analyzing. While the R-K-O sales campaign is wide open and is excellent for the unemployed working and for the theatres if they can sell the tickets, and if they can, then for the R-K-O theatres to have a buyers' list of theatre tickets in every one of its stands. With R-K-O believing it is worth 25% commission to increase the attendance at its theatres even if the 25% commission does hold down the net gross. That may be for now or at any time.

Wall street may talk one way but filmdom is acting to the contrary, especially as the foreign situation is concerned, according to industry's spokesmen.

Film companies have not been ordered by the "Street" to "go after" foreign producers. Rather are Americans setting themselves in the manner of having their own studio interests abroad. Self-ownership is described as not only more economical but more practical.

At the same time the official industry is not overlooking any of the aspects of international relationship. This is along the lines as recounted in "Variety" about six weeks ago, that of making a gesture toward foreign producers in the manner of their becoming affiliated members of the Hays organization.

Buying up film companies in foreign countries would have just the opposite reaction and, politically, it would be a false and foolish move, particularly at this time, filmdom's guardians declare. The ire of foreign governments would be further aroused by American aggression not only invading boundaries with Hollywood product, but at the same time attempting to corner home country's local activities.

Another angle is cited. So far as buying foreign producing interests, most of the deals could not be effected with any diplomacy unless on a 51-50 scale, with the foreigner getting the extra one per cent. The latter in itself is the big hitch, one, it is declared, even eclipsing the economy angle. It means that Americans would place themselves on a plane from which arguments, often developing into dangerous and far reaching propositions, could not always be avoided.

In the long run, it is argued by film executives and students who really know the situation abroad, better 51% dictation for Hollywood in Europe with the remaing 50 for gestures and diplomatic maneuvers with governmental factors.

Young female featured film player under contract to one of the big film companies, recently making personal appearances in the picture houses in the east, is making a spectacle of herself in public places around New York.

Last week, very much under the influence, she visited a nite club and, when introduced by the m. c., staggered to her feet and reeled to the floor, attempting to sing a song, but was shouted down by a none too kind audience. Still holding the floor, she insisted upon making a speech with that getting her nothing but a lot of catcalls from the hecklers. Several actors in the club finally managed to get her off the floor and urged her escort, who didn't seem to know what it was all about, to get her out of the joint. On her way out of the spot she shouted curses at her tormentors and even those of her friends present.

Living in a Times Square hotel, the girl has been creating scenes in the lobby of the hostelry as well as arousing hotel guests in rooms adjoining her suite, unmindful of the fact that several officials of the picture company to which she is under contract also live there.

A recent movement to reach an average production cost on pictures in the New York end of the producing division, did not get very far from accounts. One company head put the proposal up to another, with the latter stating he believed it impracticable.

The limit or average as proposed is said to have been $350,000 per picture, excepting for such talkers as might be pre-designated as specials. One report about the matter was that a maximum instead of an average cost be placed, but a picture head stated it was the average intended.

The matter may be taken up individually by any company. It is reported to have been talked over by the Fox people while Winnie Sheehan was in New York last week, but without any positiveness. United Artists, Metro, Paramount, Fox and Warners are the largest cost production producers.

Surmises are around of the possible line up with Pathe should R-K-O take over that producer-distributor. It is said Radio might secure one general producer over both the studios of Radio Pictures and Pathe, with Ben Schulberg, now with Paramount on the Coast, the most often mentioned if the post is created.

In that event William LeBaron would remain at the head of the Radio studio, while E. B. Derr would continue as the Pathe producer. Derr, present president of Pathe, to be operated under its own identity by R-K-O, may be replaced in the Pathe presidency by Lee Marcus, Radio's general sales manager. Jos. Schnitzer is pres. of Radio Pictures. It is said Schnitzer's present leaning is toward producing and after his next return trip to the Coast, he may take that up actively in Radio's studio.

Louis B. Mayer has been getting "fan mail" from the studio lot as result of his recent periodic talks to the Metro personnel. This has given the exec the idea to continue the talks from time to time. General conditions prompted Mayer to call the various departments together and talk to them on economy, etc., resulting in sundry people sending him letters of appreciation.

One comedy writer put in a humorous "kicker" that he was so impressed with the chief's oratory that he's glad he didn't meet him face-to-face a short while back when the matter of new [illegible] and a new contract came up. Says he might have been equally persuaded and lost out financially.

Interested parties on both sides hold little or no hope that the General Talking Pictures (DeForest) issues with Western Electric may be settled out of court. Settlement was nixed by both sides despite it is known that as late as last week intermediaries working for a settlement attempted such an approach.

The case hinging on the Ries patents is due for appeal argument in the Philadelphia Circuit Court of Appeals Dec. 8. Lawyers argue this date may be shoved off due to the court calendar and the appeal not be reached until later in the month. That may be a sidetrack for further offside discussion between the parties.

Paramount sems to have solved the problem of two directors working in harmony on a picture. The sixth production at this studio since September to be double directed is "Fin and Haddie Abroad," Leon Errol and Mitzie Green story formerly titled "The Haddocks Abroad."

One is called "dialog" and the other "action" director. But both must get together eventually for the take. Par insists that neither is the boss over the other, and yet both are bosses, thus reaching the ultimate in studio cooperation.

Nine pictures out of 22 being produced between September and next February will have directorial duos.

Report that Warners were scrapping "50 Million Frenchmen," which "Variety" sought to verify, is part of a campaign of nefarious propaganda which has been circulating sundry negative reports about WB, say the studio officials in Hollywood. When told that this report had come from New York for verification. It was all the more surprising to the studio people.

The musical, say the Warners, was awaiting Daryl Zanuck's personal attention and cutting. He had been away on a hunting trip, which delayed that. Picture will be ready for preview in a fortnight.

Reference to those three French girls on the Metro lot doesn't mean the Metro picture by that title but the three latest femme imports from France, sent over by Metro's Paris agent because of their ability to act and speak in perfect French.

Checking up on the three, studio has found that No. 1 was born in Mexico City and has been in France less than five years; No. 2 is from Warsaw and was on the French stage less than two years, and No. 3 is a native of Berlin, who spent most of her life in Russia.

Figuring it all up execs are reaching for the aspirin.

Will Hays' marriage to Mrs. Jessie Herron-Stutesman in Baltimore Thanksgiving was not generally pre-known in the film industry over which the General presides. Several show people from Indiana, her home state, speak highly of Mrs. Hays as amiable, etc. She is a sister of Major Frank Herron, associated with the Hays organization. Hays also is a Hoosier.

Mr. Hays became legally separated from his first wife in 1929, after they had long been apart in fact. Their son, Bill, Jr., remains with his father.

Subsequent run exhibs in the Los Angeles territory are attempting to frame plans to get product day-and-date with each other from all distributors. Idea, if placed in effect, which is doubtful, would result in the same picture being played in dozens of houses simultaneously.

Distribs and others disagree with the small admission exhibs on day-and-date idea because it would mean people would have to go miles to find a picture wanted, if current attraction had either been seen or wasn't wanted.

Excess of prints also figures.

The campaigners for community charity in Hollywood have decided that a $173,000 quota is too high this year. This figure represents a markdown from the $200,000 goal of last year. The drive is all over but the collecting, and inside opinion is that a total of $125,000 from the picture industry will be the limit.

That $125,000 averages $13.53 for every one on studio payrolls. It is plenty generous considering current conditions and that the Motion Picture Relief Fund will have a drive of its own later.

What burns the charity officials is that some of the fattest salaries in pictures refuse to come through at all.

Big film execs of now who were big execs in some other industries a year ago, never fail to get a laugh inside their film interest when they reach the stage where they commence opinionating on the value of their product. One in such a category recently tried his hand, for the first time. A Hays' royalist, his review was along lines prescribed by Hays' Honor Code. When he got to the sex part, he carefully wrote:

"The picture has the proper proportion of sex. The leading lady especially, has sex where sex is needed."

Warner Brothers, individually, are reported to hold the personal control of the Warner Brothers' board of directors. This will develop at the company's annual meeting, shortly to be held. It is being storied the Warner brothers feel under this situation they are the complete controllers of the firm, and are operating accordingly.

Another report is Warners has around $10,000,000 cash on hand at present. The brothers think this is a good time to add theatres to its present large list and WB is out for bargains in that direction.

Charles Rogers won the dialog production rights to "Common Law" on a toss-up with Irving Thalberg, that studio (M-G-M) having originally made it as a silent.

Rogers, in New York in the meantime, had purchased the dialog rights from Bayard Veiller, the author, and his agents. Although Rogers had been offered a $35,000 profit by Metro for the rights, they left it to a toss of a coin to settle it.

This will be Rogers' fourth picture on the series of four which he is making with R-K-O financing.

Another report on Metro and "Grand Hotel" gives a different line on the profitable deal Metro made with Herman Shumlin, producer of Broadway's latest stage hit. Metro is said to have invested $35,000 in the stage play with an understanding with Shumlin the picture concern would withdraw that amount from any profit, without further participating in the stage production, but would have the picture rights.

According to the way the show has started off, Metro will receive its investment back and the film rights without cost.

Woods, Chicago loop run house, now operating as indie spot by Aaron Jones, shows itself free from the restrictions handed down by Will Hays, by devoting ad space to playing up the business depression and kidding prohibition.

Ad for "Only Saps Work" (Par) carries these statements: "Why worry about hard times?—Only Saps Work. Give Your Funny-bone a jiggle—the funniest laugh since the Volstead Act!" The last crack on the dry law considered within bounds because of the overwhelming wet sentiment displayed in the last election and referendum.

At the opening of Paramount's "Morocco" at the Chinese, Hollywood, radio announcer caller Jack Warner to the microphone. Warner was unprepared, while other arrivals had been given slips with specially written speeches for them by the announcer.

Not wanting to say anything wrong, Jack grabbed the nearest slip

(Continued on page 55)

Alimony Prisoners

(Continued from page 1)

Tex had promised Josephine she would hold out at least $50 a week from his salary for her. But Josephine was adamant. How she figures he can kick in while being shut up is one of those feminine mysteries.

Class was given the show by Luigi Bamberschek, a Metropolitan conductor, who sat at the piano as accompanist for Sig. Cutzzi, Met warbler. Latter though was just visiting. Bamberschek was about to start a 20 weeks' contract with the Met when the wife decided to have her alimony or else. How she expects to collect is a secret too.

M. C. Present

Irving Gluck, professionally known as Sid Clark, formerly m. c. of the Kentucky Club. His wife, a non-prof., called at the station house twice and demanded he be transferred to the workhouse. She couldn't understand why he was not scrubbing the floors or something.

Another member of the "club" is Lt. Col. George Lynch, rated among the professionals as the husband of Gertrude Barnes.

Walsh, with his pop ditties, appears to be the ace entertainer of the club. A message was phoned him from Miss Davis' lawyer on Thanksgiving Day. It was to the effect that if he kicked in 300 she would let him out Monday. He answered he had no coin and was doing okay in a quiet way.

Petition

Several fellow members of the club wrote Tex Guinan, asking her to get Walsh out before he broke the crowd. He has won all of the dough in sight in all games and contests in the jail.

An Appeal

Dear Tex:—

We, the boys of the Alimony Club, do hereby humbly appeal to you and sacrifice our pride to beg that you help to remove your friend, George Walsh, from our midst.

It is not that we are not most fond of George, but if this is not done pronto, we shall all land in the poorhouse.

In our recent finals of the handball tournament, George easily walked off with the prize of a sterling silver loving cup and $50 in gold.

The following day he copped a solid gold wrist watch which was first prize in the miniature golf tournament.

Versatile Guy

Only last night he made a remarkable run of 58 balls in a billiard match and won a $10 gold piece for his trouble. This was indeed a great surprise to us, we had no idea the guy was so versatile.

To climax everything he broke the club record by swimming our pool in 28 seconds flat. For this remarkable feat he was given a satin bath robe and initialed slippers to match.

We suggest, however, that someone bring in his dinner clothes, for he really is quite out of place here without them, particularly at the table.

As a matter of fact, we have arranged a testimonal feed to him, and as he was voted the handsomest and most talented member of this club at our last weekly meeting, he will, of course, need his dinner clothes for this occasion.

There is one thing that has caused us much trouble, and that is this: The other night George sold us a radio for $100, which he thoughtfully purchased on his way up to the Roxy. Not that we didn't appreciate this, but we learned from his valet that he only paid $23.85 for this radio. His valet discovered the bill of sale in George's suit when he was pressing it.

His manicurist vouched that this was the truth, as he jokingly told her about it.

This may appear very insignificant to you, Tex, but George has been taking on average from $25 to $50 a night from us playing cards and lotto, and for him to do so mean a thing is more than we can understand.

We know that you are close to George and we feel that you alone could be instrumental in obtaining George's release from this most terrible incarceration.

We make this as a wholehearted 100% appeal from downtrodden and persecuted husbands.

Yours most cordially,

The Boys of the Alimony Club.

EXPLOITATION

This department is almost entirely made up of matter from "Variety's" own correspondents. Seldom are any of the exploitation notes sent out by the home publicity offices of the chains used here.

"Variety's" correspondents have been requested to report on all local press or exploitation stunts that fail or prove too expensive for results achieved, as well as those which get over.

Ordinary or expected exploitation not included in this department. Repetition in several cities also excluded, after first mention, unless new angle is later developed.

5 Major Stunts

Portland, Ore.

Five major promotion stunts running currently, a tie-up with unemployment as biz getting medium, more ad copy than before, and free shows for charity, this sort of enterprise has put local R-K-O Orpheum well ahead.

No. 1 stunt clicked big and goes like this: High schools combed for screen material. Football captains and lookers, boys and gals, filmed with sound. Ran 1,500 feet of this first week and proved laugh knockout, kids telling in sound why they should win. B. o. rushed for ducats. Votes taken in ballot boxes. Second week has talking trailer of winners announcing feature. Third week has two-reel high school feature. Clicks big.

No. 2 is radio exhibit and auction. Every ticket gets a 100 shekel stage money. Tieup with dealer. After two weeks, auction held in lobby for radios. Only stage money shekels accepted for bidding. Auction zipped up by pro auctioneer. Big interest.

No. 3 showed no cash profit but clicked 100% for good will. Thanksgiving day matinees prices as follows: Balcony, one can of anything; lower floor, two cans; loge seats, three cans or one dressed fowl; kids, one potato. All receipts then given to sunshine division of police dept. for charity. Truckloads hauled away and registered big in popular appeal.

No. 4 stunt was tieup with local auto dealer, featuring non-breakable windshield. Local golf tournament had golf stars in town. Film made of the stars trying to drive golf ball through windshield. Plenty publicity free and dealer paid all costs.

No. 5 stunt illustrates how ill winds can blow good. Local unemployment relief board asked for 300 unemployed family men to sell Orpheum tickets at regular price. Paid 25% commission. House believes sale of boys ducats will make up for commission expense. Punch lies in major civic contribution to helping biz get better by making for unemployment. Clicked big.

Net result of these high pressure exploitation ideas has been to zoom the house gross. Last week with a program show, Orpheum topped the burgs' gross with such competish as "Big Trail" and a new legit stock opening.

Ted Gamble is local R-K-O manager responsible for most energetically pushed battery of moves to boost grosses this burg has seen in years.

Opposition Animals

Sioux City.

Press stunt caused excitement downtown when a huge cat and a gorilla became involved in a fight. Shouts of bystanders attracted Patrolman James Murphy, who arrested the participants. The cat and gorilla were men dressed to represent animals, the cat advertising "The Cat Creeps" at the Orpheum, and the gorilla advertising a picture by that name at the Iowa theatre.

Upon shaking hands and promising to be good thereafter, the cat and the gorilla were released by officers.

Steady Attendance

Easton, Pa.

Seville theatre, films only, tied up with Ralph Bros.' furniture store and gave away a radio to the lucky number. Night drawing held house was jammed, the rule being winner must be present at drawing.

Fourth Street theatre here is giving away favors to ladies who attend regularly. Records of attendance are kept by tickets punched by doorman.

Denver House Works Taxi Gag

Denver.

Manager Swiger, of the Denver, arranged with a taxi Co. whereby a patron can go to the theatre in one of its cabs and return home after the show for the price of the trip downtown. All that is necessary is for the patron to get an admission receipt from the cashier good for the trip home.

Postal substations placed in Denver and Paramount for Christmas season. Department furnishes one clerk in each house and theatre furnishes additional help.

Glassware for the Ladies

Portland, Me.

Colonial (second run) is giving away prizes consisting of glassware to all lady patrons on certain nights each week. Portland theatre also presenting fair sex with gifts.

"Personal Pass" as Stunt

Minneapolis.

Manager Gordon Greene of the Minnesota, Publix, has put over a dandy personal pass" stunt with many of the manufacturers and jobbers here. "Personal passes" are distributed to the executives. Latter hand them out to their customers as a courtesy and good will builder when the customers come to town. It's a comparatively inexpensive way of helping to entertain the buyers.

The "passes" are made to read as though the business executive giving them away has free access to the Minnesota and the privilege of sending in as many of his friends as he sees fit. He fills in the name of the person to whom the courtesy is extended and signs his own name. The holder simply presents the "pass" at the box-office and receives regular admission tickets free.

At the end of the month the theatre bills the executive for the number of passes issued at the regular admission scale.

Parade of Harold Lloyds

Canton, O.

Russell Bovin, Loew's manager, gave tickets to 100 kids who made up best impersonation of Harold Lloyd during showing here of "Feet First." Bovin got the hunch when Merchants' Association announced costume parade in connection with arrival of Santa Claus.

Hundreds of kids paraded downtown streets headed by band, and the 100 or more juvenile Harold Lloyds passed in review of thousands who lined the street. Stunt proved one of most effective bits of exploitation here in many months.

Plenty of Noise

Kansas City.

When Manager Charles Raymond was given "Hell's Angels" for the 3d anniversary week at the Midland if there were any who did not know of the attraction they were deaf, dumb or blind. He secured Jean Harlow for personal appearances for the first two days. Next tied up with the railroads for special runs and had hangers in railroad stations. Another tieup was made with a chain store company, and 100,000 announcements were enclosed in packages from all the stores three days prior to the opening.

Another tieup with an airplane company resulted in a huge plane flying over the city scattering 50,000 bills calling attention to the show. A truck with loud speaker equipment covered the city streets announcing the picture and the appearance of the star. Half sheet cards were in all of the stations of the suburban railroad companies, and fancy paper napkins on the counters of some of the leading soda fountains. All of this was in addition to the extra newspaper space. Capacity business was the result.

None of the extra distribution cost a cent, which made it still sweeter.

Games for Highbrows

Dallas.

Local highbrows have found new way of killing evenings, playing backgammon, parlor game of Victorian days. Antique stuff is replacing bridge, with Herbert Marcus, owner of fashion store, importing Howell Thorne, New York, to show the idlers just how it's done.

Tournaments, contests etc., usual aftermath, with possibilities for theatre p. a.'s, but so far untouched.

Macy's Rubber Parade

New York.

Broadway got its annual "show me", whack from the department store merchants Thanksgiving days when Macy's held its kid parade, augmented by bands and inflated animal and cartoon figures on the exaggerated menu.

Those inflated caricatures of famous cartoon characters are showstoppers on any street. When a department store like Macy's throws on some grenadier guards with music there's plenty red and blue to attract long distance even.

Free Flight to Hollywood

Pittsburgh.

Through a tieup with the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., lines, Penn arranged for a free flight to Hollywood for best 50-word review on "Hell's Angels." Trip with all expenses paid includes tour of U. A. studio.

Boys Ballyhoo "Tom Sawyer"

Los Angeles.

Bringing "Tom Sawyer" into the local Paramount Thanksgiving, with kids out of school until Monday (1), local organization built its campaign strongly on the juvenile angle.

Going to the Los Angeles District Council of the Boy Scouts, Par Publix succeeded in getting E. B. De' Groot, scout executive, to write a letter going to 16,000 scouts in this territory, asking them to support picture.

Besides the scout tieup, special parties that will be arranged, etc., Publix tried a Punch and Judy show along streets to attract attention of kids.

New York

R-K-O Hip sent a rickety old open face Ford around mid-town during the Amos-Andy picture's week at the Hip. It held a couple of fellows in blackface made up as the radio pair. Good bally for the section.

Medals for Pipes

New York.

Joseph Regan, Irish tenor, will dish out a gold medal in each town he plays on the R-K-O western unit route to the boy with the best voice in local contests. R-K-O theatre exploitation department is tying up with Regan on the idea.

Regan will hold auditions in all towns and pick the best pipes in each. Local tie-ups will be attempted by R-K-O to secure training for the winners.

Treasure Hunt in Snow

Denver.

One of the best exploitations ever pulled in Denver was the treasure hunt put on by Manager George Baker of the Paramount for the showing of "Tom Sawyer." The treasure was buried in a gravel pit and nearby fields. Despite nearly a foot of snow over 1,000 people started from the theatre Sunday morning and over 200 were still digging when darkness fell.

Gasoline company donated $75 in gold and the house added $25. Other prizes included a small radio, diamond ring, tires, 50 boxes of candy and 100 pairs of tickets. These cost the house nothing as the firms were played up in the stories in the papers and in the ads.

2 Concurrent Tieups

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Les Kaufman in the Paramount publicity department responsible for two tieups running concurrently in the Brooklyn "Daily Times." School circulation stunt in various sections of borough in attempt by paper for sectional building of circulation, started ringing heads of groups of kiddies; proper office identification to be rewarded with Paramount ducats. Mention of current program, etc., in all stories, pictures with latter taking up two-four columns three-four times weekly. Gag went over so well, built up to society gag, photographing debs on horse path, bridge parties, etc. Good for three four-column pictures weekly, with accompanying stories.

Second stunt an old opportunity contest idea sponsored by Paramount and "Times," where all applicants must apply at private rehearsals, with Stuart Barrie, Paramount organist, as judge of talent. To run for four weeks, with all sections of Brooklyn included week to week. Ultimate winner to appear on stage for week with Vallee, the incentive.

Each week's winner appears at first matinee Sunday, on stage, in effort to build up first Sunday mat business.

Benefits in Dec.

Minneapolis.

R-K-O Orpheum here is going after benefits strongly during December to offset the holiday slump. This "benefit" is a new stunt for the house this season. Organizations are given a cut on all the tickets they sell for the particular night they have the house.

One Hit; One Flop in Louisville

Louisville.

National theatre showed enterprise in a tieup with the "Courier Journal" and "Louisville Times" arranged for Universal Newsreel to shoot play-by-play of Male-Manual Thanksgiving Day football game and also scenes of the first Christmas carnival. Pictures now current at National all week.

John R. Settle, director of activities for the American Legion, distributed thousands of coupons entitling holders to $1.50 seats for 50c at Memorial auditorium to see and hear Torreblanca's Tipica orchestra, but the stunt flopped due to no publicity tieup, no press agent and zero weather.

Some Old Standbyes in New Haven

New Haven, Conn.

Roger Sherman has standing tieup with circle of Naborhood stores. Each week stores distribute circulars using half of space for their own products and half for theatre adv. House pays for stunt with Oakleys.

Fox-Bijou making bid for kid's patronage with "Mickey Mouse" club plan. Members of club are admitted to special Saturday noon show for 10c and free candy distributed.

Chrysanthemums

St. Paul.

Manager Ed Furni of the Paramount took publicity honors last week with a tieup on the municipal chrysanthemum show now on at park greenhouse. Took newsreel shots of show for his screen, urging folks to visit exhibit.

In return park department filled lobby of theatre with $2,500 worth of the blooms. Climax of the publicity dame with naming of a variety developed here as the Ruth Chatterton. This particular bloom was dispatched air mail to the star, all to the tune of clicking linotypes.

Robb & Rowley's Special Train

Sweetwater, Tex.

Robb & Rowley theatres in Texas and Oklahoma arranged for a special train to carry fans of Sweetwater to Big Spring for the annual Armistice day game. A round trip fare of $1.35 was secured and 500 took the journey. Pictures of the game were taken by H. M. Rogers, manager Sweetwater theatre. All preparations for special train made by management R. & R. theatres and all reservations through R. & R. Palace office.

BEHIND THE KEYS

Los Angeles.

Abel Warshauer, doing the adv. work for the Paramount and United Artists here, shifted to San Francisco to handle the three Publix houses, Paramount, St. Francis and California. Gene Fox from Minneapolis shifted to L. A.

Duluth.

Al Anson, district manager Publix, promoted again, making it three times in the last year. North and South Dakota have been added to his territory.

William C. McCreary, manager, Lyric, transferred to Hibbing, Minn., where he will be in charge of two Publix houses. Jules B. Reisman leaves the Garrick to replace McCreary.

Des Moines.

Solon theatre, Spencer, Ia., recently added to Finklestein chain, reopened Dec. 1. Fred Weiman managing.

Floyd Plamer has leased the new $25,000 theatre at Postville, Ia., recently erected by Louis Seutte.

Graham, Washington, Ia., leased by Electric Theatre company, which operates the Fox at Washington. Ralph Pratt managing both houses.

Lake Mills, Ia.

Lake Mills Theatre, only picture house in town, burned. $8,000 loss.

Veedersburg, Ind.

Tokyo, operated past 15 years by H. C. Whistler, has been sold to A. N. Vance and George Claire of Kokomo. Vance has moved to this city to take charge of house.

South Norwalk, Conn.

Albert Hamilton, mgr. of Empress, now city manager for Publix.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Edward L. Lewis, mgr. Rialto and Strand theatres, resigned.

Platteville, Wis.

New Avalon, all sound, opening Dec. 11.

Akron, O.

Al Beckerich, manager of the Cleveland Hippodrome, has been made manager of the R-K-O Palace here. Is the only R-K-O house in town.

Ralph Walsh, former manager of the R-K-O Palace, has returned to Warners as district manager for theatres in Ohio. He will supervise 26 houses in the state.

Canton, O.

George Reister, new manager of the Warner, Palace and Alhambra, succeeding Frank Phelps. Latter takes over Warner spots in Portsmouth, O.

London, Can.

Price drop announced by management of Palace, F. P. house here. New night top of 30c and 20c matinee. New kids' prices 10c all time.

Palace now running two change week policy rather than three as in past. New house manager, F. Doney.

Reading, Pa.

Harry D. Stearn, general manager of the Wilmer and Vincent theatres, in this city, is no longer in that position. District Manager Floyd Hopkins, Harrisburg, whose territory includes Reading, is temporarily in charge.

James E. Kelly is again piloting the Orpheum here. Dramatic stock, playing there for over two months.

Closed Nov. 30. Another policy may be placed.

St. John, N. B.

Two appointments for the new Capitol, Halifax, N. S., operated by Famous-Paramount-Publix, H. R. Hitchcson transferred from Hamilton, Ont., to Halifax as manager. T. S. Daley, who relieved the late John E. O'Connell during the latter's sickness and on the death of the veteran manager, returned to Toronto to become manager of the Uptown theatre there. Kenneth L. Finlay, of Sydney, N. S., is treasurer of the Halifax Capitol. R. J. Macadam continues as manager of the Casino, Halifax, F-P-P.

Darlington, Wis.

Harry W. Tillis has purchased the Orpheum from J. E. Grimm.

Lake Mills, Ia.

Town's only picture theatre destroyed by fire. Loss $8,000. Some insurance.

Dallas.

Wind of probable Warner invasion of Texas may materialize into fact, in lieu of shift to theatre dept. of Joe Luckett, until recently First National exchange manager for Lone Star territory. Shift also included Truly Wildman, who piloted WB branch here.

Montreal.

Gene Curtis, New Haven, Conn., succeeds Harry S. Dahm as manager Capitol theatre. Dahm's promoted district manager Ontario, Canadian F-P.

Kansas City.

Glen W. Dickinson circuit bought the Bijou, K. C. 850-seat suburban house.

Jacksonville, Fla.

Harry Weiss has been transferred from the Publix city managership of Tampa to manager of the Florida theatre here, replacing Al F. Weiss, Jr., no relation.

Charles G. Branham, district manager, has moved his offices to Tampa. Other managerial changes are Al Fourmet, formerly with Paramount here, to succeed E. A. Crane as city manager, Daytona; Arthur Barry, formerly of Hendersonville, N. C., as manager at Lakeland, to succeed R. M. Swanson, transferred to the Hippodrome, Miami.

Managers at Tampa theatres for the season are Paul Short, remaining at the Tampa; O. G. Finley, Victory; James Newman, Franklin, and Charles Kirconnell, Seminole. Publix is negotiating for road shows at the Victory in Tampa and the Vivian, Daytona.

Halifax, Can.

Harold Hitcheson, mgr. of new Capitol. Tom Daley returns to F. P.-Can. headquarters in Toronto.

Huntingdon, Pa.

Clifton theatre destroyed by fire Nov. 30. Two firemen injured. Origin undetermined.

Syracuse, N. Y.

Scion of Tin Pan Alley, which knew him as Mort Schenk, and former actor, Morton M. Shenkman will succeed James J. Moore as managing director of the Fox-Eckel here in two weeks, it was announced today.

Shenkman joins the Fox Metropolitan Theatres after nearly five years with the Wilmer & Vincent circuit.

Akron, O.

Al Beckerich is manager of R-K-O theatre here, succeeding Ralph J. Walsh. Walsh has accepted a post as district manager for Warner Brothers with headquarters at Cleveland.

Chorus Girl Santys

St. Paul.

Another lesson this week from the Ray O'Connell "school of exploitation." Never missing a week, O'Connell, city R-K-O manager, took 10 girls from 20th Century Revue current on the vaudeville bill, decked them out in Santa costumes and had them ballyhoo for the Salvation Army at the street corner chimneys where funds are collected to feed the poor.

The news cameramen were there.

"See a good show—and win a Christmas gift for hubby" is the cry of Manager Frank Croson of the R-K-O President. He tied up with a local jeweler who gives away $100 worth of jewelry every Wednesday night in return for installing a display case in lobby and putting a ballyhoo for his store on the screen.

No cost to the theatre otherwise.

Waugh Starts Well

Winnipeg.

Howard Waugh, new manager at R-K-O Capitol, opened with plenty of ballyhoo. He had Rita Burgess of the Capitol, tie up with Hud-

(Continued on page 30)

Theatre Advertising as Indicated From Various Cities

DENVER

LAST TIMES TODAY! Gala Anniversary Show! Ray Bolger and Ted Mack in Giant Stage Show! Fred Schmitt and Denver Grande Orchestra, "Faust."

A Girl's TRUE STORY... for name a secret!!

TOMORROW AT 11 A. M. The Most Astounding Picture of the Year!

WAR NURSE

With Robert Montgomery

ROBERT AMES JUNE WALKER
MARIE PREVOST
ANITA PAGE ZAZU PITTS

For the first time, the true, daring expose of our girls at the front . . . love that blossoms even in carnage of war!

Publix Stage Show!
TED MACK in "SKY HIGH"
With the Musical Comedy Stars
HILTON & GAE
The Flipper & Filpper
PAUL & EBBAL
The CAMPUS FOUR Collegiate Quartet
FRED EVANS ENTERTAINS
FRED SCHMITT conducting DENVER GRANDE ORCHESTRA
"The First Gentleman-ing"

MIDNITE PREVIEW TONITE! Merle DRESSLER & Wallace BEERY in "Min & Bill"

Denver

PARAMOUNT PICTURES PUBLIX Stage SHOWS

NEW YORK CITY

MAYFAIR
B'WAY AT 45TH STREET

She Took His Dictation—But Wanted His Kisses

CONSTANCE BENNETT in SIN TAKES A HOLIDAY

JUST HIS SECRETARY—but he paid yearned for him. Then fate married them—and the miles away—enlisted on a lonely honeymoon.

With Kenneth MacKenna, Basil Rathbone, Rita La Roy, Lewis John Bartels

Popular Prices Mat. Daily 2:45 Sat. 2:45

A PAYER PICTURE

CHICAGO

TOMORROW AT 10 A. M.

Death stalking in the nite. Hundreds of children's lives imperiled. Shrieking sirens—clanging bells. A city ablaze. Just a few of the 1000 thrills in...

THE THIRD ALARM

A TIFFANY PRODUCTION

JAMES HALL STAR OF "HELLS ANGELS"

ANITA LOUISE HOBART BOSWORTH
PAUL HURST • JEAN HERSHOLT

CASTLE STATE AT MADISON

NEW YORK CITY

"VIENNESE NIGHTS" WERE MADE FOR LOVE)

This is the picture that was made without regard to Hollywood precedent, Hollywood formula or Hollywood tradition!

The public loves it—the critics love it! Since its brilliant world premiere, it has given New York the supreme screen thrill of the year!

It's different and it's great!

• • •

By Sigmund Romberg and Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd.

Entirely in Technicolor

WARNER BROS. THEATRE

B'way & 52nd St.

Twice Daily 2:45-8:45 Sunday 2-8-8:45

Good seats at the Box Office for the first four weeks.

LOS ANGELES

A New A GREAT STAR is born

A star so beautiful..so brilliant..so gracious.. new interest is given to the talking screen..the art..the joy..the pleasure of theatre going flames anew! You..you have cried for a fresh face..a genius..come..your fondest hope will be exceeded...

MARLENE DIETRICH

IN PARAMOUNT'S

MOROCCO

GARY COOPER
ADOLPHE MENJOU

DIRECTED BY JOSEF VON STERNBERG

SPECIAL MIDNIGHT SHOW SAT. NOV. 29TH

MARLENE DIETRICH will be there IN PERSON

A PROLOGUE OF GLORIOUS SPECTACLE

GRAUMAN'S CHINESE

2:30 TWICE DAILY 8:30

FOR SEATS PHONE GLADSTONE 5184 or Owl Prices

MILWAUKEE

ALHAMBRA

If Others Are Happier Today It's Because They've Seen This Picture

You, too, will rejoice if you follow the crowds making merry with

HARRY LANGDON

and

SLIM SUMMERVILLE with BESSIE LOVE in "SEE AMERICA THIRST"

Paramount Short Subject

Visit Our Palm Garden Refreshments 5pm

NEW YORK CITY

Evelyn BRENT in "MADONNA OF THE STREETS"

with ROBERT AMES

God gave her the yielding heart of a woman . . . but she braved wealth . . . made loneliness a virtue . . . sneered in the face of decency . . . only to find her circle of selfishness crumble at the first tiny note of love.

A COLUMBIA PICTURE

Daily from 10:30 A. M.

CONTINUOUS SHOWS

LOEW'S STATE 7-467 St.

SAN FRANCISCO

ST. FRANCIS

TODAY at 10 A. M.

Just a pretty girl that's hungry for romance. She'll take you on thrilling escapades, and show you new ways to win a man.

The NAUGHTY FLIRT

A First National Production with

ALICE WHITE
MYRNA LOY
PAUL PAGE

Talk—Suits to Wear Music

Paramount Sound News

Pollitt Stage Band Mgr.

Orpheum

Starting Thursday "Sky Scrapers" Comedy Riot

35

ST LOUIS

THE NEW SWEETHEART OF THE SCREEN

It Has Everything

Romance! Charm! Action! Thrills! With Sally Herself — More Charming, Radiant, Irresistible and Inimitable Than Ever!

STARTS TODAY

Marilyn MILLER in "SUNNY"

First National's Joy Packed Romance With JOE DONAHUE CLYDE COOK O. P. HEGGIE

Ghost Subjects LULU McCONNELL In "Toreon Tint" 'THE ISLAND EMPIRE'

25c to 40c Plus 10c Tax to 60c Nights

Midnight Preview Tomorrow JACK OAKIE in "SEA LEGS"

AMBASSADOR

MONTREAL

MONTREAL'S LEADING THEATRE

His MAJESTY'S

Telephones: Plateau 3136-6466

ONE WEEK ONLY

COM. SAT. NIGHT, NOV. 29 At 8.30

76 Years Ago England gave to the world its greatest thrill with

The Immortal Charge of the Light Brigade

To-day mankind is staggered with the same famous heroic episode

Vividly Portrayed in

THE GREATEST OF ALL FILM SPECTACLES!

Under the Auspices of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League

GAUMONT BRITISH CORPORATION Presents

BALACLAVA

WITH BENITA HUME and CYRIL McLAGLEN

Matinees: 50c and 75c Evenings: 50c, 75c & $1.00 Seat Sale Monday

Buy in Advance All Seats Reserved

TWICE DAILY Including Sunday 2:30 and 8:30

DETROIT

TODAY!

WATCH OUT!

The Most Dangerous Woman in the World Has Reached Detroit! She's a Racketeer in the Love Game!

The WIDOW from CHICAGO

WITH NEIL HAMILTON AND ALICE WHITE

SEX APPEAL WITH A SIX-SHOOTER!

She'll Take You for a Ride to Romance! Shoot You Full of Thrills—and Slay You With Love!

EXTRA! Willie West & McGinty in "Plastered"

"The 20th Amendment" with Jack Haley

Lee Morse in Songs

TODAY SUNDAY

25¢ 10:45 to 2 P.M.

50¢ 2 P.M. to Closing

Children All Times 15¢

STATE

WOODWARD NEAR GO CIRCUS PARK

INDIANAPOLIS

INDIANA

It's True! She DID Sin! But What Girl Wouldn't to Save the Man She Loves?

ONE NIGHT AT SUSIES

Vitaphone Romance With Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Billie Dove

Daringly frank story of the greatest sacrifice a girl ever made!

ON THE STAGE

CHARLIE DAVIS' presents Glorified Vaudeville

6—Big Attractions—6

FRIDA A PALACE Musical Comedy Pantera CHILTON & THOMAS THE MORGAN TRIO EVANS' MERMAIDS CARLILE AND HIS BOYS DESSA BYRD

BRUNSWICK RADIO FREE

for your favorite charity in connection with BRUNSWICK RADIO WEEK!

Sh-h-h-! Come with me to Susie's and spend the strangest night of your life.

JERSEY CITY

Boys and Girls! THE FOX CAMEO THEATRE OPENS FRIDAY NOV. 21st at 1.30 P.M.

IT WILL BE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS EXCLUSIVELY BE SURE TO BE THERE!

P.S. THE ADDRESS IS OCEAN & DANFORTH AVES.

MON. TO SAT. PERFORMANCES 9.30 to 1.30 P.M. 1.30 to 5.30 P.M. NO EVENING SHOW.

NEW POLICY!

SELECTED TALKING PICTURES NOVELTIES

BOYS and GIRLS ··· 10¢ PROGRAM CHANGED MON. WED AND FRIDAY. ADULTS 20¢

THERE WILL BE NO SHOW ON SUNDAY FOR CHILDREN.

AMERICA'S FIRST THEATRE EXCLUSIVELY FOR BOYS and GIRLS

JOINING THE PRESENT CHILD CONFERENCE MOVEMENT IN OUR NATION'S CAPITOL.

"BUY A SHARE IN CHILDHOOD PREFERRED"

TOLEDO

STATE 25¢

LAST TIMES TODAY EDMUND LOWE in "Scotland Yard"

Midnight Show 11:30 Tonite. "WHAT MEN WANT," and vaudeville. Auspices Roosevelt Ex-Service Men's Republican Club. Admission 50c.

SUNDAY, 1:30 Continuous.

"WHAT MEN WANT"

A blazing, daring drama of guts who better their treaty for, rats and beauty. Adapted from the novel "Step In the Dark," by Warner Fabian, author of "Flaming Youth."

BEN LYON—PAULINE STARKE

BARBARA KENT, ROBERT ELLIS

MON., TUES., WED.

"The BIG HOUSE"

MILWAUKEE

ALHAMBRA

DEAR JUDGE!

PADLOCK US IF YOU MUST .... WE ADMIT THEIR FUN IS INTOXICATING!

CARL LAEMMLE presents HARRY LANGDON SLIM SUMMERVILLE BESSIE LOVE IN "SEE AMERICA THIRST"

To 1 P.M. 25c World Premiere

Universal's Cocktail of Mirth!

WHAT A PARTY!

The Punch, of an Old-Time Bottle of Beer ... the Results of Champagne ... The Exhilaration of a Highball ... You'd Be There!

A LAUGHING JAG!

PAPA & MAMA SCHLITZ (IN PERSON) Open every afternoon, one every night

MIDNIGHT SHOW TONIGHT

CHICAGO

WHY WORRY ABOUT HARD TIMES?

"ONLY SAPS WORK"

Give Your Funny-bone a Jiggle—Funniest Laugh Since the Volstead Act!

A Laughable Crook With a Bum Leg—a Laughable Picture From Start to Finish!

RICHARD ARLEN MARY BRIAN LEON ERROL STUART ERWIN

Four Great Stars in an All-Star Romantic Comedy

A Paramount Picture

ADDED ATTRACTION! "The Bottom of the World" Beautiful Adventure in the Antarctic

Continuous from 9:45 a.m. 30c 2 p.m., 50c 6:30

WOODS RANDOLPH near DEARBORN

NEW YORK CITY

They Couldn't Say No to Easy Dough...

BLOOD MONEY! HUSH MONEY! GUN MONEY!

BIG MONEY

Thrillingly—Laughingly Portrayed by Robt. Armstrong Eddie Quillan James Gleason A PATHE PICTURE

Now at GLOBE

ST LOUIS

A MAN-WRECKED WOMAN!!!! A SHIP-WRECKED MAN

How Long Can He Treat Her Like a Woman? When Must He Treat Her Like a Man? Fighting Her, Brow-Beating, Conquering Her,

GEORGE BANCROFT IN "DERELICT"

Paramount's Crashing, Smashing Drama of Conflicting Emotions!

WITH WILLIAM BOYD JESSIE LANDIS

Midnight Preview Tomorrow!

'WIDOW FROM CHICAGO'

ADDED FEATURES CHESTER CONKLIN in 'Sky Scrapers' GENE WHRICK in 'School Daze' Talkartoon

25c to 1 P.M. 50c Nights 15c Kids

MISSOURI

CLOCKED—

423 LAUGHS by actual audience count!

CHARLIE RUGGLES

will panic them in this one—the most successful farce ever conceived.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT" will produce more laughing pains than anything ever shown. It's the greatest laugh picture of all time!

with

JUNE COLLYER and a great cast

Story by Brandon Thomas
Directed by Al Christie Produced by Christie

COLUMBIA PICTURES

For laughing
OUT LOUD

"CHARLEY'S AUNT"

COLUMBIA'S MIGHTY MIRTHQUAKE!

No Ratification for 5-5-5 Contract Until Endorsed 100% by Industry

Until ratified 100% by the industry as represented in the 5-5-5 Committee, the uniform contract formula, copies of which were printed a month ago and are now stacked up in the Hays office, will be held up. This means that one way or another the standardized form cannot become effective until late in January.

So far all members of the committee, with the exception of Abram Myers, have okayed the formula. In the case of Myers several of his Allied States units have shown their impatience and disapproval of his delay by going over the head of their paid advisor and indorsing the form.

Producers and distributors, especially since the ruling of the U. S. Supreme Court against anything that would show collective body control, are determined to get the voluntary okay of the vast majority of exhibitors before they will relinquish their individual sales forms for the one drawn up by the industry's representatives during the past year.

Myers and his lieutenants are meeting in New York privately. The understanding in producer circles is that a final decision will be reached by that insurgent group regarding their attitude toward the contract. Other members of the 5-5-5 Committee expect a report in this respect within the week.

KATZ' ASSURANCE OF PUBLIX EMPLOYMENT

In "Publix Opinion" of last week, Sam Katz issued this announcement, to reassure Publix employees:

For Your Personal Information

In order to set at rest all idle rumors, fears and gossip, I wish to make this definite, positive statement:

Every present employee of Publix Theatres Corporation may be definitely assured that he is going to keep his job.

The only qualification in this statement is, naturally, the qualification of service. So long as every employee now in Publix performs his duties and delivers the job which he has always delivered and which Publix expects him to deliver, he need have no fear of being dropped from the payroll.

Whereas we have found it advisable to re-design the operating set-up in order to throw more power into the field, these changes are constructively made for the betterment of the circuit and do not affect in any way the individual effort or work of any employee of Publix.

For the new men who have joined Publix in the recent acquisition of theatres the same statement holds as genuinely true as it does for the older employees.

The man who does his job thoroughly, conscientiously and effectively, (and I may say the job has been done, and is now being done in just that manner) need have no qualms or fears as to his position in Publix. He may be definitely assured that his position will remain fixed in Publix Theatres and that he himself, in the conduct of his job, is master of his fate.

In these days of rumors, gossip, changes, elimination of manpower in other businesses, it should be, and I hope it is reassuring, to every man now in Publix to know that his job is safe and that he can whole-heartedly and without fear of his future status throw himself into his work in the definite knowledge that his position is secure.

Sam Katz.

Labor Troubles

Portland, Ore., Dec. 2.

Six local indie houses filed suit for a restraining order to prevent union picketing outside the theatres. Misunderstanding started over whether two operators were needed in sound booths.

Duo es have been operating non-union, with picketing, for months.

British Film Field

(Continued from page 6)

Joe Brandts are using phone numbers when they ask for guarantees based on last year's grosses.

The Joes, like others, must either come way down or go into business here. Tough job, that, and conditions will not improve either.

Might get a break through FBO of this country if he came to earth on guarantees. Fred Enders got an option from the Ostrers on the stock of this distributing house, stock being taken over by Ostrers when Bromheads quit. Enders has been running on by selling British Thomas-Houston equipment and marketed some 400. He did a little on the side with re-issues, there being enough silent business still available to make this a go. Otherwise, lying doggo till there's some American product around that doesn't want twice as much guaranteed against a percentage as the market is worth altogether.

Tough on the Brandts, getting so out of date on figures, ain't it?

Good Evans!

Looks like Will Evans, theatre head of Gaumont-British, is getting to be a big fellow. With a kind of Cochran-Butt pull in Fleet street. Having bawled out Peter Burnup of "Daily Mail," is also credited with having done his bit towards getting George Atkinson out of Beaverbrook's "Express."

Maybe idea gets around through Evans having been close to Leavers so many P.C.E. stock deals.

Atkinson says part reason was "Express" against boosting British pictures, which, up against Beaverbrook's United Empire stunt, doesn't sound. Only you never can tell with these political-financiers. Anyway, Atkinson apparently did railroad stories and reviews through about cowpuns and actors on his lordly boss's barred list, and that caused a squawk. If Swaffer does the film criticism for the Beaverbrook papers, and as Swaff's graft-proof, there'll be some more blarring. From the theatres, like Swaff is still from some of the regits.

Same time Atkinson joins "Daily Telegraph," Dec. 7.

Folk Around

Hayes Hunter still here. In purple pants.

British & Dominions Company took 20 days' sailing on "Sport of Kings," through having to rebuild sets and retake through lab accidents.

Arthur Dent and Murray Silverstone feed from the same trough at Kettner's now and then. No merger. Provincial papers please copy and deny.

New Victoria and New Gallery are to take concurrent runs experimentally. Partly on account of shortage of biz pictures, partly because someone in Gaumont-British figures houses are far enough apart not to affect each other. Maybe New Victoria playing to around 80,000 old patrons a week at present. Some eight capacities.

De Courville finishes his shows at New Vic and begins directing "77 Park Lane" as a quota opus for United Artists Dec. 8.

Maurice Elvey begins on "Potiphar's Wife" for B.I. next week.

Syd Chaplin Echo

Molly Wright had action against British International for slander and negligence arising out of an alleged savage assault on her some time ago by Syd Chaplin, who then beat it and never came back to finish "Mumming Birds." B.I.P. paid $2,500 and costs and the case did not go for trial.

Same day bankruptcy petition filed against Syd Chaplin, in which he is described as a comedian whose present whereabouts are unknown.

Lachman's Backing

Harry Lachman making "Dorothy Brandon's 'Outsider'" at Elstree, with Alma Reville, B. I. 'scenarist, doing script, and Wardour Company (G.F.D.) distributing and releasing. Lachman says he has Rothschild money behind him, but with layout as above and ostensible producer being E. Hakim, small exhibitor, seems the Rothschild millions are a long way behind Harry. Paid $20,000 for rights of play, and film is to cost all in some $75,000 and over in 19 days.

Texas OK Tiff's Contract

Dallas, Dec. 2.

Texas Allied indies officially endorsed Tiffins franchise in a meet here.

Claimed one of rare cases when Texans have unanimously accepted a producing firm's product.

DET. GRINDS OFF CUT

No Money in Slashing Opposish Prices

Detroit, Dec. 2.

The price war between grind houses has been curtailed except in the lesser spots. R-K-O Temple agreed to maintain its price scale and the Family and Columbia also plan on maintaining theirs.

Reason is there very little additional business will be obtained that way.

TESTING VT.'S SUNDAY LAW

Rutland, Vt., Dec. 2.

One of the most determined attacks ever made on a New England blue law is being waged here. As a result the constitutionality of Vermont Sunday Amusement Law under which State's Attorney is attempting to curb operation of film theatres and indoor golf courses, is to be passed upon by the State Supreme Court.

T. W. McKay, manager of two Publix theatres, recently was arrested charged with violating the Sunday law, on the statute books since 1921. Judge Clayton H. Kinney in Rutland Municipal Court overruled a demurrer filed by counsel for McKay and the case will go direct to the Supreme Court without trial in the lower court.

Two operators of miniature golf courses have been fined under the law and have censed to open Sunday. McKay, however, since his arrest has continued Sunday film shows in the theatres.

Girl's Tattoo Fans

(Continued from page 1)

season, drifted into the spot with the request for a flower on their chest. When asked why they applied they were drunk.

Seaport towns produced sailor who, while the markings were being printed, claimed they were having the work done to look as beautiful as the rest of the crew.

Kids Ambitious

Out of every town of 10,000 or over Webb was always sure of at least 12 boys customers, who went for back designs. Many of these lads, because of the intricate work had to make two trips. About 80% of these lads said the fancy design was the foundation for a body covering which would make them the greatest tattooed man in the world. They were planning on a sideshow career as tattooers. The other 20% did it to impress some home town gal.

Society women, in the medium sized towns, went strong the past year on an anklet. Consists of a wreath of flowers around one ankle. All said it was stylish to carry this mark, and saved buying an anklet chain.

Many small town girls would stand around undecided as to what they wanted engraved. Most of these faded after the first prick of the needle, declaring they had no reason for being marked up, and called it all off.

Webb carried a machine to remove tattooing. It wasn't used one all year.

Hearts Entwined

Webb says a revival of the tattoo biz will occur within the next year. He bases his assertion on the fact every depression brings about a return of this sport, with engaged couples using this cheap means of showing their love for each other by having their names intertwined.

It's cheaper than rings and more effective, they think.

Grid Men Go Adagio

(Continued from page 1)

usually be depended upon not to fumble the baggage. Getting warmed up in rehearsal, they call the turn like plays—by means of signals.

Many of the adagio students came here looking for work in foothall pictures. When this didn't materialize they went adagio. Now the problem is getting play dates.

November Production Survey

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Opening week of November saw production at its best since summer, with 42 feature units and nine short subjects active. Feature activity fell off 10 units during the month while the quick-shooting comedies picked up slightly.

Thirty-five features were continuing in the second week of November, and only 19 continued the closing week.

For all units the average working weekly in November was 47.2, identical with October's average.

Metro, Universal, Fox and Paramount held their lead in activity, with slight changes in order. They averaged seven, six, five and four feature units respectively.

NOVEMBER PRODUCTION AVERAGES in 17 Active Coast Studios

Feature Studios.	October, 1930, units active— Features.	Shorts.	Totals.	Past averages 1929.	1928.
Metro	7.2	.2	7.5	6.2	6.4
Universal	6.5	1.7	8.2	6.9	5.1
Fox	5.2		5.2	7.2	8.9
Paramount	4.5	.2	4.7	4.8	8.8
Warner First National	2.5		2.5	9.6	15.5
Columbia	2.2	.2	2.5	1.8	2.7
Radio	2.0	1.2	3.2	2.4	2.8
United Artists	1.5		1.5	1.6	2.0
Tiffany	1.5	.2	1.7	1.8	3.0
Darmour	.5	.7	1.2	.7	1.2
National	.5		.5
Pathe	.5	.5	1.0	1.8	2.7
Leasing Studios—
Tec-Art	1.2	.2	1.5	2.5	3.0
Educational	.7	1.0	1.7	2.1	3.0
Metropolitan		.7	.7	3.6	3.2
Short Subjects
Roach		2.2	2.2	1.8	2.1
Sennett		1.5	1.5	1.6	1.6
Totals, November	36.2	11.0	47.2	58.5	72.3

1930 MONTHLY AVERAGES ON ALL ACTIVE UNITS

January 55, February 51, March 67, April 68, May 65, June 63, July 60, August 55, September 46, October 47, November 47.

43 FEATURES COMPLETED ON THE COAST in November, 1930 (Including Nine Foreign Versions)

Metro

"The Great Meadow"
"Toto" (Spanish)
"Reducing"
"Seeing Hollywood" (German revue)
"The Southerner"
"The Bathelor Father"
"Lenny Lind" (French)
"Inspiration"
"Way for a Sailor" (Spanish)

Paramount

"The Right to Love"
"Accidents Will Happen"
"Fighting Caravans"
"No Limit"
"Scandal Sheet"
"Stampede"

Universal

"Resurrection"
"The Modern Wife"
"Dracula" (Spanish)
"Dracula"
"Many a Slip"

Fox

"Once a Sinner"
"The Spy"
"The Man Who Came Back"
"The Seas Beneath"

Columbia

"The Criminal Code"
"Dirigible"

Radio

"The Royal Bed"
"Cimarron"
"The Royal Bed" (French)
"Millie" (Rogers)

Tiffany

"The Midnight Stage"
"The Sunrise Trail" (Carr)
"Caught Cheating"
"The Command Performance" (Cruze)

Warner First National

"Aviateur Malgre Lui" (The Aviator)
"Daemon des Meeres" (Moby Dick)
"Prima Atrevida" (Lady Who Dared)

United Artists

"Kiki"
"Reaching for the Moon"

Independent

"Phantom of the West" (Mascot serial)
"The Midnight Special" (Chesterfield)
"Sea Devils" (Darmour)
"Golddiggers of Hollywood" (Kent)
"Sheer Luck" (Hollywood Syndicate)

NEW L. A. HOUSE WILL INCLUDE STAGE SHOWS

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

When Gumbiner Bros. open their new downtown house New Year's day with Chaplin's "City Lights," they will fight opposition with stage shows of their own.

Al Short will be leader of the stage band and the house will offer its own chorus, besides specialties. New establishment is situated between Loew's State and the Paramount, both presentation houses.

House Mgrs. Change Often In Reading Theatres

Reading, Pa., Dec. 2.

Changes are the order in theatres here this season. Four of the city's leading houses have seen so many changes this fall that even the old timers in theatres don't know who's who any more.

One house has had four managers in three months. Another has had four in less than 10 weeks. Another has had three, and a fourth might be said to have had two and a half, two regular managers and an usher transplanted from the floor for a week's temporary service in the office. As to assistant managers, so called, the changes have been more numerous.

At least five dramatic stock or musical comedy companies have come to grief here thus far this season.

2 AKRON HOUSES DAMAGED BY BOMBS

Akron, O., Dec. 2.

Simultaneous bombing of two neighborhood houses here (Nov. 26) marked the renewal of an alleged labor war involving Akron theatres and picture machine operators.

Spicer and People's were the targets of the pineapple tossers. A huge hole was torn in the roof of the Spicer theatre and debris scattered through the auditorium. At the People's the blast was tossed into the lobby, wrecking the entrance. Damage at the two houses was estimated in excess of $10,000.

Both occurred at 1:50 a. m. Robert Frances, watchman at the People's was in the rear of the building and escaped injury. The Spicer was unguarded.

Windows were shattered for a block in all directions from both theatres.

Harry Jones, business agent for the Operators' Union, was held by police for questioning, but no charges were placed against him.

M. Levine, manager of the People's for the last two months, told the police he had been "warned" to hire two union projectionists but refused.

F. G. Reinecke, of the Spicer would not talk.

Allied and Contract

Abraham Myers and his Allied States lieutenants met in New York yesterday (2) to decide which way they'll go on the uniform contract.

Comparative Grosses for November

(Continued from page 10)

SEATTLE

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
PARAMOUNT High...$26,000 Low...9,000	"Wedding Night" $11,300 Stage show	"Santa Fe Trail" $11,000	"Feet First" $12,700	"Playboy of Paris" $11,200
MUSIC BOX High...$17,000 Low...3,500	"What a Widow" $9,300	"Lincoln" $6,700 (1st week)	"Lincoln" $4,000 (2d week)	"Doorway to Hell" $9,000
FIFTH AVE. High...$26,000 Low...8,500	"Way of Sailor" $12,850 Stage Show	"Dancers" $12,500	"Renegades" $12,900	"Remote Control" $14,900
BLUE MOUSE High...$16,000 Low...3,000	"Life Party" $5,000 (2d week)	"Dancing Sweeties" $4,300	"River's End" $5,500	"Lottery Bride" $4,500
ORPHEUM High...$22,000 Low...6,500	"Check & Double Check" $27,000 (1st week) Vaude	"Check & Double Check" $13,300 (2d week)	"Silver Horde" $18,000	"Cat Creeps" $13,000

NEWARK, N. J.

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
BRANFORD High...$30,500 Low...13,800	"Golden West" $16,500	"Maybe It's Love" $22,000	"Night at Susie's" $16,000	"Doorway to Hell" $27,500
CAPITOL High...$15,000 Low...2,500	"Sea Wolf" $6,200 (2d week)	"Western Front" $4,500	"Love in Rough" $5,400	"Golden West" $5,000
MOSQUE High...$33,000 Low...6,000	"Sailor Behave" $12,000	"East Is West" $12,000	"Soldier's Plaything" $11,000	"Lincoln" $14,500
STATE High...$32,000 Low...10,000	"French Girls" $13,500	"Billy the Kid" $12,500	"Big House" $27,500 (1st week)	"Big House" $15,500 (2d week)
R-K-O PROCTOR'S High...$28,300 Low...7,000	"Silver Horde" $13,500	"Big Money" $14,500	"Check & Double Check" $26,200 (1st week)	"Check & Double Check" $14,800 (2d week)

MINNEAPOLIS

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
MINNESOTA High...$45,200 Low...17,000	"Laughter" $27,000 Stage Show	"Way for Sailor" $22,000	"Heads Up" $23,600	"Remote Control" $19,500
STATE High...$28,000 Low...3,800	"Good News" $6,000	"Moby Dick" $10,000	"Playboy of Paris" $13,100	"Doorway to Hell" $12,100
R-K-O ORPHEUM High...$25,000 Low...5,000	"Check & Double Check" (Amos-Andy) $25,000 (1st week) (Record High)	"Check & Double Check" $13,000 (2d week)	"Silver Horde" 13,000	"Cat Creeps" $13,000

DENVER

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
TABOR High...$14,000 Low...10,000	(Dark)	"Big Trail" $14,000 Record High	"Life Party" $11,500	"Her Man" $10,000 (New Low)
ALADDIN High...$16,600 Low...1,650	"Old English" $7,500	"Lilliom" $6,000	"Big Boy" $1,650 (New Low)	"Brothers" $6,500
DENVER High...$27,700 Low...7,000	"Scarlet Pages" $14,000	"Laughter" $16,300	"Golden West" $16,500	"Playboy of Paris" $15,800
RIALTO High...$7,750 Low...2,000	"Madam Satan" $4,000	"Check & Double Check" $7,500	"Heads Up" $4,300	"Feet First" $4,100

WASHINGTON

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
EARLE High...$25,500 Low...6,000	"Truth About Youth" $19,000 (1st week) All Sound	"Truth About Youth" $14,900	"Love in the Rough" $17,500	"River's End" $17,000
COLUMBIA High...$19,000 Low...5,500	"Billy the Kid" $8,000 All Sound	"Whoopee" $13,000	"Whoopee" $11,000	"Min and Bill" $10,000
FOX High...$41,500 Low...	"Laughter" $23,800 Stage Show	"Scotland Yard" $22,000	"Renegades" $21,500	"Big Trail" $28,900
METROPOLITAN High...$21,000 Low...5,000	"College Love" $7,000 All Sound	"Lone Wolf" $6,000	"Life Party" $7,500	"Gorilla" $6,500
PALACE High...$27,300 Low...11,500	"Way of Sailor" $17,500 Stage Show	"Du Barry" $18,000	"Virtuous Sin" $18,000	"Derelict" $21,000

LOUISVILLE

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
ALAMO High...$11,600 Low...2,450	"Scotland Yard" $4,800	"Sinner's Holiday" $4,300	"Whoopee" $5,750	"Doorway to Hell" $6,900
BROWN High...$8,400 Low...2,250	"Africa Speaks" $5,900	"Check & Double Check" $8,400 Record High	"Check & Double Check" $6,100	"Her Man" $4,200
ANDERSON High...$9,800 Low...2,100	"Numbered Men" $3,900	"Virtuous Sin" $4,100	"Fast and Loose" $4,300	"College Lovers" $3,900
RIALTO High...$14,750 Low...3,275	"Laughter" $4,000	"Golden West" $4,300	"Playboy of Paris" $4,300	"Tom Sawyer" $4,800
STATE High...$28,000 Low...7,900	"Billy the Kid" $9,500	"Way for Sailor" $9,900	"Remote Control" $9,700	"Lincoln" $11,000
STRAND High...$12,500 Low...3,700	"Life of Party" $5,700	"Renegades" $5,100	"Maybe It's Love" $5,900	"Up the River" $6,200

Minneapolis Grosses

(Continued from page 10)

tions are the principal havoc raiser all around.

Estimates for Last Week

Minnesota (Publix) (4,200; 75)—"Scotland Yard" (Fox) and Publix unit stage show, "Garden of Girls." Picture panned by critics but seemed to please. Did not demonstrate any drawing power. Edmund Lowe and Joan Bennett apparently no magnets here. Stage show very good. Nearly $21,200. Poor.

Century (Publix) (1,600; 75)—"Feet First" (Par), 2d week. This newest Harold Lloyd picture disappointment despite audiences seemed to enjoy it very much. After only a fair first week, trade took sharp nose dive last seven days. About $5,500. Poor.

State (Publix) (2,200; 60)—"Big Trail" (Fox). Picture heavily exploited and won favor of critics and customers, but far from big trade puller. Around $11,300. Disappointing and just fair.

R-K-O Orpheum (2,850; 50)—"Po'able David" (Col), vaude. Another heavily exploited and highly praised picture in combination with first-rate vaude. Nearly $13,000. Just fair.

R-K-O Seventh Street (1,400; 50)—"Danger Lights" (Radio). Ordinary picture and meant nothing to the box office. Some clever tie-ups with railroad organizations helped little. $4,000. Fair.

Lyric (Publix) (1,300; 40)—"Renegades" (Fox). Picture gave good satisfaction, but several grand under recent weeks. $3,400. Fair.

Pantages (1,600; 35)—"Once a Gentleman" (Sono-Art). Ordinary picture and with no names to give this opening attraction here any pulling power. $3,500. Poor.

Aster (900; 35)—"Lilliom" (Fox). Highly praised picture helped by Charles Farrell in cast. $3,000. Fair.

Grand (1,100; 35)—"Sea God" (Par), 1st half; "Good News" (M-G-M), 2d half. Second loop runs. $2,300. Fair.

Chicago Grosses

(Continued from page 8)

State-Lake around the corner. For six days, brutal at $19,800.

Orpheum (Warner) (700; 40-59)—"Sailor Behave" (WB). Olsen and Johnson local vaude names and at this house on holiday days nicely at $6,600. "Man to Man" (WB) replaces.

Palace (R-K-O) (2,300; 50-75-85)—"Silver Horde" (U). Vaude. Proof this house has established itself as a consistent draw is seen in the excellent results managed with so-so bill. Picture drew plenty of panning. At $20,000 only a couple of grand below usual good grosses.

Punch and Judy (Machat) (350; 50-75)—"Cockeyed World" (Fox). Lasted only four days and yanked after terrible $450. "King of Kings" opened Sunday (30), for another attempt. Unless something happens, house will probably close by New Year's.

Roosevelt (Publix-B. & K.) (1,500; 50-75-85)—"Life of Party" (WB). Matinee trade excellent, but fell off in evening. For first week, better than fair at $22,700. Doubt in people's mind that this was not a musical despite ads taking the trouble to state it's not musical.

State-Lake (R-K-O) (2,700; 50-75-85)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). Opening Thanksgiving Day big in spite of the weather. First two days swell at $10,500, with Constance Bennett established in town following her "Common Clay" smash. "Danger Lights" (Radio) on wide film, finished in midweek taking $15,000, only fair for final five days. New style of exploitation used by R-K-O attracting attention.

United Artists (Publix-UA) (1,700; 50-75-85)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). High-hat of the loop just missing the record by a couple of grand at tremendous $39,800 for first week. At pace, will probably do as well the 2d week, especially if the weather eases up a bit.

Woods (A. Jones) (1,200; 50-75-85)—"Today" (Security). Holiday opening helped this one at $7,100, with the adults only rallying also a boost. Figure is for three days and very nice.

BOSTON

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
STATE High...$40,000 Low...13,800	"Billy the Kid" $15,300	"Way of Sailor" $15,700	"Remote Control" $16,000	"A Lady's Morals" $19,200
METROPOLITAN High...$66,000 Low...19,500	"Playboy of Paris" $44,300	"Laughter" $45,500	"Virtuous Sin" $46,300	"Office Wife" $39,600

BALTIMORE

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
CENTURY High...$27,000 Low...9,000	"Wedding Night" $13,500 All Sound	"A Lady's Morals" $24,000	"Way for a Sailor" $21,500	"Golden West" $23,000
STANLEY High...$33,500 Low...11,000	"Playboy of Paris" $16,000	"Virtuous Sin" $11,500	"Feet First" $16,000	"Derelict" $16,000
VALENCIA High...$11,000 Low...1,800	"Whoopee" $3,500 (2d week)	"Night at Susie's" $3,100	"Dough Boys" $3,700	"Feet First" $3,200
KEITH'S High...$20,000 Low...4,000	"Check & Double Check" $20,000 (1st week) Record High	"Check & Double Check" $10,000 (2d week)	"Laughter" $10,000	"Laughter" $7,000

PORTLAND, ORE.

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
PARAMOUNT High...$25,300 Low...5,000	"Golden West" $12,600 Stage Show	"Feet First" $13,100	"Laughter" $10,300	"Derelict" $7,300
ORPHEUM High...$23,000 Low...5,500	"Check & Double Check" $23,000 (1st week) Record High Vaude	"Check & Double Check" $14,300 (2d week)	"Silver Horde" $14,200	"Cat Creeps" $14,500
MUSIC BOX High...$20,000 Low...4,000	"Life Party" $4,600	"Big Boy" $4,800	"Soldiers Plaything" $5,600	"Doorway to Hell" $6,300
UNITED ARTISTS High...$16,000 Low...4,000	"Up River" $7,000 (2d week)	"Du Barry" $10,000 (1st week)	"Du Barry" $5,000 (2d week)	"Big Trail" $10,000
BROADWAY High...$23,000 Low...9,000	"Scotland Yard" $14,000 Stage Show	"Billy the Kid" $14,500	"Madame Satan" $15,000	"Renegades" $14,000

KANSAS CITY

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
MAIN STREET High...$32,000 Low...8,000	"Check & Double Check" $31,000 (1st week) Vaude	"Check & Double Check" $16,300 (6 days) (2d week)	"Silver Horde" $17,200	"Cat Creeps" $19,200
LOEW'S MIDLAND High...$35,000 Low...9,300	"Up River" $9,300 (New Low)	"Scotland Yard" $11,200	"Way for Sailor" $12,600	"Remote Control" $13,300
PANTAGES High...$31,800 Low...5,000	"Extravagance" $8,700 Stage Show	"White Cargo" $13,300		"Sweethearts on Parade" $7,200
NEWMAN High...$33,000 Low...8,000	"Office Wife" $15,500	"Playboy of Paris" $12,700	"Feet First" $15,300	"Laughter" $14,300

TOPEKA

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
JAY HAWK High...$8,000 Low...2,800	"Soup to Nuts" and "Renegades" $5,900	"Scotland Yard" and "Heads Up" $6,500	"Santa Fe Trail" and "Love in Rough" $4,300	"Old English" and "Madame Satan" $5,100
NOVELTY High...$3,200 Low...700	"Good News" $2,100	"Woman Forgotten" $2,900	"Up River" $2,600	"Top Speed" $2,900

PROVIDENCE

	Nov. 1	Nov. 8	Nov. 15	Nov. 22
STATE High...$29,000 Low...14,000	"Billy the Kid" $22,000 Stage Show	"Way for Sailor" $19,600	"Remote Control" $18,000	"Lincoln" $18,000
MAJESTIC High...$16,500 Low...6,200	"Office Wife" $11,500	"Up River" $11,000	"Scarlet Pages" $11,200	"Old English" and "Maybe It's Love" $13,000

Pittsburgh Grosses

(Continued from page 8)

reported $5,000 for the second week of "Anybody's Woman."

A feature of the downtown film house situation now is that neither Stanley-Warner nor Fox are going in for "names." Mastbaum hasn't had a big stage attraction since the Marx Brothers and Fox has been without one since Fifi Dorsay.

Estimates for Last Week

Mastbaum (4,800; 35-50-75)—"Sunny" (FN). Sensational biz and best gross turned in this year at house; with aid of holiday $49,500, with no names on stage bill.

Stanley (3,700; 35-50-75)—"Half Shot at Sunrise" (Radio) (2d week). Around $18,000, which was okay for holdover, but not sensational considering general holiday boosting.

Keith's (1,800; 35-50-75)—"Feet First" (Par). In second week again crept over $20,000; best fortnight since Paramount took spot over.

Earle (2,000; 25-65)—"Last of the Lone Wolf" (Col). Good week at maybe $22,000; Frank Richardson made personal appearances.

Aldine (1,500; $1.50)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). In first full week got sensational $19,000, and ought to run through Christmas.

Boyd (2,400; 35-50-75)—"Mother's Cry" (FN). A definite flop despite holiday influx; $18,000 and taken out Saturday.

Fox (3,000; 35-50-75)—"Renegades" (Fox). Picture panned, but Thanksgiving spelled real profit; near $32,000; no names on stage bill.

Stanton (1,700; 35-65)—"Africa Speaks" (Col). Got $12,000, good enough for holdover.

Karlton (1,000; 50)—"Leathernecking" (Radio). Healthy and satisfactory, $6,000.

Arcadia (600; 50)—"Anybody's Woman" (Par). Second week resulted in a very good $5,000.

Denver Grosses

(Continued from page 9)

were the draw at the Denver. "Derelict" had no appeal.

Tabor had "Maybe It's Love." Fourth week Huffman has had the house and went to new low for that time, $9,000.

"Renegades" at the Aladdin tied for low with $6,000.

Estimates for Last Week

Huffman's Aladdin (1,500; 35-50-75)—"Renegades" (Fox). Poor at $6,000. New low.

Denver (Publix) (2,300; 25-35-60)—"Derelict" (Par). With stage show draw did well at $17,900.

Paramount (Publix) (2,000; 25-35-50)—"Tom Sawyer" (Par). Fair at $11,500.

Rialto (Publix) (1,046; 25-35-50)—"Santa Fe Trail" (Par). Average week at $4,600.

Huffman's Tabor (1,900; 25-35-50)—"Maybe It's Love" (WB). Good at $9,000. Tabor report for Nov. 19 gave new low at $1,600. Error. Should have been $6,500.

FROM COAST TO COAST* MILLIONS ARE RAVING A-BOUT "MOROCCO"!

Every seat sold now for next three weeks at two-a-day reserved-seat Grauman's Chinese Theatre, Hollywood!*

•

Third record-breaking week for "MOROCCO" at Rivoli Theatre, New York!

•

FILMDOM'S elite join fan army in lavishing praise on "MOROCCO" and Marlene Dietrich at gala West Coast opening. "Most brilliantly acted and directed production of the season and, with one or two exceptions, since advent of talking pictures. Cinemaland bows low to Marlene Dietrich. Cooper wins honors. Laurels piled on Von Sternberg," says Los Angeles Express.

"Dietrich captured Hollywood! 'MOROCCO' should be immense at the box office. Cooper gives finest performance of career," praises Los Angeles Daily News.

"MOROCCO" IS HITTING OTHER KEY POINTS NOW. THE REPORT IS THE SAME EVERYWHERE—"TREMENDOUS!"

Hail the New Wonder Star!

HAIL Josef von Sternberg's

"MOROCCO"

GARY COOPER—MARLENE DIETRICH—ADOLPHE MENJOU

PARAMOUNT—Hit Headquarters!

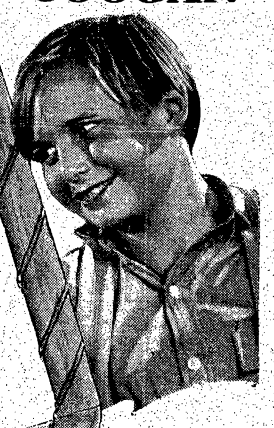
THE WHOLE INDUSTRY GETS A BIG THRILL OUT OF THIS!

Paramount assembled a great cast of great kids and made the finest possible production of Mark Twain's beloved "TOM SAWYER." A fine, big, clean motion picture without a divorce, speakeasy or gangster.

We take pleasure in announcing that, beyond doubt and based upon cold box office figures alone, "TOM SAWYER" IS A GLORIOUS SUCCESS!

Chicago wires: "'TOM SAWYER' CAUSED THE BIGGEST AND EARLIEST HOLDOUT IN THE HISTORY OF THE CHICAGO THEATRE. Solid line four abreast extending a full block to Wabash Ave."



Los Angeles wires: "WE CANNOT BEGIN TO ACCOMMODATE 'TOM SAWYER' MOBS. Finest comments and reactions we ever had to a motion picture."

For the good of your pocketbook . . . for the reclaiming of your juvenile patronage . . . for the glory of the picture business . . . play "TOM SAWYER" . . . get behind it . . . be happier than you've been for years!

IT GETS THE KIDS!
•
IT GETS THE ADULTS!
•
IT GETS THE COIN!

JACKIE COOGAN

MITZI GREEN
•
JUNIOR DURKIN

"Tom Sawyer"

PARAMOUNT'S

Joyous, Boyous, Resounding Hit!

Directed by John Cromwell

Paramount Pictures

Gov't Victory Starts More Talk in Chi.

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Decree of the U. S. Supreme Court has little effect upon the present situation in Chicago and the midwest, with 95% of the selling season completed.

Exchanges are again stating their recourse next year will be the demanding of 25% deposit on contracts. Since last summer the distributors have made the same statements, and even went into the opening of the season demanding such deposits.

Further conferences with the exhibitors on price and deals somehow slipped the deposit question farther and farther away, until finally the deposit idea was lost entirely in the scramble for biz among the exchanges.

Mostly Talk

Besides, exhibitor associations have gotten a new answer for the deposit demand. Now state that if the exchanges ask 25% down at time of signing, that the exhibitors are going to demand that the exchanges also place a similar amount in escrow.

Most of this stuff is just talk, as admitted by the calmer boys on the row. But it helps to keep the situation along film row from going asleep.

Marie Dressler & Wallace Beery
IN
"MIN AND BILL"
M-G-M PRODUCTION
Make-Up Artist George Westmore

Use MAX FACTOR'S MAKE-UP

A Make-Up with Max Factor's Preparations is applied quicker, smoother, thinner, and is an important aid to characterization.

Max Factor's PANCHROMATIC and TECHNICOLOR MAKE-UP for the Screen.

Max Factor's Theatrical Make-Up for the Stage.

•

At All Leading Drug Stores

Your inquiry on any make-up problem will receive immediate attention. No obligation.

Address: Special Service Make-Up Dept.

Max Factor Make-Up Studio
HOLLYWOOD

U A'S ENTENTE CORDIAL WITH INDIES ON COAST

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

United Artists will avoid building theatres against indies, who are now booking its pictures, but in towns, particularly Fox-West Coast strongsholds which Joseph M. Schenck plans invading, it is understood. These houses will either be swung into the UA chain through operating deals or they will get UA product on second run.

In most of the F-WC situations, United Artists figures it will need both a first and second run, with indies automatically becoming the latter with UA's own theatre first on all product.

All Fox-West Coast owns in this territory, except where UA was previously sold away from F-WC (such as Publix), have been closed by UA outside of Santa Maria, San Luis Obispo and Redlands. These three towns do not provide indie houses that can take the UA pictures.

In all cases deals with indies have been guarantee and percentage, with averages above split figure determined under contracts.

Pan Reopening Lights On Houses in Minn.

Minneapolis, Dec. 2.

Pantages reopened Thursday (20) with straight pictures at 25 cent matinees and 35 cents after 6:30, the lowest prices of any loop first run house, excepting the Publix 800-seat Aster which has the same scale. Opening feature was "Once a Gentleman." Nick Pierong is house manager.

Theatre had been closed since last summer. In previous seasons it always had used a vaud-film policy. Reopening leaves no loop theatre unlighted. Pierong has lined up the only available film product, Tiffany, Sono-Art and a few odds and ends of other producers still unsold or unplayed.

PUBLIX DARKENS HOUSE

Local Quincy, Ill., Biz Affected by Bank Failures

Quincy, Ill., Dec. 2.

Orpheum (Publix) is dark. Announced as closing for redecorating, with reopening for Christmas, not withstanding the house had been newly decorated before opening Labor Day.

Belief here is that on account of local bank failures Publix has deemed it expedient to keep one of its houses here dark until the times better.

Hold-Up Shooting

Minneapolis, Dec. 2.

Peter Hofmann, engineer at the Southern theatre, an uptown house, was critically wounded when he inadvertently stepped up to the box office as it was being held up by a bandit. Surprised at the interruption, the gunman fired a shot into the 55-year-old employee's abdomen and fled out a side exit.

The attempted hold-up occurred at 8:30 p. m., when the theatre was crowded, but the audience and E. J. Tunstall, the owner, in his office upstairs, were unaware.

WB's New 3 East

Warners are reported set to start building three new houses in the east, Hackensack, N. J., Perth Amboy, N. J., and Wilkensburg, Pa.

Included in the plans are schemes for redecorating and renovating several Warner theatres with work ready to begin at the Warner, Memphis and the Cinema, Cleveland. Latter was recently taken over by Wall, and is to be renamed the Lido when reopened.

Frisco Par's Benefit

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

Herman Wobber, down here for opening of "Morocco" at Chinese, states the picture is opening in San Francisco for $5 at the Paramount, probably Dec. 8, in a local charity plan.

Following that "Morocco" goes into regular run at California.

WB Will Battle Publix In N. E. Pennsylvania

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 2.

Warners is going to give battle to Publix in the latter's recently acquired field in northeastern Pennsylvania. Representatives of WB have been here looking over possible theatre sites in company with local real estate agents.

Understood that Warners is certain to build either here or in Wilkes-Barre. Par has bought none of the Warner pictures since taking over the Comerford string a few months ago and its $23,000 lease on the Masonic temple here was taken to prevent Warners from getting the house, it is said.

1930 Net Up

(Continued from page 5)

company goes over its 1929 net earnings for nearly $3,000,000. Last year it showed $15,545,000.

No figures estimated for Universal, and Pathe is not included. These and Warner Bros. are the only companies to show decreased earnings, although WB reached $7,075,000 profit. It is 50% what the company earned in 1929, $14,515,000.

The biggest comparable gain will be made by R-K-O in 1930, which just about doubles its 1929 figures. This company is jumping from $1,670,000 in 1929 to an estimated $4,000,000 in 1930.

The Paramount figure includes earnings of all subsidiaries and allied companies, including the Publix Theatres.

Loew's stands equally high for gain in earnings with Paramount, showing increase of nearly $3,000,000 in net. This is inclusive of Metro earnings, which went from $11,757,000 in 1929 to $14,600,000 in 1930, figured for a fiscal year to August 31.

Fox's estimated gain is slightly above $500,000 for 1930. Its 1929 earnings were $9,470,000. For 1930 they indicate $10,000,000, according to semi-official estimates.

Col. Pictures Up 25%

Columbia will make a 25% gain for 1930, exceeding its 1929 mark by around $250,000 on present bases.

While on the comparative angle all the earnings are larger they don't come that way on a per share basis for all, owing to certain of the companies having increased their capitalization. This is true of Paramount, Fox and R-K-O.

Universal is given no estimate because its last balance sheet showed a loss. That company, however, is expected to gain heavily in a comparative way this year.

Comparative figures, however, get a twist because not all the companies operate over the same fiscal year periods. Fox, Paramount, Columbia and R-K-O end on the calendar year. Loew's and W. B. on Aug. 31 and Universal, Nov. 1.

Financial observers, while admitting these figures are below their estimates at the beginning of 1930, when indications were for even bigger earnings, nevertheless take the view as expressed by the bankers that the film industry shows the least variance of earning power, and in general is in a better position than most other industries, including utilities.

On the comparative earning basis the leading film stocks are also selling at better figures and show a smaller decline than most other groups of listed stocks.

The financial observers take the view that when product was above average profits were high and declined in proportion to inferiority of product, thus disposing of the general alibi of "depression" as an explanation of all decline in theatre attendance.

This they point occurred to Loew's when in the company's last quarter they put out Metro's four big pictures, "The Big House," "Divorcee," "Let Us Be Gay" and "Caught Short." They were released in the summer months, the third and weakest quarter of the picture business year, but made up for almost 21% of Loew's annual profit, or around $3,000,000. Loew's fiscal year ends Aug. 31.

The comparative table of 1929 earnings, and the estimated earnings for 1930 follows:

	1929.	1930.
Fox	$9,470,000	$10,000,000
Loew's	11,757,000	14,600,000
Paramount	15,545,000	18,000,000
R-K-O	1,670,000	4,000,000
Warner Bros.	14,515,000	7,075,000
Columbia	1,000,000	1,250,000
Totals	$54,448,000	$54,925,000

Picture Possibilities

"This Is New York"—Unfavorable

"THIS IS NEW YORK" (Hopkins production by Robt. Sherwood, Plymouth).

Couldn't be done. Satire against American inland institutions and glorifies New York. Poison to the hinter land. Rush.

"First Night"—Unfavorable.

"FIRST NIGHT" (Mystery drama, Richard Herndon, Eltinge).

Good enough idea, clearing a wrongfully convicted youth of murder. Otherwise is along familiar lines of this type play. Ibee.

"Scarlet Sister Mary"—Unfavorable

"SCARLET SISTER MARY" (Drama, Lee Shubert, Ethel Barrymore).

A play of poor Southern Negroes with all evidence of truth as to the characters, but nothing for the screen. Ibee.

"Art and Mrs. Bottle"—Unfavorable

"ART AND MRS. BOTTLE" (Comedy, McGowan and Reed, Elliott).

Also known as "The Return of the Puritan." Would take painfully detailed doctoring to make this apt picture stuff, although as reading matter it's appealing.

"Schoolgirl"—Unfavorable

"SCHOOLGIRL" (Comedy Drama, Henry B. Forbes, Ritz).

Treats of life in private schools for girls and touches on a taboo topic. However, one of the leading film producers is reported having bought the film rights. For what? Ibee.

"The Vinegar Tree"—Unfavorable

"THE VINEGAR TREE" (Farce, Wiman, Playhouse).

Too sophisticated and no action.

"An Affair of State"—Possible

"AN AFFAIR OF STATE" (Comedy, Benjamin David, Broadhurst).

An amusing story of how a trick kingdom was provided with an heir. Could be used for the screen but would need dialog brightening and a certain toning down for censors. Ibee.

"Tonight or Never"—Favorable

"TONIGHT OR NEVER" (Comedy, David Belasco, Belasco).

Story cannot be put on screen as is, but title should make it worth something for pictures. Concerns an opera prima donna and there have been two or three pictures of the type lately. Ibee.

"Oh Promise Me"—Unfavorable

"OH PROMISE ME" (Farce, Sam H. Harris, Morosco).

A laugh show. Farce with a topic and content too broad for pictures. Ibee.

"A Kiss of Importance"—Unfavorable

"A KISS OF IMPORTANCE" (Comedy, Arch Selwyn, Fulton).

Not much here for a picture. Done in Paris as "Monsiuer de St. Obin." Ibee.

FOREMOST FILM WRITERS AND DIALOGICIANS

Still Writing Together
Grover Jones
and
William Slavens McNutt
FOR PARAMOUNT

COURTENAY TERRETT
WRITING FOR FOX

CYRUS WOOD
Originals—Adaptations—Dialogue
R-K-O

PERCY HEATH
WRITES
FOR
PARAMOUNT

RALPH SPENCE
R-K-O

CORNELL WOOLRICH
WRITING FOR
PARAMOUNT

ADAPTATIONS ORIGINALS
HOWARD J. GREEN
(CONTRACT TO FOX)
DIALOGUE CONTINUITIES

SAM SPEWACK
WRITING FOR
PARAMOUNT

ETHEL DOHERTY
PARAMOUNT

LOUISE LONG
PARAMOUNT

HORACE JACKSON
WRITING FOR
PATHE

JOHN MEEHAN
"THE LADY LIES"
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Pictures as an advertising medium—and the various problems arising from that—will be talked over at a conference in the Hotel Roosevelt, New York, Jan. 28-30. The confab has been arranged by the Screen Advertisers' Association.

OPPOSISH FIGHT WITH SCALE CUTS IN IND.

Indianapolis, Dec. 2.

Battle between the Indiana, Skouras-Publix presentation house and the Lyric, vaudeville spot playing R-K-O vaudeville, is more heated.

The Lyric held its patronage despite the extremely cold weather and the fact that the Indiana advertised their Publix presentation as "Glorified Vaudeville."

In their fight to capture the coin from the Lyric the Skouras-Publix crowd advertised Christmas special books and placed them on sale at Haag's cut rate drug stores. A $5 book of theatre tickets good at the Indiana, Circle and Ohio, is obtainable at $4.19, and $2.50 books for $2.19. Skouras boys dropped a man from the art staff and cut out all specialty advertising except downtown garbage can to enable them to boost lineage in the dailies and stay within the budget. The Lyric retaliated by plastering the town with 2,000 posters, heralding the Lyric as the "only R-K-O vaudeville house in city."

Ohio, second run Publix house, just around the corner from the Lyric, booked "The Santa Fe Trail" as a first-run in Indianapolis and announced cut in prices to meet competition. New prices are 15c until 1 p. m. and 25c from 1 until closing, with 10c for children any time. Formerly the top was 35c. Opening time was moved up to 8:15 a. m.

AL EVANS
PUBLIX
Chicago Theatre, Chicago
Indefinitely

HEALTHFUL
Kooler-Aire
NATURE'S REFRIGERATION
EJECTS ALL FOUL AIR
KOOLER-AIRE ENGINEERING CORP.
1916 Paramount Bldg., New York

Miss Jillian Sande
Featured London Ingenue
FOX FILM CORP.
Direction JENIE JACOBS

COSTUMES FOR HIRE
PRODUCTIONS
EXPLOITATIONS PRESENTATIONS
BROOKS COSTUMES
143 W. 40 ST. N.Y.C.

For lease outright or on a percentage basis a theatre of over two thousand seats in a town of over 175,000 near New York. Box 200, Variety, N. Y.

BROOKER INDICTED

Mgr. Publix Stamford Wanted in Bronx on Misappropriation Charge

Stamford, Conn., Dec. 2.

William Brooker, manager of the Publix Stamford was held for New York police on a charge of grand larceny. Brooker had been sought since disappearing from his New York home last April. He had been indicted in the Bronx on a charge of misappropriating $600 in a real estate transaction.

Brooker has been here since July. He waived extradition and was returned to New York.

EXPLOITATION

(Continued from page 21)

son's Bay department store to model three days a week. She delivered talk on service to employees.

Chris Charlton, English magician, did two morning shows at Eaton's department store for the children in toyland; hit.

Waugh landed the front page of The Open Bookshelf." Had his entire show go on the air over CKY.

R-K-O Capitol runs a special opportunity night every Wednesday, following the regular show, in which local talent is given a chance. The first prize gets a week's engagement at the R-K-O Winnipeg with salary.

"Thirst's" Brewery Tieup

Los Angeles.

The R-K-O tied up with a local brewery on "See America Thirst" (U). Trucks delivering kegs of beer (near) carry banners with the title.

Free Radio Sets for Hospitals

Oklahoma City

Warner Bros.-Brunswick Radio Co. had large displays of Brunswick radio sets in the Midwest, Orpheum, Liberty, Empress and Folly theatres. Free tickets handed patrons and the charitable institution receiving largest number of votes received a Brunswick set.

"Lucky Circle" Tie-up

Washington.

Jimmy Lundy, press agent for Loew's planted a stunt with the "Washington Herald" that insures both theatres a three column cut daily for an indefinite period. It's the "Lucky Circle" idea. Newspaper photographer takes random shots on Washington's busy streets. Girl whose picture is circled wins passes to theatre.

Eight Pages for $75

Houston.

Loew's State landed an eight-page section on "Way for a Sailor." The theatre did not buy display space in this section—their total expenditure being $75 for cuts. Every ad on the page mentioned the picture with one quarter of each page used for publicity.

Right Spot for Goodwill

Winston-Salem, N. C.

Under-privileged children by the score saw Jackie Coogan in "Tom Sawyer" at the Carolina for two days through an arrangement between Manager U. K. Rice and the local Kiwanis club.

Adults paid one admission to theatre and under-privileged kids were admitted free. Rice said the exploitation sold the picture and the publicity derived gave the theatre plenty of goodwill.

O'Donnell Handling Fla. District

New Orleans, Dec. 2.

Bob O'Donnell has been placed in charge of the Florida division for Publix, with headquarters in Atlanta.

Bill Jenkins, formerly in the Publix realty division, replaces O'Donnell as divisional director of the Saenger string.

CHEMIN DE PARADIS

(Continued from page 15)

comedy are immediately followed by sequences switching to musical revue that gives an unusual effect here. The result is helped by the excellent music. Only operetta sequence which could have been suppressed to advantage is the one which brings back the whole cast, after the hero and heroine have made up their minds to marry. The film is then really finished, resulting in audiences walking.

Acting fair. Sound good. Direction excellent. One big scene shows workmen of the gas factory carrying their wares in a fashion which is both a parade and a ballet. It is typically Germanic in its humor, but irresistibly funny and treated with considerable ability as to tempo.

Film draws many laughs and appears due for business. Maxi.

JUST LIKE HEAVEN

Tiffany production and release. Directed by R. William Neill. Anita Louise, David Newell and Yola D'Avril featured. In cast: Gaston Glass, Thomas Jefferson, Mathilde Comont, Albert Roccardi, Torben Meyer, Emil Chautard. Story by Adele Buffington. At Loew's New York, one day, November 25, half double bill. Running time, 65 minutes.

Draggy story of the Paris Latin quarter, and the weaker half of a twin bill here. Light comedy moments few and far between. Someone had "Seventh Heaven" in mind when this story was framed. Perhaps it's one of Tiff's made for those indie contracts.

Plot centers around Tobey (Newell), Paris balloon vendor and organ grinder, and Mimi (Louise), ballet dancer, with a traveling dog circus. Just a jumbled affair with each of the leads acting like a couple of moonstruck kids. In fact, everyone in this flicker acts as if love for the blonde Louise gave them pains in the stomach.

Photography of Paris street scene nicely done, but the hit or miss direction ruined any chances of this carbon copy of "Seventh Heaven," silent screen success of three years ago.

MEN WITHOUT LAW

Columbia production and release. Starring Buck Jones. Directed by Louis King. Story by Lew Sellers; adapted by Dorothy Howell. In cast: Tommy Carr, Harry Woods, Fred Burns, Fred Kelly, Carmelita Geraghty, Lydia Knott, Victor Sarno. At Loew's New York, one day, November 25, half double bill. Running time, 58 minutes.

Nice westerner for the daily grinds that gets off to a swift start and holds enough action to satisfy the kids as well as the adult followers of horse operas.

In this one Buck Jones, as usual, does plenty of the usual, turning in a performance that is high standard of its kind.

Opening with a war sequence the story shifts quickly to Arizona. Buck, having returned home from the war, finds that his younger brother has fallen into the hands of a gang of outlaws. Then the usual.

Carmelita Geraghty is opposite Jones, with romancing held down. Most of the footage is allotted to lively action.

Louis King's direction is okay.

Das Gestohlene Gesicht

("THE STOLEN FACE")
(GERMAN MADE)
(All Dialog)

Berlin, Nov. 22.

Ufa production and release. Directed by Erich Schmidt and Philipp L. Mayring. Production management: Bruno Duday. Manuscript after an idea by J. Bachrach, by Philipp L. Mayring and J. Von Cube. Photography: Eugen Schuftan and Werner Rohne. Sound: Walter Tjaden. Music: Hans May. Recorded on Klangfilm. Cast: Hans Otto, Edith Edwards, Friedl Haerlin, Max Adalbert, Hermann Blass, Frigga Braut, Paul Henckels, Fritz Odemar, Olivia Fried, Ernst Proeckl, Ferdinand Hart. Running time, 86 mins. At U. T., Kurfurstendamm, Berlin.

A witty and cleverly done detective picture with the well known confusions, but somehow interesting and original. Chief value lays in the manuscript. Ufa has seen fit to call upon quite new authors for this work. Picture has been quite a success. As far as the direction by Erich Schmidt and Philipp L. Mayring goes, it cannot even be called average. In general, the technique is rather primitive. The camera is too motionless. Second fault is the appearance of the two main actresses, Edith Edwards and Friedl Haerlin.

Most of the credit belongs to the authors, Philipp L. Mayring and J. Von Cube. Magnus.

Children of Chance

(All Dialog)
(ENGLISH MADE)

London, Nov. 21.

First National Pathe quota release. British International production. Directed by Alexander Esway. In cast: Elisa Landi, Mabel Poulton, John Stuart, John Longden. Length 7,279 feet. Censor's Certificate "A." Running time 75 mins. approx. Reviewed Piccadilly theatre, London, Nov. 20.

One of those films just useless on the grounds of a preposterous story. Production, as far as possible, is average. Some of the dialog should appeal, in the sticks here and the acting is in keeping with the story.

Yarn tells the good old line about the virtuous girl who looks like a famous actress. After the usual confusion, with actress doing a flit to Berlin with stolen jewels, the girl gets a star part under the actress' name, falls in love with other woman's admirer, has a row with other woman's jailbird husband, is arrested as the other woman after the discovery of the robbery, proves her real identity, and lives happily ever after in the manly arms of the loving swain.

Just too bad.

Unfair to judge Esway's direction on a story like that. As it stands it falls to improve on the yarn at all.

Elisa Landi, playing the role of a beautiful actress, reminded us how fantastic the story was. It now remains to be seen what Hollywood can do with this girl. Mabel Poulton evidently had a struggle with a weight machine before the production. John Stuart and John Longden shared the camera-consensus of the rest of the cast.

Okay this side for the grinds, where they just love this sort of thing. Chap.

LA LETTRE

("THE LETTER")
(French Dialog)

Adapted in French by Roger Ferdinand from W. S. Maughan's play. Made in Paramount's Joinville studios, using shots from American original. Recorded by W. E. Directed by Louis Mercanton. Running time, 70 min.

Leslie Bennett.....Marcelle Romee
Phillipp Bennett.....Gabriel Gabrio
Mr. Joyce.....Paul Capellani
George Nelson.....Andre Roanne
Li-Ti.....Princesse Hoang Thi The

This is the sort of film that French producers objected to when trying to outlaw Paramount studios as using facilities beyond theirs, as represented by the American sequences of the picture. Only dialog studio scenes have been made in Joinville, all exteriors being American made. Also, what constitutes the real kick in the film from the French audience's point of view, i. e., is the fight between the Siamese and the mongoose, taken from an UFA short. There is a tremendous difference between sequences from the American production and the local mades. Direction by Mercanton is fair, as also the Joinville photography. Film is just a programmer owing to two facts: First, with the exception of Gabriel Gabrio, all the principals in this version are bad, overacting and appearing both camera and mike conscious; in addition the sound is not so good. Another thing which reacts adversely against the film with French audiences is that the latter consider the Chinese as honest, and more or less resent seeing them represented as blackmailers. It's good thing racial prejudices do not react similarly the world over.

Hollywood Bulletin

(Continued from page 4)

Fox's rep. in Spain, came out with Clayton Sheehan recently.

Erlanger's will put on a Coast production of "Lost Sheep" at the Columbia, Frisco, Dec. 27. Show comes here to the Biltmore, Jan. 17. May Beatty and Hyrrel Davis have leads.

William Wyler and Paul Sloan, directors, back in Hollywood after sojourning in Europe.

Pantages theatre is asking for a re-zoning classification of the house to first run. It was turned down last summer.

Shift in First National's story department moves Manny Wolf to C. Graham Baker's office. Sanford Greenberger is here from New York to assume charge of story department.

First National plans to make a newspaper story with Richard Barthelmess ahead of Howard Hughes' "Front Page." F. N. generally released "Dawn Patrol" before Hughes' "Hell's Angels." Par. will also come out with the Bancroft press yarn prior to "Front Page."

New writers at F. N. are Robert Presnell and Edward T. Lowe.

Pathe engaged Spencer Charters, legit, who was in both stage and screen "Whoopee."

Esther Muir goes to Metro in "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath." This will be the legit girl's first try in pictures.

Lupita Tovar is staying over in Mexico until after the holidays. Universal player, making personal appearances, will have a new contract when she gets back.

Oscar S. Oldknow and J. J. Sullivan of Fox West Coast are on a western hoss tour that will take them as far as Kansas City. Execs will also look over the indie strings which might be taken in under Fox-WC's expansion plan.

GEORGE GIVOT
Late Feature of
Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book"

THIS WEEK (NOV. 28)
Publix TIVOLI, Chicago
LAST WEEK PARADISE, CHI.

BOB ERNER AND RUTH FISHER
"THE GOOFY HOOFERS"
PUBLIX THEATRES, SEASON 1927-28-29-30
PARAMOUNT, BROOKLYN
(Week Nov. 28)
FRANK CAMBRIA'S
"ON WITH THE DANCE"
Unit
WM. MORRIS AGENCY
MAX TURNER
NAT KALCHEIM

BANG!

Held over 2nd week, Capitol, N.Y. 3rd week Frisco. 2nd week Wash. Breaking records. Spreading box-office cheer!

3rd week Stillman, Cleveland. 9th week Astor, N. Y. at $2. Every day brings added reports of this amazing picture clicking at box-offices!

She's back in silks and satins in a high-powered modern drama that's going to be box-office "Inspiration." Twice as big as "Romance."

"Excellent drama. Real entertainment," says M.P. News. "It fairly shouts box-office," says Hollywood Reporter. Based on "Within the Law." Sure-fire!

Audience rolled off chairs in Hollywood preview. Better than "Caught Short" to bring 'em in and wow them! Every picture makes Marie Dressler more popular!

Something stirring on the Western Front where Hollywood is buzzing about the greatest $2 roadshow since talkies began. Watch the "New Moon" rise!

THE FIREWORKS in this industry are always M-G-M!

Year in and year out, when the final score is in, Leo unfailingly leads the entire field. He's away up front now on a typical M-G-M box-office rampage. Depend on

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER

UNIVERSAL DOES IT AGAIN!

With Two New Screen
Sensations!

The Affairs of a Master Lover!

The Boudoir Diplomat

With Betty Compson, Ian Keith, Mary Duncan and Jeanette Loff. A MAURICE STERNBERG production.

Motion Picture News
November 29, 1930

A Wallop

Hollywood—Carrying a punch approximating a sock in the jaw, Universal's "Free Love" is a picture which should cause lots of talk—to the immense benefit of the box-office. It's a well directed and clever problem drama capably acted, with Conrad Nagel and Genevieve Tobin as the leads.
GRANT

The Whole World Soon
Will Be Talking About
"FREE LOVE"

Presented by Carl Laemmle
Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr.

UNIVERSAL WINS 3 FIRST PLACES IN MOTION PICTURE ACADEMY AWARDS

Coast Theatres Battling Off Swarm Of Gross-Cutting Pass Chiselers

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

Pass chiselers out here, making up an army equal to that of half a dozen other large cities and taking in thousands in picture production, are going to get the axe from the theatre operators in this section.

Fox-West Coast and Publix are leading the way in a crusade against the pass evil, which it is frankly admitted in inner operating councils must come as one means of offsetting indifferent business.

Along with this admission is the claim that theatre box offices are suffering more than noticeable from the surface through a staggering list of "dead-heads" who should be paying for seats even if connected in some way with show business or studios.

"Rubber Stamps" Out

F-WC has killed off all "rubber-stamp" passes handed out by the Harold B. Franklin regime and effective Jan. 1, will put the clamps down harder. New pass form will be a coupon book good for only six months, limiting holders to the bone.

Where previous card passes permitted holders to crash F-WC houses as many times a week as desired, new ones will be good for only one house once weekly. Also, number of people that can ride on it will be limited to two, and only one out of four theatres notated can be picked.

Lately Publix has begun kicking out passes in an effort to cut down what is called the most outlandish pass list ever known. This move was started independent of New York, which now has taken cognizance of the heavy "dead-head" list out here and in future will o. k. annuals for this and other cities.

"Studios Should Pay"

Coast operators who have run theatres in other sections of the country say that service charge on passes usually runs to about 90% of total but that around L. A. it's the opposite.

While theatres in and around L. A. have been o. k'ing free ducats for production people, lately the feeling has grown that these people should pay their way in and thus help support theatres out here.

Besides studios, with hundreds of Annie Oakleys going in that direction, all papers, including dailies, trades, fan mags and miscellaneous chatterers chiseling their way into theatres, are getting passes. Hundreds more of the swollen pass list go to cops, one operator saying "at least 300 cops have claimed they're on this beat."

Free Legit

Legit houses also have their troubles, everyone from pictures feeling entitled to free cardboards.

Until lately, especially with Publix and despite that orders from New York have existed for some time on pass lists, picture theatres have been afraid to cut down heavily for fear the "spongers" would not be given the same cold shoulder from the opposition.

Woman's Screams Prevent Hold-Up

Reading, Pa., Dec. 2.

Mrs. Bessie Van Luvanee, ticket seller at the Lansdale, Pa., theatre, prevented a robbery by screaming until manager Edward F. Burrow and other employees came to her rescue, when a holdup man stuck a pistol into the screen at the box office.

He demanded the money she was counting. It was late at night and a holdup looked easy. Without waiting for the money the bandit fled, escaping in the darkness.

Earl Crabb Waiting Result Franklin's Plans

Seattle, Dec. 2.

Bob Bender now in full charge for Fox-West Coast in the Northwest division, succeeding Earl Crabb. Bob formerly manager here for Laemmle's personal exploitation house, the Columbia (now John Danz second run grind) and recently roaming missionary for Oscar Oldknow.

Crabb has opened offices in Skinner building, across from West Coast offices. He recently built home in Seattle and rumor says he will stay here, with some talk regarding H. B. Franklin's plans.

Bender formerly managed the Fox theatre in Brooklyn.

Family Affair

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Avalon, 650-seat house here, provides the wherewithal for three brothers, David, Milton and Oscar Brotman to continue their studies in college.

David, 24, has been managing theatres since he was 15 and was once the youngest manager in the country. He is now studying medicine at Northwestern.

Milton, 20, and Oscar, 18, are assistant manager and chief usher, respectively.

One regret of the boys is that they didn't learn to be projectionists, so they could hold the best job of all.

RACINE STRIKE, HOUSES DARK

Racine, Wis., Dec. 2.

Refusing a 20 percent cut in downtown houses and a 7½ percent reduction in neighborhoods, picture operators walked out of eight local houses, leaving the houses dark Sunday (30). This action throws more than 120 other theatre employes out of work.

Operators reported willing to accept 5 percent cut in neighs but will not lower downtown.

The union scale for operators now runs about $57 to $62 weekly.

With Racine theatres dark, many local picture fans attended Milwaukee shows.

Theatre Bombers Suspects Held by Police at Akron

Akron, O., Dec. 2.

Four men are held by police here in connection with the bombing last week of two Akron film theatres; People's, with front being demolished, and Spicer, where the roof was ripped open.

Investigation disclosed a labor dispute. It is understood some of the neighborhood theatres, such as those attacked, have refused to agree to a new wage scale demanded at the installation of sound-producing apparatus on claims the grosses do not permit.

Several neighborhood theatres were made the target of bombs last year.

Radio's Dec. Sales Drive

Under the direction of Lee Marcus, Jerry Safron and Cleve Adams, Radio Pictures has started a drive to boost sales. Drive will continue until Jan. 1.

Charles Rosenswelg, Radio sales manager, is now eastbound. He is stopping off at the principal exchange cities.

E. V. Richards Building Up Own Circuit Under New Publix Contract

New Orleans, Dec. 2.

E. V. Richards is reported about to build up a circuit of his own theatres in this southern territory. It is in pursuance of a modification in his contract with Paramount-Publix, from report, with Richards remaining as expansion head of Paramount, south.

The modification is reported having been made by Par in New York upon Richards' suggestion of a full release of his agreement, which calls for a salary of $70,000 annually. Upon Par's counter that Richards remain with it, Richards is said to have cut down his yearly salary in view of the new and liberal arrangement.

Should the contemplated Richards circuit reach any proportions, Richards will naturally be obligated to first submit the string to Paramount for purchase if intending to sell at any time in the future.

Organizing

The understanding in part between Richards and Par is, from report, that Richards will not establish any house of his own in a town where there is a Publix theatre, with Richards' own section including all of the south to Arizona.

Julian Saenger, William Guerringer and others of the former Saenger, now Publix chain, with which Richards is attached, will again become circuit operators with Richards, it is believed, in his newest venture. Saenger's brother has a string of theatres in very small towns hereabouts, to the number of 25 or so, but Richards, it is said, is going into spots of more importance.

Frisco Musicians Reject Mort Singer's Proposal

San Francisco, Dec. 2.

Mass meeting of Musicians' Union held to consider proposition offered by Mort Singer on behalf of R-K-O, Fox West Coast and Publix houses here, rejected last week.

Singer has been in charge of the negotiations with theatrical union officials in an effort to arrive at an amicable basis for new contract. The old agreements expired last September and as yet have not been renewed.

Singer's proposition applying to Musicians' Union agreed to the hiring of 100 men among the houses of the three circuits in the San Francisco bay region. These men to be used only in houses that had stage shows.

All houses having sound pictures alone to use no musicians. He further stipulated that any houses that might change policy and eliminate shows and go to sound only would be entitled to dispense with musicians without notice.

Heretofore the Musicians' Union agreement called for employment of 142 men in the same houses in which Singer wants to use 100.

In rejecting the proposal the musicians en masse voted to authorize Al Greenbaum, their secretary, to negotiate further in the matter. They also authorized Greenbaum to go to New York to confer with Joe Weber, president A. F. of M., regarding the proposal of the joint circuits. Greenbaum left for the east Saturday.

Claim 32 Conn. Houses Closed Because of Tax

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 2.

Members of the Conn. M. P. T. O. A., fighting against the theatre tax will petition the General Assembly for relief. Fight started six years ago. Daily tax is now from 50 cents to $12 per house.

Some 32 theatres are now dark, and eight have folded during the past year because of the tax. Large portion of these houses were operated by local druggists, or keepers of general stores in small towns, showing three or four nights a week.

Despite O.K. Sunday Vote Kans. Has Labor Laws

Wichita, Kan., Dec. 2.

An injunction suit was filed here last week by County Attorney W. J. Wertz against all operators of Sunday picture shows.

Wertz received instructions from Attorney General W. A. Smith, Topeka, that even under the Wichita ordinance, recently approved by voters, Sunday shows would be in violation of the state labor law and that Wertz should proceed with court action.

5th YEAR
BENNY MEROFF

ORIENTAL—CHICAGO
INDEFINITELY

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT
JOHN W. GREEN
(COMPOSER AND ARRANGER)
PARAMOUNT-PUBLIX CORPORATION
"BODY AND SOUL" "I'M YOURS"
GUEST ARTIST WITH LEO REISMAN
Now PARAMOUNT, New York
(INDEFINITELY)

THANKS TO MY PUBLIX
HENRI A. KEATES
(ORIGINATOR OF COMMUNITY SINGING)
NOW GOING INTO MY 6TH YEAR WITH PUBLIX BALABAN & KATZ
Indefinitely ORIENTAL, Chicago

5% Drop in Theatre Construction for '30-Built 416 Houses in 10 Mons.

A five per cent. decrease in theatre building is noted for 1930 as against 1929. This is for houses actually completed. The estimated number of new theatres to be ready by Jan. 1, 1931, is figured at around 425. For 1929 it was 444.

The decrease in construction costs is estimated to range around 20%, laid to the general economic depression which halted a boom in theatre building begun early in 1930 but lopping off towards the close. New houses built principally add to the rosters of the major circuits, few independents going in for construction although this has not been definitely identified or assayed.

Strangely enough as construction activity dove, cost figures began to go up. This is shown by the fact that for the 10 months ending Oct. 31, there were 416 theatres completed at a cost of $26,839,000. For a similar period in 1929, 398 houses cost an estimated $27,360,400.

Construction decreasing and costs climbing is on the surface coverage. That's from a comparative mathematical view showing the same figures to indicate correlative decreases and increases. Thus while showing a building increase for the 10 months of 5% the costs show a 5% loss over the same period, but the full year will notate a 5% loss on building.

For 1929 the picture business built 444 houses at an estimated cost of $30,467,000. For 1930 there will be around 425 theatres costing the same amount or thereabouts. That's the two months' difference.

There was increased building activity in New England, New York, New Jersey, the middle Atlantic states, Pennsylvania district and the southeast. Where decreased building occurred has been in Texas, the northwest and midwest.

Theatres are generally designed from 1,500 to 3,000 seats. The compact report follows:

Jan. 1 to Oct. 31, 1930

	Theatres	Valuation
New England	44	$1,891,900
N. Y. and N. J.	92	9,015,900
Middle Atlantic	46	3,557,900
Pennsylvania District	53	530,900
Middle West	103	5,554,200
Northwest	12	310,200
Southeast	68	1,302,900
Texas	28	917,100
	416	$26,839,000

Jack Muldoon, former manager at the Fox, Leonia, N. J., now in same capacity at Savoy, Brooklyn.

Distribs Prefer to Be Own Judges Over All Customers' Credit

Chicago, Dec. 2.

With the credit committee ratings kicked out by the high tribunal of this country, the boys along the row are figuring means of getting the effect without butting against the court decree.

Two ideas are favored locally. First is the establishment of a credit bureau to furnish exchanges with preferred listing. Exhibs on preferred list get their contracts without deposits, while those not mentioned are tacitly assumed to be poor risks.

Second is the individual credit bureau for each exchange. This latter has been the real system in the past, with few of the exchanges refusing to do business with even recognized poor risk exhibitors.

Most of the exchange managers here, however, are satisfied that they can operate without any central bureau telling them which exhib is good and which one is not. They feel that they are well enough acquainted with the local situations to make their own credit analyses.

ST LOUIS SETTLED; STAGE SHOWS REOPEN

St. Louis, Dec. 2.

With the musicians' labor trouble with the local theatres settled, all houses are resuming their former stage shows.

The Ambassador, Publix-Skouras, was the first, starting Thanksgiving.

With the St. Louis labor situation settled, it cleans up all of the major stands involved in union differencies, mostly with musicians, that started around Labor Day, except in San Francisco.

Publix Coast Staff Switches

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

Ed Smith, Publix Coast division manager, is transferring Al G. Warschauer, in charge of advertising and publicity here, to San Francisco.

Gene Fox, now in 'Frisco, comes to Los Angeles.

WANTED

POSTER SHOP SUPERVISOR

Need A1 Poster Artist who can turn out one theatre front a week, besides supervising shop of de luxe circuit. Union.

Send Letter Detailing Full Experience—Salary $90

Box 500, Variety, New York

OPERATORS SUSPECTED

Two Arrested in Bomb Explosion at Hot Springs—Girls With Them

Galveston, Dec. 2.

Police at Hot Springs, Ark., arrested two picture projectionists and two girls, following the explosion of phosphorus bombs in two theatres operated by Sidney M. Nutt at Hot Springs. Nutt broke with union projectionists several months ago and has been employing non-union workers.

Two policement were burned when one of the bombs exploded as they were examining it. Audiences left the theatres in an orderly manner. The projectionists held on suspicion gave their names as Cecil Williams and Smyer Pyner. The girls accompanying them, Christine Halsell and Christine Myers, both 18, were questioned.

RACKETING IN "GOOD WILL" CONTESTS

Exhibs Advised to Investigate Before Connecting With Unknowns

Exhibs using store and merchandise plugs as trade and interest builders for their theatres had better investigate the contest promoters' standing and background before falling. Good returns lately have directed the attention of numerous racketeers throughout the country to theatre soft spots and they are operating profitably in many localities.

The high pressure salesmen at the outset apparently are working a simple and harmless give-away stunt. They offer the usual radio, electric ice box or low priced automobile free to the theatre as the prize. Theatres are sold on the racketeers' description of local goodwill to be created by the contests.

Theatres' only obligation to the promoters is to okay and endorse them in the neighborhood.

Boys then go to work on coupon sales. In two or three days the dealers will cart away the auto, radio or other article offered as prize. The racket boys had merely given the dealer a rubber check as deposit.

Exhib is left holding the bag two ways as he must go through with the raffle or return the money already paid for chances, and lose the ticket money the promoters copped.

Two gents who have been fairly successful at the racket in the east have yet to be apprehended.

Louisiana's Star Burned

Louisiana, Mo., Dec. 2.

Fire of unknown origin almost completely destroyed the Star, belonging to W. A. Boyd.

Several business places beside the theatre also burned in $50,000 blaze.

West Texas' Small Towns Hard Hit By Bad Roads, Drought and Times

Galveston, Dec. 2.

Hard roads and the drouth of the past summer, combined with the w. k. gen. depression, has made things hard on the small town picture theatres of Texas, particularly West Texas.

More than 60 small town theatres have closed and the end is declared to be far from sight. Before the finish it is conservatively estimated that the number of picture houses in Texas will be reduced by one-third as compared to 1928.

The condition is due to a variety of causes with hard surfaced roads heading the list. Highway improvement is forging ahead in Texas, concrete roads reaching out onto the prairies and into the backwoods, enabling residents of the small country towns to patronize the picture shows in the larger places.

Ranchers who used to ride 25 miles on horseback to attend dances think nothing of taking their girls 50 or more miles for an evening at a picture show. The larger towns get the pictures several weeks ahead of the small points, with better sound and equipment.

Orph., Chi., as 1st Run In Warner Move to Get Better Break

Chicago, Dec 2.

Orpheum, Warners' loop house, has been designated as a first-run. In the future this house will be the pampered babe of the circuit. It has been recently remodeled and now classes as one of the niftiest small spots in town.

Biggest item is the tremendous increase in advertising space, with results showing a climbing gross. For "Widow of Chicago," Al Sobler, Warner p. a. chief, increased his outlay in the dailies by $1,200, with the formerly sluggish theatre taking an immediate leap at the b. o. by more than doubling its average gross. After a tremendous first week, the picture held over, something very unusual for the house. The ad splurge was on order from New York, with the experiment so successful it will be continued.

Though Publix-B. & K. has all Warner product for this town tied up on a long term franchise, local Warnerites believe that Publix will turn down enough material to keep the Orpheum going, especially since Publix is finding increasing difficulty in finding playing time for all the pictures it has under contract.

HALF WB-FN PRODUCT FOR 300 F-WC HOUSES

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Fox-West Coast has completed a blanket deal with Warner Bros. and First National, taking 50% of the product of each company for all available stands.

Under the deal a total of 35 features between WB and FN will be played by F-WC in between 300 and 350 spots.

F-WC chain has been booking WB and FN pictures here and there for several weeks, apparently as a test of product before closing the deal.

J. J. Sullivan acted for F-WC, Gradwell Sears for FN and Harry Lustig for WB.

Glucksman as Touring Division Mgr. for R-K-O

Ellis Glucksman leaves for the west next week in his new capacity with R-K-O, "traveling division director." He will be on the move most of the time as contact between the various R-K-O division heads and the theatre department's home office in New York.

Glucksman has been managing the R-K-O division in upstate New York. His successor there hasn't been named.

Pickets in Front of Double Feature House

Pickets were posted Monday in front of Wallack's, on 42d street, by Local 306 of the A. F. of L., because the theatre refused to hire union operators.

The house is running pictures on a grind, double feature program basis with tri-weekly changes.

Goldenberg in L. A.

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Henry Goldenberg, widely known theatre owner, in exhib politics for years, is here to locate permanently and may take over indie properties for himself.

Formerly operating houses in Milwaukee, Goldenberg was president of the M. P. T. O. of Wisconsin.

NOW! 4 BALLETS FOR PUBLIX

ORIENTAL UPTOWN PARADISE TIVOLI

IN CHICAGO

AINSLEY LAMBERT

THE ONLY 4 GIRLS IN AMERICA DOING THIS STYLE OF DANCING

BILLY CREEDON

VIOLET PRESENTS THE ORIGINAL PEGGY

4 QUEENS

EDITH PARAMOUNT, NEW YORK, Week of Dec. 5 DOT

in Frank Cambria's "WHAT A NIGHT" UNIT

Selected for an European Tour
Commencing June 29, 1931
By HARRY FOSTER
European Rep. EDDIE MEYERS (WM. MORRIS AGENCY)

Dir. NAT KALCHEIM (WM. MORRIS AGENCY)

THANKS TO EARL SANDERS—I. M. HALPERIN

FIRST NATIONAL PICTURES SET THE RECORDS!

Opening Thursday Night (Dec. 4th) at Warner Brothers Winter Garden, N.Y. for a long run.

MOTHERS CRY

From Helen Grace Carlisle's sensational best-seller. Most human story since "Over The Hill".

RICHARD

BARTHELMESS IN THE LASH

with Mary Astor and Marian Nixon. Set to smash the record of "The Dawn Patrol"

Millions have read this startling novel. Syndicated in 82 leading newspapers.

LITTLE CAESAR

with EDWARD G. ROBINSON Doug. FAIRBANKS, Jr.

Sensation for grown-ups. Tremendous for the kids.

FATHER'S SON

with LEWIS STONE Irene Rich, Leon Janney

RIGHT ON TOP OF

DOORWAY TO HELL

Smashed 17 records of first 18 engagements

LIFE OF THE PARTY

Life of the industry's box offices

OLD ENGLISH

Biggest of Arliss' successes

OFFICE WIFE

The smash hit of any city

Warner Brothers' newest sensation

SIGMUND ROMBERG and OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN 2nd ROMANCE that critics said:—

"Exquisite... completely bewitching... really lovely movie... finest yet produced... Its story is tremendously romantic... beautiful love story... tasteful and delightful."—Mirror

"Touching romance... Tearful and likable... Carefully produced... Entirely successful."—Herald Tribune

"Comes like a tonic... truly lovely... quite charming."—News

"Doubtless due to remain on Broadway for a long time. We challenge anybody with sentiment in his makeup to witness it without being profoundly moved."—Evening World

"Far ahead of the average... well worth your attention."—Telegram

Entirely in TECHNICOLOR

Only Consistent WEEKLY profits will give you big YEARLY profits. Warner Brothers release the big hit of the week EVERY week!

Opened Thanksgiving Day to over-capacity business at Warner Brothers' Hollywood, N.Y. at $2. First week-end business topped Thanksgiving record. It is New York's biggest hit.

PLAY IT DAY AND DATE WITH BROADWAY

WARNER BROS. & VITAPHONE REG. TRADE MARK TALKING PICTURES

"Vitaphone" is the registered trade mark of the Vitaphone Corp. designating its products

What can happen in 25 years? Or 20, 10 or 5 years or last year?
Think it out about yourself but don't worry

There's the chance to tell everything in 'Variety's' 25th Anniversary, about your business or your present or future but don't worry

'Variety's' Silver Anniversary Number of course will tell you a lot about what has come and gone in these 25 years but
don't worry

Your worry is when that 'Variety' man or letter advises you about the 25th and says 'Announcement Please,' do it, it's okay and
don't worry

Good times and bad times come and go;
they have in these 25 years, yet
the country's still here
so don't worry

Loew's Returning 9 Theatres To Presentation Units, but Wholly Mum Over Vaudeville

Ed Schiller, head; Louis K. Sydney, Marvin Schenck and Jos. Vogel; all of Loew's theatre operation, returned yestrday (Tuesday) from a trip that included some principal cities in the east, midwest and south, the result of which will be revival of stage shows in nine theatres on the Loew circuit.

Among locations are Cleveland, Syracuse and Rochester. These are certain to return to "flesh" bills about Jan. 1. The other six towns selected were not mentioned.

Policy in all Loew houses resuming stage shows will be presentations, the same now played on Loew's present eight weeks of picture presentation time. This will extend the Loew house route to 17 weeks. Theatres will retain permanent stage bands and m. c.'s, with only the units, including girl lines, traveling.

Loew's presentation route starts at the Capitol, New York. At the Paradise, New York, second week, weekly operating cost of each unit is shaved to around $3,000, with that amount held to for the balance of playing. This cost is considered satisfactory for the nine towns coming in.

Extended Pro Rata Cost

Extension of the Loew route to 17 weeks, it is reported believed, will simplify the booking of talent in so far that acts are available for less money with increased time. Another financial angle, from accounts, regards production expenses. With 17 weeks in which to charge off production costs, instead of the present eight weeks, that item will be materially lessened at the start.

On the return of plain vaude to any of the Loew theatres in and out of New York the circuit continues silent. Currently Loew's is booking and playing twelve and a half vaude weeks. Chances of enlargement there are reported slight. Baltimore and Toronto, the first two towns, are reverting to stage bills this week and next week, respectively. Toronto remains straight pictures. Profits from the film policy have exceeded the former vaudfilm grosses to the extent that the Loew operating department has decided to do away with vaude in Toronto indef.

Addition of nine weeks to the presentation route will open the Loew books for about 36 more acts weekly, on the basis of four acts per unit, besides the line, stage band and m. c.

GROSS EXONERATED ON HOLD-UP CHARGE

Sioux City, Dec. 2.

Accusations of Johnny Arensdorf, self-confessed robber of the Orpheum Sept. 2, which implicated Mickey Gross, manager of the theatre in the holdup, fell by the wayside when police admitted an investigation revealed that Arensdorf's story lacked a foundation. Complete exoneration of the theatre manager was given by police, and he was liberated.

Detectives said the 20-year-old youth lied when he implicated the theatre manager in the "stickup."

Arensdorf secured $2,750 in the holdup.

Lucky Escape

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Baldwin and Bristol, vaude team, had a narrow escape when the car in which they were driving from Indianapolis this city, was struck by a truck loaded with cattle at Montmorenci, Ind., Nov. 25.

Aside from a bad shakeup and bruises both escaped serious injury. Their car was a complete wreck.

MRS. GORDON'S RELAPSE

Roy Gordon, while playing New Brunswick last Saturday, received a wire from Saranac that his wife (Miss Healy of the former Gordon and Healy act) had suffered a relapse. Gordon chartered a plane and flew to Saranac to be at her bedside.

Miss Healy is in a very critical condition.

'BABE' EGAN SLANDERED HER, FLO MAYO SAYS

Florence E. Waring, professionally known as Flo Mayo, who does an aerial act in vaude, has started suit in the New York Supreme Court, through Attorney Julius Kendler, against "Babe" Egan, girls' band leader, charging slander and asking damages of $25,000.

The Misses Mayo and Egan until recently were in the all girl unit produced for R-K-O by Irving Yates. The plaintiff charges that sometime between July 18 and Oct. 25, "Babe" Egan in the presence of several people declared that she (Flo Mayo) was suffering from a loathsome, contagious disease and physical disorder that made her unfit to associate with normal people.

Miss Egan's act is known as "Babe" Egan and her Parisian Redheads.

150 Cops Called To Halt Philly Sunday Benefit

Philadelphia, Dec. 2.

An actual riot occurred here Sunday night when police broke up an attempted Sabbath vaude bill show for the benefit of the unemployed.

A big crowd was ejected from the Kent theatre, film house in the northeastern section of the city, by a detail of 150 police rushed to the spot by Director of Public Safety Schofield, who has been waging a vigorous campaign against all spots and theatrical activities on Sunday. The theatre had been engaged by the Allyn-Capron Post No. 22, Veterans of Foreign Wars, for the benefit show.

A permit had been secured two weeks previously by the Veterans from Supt. of Police Mills. But at the last minute Schofield revoked the license. It was then too late to notify the ticket holders, and a detachment from a district police station was sent to disperse the crowd. Disregarding orders, the crowd filed into the theatre and the show began, only to be halted by the arrival of several detachments of police. A riot of serious proportions was averted when George Winkleman, member of the Veterans' Committee, went to the stage and pleaded with the crowd to obey the police order.

Since then indignant Kensingtonians have discovered that while their intended aid for the jobless was halted, similar shows were being staged all over Philadelphia without interference from the police. While Director Schofield was issuing his orders in City Hall, a political organization, with unofficial headquarters there was giving a benefit show at Fay's theatre in West Philadelphia, another benefit for the Jewish Home for the aged was being given at the Rockland theatre, while the Felton theatre and other neighborhood houses were enjoying benefit performances without trouble.

Meanwhile the Veterans in a statement put the entire blame of the disorder at the Kent on the shoulders of Schofield and will carry the matter into the courts. They have announced that their attorneys will attempt to secure an injunction against police interference at a similar show next Sunday night.

Ice for New Champ

Tony Canzoneri, who recently kayoed Al Singer for the lightweight title, is being offered to the New York vaude bookers, with no takers yet.

$4,500 for Injuries

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 2.

John Hartman, actor, was awarded $4,500 by Supreme Court jury for injuries in taxicab accident. Hartman, known professionally as Johnny Green, sued for $10,000, claiming his injuries prevented him continuing a stage career.

He was riding to Buffalo in July, 1929, when the cab collided with another car.

HARRY CARROLL

Under contract to R-K-O exclusively
This Week (Nov. 29) R-K-O Palace, New York
Direction
CHARLES MORRISON

THOMAS' CO. IN CRASH

Machine Smashed—But Slight Injuries to Saxotet Members

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Automobile carrying Joe Thomas' Saxotet en route to play a Sunday date in Kenosha, Wis., was completely demolished near Deerfield, when the car skidded.

Stitches were taken in the head of one member of the company. All were shaken up badly but played the performance.

DIRTLESS ACTS AWAY FROM N. Y. PALACE

Declaring the problem needs serious consideration more than kidding, R-K-O is renewing its attack on dirt and vulgarity in the vaude theatres. The approach this time will be different and handled mainly by the booking office.

All acts booked for out of town playing will be viewed at the start in New York and censored on the spot, if necessary, according to the circuit's requirements. The acts will then be advised to stick to the dirt-less routine after getting on the road, as in New York. If a contrary report comes in from out of town and is justified, result will be cancellation.

An R-K-O thought of inserting a "dirt" clause in the booking contract has been dropped. Also the former system of vesting most of the censorship rights with house managers. Inconsistency under the latter arrangement confused acts and the various managers and brought about numerous instances of abuse, it is said.

No Palace Model

Acts are asked by R-K-O to discontinue regarding the New York Palace as criterion of what should be used on the vaude stage. The

(Continued on page 42)

Agents' Ass'n Plans Sunday Benefits—Also Taking Hotel Floors to House Idle Actors

For the first time agents are going to do something for actors without getting anything for it. The Artists' Representatives' Association, composed of 21 agencies, has started a series of Sunday night concerts, the proceeds of which it will use to take care of show folks out of work.

The first concert will be held Sunday night, Dec. 7, at the Ziegfeld theatre. A bill of 15 acts will appear. Tickets will be sold to show people who are working. The general public will not be appealed to but they are welcome to purchase tickets.

The agents intend leasing whole floors of certain hotels in Times Square, and footing all the bills for food and lodging for the unemployed actors. They will also supply clothing if necessary. No cash will be given in any case, according to the statement made by Arthur Lyons, president of the Agents' Ass'n.

The Ass'n is dickering with several broadcasters to sell the air rights to the Sunday night concerts, including the mike in the lobby over which important stage names will speak upon entering the theatre.

Met for Second Sunday

Second concert will be held at the Metropolitan opera house and the third at Moss' new Broadway theatre. All theatres are donated. Picture stars, with no stage turns, will be introduced during the evening and will take a bend.

According to the president of the Agents' Ass'n, the whole thing is being done in a spirit into which everyone approached so far has entered. The agents have opened an office in the Hotel Astor and divided up the hours of the day when each will personally be at the headquarters to help put the thing over.

Entire cast of "Vanities" has subscribed for tickets. So has the entire "Girl Crazy" company. "Ballyhoo," now in Philly, wired they are 100% sold for tickets and will come into New York in a body any Sunday night needed.

No programs will be sold and no sale of flowers will be permitted. Just a good show is the aim, agents say. Tickets range from $1 to $5 each.

Entire proceeds of these concerts will be handled by the Agents' Ass'n.

"CRUCIFIX WILLIE" HAS INDIE ROW GAGA AGAIN

Indie Row is all agog again over the latest exploit of "Crucifix Willie," the master mind of indie vaude bookers. "Willie," crucifix and all, tore through Times Square last Saturday, headed straight north until he got somewhere near Peekskill.

There he descended upon a defenseless vaude manager, told his spiel, whipped out the big black cross while down on the knees doing a Jolson, and wham! went another house off the books of one indie booker over to the cluttered desk of "Willie's" boss.

"Willie" outmasters the master minds of the indie field. He is the Ajax of Ajaxes. It is reported he is becoming too big for one man and will shortly burst.

Mass. Cops Grab Stolen Car Eddie Ford, Actor, Bought in Big Mistake

New Bedford, Mass., Dec. 2.

Eddie Ford, vaudeville actor, came to this city from New York in a sedan valued at $4,000, but after his engagement, departed on a train.

State police seized the automobile, alleging it was a stolen car. Ford showed a bill of sale and was exonerated of being involved in the theft.

Meanwhile, search is on for another actor who, according to Ford, sold him the car.

Edw. Tracey Will Appeal 18-Year Mass. Sentence

Oak Bluffs, Mass., Dec. 2.

Edward Tracey, former vaude actor, who is serving 15 to 18 years in Massachusetts state prison for cracking a safe in a steamship company's office at Oak Bluffs, Mass., in September, 1928, soon will file a motion for a new trial on grounds of newly discovered evidence.

Prior to being sentenced, Tracey swore he was innocent and did not take the witness stand because he wanted to shield a woman.

Joseph Fisher, co-defendant with Tracey, was acquitted.

Bill Hennessy's Health

Illness is forcing Bill Hennessy to give up his R-K-O agency activities. Aaron Kessler, his agency partner, will carry the joint franchise alone.

Hennessy leaves for Miami this week on doctor's orders.

MURIEL WINDOW WANTS DIVORCE DATE CHANGED

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Muriel Window, former vaude performer, and now Mrs. Arthur S. Hanford, Jr., has petitioned the Circuit Court to change the May date on her divorce bill to April, so that she may share in the $1,000,000 estate of her husband. That is in answer to Hanford's statement that they were not legally married. States that while they were married May 5, 1920, but the bill which divorced Miss Window from Robert Emmett Keane, the actor, was not signed until May 27, 1920.

ELIZABETH MURRAY HOPING

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Elizabeth Murray is preparing for a vaude come-back.

The former single star has been doing some small picture work, having just finished with Marion Davies in "Bachelor Father."

"Clown Nights" Sunday at N. V. A. Need More Gingery and Ad Lib Acts

The N.V.A. club on West 46th street needs more good acts than it's getting to make the $3 per plate Sunday "Clown Nites" look like $3. The weekly affair was resumed with reopening of the club's dining room and hotel accommodations two weeks ago. Sunday night (3) the show could not follow the dinner.

N.V.A.'s Sunday night shows are not like those of the old days. There is no longer threatening of actors to go over and work, nor are the ultimate results confined to personal publicity. It is of more direct benefit to the actor now, without the bulling both ways.

Sunday night's nine-act bill on the dining room rostrum provided some amusement here and there, but not a great deal at any time. Show needed acts and something else to keep it going.

Henry Chesterfield was m.c. He might be a whiz at figures and disbursements as the club see, but at m.c.ing he's like an acrobat in a blackout.

"I," said Hank, early on the bill in a bit that was supposed to get laughs, "am the executive secretary." He just made it touch for Hank.

First Laughs

Stan Stanley, Joe Kane and Jack English drew the first laughs with an audience bit, the punch of which was a line for the gang. As a prohibition officer (English) was arresting Stanley for booze possession, Stanley asked: "How come you're a prohibition officer? You're Jack English. I thought you were a vaudeville performer."

"So did I," said English.

More of that would have helped.

Now that the slug is off there's room for co-operation. . .

Best Xmas Present
Subscription to
VARIETY
$10 for One Year
Always Welcome

HERE 'TIZ!!

The WOW of WOWS!

"EVERYTHING'S GONNA BE ALRIGHT"

by CLIFF FRIEND

Plenty of Extra Material!

GET IT NOW!

Published by

LEO. FEIST, INC.

50th St., & Broadway, New York City

Your Nearest "FEIST" Office Will Serve You

CHICAGO.....75 W. Randolph St.....
SAN FRANCISCO.....942 Market Street
BOSTON.....240 Tremont St.....
PHILADELPHIA.....1028 Market St.....
DETROIT.....310 Mich Theatre Bldg.
CINCINNATI.....Lyric Theatre Bldg.....
KANSAS CITY.....Gayety Theatre Bldg.....
LOS ANGELES.....Majestic Theatre Bldg.

RADIO MUSIC COMPANY INC. NEW YORK U.S.A.

Publix Stage Unit Around Ted Lewis Costing $6,500 Weekly

Publix intends building a stage presentation unit around Ted Lewis that will cost Publix $6,500 to play. Of that amount $4,500 will go to Lewis, it is said. Lewis, lately appearing without his band in Chicago, received a similar amount for a week.

The stage band in the Lewis unit will probably be from the theatre's pit orchestra.

Publix usual stage units vary in cost from $3,000 to $3,500 a week. The Lewis unit will be exceptional in cost for continuous playing of the Publix unit week stands.

The Morris agency made the Lewis deal. If it develops satisfactorily other names believed to be of drawing power when surrounded in picture houses may also be prepared by Publix.

OSTERMAN'S FILM

Will Do One for Columbia—Insists On No Special Billing

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

After Jack Osterman completes his present R-K-O route, he is coming back here to do a film feature for Columbia written by Eddie Cantor.

Osterman has specifically demanded that he is not to be starred or featured, preferring sub-billing under any screen names which may be in the cast. Move is on his own theory that if there's a chance for him in pictures he wants to build up gradually.

Vaude Out for Dec.

Portland, Me., Dec. 2.

R-K-O Keith's drops vaude this week for straight pictures. Vaude will stay out for the rest of the month, at least. Vaude was Boston-booked.

If films are more profitable than the combination policy, films will stick.

WB's Holiday Vaude

To bolster biz during the Christmas period, Warners will shoot vaude into four straight picture houses over the holidays. They are in Sharon, Butler and McKeesport, all Pa., and Warren, O.

Houses will play three acts each half for two weeks, Christmas and New Year's, without changing scale.

Pearl Regay's Partner

Walter Donahue, kid brother of the late Jack Donahue, and Billee Regay, sister of Pearl Regay, have formed a vaude team. Former is the youngest of the Donahue family.

They open Dec. 6 for R-K-O at the Jefferson, New York, through Bart McHugh.

M. C. Job Spits Team

Fanchon & Marco's grooming of Harry Savoy as an m. c. will split the act of Savoy and Mann.

Savyo will be assigned to St. Louis.

Tab in Frankfort

Starting Dec. 4 the Frankfort theatre, Frankfort, Pa., discontinues vaude to play the A. B. Marcus tab show of 35 people for four weeks, with an option of ten.

From Paris, Matty King, of King, King and King, denies he's ill or broke on the Continent. He has been ill, he admits, but far from being broke, and has contracts at a good figure. He states the original King, King and King is not split, but are with him.

O'CONNELL THREATENED BY PICKPOCKET'S MOB

St. Paul, Dec. 2.

Ray O'Connell, R-K-O city manager, was "put on the spot" by local gangsters last week following arrest of pickpocket suspect in the Orpheum.

Dip was picked up after he had elbowed a patron and unsuccessfully tried to pick his pocket while changing seats during intermission. Patron complained and cops picked the fellow up. Ushers said prisoner had been visiting theatre three times a week.

Taken to jail, alleged dip was held pending filing of complaint. Then came the heat. O'Connell was flooded with phone and wire threats if he went through with complaint. Friends of prisoner even went so far as to ring his phone in the early morning hours to tell him he was due for a ride. Cops checked calls, finding them put in from pay stations.

Prisoner was finally freed on promise to leave town.

First Femme Stooges

Marvin Welt is banding a bunch of standard vaude women together as the first all-femme stooge act. It will operate similar to the numerous male stooge turns now around, with an m.c. at the helm, as a satire on them.

Primrose Semon, Jean Waters, Jane West and Irene Marlin have the leads. All were members of former doubles.

Loew's Amateur Shows

In connection with the Amateur Follies now being staged Loew theatres, a "Chester Hale Scholarship" is offered to the lady amateur getting the most votes at each house. Prize is 7 weeks of training under Hale, with a chance of the winner getting into one of the Loew presentations.

Midge Miller won the contest at Loew's Boulevard last week. The contest is at the Pitkin theatre this week.

Miss Herbert's High

Evelyn Herbert set her minimum asking price at $3,500 when offered a week at the New York Palace by R-K-O. Arthur Willi, the Palace booker, didn't even wait to say no.

Miss Herbert closed with "Princess Charming" Saturday (29).

CHESTERFIELD IN COURT

Ruled That N. V. A. Guild Settle Mrs. Dixon Charge

Henry Chesterfield, secretary of the National Variety Artists, had a hearing yesterday (Tuesday) in West Side Court on a summons to court by Mrs. Lottie Dixon, wife of Harland Dixon, charging that Chesterfield had knowledge of $900 taken in at luncheons and bridge games at the N. V. A. Club.

Magistrate Goodman ruled that the entire proposition should be decided by the N. V. A. Ladies' Guild.

Politics

The trouble appeared to have started over political differences between Mrs. Dixon and other members of the N. V. A. ladies' auxiliary. Upon recent formation of the Guild Mrs. Dixon was elected president.

Later, according to Chesterfield, Mrs. Dixon opposed the election of Elizabeth Wildman as secretary with another candidate. When her entry lost Mrs. Dixon, it was claimed, resigned. The other officers then each moved up a notch, through which Mrs. Julia Nash Chesterfield, wife of the N. V. A. sec., became the ladies' organization's president.

In the suit Mrs. Dixon stated Chesterfield was withholding $900 of the Guild's funds. Chesterfield said the amount is $1,100. He seemed between a couple of hot fires, declaring his spot between two warring feminine factions has its drawbacks.

Guild started as a bridge game and luncheon idea among the lady members of the N. V. A., with proceeds to go to the patients at Saranac. The Guild was organized on an official basis as the bridge game attendance grew.

Mrs. Dixon asserted she visited the San about a year ago and the patients told her they would like some warm garments. Mrs. Dixon said she promised to see that their requests were granted. But with the money tied up in the Guild's treasury she couldn't deliver, she said.

Chesterfield claimed Mrs. Dixon demanded that he release the Guild funds to her personally. He advised her he could not as the money belonged to the Guild as an organization and not an individual.

On Mrs. Dixon's side in the action was Mrs. Rae Cohen, former actress and now the wife of a broker. Both women were bitter against the Guild.

Walter Meyers Married

Walter Meyers, WB booking head, whose engagement to Marjorie Hartman, non-pro, was announced last month, was married ahead of schedule in a quiet ceremony at the bride's home in New York Nov. 26.

Couple returned to New York Monday after a week-end at Atlantic City. They'll honeymoon later. Mrs. Meyers is a daughter of Samuel Hartman, prominent attorney.

House Mgr. Showed Office Wire to Act Named in It; House Mgr. Fired

Cleveland, Dec. 2.

Marx Brothers, at the R-K-O Palace last week for $9,000, were paid off about $800 short at the end of the week as a result of alleged "cheating" in time and action on the stage by Groucho (Julius), eldest of the family. Another result was the dismissal by wire from New York of Frank Hines, manager of the local Palace.

Hines was generally charged with conduct unbecoming a smart house manager. Reported specific charge was that he showed a confidential booking office wire to the Marx boys.

The high priced act was advised by R-K-O not to play here last week unless Groucho had recovered sufficiently from a recent operation performed on him in Chicago to give his customary performance. R-K-O claimed Julius, after signifying he was okay, did but two shows daily here while the other three brothers played four.

Hines was reported to have received a wire from the home office in New York to deduct pro rata from the Marx Bros.' salary for shows missed by Groucho. Hines' alleged exhibiting of this wire to the act caused him to be fired.

Full Pay at Palace

Groucho underwent the Chi operation while the act played the Palace there three weeks ago. During that engagement, with Groucho out, the remaining three refused to complete the week unless assured of the amount they would receive. R-K-O booking office notified them they would be paid in full.

A week in Cincinnati, booked to follow Chicago and precede Cleveland, was cancelled to permit Groucho to recover for the local date.

J. Knox Strachan came over from the R-K-O Hippodrome, this city, to take Hines' place at the Palace.

HARRY FOSTER WELCH

Famous One-Man Band in Person

Nov. 29), Within 9 Months Repeating R-K-O Palace, New York (This Week,

Direction CARLTON M. HUB

N. V. A. Rooms and Restaurant in Clubhouse Now in Full Operation

With its 102 rooms and restaurant in full operation in its clubhouse on West 46th street, the N. V. A. is restored to its former social standing as an actors' organization.

Reinstated likewise are the Sunday night Bohemian affairs, when following a $3 table d'hote dinner, an entertainment by artist-members is given on the stage, with the evening concluding with dancing.

Of the 102 rooms at present around 50 are occupied. The rates, European, are from $1.50 to $2.50 daily, with $4 a day double.

Several permanent guests at the Clubhouse, who had to leave when the club's hotel part closed some months ago, have returned. They seem to prefer the warmth of the smaller clubhouse to the larger and cold hearted hotels they have been living in since moving.

FRANCES WHITE'S $750 WKLY. IS ACCEPTED

Frances White has changed her mind and accepted R-K-O bookings at $750. She is at the Albee, Brooklyn, this week for that figure.

Miss White has been turning down all offers under $1,500 lately, although admittedly broke.

Sunday ℅ Vaude

Shuberts' Riviera, legit subway circuit house, at Broadway and 96th street, starts playing vaude on Sundays, Dec. 13.

Jack Linder will book 10 acts each Sun. y on a percentage basis.

DANE-ARTHUR GO PUBLIX

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Picture team, Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, play their first dates for Publix at Chicago beginning Jan. 9.

Booked in by Freddy Rosenthal for five weeks, starting with the downtown Oriental. Four weeks here followed by a stand at the Fisher, Detroit.

2 Jrs. in Same House

Harry Clay Blaney, Jr., and Gus Hill, Jr., are the new manager and assistant manager of the R-K-O Hamilton, New York.

Office has advised the boys not to spend too much time in reminiscenses over their fathers' shows.

EDDIE BRUCE

FEATURED COMEDIAN
WITH HARRY CARROLL REVUE
THIS WEEK (NOV. 29)
R-K-O PALACE, NEW YORK
RETURN ENGAGEMENT AFTER 9 MONTHS' TOUR OF R-K-O CIRCUIT

Direction CHAS. H. ALLEN
M. S. BENTHAM OFFICE

Percentage Playing for Lay-Off Acts Blocked by I. A. T. S. E. Rules

A plan that might have helped the idle vaudeville actors to help themselves through the present unemployment straits by working instead of waiting for charity, was given a blow if not killed off altogether last week by the inability of the I.A.T.S.E. (stage hands) to co-operate.

The plan was suggested by Sammy Wright, actor and material writer. A similar idea was advanced by Leo deValery of New York. Both submitted them to "Variety," which turned them over to Warner Bros. and Fox, the two circuits best suited to the scheme, for their consideration. Of the two Fox, through its eastern operator, Harry Arthur, and stage booking head, Doc Howe, showed the most interest.

Fox advised "Variety" it thought well of the idea—playing of four

(Continued on page 68)

Billing Warning

R-K-O legal department has notified the DeKalb theatre, indie vaudfilmer in Brooklyn, to discontinue billing it believes to be deceptive.

DeKalb's three-sheets announce: R-eal K-nock O-ut vaudeville.

Hess' Work

Jack Hess will handle publicity for R-K-O's Mayfair and Globe theatres on Broadway.

This will be in addition to Hess' national exploitation assignment for the circuit.

Irvington Split

Sam Goldstein, operating the Liberty, Irvington, former legit stock house, will switch house to one-half w. of straight pictures and one-half week of vaudfilm starting Dec. 8.

Vaude will play from Thursday to Sunday, Jack Linder booking.

81ST ST. ON GRIND

Stops Reserved Seat Selling Dec. 19—3-a-Day Thereafter

R-K-O 81st Street theatre, New York, will drop its present two-a-day reserved seat policy Dec. 20 and expand to a three-a-day grind, with four shows Saturday and Sunday.

The 81st will be the third R-K-O two-a-dayer to go into a grind in recent weeks. Albee, Brooklyn, and Boston were the others. Others are expected to follow under the circuit's trend toward more performances daily to meet picture house competition.

Present four-act bill plan at the 81st will be changed to five acts, with the house figuring to spend around $4,000 on vaude weekly. Stage budget there is now about $3,500.

CHANCE AT OWN ACTS FOR R-K-O CLUB DEPT.

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Local club department of R-K-O here has been suffering because acts playing the Palace, until this week, were not allowed by R-K-O's own club manager to be booked for outside dates.

At the same time an independent agent could secure these same acts and play them, after theatre hours, in any place secured.

Beginning this week R-K-O switched the policy, which now gives its own club man first choice.

DIRTLESS ACTS

(Continued from page 59)

circuit considers the only remaining straight vaude theatre to be, in its Broadway location, peculiarly different to many other variety house in the country.

The many actors in New York who visit the Palace when not working are generally misled by what often goes there, R-K-O contends.

Amy Cox, district manager for R-K-O's Western Vaudeville Exchange, has sent out letters to all managers of R-K-O midwest theatres stating a man calling himself Ted Wells and representing himself as connected with R-K-O's western office has no connection whatsoever with that office.

Irving Yates

PRODUCTIONS

160 West 46th Street

NEW YORK CITY

Marcus Loew BOOKING AGENCY

General Executive Offices

LOEW BUILDING ANNEX

160 WEST 46TH ST.

BRYANT 7800 NEW YORK CITY

J. H. LUBIN

GENERAL MANAGER

MARVIN H. SCHENCK

BOOKING MANAGER

Worth the Touch

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

An actor just returned from New York claims the touches in the east are as frequent as they are here, but the eastern layoff's story is worth the two-bit hand-out.

XMAS PRESENTS BY SARANAC'S PATIENTS

By "Happy" Benway

Saranac, N. Y., Nov. 29.

Christmas getting near brings a reminder of the beautiful work being done by N. V. A. San. patients. Any person interested in hand-tooled, specially designed leather novelties should write to Eddie Voss, Vernon Lawrence, Harry Namba or Ethel Clouds. For hand painted (oil) pictures, prospective gift buyers should write to Xela (Madcap) Edwards or Edward De Caro.

Nell Cordon showing up great on the "comeback."

Of all things, Benway's operation was canceled. He wasn't so keen on taking the "cut" anyway.

After a year of faithful "curing" Harry English proved his comeback by doing his bit on the San's stage.

Grant Simpson, a little under the weather, special nurse at the O'Connell and Simpson cottage now.

J. C. Louden, showing improvement, up for two meals, allowed downtown for talkers twice a week.

Thanksgiving, everybody thankful....Plenty turkey and everything....Pool tournament on, Fred Rith, shark of the San....Much "Rummy" now played. Dick Kuni seems to collect all the pennies and Among I.A.T.S.E. boys: Mike McMamee, great comeback....Tommy Abbott ditto....Val. Kincaid up, three meals a day, limited exercise ...Vernon Lawrence also...Angela Papulis and Lilly Leonora (bed patients) showing improvement and gaining weight...Fred Buck gets good X-ray report, out of bed for one meal a day and downtown pictures....Richard Moore, much improved, up for talkers and one meal ....Julia Kubas feeling okay.... Leah Temple up one meal....Mae Armitage showing results....Doris Moore much abed but okay with good X-ray report—Alf. Pierce okay ....Monroe Coleman, abed for short period, a little tired.

Write to those you know, in Saranac.

At N. V. A. San

Fred Rith, Jack Lewis, Lawrence McCarthy, Edward DeCaro, George Neville, Chris Hagedorn, Helen O'Reilly, Catherine Vogelle, Xela Edwards, Allie Bagley, Angela Papulis, William Holly, Leah Temple, Mike McMamee, Constance Reeves, Harry Clark, Mae Armitage, Alf. Pierce, Harry Namba, Nell Gordon, Frisco DeVere, Doris Moore, Gladys Palmer, Fred Buck, C. J. Quinn, George Harmon, Vernon Lawrence, Bobby Hatz, Val. Kincaid, Dick Muni, Ben Schaffer, Ethel Clouds, Nellie Quealy, Annamae Powers, Lilly Leonora, Eddie Voss, Julia Kubas, J. C. Louden, Andreas Erving, Alice Carman, Richard Moore, Harry English, Dorothy Harvard, Doris Giltrap, Monroe Coleman, Chas. Libecap, Ruby Franklin, Ford Raymond, Happy Benway.

Saranac Colony

Chester Rice, Sanfanoni Apts.; Joe Reilly, 54 Sheppard avenue; James Haegney, 6 Military road; Russ Kelly, 19 Broadway; Andrew Mulony, 19 Broadway; Harry Barrett, 302 Broadway; Charlie Barrett, 302 Broadway; Dave (DDH) Hall, 6 Baker street; Walter Daley, 10 Baker street; Charley Bordeley, Berkeley Apts.; Jim Shields, 41 Park avenue; Eddie Diamond, 20 River street; Grant Simpson, Turtle Pond road.

Todd Tries Coast

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Looking over the local vaude field and its possibilities J. Warren Todd, formerly in charge of Cus Sun agency in New York, is here with view to becoming an indie booker on this coast.

AUSTRALIAN BOOKINGS

Seattle, Dec. 2.

Ed Fisher's recent bookings for Australia, and later Orient dates by him, include Jean and Jacqueline, dancers; Joy and Lazzorini, skaters, and Brock and Thompson, dance team.

Bookings are for 19 weeks on the Union circuit.

Single Contract Between Theatre And Booking Depts. in R-K-O, N. Y.

TICKET STAND-IN

R-K-O Lands Couple at Yonkers House—Amount Stolen Unknown

R-K-O has cleaned out practically its entire house crew in Yonkers, N. Y., with exception of the manager, George Roberts, upon learning of a ticket gyp racket alleged to have been carried on by a couple in the front of the house.

Probable amount taken from the theatre is being checked.

'BARGAIN BILL' MONDAY FOR BREAK-IN ACTS

R-K-O will again attempt to get around the extreme scarcity of break-in spots for new acts with auditions at one of its New York theatres. Hamilton, uptown, will play 10-act bills Monday and Friday nights, starting a week or two after Jan. 1.

As the Hamilton goes from five to seven acts as a regular policy at the same time, it will mean openings for three "showing" turns each audition night, or chances for six unknown acts weekly.

Whether acts will be paid for the auditions hasn't been settled. At R-K-O's one night weekly try-out bills last season, at the Franklin and Prospect, the acts were given transportation and baggage expense, but no salaries.

Instead of the customary "professional preview night" billing for the "showing" shows, the Hamilton will call them "bargain bills." This is to avoid possible rowdyism. At the Franklin and Prospect last year many roughnecks knowing about the free-act idea, laid for the auditions.

Joint order from Jos. Plunkett and Charlie Freeman bars all R-K-O division and house managers from free admittance to the circuit's New York vaude booking floor, unless on special business and with permission. Leaning over the bookers' shoulders by managers who have grown accustomed to regularly doing so, is out from now on.

That suggestions, hints, requests and advice to bookers from New York and out of town managers visiting the floor, caused frequent breeches and disagreement between the booking and operating departments of R-K-O. This is reported as the cause for the Plunkett-Freeman mutual ruling. Henceforth any suggestions from a house or division manager to the booking office of a booker must go through the operating department.

Nate Blumberg, now in the east as Plunkett's assistant on general circuit operation, is the sole contact of the R-K-O branches.

Some of the older managers of R-K-O theatres habitually visit the booking office one day weekly to see advance bookings for their particular theatres.

New theory is that the bookers know as much or more about booking the theatres than house managers, or if not, they shouldn't be booking the theatres.

St. Louis Back Dec. 5

R-K-O's St. Louis, St. Louis, resumes vaude Dec. 5 with intact shows. House was on a straight sound policy for the past three months due to labor trouble.

Addition of St. Louis adds no time to the R-K-O unit route, since Birmingham drops the intacts on the same date.

Units will play St. Louis between Kansas City and Houston, with Friday opening instead of Saturday as formerly.

The Boy Who Puts "u" in Humor and Knocks the "l" Out of Gloom

BILLY GLASON

"Just Songs and Sayings"

By Neal O'Hara, N. Y. "World"

EN ROUTE

Publix "Garden of Girls" Unit

The Master Master of Ceremonies Never Made a Short and Never Appeared in the Movies, but ALWAYS IN PERSON

ROUTE LEFT

Los Angeles	Week Dec. 4	Dallas	Week Jan. 2
San Francisco	Week Dec. 12	San Antonio	Week Jan. 9
Traveling		Houston	Week Jan. 16
Denver	Week Dec. 25	New Orleans	Week Jan. 23

Direction

NAT KALCHEIM, Wm. Morris Office

R-K-O-LARRY PUCK, Chas. Morrison Office

NEW ACTS

MARSHALL MONTGOMERY (3)
Ventriloquist
12 Mins.; Full (Special)
State

It's about time "Variety" staked Marshall Montgomery to another New Act notice. The last one he got was in '20. Prior to that the ventriloquist is in the files for '06, '10, '16, and '20. Indicating that he used to change his act once every four years, but possibly hasn't bothered about the matter for the past 10. Still, maybe "Variety's" reviewers haven't noticed the changes they should have caught. In this case they mostly consist of a full stage marine set.

Otherwise, Montgomery is still working with a woman opposite himself and the dummy, besides using the stuffed mouth whistling for an encore. Maybe he's also changed a gag or two. No guarantees, but it's probable. Regardless, Montgomery rated with the best doing this type of work and still does. There's not so many of 'em left, either. He's been up there a long while now and has learned to throw it at 'em fast. As a matter of fact, he's something like a picture in not waiting for laughs.

Current set is the ater deck of a yacht, augmented by lighting effects of moon, clouds, lighthouse, etc. It all helps, as does a scenic iris which closes in a bit at the finish. Opening is some film feet depicting a storm at sea which blots out for the act proper.

Crossfire between the dummy and the woman is pert enough and Montgomery has long since found out how to sell it. In some ways his speed is remarkable. Not a doubt that they liked him and the act here and will repeat that reaction in all spots. Which is pretty good after at least 24 years of throwing your voice into a model.

If it is any satisfaction to Mr. Montgomery as a home product, he can know that the prince of ventriloquists of his day and for a long time back, Arthur Prince, lately came over from his English fireside, but did not make the proper landing on that repeat trip, evidently, for Arthur has returned to England.

Leaving Montgomery still ahead of them all right on his native lot, if he wants to wave the flag that way. Sid.

CHARLIE FOY and Cousins (6)
Comedy, Songs, Dances
17 Mins.; One
86th St.

Charlie Foy here branches out as the mainspring of a low-comedy slapstick act, differing from the Foy family twins and Charlie's single. It's an act full of comedy, of buffoonery and noise there is plenty. Turn is diversified with legit entertainment by two girls dancing.

Foy is assisted by six male stooges and one midget. The stooges work first from the audience and then on the stage. Foy believes, as he announced, in plenty of racket for comedy acts, so he has the stooges parading around the audience beating drum and blowing horns. It started to act off with a bang. Thereafter the stooges are on and off often. Finish has all dancing or faking speedily.

Foy is just a gagging m. c., except for the imitation of his father, followed by a tan dance.

Both girls, Violet West and Joan Sinnot, are pulchritudinous blondes, former specializing in high kicks and cartwheels and the latter in taps.

Bound to go anywhere.

THREE FOYS
Songs and Comedy
18 Mins.; One
Jefferson

Combo is Madeline, Mary and Irving Foy, formerly of the Seven Foys. To establish identity at the start the trio has a special song recalling the fame of the Foy family when Madeline and Mary were in short dresses and Irving in the baby age.

Though the famous Eddie may be remembered by some of the present generation it's doubtful whether it means anything around the vaude houses where the facial gyrations of the grinning Eddie, his squeaky voice and funny little dance are unknown; even Irving in a dance makes no pretense at an imitation of his dad. As matters stand it is up to the Foy trio to make good on merits.

There's a dash of song, some stepping and a conglomeration of some tried and trusty burlesque which served for a few laughs and padded out the turn.

Mary and Madeline have nice voices, particularly Mary, and they sold themselves effectively on a little close up harmony.

Nothing unusual, but withal a pleasing turn. Mark.

MAKER AND REDFORD
"Broadcasting" (Comedy)
15 Mins.; Full Stage
Jefferson

Vaude annals give Jessie Maker and William Redford credit for trying now and then something new. Again they are timely, with a radio mike as the pivot around which their present turn swings.

Redford is the announcer and Miss Maker the aspiring radio artist. Biz of making mistakes, wisecracks, etc., by Redford, with Miss Maker going into songs and dances supply the main theme. Redford also uses his pipes. At the piano is Rubin Beckwith.

At the Jefferson the act found favor. Mark.

FIVE JEWELS
Juggling
7 Mins.; Three
Chester, New York

Five girl jugglers in a satisfactory novelty opener. Probably a bargain pickup for the R-K-O four-act road unit.

Seven minutes are passed quickly enough with juggling that's immeasurably enhanced by production. Uniform gold wigs and spangled gowns on all five women cover enough territory to slip them into a convent. This gold makes a flash, as do the spangles on the indian clubs.

Juggling is performed by teams or more. At the finish one catches an armful of clubs tossed by the other four. Bige.

SYLVIA FROOS (2)
Songs
12 Mins.; One
86th St.

Miss Froos has a personable delivery and some charm, which insures the songs of a good reception. Although not listed in the files, Miss Froos appears to be no novice. Her style suggests a night club apprenticeship.

Songs well chosen, all pops, from comedy to sobby love dirges. Her voice, although not strong, carries well and is clear. Included in the cycle is an imitation of Chevalier and one of a southern darky. Male pianist supports.

At this house Miss Froos received satisfying response and encored.

PALACE

(St. Vaude)

Current week's bill at the Palace didn't look so forte on paper for vaude's surviving $2 stand nor did it play any better when caught Monday night.

Not a box office "name" on a layout that must be near $12,000 on salary list, unless the bookers were fooled on Benny Rubin, in for four weeks as m. c. but horribly handicapped this week with practically no backgrounders or feeders and just tossed to the wolves to get by as best he can. Rubin's picture assignments may have been the answer for his switch into the Palace. Not as a b. o. office attraction he means little except to the smart mob and not entirely his own fault.

Rubin is placed in a tough spot following Ted Healy, Lou Holtz and some of the other clowns preceding as m. c. at this house and with better support than has been given Benny this week. Harry Carroll gives what little support he can but Carroll also has a flip comic in Eddie Bruce and it either by premeditation or accident is not allowing the house m. c. to grab anything away from his revuette comic. The answer is that Rubin even decently try, deciding to go along legitimately, scoring now and then and probably better next week with a better lineup of supporters on the bill, if they give them to him.

Harry Carroll has a good act, in fact, one of the best since he had this one and, although a Palace favorite, cannot be figured at the box office since its his second spotting here with the same act. Borrah Minnevitch and Harmonica Rascals, doubling from Billy Rose's revue, "Sweet and Low," rate in the same category. A good attraction but not a money name and it's upon this trio that the Palace would have to depend for a "name" draw if depending upon anything.

The show is long, has more or less diversity, but nothing particularly potent in a wallopy way to elevate from the category of routine vaudeville. Entertainment and laughs, yes, but far from a big time show such as should be spotted at the ace R-K-O house and wasn't. And from the way things ran it looks like vaude will soon need editors as well as bookers to keep its shows up to snuff.

Four Ortons, three men and girl in slackwire balancing and hoop jumping with one of the men doing comedy with a trained duck opened and satisfied for the spot.

Harry Foster Welch, billed as a "one man band" and giving impressions of various instruments, got over in the dence with the mob but seemed to lag a bit with his symphony orchestra impression, playing opera, which, while a difficult stunt and novel, seemed to slow up his former instrumental impressions. At this showing seemed a bit winded before windup but the outsiders didn't mind and responded accordingly.

Rubin pranced on after that to the accompaniment of a good reception and tried to introduce White and Manning, mixed dance team and follow uppers. They contributed their familiar clever dance routines, interspersed with humor through the tosses Miss Manning takes at the hands of her partner and with her pirouetting classic when the team get legitimately down to business. Couple work hard and pack much clever stuff in their allotted running time with the Three Bernie Brothers planting neat buck and tap spaces. The crowd around finish bit also registers for comedy.

Ann Codee also got over in next niche, flanked by Frank Orth, dumb pan comic, and a male stooge, Miss Codee is still affecting her French dame delivery for a couple of songs, but the meat of the offering is when she gets together with Orth, undersized comic, and manhandles him all over the stage. The stooge bit gets some laughs, but could be passed up without being missed, since Miss Codee and Orth are sufficient to carry the act for what it is.

Minnevitch and Harmonica Rascals closed the first section and were a tremendous score with their mouth-organ selections, especially the symphonic arrangements on a Russian number and Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." Walked off to a solid hit and back to "Sweet and Low."

Harry Carroll had the second division to himself, and also scored heavily, both in his double with Maxine Lewis and the ensuing revuette, enlisting Eddie Bruce and eight girl specialty dancers.

Miss Lewis, a natural, anywhere, oozes personality, and backs it up with keen showmanship in delivery. A looker, and with the sort of voice that can whip a ballad to a standstill. And that's what she does—and how she does it! The best personality on the Palace bill this week.

Miss Lewis and Carroll spot a piano twosome after intermish, mostly given over to a duet arrangement of some of Carroll's yesteryear successes, all clicking, and then "What Do I Care," which has meant as much to Miss Lewis as "Mona Lowe" to Libby Holman. For encore a new one by Carroll and Miss Lewis kid brother, "Just Happened Along."

The team faded right into the revue after Carroll and Rubin exchanged some comicalities with Bruce, Carroll's own boy, in acceptable light comic, taking the comedy skein from then on, and Rubin only flashing in now and then. The revue projects a constellation of femme specialty dancers, with most of the gals good in the stepping division, and a series of comedy bits between Carroll and Bruce, running the gamut from the greeting of a couple of Chicago pals shooting it out to the Ostrich story, a burlesque familiar, but probably new to a Palace mob who never go to the American, and getting laughs. Carroll's getaway wallop is the planting of Miss Lewis for a reprise of hit songs from last year's shows, handled as a connected medley, and topping by hauling out a rotund colored dancer for a near-kootch that sews everything up. Carroll, thanks to good showmanship and especially his discovery of Miss Lewis, cops the show undisputedly.

Rubin, who had been flitting in and out as a comedy enunciator throughout the evening, spotted his dialect humoresque treatise after the Carroll act. Benny gave it to them short and sweet, probably figuring again being in a high spot. His offering consisted of a dialect lingo on the discovery of America by Columbus, breathing exercises and a dance finish, after which he urged everybody to remain for the Pathe News, which got him more laughs. Rubin shapes up okay for the spot, but he must have something to work with in the surrounding bill. Edba.

58TH STREET

Amos 'n' Andy's "Check and Double Check" (Radio) did its stuff at the box office here Saturday. Plenty of juvenile trade in the near sell-out audience that night, with both kids and elders going heavy for the screen antics of the radio comics.

Stage show also good. Diversity in the four-act layout with Val and Ernie Stanton copping the show for comedy honors next to shut with their rib-tickling antics and comedy blackouts. A mixed team assists and also registers with the Stantons, with the foursome contributing good fun throughout.

John Steel, tenor, was runner-up show-stopper with his song repertoire, with Rolle Hudson at the piano. Steel registered on his own but was an additional pushover for this Irish neighborhood. Especially when unleashing "Irish Eyes." Steel contributed five numbers as his regular rep and came back for a reprise of songs from the "Follies" and "Music Box Revue."

Steel was in the deuce, preceded by Reill and Lopell, who opened with a fast line of gymnastics and inserting an adagio travesty for laughs. The legitimate balancing of the men is the backbone of the act. Mae West (not the flamer) also did nicely with the boys in two tap dances spacing the balancing stunts.

Grete Ardine and Johnny Tyrrell got over big with a classy dance flash much above ordinary. Helen Tejan, Keeler Sisters and Leo Stone provided good support for the feature members in the diverting song and dance revue. A nifty closer. Edba.

MAJESTIC, L. A.

Los Angeles, Nov. 27.

Here's a house that's run the gamut from legit to film grind. Now, for the first time, it's turned to a musical tab policy with Jack Russell, who has been up and down the coast for a number of years. His last stint was the Strand, Long Beach, where he held out for over two years.

When Louis MacLoon gave up this downtown stand as a legit hope, it went dark and stayed that way until months later when Fred Siegel took an optimistic five-year lease. Siegel is the fellow who had the original coast rights for "Ingagu." His deal on the Majestic gave him choice of second and downtown spot on all Warner-FN product. Two months of straight films were enough, Siegel deciding to chance stage shows on a combination policy, using outlaw films. There still remains a batch of Warner and First National pictures unplaced on Siegel's contract now undergoing adjustment.

For Siegel the stage policy is a break. Russell is in on a straight percentage with no guarantee whipsawing for everything from the pit back. That goes for the seven musicians, stage hands, actors, etc. Russell is understood to be splitting 50-50 with Siegel on the gross.

On a capacity of about 1,000, the house can play to good dough at a 35-50 cent scale. The 35c is for the balcony.

Russell's first show is entitled "Hello Everybody." Just a name, because it could be called anything. It's probably one of the stock scripts he had in the trunk. Russell, a comic who knows the ins and outs of his business, naturally tops the cast and cops all honors and laughs. It's worth watching a local audience go to pieces over a gag or a piece of business that's plowed many a theatre. Russell, with 34 people in the company, 18 are chorus girls, there's a hoofing trio, male quartet and a specialty singer whose specialty is flat notes. Rest are all stock players including Florence Spurrier, Garrett Price, George Stanley, Ted Ullmark, Evelyn Du Fresne, Jackie Brunea, and Eddie Young.

Three scenes are programed, but two are taken for granted, as there is but one actual set. Scheme of this musical comedy has been seen and heard many times. Interspliced are the specialties by the Three Jays, who hoof through four or five numbers, and the Four Recorders, whose harmonic efforts, together with the hoofing, are waived by the audience in favor of the gags in the show. Specialty item by Faye Childs should stay out. She can't.

For a tab this one runs much too long, over 90 minutes. That was the time clocked at the last performance opening day (Thanksgiving).

For screen portion there was "The Last Dance," made produced by Audible Pictures (J. R. Weiter, Jr.), and the Universal newsreel.

Two and a half hour show for 60 cents and worth it. From the way trade started the first day, with rain, it looked okay. Real answer will come within the next few weeks. The house can always go back to a film grind. Span.

R-K-O, L. A.

Los Angeles, Nov. 27.

Looks like a business week here. House turning 'em away at the second show Thursday afternoon. Part of excess must be chalked to Thanksgiving, but with the good start "See America Thirst" (U), plus a clicking unit, chances are more than customarily favorable.

Vaude show is one of smoothest to date, even though Joe Marks took his time in warming up to show-stopping speed. With his overtures he was on 25 minutes, and that's plenty for a three-people act.

Two Vercell Sisters, with their class dance flash preceded, this being another one of those four-act layouts in which the usual next to closing act (in this case Marks) was spotted to close. Vercells are a snappy dance team and a sister act giving that line of stuff every possible chance. There's a good opening in this act with the little Tiny backing in fast dance routine. Later two fill a gap with a clever drunk dance.

Holiday audience liked the turn in an outstanding way. It plays smoothly, is nicely routined and delivers in highly pleasing fashion.

On No. 2 were Rome and Dunn, yet harmony team. Still one of the best. No. 2 acts that R-K-O can spot. Opener was Archie and Gertie Falls. Act shows strength for start with Gertie in slick web routine. Clowning from there on to finish, excepting for toe catch, team works up to a neat exit.

Dan Russo orchestra appropriate for Thanksgiving, but arrangement not so well carried out. Short, "Mickey's Musketeers" (Radio), and Pathe News minor program units.

R-K-O has a bar set up in the lobby with a free bottle of near beer to every customer. Attracting some attention and tieing up with little if any. Char.

PALACE, CHICAGO

Chicago, Nov. 29.

Evidences are not missing that the public is gradually becoming Palace-conscious. From the start this has been a tough house. It still is. Not alone because so few good pictures are available, but because three blocks—and one of them the coal-black and "dead" City Hall—intervene between the Palace and that part of the loop which is really main stemish in appearance and centrifugal in traffic.

Currently the Palace has Moran and Mack for its headliners, and the reception accorded to the pair erased any vagrant doubts of their popularity. Repeating their names upon two bales of cotton, the Mississippi painted on the backdrop, the boys lazily interrogated one another in the fashion that brought them to fame.

After performing their first chore Saturday afternoon the team taxied to station WGN, at the Hotel Drake, and broadcast at 2:30 a seven-minute original crossfire which was part of the entertainment arranged between halves at the Army-Notre Dame football tussle. This is a sample of the alert efforts now going forward toward making the public Palace-conscious. Giveaways with the football lineups, through the courtesy of R-K-O, were also placed in the hands of the football fans as they approached Soldiers' Field.

It was rather an odd vaude lineup with the oddity not easy to define. Stanley Twins, with a carload of scenery surrounding white spats and some high kicks, opened very spottily. Early part of turn was for all practical purposes just so much time killing. Applause did not make itself known until the girls got into their kicks. This gave them a first down, but at no point did the turn really gain any ground.

Galla-Rini and Sister are still able to bore a hole into the target core. This turn, long standard, lifted the show up and passed the rostrum over to Moran and Mack. It would be unfair to the genuine merits of Evans and Mayer to suggest that they retarded the proceedings, yet, from a booking standpoint, they were not precisely the turn for the spot following the Two Black Crows.

Evans and Mayer are interesting as an approach to modern day vaudeville. In that they do almost nothing, but do it surpassingly well. They have, too, the cute knack of being different. They work entirely on the far right side of the stage, just between the drums and the trumpet. They observe no traditional rules in starting their turn, and they end what is presumably a singing turn on a spoken gag. At no time do they permit the audience to guess what's next. In some measure they mislead the audience to expect a more generous application of the hokum lathe. There can be no question that they individually were safely across at the bends.

Max and Henry Gandsmith, with their dogs, closed with their usual laughs. "The Dancers" (Fox) is another so-so picture for the Palace.

Pretty good attendance despite weather. Land.

HIPPODROME

Hip's improved biz has been making the big barn a bit easier for acts lately. The huge place is so cold by nature the customers' blood can't rise above lukewarm, but lukewarm here is boiling most anywhere else. Hip's big draw for the bargain show of eight acts and a picture, "Doorway to Hell" (WB), filled up early Saturday afternoon and helped create an illusion of warmth. Perhaps also because it was so cold outside. Anyway, the reflection appeared in applause and generally in the attitude toward the stage entertainment.

Tradition says anything but Iceberg reception for acts at the Hip is a revolutionary departure.

If nothing else the Hip's two hours of vaude can be pleasant accompaniment for a sound nap. For a view of mass snoring in a theatre, see the gallery. They all sleep up there or smoke giggles. All supposedly awake have that glassy stare. When someone sings loud enough to reach the mountain peak, the boys awaken and listen. The next turn, especially if a talk turn, sends them back to slumber. Joseph Regan sang loudest Saturday and did best on the show. His edge probably is the singing. If there's any place where Regan's singing is better liked than over on 10th avenue, it's over on Sixth in the 40's, where the Hippodrome stands. Eddie Lenihan's report on Regan for Flushing says the same thing in sweeter words. With Eddie nowadays any Lenihan talk is like the breath of auld Erin, even if the fourth tosser in an adagio quartet. It happens that Regan does as well at the Palace.

Sight stuff most of the way this week, with the bookers now on. When the house was improperly booked in the past the audiences got on first and stayed away. Now the talk is held down to minimum and there only for variety. Space makes the Hip quite a booking

(Continued on page 45)

AVALON, CHICAGO

Chicago, Nov. 24.

Persuaded, admittedly, by an article in "Variety" regarding the success of vaudeville at the Symphony, this 650-seat house with a 30c top is willing to find out for itself. If vaudeville can be made to click on a six-foot platform with exit space on each side only wide enough for actors to squeeze through—and squeeze is the word, and with only a piano for accompaniment, the Avalon will prove something. Vaudeville could hardly be presented under greater mechanical hardships.

Charley Zemater, hopeful independent booker, has lined up quite a few small dates in this vicinity and has in mind a total of 20 one or two-day stands. When reaching this goal with the Avalon as an unit, Zemater feels he will then be in a position to get much better acts than are now obtainable.

It would be an unkindness to judge acts under the conditions here caught. It was entirely a new departure for a straight sound theatre, and the performance was viewed at a matinee packed with kids whose laughter was detached from any particular understanding of what was going on. Suffice that at least a month of Sundays will be needed for a fair and full test of the policy. In a theatre operating on such a small margin of profit, the auspices do not always regard patience in such matters as a virtue or good business.

Because of the narrowness of the rostrum Sailor Ford, corpulent to start with and further encumbered with a knapsack, could not get through the tiny aperture between backwall (screen) and proscenium. He accordingly made his entrance somewhat awkwardly through a fire exit and paraded down the aisle and up onto the stage tooting a trumpet.

Other acts participating in the revels were Sherman and Wallace, Edna and Jack Major, and Ray Conlin. Three acts were booked but the agency, anxious to please, added a fourth gratis. It meant something less than $100 added to the overhead of a theatre that probably averages $1,200-$1,400 weekly.

House is surrounded by plenty of opposition although none is immediately adjacent. Recourse to gifts, premiums, and giveaways of all kinds is a regular part of house policy. Sateen pillows, Sunday night feature, is particularly effective in drawing adults.

For the kids anything and everything is employed. Magic seeds, the trick each day, are given to them. Guinea pigs and white rats are also regarded as sure bait for kids, while ice cream and cookies matinees dispose of 800 portions in a 650-seat house, the sort of arithmetic kids enjoy. Land.

PARAMOUNT, N. Y.

New York, Nov. 28.

This week's display at the Publix ace has all the odd corners fitting, so the weekly puzzle rounds out as it should—an animated and smooth running picture house show. If anybody thinks turning out one of these units a week isn't a puzzle, ask the man who goes nuts trying to whip them in shape. But everybody in the trade generally understands what a job it is. Hence, when a program comes through which doesn't dynamite an audience in any one spot, but does put together a generally pleasing two hours and a half, it's worth notating.

It's this type of show more than a layout crammed with fireworks which will do the presentation houses the most good. Those sock shows only happen once in a couple of moons, and, when they do, it makes a bum out of the incoming unit which can't follow it.

As regards "Fountains of Melody" there's nothing great about it, except that it continuously entertains to the point which will send 'em out saying, "A nice show this week." Units and vaudeville don't have to be bombastic. Steer them clear of being bad and with a fair to middlin' break from the screen feature, the program as a whole isn't going to draw many squawks from the wayfarers. And, even a stretch of 52 weeks such an average would be Utopia. The theatre boys know how seldom a smash picture comes along. But that's the reason for units. With enough combinations such as this unit plus "Fast and Loose" (Par) the reasons may lessen for Nancy Carrolls at $5,000. Will Rogers at $12,500, and George Bancrofts at plenty. The Paramount is worth taking a look at this week to absorb what a normal and all around pleasing lineup should be. It entails no unordinary expense and for flavor includes a minor coast Paramount studio youth on a personal appearance, Stanley Smith.

The unit is down to 39 minutes, no overture and the trailer is away from the newsreels. Leo Reisman tosses off three numbers in eight minutes, Jesse Crawford is snapping up his organ recitations a bit, and there are actually five news clips for a full eight minutes. Eureka—it can be done! Besides which the house got in its plug for the other Broadway Publix sites besides the special trailer footage for the following week's film leader, and everybody was happy. Maybe Publix has finally found a layout schedule it can stick to.

Reisman is using 33 men in his orchestra for "Three Little Words," "The Peanut Vendor," and "St. James Infirmary." Public isn't wise to this eccentric baton waver yet. Their silent attitude expresses a mute diagnosing as to just what he is trying to do. They don't know whether he's on the level or not. Who does? But they can't resist the orchestration Reisman is pouring at 'em. It's a lot of music and for just three numbers no hardship. Besides which a femme heel tapper and a couple of accompanists vary the routine during the "Vendor" item.

Thence the trailers and Crawford, the latter drawing neat support from the enlarged stereopticon effects which this circuit adopted. And they help. It's aquatic week for Jesse inclusive of a demonstration of pedal manipulation via "Asleep in the Deep." But the finish, a march, carries a showmanlike climax in the enlarged stills giving way to animated newsreel shots of the fleet under way with a pip shot of one of the big ship's coming bow on while taking a tossing from the briny. That's selling it 100% besides making use of those wide angle projection lenses.

Unit carries a picturesque enough set to catch applause on the first flash. It also unfolds the Mildred Harris harp ensemble of six girls, comedy male quartet, femme acrobatic dancer, and a soprano. Not forgetting the usual dozen girls, this time from that saddle and hoof man, Allan Foster. The quartet, Fitz and Murphy Brothers, is of the vintage of '05 unto a policewoman, Hicks, tramp and straight man, Foursome is strung throughout the presentation also working up a bit to introduce Smith. Latter, flaunting a pleasing appearance, contented himself with two vocal numbers nicely delivered. Second item is a medley of film ditties. Youngster isn't probably well enough known as yet to mean a great deal as a draw, but lends a pleasing angle and he's billed above the stage show. Other individualists are normal but have been worked in to advantage.

A good all-around show and should be worth watching to see what it does for business. There's nothing special to drag them in but it figures to send them out satisfied. Sid.

FOX, BKLYN

Fanchon & Marco "Hollywood Collegians" unit is framed around a band act, versatile 15-piece combo, that delivers sweet harmony and rhythm, whose value is doubly enhanced through the use of original lighting effects that provoke applause and admiration.

Probably the hardest working member of this troupe is the electrician, responsible for the three color effects that light up the heads and shoulders of the boys handling the instruments.

Small pedestals inconspicuously placed close to the music stands flash when the arrangements used call for the various sections of the band to take up the tune. The varicolored baby spots light up the fentures of the boys on a platform before black drapes. Lights go out flashing the stage dark half the time, so that the rhythmic illumination registers in telling style. Even tube lights are worked into the lighting, probably the first time that new style of illumination has been effectively employed by a stage band.

Only two people are billed in this unit—Dorothy Crooker, blonde high kick specialist, who delivers nicely on two tries, and Guy Buck, probably the band's leader, whose announcements are brief and to the point, 'No stalling m. c. around to slow up the works is another unique feature of this unit, mounted and routined in a way that spells plenty of time and thought spent on production.

Three of the boys are standouts, with a couple of comedy songs surefire for laughs, one a "voodeovdo" affair, "Mah-hah-hah-hadoop" tune and all songs of that character. "Sing That Bass," done by the trio, is also special material, sung while the two bass players do their specialty. This bit brings in the tube lighting effect on the bull fiddles, making a fine flash on a dark stage.

Musical trip around the world, which uses "St. Louis Blues" as a thematic, gives several of the boys a crack at boke comedy, simple props being used to get the laughs across. That marks the height of this act's versatility, a banjo solo in "one" that follows being a dull spot.

Jacked up a bit towards the finish, this unit should find the going easy in any of the deluxe picture houses with their modulat d brand of music and distinctly different use of color lighting.

Screen held "Oh, for a Man" (Fox) and Fox Movietone News.

Biz at the first show Saturday afternoon resembled, the Brooklyn folks taking advantage of the bargain scale in effect.

ROXY

New York, Nov. 28.

Stage show depends for its effects upon several elaborate spectacles, specially brilliant in color tones, and upon its always excellent dance ensembles. Feature for the week is Will Rogers' first character part in "Lightnin'" (Fox), and an attraction sure to show important figures at the box office, even if about to start in on the pre-Christmas lull in theatre attendance.

Opening is a stage presentation as background for a choral handling of Rubenstein's "Melody in F" with a ballet as incidental and a striking solo dance bit by Patricia Bowman. Setting is a garden scene with the people in Empire costume and the pictorial composition in the best Roxy manner.

"Clowning" is really a Roxyette precision routine with built-up appurtenances, the punch of the episode being the girls in clown costume seated on half a circus ring for arm drills and the trick effects of a waving line as the girls rise and sit one after the other, ending up with the trick of a collapse starting at one end of the line and progressing to the other. Neatly framed novelty.

Fox Movietone newsreel inserted with another of the "Mr. Fear and Mr. Courage" shorts and the news clips cut to only three or so, an arrangement that didn't help any.

Thence into the principal presentation item, "The Gypsy Dancer," a fragmentary story told in pantomime with a musical background. Opens with a stereopticon display of playing cards on the drop, fading into a Gypsy camp fortune teller upon whose spoken words gigantic cards appear, Queen of Hearts for the Gypsy girl, King of Hearts for the lover and Queen of Diamonds for the grand lady, all of whom figure in the story. Story is sketchily set forth of the Gypsy girl being deserted by the lover in favor of the lady of birth.

Scene shifts to a palace garden set for the wedding scene of lover and the lady with the Gypsy band in attendance to provide dancing for the wedding guests. Miss Bowman returns for another dramatic dance with Leonide Massine as the Gypsy chief, with the assembled wedding guests supplying the vocal setting for the scenes.

Colorful pageantry and a neatly framed dramatic story give the presentation first rate interest, with a novel comedy bit slipped in in the form of a prop cow that does absurd dances, including toe routines, the figure being worked by Lo Iven and Ruth Flynn. All ends up with the sorrowing departure of the jilted Gypsy girl as the center of a tableau of the scope possible nowhere except at the cathedral.

Feature runs nearly an hour and forty minutes, which cuts into the time usually allotted to the surrounding program. Rush.

LOEW'S STATE, L. A.

Los Angeles, Nov. 27.

Judged by its frame-work Fanchon & Marco's "Dance" idea, as produced by LeRoy Prinz will develop into a good unit. It's trouble opening day (Thanksgiving) was a hash of haphazard material tossed in to fill out the running time.

Among the immaterial matter was an ancient burlesque blackout worked by Gene Morgan, m. c. and Patsy Boland, flashy blonde who still hadn't found a niche for herself when she sang a ballad and walked off for good. Also, the 'cello solo done with much preliminary comedy by Maurie Amsterdam. Gene Morgan's music arranger, conflicted with the regular act of Earl Sanderson, who doubles on numerous instruments.

Of especial appeal is the ballet of 16 girls, upon whom falls the burden of carrying the dance idea. Shapely, pretty and talented, the girls at all times attract and hold attention. Their first appearance is in a parade behind a scrim, showing an identical rhythm in the types of dance from early jungle tribal demonstrations to the present. Preceding this is a screen trailer explaining the idea. Not particularly forte, but interesting.

Next routine used ballet slippers on one foot and tap shoes on the other, permitting a snappy combination of the two types of dance. Very well done by the girls.

Maurie Amsterdam, 'cellolst with comedy makeup, wasted time in some aimless humor before settling down for his short, serious role. It was a mild period. Later Earl Sanderson displayed his talents on trombone, saxophone, banjo, accordion and even three clarinets at once, nullifying the earlier Amsterdam routine in a resounding click.

Ballet on again in an Evolution of the Dance thing, not clearly defined, but generally understandable in its torrid grind finale. Gents relished it immensely.

Gene Morgan, who talks volubly and sings just for a gag, was rather passively received as m. c. He's in for two weeks, with Eddie Peabody replacing.

Parisian routine by the girls identified them as beyond the average aggregation and indicated what excellent support a decent lineup can give a unit.

Finale featured Fay Adler and Ted Bradfield, leaders of an adagio quartet comprising three men and a girl. Theirs is a sensational tossaround routine, climaxing in the now familiar human rope-skipping bit. Act scored powerfully and furnished a strong windup for the stage show.

Stronger material in the unit's mid-section would result in a surefire layout.

On the screen were "Scotland Yard" (Fox), Metro Dogville comedy and "Flip the Frog" cartoon short (Metro). Outside line didn't materialize Thanksgiving day until well into the second show, which is no riot for holiday business. Bang.

Hollywood, Detroit

Detroit, Nov. 28.

Writer has been told that shows caught here not the best shown that this house plays; shows not caught very much better. Unfortunate in not being supplied with a route sheet, still seems unable to catch a good show.

This one is far from the "good." In fact, it might almost be said to be from hunger. Or perhaps double dixie might be nearer the spot of its origin. Booking is supposed to be R-K-O, with Dick Hortman reported responsible. Sol Berns, local, used to do better than anything so far that has been seen out here.

They cry for entertainment here. What a handicap the m. c., Eddie Loughton is under. Boy belongs in a class house with a production department behind him. That he does nobly in his surroundings is much to his credit. It is understood a contract with the local management prevented him from going with Publix, although an attempt was made several weeks ago to get this boy by that organization.

Still sticking to the three vaude acts, including flash act, and built up like a presentation with a band on the stage. This week Will Ellsworth and his little sextet to introduce a looker seldom seen in this type of house, Betty Fraser, who did a tap routine that was nice but merely served to bring out a beautiful blond who got over on her looks. Russell and Marconi scored with an instrumental act and crooning by Russell.

Arthur Ward, juggler and dancer, did a part in giving entertainment. This lad who scores more on his juggling than his dancing, muggs a little too much, but stopped the show.

Night caught giveaway of 50 turkeys, interrupting the stage show for 1 hour and 38 min. But still the natives lingered. Bob Clarke at the organ almost brought the house down with the singing response. All in all a good time.

This audience gives this Loughton a response the downtown houses seem to have lost. In the time here he has achieved a comraderie with the audience the large houses are missing. Lee.

R-K-O MAYFAIR, N. Y.

New York, Nov. 29.

In its second month, new dress and all-picture policy, courteous handling of crowds and smoothness of routine is just as conspicuous a factor as the lack of it in the old Columbia of burlesque days.

Saturday, right through the supper show, would prove to any skeptic that what's true of one Broadway theatre is characteristic of most. The picture every time.

"Sin Takes a Holiday" is certain hold-over for a couple of weeks yet to come. It scored from the time it opened, through this writing.

A comfortable mezzanine and well heated while some of those in the older emporiums were comparatively chilly, made standees at home. Smoking permitted in this space is a big asset in the way of restfulness. There is a noticeable lack of bustle and pre-emptory military tactics of ushers in practically all of the stunt houses.

The Mayfair boys, while "Sir" or "Mister" to each other, can click the heels but not make the patron feel he is witnessing some maneuvers of disappointed West Pointers.

Cute gag here is that a tiny page is the honorary escort for special privilege people. He "Misters" and is "Mistered."

If these boys don't wander around too much in their spare time and acquire the would-be sophisticated slant of most of the uniformed help on Broadway it won't be long before the Mayfair will get a rep just on its ability to handle fans.

Probably because of s. r. o. conditions the ventilation was poor. This was apparent upstairs where a stuffiness prevailed late Saturday afternoon.

Handling of the reproducing apparatus and the screen okay. The house shows expertness here. Waly.

PARAMOUNT, L. A.

Los Angeles, Nov. 27.

Thanksgiving, a natural kid picture in "Tom Sawyer" and a three-day school vacation should take the Paramount away above the line this week. Turkey day opening had them in line at noon and kept a mob on the sidewalk until after the second show.

Eastern unit might have been produced with the kids in mind the way it worked out. Dick Henderson, Al Latell in his dog imitations and Norman and Rio, eccentric dancers, had the juves yelling. Henderson started with his usual vaude routine, but when he lamped the youngsters switched to a flock of English pantomime gags, and had the youngsters working with him. Allan Kane, m. c., had little to do outside of swinging the stick. The Gomez trio, Spanish dancers, in a fast routine of castinet clicking and hoofing, furnished what adult entertainment was evidenced.

Presentation carries the title of "Oh Baby Follies." Doll dance of the line girls and a song about a toy shop alibies the burlesque handle.

Line girls are on three times, doing tambourine, doll and one routine. Ensembles are well staged and register.

Pit band is on the stage for the entire 30 minutes. Under the direction of Charles Manning in the pit, it played a Thanksgiving overture, "Plymouth Rock." Number finished with a locally recruited choir of 12 singing "Going Home" and Handel's "Largo." Very effective and came near stopping the proceedings. Band is about the best all-around aggregation in town.

Earl Abel at the organ had a tough time getting the mob singing. Too much food in the bags.

Par news clips and Chesterfield's advertising trailer filled the bill. Paramount is still sticking its advance trailers in the middle of the newsreel, which cuts the news down to two clips this week. Call.

GRAUMAN'S CHINESE

(Hollywood)

Hollywood, Nov. 25.

Equally as interesting as the highly ballyhooed advent of the new personality picture girl (Marlene Dietrich) was the elaborate Fanchon & Marco prolog which Larry Ceballos staged, bringing back the Chinese to all its glory of the past when elaborate stage presentations were as much an attraction of this atmospheric theatre as the screen spectacle.

So elaborately and picturesquely have F&M put on their "Moorish Melodic Panorama," as it is captioned, that there is some criticism within the Paramount studio that the stage portion nullified the general atmospheric effect of faithfully planting the native locale which Josef von Sternberg attempted to do in "Morocco."

The Paramount picture, especially on the ballyhoo for the German picture girl, Miss Dietrich, almost repeated itself on doing a Chevalier in that once again a foreign screen personality was too much over-sold. Los Angeles, Hollywood, Beverly Hills and environs are generously plastered with billboards heralding the birth of a new star and the $5 customers expected a lot.

General opinion is that the Chinese has a good show generally, both screen and stage—that the picture, while not stupendous or epochal in the Hollywood sense, is good general entertainment.

The stage show looks like $4,000 to $5,000 and costs half. Great break for Paramount on its percentage split for the celluloid through. Marco buying up a lot of people reasonably and dovetailing them into a real flash. The twice daily schedule was one reason why a number of people modified their salaries for this engagement.

The entire Moorish panorama is replete with all the mysticism, color and buncombe of the Orient, bringing in an assortment of levitation tricks, cutting-a-woman-in-half hokes, fire-eating, whirlwind Arabian dervishes, dancing girls, Moorish instrumentalists, lights, shadows, gay splashes of color, the priest on high in his minaret, etc. It is the priestly call at sundown, as the Moors kneel towards the west at the end of the day, that makes for a pip curtain finale.

The two girl stars of the unit are Marietta, an extraordinary acrobatic dance specialist who was in "Scandals," and who whammed 'em, and Armanda Chirot. Latter is a petite Mexican prima and proved equally distinguished in her opportunities.

The most memorable flash specialist of the presentation is Hadja Ali, an added starter, who does one of those acts where he apparently swallows generous portions of aqua pura, kerosene, etc., and spits out flames of fire which are later extinguished by a human fountain effect created by the gallons of water stored in him.

The Ali Ben Hassan troupe of whirlwind Arabs scored with their fast ground tumbling, especially the be-moustached lightnin' tumbler, Ferdinand and Co. do the levitation specialty. Eva Nightingale handles the basket trick. The Damascus Artists are the street musicians, atmospherically spotted. Gay, Bert and Dare, doing one of those three-some adagio routines, are likewise professional. Ada May Engard is the snake artiste.

(Continued on page 45)

GRAUMAN'S CHINESE

(Continued from page 44)

There are 20 girls and 20 male voices for the general background. Entire stage personnel numbers 60 people and the $2,500 cost to the house is a tribute to F&M's smart showmanship and a great break for the general percentage split between the Chinese and Par. In on 70-30 above the house nut.

Georgie Stoll's corking pit direction also rates commendation. He and his trench unionists are in the characteristic costumes of the Foreign Legionnaires.

Marietta makes her entrance on a camel and a donkey is also there, along with the other live-stock contributions towards a realistic Moorish street scene. Presentation runs 30 minutes and is crammed with novelty and nuance, quickly shifting, blending and dovetailing from one highlight to the other.

Xavier Cugat's Curtain of Stars still remains for the overture flash. Paramount, Fox and Hearst newsreels followed. Feature was marred twice by projection booth breaks, rather untoward circumstances for such a gala premiere.

Paramount for first time is spending money along with the theatre on its picture, although not doing it for its own houses.

Par also went for a makeshift radio broadcasting studio in the foyer with John P. Medbury, the Hearst columnist—who went heavy on plugging Hearst—doing the announcing on a 2-hour broadcasting hook-up. Medbury got paid for his comedy interpolations which were cued to alternate with his announcements of personalities.

"Variety's" reviewer took advantage of one of those "say a few words" routines by slipping in a plug for "Variety" for which the rag may yet get a bill. Abel.

IMPERIAL, TORONTO

Toronto, Nov. 29.

With Chevalier on screen, Arnaut Bros. on stage, and billing announcing Jack Pepper's final week here as m. c. back of house packed with standees tonight (29) with last show well under way.

Arnaut boys still doing the bird teasing act with whistling duo, registering heavily with material they have been using annually in local vaude houses for years. Feathered pantomimes have big following here and had no difficulty in getting over. Novelty turn still fresh and a laugh-getter.

Pepper and this pair share the week's honors, with the kid singing three numbers and three choruses of final song before customers stop applauding. Pepper has been here for five weeks now. Although he was a little uncertain of himself during the first fortnight, Helen Kane's appearance irked him with pep and ginger. M. c.'ing fairly new to this town, but natives beginning to get accustomed to innovation.

Timely stage presentation is presumably a tie-up with opening of hunting season here. Four Carlton Bros. in "two" with quartet in hunting togs doing a tap routine, punctuated with Mahoney falls.

Ballet comes out on full stage with band at back on dais. Girls in salmon chiffon and plumed headdress add flash to an already elaborate and pretentious setting of silver birches, blue sky and sunken garden effects, doing neat formation work notable for precision and discipline. Unbilled girl singles with violin number on toes and registers. She is Lillian Magner, protege of Jack Arthur in the old Strand-brown days, but girl is not recognized and wins on merit.

Pepper follows with "Never Swat a Fly," nut song drawing laughs. Encores with two. Baby-talk delivery goes over with femmes and calls for three additional choruses, with Pepper getting biggest applause since his first here five weeks ago. Horace (Collar) Lapp, pit band leader, does the piano accompaniment and good-naturedly takes a lot of kidding from the m. c.

Ballet back on stage in a novelty rooster stunt, girls in feathered costumes and masks. Arnauts follow in act lasting 10 minutes. Color-bet back for finale, girls this time in yellow feathered costumes. Colorful, swift-moving finish with huge cut-out descending on girls and representing them imprisoned in cage.

"Playboy of Paris," feature, and news reel. Sindlar.

CHICAGO

Chicago, Nov. 28.

Arthur Brisbane, the humorist, might have walked unsuspectingly into the Chicago theatre at the first show, thinking it was the Board of Trade, and started to wise about the day before yesterday. Brisbane might have said:

No doubt, if he were here, Samuel Clemens, popularly known as Mark Twain, would have been pleased to see the outpouring of people who paid their hard-earned money in this time of depression (don't sell your country short!) to see the pictorial presentation of his famous book, "Tom Sawyer," produced by the Paramount-Publix corporation. The motion picture industry continues to make pictures and does not worry itself about Japan's earthquakes, which worry Japan.

Probably the only thing that will keep this beautiful house from establishing a new record high this week will be the number of children (every child deserves the benefits of a thorough education!) who will come in at half price. The bookers were afraid that this picture wouldn't attract the public, but the public makes their own decisions. Years from now when you will be able to fly around the world for $1.20, all this will have been forgotten.

This week's stage show at the Chicago is called "Rushin' Rhythm," while Russia herself continues to prosper under the present government and sells wheat. Maybe this country ought to sell something. The people themselves are nothing for international banks, and would probably be just as happy to eat their dinner at somebody else's house.

Heading the show were a couple of actors working, for convenience sake, under the title of Webb and Douglas. Most people won't even take the trouble to remember that. The forerunner of this act was Harry Webb's Entertainers. The present act is a rather jerky affair, and may be said to be poorly routined. Opens with cross-fire talk between Milton Douglas and Harry Webb, with Webb in the audience as the gagging stooge. Perhaps it all might just as well have taken place on the stage in full view of the audience. Instead of making the greater portion of the house depend solely on their ears. Ears are no laughing matter. Perhaps some day some of our eminent scientists will be able to do away with them. But it won't help matters any. Russia will continue to sell wheat.

Lou Holtz, in the same act, two girls enter, from nowhere. One clowns, the other dances, and so does Douglas. Webb pulls off some of his old hokum bits, and some children laughed. Germany would probably laugh herself while she proceeds to build 500,000-ton commercial ships that can be converted into fighting cruisers in time of war.

There are two other acts. The Morosco Brothers are a pair of hoofers, opening with a neat semi-drunk comedy dance. Then they do a wooden soldiers bit because of the Russian atmosphere. People probably enjoyed this act, and didn't think for a minute of the time when their grandfather had to be satisfied with one nightshirt. People rarely think of progress as associated with nightshirts.

Last act was the Russian Art Trio. They have an idea, but it's too subtle. They are probably better suited for legit chance. Indulge in a bit of their quiet burlesque. Their material is not exactly to the tastes of Chicago flappers. Flappers don't realize that Russia continues to sell wheat.

Al Evans is present as master of ceremonies. Evans has progressed nicely since installed here some months ago. He is at ease and more at home with himself and his audience, even managing a few bits of comedy now and then. Evans started out as a pianist, though he sometimes sings. Canaries sing, and you can buy them for a few dollars. People rarely think of such things. Brisbane has to do all that for them.

OLYMPIA, CHICAGO

(NEW)

Chicago, Nov. 26.

"Children—5c."

With this sign the Olympia opened, and the big people's theatre around the corner plastered its front with a sign that read, "Children—5c."

Once more the exhibitors learn that indiscriminate price-cutting gets them nowhere. The Olympia, a small 600-seat house, like the People's downtown 2,000, will find itself steadily losing trade.

Bland Bros., who operate five small spots in the city, own the Olympia. It is one step above the shooting gallery, with cheap seats in doors, thin green paint and misspelled mottoes on the marquee. Situated in the heart of the foreign district in the stockyards neighborhood, its only draw is from its price list, which gets 20c top at night, with kids at half that, while mats go for 15c and a nickel. Only reopening followed a refurbishing brought about by the widening of Ashland Ave., which necessitated slicing about 12 feet off the front of the house. Theatre has been closed since July and reopened to tremendous business, with more acts trying to sneak in through the rear exit doors than were willing to plank down, or had the dough to plank down, at the b.o.

It's going to be tough for the Olympia. There's very little trade in the immediate neighborhood. Natives are all non-English-speaking foreigners who never go to shows, not even in the silent days. Those customers that come in from other districts are going to head for the Schoenstadt's People's around the corner, where they'll see newer pictures in a more de luxe atmosphere. Olympia's only chance is from the kids and more of them will sneak in the rear doors than pay at the front.

Other competition for this house is the Crystal to the south and the Boulevard to the north, both running ahead of the Olympia. Opening feature, "Man Trouble" (Fox).

Double features give the house no out, since it is doubtful whether the house could take in enough to get off the nut. And even if the house did go for the double program the big competitor around the corner could give 'em three pictures with their seating capacity.

Both of the Bland boys hold cards in the operators' union. I understood that one of them is the booth man at the Olympia, as a means of cutting down on the expense. It's a sure $125 weekly.

ENRIGHT, PTSBGH.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 28.

A skimpy production, this "Harvest Moon," padded too much with band and chorus, and hardly an attractive Thanksgiving menu. This East Liberty deluxer has been turning out some nifty little stage shows lately, but this one is a let-down, with little or no audience appeal excepting the regular house fixtures, including Dick Powell, m. c.

Nothing to it, and little Dorothy Bushey, back in line again, but who occasionally still steps out for specialties with Powell, stealing what few curve is to steal. This tiny Bushey gal bears watching as a musical personality. Warners would do well to turn a little attention to her development. At $25 or $30 a week, or whatever it is they pay the cherines here, she's got an all-over look of the so-called personality girls they bring in at 10 times that figure. This afternoon the kid insisted her number with Powell, hot-footed it for the dressing room after three or four bows to change back into her line costume, and the mob was still pounding their mits. Powell sang in his band next for couple of numbers, some hoke "Hallelujah" stuff on "Sing Something Simple" getting over. Production number featured Arlene and Norman Selby in nice ballroom dance that looked pretty but didn't mean a thing. Gal almost a dead ringer for Dove and gave a little flash to an ordinary routine.

Ed and Morton Beck and Frank Murphy, latter from band, worked a whiskered blackout with Powell, and Miss Bushey that didn't help any, with Beck boys being introduced at conclusion for their own specialties. Something's happened to this team in last couple of years; they're not the sure-fire act they once were, and went cold here. Opened with their old and familiar "Window Washers" song, then into a sour burlesque on how Barrymore would sing a love song, and also closing dramatically though for the first time on high with "Song of the Fool."

Chorus closed with some tan-skin shaking, Selbys coming on for finish.

Picture, "The Truth About Youth" (FN) and Johnny Mitchell's organ-log. Cohen.

ORPHEUM, CHICAGO

(NEW)

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Within a block and one-half of the world's busiest corner, where it is estimated some 75,000 tread daily, Warner Bros. took a chance recently and cut down the seating capacity of the Orpheum from 730 to 664. The cutting and redecorations cost about $75,000. Also 18 days were lost when the house was torn while all the 18-inch seats were tossed into the alley for 22-inch pews.

Today the house falls in the intimate classification, with all the billing stressing this fact. Once, a few years ago, because of its location and dim lights, the spot was rated for couples who never knew the name of the show when they finally ended up in the air outside.

All this has been changed, with the new manager, R. P. Morey, coming from the Highland theatre here to replace Max Slor, who has been promoted to district manager of the Chicago south-side. Mr. Morey has also his ushers instructed to watch hands for any hand or strangle hold of couples. Because the theatre is billed as "intimate" doesn't mean necessarily, in the verse of Mr. Morey.

To offset the old days Warner Bros. are slipping first-run attractions into the house. Everything about the house, including the lighting system, is new. It presents a pleasing effect and is one of the State street houses being with-problem. After the Belclair Bros. interesting acrobatics in the opener, William El Cota gave them some avi-phoring and encored with a bird pass El Cota moderately. He then chose the suicide route with two encores, both unwarranted. The single billing for the two-act is a new name for an old turn formerly El Cota and Brenes. There's no getting out of the small time rut without showmanship and the two copped encores were anything but.

HIPPODROME

(Continued from page 43)

Bill's most effective youthfulness came early, No. 3, in form of the Gray family. The speedy alternating in singles, pairs, doubles and upward by this clean-cut bunch of kids came in handy in its spot as it would have anywhere on the bill. Of the four girls and two boys none seemed more than 22 or so, with the youngest, a blue-eyed lad, apparently around 16. Youth is the big bone of the act and a most helpful setting for the high geared variety work.

Chaz Chase's strictly pantomimic routine had the advantage of hitting all over the house with nothing more than wordless fun produced from the audience. His frigid match and unlike eating starved the undamaged act proper. Chase has finally included something new, a bathtub scene in a wash basket, held in cot for the finish and fared better than usual.

Howard and Laurie's production act of backings and sit-ting scenes, with the popular conception of a seaside amusement park, Six people, Laurie's abrupt insertion of a lengthy wop dialect monolog and song single was a blow to continuity. He needed his parody verses on pops to square the staying time. Might be better to spread this around in equal proportion to Jules Howard's comedy playing. Latter leading his Dutch cop holdover from burlesque and wears the uniform all the way. A musty bedroom blackout does surprisingly well as the finish of an act that held so much singing earlier in the 19 minutes' running. Where they don't go for blackouts, or where this one happens to be, still a mystery. Taking a chance at the finish. Began was sixth, between Howard-Laurie and Eddie Borden, with Borden deserving of his next-to-closing spot on merit and results. Kluting's Entertainers, canines among the standouts in that line, closed.

During the break between shows the upstairs sleepers stretched and yawned. Turnover seemed small for the number of seats filled, but stairs crowd was considerably augmented. Boys up there apparently were sticking for another show; not so much for the show as for more sleep. Bige.

STATE

Five acts with Whoopee" (UA) and Jans and Whalen on top. Vaude end ran fast and smoothly with the Lovejoy Dancers present in this Loew house after at the Palace (RKO) the previous week. Business unusually good Monday matinee; mild downstairs and in the loge section, with the balcony maybe a quarter.

Male comics, who can't find a show that's got any staying power, were next to closing and cleaned as they figured to do. They were preceded by Marshall Montgomery (New Acts), and Helen Lynd, No. 2. Latter is adhering to her former schedule of a couple of songalogue stars and one for the finishing. Currently using a Garbo "Anna Christie" interpretation as a finish, calling for much lung power and close enough to salve the peasants.

Fred Sylvester also continues as of yore, although now with three midgets instead of two. It remains an interesting and well paced acrobatic act, varying considerably from its speed ability and novelty, but would appear to even better advantage if Sylvester, as a cop, would break into that opening dance of the three midgets and dance into "two" for the act to time.

Lovejoy outfit closed well enough the house standing for the Cantor colored specials.

Pit crew rounds out a fine vaude orchestra in the deep. Fed.

R-K-O UNIT

(Chester, New York)

This unit was about the finest for its heaviest punch and art of its speed. That came with a Diamond Boys, No. 4, and lost, for the applause into the organ introduction to the feature picture. Up to then things had moved slowly, but without entertainment but there's no place found in most of the R-K-O road intacts.

Diamond boys, Hoshie and the two kids, with a young girl, 13, now brought on to get the kick-off engaged at the finish, are a corking extremely hard act in their present setup. It has the comic mugging and playing any time anywhere through the efforts. At one point, following the most accurate bit of knocking around, Hoshie remarked: "And three a day." He said the thankful for that, when the two chairs he threw and on the work ends to seem still be much tougher, but the Diamonds never hit it so hard, nor as long as I saw.

The two kids do a swing around either side of the stage and on the return crash into each other so hard the illusion is that the presentation is cracking. They catch Hoshie in the middle of the cyclorama smash. That and the acrobatic dancing cinch the offering, with the songs and "cute" stuff as effective in their way.

Roxy LaRocca led the audience whistling and singing for 14 minutes with his step-ladder in the center. When they respond they must be enjoying it, and they responded here. But it's always wished that Roxy would play one straight, as he's aharpist above the commonplace class and that sets him off with few others.

Ann Seymour, on third, completed a hit performance with her closing special lyric, stacking up a neat score for a smart single woman before a neighborhood audience, then encored with the tandem juke number with brother Harry. Playing has lent polish to Miss Seymour's routine and never was there anything wrong with her delivery.

Miles Seymour supplied the boobs among the women on this show. Five Jewels (New Acts), the eighth, is all-femme, but well covered under gold wigs and gowns. They are ageless.

Pit orchestra went ultra-novel as a flesh trailer for "Check and Double Check" (the name week pianist and trombone player in blackface did a couple minutes of talk as Amos 'n' Andy. And lousy. Has an attempt to be different and interesting at that.

"The Cat Creeps" (U), feature, with about two-thirds in the cold weather Friday night. Bige.

86TH STREET

Charlie Fox (New Acts) has dropped the single doing and surrounded himself with a bunch of stooges and two dancing lookers. It's a slam-bang affair with plenty noise. Maybe that's why the kids liked it so much. Either way, good comedy.

Tinova and Ralkon, class dancers, opened the bill with style with three specialties in "full." First ballroom dance, followed by a tango and closes with a ballet-adagio. During the latter the girl took the solo not for some interpretative ballet work, proving herself an able danseuse. Ralph Peters, assisting, tried hard to be funny with songs and dances but failed.

Sylvia Fross (New Acts) was a pleasing songstress with a nice voice for songs, well received. Club juggling of the Three Swifts had no trouble. All three are adept with the clubs. Opening, where one chap announces that his partner won't be able to appear and another on to fill in, is somewhat stilted now by overuse.

Housed doing four a day over the week-end with Amos 'n' Andy's "Check and Double Check" (Radio), which stays all week. House held a crowd for the second show Saturday. Plenty kids.

Pathe Sound News.

SCALA

(BERLIN)

Berlin, Nov. 7.

There likely are not many Berlin people who have not seen and heard Rastelli. His juggling with his loved balls of all sizes and weights are incomparable. He is here with new tricks that will add to his old snowmanship.

Then there is the Medrano Ballet with Katja Sierna and Marin Sais. Ernst Matray's choreography is especially successful. The second number Dr. Busse is always welcome and the splendid ensemble of the Carlo Medini group is excellent. Erna Sack was very nice.

A sensational feature is the soldier performance by the musical clown and his partner, George Bernardo. Video on a one-cycle are mostly comical. Entirely unique is the stilt-walking by Edgar. There are further Lance and Fred Norton. The presentation is excellent. Every act is encored and they must take.

Variety Bills

NEXT WEEK (DECEMBER 6)
THIS WEEK (NOVEMBER 29)

Numerals in connection with bills below indicate opening day of show, whether full or split week

R-K-O

NEW YORK CITY
Palace (6)
3 Swifts
Ken Murray
Nick Lucas
Benny Rubin
Lulu McConnell
(Two to fill)
(29)
4 Ortons
Harry F Welch
White & Manning
Maxine Lewis
H Cargill Rev
Boris Minnevitch
Ann Codee
(Four to fill)
Benny Rubin
Chester
1st half (6-9)
Francis & Wally
Allen & Canfield
Jim Burchill Co
Hamilton
1st half (6-9)
Gordon's Dogs
Reed & Dorothy
The Chatelets
Harrison & Dakin
F X Bushman Jr
Paul Mall
Evelyn Dean Co
2nd half (10-12)
Will Morris
Taylor & Markley
Gus Van
(Four to fill)
2nd half (3-5)
Olvera Bros
Doris Robbins
Abe Reynolds Co

EDDIE STANLEY D. F.

Still directing band Em-seeing, working with girls and getting PLENTY OF LAUGHS
Next to Closing in "High Speed"
PUBLIX UNIT

Gus Van
(Two to fill)
2nd half (10-12)
Nellie Arnaut
Georgie Price
(Two to fill)
2nd half (3-5)
Cardini
Jean Boydell
Art Frank Co
Coliseum
1st half (6-9)
E Cooper Co
Brandli & Douglas
Millard & Marlin
Nan Halperin
Glenn & Jenkins
2nd half (10-12)
Gaila-Rini & Sis
Jed Dooley Co
(Three to fill)
2nd half (3-5)
Nellie Arnaut Co
Foster Pagan & Co
Owen McGivney
Ken Murray
81st St.
1st half (6-9)
L Osborne & Chico
Frank Richardson
(Two to fill)
2nd half (10-12)
Evelyn Dean Co
Joe Regan
4 Ortons
(One to fill)
2nd half (3-5)
Heben Brown Co
Keo Taki & Yoki
Tom & R Romaine
Georgie Price
86th St.
1st half (6-9)
Doris Robbins
Bob Hope
Royce & Maye
Runaway 4
2nd half (10-12)
Betty Cooper Co
Ruth Etting
(Two to fill)
2nd half (3-5)
Kanazawa Japs
Kennedy Sis
Eddie Parks
Frank & M Britton
58th St.
1st half (6-9)
Don Valero Co
Foster Welch
Dalton & Craig
Rhyme & Reason
(Three to fill)
Hippodrome (6)
Frank Wilson
Keo Taki & Yoki
Cadette 6
Cole & Ellis
Bert Nagle Co
Sybil Vane
(29)
Belleclaire Bros
El Cota & Byrne
Gray Fam
Chas Chase
H Lavrie Co
Joseph Regan Co
Eddie Borden
Jefferson
1st half (6-9)
Paul Kodak
Cook Sis
Miller & Mack
Brown & LaVelle
Jack Gaines Co
Moss & Frye
6 Galenos
2nd half (10-12)
Revue Unusual
Harry F Welch
Harry Holman Co
Regay & Donahue
Tom O'Shanter G's
Bob Murphy
Gilbert Rose
2nd half (3-5)
E Philmore Co
Harrison & Dakin
Tom Monahan Co
Klein Bros
Freddie Bernard Co
Harry Burns Co
Gym Jam Co
Royal
1st half (6-9)
Doris Robbins
Dekos Bros
Fumi & Tayi
Bloom & Sher
Walsh & Ellis
Alexanderia & Olga
Revue Unusual
2nd half (10-12)
Lawton
Della Morenz
Roy Harvey Co
The Champions
Henry Bergman
Black Sheep
2nd half (3-5)
Jas Evans Co
Ashley Paige
Billy Kelly Co
Cole & Snyder
Georgie Price
2nd half (10-12)
Belleclaire Bros
Gray Fam
Chas Chase
Joseph Regan Co
Eddie Borden
Jefferson
1st half (6-9)
Paul Kodak
Cook Sis
Miller & Mack
Brown & LaVelle
Jack Gaines Co
Moss & Frye
6 Galenos
2nd half (10-12)
Revue Unusual
Harry F Welch
Harry Holman Co
Regay & Donahue
Tom O'Shanter G's
Bob Murphy
Gilbert Rose
2nd half (3-5)
E Philmore Co
Harrison & Dakin
Tom Monahan Co
Klein Bros
Freddie Bernard Co
Harry Burns Co
Gym Jam Co
Royal
1st half (6-9)
Doris Robbins
Bob Hope
Royce & Maye
Runaway 4
2nd half (10-12)
Betty Cooper Co
Ruth Etting
(Two to fill)
2nd half (3-5)
Kanazawa Japs
Kennedy Sis
Eddie Parks
Frank & M Britton
58th St.
1st half (6-9)
Don Valero Co
Foster Welch
Dalton & Craig
Georgie Price
2nd half (10-12)
Belleclaire Bros
El Cota & Byrne
Gray Fam
Chas Chase
H Lavrie Co
Joseph Regan Co
Eddie Borden
Jefferson
1st half (6-9)
Jed Dooley Co
(Three to fill)
2nd half (10-12)
Nellie Arnaut Co
Foster Pagan & Co
Owen McGivney
Ken Murray
81st St.
1st half (6-9)
L Osborne & Chico
Frank Richardson
(Two to fill)
2nd half (10-12)
Evelyn Dean Co
Joe Regan
4 Ortons
(One to fill)
2nd half (3-5)
Heben Brown Co
Keo Taki & Yoki
Tom & R Romaine
Georgie Price
86th St.

COAST'S S. A. REVEREND

Collegians' Debunking Trend Being Applied to Their Flair for Nite Life

The raccoon-coated college youth who in previous years stormed the night clubs along Broadway, especially following big football games, have been giving the gay spots a wide berth this fall. The collegians are either practising economy or are getting smaller allowances from home. Some of this trade, however, has shifted to the class speaks.

College boys who step out to the class dance spots these days are usually in evening dress and invariably accompanied by girls. They make several of the class clubs in small groups each week, particularly laying off the rah-rah stuff.

In former years the boys had a habit of travelling stag in gangs of 10 or more and often proved difficult to control. Never big spenders, the campus kids were always ready to fight. Some of the boys usually made a practise of trying to cut in on a stranger's girl, which invariably started a general rumpus.

But it's different now. Nite club operators have found that the collegiate boy is now as well behaved as the racketeer, who is the most quiet and least conspicuous customer to be found in the Broadway spots.

WHITEHEAD MUST TELL WHO, WHEN AND WHAT

Joseph B. Whitehead, Coca-Cola heir, sued by Annette Bracey of 77 Park avenue for breach of promise of marriage, damaging Annette $500,000 in her own estimation, must give full names, addresses and other information concerning other men he claims were her boy friends, by a decision of the N. Y. Appellate Division granting her application to make Whitehead be a little more specific.

In his answer, Whitehead, not unknown to Broadway as a spender, and who was married last February to some one else, said he dropped Annette because she had been untrue to him. When asked for particulars he offered a number of initials, apparently because he didn't want to annoy any old friends. The names, dates, etc., which Whitehead must furnish, relate to the following:

With "F. F." in his apartment at Palm Beach and 383 Park avenue.

"M. F." at the Hotel Barclay.

Visits to "C. W."

Stayed out with "Capt. H."

Affairs with "McD."

With "P. P." at Sands Point, L. I.

It is understood that persons with these initials who knew Annette are not too happy over the court's order, while others without them are awaiting the filing of full details with some interest.

Ban Sing Sing Show As Disorder Penalty

Ossining, Dec. 2.

Despite the fact that the title "Little Jesse James" had been selected for the annual show given by the inmates of Sing Sing prison, a date in December chosen for its presentation, the cast picked and rehearsals begun, Warden Lewis E. Lawes issued an order prohibiting the performance. This is the first time in 12 years that the prisoners have not given the show. The action of the warden, it is said, is made as a penalty due to the spirit of mutiny among the prisoners which has manifested itself in outbreaks recently.

The number of motion picture shows in the prison was cut from seven to two a week, several months ago.

John Steinberg left Sunday for Miami Beach, where he and Christo will again operate the Roman Pools casino this season. Tommy Guinan is reported having a piece of the club.

Silver's Silver Voice Gets Bird by Tenants And Year's Probation

Herman Silver, 19, of 618 West 177th street, who has a penchant for singing and an ambition to become a film star, was placed on one year's probation in West Side Court by Magistrate Renaud. Silver was found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Silver, accompanied by a companion, went to the yard of a 10-story apartment, 175 West 79th street. Removing his hat, Silver began to sing. His companion did nothing but advise him. Soon almost every window in the apartment was raised.

No money was forthcoming. Silver said he sought none. But many women pleaded for Silver and his chum to go and sing elsewhere. The tenants were happy when they saw the pair leaving. Silver soon returned with his manager and began to sing "Roll, Rolling Along."

Again the windows were opened and angry voices ordered Silver to beat it. Silver was the offended one. He kept right on with his song. Tenants hurried for missiles. One occupant told Silver his wife was very ill and might die if he didn't cease.

Cop Got Him

Silver was hurt. He made an angry retort. Word was phoned to the West 68th street station. Patrolman William Stolba saw Silver and his companion fleeing. Stolba caught Silver. The mentor escaped.

"Your Honor, I am a good singer. My voice was a little off. I was not seeking money when I went to the yard to sing. My ambition is to go to Hollywood.

"Movie actors must have good voices and also sing. And I am a good singer. I meant no harm, nor did I intend to disturb anyone," the singer said.

Magistrate Renaud had received a report of Silver from a probation officer. It was then that Silver was placed on probation.

2 ACTORS IN COURT

Louis Dawes Accuses Bert Adams, Former Roommate, of Theft

Bert Adams, 35, who stated he was an actor, residing at 161 West 63rd street, was held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury by Magistrate Renaud in West Side Court. Adams was unable to get the bail.

The defendant was charged with the larceny of some jewelry and clothing from the trunk of Louis Dawes, 26, actor, of 19 West 65th street. Dawes who formerly roomed with Adams, he told the Court, was adamant that his former friend should go to jail.

Magistrate Renaud thought that there had been no exclusive opportunity as the door to the room was unlocked. The Court pointed this out to Dawes, but he stated that he was certain the defendant had taken his diamond ring, valued at $200 that was in a suitcase. The defendant denied the theft of the ring and told the Court that he did examine the suitcase for property of his own.

Adams was in West Side Court a week before complaining that Jack Edwards, producer, was witholding scenery, a suit and some cowboy shaps. Adams was to have Edwards produce an act of his, he averred.

Edwards denied that Adams hired him. He stated a friend of Adams engaged him. He said he was to get $65 down and $25 a week. "I received a second hand suit that I sold for $2. Judge, if that is the suit Adams complains of," said Edwards. The Court adjourned the hearing so that Edwards could produce the person who engaged him.

UNORTHODOX REV. PREACHING GIRLS

Revs. Fifi and Fritzi Dispense Old-Fashioned Religion or More Materialistic Inspiration — Will Read Mitts or Cards

STATE LAXITY HELPS

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Long a hotbed of new religious movements among thoughtists, cultists, faddists, palmists, spiritualists and practitioners, this neck of the country is taking on an even more colorful and hokumy religious aspect with the advent of the Reverends Fifi and Fritzi. Said femme Revs. run the gamut from mitt-reading and psychic prognosticating to hostessing of more or less spiritual salons.

The Rev. Fifi type of spiritual healer is an elastic mentor. If you're the average sappo, they have the regular Rev. routine, but if the chump is more ha-cha-cha the femme Revs. are likewise said to be equal to the occasion.

The whyfore of Southern California's bullishness for new faddist and cultist religious movements is chiefly due to the evolution of the Babbitt type of middle-class Kansan or Iowan who has settled out here on a moderate income to spend his or her days amidst w.k. Calif. sunshine. With nothing much to bother 'em, they have turned to this religion as something to occupy them nights, and its great for the plate-passers.

The various "churches" or temples work almost on a time-table, so congested are the evenings which are split up amongst the various cults. Each must put on a better show to make more plausible and generous the plate collection.

Swell Spielers

To vary it, this is a swell week-stand for those gents who display their torsos as physical exponents; also to the less physically-exhibitionistic spielers who discourse on mental health and healing.

Along with it the s.a. Revs. figured it was a great racket, fortified as they are by a liberal state law which okays mitt-readers, teacup psychics, card fortune tellers, quasi-religious clairvoyants, healers and "message circle" exponents.

EMBASSIES ORDER XMAS CHEER WORTH MILLION

Washington, Dec. 2.

After-the-theatre parties in Washington are best when some legation or embassy gets behind the affairs. Diplomatic immunity means that wines and liquors may be served with care-free abandon, even in a downtown hotel, provided someone from the embassy is present to stand sponsor for the champagne list.

Wishington entertained last week the official replenisher of embassy wine cellars. An Englishman, he came to make out the Christmas list of wines and liquors to be sent over from Europe before the holidays. He is Bernard L. V. Ellis, of London, representative of Saccone & Speed, wine merchants by appointment to His Majesty.

Mr. Ellis sails for the mother country this week with orders totalling more than $1,000,000. The "goods" will come into New York harbor at about Dec. 20, and will be conveyed to Washington "under arms," with guards from the various legations and embassies doing duty in the baggage cars.

Charlie Pettijohn will be in the middle west and south, until Dec. 8, winding up just before some of those conventions start.

Fortune-Telling Fakirs Given Full Leeway by Radio Stations

Astrologers as entertainers in radio programs and their subsequent popularity have brought a flood of character readers, graphologists, numerologists, phrenologists and such like into radio work. The air is rife with them. Every station harbors at least one person with fortune-telling propensities for some hour.

Persons formerly looked upon as mere charlatans have easy access to the air apparently and through radio are being put upon a more reputable and recognized basis than before possible.

Fortune telling of any sort always has been good with the mob. Sunday sections and flashy periodicals have always played it up sporadically. Legitimate and general recognition of persons engaged in fortune-telling occupations has been hardly considered. Occupations of this sort were generally thought of a shady racket, beneath an intelligent person's attention.

At present time all type of divination are enjoying a widespread, legitimate and astounding vogue. Astrology, in particular, is now nothing to sneer at it seems. With the more respectful attitude toward astrology has come an imbecile leniency toward all forms of fortune-telling rackets.

"A Science"

Astrology has always gotten the best break in the fortune-telling game. It is called a science. Those who practice it have been allowed to do so; have not been hooted about, arrested or systematically molested.

When astrologers were tried on the air, particularly when Evangeline Adams, the best known amongst them, went on the Forhans hour, it was found that this type of program had a universally popular appeal. An astrologer who commands $50 for 30 minutes of "consultation," who publicly announces that J. P. Morgan never undertakes a business deal without consulting her, will not be booed down by a radio audience. Instead, Miss Adams puts astrology on a sounder basis than ever and in her wake, and sharing in the impression she had made, have come the miscellaneous non-descript fortune tellers who had hardly expected such a break from even the most gullible chumps.

Program arrangers for the radio find that the fortune-telling stuff is almost second to none for listening-in interest. They use all types of them.

Just at present N.B.C. is on the lookout for some sort of person, psychologist or what not, who can analyze people's personal affairs and create the type of appeal Miss Adams does, with her tales of what the stars do or don't to one's life.

Film Morality Clause Tough on Playboys, Soup for Chiselers

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Those girls, who flit with the "mob" from Palm Beach to Saratoga, to Europe and to California, with each shift of the thermometer are, in a quiet way, still working out here, fortified and protected by the w.k. "morality clause" in studio contract.

With said clause hanging over the playboys, and the girls knowing it, its been grand for the smart guns. In as quiet, peaceful, discretionary and politic a manner as the circumstances demand, many a playboy has been nicked niftily by the Nellies.

By some stronth sense, the girls have not only managed to become involved with type of film attache whose current film standing cannot chance complications. Conditions being what they are, the boys have found it cheaper, and wiser, to give up and say nothing.

That "morality clause" thing is important for many a studio would be eager to take advantage should anything eventuate in the way of undesired publicity.

Visiting Footballers Are Robbed by Hangers-On

The State of Washington football team left the Hotel Manger a saddened outfit. Several members had been robbed of personal belongings, but the hardest blow was the theft of a chart of plays that they were to use against the University of Alabama this Saturday (6). Villanova was defeated last Saturday by the University of the State of Washington, 13-6.

The members of the team would have remained in New York to prosecute an alleged suspect but they had to hasten to Washington where they were received by President Hoover.

Jacob Kirby, 24, jobless, residing at the Marcy Baths, Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested in connection with the theft of the jewelry and the chart. Magistrate Goodman, on the advice of Assistant District Attorney Max Wieder reduced the charge of unlawful entry to that of disorderly conduct. The Court suspended sentence.

The team, about 34, stopped at the Manger following their victory in Philadelphia. They engaged rooms on the 11th floor. Kirby and a chum chiseled their way to the floor. They ran errands for the players.

Early in the morning Kirby and his friend went to the baths in Brooklyn. Team members missed jewelry. They looked for Kirby and his friend. But they had gone. House Detective Patrick Heffernan of the hotel notified Roger Meehan of the West 47th street station.

Sunday night, Kirby returned to the hotel alone. The team surrounded him and it took half for a while. Meehan hurried to the hotel and rescued Kirby.

Members of team pleaded with Kirby to disclose where the suitcase containing chart of plays was. Kirby denied knowledge of the bag. He admitted, Meehan said, that his chum had said he robbed the players. Kirby did not know his chum's name or address.

The members rushed up Meehan Helm (cenire), losing $35 and a watch his father gave him when he graduated from high school; William Tonkin (quarter), suitcase taken with the chart and Morris Wersin lost $35.

Prosecutor Wieder told the Court the team had to be greeted by President Hoover and therefore unable to be present in court.

DEMPSEY'S MEX RESORT DOES A FLOPPO FAST

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Ensenada, Mexican resort which recently opened with Jack Dempsey figuring as the leading promoter, has closed because of bum biz. Dempsey is back here.

Delayed construction of roads from the States is given as the main reason for closing.

Best Xmas Present
Subscription to
VARIETY
$10 for One Year
Always Welcome

When a Show's Closing

By Joe Laurie, Jr.

Hello, Stella, you're in early, ain't you? Well, my watch is wrong. What's new? I just heard the show is closing. You musn't believe everything you hear back stage. Yeh, but I got this from the stage hands and they know before the manager does.

Well, I was out with Jim the other night and he never said a word to me about it, and he oughta know because he is very close to Babson who is backing this troupe. I hope it isn't true; what with Christmas coming on and I gotta promote myself a fur coat though in these hard time I'll be lucky if I get a pair of woolen mittens.

Did you ever see guys any tighter than they are now? I was out with a fellow last night and he used up four handerchiefs crying the blues. He told me what the market did to him and about him havin' to retrench and all that kinda malarkey and he winds up paying a sixty buck check in the night club. I'd a settled for half and takin' a bus ride with him.

I can't imagine the show closing, we've been playing to packed houses. You can't go by that, it may have been paper. The notices were pretty good. That don't mean anything either. I had my mother out from the other night and she says that the ingenue is not so forte, she's got her hair a funny color and her clothes look terrible and when she starts dancing, she's pathetic. And the juvenile sings through his nose. I never did like that guy.

Conditions

Lend me some of your rouge, will you? If the opry is going to close there's no use me laying out money for red cheeks. Do you think they'll stick the notice up tonight? What a Christmas present that'll be. I haven't had a chance to lay away a dime. Everytime I get a few bucks together something happens. I had to have my car overhauled and that set me back $5, then my brother goes and gets married and I had to give him enough to take care of his wife for a couple of weeks until he gets a job. And the old lady is ailing and needs electric treatments, oh gee, it ain't one thing it's another! And now the show is going to fold up. Yeh, and every week it's a collection for somebody or something, and a buck a week to the wardrobe woman who is more trouble than help. A person is better off with a box of apples, there is no overhead.

If they'd only put on a show right half the shows wouldn't close. Our comic is as funny as a red vest. And that primma donna, she's two years older than Adam. Was that funny the other night when her upper plate got loose. And that leader, he hasn't got one tempo right yet. That stage manager is always talking to the stage hands about not getting things right and then he blows all the curtain cues and black outs. Now we have to chip in and get him a wrist watch. I'd like to get him some poison, he's always picking on me. And if I don't chip in one of his stool pigeons will tell him and when I try to get in another show that he is with, he will put in a rap for me.

Marriage, An Out

I think I'm going to look around for a unit or a vaude act. I heard vaudeville is bad, too. Four shows a day and five on Saturdays and Sundays and you gotta hang around the theatre because some guy thinks of something to put in next week and you gotta rehearse your head off. Not for me. If I can't get a show I think I'll get married and stick it out until the show business gets better.

How about you and me going around to see if we can grab ourselves a night club? Oh, I can't work in night clubs, you know I had a pendix operation last year and it shows. I tried to make it up, but it only looks worse. Every time I look at it I can kill that doctor. It's his fault for keeping me away from making big money and meeting wonderful people.

Well, something will turn up soon. Yeh, we can always join the Salvation Army. Yeh, if you got a good agent.

They're calling overture, I'll have to hurry. See you after the show.

Miller's Shoe Stores Donating 10% of Sales; Actors in Many Stores

Stage players will do floor duty two and a half hours daily for charity in five I. Miller shoe stores in New York this week and next. In return Miller's will donate 10% of gross receipts during the daily periods to seven theatrical organizations and one political unemployment campaign, with the money going to the benevolent funds of each.

Proceeds will be distributed as follows: 50% to the Actors' Fund, 20% to the Mayor's committee for unemployed, and 5% each to Actors' Equity, Chorus Equity, N. V. A., Catholic Actors' Guild, Jewish Theatrical Guild and Episcopal Actors' Guild.

The seven show associations have asked all members to make their shoe and other purchases at the Miller stores during the two weeks.

Presence of stage names as hosts and hostesses in the shops, it is believed, will attract extra attention and sales.

Cutting Apple Scale

Claim is that 5c apple sellers along Broadway is going to have opposition in the cut-scale way.

Someone intends starting an apple-selling chain at 2-for-5c.

"LEVIATHAN" GUESTS LIKED RADIO SINGER

Eddie Miller, whom the Metropolitan seems to have overlooked, gained the distinction of being the first artist to be encored on a radio program. That happened Sunday night when R.C.A and NBC sent out the first ship-to-shore broadcast aboard the "Leviathan," during the trip from dry dock at Boston to New York.

Some 500 persons were aboard the liner, including radio officials and radio program names. Miller was engaged for the air program but the schedule was such that it looked like the baritone was being shut out. Jack Lait, who has sponsored Miller, spoke to David Saranoff, head of R.C.A., who gave orders to extend the broadcast past midnight, which was the deadline.

Miller sang "Ole Man River," which aroused a roar of applause from the guests and entertainers in the salon. While this was going on a flash came from NBC asking: "Will Mr. Miller sing another number?" Eddie did and gave "Great Day," a restricted number which was forgotten in the excitement. The program ran about 10 minutes past the slated period. In addition to the broadcast there was additional entertainment for the guests, stage people being taken on the trip for that purpose.

The "Leviathan's" voyage from Boston to New York is estimated, with the hookups and accommodations for the 700 nationally prominent guests, to have cost NBC $50,000.

William Hanley directed for NBC, with Phillips Carlin, eastern program director, as announcer. Ben Bernie's Club Leviathan Orchestra, under Harry Stride, played musical arrangements especially prepared by Herman Bernie, who has booked the band for an indefinite engagement on the liner.

Mildred Hunt, Mary Hopple, James Melton and Ray Perkins, NBC artists, were heard during the broadcast. Among those introduced by Lait were Pablo and Paquita Ben Gordon and Coleman Goetz.

Pathe Downs R-K-O

Pathe basketball team, in its first game, defeated R-K-O by one point, 29 to 28.

R-K-O and Warner Bros. five meet tonight (3) in the U. S. S. training ship Illinois gymn, at 96th street and North river.

R-K-O team comprises Usilton, former Washington College star; Callahan, Giraites, Brusio and Bottomley.

Morrissey Miracle

(Continued from page 1)

while John Law slept in the box office.

Another Morrissey Miracle stalled that rough spot.

As the Paterson Orpheum's box office opened for the first sale, the sheriff walked into the cage with the cashier and picked out a seat with a bird's eye view of proceedings. He had not been introduced to Morrissey in person.

As the day waned, with the sheriff still sticking for dough, including all that came in at the wicket, word was sent to the cashier she could go on vacation, as relief was forthcoming.

A distinguished looking gray haired fellow drifted in as substitute treasurer. Sheriff was still there. A gent stepped up to the window, handed over a $10 bill, asked for two seats down front and received $300 change.

Hesitating a moment, he turned around and slid a $2 bill under the bars, saying: "We're having a poker game up at the house after the show, bud. Would you mind changing this into quarters?"

"Not at all," replied the distinguished looking gray haired gentleman in the box office, as he handed the man $25 in quarters.

The sheriff continued watching while the distinguished looking gray haired fellow was relieved, in turn, by the orignal cashier. Maybe he's still waiting.

A Small Time Manager's Letters To His New York Booking Agent

(A revival of a series of letters written by J. A. Murphy for "Variety," starting in 1908. The letters ran for some time and will be repeated here weekly.)

By J. A. Murphy
(Murphy and Willard)

East Cranberry, O., Nov. 16.

Dear Mike:—

I was fooled some in the top notcher you sent me for this week. Your direction said it was a unique European performance, so I put it on my bills as a troupe of performing Uniques from Europe. I thought it was some kind of a Turkish affair, as I remember reading in a geography once that them Turk fellers have uniques to work around the place but come to find out it was a couple of German jugglers.

They can't read or talk much in American language so they didn't find no fault with the way they was advertised. They made a rumpus about that baled hay, which is still in the men's room and it is kind of unhandy, for they have a whole raft of umbrellas and lamps and skillets and silver contraptions to toss up and ketch, but I guess they can put up with it for a week.

Duggan and Dunlaney didn't do nothin' worth payin' for as I can see and they are a couple of scalawags besides. I have wrote them down on my bad list. The Blouth Sisters, female trombone blowers, made a lot of noise. They seemed to work pretty hard but they look right hearty and I guess they can stand it. Limbo, the Bender, is right supple, but he ought not to get L. K. just for himself.

Well, night before last I noticed that everybody in the troop kind of perked up and looked slicker than common. They all seemed so spry and willin' that I thought I would go back and see if any one had been bringing in liquor. I sniffed around some and they all seemed sober enough, but they kept squintin' out through the holes in the curtains at some one in front. I asked my curtain puller if anybody had relations in the audience. He said no, but Jo Paige Smith, the New York agent, was in the middle of the fourth row. I peeked out through one of the side flaps at the fellow they showed me and his name wasn't Smith at all, it was the feller that hands out books at our Carnegie library and his name is Jergensen. They was actin' so good I didn't say nothin' about it, but it gives me an idea. So last night I went back and told them all that you was in front and had come to look at the show. Well, one of the women says what is that fresh mutt doin' here. Another one says cheap skate, and one of the men says to hell with him. Then all through the show they kept puttin' in sayins such as "Take it up with Mike," "Make it ten less" and "Do this for me and you won't lose nothin' by it."

This looks to me as if you didn't have influence to send me the kind of troops I ought to have, and I been thinkin' so right along. I am goin' to write to that Jo Paige Smith feller and see if he can't send me somethin' besides Brother Sylvest acters. Don't shut off any troops you have booked in, you can do that at the last minute if I make a dicker with this man Smith.

When are them elephants comin', and where is Millie Lamade now? Also Guppy and Fogg?

Adam Sowerguy.
Manager.

Aloft Again

"Shipwreck" Kelly is up again. This time it's the flagpole o' the Paramount hotel and for charity.

"Shipwreck's" old record, which he is out to break, is 49 days. He went aloft Monday (Dec. 1) at 2:15 p. m. American Legion will sell pumplets on Kelly at a nickel a crack.

Probable Football Winners and Proper Odds

By Sid Silverman

December 6

GAMES	WINNERS	ODDS
Notre Dame-U. So. Cal.	Notre Dame	Even
Penn-Navy	Penn	10/9
Colgate-N. Y. U.	Colgate	5/3
Georgia-Georgia Tech.	Georgia	6/5

(Predictions based on fair weather)

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

AT LIBERTY—FOR SALE AND EXCHANGE

WANTED—Young man to play piano for act in rehearsal for vaudeville. Will be paid by the hour, few times during week. Miss Marvin, 206 West 106th St., N. Y. C.

AT LIBERTY—Solo organist, formerly Publix, Warner, Loew circuit. Featuring original novelties. Just returned from European tour. George Latch, 213 West 86th St., N. Y. C.

WANTED—Good looking young lady to assist me in my act. Must be able to make a good speech. General Pisano, 231 West 46th st., N. Y. C. Longacre 1288.

FOR SALE—New Waltz Success, "Dear Man in the Moon," published by Tom Parry, 3706 Clark ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

AT LIBERTY—Character man, comedy or straight, can sing, has dramatic and vaudeville experience. Boob Mack, 131 West 23d st., N. Y. C.

AT LIBERTY—Recognized nut comedian, prefer act by one, but will consider anything. Can book time with right material. Excellent appearance. M. C. and direct band, A.B.C., Variety, N. Y.

WANTED—Girl for sister act, who dances and does acrobatics; not over 5 ft. 2 in. Miss A. George, N.V.A. Club, N. Y. C.

AT LIBERTY—Musical director, piano, formerly with Ned Wayburn attractions. For musical show or vaudeville act. Richard Conn, 2418 Broadway, Monument 4217.

NEW YORK THEATRES

THEATRE GUILD Presents
ELIZABETH, THE QUEEN
GUILD THEATRE
52nd, West of B'way
Evgs. 8:40. Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:40.

ROAR CHINA
MARTIN BECK Th., 45th, W. 8th Av
Evgs. 8:50. Mats. Thurs. & Sat., 2:50

DAVID BELASCO presents
HELEN GAHAGAN in
"TONIGHT OR NEVER"
"Miss Gahagan has a powerful, well-trained voice of operatic dimensions and could make her mark as a singer if she were not also an actress of extremely high voltage."—Robert Littell, World.
BELASCO 44th, W. of B'way. Evs. 8:40. Mats. Thurs. & Sat.

EARL CARROLL VANITIES
EIGHTH EDITION
67 Glittering Scenes—1,000 Laughs
Herb WILLIAMS—Jimmy SAVO—Jack BENNY
A Cast of 150 and the
Most Beautiful Girls in the World
$25 Orch. Seats $4 (except Saturday)
Wed. & Sat. Mats. Entire Orchestra $2.50
Good Reserved Seats every performance, 50c.
NEW AMSTERDAM 214 W. 42nd St. Wisconsin 8212

2nd YEAR
BROCK PEMBERTON Presents
Strictly Dishonorable
Preston Sturges' Famous Comedy
with TULLIO CARMINATI
Staged by Antoinette Perry & Mr. Pemberton
Never a Cut Rate
AVON THEATRE West 45th Street
Evgs. 8:50. Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:30

2nd WEEK
Marie Dressler Wallace Beery
in "MIN AND BILL"
with MARJORIE RAMBEAU
M-G-M's drama of laughs and tears. Stage Fiesta, Burns & Mann, Schooler, Buneluk, Orchestra
CAPITOL B'WAY & 51st St.

E. A. DUPONT'S
TWO WORLDS
A Vivid Drama of Young Lovers who could not hurdle the barrier of prejudice.
GEO. M. COHAN THEATRE B'WAY 43d ST.
Con. 11 a. m. to Midnite POPULAR PRICES

RKO Always A Good Show!
R-K-O KEITH'S PALACE B'WAY & 47th BRYANT 4300
HARRY CARROLL'S REVUE with EDDIE BRUCE, ANN CODEE, BORRAH MINEVITCH, CARROLL & LEWIS and BENNY RUBIN

R-K-O PROCTOR'S 58th ST. NEAR 3rd AVE.
Wednesday to Friday, Dec. 3-5
AMOS 'N' ANDY
IN CHECK AND DOUBLE CHECK
GURAN & MARGUERITE

R-K-O PROCTOR'S 86th ST. COR. LEXINGTON AVE.
Wednesday to Friday, Dec. 3-5
AMOS 'N' ANDY
IN CHECK AND DOUBLE CHECK
FRANK & MILT BRITTON & CO.

ROXY 50th St. & 7th Ave. Dir. of S. L. Rothafel (ROXY)
ROXY
WILL ROGERS
in LIGHTNIN'
with LOUISE DRESSER
Fox-Movietone Production
On the Stage—"Gypsy Festival" with Full Roxy Ensemble
Chorus Roxyettes

Albert Lewin, Metro's associate producer, who has been in New York for the past few weeks, undergoing x-ray treatments following an operation and a recuperative trip abroad, returned to Hollywood, Monday, considerably improved in health.

Razzing The Home Town

(BALTIMORE)

(A series of stories on the inside show end of key cities, without giving the cities any the best of it.)

By Broughton Tall

Baltimore, Nov. 29.

While during the past few decades Baltimore's population has increased from a half to three-quarters of a million the number of legit show-houses remains just where it was—two. In the years just before the advent of the picture the legit list grew to three, during the boom days of the World War it increased to four. Now two is one too many.

In the days of the early Republic when the National Capital was a day's stage coach journey distant, this town was more of a theatrical center. Shows were not only presented, but produced here. That era is long dead, with no monuments to its memory. The Baltimore Museum survives only in sketches and aquatints; the famous Front Street Theatre is a warehouse and there isn't even a slab in the pavement of the City Hall Plaza to mark the site of the Holiday Street playhouse.

Ford's dating from the 70's, is Baltimore's only link with a theatrical past. The spacious interior of the Academy of Music, so redolent of the elegance of the Elegant Eighties, was gutted to make room for a cinema palace. The Lyceum—better and more gloriously recalled as Albaugh's or Chases—was mercifully removed by fire. The Maryland, with no tradition other than two decades of profitable business as a two-a-day vaude house, was rescued from decline by its transference of the legit bookings from the smaller Auditorium.

Periodic Donations

Both houses date from the rococco period at the turn of the century, so does the Lyric, the town's only music hall. This is by way of being Baltimore's only amusement philauthropy. Ever so often some public spirited citizen tosses a generous cheque its way. Consequently it is the only house, with the exception of the down-town film palaces, that attempts to keep pace with the trend in modern theatre innovations. The big symphonies play here, and every spring it is the scene of that society circus otherwise known as the Metropolitan Opera.

The Booths lived in Baltimore. Once in a while a reporter, pushed for copy, locates the house. It's a feat in land navigation for the ways uncharted. With the demise of the Brothers Ford, that w. k. family retired finally from the local theatrical circle. The Schanbergers, heirs and assigns of the Kernan enterprises, are the only Baltimoreans still in the show business.

Betsy Patterson Bonaparte, who, like Hank Mencken, was the only Baltimorean without a chamber of commerce complex, declared that someday the town probably would become a cosmopolis. Maybe.

Inaccurate Biographies

Cecil B. De Mille

By Claude Binyon

Hollywood, Nov. 29.

Cecil B. (Of Course Not) De Mille, father of the theory that a tilted head is another step forward, traces his success back to the first time he visited the Grand Canyon. He and Jesse Lasky stood looking into the massive, colorful chasm, awed into temporary silence.

Finally young Lasky chuckled, snapped his left finger and blurted impulsively: "What a great spot to throw old razor blades!"

De Mille didn't smile, and Lasky mumbled in embarrassment. "I know that's an old one, Cecil," he said, "I just had to say it. It—it got me, Cecil."

Unheeding Cecil continued staring at nature's mammoth work of art. The blood spurted in his veins and his eyes lighted with a new fire. "Some day, Jesse," he said slowly, "I'm going to design a bathroom like this, with the blue sky as a ceiling."

"People will look in on you," said Jesse practically. "They'll not only look in, they'll throw old razor blades at you."

At that time De Mille was on a vacation from the De Mille play agency, established in New York by his mother to handle the work of the late Henry C. De Mille and others. Lasky had walked in one day to buy a new routine for Lasky's Swiss Bell Ringers, a vaudeville act which the hookers claimed hadn't changed a bell in five years. Cecil convinced him that the only way to work out a new routine for a Swiss act was to visit the Canyon and get inspiration for a yodel.

What Came

When the boys returned from the west they went into a huddle with Sam Goldwyn and formed the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co. Later Cecil joined the Producers Distributing Corp., and after that signed his present M-G-M contract.

In the early days the first trouble Cecil encountered was with the studio bucket. One of his scripts called for the heroine to take a bath and Cecil thought of his Grand Canyon. "We'll use a huge cement pool for the tub," De Mille said, "and we'll have eunuchs lined up all around it."

"Where can we find any eunuchs?" asked Goldwyn.

"Yeah," said Lasky.

De Mille scowled. "As I was saying," he continued, "we'll have the pool lined with eunuchs. Then the queen comes in, tosses aside her robe and dives into the pool nude."

"But will the eunuchs do?" asked Goldwyn.

"A bathtub would be cheaper," said Lasky.

"My art!" raged De Mille. "Where are my assistant directors?"

"Here sir," said 20 gentlemen in turbans. They salaamed.

"Tell the construction department I want a cement pool 30 feet by 30," snapped De Mille.

"Yes, sir," said 19 of the assistant directors. The 20th took off his turban and held out his hand for his salary.

"What's the matter?" asked De Mille.

"I just think it's a lousy idea," said the young man, shaking hands with Goldwyn and Lasky. Then he walked out of the studio and started his own company with his brother, Jack, and Joe Brandt.

The Bathroom at Last

At P. D. C. later De Mille created his ideal bathroom. It had everything but hot and cold water, including four maiden attendants with good bulbs.

"It's beautiful," sighed an assistant director.

"Reminds me of one of Universal's ballroom sets," muttered a cameraman.

De Mille gazed triumphantly at his work of art, drinking in its beauties. Then he boarded a train and hurried to the Grand Canyon. He stood on its brink.

How small it seemed now, compared to a De Mille bathroom! De Mille grinned and coughed. The echo smote back at him.

"Ya-ah!" he yelled, contemptuously.

COLORED GAMBLER OF TOLEDO IS KILLED

Toledo, Dec. 2.

Pearl Barber, Negro gambler, long familiar and spectacular figure in local, national and international affairs, killed (22) in auto accident. Barber, who had a white wife and lived in the palatial Eagle Point Colony against objections of other residents, had been mixed up in several international affairs where he posed as a Brazilian coffee king and an East Indian potentate. He was considered a fashion plate, and generous, often spending plenty for liquor for his friends. Had several gambling houses here. His special-made, high-powered roadster was demolished in the crack-up, caused by another driver as Barber was on his way home.

"Variety" Free

An indication of how tough times are was found this week in the strangest of all places—the Public Library, New York. The copy of "Variety" in the reading room there has never been so much in demand, it seems, as recently.

The call is now it so much. It appears that during the past few weeks it has become overthumbed by Saturday night that those asking for it Monday find it almost impossible to read.

Any person has the privilege of calling at any "Variety" office and reading this paper without charge.

At the New York office, 154 West 46th street, nearly all of the show trade papers of this country and foreign are always on a table on the ground floor. They are likewise available without charge.

Trinity Church Has Running Bulb Sign And Goes on Air

Trinity Church, at Broadway and Wall, one of the oldest and most conservative churches in the city, has bowed to modernism and is using high-powered advertising.

For the advent of Bishop Johnson, of Colorado, who started preaching Monday (1), Trinity has taken radio time and erected a running electric sign similar to the one around the Times Building.

The sign, erected by the same man who constructed the lighted Times' ribbon, Ed. C. Wyle, is nearly 30 feet long and can be seen from the East River. It carries messages regarding the daily missions.

On the radio end the church has contracted with CBS for 30 minutes daily over WABC. This period also started Monday (1) and will continue two weeks.

That Quartet Will Pick 'Em on the Coast

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Knute Rockne, Howard Jones, "Pop" Warner and W. A. Alexander, whom you wouldn't call gigolos, are picking their All American football team here after the Notre Dame-U.S.C. game Saturday (6).

Christy Walsh arrives here Friday to handle the ballots and receive the squawks.

Curious on Street Just Staring Annoy Girl Window Demonstrators

Demonstrating in window fronts of stores, according to some of the girls who do it, is not so hot. In times like these any job is good even if it means a lot of men will stare. None of the girls like that, they say.

In the winter, say the demonstrators, it's cold; in the summer it's hot.

The girls work for about $15 a week and a 5% commission on 25 and 50c articles. It's an exceptional week that brings in more than $25. The head demonstrator gets a better salary, usually $45 a week.

Tillie Tells

One of the hardest parts, said Tillie, is breaking in to the stares of the watchers outside. Tillie's continually afraid some friend or some member of her family will watch her. Outside of that, though, she's as hard boiled as a taxicab driver.

Most manage to pass what slack time there is, talking to a friend—usually male—in to say hello.

The girls seldom stay in one store for over a day or so, moving around. That's called "opening a new store," just a gag as the store has been opened for a long time.

What burns up one of the girls is that she only gets a 5% commish. She says she knows the polish she's selling cost about three cents a bottle, including the bottle. It retails for a quarter and she can't see any justice in that kind of a commission arrangement.

But Flossie sounded the pay off. Polish is all she'll sell and she turned down a job last week to demonstrate a new cigaret holder. It wasn't her lungs that she was worrying about either, she just didn't want to appear ordinary, smoking in public.

HANLON WITHOUT O' DINNED BY FRIARS

Bert Hanlon was escorted to the dais Saturday night at the Friars by a bunch of jockeys—waiters in colored silks—while the band played "Horses, Horses, Horses." The kidders on either side sported bald-headed wigs, except, of course, Hanlon; Izzie Herk and Eddie O'Brien. A special scratch sheet continued Saturday's entries and on the top was "good luck to Bert Hanlon." On the back it stated the track-wire was the sheet that made the "bald eagle" win his first million. Compliments of "Strudel," the famous handicaper of the Friars' Club, identified as "a guy who picked eight winners in one day and won $14."

Jack Denny as m. c. warned the evening's guest that he must not only have his sense of humor with him, but a strong stomach. Also that Hanlon had tried to make the center of the table for two years. Jay C. Flippen, general steamer-up of the Friars' affairs, was absent, but wired: "Best wishes if you show up."

Capt. Irv O'Hay, a fellow who says what he thinks, claimed to have attended 147 Friars' functions, but that he will be 61 next Monday (10). "I have followed Hanlon's career as a track plunger. He is the type of Irishman who drops the 'O.' He went to Hollywood, but the fact he said no so frequently is why he returned so speedily. This fellow Lew Cantor is also back from Hollywood. He was there about 10 minutes. When he produces a show he sells 150% of it and keeps 99% for himself."

Cantor proceeded to make good as one of those after lunch speakers and alleged he was present to take the place of Burs Baer, whose pipes are temporarily ruined by pneumonia. Cantor gave a report on Solly Violinsky. Latter recently remarked: "I'll stay here two years longer, then the hell with them." Solly, it seems, played in a gangster picture, as "Louie, the Louse." Cantor said he was not afraid to knock Walter Winchell, because "my shows play Shubert houses."

Explanations

Benny then introduced Walter: "Winchell should get a great big hand right across his great big

(Continued on page 51)

'Round the Square

Moving Subway Entrance

The B. M. T. subway entrance at the R-K-O Mayfair corner is being changed so that the corner store will have an unobstructed entrance. The sub entrance will be in front of the theatre instead of on 47th street as it is now.

Nite Club Diplomacy

Slews who start fights in its clubs and invariably get the worst of it, since the bouncers and waiters all know how to use the elbow, knee and heel, usually return the following day to offer their apologies.

A husky individual who started a battle in one of the Broadway gay haunts and was eased out without any facial damage, since he was a regular patron, returned the following night to voice his regrets. Told that his attack on another patron would be overlooked, as he had always previously conducted himself properly, the penitent, displaying his puffed fist said, "Gee, I must have knocked that guy cold to wind up with a hand like this."

Nobody bothered to tell him that he had swung three times at his small opponent and his fist had bounced off a concrete pillar each time.

Not So Many Hungry

Judging by the difficulties kindly friends of actors met trying to provide them with Thanksgiving dinners, it looks like unemployed and hungry actors keep their troubles to themselves on Thanksgiving Day.

A prominent theatrical man came into Gerson's on Thanksgiving morning with the request that Gerson serve to every unemployed actor a complete Thanksgiving dinner at the theatrical man's expense. Faced with the problem of finding unemployed actors, Gerson asked the N. V. A. to send over all actors who were hungry. But the N. V. A. had received so many invitations of a similar nature from hospitable folks, which they were unable to accept because of the quaint scarcity of such starved actors, that the total number that finally assembled at Gerson's did not exceed 32.

Ray O'Sullivan, Curry's Secretary

Ray O'Sullivan, who has covered City Hall for the New York City News for years, is no secretary to John F. Curry, leader of Tammany. Mr. O'Sullivan has been connected with the City News [illegible] years. O'Sullivan is rated one of the best politicos in the city. He came to New York 14 years ago with his brother, Arthur O'Sullivan, no longer secretary of Charles Tuttle, and now with the Evening News.

The O'Sullivans' home city is Oswego, N. Y. The brothers began work here as district men for the City News. Both had experience on Oswego papers. Soon both were placed [illegible] on the City News. Ray has covered many [illegible] and come in contact with Curry. Several political jobs [illegible] but he declined them.

Red-Head Girl With Gun Starts for Film Actor; Jammed by Taxi Driver

Rudolph Cameron, 36, film actor and former husband of Anita Stewart, 19, actress, is lucky to be alive, according to Lucille Lavelle, red-headed student and actress, who gave her address as 138 East 38th street.

Miss Lavelle was arrested at 63d street and Central Park West on the charge of having a loaded automatic gun in her possession and an additional charge of felonious assault. The latter charge was preferred by a taxi chauffeur, Herman Saegert of 4259 Viero avenue, Bronx. Seagert stated that the fiery-headed defendant poked the loaded gun into his back and ordered him to drive to 56th street.

"Lady, I will go as fast as I can," said the quaking chauffeur. Soon James Doebele, cop of West 68th street station, hove in sight. Saegret let his cab roll while he jumped off and into the arms of Doebele. Breathlessly, he told the cop of the gun lady. Doebele hurried to the cab with his own gun out. Miss Lavelle in her haste to get out of the cab fell into the mud. She got to her feet and pointed the gun at the young cop, said Saegret.

Doebele ordered Miss Lavelle to drop her gun, but instead she shoved it into her waist. Doebele seized the revolver and took her to the West 68th street police station. She was taken to Police Headquarters a few hours later.

No Like Stories

Miss Lavelle was asked why she sought to shoot Cameron, and replied that the movie actor had spread stories about her. She asserted she had taken the gun from a friend's apartment at the Hotel Mayflower, but declined to give the name of the friend.

Magistrate Goodman asked Miss Lavelle how she pleaded, and she asked for an attorney. She will have a hearing today (3). Bail of $5,000 was fixed on both charges.

Now, by the girl pulled a [illegible] Cameron in West Side Court. Cameron was arrested in his apartment, 24 West 59th street, Pl. 2a Annex, on Miss Lavelle's charges. Miss Lavelle stated that her spirit of [illegible] her when [illegible] her.

The [illegible] Club [illegible] recently [illegible] opened [illegible] room [illegible]

Broadway

Grace Moore in town.

Claire Bronson feels neglected.

Charlie Dutton around on crutches.

Irene Green back to Providence.

Ralph Kohn is back from Europe.

Georgie Jessel has a new fur-lined coat.

Christopher Morley is writing a play.

Martin Flavin is back from the coast.

Harry Pilcer's soon duo in New York.

Charlie Freeman may take a Med cruise.

What's happened to Yiddish Films?

Par is talking with Jack Pearl for talkers.

Sol De Fries managing Chanin's 46th street.

The Pat Rooneys still keeping open house.

Those Lief brothers have written a new play.

Rosetta Duncan (Duncan Sis.) planning a single.

Cold weather killed off the corner apple trading.

Hockey is again packing the Garden Sunday nights.

The Cameo barbers want to hear from Cong. Bloom.

The legits are still wiring, but it's through Postal.

Some films have to go out-of-town to make good.

Augustus Thomas confined to his home at New Rochelle.

Trudy Krieger gets her manuscript back today (5).

More waitresses in Times Square eating places than men.

Hannen Swaffer has cancelled his American lecture tour.

Charlie McCarthy's got himself a pair of colored glasses.

Fox transferred Bill Quaid from the Audubon to the Crotona.

Walter Winchell leaves tomorrow (4) for Hollywood. Vacation.

Fred Waring has put words to Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

Phillip Gordon, pianist, is preparing a novelty act for vaudeville.

Now George Jessel is thinking of producing "Wunderbar" himself.

Hyman Adler lost his voice last week for a while, following a cold.

Fred Culley, band leader at the Royal, York hotel, Toronto, visiting.

Manny Seff last week turned down a pretty good offer from Hollywood.

Cammie Cameron got rid of her appendix and husband at the same time.

Louis Fagon is now p. a. for Russian Art Restaurant, over on 3d Ave.

Among the Broadway fruit vendors is a Scotchman selling crab apples.

Harry Cohn's Hollywood College yell. Cut, Cut, Cut, Cut, Cut, Cut, lay off.

If you want a Xmas card from J. H. Lubin this year call for it in person.

Nan Blackstone now crooning at the Coconut Grove, Boston's swank nite club.

"Fats" Waller, the colored song writer, is the new organist at Connie's Inn.

Ted Healy and Eddie Moran hunting wild poker game in N. Carolina.

Metro girls had their miniature golf tests with Ruth Landesman leading.

Alex Hill, composer, is revamping the "Versatile Revue" at Small's Paradise.

Jack Campbell of Paris is in town for a couple of weeks to look over the new shows.

Wilma Cox, torch singer, will double "The New Yorkers" and the Beaux Arts.

Next by the Saturday Night Boys (Dec. 13) at the Friars is for three prominent noses.

Milton Raison has become p.a. for "Sweet and Low," with "Princess Charming" folding.

Shills are welcome in some of the nite clubs, providing they bring their own ginger ale.

In a Williams street speak, clam chowder is free. It's in a big water cooler and help yourself.

Jöe Fejer, Hungarian orchestra leader, has gone restaurateur with a spot in the East Fifties.

A tea room has been installed in the Princess theatre, by Artef, communistic producers.

Mrs. Harry Lonetska creating styles for a wholesale house—says plaids will be the newest craze.

One of the Broadway boys is about to commercialize depression by manufacturing crying towels.

Latest advices via postcard indicate that Walter Eberhardt, ERPI p. a., has arrived in Rome.

The Neal Andrews (Dorothy Hall) will shortly move into a new pent house they have purchased, outright.

Irving Caesar is working on a new musical, "Not Tonight, Josephine," based on a German torch idea.

Howard Seymour, formerly Seymour and Cunard (vaude), now running a radio station in New Orleans.

Broadway knows an acrobat who has been opening and closing shows for 27 years, and has yet to see an audience.

Bankers returning from Europe slant Europe's film companies as lying face upward looking toward America.

Maybe Julius Ziegler should be mentioned. Someone grabbed his luncheon seat at Sardi's for the first time in a year.

New gag of afternoon tea dances is broadcasting at Club Delmonico, Morton Downey's place, Friday and Saturday afternoons.

Six day bike grind pulled them out of the clubs over the week-end, giving the operators something more to squawk about.

Ken Murray won't open at the Paramount hotel on percentage next week unless the management posts the guarantee in advance.

Picture of Acuna, the stool pigeon, in last Thursday's "News" was a dead ringer for Russel Crouse, "Evening Post" columnist.

They do say that Jos. Shildkraut is going to join the Le Gallienne rep troup down on 14th street, his first play with it being "Lllllom."

Ahl, the Chinese coocher at the Madrid, speaks perfect English in long words. But Eleanor Tyers, at the same place, talks faster.

Benny Davis and his revue continue at the Paramount Grill. An 80-year-old woman threw a birthday party there Sunday night.

Since the apple peddlers are taking the play away from the Greek fruit stands around the Square, the Greeks have gone flower store.

Fred Ballard, author of "Ladies of the Jury" and "Believe Me, Xantippe," and his family are at Peterboro, N. H., for the winter.

Of 95 exhibitors of paintings at the Delgado Museum, New Orleans, only 13 received honorable mention. Mrs. O. M. Samuel had one of these.

Paul Gregory, tenor in "Smiles," says if his pal Harry Fender, becomes a motorcycle cop in St. Louis he wants the first ride in his side car.

Richard Cromwell, star of "Tol'able David," (Col) left New York Monday (1). He will make personal appearances in Baltimore and Washington.

Flo McFadden and Jack Haley were married for the second time last week in St. Malachy's Church. First time in Mexico, but Flo didn't think that so hot.

A heavy program has been announced for the sixth annual entertainment of the Authors League. Affair will take place at the Roosevelt hotel Dec. 7.

Belle Livingstone is doing solid biz. Getting a $3 cover charge in addition to selling coupon books for $10. The influx of customers now starts around tea time.

Bill Guard, p. a. for the Metropolitan, has his office rigged up with an ancient gramophone horn through which he can listen to rehearsals and the operas.

First wintry breeze that blew up Broadway started the boys talking about Miami and their chances of making that resort this season. Seems to be plenty of doubt.

Noted in the Whiteman broadcast from Chicago, as received on Washington Heights Sunday night, that majority of request wires were from other band leaders around the country.

Delicatessens are doing a rushing business in five cents worth of this and dime's worth of that. Restaurants all squawking. Cooking in the side stret hotels is mostly the answer.

Herman Pincus, song writer, is being embarrassed by telephone messages left at his office and asking him to "bring up a case." A bootlegger of the same name was arrested recently.

DeSylva, Brown & Henderson had a blowout for employees at the Victoria Hotel Nov. 18. No special occasion, just a get-together. Firm will hold a similar party about once every three months.

Faber and Wales changed their names for luck. Harry Faber is Con Shay and Lita Wales' new handle is King. They added another girl and the act is now Con Shay and King Sisters.

More musicals current on Broadway than at this time last season, but not so many chorus girls working. Most have dropped show girls, with the clothes horse type now noticed in the nite clubs.

June Walker is refusing to sign contracts running later than February, because that is when her husband, Geoffrey Kerr, is leaving for Hollywood. June figures that "mamma goes where—"

Maurice Marks, Rita Welman's husband, pointed to a Western Union window and said, "Look, they've got a direct line to hell." Sign read, "If you know where business is, a telegram will reach it."

Mrs. Sylvia Lowenthal, former New Yorker now living in Paris, arrived in New York last week to sell the American rights to "Dona-goo-Tonka," by Jules Roman, current at the Theatre Pigalle in Paris.

Harry Fitzgerald is improving so rapidly from his late auto accident, that his secretary, known to all performers as just "Millie," announces that Fitz will visit his office in the Palace building some day this week.

Another nance nite club open, with Jack Mason, drag promoter as the guiding spirit. Two rooms, upstairs, for the $2 couvert payees, and downstairs for the temperamentals who will be admitted without a couvert charge appearing on their checks.

Until last week the elevator operators in the Godfrey Building, 729 Seventh avenue, could wear any color necktles with their uniforms, but when the majority adopted red cravats an order went through limiting their choice to black.

Joe Penner, comedian of the late "Vanderbilt Revue," opened for Loew's in the unit, "Rustic Fancies." Penner is known as the hard luck comic because he has been in more flops the past 18 months than most comedians get in 10 years.

Rasputin, the mad acrobat of the fire escape on the R.K.O. Palace, has a new cap someone gave him. All he needs now is a new suit, some shirts, and a pair of shoes and he's ready to hold out against the vaude bookers for another five years.

Vivian Wilson, with the Eddie Parks act in vaude, who suffered an injury to her nose while riding in a taxi which collided with another car at Broadway and 50th street, three weeks ago, settled her case out of court, receiving $850 from the transport company.

Freddie March and Florence Eldridge (Mrs. March) will keep their Coast Laguna place, in which they've never resided, but will probably give up the Beverly Hills homestead. March is now filed by Par. as an "east coast" actor, and Miss Eldridge is in a Broadway show.

Femme film critics in New York figure themselves affronted and are putting the snub on a film p.a. who helped organize the By-Liners club with a free hangout spot at a Broadway hotel. The rub comes in that only the male sortie are eligible to the organization. What apparently had been overlooked by the organizers is that of the critics on the 13 local dailies doing films, seven or so are women.

CHATTER

London

Rainfall now 24 hours daily.

Enid Stamp Taylor in legit shows now.

Autos at $10 a piece at Soho auction.

Mark Ostrer is back from New York.

Football fever at its height in this town.

Lupino Lane starting a talker for Pathe.

Scented finger nails, the latest by the girls.

Molly Wright getting publicity on law cases.

Ronald Frankau, B.B.C. comic, going film.

Chaliapine gathering the legmen round him.

The King and Queen went to see "On the Spot."

Madeleine Carroll signing contracts all round.

Weak takeoff on Swaffer in current British talker.

Marie Dayne denies she's to appear in a Decourville presentation at the New Victoria. Says it's all a vacation.

Mabel Poulton had a comeback in British talkers.

Jöe Grossman dithering with parliamentarians.

Blondes are definitely out of fashion in this town.

Lad named Jack Pettifer regarded as this town's Carnero.

"Secret Passion" being plugged as the best British theme song.

Walter Huston supposedly coming over for "Lincoln" film premiere.

Phillis Konstum gets Ursula Jeans' spot in "The Skin Game."

Charles Cochran is experimenting with revolving stages at the Adelphi.

Dudley Leslie, "Dispatch" drama critic, has a novel coming out soon.

Margaret Bannerman, surrounded by mascots, bouquets and things.

"Hell's Angel's" success at the Tivoli is still the suprise of the picture.

J. C. Graham getting tributes from Walter Bentley. Merger pending?

Harvard-Yale game, relayed over national radio net here, unintelligible.

Edgar Wallace did a cross-fire act with the pit on his latest first night.

November Handicap made year's most important race through Irish sweepstakes.

Michael Balcon is rejuvenating the partially burned down Gainsborough studios.

Eighth birthday of radio here revealed that there are 10,000 new listeners a month.

Maurice Elvey busy on "Potiphar's Wife." Means Raycol will be out of the news for a bit.

Elma Reville is on another script.

John Grierson says he won't make any more commercial films.

Harold Simpson, "Sunday Chronicle" dramatic critic, has authored a one act play for Beatrice Lillie.

Much discussion here as to whether or not Evelyn Laye has really made a hit in Hollywood.

Tharold Dickinson, in the Dominions' cutting rooms, is the best informed English cutter on New York.

Herbert Wilcox rather thought British International took all the kudos from the Premiers' visit to Elstree.

New theatre adv. stunt for here is billing "On the Spot," as "at the Forrest theatre, New York; also the Cambridge, London."

Space hound here honest enough to admit the only thing to do with his latest British masterpiece was to cut it by eight reels.

Boston

Since Brookline voted to allow pictures, six applications have been received for operating theatres there. Two licenses will be granted soon.

Police still tagging cars right and left in the theatrical section, making it tough for those who used to leave the bus at the curb and go to a show.

Mrs. Marie Thiffault, of Cambridge, once member of a vaudeville team, says she gave up stage for baby, in divorce suit she is contesting. She is charged with desertion.

Charlotte Cushman Club entertained stars from legit shows at Copley-Plaza last week. Younger girls from shows served as ushers. At the last the stage reaches Boston sassiety.

Indoor miniature golf courses all through Boston and the suburbs. Seven downtown courses get big play from office workers during lunch hour, and immediately after five o'clock.

Banks are giving out Christmas Club checks in advance of usual date so holiday shopping will begin at once. Plan successful according to department stores.

The Freiburg Passion Play at the Opera House Dec. 1, for two weeks, under local auspices. They advertise for volunteers for the chorus. First time in 11 months Opera House has had an attraction.

Of the three Erlanger houses in town, only Trement is open. Colonial and Hollis St. are dark indefinitely. Theatre Guild shows will play the Tremont this season instead of the Hollis St. as in past.

Allied Theatres of New England, composed of managers and press agents, meet for a monthly luncheon at the Bradford. At last meeting Joe Toye of the "Herald" and City Censor John Casey were the speakers.

Hollywood

Hal Roach returned from hunting deer.

Harry Braxton rebuilding his art gallery.

Nate Dyches playwriting here for a change.

John Wayne looks swell with short hair.

Courtenay Terrett calls his house "Mattewan Manor."

You're not Civic if you don't pronounce it Rep-a-tree.

Irene Rich wears a becoming riding habit of poilu blue.

The Paul Sloanes are back from their European expedition.

One actor remarked yesterday he observed Thanksgiving Day by eating.

Will Hays due Jan. 4, which looks like a Hollywood part of honeymoon trip.

Joe Von Sternberg has the finest collection of modern art in Hollywood.

Jack Osterman laying off a week following his R-K-O local engagement.

S. George Ullman and Associates, Inc., has undergone a change of name to Tom Conlon Corp., Ltd.

Mrs. Edwin Knopf getting ready to take her children to New York for the winter. Eddie stays here.

Los Angeles newspaper boys are going to 'Frisco and vice versa. They think it must be better at the other end.

Harry Brand, United Artists, p. a., recovering at the Methodist hospital, from an operation for appendicitis.

Dolores Del Rio convalescing at the Good Samaritan hospital from an operation Nov. 26 to correct a kidney ailment.

Dorothy Herzog, outside of Embassying with Evelyn Brent regularly at lunch, doin' nuthin', but plotting another novel.

New managing editor of an L. A. daily got down to work his first day at 10 a. m. and found they'd gotten out one edition without him.

Mrs. George Fitzmaurice campaigning for the abolition of Christmas cards, money to be spent on Christmas baskets for the poor.

Strong safes are needed these days, figures William Seiter. So the director has organized a company to build a new type of steel caches.

Darryl Zanuck has been receiving threatening letters since "The Doorway to Hell" has been released. Gagsters, not gangsters, suspected of authorship.

Harold Lloyd's dogs will wear special muzzles while on exhibit at the coming dog show. Actor lost several prize canines last year through poisoners.

In Bill Simon's Hollywood and Cherokee dairy lunch room, will be served 1,000 free turkey dinners to all comers on Xmas day, bankrolled by Al Jolson.

Pete Smith, almost wholly despaired of, gaining weight and getting along nicely at a Santa Barbara sanitarium, where Louis B. Mayer sent his p. a.

Arthur F. Driscoll, of the law firm of O'Brien, Malevinsky & Driscoll, who came to Hollywood several weeks to defend Mary Pickford in a plagiarism action based on the story of "Sparrows," made by the screen star several years, has returned to New York. Illness of the plaintiff, Col. Hubbard, caused the trial to be postponed indefinitely.

Paris

Florence Star showing her mother the night life.

Reggie Voorhees just teamed with Jean Edwards.

Maxwell Bodenheim back again in Montparnasse.

Lisa Duncan planning another dance concert.

Pearl White still waiting for a part in a talker.

Dolly and Billy always travel with a chaperon.

Pola Negri applauding the Josephine Baker revue.

Tallulah Bankhead and Michael Farmer at Monsoignours.

Dave and Hilda Murray embarking for Havana Dec. 30.

Jane Marnac at the Daunou in "Gigolo," Louis Verneuil's revival.

McCormick Steele decides to take up permanent residence in Paris.

Grace Tibetts and Priscilla Kastner having cocktails at the Ritz bar.

Tina Meller, Raquel's sister makes her own clothes—off and on stage.

Jack Hylton is to give a concert at the swank Champs Elysees theatre.

Georgia Graves back from Hamburg to go into the Paris Paramount.

Gwendolyn Stone (Stone and Vernon) rides in the Bois every morning.

Ronald Coleman's English wife taking a vacation in Giverny—outside of Paris.

Sammy Pierce talks with tears in his eyes about the picture he is going to make.

St. Granier is one of the Frenchmen on the playreading committee at Paramount.

Jack Lannigan can't make up his mind whether it's Havana or Algiers for him.

Eddie Root says American acts come over here to get away from the Bond Building.

Yale-Harvard boys hearing the game in the Bowl during their annual alumni dinner.

Bricktop making pictures during the day and money at night at her own cabaret cash register.

The American Women's Club over here is learning to dance—just engaged a real hot tangoer.

Dorothy Farnum says Frenchmen are not very amiable about taking a woman executive seriously.

Charles Mills back from Riviera with an untitled operetta he wrote under Mediterranean inspiration.

Wheeler Beckett to conduct the Vienna Philharmonic after his concert here with the Stranam orchestra.

Mistinguette giving a successful box party at Nudist Bar. Getting a tremendous ovation from the audience.

Mrs. Rockefeller trying to get a special price on clothes at the big couture houses while she's here and not getting it.

Tommy Ladd to leave the Casino de Paris Dec. 8 to go on tour with Mistinguette. Allowed to break his contract here through her influence.

Colette Andris is going to show off her fair figure soon in a bathing suit parade. A novelty, as no one, as far as known, has ever seen her with anything on.

Stone and Vernon walked out of the Casino show one night. Came back the next but neither agent nor act will explain the "disagreement" with Josephine Baker.

Marie Lecomte, actress for 20 years with the Comedie Francaise, gave a two years' notice to that institution. She leaves soon to write and produce plays of her own.

Florence Star thought a couple of good looking boys were trying to date her up from the audience the other night, but it was her partner, Pierre Meyer, they were winking at.

Feminine vanity and free publicity is the bait drafting American femme acts for service the night of the Anglo American press dinner Dec. 6. They will be the only women present, as not even wives are to be admitted.

The widow of the composer, Claude Debussy, is suing a committee of well known Paris showmen formed for the purpose of erecting a monument to the memory of her husband. She claims that they neglected their duty, and asks for $3,600 damages.

Intimate night clubs popular over here this season, in preference to the ones with two orchestras for tango and jazz dancing, in addition to elaborate cabaret programs. An intimate croon or two, soft orchestra, very small room and low lights, gives the ritzy crowd a chance to show off their jewels and clothes.

Loop

Max Turner ate goose instead of turkey that day.

Goodmanites go slumming at the Theatre Guild productions.

J. J. Rubens, having exhausted the handshakers, back to New York.

Harry Voller has his new loop nite spot, Planet Mars, about ready.

Fred Jordan, by smelling only, says Chi has the country's worst liquor.

Gertrude Bromberg, Shubert p. a., has a new pair of solid platinum specs.

Archer Levy and Frank Gazzolo reported in Phoenix taking a rest from something.

George Brown, R-K-O p. a., was once taken for Ernest Hemingway in a St. Louis depot.

Frank Morgan spends his week ends riding trains to the College Inn from the hinterlands.

Every time Nan Elliott goes into Henrici's for a quiet lunch it turns out to be a convention.

Frank Smith, Palace manager, always meets strangers now with a flock of ushers looking on.

Irving Zapp is contemplating "getting away from it all," which may mean a trip to China.

Manny Kernwein, Dramatic league treasurer, has a tooth that keeps giving him a free fact lift.

Publix-B. & K. Louie Linstone has a refractory lock of hair he toys with during arguments.

Phil Reisman in town last week for a regional sales conference with the midwest Universal managers.

Bill Hollander, Publix-B. & K. press chief, switched from airplane to the train the last minute on an eastern jaunt.

Helen Kurniker missed her chance to be a heroine when she wasn't present at the fire in her building, the Stevens.

George Lukes, after an unsuccessful stab at indie booking here with Kontos and Gregory, is heading back to the metropolis.

Aaron Jones, Jr., John Garrity and Rollo Timponi comprised the legit theatre committee for Mayor Thompson's $1,000,000 prize idea.

With biz terrific opening day at the Chicago, Max Balaban and Bill Pine took turns on each other's shoulders in order to get a peek at the stage.

When Fred Lowenthal sings and somebody squawks that he's flat, the gagman answers: "Why shouldn't I be? I haven't made a quarter in six months."

Maxine Levy, costume designer and instructor at the Goodman, wrote something more than 20,000 words for her 15-minute theatre talk over WMAQ.

Biggest game of the ear, Army-Notre Dame, encountered the worst weather. Tickets, scarce the day before, were being offered free at game time, with no takers.

Publix-B. & K. tossed away some dignity for "Life of the Party" at the Roosevelt and "Hell's Angels" at the United Artists, plastering the front of the house with huge circused banner announcements.

Miami

Chester Alexander is m. c. at the Alcazar Roof.

Frank H. Ulrich will be director of music at the Roney Plaza Hotel.

Alexis Kosloff will open a dance studio at Miami Beach for the winter.

Max Carey and Paul Waner of the Pittsburg Pirates are vacationing here.

Young Stribling refereed the main bout at the Coral Gables Coliseum Nov. 26.

Downie Bros.' Circus will show here Dec. 8-10. Proceeds to charity. First time this circus in Florida.

Art Childers, manager of the Floridian Hotel, is in New York. Night club opens New Year's eve.

Governor Larson of New Jersey and his bride are spending their honeymoon here at the Roney Plaza Hotel.

Blackstone Hotel open. Orchestra is under direction of G. L. Mercadante, for twenty years leader of the Royal Palm Orchestra.

New Van Ness Hotel, on the ocean front, opened Monday. It was recently completed by the Van Ness Bros. of Yonkers, N. Y.

Club Bagdad, hotsy totsy, out near the race track, opened for the season Saturday. Rose Louise, feature. Music by Howard Rossman and band.

Laura Ingalls, noted woman flier, arrived here today after a leisurely flight from Roosevelt Field. She will participate in All-American air meet to be held here in January.

It now appears that Frank J. Bruen, formerly with Madison Square Garden, is going to pass up the $100,000 (?) job in Cuba and work for the Miami Jockey Club for $15,000.

Thomson and McKinnon opened their ocean front branch office on Miami Beach Dec. 1. Dick Turpin is in charge. Ungerleider & Co. opened in the Roman Pools the same date with Harry Cline man in charge.

Esselle Parichy and Aaron Bernstein, Pathe photographers, are here for a few days before making a tour of Cuba, Porto Rico and Haiti by airplane. Pictures taken on this expedition will be released as short subjects by Pathe. Mrs. Parichy is also along and will act as continuity writer.

Toronto

Apple peddlers charging two bits.

Its Pepper's final week here as m.c.

Lee Wilson still pounding Park Row.

Globe cans films and goes burlecue.

Kingsley Bell off for Hollywood this week.

Antique and art dealers despondent. No biz.

Bob Leslie back in Kopple stock as leading man.

F. P. Can. opens new Sudbury house, seating 1,400.

Lydia Fraser using her six-foot brother as model. Mag work.

Morley Callaghan in Child's and reading own manuscripts to fran.

Hundreds turned away from Clarence Darrow-Rabbi Brickner debate.

Jack Arthur's Lillian Magner back at Imperial as solo dancer and violinist.

The Peter Rich who is doing those panhandling exposes is Peter McRitchie.

Bill Entwistle, ex-vaudevillian, singing in local churches and getting paid for it.

Oscar Hanson, of Tiffany-Stahl, here. Promotion. Arthur Lee, of Goumont-British, ditto.

Bill Shaver, Pacific Coast sports writer, again refereeing National Hockey League games hehe.

Abe Orpen, race track operator and gambling joint owner, kicks in with $100,000 to feed unemployed.

Merrill Dennison, writing radio scripts for Canadian National Railways, lunches with Greg Clark and Fred Griffin.

New Orleans

Marathon dancing coming back. No jai alai this winter.

Tom Campbell's 68th Sunday.

Race touts look seedy.

R-K-O's new exchange.

Moise Bloch new p.a. Loew's State.

Arthur Leopold in middle west.

Lou can buy almost any of the local miniature courses for the price of the golf balls.

Adolph Meise doing theatres for the "States."

Lovey O'Donnell expected this week.

Piron's colored orchestra at Roosevelt.

Johnny Moloney m.c. at Fronton.

Rod LaRocque and Vilma Banky in "Cherries are Ripe" turned 'em away in Memphis. Here New Year's week.

Walker Whiteside due at Tulane shortly.

New Orleans staging a little theatre tournament all its own. Ben Hanley has the town het up.

Hotels filling rapidly now.

Betty Jilling at the Strand's organ.

Palace slow in opening.

Cornelius Meehan back with R-K-O. Hard worker.

Dance hall biz picking up. About 20 creep joints around. Most worrying about the rent.

Berlin

Olaf Fjord has been called to Rome by Pittaluga for a German version.

Walter Hasenclever is again in Berlin. He is working on a new stage play.

Henri Bender, in his restaurant on Bleibtreustrasse, showed an educational picture.

Erik Charell has overworked on the rehearsals of his "Im weissen Roessl" and is ill.

Cabaret actress, Elli Glassner, announces her engagement to Erwin Marx, director of the Charlott cabaret, Hanover.

Rudolf Forster, is the partner in Elisabeth Bergner's talker, 'Ariane'. Grock is in his studio work in Neubabelsberg.

Emmy Sturm is in the musical comedy, "Ich betrug dich nur aus Liebe" ("I Am Deceiving You Only Out of Love").

George R. Canty, film trade commissioner of the U. S. Department of Commerce, has been here but departed for Warsaw.

Otto Gebuhr will be in Henri Bernstein's "Melo." Play is to be directed by Eugen Robert and will be shown in "Die Tribune."

Albert Basserman is appearing next month in the "Deutsches Kunstlertheater" in Somerset Maugham's "Der Brotverdiener."

Chief engineer of Western Electric, Lawrence J. Eckstrom, here to examine the apparatus of the Western Electric, gone on to Vienna.

Cilly Feind, has gone to Paris, to play the starring part in the Paramount picture, "Hallwegs zum Himmel" ("Half Way To Heaven").

Franz Lehar and Richard Tauber have arrived here to attend the premiere of their talker, "Das Land des Lachelns" ("The Land of Smiles").

One Hungarian comedian, Dones, has refused to go to Vienna, and Hubert Marischka to continue in Paul Abraham's operetta, "Victoria und ihr Husar."

The Ullstein concern is going to have its Christmas peace. The hostile brothers, Hermann and Franz Ullstein, are resuming the management of the concern.

Otto Klement wrote the German dialog for Universal talker, "All Quiet on the Western Front." It premieres Dec. 15 in the Mozart Saal, with Hanns Brodnitz.

Middle of December will see the Metropol theatre opening of the new operette by Franz Lehar, "Schon ist die Welt" ("The World Is Beautiful"), with Richard Tauber as the lead.

Richard Eichberg's latest star, is Martha Eggert, who will appear in his next talker, "Die Brautigamswitwe" ("The Bridegroom's Widow"). At present she is in the Hamburg Volks-Opera.

Friedrich Zelnik is about to start a talker, "Im Walzer-Paradies" for the Deutsches Lichtspiel-Syndikat. Bruno Granichstaetten is the author of the script and will also write the music for it.

Professor Albert Einstein received an offer from a London variete house, to appear on the stage delivering a lecture on his relativity theory. Prof. Einstein naturally declined.

Rudolf Rittner has returned to films after a long absence. He has the main part in the Terra-United Artist picture, "Vater und Sohne" ("Fathers and Sons"), directed by Victor Sjaestroem.

Suzanne Lenglen, is expected here the end of this month for some sporting activity; for the time being, however, the manager of the performance and the star have not agreed as to the purse.

Alexander Moissi upon advice of his physician, goes to Cairo. From there he will go with his wife, Johanna Terwin, in April, 1931, to Buenos Aires, Montevideo, and Rio de Janeiro on a starring tour.

The Superintendent of the State theatres, Tietjen, seems to have lost in favor. For the present one has taken from him the Staedtische Oper (Municipal Opera), and will very likely dispose of him entirely at a later date.

Nice

(France)

Dorothy Parker gone home.

Mae Murray visiting the old man.

Jim Kay (Kalmay) had his schnozzle fixed.

Jacques Isnardon, Marseilles tenor, died on the eve of the 1930 season.

Frank Harris smoked a pipe for the first time in 32 years the other day.

Harry Worth, ex-middle west Shubert, is on Gould's Palais board of directors as "attache."

Nanon Krakow, Colleen Moore's aunt, took the old beauty scalpel to the chin and clipped 20 years off.

Exactly 46a hotels give the Chi "Trib" as a throwaway to American guests, giving "Herald" a daily burnup.

Where Buddy Rogers is, nobody knows except his Ma, and she's with him.

Aldous Huxley just finished his first play for Leon M. Lion at Vence, hill town where D. H. Lawrence died.

The row between Rex Ingram and Edouard Cornelion Molinier chanced to Paris. Molinier sat too pretty in Nice.

Red lacquered nails for dames giving way to silt in latest craze. Better on the eyes. Other looked like a blood-test.

D. H. Lawrence's stepdaughter has gone gaga. Daughter of a German baron before her ma eloped with author, now dead.

Pola Negri writing "My Confession" with her Ma as censor at Cap Ferrat, where Somerset Maugham and the Duke of Connaught live.

Jefferson Cohen won't telegraph flowers to meet Marcelle Chantal's train any more, because in a little while she won't be his wife any more.

Frank Scully, Irish Catholic, huddling with the last of the Turkish Sultans, who is still pope of fifty million Mohammedans, on the Culiff's autobiog.

Nina Putnam was all set to make a break for Hyde next mo., but she had to take care of an urgent matter of intimate finance, and that has blown the trip far into 1931.

Bob Collyer, who sung so low as small bits with Walter Hampden, has sunk even lower. He's writing English page of a French rag here when not filing cables for the Paris "Herald" and New York "Sun."

Minnies, in a death struggle in the States, pulmotored here for a prosperous winter. Monte Carlo Casino taking three pony golf things, new patented grass course, designed and financed by Philip Eliot, cousin of Earl of St. Germans, and Bob Van Sant of the Van Ess hair tonic millions.

Hanlon Dinner

(Continued from page 49)

mouth" (later acknowledged to be Winchell's own gag), said Benny. Walter talked long in explaining his row with the Shuberts, starting when on the "Graphic," which needed the advertising. He started out by saying the Shuberts produced 54 shows that season "and I panned 55 of them." Also explained his recent notice on "Smiles."

Hanlon: "I've been roasted on all sides. I've been put on the spit—so many people here know me for 20 years we all must have done a bit up the river. My past life from my own lips—starting away down south on Houston street. When my oldest brother went to work we moved uptown. I went to the College of the City of New York, but got too many demerits, then went to Wall street and developed a sense of humor, between panics. Worked in vaudeville three years with Will Morrissey—and then came the war. I became a jolly tar and stood on the dock at Hoboken for eight solid months. All I want on my tombstone is: "Cleaned and Dyed'."

Joe Cunningham, batting for Bugs since Baer quit Philly: "The dictionary says a Friar is a lot of little fish, a lot of suckers. But there was one great Friar and his name was Tuck, an associate of Robin Hood, a guy then in the beer racket. This O'Hay starts to be nice and then becomes a Friar. At this time of the morning Walter the Winch is usually looking through keyholes for blessed events. Hanlon was born in a duplex apartment, the other half being for the horse."

Arthur Lyons, the speech-making agent, again mentioned that he was after a lot of talent. Said that Joe Laurie, Jr., had layed an egg just ahead of him, but that the alleged dog fancier did very well. "As for Hanlon, after I booked him, we have been friends on and off."

It was announced that the honor guests for a Saturday night soon would be Hart, Schaffner and Durante."

NEW ACTS

Dolores De Monde, Jack Walsh and Simon Jurist, comedy sketch, by Andy Rice, "The Benefit."

Bobby Bernard and Miss Grey, two-act.

Ray and Wellings (2).

Harold and Joe Mack (2).

Three Morin Sisters.

Robbins Family.

Rhythm Vamps, formerly Vera Sabina and Co., flash.

Friends' Gobs of Joy (12).

Brooks and Nace, colored, two-act.

Nee Wong Co. (5).

Bobby Randall Co. (3).

Albright, Harte and Co.

Three Pioneers, formerly Eddie Horan and Co.

Juna Dawn and Co. (Ethel Hopkins).

Ed Rogers, formerly Tommy Bracken and Marie Truco.

Mayo and Fisher (4) with Ottilie Cardey and Margaret Beyer.

Cohn Quits "Graphic"

Joe Cohn, for six years political editor of the N. Y. "Graphic" and assistant to the publisher, has effected a settlement of his contract with the new control staff and has left the paper.

Among the Women

By The Skirt

The Best Dressed Woman of the Week
CONSTANCE BENNETT
"Sin Takes a Holiday" (picture)
Mayfair theatre

The Helen Gahagan of Now

For so tall a woman, Helen Gahagan wears clothes exceedingly well. Miss Gahagan is appearing in a play called "Tonight or Never." "Tonight or Never" is the name of a perfume, the play is just as suggestive as the name sounds.

This star has returned from Italy with a well-trained voice. It may not be of Metropolitan quality, for which she has much to be thankful for. If Miss Gahagan can continue in roles in plays with singing and as interesting as "Tonight or Never" she can deem herself fortunate.

David Belasco presents this play at the theatre bearing his name and it has the Belasco touch. Its two sets are more real than theatrical. Men may not like the show but women will go for it plenty.

There is a hot second act that makes "Young Sinners" and "Strictly Dishonorable" sound Sunday school.

Miss Gahagan evidently is fond of lace. Her first pink chiffon frock made with a long train was trimmed all over the bodice with lace. Her evening frock was entirely of white lace and worn with a velvet wrap. And in the last act a negligee of yellow satin was trimmed both top and bottom with ecru lace. A black georgette street costume was made with bolero effect and worn with a matching cape and silver foxes. A black velvet cloche hat and earrings of the deepest coral with purse of red made an exquisite ensemble.

Katherine Stewart was resplendent in pink velvet very much ornamented in diamonds both on the gown and body. A street ensemble was in a brownish beige richly trimmed with fur.

Moran, Hopkins and Winchell

A new piece at the Plymouth theatre is "This Is New York." It may be New York, but it certainly is not Arthur Hopkins. The wonder is that Mr. Hopkins bothered with so trivial, not to say boring, a play.

The first act was all Walter Winchell, the second a suicide and the third a pompous senator.

For some reason, possibly as a picture name, Lois Moran was taken from the studios and given the ingenue part. Alongside Aubray Dale Miss Moran seemed amateurish. Her lines were spoken in monotonous monotone and it wasn't until the last 10 minutes Miss Moran essayed one gesture. Better in the studios, Miss Moran, and wait for a good picture, even if you haven't had one in a long time.

In the first act in a yellow bath robe made very mannish and edged with a black stripe, Miss Moran made her appearance. She soon changed to a white satin evening frock, made quite plain. In second act and third act Miss Moran's suit of black with matching hat was ordinary.

The idea may have been simplicity of costume, and perhaps also in acting, owing to the superior support. But clothes these days may be simple and still be smart.

Miss Dale's single frock was a nice shade of blue with a figure of metal threads. Ruth Hammond was in a chartreuse green made with the new cowl neckline. Lota Bonner, dark haired girl with boyish bob, was in white, with the skirt boldly lined in red.

Swell Clothes

It's the World's Fair at the Mayfair theatre this week. Seldom have such crowds congregated in one theatre. People all over the place and the ushers ought to control the talking of the standees or the Mayfair will have the reputation of the Globe, which isn't so good.

Reason for the stampede is the picture, "Sin Takes a Holiday," with Constance Bennett. A child might have written the script but it has an excellent cast. Miss Bennett goes through the picture in one dress after another. There is a procession of night clubs and splendid costumes by innumerable women, but only the draw of Miss Bennett could possibly do what this picture is doing at the Mayfair. Miss Bennett's clothes are the last word and it is to her credit that she never goes in for the bizarre.

Her most striking costume is street outfit consisting of a black velvet jacket, having a high and deep collar of white ermine. Short sleeves also carry a border of the fur. The three quarter coat is over a skirt so tightly fitted no figure line escapes. Evening frocks are the conventional lace or chiffon. One with the skirt made entirely of ruffles, put on at intervals, is made only for the slimmest of figures and Miss Bennett has that. A black net has a large dot. Basil Rathbone adds to this frothy picture for in other hands the part could have been ridiculous.

Those Classy Hockey Games

Spectators sitting in boxes at Madison Square Garden night of Nov. 25 were annoyed by brats in the gallery expectorating down on them.

That won't help anybody's hockey.

Walter Woolf's Egg Plant

Hollow out an egg plant.

Steam the inside part in water for about 20 minutes, or until fairly soft.

Six medium sized onions.

The shell of a green pepper.

Slice together and put in a pan with a piece of butter the size of an egg.

Cook until half done, and add one cup of tomato soup.

Salt and pepper to taste.

Then take egg plant shell and boil until half soft.

Fill shell with the mixture, put in oven, sprinkle with bread crumbs and serve hot.

MARRIAGES

Theron Bamberger and Phyllis Perlman were married in Philadelphia Nov. 26. Bridegroom is a New York press agent associated with Alexander McKaig and the League of New York Theatres. Bride is also a press agent for Lewis E. Gensler.

Vincent R. Veters and Rosalie O'Neill, both of New York City, have filed marriage intentions at Greenwich, Conn.

Helen Lund (no-pro) to Freddie Cohn (DeSylva, Brown & Henderson), in N. Y., Nov. 26.

Marion Gering to Dorothy Libaire in New York City, Nov. 28. Groom is a legit stage director. Bride is a legit actress, currently in "As Good as New."

Evert R. Cummings to Hazel Gregory (non-pro) in Cedar Rapids, Ia., Thanksgiving Day (27). Groom division manager for Publix in Omaha.

Will H. Hays to Mrs. Jessie Herron Stuttesman, Crawfordsville, Ind., Nov. 27 at the home of Col. and Mrs. Charles D. Herron, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, in Bethesda, Md. Bridegroom was former postmaster general of U. S. and present head of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

He was separated by divorce from his first wife about a year ago after an estrangement of several years. Bride is the widow of James F. Stuttesman, former U. S. Minister to Bolivia, who died in 1919.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Kornblum, son, at Los Angeles, Nov. 12. Father is Coast family lawyer.

Mrs. A&A on Payroll

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Freeman F. Godsen is paying his wife $200 weekly, with Charles J. Correll a like amount to his frau for the help the two wives give the boys in preparing their air material.

Amos 'n' Andy team, while working up all their own material are leaning heavy of late on the two femme assistants, who are supplying lots of the ideas.

Ritzy

Alma Claybaugh was referred to as constantly entertaining notables. Another singer who does likewise is Cobina Wright. Esther Cobb was the second of five wives of Owen Johnson, novelist, son of Robert Underwood Johnson, former asmassador to Italy. She married William May Wright, who was divorced by Sally Dixon, now Mrs. Gerald deC. May. Her guests include Lucretia Bori, Artur Bodanzky, Ben Ali Haggin, Jane Cowl, Ruth Draper, Alla Nazimova, Ina Claire, the Earl Amherst, Noel Coward, Paul Reimers, George Gershwin, Edward Knoblock, George Jean Nathan, Lillian Gish, Princess Francesco Rospigliosi and Prince Serge Obolensky.

A Couple of Flops

"The Lottery," S. Jay Kaufman's production, opened and closed out of town. It was adapted from the Hungarian by Leon Cunningham, actor, who has had two plays, both flops, produced on Broadway. Kaufman married an actress from Hungary. She appeared minorly in Belasco's "Mimi."

Alice Nielson Alone

Alice Nielson has divorced her third husband, Dr. Le Roy Stoddard, securing settlement of $40,000. Her first was Benjamin Netwig and her second J. F. Leffler. From Nashville, she first appeared in musical comedy in Oakland in 1895, touring with "The Bostonians" 1896. She made a Broadway hit in "The Serenade," 1897, and triumphed in "The Fortune Teller" in 1898.

Marian Benda's Marriage

Marian Benda, formerly in "The Follies," has married Baron Rupert von Boecklin and is honeymooning in Germany. Daughter of the late William G. Wilson, of New York, she is a niece of Henrietta Wakefield, former opera singer. The Baron is engaged in business in New York, and will inherit great wealth from his mother, Baroness Ruprecht von Boecklin, who divorced the baron. She was Gertrude Berwin, daughter of the late Charles F. Berwind, of Philadelphia, and niece of Edward J. Berwind, who owns one of the show places at Newport.

The bridegroom is an nephew of Mrs. Henry H. Harjes, of Paris, who was Fredericka Berwind, and divorced Charles Gilpin, of Philadelphia, composer of many scores for the University of Pennsylvania shows.

In the Social Register

"Photoplay" for December prints an article by Katherine Albert, "Who Is Hollywood's Social Leader?". One reads, "The only name of anyone connected with pictures that appears in the famous social Blue Book is that of Antonio Moreno."

The recognized criterion is the Social Register. The only person recorded connected with pictures is Ilka Chase, actress. Ica L. Hill, photographer, is listed, but not his first wife, Kathryn Carver, now married to Adolphe Menjou. Clifford Warren Smith was dropped from the Social Register when he married Clare Luce. Sidney Howard, Louis Bromfield and Alice Duer Miller, scenario writers, are recorded.

Miss Albert artlessly continues: "One of the most cosmopolitan and fascinating groups is to be found at the home of the Arthur Hornblows. Mr. Hornblow is one of the executives in the Samuel Goldwyn company. He and his wife invariably attracting visiting literati, and their guest lists will include the Sidney Howards and the Noel Cowards." Sidney Howard was divorced some years ago from the late Clare Eames, and has not remarried. Noel Coward is a bachelor.

The MacDougalls

When Gladys MacDougall was married recently to Harry M. Graham the society columns stated the bride was a daughter of Alice Foote MacDougall, who amassed a fortune selling coffee and running restaurants, and added Gladys was a great-granddaughter of Stephen Allen, Mayor of New York from 1821 to 1824. No mention was made of her being a niece of the late Emerson Foote, who, as private secretary for several years to Aimee Crocker-Ashe-Gillig-Gouraud-Miskinoff-Galatzine, encountered hundreds of show people at the exotic entertainments constantly staged in New York by the princess from California, who, having divorced her fifth husband, now lives in luxury in Paris.

The Parisian Front

By Christine

Paris, Nov. 21.

Maurice Chevalier is in town and the French stenogs are thrilled, but not too thrilled. They don't dare because their mamas and papas are mad at Chevalier. Mad because he's come to Paris with his bank account full of American dough.

Nevertheless, the girls sit up in the very high top row of one of the biggest theatres in Paris and palpitate at someone whom they used to appaud in the humblest French music halls and now regard with awe and envy as one of the biggest American cinema stars. For a lesser artist the top rows would be conspicuously vacant, but for Chevalier they cannot be less than a third empty at most, regardless of the grievance. He is blessed with one of those personalities, and why he shouldn't cash in on it in any country is too ridiculous a question to go into.

For the benefit of the American colony in Paris he sang three songs in English—but with a careful explanation in French first, and with a master stroke of tact he sang them as they might be sung if three of the most popular French comedians would sing them after they had returned from a trip to America. They went over almost as well as the dirty French songs on the program, which were not only contributed by Chevaller, but also by two other Frenchmen. Give the true Parisian a song with about 50 verses and plenty of good, plain, outspoken dirt, and you are bound to get glowing rounds of applause.

French Chorines' Taps

A last word on this Chevalier appearance, and one not too commendatory. He himself is the complete half of the long program. The entertainers who fill in the first half are simply there so the audience will feel they have had a big evening for their money.

It is chiefly ballet and tap. The first isn't so bad, the second can be dismissed with one word—unnecessary. With jazz foot work as it is done by French choruses in the state it is, it would be wiser to omit it entirely.

Otherwise Chevalier, full of American dollars as he might be, is still a perfectly swell artist. He's a nice boy, too, when you meet him off stage, although this sob sister couldn't keep her mind on her work when interviewing him because of his socks. They possess all of the eight primary colors (are there eight?) in a complicated series of cross sections.

Mabel Boll's Quest

Mabel Boll is Paris, practically riding in a hotel, refusing to see anybody. The boy friend, Levine, languishes in Vienna accused of a daring attempt to reproduce the smallest denomination of French francs; in other words, four and eight cent pieces. True devotion brings her to Paris to find a nice bright lawyer who will clear up the situation.

All the femme correspondents in Paris for American newspapers were commanded to appear at a meeting this week held in the private office of Jean Charles Worth, the dressmaker. The invitation was made intriguing by saying that if you didn't show up to stand together you'd probably wind up in a breadline—out of a job. It seems some enterprising young lady came over here to fix up things between America and France. She claimed to have been terribly agitated for some time about the way France was talked about in American newspapers. So she wanted to tell the fashion writers especially to say nice things about the French. This was the gist of her argument, and when one impatient woman demanded a proof of the supposed propaganda against France, what do you think the dear lady gave as an example? The fact that when a certain movie actress got back to America from Paris she made a statement to the newspapers that she would never buy another evening dress in Paris—no, never. They were entirely too expensive, that was why. The actress was Marion Davies—and it was mean of her to say that, too. Anyway, after the lady gave that brilliant example of anti-French propaganda she went home next day on the French line.

"Nanette" in French

It brings you back to your childhood Broadway days to go to the revival of "No, No, Nanette," now on in Paris. Hearing that old song "Tea for Two" is just bringing back an old dim memory, even if it is sung in French. The show as it is presented here is not so bad for such a typical American transplantation. The chorus girls are mostly English and aren't made any too fetching by having to wear dresses left over from last year's "Desert Song" or something. Nanette is a cute little trick whose name is Lulu Hegoboru. She does the part with just a nice blending of American snap and French oo la la. It's funny, though, how using that same comedy on Broadway would just tear your heart out at the innocence of the American girl, and then seeing the same thing with the same music and words over here with a French heroine.

Thelma Edwards has a good part in which she gets over a little French conversation, a French song and a dance spot all by herself. It's horrid to be partial to your own country, but when Thelma does her stuff next to a blonde and a redhaired principal, one a little too hard and the other a little too fat, she just stands out like the life of the party. She is doubling at a night club as well as doing a little picture work on the side.

Nita Naldi, by the way, is learning French. She can say "Enchantee" now on meeting you, with a perfect American accent and without hesitating. It's too quaint, especially if you have just heard her rip out an American exclamation. She's one who has gone native over here, and, although she is as genial as ever, she is quickly acquiring pounds. She swathes herself in long flowing black and gets the eyebrow pencil to work. She's got a loving husband and a gorgeous apartment here, and she doesn't get herself much disturbed over losing the limelight and taking on curves at the same time. However, if she ever does get beyond "enchantee" she may do a picture.

Vaude Stocking Edict Is Off Palace Torsos

The last half of this week's Palace bill is aptly described by Benny Rubin as a "week-end with Harry Carroll." His act-in-one and revuette lengthen into a cheerless rehashing of old gags. Chatter is linked together by the old reliable patter that starts, "Hello, everybody; how de do?" and, except for neat specialties by the girls, might be subtle burlesque on old tab styles. Costumes are scant but pretty, in tulle, taffeta and satin. The stocking edict evidently doesn't apply where torsos are bare as limbs.

Maxine Lewis wears two well-chosen taffetas, the first a becoming gown in a beautiful American Beauty shade. Her song-style is good, but tiresome when extended over two lengthy medleys.

Ann Codee knows all the wise tricks of obtaining audience attention, including ability to select and wear striking clothes. Her present costume is excellent for a "French comedienne"—slightly wicked combination of black velvet and brocaded cloth of gold. She is one of the few women comics who can indulge in a knockabout style and still retain something akin to dignity.

Hollywood's New Sweetheart

By Grace Green

Hollywood, Nov. 29.

The premiere of "Min and Bill" at the Carthay Circle called out the creme of first night attendants. Executives, their wives and stars not only paid tribute to the fine picture, but mainly to Hollywood's new sweetheart, Marie Dressler. For her characterization of "Min" she certainly should be in line for the Academy's award for the best acting next year.

Marie was there, looking happy and lovely in a black lace gown worn over shimmering black satin. The skirt had an inserted godet in front, with a large flat satin bow where the godet started. Her black caracul coat was worn with a silver fox.

But why will gorgeous women like Marjorie Rambeau allow creeping avoirdupois to detract from their attractiveness? With all that excess weight she is still a fine actress and a beautiful personality; without it, she most certainly would be nigh onto ravishing. Her black chiffon velvet gown with the small cape in back fitted to perfection. The rhinestone incrustations around the low square decolletage further enhanced her charms.

Dorothy Jordon distinguished herself in this talker. Her gown of flesh-colored tulle over pink satin and her wrap of pink velvet were well suited to this sweet girl.

Happier over her friend's success than she could ever be over her own was Polly Moran, who wore, with unusual grace, a black georgette with designs in various colors outlined in beads. Slim, blond Flora LeBreton looked almost fairy-like with her long tresses in a low swirl on the nape of the neck. Her long flowing sleeved gown was of shell-pink chiffon, and her wrap was of light blue velvet.

While on the subject of hair, none has been seen around here that can compare in beauty and color to Hope Hampton's golden red crowning glory. Her turquoise gown with which she wore a turquoise necklace all tended to emphasize her cameo beauty.

Among others were Mrs. Harry Rapf in a lace gown of palest pink, exquisitely tailored, and Mrs. B. P. Shulberg wore a smart black velvet with narrow inserted ruffles of black lace six inches apart down the entire length of the long full skirt. A touch of Alice-blue velvet around the decollette was a pleasant touch.

Mrs. Dave Selznick (daughter of Louis B. Mayer) looked well in a chic black velvet.

Persons

Wallace Beery with bandage on his forehead. Last week it was his hand.

Lew Cody appeared unusually nervous in announcing the stars attending the premiere.

Robert Montgomery carefully guiding his charming wife through the mob lining the sidewalks at the same opening. She became a mother a couple of weeks ago.

John Roche has lost some excess poundage.

Ralph Forbes looks and wears a dress suit.

Grand rhythm to that Abe Lyman band. While not exactly proper, the boys look well with the white vests worn with the tuxes.

Glenn Hunter sporting a bright blue tie and a beret in the Gotham.

Sid Grauman with his sweetheart, his mother, whom he always escorts to all Hollywood functions.

Hobart Bosworth trotting along peacefully on a fine horse.

Sam Hardy speeding along Hollywood boulevard in a flashy yellow roadster.

George Gershwin is being invited to all the Hollywood parties and is a grand sport. He obliges to any request to play the piano.

Edgar Allen Woolf is another favorite at parties. He generally wows them with his imitations.

Another Premiere

The premiere of "Morocco" at the Chinese with Marlene Dietrich, the new German girl starred, was like all openings at this theatre, glamorous, almost unreal and unbelievable. The same thousands of people lining the streets in every direction and the same dozens of arc lights trained on the celebs as they entered.

The picture will undoubtedly get the femmes. Miss Dietrich's cool aloofness will make 'em like it, and Gary Cooper and Adolphe Menjou will draw.

The prolog was fast and flashy. Costumes mainly of long full multi-colored skirts studded with either rhinestones, sequins or crystals, and tiny jeweled brassieres.

Petite Mary Pickford, as usual, caused quite a stir. She looked charming in a brown tulle gown with a capelet of bronze sequins, but for one of those embarrassing things that occur occasionally in the best circles. At the same opening and sitting not far from Miss Pickford another girl, not a picture personality, wore the exact duplicate ensemble. What a balling out couturier is going to get!

Estelle Taylor, escorted by her husband, Jack Dempsey, left nothing to one's imagination in her ultra-revealing, form-fitting gown, which was a beauty. The bodice was of Chantilly lace and the full, trailing skirt of golden-brown taffeta was unevenly joined to the long bodice.

Lupe Velez, with her attractive husband, Gary Cooper, was her ever-vivacious self and looked grand in a slinky, black, velvet gown with side gores in the bodice of flesh colored net outlined with seed pearls.

Mary Brian looking just as nice as she is, wore a cream lace gown with small ribbon flowers in pastel shades scattered over the entire gown. Her wrap of turquoise velvet banded with white fox.

Stately June Collyer's gown was of gold-cloth completely off the shoulders and miraculously kept up. She wore a black velvet coat trimmed with white fox.

One usually thinks of Lily Damita as a hoydenish type. Surprise when she is seen carrying herself with more poise and dignity than any other person in this assemblage. Her beautifully tailored gown was of ivory satin as was her long wrap which was banded with black fox around the bottom only.

Little Mitzi Green made a lovely speech over the microphone on her entrance. She is a self-assured little elf. Her frock was of light blue georgette.

Sue Carol has lost some of that surplus avoirdupois and looked like her old self again. Her black gown was worn with a bright green velvet wrap trimmed with honey colored fur.

Midnight at Henry's

Midnight at Henry's one can generally see a nice gathering of celebs. Attracting more attention than anyone else was Marlene Dietrich with her director, Josef Von Sternberg, looking nice in a dashing brown cloth suit with brown fox around the entire short jacket and also on the cuffs. Her bright green, chenille knit, beret was most becoming.

Sally O'Neil was cute in a tailored maroon dress with a matching hat. Her fitch coat and tiny muff were snappy.

Leo Carillo, looking younger and healthier.

The femme glances sure concentrated on handsome Richard Tucker.

The poor acoustics at the Music Box, combined with the bad heating arrangement helped, if that's possible, to make "The Infinite Shoeblack" seem longer and more tedious, although it was capably cast and enacted. Particularly good work by Olive Meehan. She wore only one commendable gown which was of white tulle encrusted with rhinestones around the decolletage, down the front and along the side seams. It was molded to her form to the knees and then billowed out with numerous layers of tulle.

Quite loved with this lengthy drama was Vera Steadman who has lost most of that excessive avoirdupois she carried around in Paris last year. Her full skirted demi net gown was lovely, also her evening wrap with white fox collar and cuffs.

Marie Prevost was girlish in a black frock, with which she wore a short black velvet coat and a small soft black velvet hat.

Did You Know That—

Helen Lind is now in pictures; she's the voice of "Mickey Mouse" . . . Blossom MacDonald is the wife of Billy Rock, the dancer . . . Winnie Sheehan has gone back to Hollywood . . . Ernestine Woolf has a new mink coat . . . Marion Spitzer's New York trip has been postponed, temporarily . . . Florence Eldridge looked stunning in a brown tricorn and a summer ermine coat at a matinee of "Grand Hotel" . . . Leonie Leontovitch, of that play, in addition to giving a really great performance, wears a small gold hat with a wide sable band; simply ravishing . . . those ecstatic newlyweds, Barbara Newberry and Eddie Fox, Jr., were hysterical Saturday night at the Mayfair, doing a tango . . . Marion Harris was there, looking sweet in a black velvet gown with a band of white gardenias across one shoulder . . . Sharon Lynn wore a blue lace, and Claire Windsor a white beaded gown, with intricate straps in the back . . . Herbie Harris made himself a hero by recovering a $20,000 brooch that some woman dropped . . . Dorothy Hall had eight white orchids to match the ermine of her chic little wrap . . . Nanette Guilford chose a white crystal gown for the occasion . . . Jeannette MacDonald looked regal in delicate pink sequins . . . Harold Franklin was there, and Carlotta King, Madeline Cameron, Billy Gaxton, Louis Shurr, Neal Andrews, Sailing Baruch, Harry Cohn, Jack White, Peggy Fears, Paul Gregory, the De Marcos, Ramon, of Rosita and Ramon, Bob Ritchie, Grace Brinkley, Pearl Osgood, J. J. Kobler, Peggy Joyce, Bobbe Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wagstaff, Lucille Ballatine (looking 30 pounds lighter), Fannie Ward, Otto Kruger and Eddie Buzzell.

THEATRE'S TRIBUTE TO DANIEL FROHMAN

Broadway exposed its sentimental side at the Biltmore dinner in honor of Daniel Frohman's 50 years of service for the Actors' Fund. The banquet hall and adjoining suites were crammed with more than a thousand, bubbling with good will, rising every few minutes to honor the guest and lustily joining in specal lyrics that rounded out the strains of "Over There" with:

"To that showman,
Our own Dan Frohman,
Here's your health, old friend.
God bless you is our prayer."

The banquet hall was dotted with the silver heads of former ingenues who were in the Frohman shows in the old days when engagements were not transitory, but lasted over a two-year contracted period.

Conspicuous at the speakers' table was Texas Guinan, radiant in ice and ermine, laughing valiantly at every familiar gag. From the balcony Miss Frohman, at times perilously near tears, listened to the tributes paid to Daniel and Charles, the latter now a legend to many of the young people of the theatre. Across the hall was Fay Marbe, positively terrific in a gown of all-over red sequins and red lace mittens covered with diamond bracelets.

Alison Skipworth, a graduate of Frohman casts, paid pretty tribute to the guest of honor, announcing that she loved him dearly—and forever. Fannie Hurst (in a swell gown of pearl gray) and Helen Hayes concentrated their affectionate sentiments in charming bows and smiles.

Jack Whiting's Claim

There is nothing in College Lovers to justify a revival of the collegiate-screen cycle which appeared to have run itself out several months ago. The film is dull, depending on thrown cream puffs and lost trousers for comedy.

Marion Nixon, in the lead, is just another sweet ingenue. Jack Whiting, as a busy-body panacea for all ampoules ills, screens so badly, he could use the camera.

Hollywood Femmes Have No Heart At Shops' Plight—Sweet Revenge!

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Local shops, especially those of the swankier type, are having headaches and plenty these days. Business these pre-Christmas weeks, in ordinary times the peak of the shopping season, can only be described as terrible.

Smart department stores aren't faring any too well, but the ultra high hat apparel and specialty shops seem to be taking it on the chin worst of all. To such an extent that usual January sales, instituted to clear away what remains of Christmas merchandise, are being held now, with plenty of literature announcing great bargains in Christmas gifts and clothing for holiday festivities. Frequent telephone calls from salespeople reminding customers of this great opportunity, and every conceivable sales method being used to move the merchandise.

Despite all this, a visit to several of the more tony shops reveals a considerable dearth of customers. In the parking space of one ordinarily popular store were only four cars at an hour of the day when, normally, there would have been 25 or more. At another shop, even more exclusive, only two women turned up between the hours of 11:30 and 4, and they didn't buy anything.

Wide Open Credit

Attitude of owners and managers toward customers has undergone a radical change since business is so bad. One firm in particular, formerly very ritzy to all but the most famous and wealthy of its clients, has adopted supplicating tactics, at times slightly reminiscent of Rivington street methods, only on a sweller scale. Where formerly a customer whose bill was not paid by the 10th of the month would receive a sharply dunning letter or telephone call, every effort is made to ease up payments.

Credit is extended over a period of months, even to people whose position in the community is slightly less than assured. It is quite possible to arrange an installment plan purchase and still have the pleasant knowledge that you are wearing the clothes of the snootiest firm in town. Or, one may take a garment in November and have it put on the February bill.

Anything to move the merchandise. It is even possible, if a woman has the nerve, to haggle on price and get away with it.

General feeling on the part of the Beverly Hills and Hollywood women is that it's a very good thing for the shops to have a little difficulty for a while. For so long they had everything their way, charging anything they cared to and behaving in a generally high-handed manner, taking advantage of the fact that there were only two or three shops in the whole community where a really well dressed woman could buy her clothes.

MATTER OF DRESSING TO BE "DEAD-SWELL"

As good as are Jerry and Her Baby Grands (quartet of excellent pianists), the style of the act could be made dead-swell. At present it is a good novelty, an interesting picture with four white pianos strung across the stage in a straight line and subjected to a changing light pattern.

If the silver background is to be retained, the four pianists should wear simple black velvet gowns with deep decolletage outlined in rhinestones. If white dresses are considered better to reflect the changing lights, they would be thrown into effective relief by drapes of shining gun-metal satin. Either treatment would sharpen style and clarify the outline. Clifton frocks worn at present.

Also at the 81st Street are Will and Gladys Ahern, creating good-humored audience response with their familiar rope and line slinging.

Sentimental Ending In "Viennese Nights"

In spite of occasional heavy acting and story-twists, "Viennese Nights" is the best operetta to reach the screen. Tenderly true sets and costumes capture the charm of 1880 Vienna and New York in the 90's, while a familiar plot is accelerated by a gay, vigorous score well woven into the script.

Vivienne Segal's performance spans 50 years, a difficult assignment handled competently and, toward the end, with successful characterization. She has never screened more flatteringly than when, with startling resemblance to Fritzi Scheff, she enters a theatre box, an elegant black-velveted lady of the 90's.

A sad, romantic conclusion leaves the audience warm with the tearful sympathy that indicates box office, as the grandparents of the 1930 sweethearts, parted by misunderstanding, are re-united in moviedom's double-exposure hereafter.

Another double-exposure might have revealed the shade of another grandparent, as young Oscar Hammerstein acknowledged opening night enthusiasm. To old-time sentimentalists were visible the dim outlines of the polished silk hat and flowing cape of old Oscar reincarnated in the name which is still accomplishing things on Broadway.

6 to 1 Adagio Exploit

Lovejoy Dancers and Hal Sidare, at the State, reverse usual dance procedure. Sidare's job as understander for six adagio posturers is no sinecure. Costumes are tightly devised in orange velvet and white chiffon.

Helen Lynd's impersonations of Lenore Ulric and Fannie Brice are good mimicry, needing only the assurance of repeated playing. The Brice imitation could be lightened by shortening the walk across stage to indicate two characters—at present the long waits between speeches let the impersonation down badly.

"Lottery Bride" a Dud

In a musical screen version of a trek to the North Pole, it is quite all right for a Norwegian lass to tramp the snows in flimsy slippers and silk stockings. It is also convenient for the hero to go a little mad in the loneliness of ice floes since it offers excuse for a Technicolor mirage bridal procession to trail across the sky with the Northern Lights.

Little more need be said about "Lottery Bride" except that it includes beautiful specimens of stilted acting, phoney trick photography and artificial sub-sequences. The film is a sad come-down for Jeanette MacDonald whose lovely voice and presence have heretofore been treated with clever musical direction. Zasu Pitts introduces what little humor there is with telling, wistful understatement.

How Roxy Show Looks To School-Free Kids

This week's Roxy program was probably devised with an eye to the children out of schools over Thanksgiving week-end. It's that sort of performance, short on the classical end and containing juvenile comedy and plotless color scheings.

Cecilia Ager's cherubs—Laurel, aged two, and Shana, five—thought it was a grand show. Laurel, not having an extensive vocabulary, didn't say much, but she laughed a lot, particularly at a trombone player. Shana, having been to the pictures once before, was more self-contained. She liked "Melody Lane" because she had learned it at school and was able to join in the chorus at enthusiastic intervals.

She thought the International Four were fine because they could skate better than the boys in the park, and that the Roxyettes in multi-colored clown suits were almost as much fun as the circus. She couldn't understand why the Gypsy girl suffered so much when she danced, but the costumes were the most beautiful she'd ever seen. And the toe-dancing cow—she couldn't wait to get home to tell her father about that—though she doubted that a cow could really dance.

News From the Dailies

This department contains rewritten theatrical news items as published during the week in the daily papers of New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Hollywood and London. Variety takes no credit for these news items; each has been rewritten from a daily paper.

NEW YORK

Giuseppe Bamboschek, former conductor of the Metropolitan Opera Co., was released from the county jail, where he had been since his arrest, Nov. 17, for being in arrears for $1,200 in the payment of $100 weekly alimony awarded Mrs. Blanche Bamboschek after a divorce. Bamboschek was unable to pay, and it looked as if he would have to remain in jail for the full six months fixed by the law. But negotiations were opened with Mrs. Bamboschek, who consented to his release on the payment of $250.

Charles Dillingnam announces he has signed William Anthony McGuire for three plays. First will go into rehearsal in a month under the title "A Bad Penny," to be followed by "Onward, Christian Soldiers." Third play untitled.

Mrs. Eddie Foy and Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein decided to go on the stage to help their depleted incomes. Mrs. Eddie Foy will direct "The Casey Girl," the play her husband made famous, and Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein will play the part of the mother when it goes into rehearsal under supervision of the Music Temple of the Worlds, Inc. If contracts permit, all the "little Foys" may take part.

Frieda Mierse Droege, "Miss America" of 1927, who left "Whoopee" a year ago to help her young husband, William Droege, make a success of the drug business, has started divorce proceedings. Justice Humphrey reserved decision on her action, which was heard last week.

She testified that it was a redheaded beauty who broke up her home. After that discovery she went back to the stage in "Simple Simon" as a show girl.

Actors' Equity and I. Miller shoe stores started co-operating on a campaign to raise money for the unemployed, which will be continued throughout this month.

Under the plan two well-known stage players are to act as host and hostess for a day in each of the five Miller stores in Manhattan and Brooklyn, 10% of the gross business these days to be turned over to Equity, which will divide it among the various theatrical organization.

George White, one of the earliest and most outspoken enemies of the new Theatre League, joined last week.

White said plenty against the league when it was organized.

That radio has reduced the demand for musical instruments is shown by a Washington report which showed that deliveries of musical instruments by manufacturers in 1929 were valued at $60,904,137 (f.o.b. factory prices), a decrease of 38.9% as compared with $99,689,293 reported for 1927, the last preceding census year.

A $250,000 damage suit instituted by Frances Porter Hall, former Atlanta dancer, against Conkey Whitehead, wealthy sportsman, was on file in Atlanta, Ga., last week. Suit is similar to one which was filed in January and dismissed on a technicality.

Suit charges the ex-dancer was falsely arrested and imprisoned at Havana. It further alleges assault and battery. She set forth that in November, while a guest of Whitehead on his yacht in Havana harbor, she was arrested and taken ashore by Cuban policemen in company with the defendant's chauffeur. She claims that later she was held a virtual prisoner aboard the yacht for a week.

Plans for Sing Sing convicts' annual theatrical performances were suddenly canceled by Warden Lawes without explanation. It had been announced that the convict production would be "Little Jessie James."

Will H. Hays, filmdom's czar was married Nov. 27 to Mrs. Jessie Herron Stutesman, widow of James F. Stutesman, former U. S. minister to Bolivia.

It is Hays' second marriage. He divorced his first wife, the former Helen Thomas, daughter of an Indiana judge, in June, 1929, and was awarded the custody of their son, William, Jr., now 13. Incompatibility was given as the reason for the dissolution of the marriage.

The world today needs good waiters more than it does motion picture directors, said Magistrate Wil in suspending sentence on Albert Richards, 30, a waiter, arrested because he, his own admission he wanted to be "a movie director like Lubitsch or DeMille." Richards was arrested in the Paramount Building. Patrolman William Shields said he had been ejected from the firm's studio in Astoria several times. Richards assured the magistrate he knew all the fine points of picture making.

Life-long friends, Harry B. Balcom, 82, and William Elliot, 55, both actors, died early Nov. 26 from accidental gas poisoning as they slept in their apartment on 41st street. Balcom, cast for a minor role in "Oh, Promise Me," which opened the preceding night, had returned from Atlantic City where the show was in rehearsal. Elliot was asleep. Apparently, Balcom made some coffee and went to bed, leaving the gas jet turned on.

Lou Tellegen announces his retirement from the stage. Tellegen, former husband of Geraldine Farrar, has taken a studio where he will teach dramatics.

When John Griffin, electrician of the Little theatre, climbed on an upright piano to inspect a high shelf backstage, he tumbled off, landing on Jerry Allen, actress, waiting for her cue, injuring her so badly she was unable to continue, it was declared in her suit for $20,000 damages against him and the theatre.

Miss Allen said the surprise and shock she experienced as well as the injuries suffered, impaired her ability to work for some time.

Mrs. Beulah Troy, former dancer, lost her suit for $250,000 damages from John A. Hoagland, non-pro. Verdict expressed the jury's belief that Hoagland was innocent of charges made by Mrs. Troy that he beat her with his fists in a taxicab in Atlantic City one wild night in the summer of 1928.

Several weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hall, radio and vaudeville singers, came to New York from Philadelphia in search of work. They rented a two-room apartment at 11 E. 30th street. Their search here was no more fruitful than in Philadelphia and Hall returned home. Last week gas was smelled coming from Mrs. Hall's apartment. Police broke down the door and found her dead.

Ruth Morgan, of "Smiles," became the fourth wife of James V. Converse, financier, Friday (28). Details of the marriage were not learned. Couple are honeymooning in Boston.

Converse's third and former wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Walter Bradstow, society woman, was killed in an automobile accident seven weeks ago.

Clifton theatre, Huntington, Pa., was destroyed by fire Jan. 1. Fire started 3.30 in the afternoon and resisted all efforts of the firemen to control it until late that night. Two firemen were injured.

After taking $40 from the porter, whom they tied, three armed men set fire to the Hamilton Chateau, night club at North Beveen, N. J. Firemen, who turned in a second alarm before the blaze was extinguished, estimated the damage at more than $25,000.

Porter escaped through a window and his bonds were released by the proprietor of a nearby filling station.

Police were searching for a motive in the suicide of Agnes Anable, 21, interior decorator and former actress, known professionally as Joyce Channing. She was found dead from gas poisoning in her apartment at 264 W. 79th street, Nov. 29. Neither her mother or finance could offer an explanation.

B. S. Moss, operator of the Broadway theatre, and E. Ray Goetz, producer of "The New Yorkers," joined the League of New York Theatres.

League announced that Goetz recused a "buy" of 600 seats a performance for 20 weeks, offered by unauthorized brokers.

Lucille Lavelle, 20, non-pro, got an idea to go gunning for Rudolph Cameron, actor and former husband of Anita Stewart, picture actress. She bullied him, and the pistol dropped from her person accidentally. That was her story when she was taken to the police station on charges of felonious assault and Sullivan law violation. Norman Seacert, taxi driver, said she had pointed the revolver at him and ordered him to drive her to Sixth avenue and 56th street. He fled and grabbed a cop, who said Miss Lavelle had the revolver in her hand when he reached her.

Cameron called police 10 days ago to eject Miss Lavelle from the Plaza Hotel annex. She preferred a serious charge against him but later withdrew her accusation.

Four hundred persons attending a concert in the Brooklyn theatre, Flatbush avenue and Fulton street, were thrown into a panic Sunday afternoon when four shots rang out in the lobby. Two men were wounded. Men, women and children rushed for the exits. Order was restored with the arrival of police.

Detectives arrested Mariano Ferrantolli, 35, manager of the theatre, and his two brothers. According to police, the two wounded men tried to "crash the gate" at the theatre.

Ziegfeld began preparations to bring suit against both the New York Theatre Ticket League and the Postal Telegraph Co. for "flagrantly discriminating against him" in the handling of seats to his new musical comedy, "Smiles."

Ziegfeld seeks to compel brokers affiliated with the league to handle seats for "Smiles" since in their contracts with the hotels the brokers specifically agree to serve the public.

The dinner tendered to Daniel Frohman as a tribute to His 50 years' career as a theatre manager in the Hotel Biltmore, N. Y., Sunday evening (30) was a great success, 1,500 persons taking part.

The toastmaster was Channing Pollock, with Donald Ogden Stewart as master of ceremonies.

Many prominent players made speeches, all praising the venerable theatrical man.

In recent years Mr. Frohman has devoted his entire time to the Actors' Fund. Congratulations to Mr. Frohman from foreign actors were read by Sir Guy Standing. The affair was staged by the Actors' Fund Matinee Club in co-operation with the Dramatists' Guild, Authors' League, Players' Club, Lambs and other theatrical organizations.

Responding to the ovation accorded him, Mr. Frohman declared it was the happiest day of his life.

LOS ANGELES

Divorce complaint against Wesley I. Hopper, picture extra, was that he hung around the house waiting for studio calls instead of getting a job.

Consuelo Beauchamp, 19, dancer, suing for $50,000 damages from the driver of a car that struck her a month ago. Hasn't been able to walk since the accident, she says.

Marie Starner asks annulment of her marriage to Jack Starner, vaude dancer, a year ago. She claims he already had a wife.

John McCormick reported engaged to Mae Clarke, pictures.

William R. Irwin, picture location manager, was awarded $10,000 damages from the Pickwick Stages System for bone injuries received in a bus wreck. His wife and two children were awarded $1,700 damages.

Stafford C. Campbell, legit, sentenced to 180 days for vagrancy, with 90 days off if he leaves the city as soon as released.

The county grand jury listened to Daisy DeVoe's version of her out with Clara Bow and then indicted the picture star's ex-sec on 27 counts of grand theft. She is accused of drawing unauthorized checks amounting to $16,000 on a special Bow account.

Betty Gray, pictures, granted a divorce from William J. Coles, New York cyclet. Said he was always going into six-day races.

Frederick Nixon, father of Marion Nixon, avoided alimony by explaining to the court, that his sole source of income was his daughter in pictures.

Tom Mix reported to the police that thieves stole two tires from his $14,000 car. Next day they stole the car.

Jesse James, Jr., is back in court suing the estate of Fred C. Thomson for a balance of $9,400 claimed for services during the filming of his father's life. A similar action was non-suited a few months ago.

No damages for Emma Louise Clark's broken ankle. First National studio fitter sued Jack Brown over an auto accident at the studio a year ago. Jury held her guilty of contributory negligence.

Owen Moore and Hoot Gibson named in income tax feuds. Government claims $2,411 from Moore for 1927 and $3,407 from Gibson for 1929.

Separate maintenance given Mrs. Anna Burns. She showed a letter from Aubrey Burns, picture writer.

(Continued on page 68)

Burlesque Routes

will be found on page 71 of this issue.

Mutual Stocks to Spike Opposish And Open Houses? 26 Indies Now

Burlesque stock is gaining a formidable foothold, throughout the east particularly. A check-up reveals 26 stocks operative on Monday (1) with at least two or three set to join the list within the next few weeks. Among them is the Irving Place, New York, now a Mutual spoke. It goes stock Dec. 22.

Just where Mutual stands on stock isn't pronouncedly plain at present, but as the wheel is in on the lease of the Empress, Toledo, where Sam Micaels, former Mutual associate, is operating stock, it would not surprise many to see Mutual install stock where wheel shows are not successful.

Irving Place, at present playing Mutual shows, becomes stock with Charles Burns managing. Whether Herk and Mutual share is likely, as they were in on a stock proposition there before.

There are other Mutual "ins," but the circuit will not run stock unless imperative either to keep a house open or to offset any proposed stock opposition.

Generalized stocks are now running as follows:

New York—Gotham (125th St.), managed by Sam Kraus (Sam's a brother of Dave, former Mutual operator), but this is strictly an indie proposition; National, Winter Garden, downtown, and run by the

(Continued on page 71)

STOCK PEOPLE TALK OF ORGANIZING

Burlesque players, now in New York, seeking stock engagements are talking organization.

There have been stocks organized for New York City at different upstate points where the engaged people have gone under contract only to find themselves having several weeks' salary owed and nobody around to pay off.

This condition was accentuated the past few weeks when burlesque stock people in Albany and Baltimore after working several weeks found no salary.

In Albany one of the comics opened his envelope and found $3. He has collected nothing further.

Comic Funny Witness In Girl's Damage Suit

Spokane, Dec. 2.

The legs of a dancer in a film chorus get the closeups and not the face, Frank Finney, burlesque comedian and director, testified this week in the $7,500 damage case of Helen May, local dancer, seeking to collect from Clifton, Applegate & Toole, contractors.

Plaintiff alleged dirt was left in the street after a sewer excavation and improperly lighted. Her face was scarred following auto accident in which she was injured. On testimony that those riding with Miss May were intoxicated and that the grading was lighted, the case was thrown out of court after a jury disagreed.

DOCS STAY HOME

No more general assigning of show doctors to the Mutual shows. They will now stay as set, with perhaps a few changes ordered by Mutual, and Emmett Callahan deputized to put new orders into effect.

Where necessary Callahan will jump to the town where the ailing show is playing and prescribe treatment.

RECORD BREAKERS

(MUTUAL)

With Gertie Foreman, Peggy Wilson and Esther Burt, house soubrets, lending ample support this show rates better than the usual wheel production seen around these days. These girls are so far superior to the average burlesque strip saleswomen that any comparison would be another reflection on the business acumen of the Mutual moguls.

They can't seem to figure why Charley Burns, manager of the Irving Place, insists that a couple of shapely girls with looks who can sell a song and do an ordinary time step might mean something at the box office. False economy almost ruined burlesque on 14th street, but with the three expert house grinders working biz was close to capacity Monday night.

Heading the femme principals with this show is Bebe Almond, capable blonde soub, up among the best of the torso tossers on the circuit. With a fair voice, a nice figure and lots of personality Miss Almond clicked easily in her tease numbers, but try as she might, she was unable to get any of girls on the runway to show any sign of animation. Joan Colette, statuesque brunet, and Martie Gillmore, blonde, are the ordinary type of stalling disrobers of no particular merit.

Comics are Chuck Wilson and Billy Hagen, the former a fat boy doing eccentric in nice style. Hagen does putty-nosed big shoe tramp stuff acceptably. Both comics at times show flashes of ability despite the stereotyped material assigned them. While all the skits have been used in burlesque year after year, some of them get over in good shape since these comics are at least a little better than the average on the Mutual.

Charles Shultz, straight; Harry Dean, juve, and Charley Leslie, character man, are all on a par with the best that burlesque has to offer in their respective line of work.

It's the chorus that makes the title of this show a misnomer, the sixteen girls being of all shapes and sizes, and on the whole lacking simple hooting ability as well as looks.

Burlesque stock is gaining a formidable foothold, throughout the east particularly. A check-up reveals 26 stocks operative on Monday (1) with at least two or three set to join the list within the next few weeks. Among them is the Irving Place, New York, now a Mutual spoke. It goes stock Dec. 22.

Just where Mutual stands on stock isn't pronouncedly plain at present, but as the wheel is in on the lease of the Empress, Toledo, where Sam Micaels, former Mutual associate, is operating stock, it would not surprise many to see Mutual install stock where wheel shows are not successful.

Irving Place, at present playing Mutual shows, becomes stock with Charles Burns managing. Whether Herk and Mutual share is likely, as they were in on a stock proposition there before.

There are other Mutual "ins," but the circuit will not run stock unless imperative either to keep a house open or to offset any proposed stock opposition.

Generalized stocks are now running as follows:

New York—Gotham (125th St.), managed by Sam Kraus (Sam's a brother of Dave, former Mutual operator), but this is strictly an indie proposition; National, Winter Garden, downtown, and run by the

(Continued on page 71)

Detroit Censor Pinches Four Stock Strippers

Detroit, Dec. 2.

Girls at the Broadway Strand, stock burlesque, stripped too much for the local censor, Lieut. Lester Potter, who arrested four members and held them for trial. Trial is slated for Dec. 1.

Detroit is known as a good burlesque town and more than the usual number of houses are running, mostly on grind policy. With the falling off of business efforts were made to play up the femme strip stuff.

Herk's Info.

Following reports from Mutual managers that cash was advanced to several individuals claiming to have official representation from the Herk office, strict orders were sent to all company reps regarding future advances.

One man, long regarded as a Mutual officio, had eased into several companies on strength of his supposed "in" with the home office. Upshot was that Herk issued mandatory orders that will make it tough for "intimates" to put anything over.

Ray Reed Quits

Ray Reed, comic, upon advice of physicians, left the Mutual show, "The Record Breakers," last week in Jamaica, N. Y., suffering from a rheumatic heart.

Billy Hagen jumped in without a rehearsal.

Burlesque Changes

Irving Selig to "Powder Puff" (Mutual), opening Dec. 8. Replacing Kinneer and Sammy Weston.

Ruby Foreman as "extra attraction" this week at the Gayety, Brooklyn.

Pearl Kay and Billie Shaw to "Legs and Laughter" (Mutual).

No Wheel Closings

No further closings of Mutual shows at this time [illegible] those decided upon several [illegible] ago.

"Peek-A-Boo" company, which was set to fold and then had several additional weeks booked, closes in Union City, N. J., Dec. 6.

Scranton Stock Cast

A runway line of 17 and 11 principals, all but the runway being recruited through Ike Weber in New York, are set for the new burlesque stock at the Gaiety, Scranton, Pa.

Occasional changes will be made in leads. First cast includes Eddie (Nut) Kaplan, Cress Hillary, Billy Lee, Lew Harris, Lew Price, Fay Norman, Lucille Carroll, Marie Weldon, Ethel Lee, Betty Mae and Baby Norman.

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

Published Weekly by VARIETY, Inc.
Sime Silverman, President
154 West 46th Street New York City

SUBSCRIPTION:
Annual.....$10 Foreign.....$11
Single Copies.....35 Cents

VOL. 100 No. 21

50 YEARS AGO

(From Clipper)

Sarah Bernhardt, about to begin an American tour, was taken on a sight seeing tour of New York, feature of which was a view of the town from the roof of the old Equitable building. (If memory serves the building was all of 12 stories high.)

Death of Charles Ottingnon at 68, is the occasion of reminiscences of Gotham's gay life of a past generation. Ottingnon operated the first public gymnasium in the city at Chambers street and Broadway, the establishment being the rendezvous of the "better class of sporting men." Ottingnon had been a semi-professional boxer.

Check up on the recent Harvard-Princeton football game in New York, revealed that it had drawn the largest football crowd in history; gate receipts totaled $3,000.

They took their politics seriously in 1880. Deputy Coroner Dunn of Brooklyn, a former prize fighter, objected to the statement of former Assistant District Attorney Morris of Kings, that he "was elected by crooks and thieves," met him in a chop house near City Hall, Brooklyn, and knocked him down and beat him severely, breaking his jaw and cheekbone.

"Mulligan Guards' Picnic" reached its 100th performance at the New York Comique and souvenir programs of satin were presented to all the women present.

Charles Warner, English actor, was invited to tour the States, but had made no decision. Warner, father of the present H. B. Warner, was a great friend of the novelist, Charles Reade, and it was he who made the drama "Drink" famous on both sides of the Atlantic.

15 YEARS AGO

(From Variety and Clipper)

General Film Co., ordered to dissolve as a trust by the Government, was planning to re-form with a different composition and release five reels daily. Usual program was made up of seven reels, which left two reels open to be bought in the open market. Before then General would cut off any exhibitor who showed any non-trust films.

Film business was fast organizing on a big business basis. The major companies laid out new budgets for national advertising. Paramount was to spend $300,000, with like sums by Mutual, World and Metro.

Mary Pickford was making her last film for Famous Players and would not renew her contract. She received the highest salary in the industry, $104,000 a year, with sharing bonus which brought her income to $175,000.

After an interval, cut rate legit tickets were on sale again at Joe Leblang's. First day 4,000 ducats were dealt in on a specific buy with no returns. Leblang was "stuck" with about 800 pasteboards. The second night the surplus was cut in half.

The Mayor of Los Angeles discharged two film censors on evidence presented of bribery and corruption and two other members of the board resigned.

James K. Hackett, in spite of depression generally in the theatre—the war boom had not yet got under way—continued his traditional custom of paying half salaries during rehearsals.

Inside Stuff—Legit

Announcing seven stage shows already, three of which are musicals, for production next year by Max Gordon and Charles Dillingham, Erlanger's, backing the shows, is estimated adding $350,000 to money already invested in backing. This does not include the American production of "Evergreen" English musical which Max Gordon is bringing over and "Private Lives," the C. B. Cochran attraction Arch Selwyn is opening at the Times Square next January, which will increase the outlay.

Gordon is doing three other musicals. One will star Al Jolson. Other two are "Mr. Cinders" and "Lucky Seven," by Howard Dietz. Latter may have picture names. Dillingham is doing three shows by William Anthony Maguire, and one by Dillard Long, Dillingham's secretary. All are dramas.

Gordon's three musicals are estimated for a total of $250,000 and Dillingham's four at $100,000.

Outstanding example of a playwright with a formula for successful play production is George S. Kaufman. During the past 10 years, he has been identified with the writing of nine plays, seven of which have been money-makers. Each of these plays has had a sap character as the male or female lead, with the sap unwittingly winning out at the finish.

Kaufman has used that formula writing alone or in collabration, noticeably in such plays as "Once in a Lifetime," current; "June Moon," on tour; "Dulcy," "To the Ladies," "The Butter and Egg Man," "Merton of the Movies" and "Beggar on Horseback."

In only two plays has Kaufman neglected the glorification of the sap hero and those two plays, "Minick" and "Deep Tangled Wildwood," were flops.

George M. Cohan's pioneering tour to reclaim the road for legit has been signally successful.

Mr. Cohan's sojourn in some of the proverbial tanks in his current revival of "The Tavern" has been a two way event for the author-star-producer.

Local Chamber of Commerce and Kiwanis organizations have met Cohan with brass bands and to prove that the incoming reception was more substantial than merely a surface affair, he and "The Tavern" have done well in every town so far touched.

George White's road company of "Flying High" also has prospered. In consequence White may recast his last year's "Scandals" and send it out on the short jump stands after the holidays.

When John Griffin, electrician of the Little theatre, New York, climbed on top of an upright piano to inspect a high shelf backstage, his judgment of balance was so poor that he tumbled off, landing on Jerry Allen, actress waiting for her cue, and injured her so badly that she was unable to continue work. She alleges this in a suit for $20,000 damages against him and the theatre operators in the Supreme Court.

The suit was disclosed when John Golden, F. Ray Comstock and Lawrence Weber, operators of the theatre, filed a motion for a bill of particulars.

She is represented by Milton L. Maier, of 220 E. 42nd street, and the defendants by Clarence E. Mellen, of 100 Maiden Lane.

For the first time in its history the Shubert, Kansas City, went two-for-one recently with "Dracula." Thousands of the two-for-one tickets were mailed to selected lists and a check-up showed that fully 75 per cent. of the week's business was the result of the scheme.

Although Kansas City is classed as a musical comedy town, the "Dracula" engagement drew more customers than "Sons of Guns" a few weeks ago. Three of the "Dracula" audiences were larger than the entire week's attendance to the Fritz Leiber Shakspearean repertoire engagement. The thriller was offered at a two dollar top, which, with the two-for-one thing thrown in, made it cheap.

On the closing day (29) of "Pressing Business" at the Republic, New York, one of its ads read like this with the bottom line dropped in accidentally:

FORECLOSURE SALE
A NEW COMEDY
"PRESSING BUSINESS"
with Andrew Mack, Bernard Gorcey, George White
REPUBLIC THEA., 42d St., W. of B'way
Evgs., 8:40. Mats., Wed. & Sat., 2:40

"Princess Charming," which closed suddenly at the Imperial Saturday (29), was a hard luck show. The selection of Mlle. Bregis, French prima donna who was imported, did not turn out well. A fire in Boston delayed the premiere there a week, adding to the loss which totaled $225,000 when the curtain rang down in New York. Evelyn Herbert was rushed from the Coast to replace the French girl. Show might have continued, cast willing to take a cut, but Miss Herbert was reported refusing. Show was on a 10% royalty basis, an expense item which was really the reason for taking it off.

George M. Cohan cut short the Tuesday evening performance of "The Tavern" at the Erlanger, Buffalo, last week in order to make the 11:15 for New York to attend the funeral of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Sam H. Harris.

Arriving in New York at 8 a. m. he attended the funeral, chartered a special train out of New York leaving at noon and arrived in Buffalo at 7:45 Wednesday night. A special police escort rushed him from the station to the theatre where the curtain was rung up promptly for the Wednesday night show. The trip is reported to have cost $1,500.

With the current hard times, and the difficulty of securing backers from the outside world, one well known London manager has concocted a practical scheme for financing his new enterprise. He has persuaded four members of his company, and the author, to invest $10,000 apiece, and placed them on the directorate of the company. They all are to participate in the profits, of course.

Peculiar part is persuading the leading man to put up his coin, something of a record in this case.

"Collision," which was announced in the dailies Monday (1) as a new play for Green and Gensler, came as a surprise to Morris Green, of play for Green and Gensler, came as a surprise to Morris Green, of G. & G., who knew nothing about the show nor that it had been bought. Notice was sent out by Phyllis Perlman, p. a. for Lewis Gensler, who is said to have bought the play, written by two foreign authors.

Green and Gensler have offices on different floors of the same building. No one in Green's office knew anything about the play.

The threatened suit by Beth Brown against Arthur Hammerstein to restrain him from using the name "Ballyhoo" for his musical comedy, was filed in the New York Supreme Court Monday.

Miss Brown, who states that she is a well known writer and novelist, says that she sold a story of that name to Metro-Goldwyn for the use of Norma Shearer and that the film producers have advertised the name widely.

William Elliott is back in New York, to re-enter legit production. He is accompanied by his wife, a French woman associated with Elliott in the operation of half a dozen picture theatres over there.

Elliott left the stage for the managerial field years ago. His last legit

(Continued on page 62)

Inside Stuff—Vaudeville

An agent in the Loew Bldg. Annex is forever fearing vaude acts apart and separating teams. This agent's ability as a vaude showman is nil. He, unfortunately, seems to get first crack at many acts, and proceeds to rewrite them in his numb way with the result that nothing happens for the act and it usually disbands. His latest episode of destruction was to tear down the complete act of an English vaude actor, favorite in England, who is over here on a short visit and decided to let R-K-O see his act.

If let alone, the Englishman, with his peculiar appeal, would have been okay, but after the "vaude terror" got hold of him, he had no act or appeal. The vaude folks are gradually getting wise to the act destroyer and lean days for him are in the offing.

R-K-O publicity department is now working directly with the booking office on new acts showing for the circuit. It is mandatory for publicity department reports to be turned in on any new act covered by that staff.

The new order was issued with the view of covering an act from an exploitation angle as well as entertainment, in belief that an act with exploitation possibilities with lesser entertainment value can be as desirable as one that is all entertainment and with no chance for exploiting.

At the last Masquers' Revel in Hollywood, Bert Levy, the cartoonist, introduced a series of slides of prominent people in show business from childhood to the present. All the photographs were from Levy's private collection. He accompanied them with a humorous descriptive monolog.

Among the rare ones are Sophie Tucker as an infant (and bare), and Charles Chaplin astride a tricycle at six. The collection attracted much comment.

Lou Holtz finishing a run of four weeks is m. c. at the Palace, New York. About a year ago when Holtz' name was submitted to the Palace bookers for an engagement by his agent, the booker at that time, George Godfrey, told the agent, "Lou Holtz is too old."

Lou isn't even married yet, the smart guy—but he was married once.

Marcus' tab show jumped from Mobile, Ala., to play the Empire at Syracuse, N. Y. As the show people arrived in town they heard about trouble at the Empire, then playing independent vaude, so Marcus kept on traveling without showing.

Fanchon & Marco have been paying artists $20 a week during the layoff in St. Louis while labor trouble kept units from playing that city.

Units were reinstated in St. Louis last week upon settlement of the union difficulties.

Inside Stuff—Pictures

(Continued from page 20)

and began reading: "I think "Morocco" is the finest picture of this year. We certainly enjoyed making it."

Horace Liveright is shoving out a biography of Dr. Lee DeForest, by Georgette Carneal, under the title of "Conqueror of Space."

In the book DeForest relays credit to inventor Ries for the patents known under the latter's name and which DeForest purchased. In the closing chapter, devoted to Phonofilm, a noticeable incongruity is that General Talking Pictures, the official parent of Phonofilm, is cited as the latter's subsidiary.

Paramount's Pop Club members are offered two bargains. One is to play minnie golf on a 45th street course bearing the Zukor organization name but having no tie-up otherwise. Here 18 holes cost Paramounteers 37 and one-half centimos.

The other is a free projection room glimpse of "Byrd At the South Pole." The Educational Committee makes the second offer, but promises that not all of P-E's last runs will be so projected.

With the Mayfair open on Broadway, R-K-O still has the Globe under rental from Dillingham at $6,000 weekly until next June. It leaves R-K-O in the position of attempting to keep the two Broadway front houses with each calling for Class A first runs going along with pictures only. Making it quite tough to furnish the Globe with enough pictures of that class.

R-K-O would probably rent the Globe for a legit show, or it may try an added stage show of some kind in addition to the pictures.

New York office of British International Pictures is reported sending to the home office in London weekly reports of the BIP pictures at the Cohan on Broadway, as to their reception, audience reaction and criticism with other items. This first hand observation is to better inform BIP over there what is exactly required on this side in the way of foreign made talkers.

The campaign Warners is to wage to sustain the Bobby Jones controversy, as to whether the champ retains his amateur standing or not, will stun those catching up to the details. The amazing part is the personalities involved and the grand climax announcement, scheduled for next summer.

Keep track of it by the sports pages.

How an infantile paralysis scare around San Francisco has been cutting in on box offices is indicated by the small difference on the gross with a UA picture recently there, with one of the UA stars appearing in person. The star jumped the gross only $400 over the receipts of the day before. Western showmen claim the paralysis scare is actually hurting business more than any other factor at the present time.

No one can see Paramount Coast writers now except by appointment. Reason is the kickback to the razz of a L. A. newspaper that the literary giants of the studio got most of their inspiration from playing checkers.

Company officials investigated and now all casual callers are excluded for the protection of the writers.

United Artists' peeve against Fox West Coast's terms is voiced by the allegation that "Caught Short," when it did a $40,000 week at Loew's State, Los Angeles, only got $4,000 for the Metro exchange under the FWC terms. UA singles out this rival firm's picture to indicate how unfair are the circuit's terms.

Some 15 more girls who look like Gloria Swanson are getting a cuff ride to Europe Dec. 15. The first 12 ladies are over there now, having sailed Nov. 11. United Artists is handling the tickets and meals.

Girls went in for Warren Nolan's "What a Widow" contest and found it genuine.

Publix is making a survey of the juvenile angle in its theatres with a view to getting an idea of how the present trend in films is affecting kid attendance.

House managers have been instructed to forward their respective chiefs a tally of the number of kids and types attending.

Gov't Donates $462,000 to Aid British Opera

London, Nov. 24.

The English Government has decided to make a grant of $25,000 for the last quarter of the current year, and a grant of $87,500 a year for the next five years beginning in 1931, towards the expenses of presenting grand opera in this country.

This is the first sign in Parliamentary circles that the nation as a whole is willing to support the presentation of opera, although there have been numerous private subscription schemes in order to keep the companies working.

The scheme, according to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, is for performances at Covent Garden Opera House along present lines, and repeat performances at popular prices. Similar production is to take place in the provinces.

The grants are part of the plan under which the Covent Garden Syndicate allies itself with the British Broadcasting Corporation and works with the Imperial League of Opera. An income of $150,000 yearly has been guaranteed the project.

A new Covent Garden Opera Syndicate (1930), Limited, has been formed to administer the undertaking with F. A. Szarvasy as chairman. He was one of the prime movers behind Denman Picture Houses in the days which heralded the Gaumont-British Corporation.

According to an official statement from Parliament the idea will in no way cut into the opera chains which have kept the flag flying for years, such as the Carl Rosa outfit.

LONDON VAUDE DEBUTS

Melody Maids Get Over at Palladium—2 New Vic Acts O. K.

London, Dec. 2.

Palladium started the new week yesterday (Monday) with only 80% capacity, absentees being attributed to Chevalier at the Dominion. Audience, however, represented class and proved enthusiastic.

Six Melody Maids, doing four songs all in different languages, were artistically staged and got over nicely.

At the New Victoria the Four Flashes proved a first class dancing turn but are not well routined. Act won solid applause, however. Lindsay and Mason went across nicely but the pair showed nothing new. Their doll dance has been done by two recent importations.

Mary and Erik, skaters, did not appear, due to damage to the stage by fire.

Change Scripts on Drury Show for Diplomacy's Sake

London, Nov. 24.

Alteration in plans for the next show at Drury Lane has been made following an interview between the Lord Chamberlain, the play censor, and Sir Alfred Butt.

Play was originally built up as a spectacular story about an Indian Rajah who planned to overthrow the British Empire. In view of the Indian Conference now being held in London, this story structure was regarded as possibly causing mild offence.

Story has now been altered involving a change of settings and costume.

Chorus of 150 is being engaged for the show.

G. S. A.'s NEW RATES

Berlin, Nov. 22.

At a meeting of the board of the "Deutsche Buhnenverein" (German Stage Association) it was decided to fix the maximum pay for annual contracts at about $6,500.

For single performances of guests a maximum of $160 per night has been fixed. It formerly was $250.

Paris Club's P. A.

Paris, Nov. 24.

Business depression results in French showmen introducing American business methods. Lido is the first night club to employ a regular press agent.

The p. a. is an American, J. E. Witteled.

Troubles Abroad

Every year about this time are a number of complaints—many well founded—by American actors over treatment abroad. There is very little to be done afterward, since caution was called for in the first place.

European managers, generally, will always live up to their contract, but you've got to watch them every second. If they can get out of paying anything, and it's amazing how many ways there are to get out, they will.

Another thing is that there are many local laws and customs which must be followed in countries like France and England. If in France for more than two months, you must have an identity card before that time is up or you get into serious trouble. Sometimes labor permits are necessary. Sometimes licenses must be paid.

"Variety" has offices in Paris and London, with the men in charge experienced and know what is likely to come up. Also how to handle it.

All artists going abroad are privileged to visit these offices the very first thing and possibly save themselves many headaches.

German Revue Strands Its Players in Italy

Berlin, Nov. 22.

Former director of the Haller Revue, Hans Schuren, and a Zurich man, Dr. Marton, produced a revue which was stranded in Italy. They engaged for the show: Geaiks and Geaiks, Epp Sisters, Onori Sisters, Riechert Sisters, Emely and William Blacker, Earl Franklin, Madeleine Harrisson, Miss Muriel, T. A. Korner, E. Schmidt-Ritter, Miss Wanaya, Fred Kopkamp, etc.

Some of the members are still in Italy while others have succeeded, somehow, in getting back to Germany and Switzerland.

"Referee" Purchased by British Political Party

London, Dec. 2.

"The Referee," theatre and sports publication founded by the late George Sims and for many years maintaining the best theatrical and gossip staff in Europe, was sold last week for a nominal figure to the Liberal Association, political organization headed by Lloyd George. It will be used as the mouthpiece of the Liberal party in an attempt to revive its declining fortunes.

The publication had been slipping ever since its purchase by Sir Oswald Stoll following the death of Sims.

Starting yesterday (1) the "Daily Telegraph" reduced its newsstand price to two cents, leaving the London "Times" the only daily four-cent newspaper in the British capital.

Marquis and D'Usseau Click on R-K-O's French

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Bringing in Radio's first French version, "Royal Bed" ("Queen's Husband") under the wire for $12,000 less than the budget, Leon D'Usseau and Henry de la Falaise, co-directors, have been handed a similar assignment for the next French version to go in soon.

Studio will confine all its versions to French for the present, holding off on Spanish and awaiting experiment with the Dunning process on the German Beau Ideal" in Berlin.

2 "DOWN UNDER" DEATHS

Sydney, Dec. 2.

Sol Hughes, old-time actor, died a few days ago in Melbourne.

R. Grove, chairman of the New Zealand board of censor appeal, also died.

London Colored Troupe

Norman J. Norman, London producer, commissioned Will H. Vodery to assemble an all-colored show in New York to be taken intact to Europe in February.

Vodery has been out on the Fox lot in L. A. for 14 months, but is back in N. Y.

HAVANA

By RENE CANIZARES

Martial law. Riots. Newspapers protesting government censorship suspend publication. That was Havana two weeks ago. Now everything is back to normal.

Only those dependent on tourists are worrying. And Florida rubs its hands, watching the restlessness here. Show biz little affected by situation. As bad as ever.

Santos y Artigas Circus, at the National theatre, got a big play when tigers staged a real fight while performing. Frank Woska, Ringling trainer, lost a tiger killed by an old lion.

Big competition between circuses. The one mentioned and Pubillones' is across the street, at Payret. Biz so poor there are tie-ups with stores for free tickets, and scale goes as low as a time for about 10 acts.

New National Hotel, a $5,000,000 venture, is almost ready for occupancy. Opens next month.

The house that Bacardi built is also getting the finishing touches for

(Continued on page 62)

Mexico City

Mexico City, Nov. 26.

Visitors encounter surprising thing as they leave local picture houses. One will be a group of girls standing with their eyes shut just inside the rotunda door. Stunt is called "cooling the eyes" and is to accustom optics, deviled by glare of silver screen, to glare of outside illuminations. Gals maintain "cooling" keeps their orbs beautiful, etc. It's become a habit.

"Sailor Sharkey" (nee Joseph Esteban Weimer), American pugilist and film actor, has kicked up quite a local commotion by vanishing. Weimer came here from Hollywood and gathered much publicity on interviews concerning life in the film capital. His wife, known professionally as Rose Greenlees, and who claims to have been an English music hall favorite, has reported to the cops that Joe is among the missing, and that she fears foul play as her husband received mysterious notes just before disappearing.

Nile Green for costumes, stockings, shoes and even vanity cases is the current craze of the senoritas. Legit actresses introduced the novelty which has made the whole town look Irish.

Americans Abroad

Paris, Nov. 22.

In Paris: Walter Huston, Jack Hylton, Georgia Graves, Helen Macginnis, Grace Tibbetts, Mrs. Belloc Lowndes, Arthur Hornblow, Messmore Kendall, Lona Worth, Maxwell Bodenheim.

Morris' Paris Office Sending More Imports

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Acting on demand of studios here the William Morris office in Paris has rounded up French, Spanish, German and Italian acting and writing talent for importation to this country as ordered.

Jean Blanchon and Roger Ferdinand, French writers, are set to arrive around Dec. 15 for Metro. Luis Bunuel Spanish actor, also obtained for Metro by the Morris Paris office, gets in later.

Keep French "Diplomat" Cast Busy Just in Case

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

There is still a remote possibility of making "Boudoir Diplomat" in French, but not until after the first of the year.

Company is being retained by U, with Arlette Marchal and Ivan Petrovich to be spotted elsewhere meanwhile, Petrovich may do a German version next.

French "Diplomat" was abandoned by Carl Laemmle himself after learning that takes were running up to No. 25 and 26.

4c FOR PENNY THROWING

Paris, Nov. 24.

Four cents damages was awarded to Talembert, tenor, who complained that an actress singing opposite him in "Manon" induced friends to throw pennies at him on the stage.

Incident was claimed to be professional jealousy.

SANTREY DENIED PERMIT

London Kit-Cat Booking Off—Its Tip All U. S. Bands

London, Dec. 2.

Henry Santrey's band, booked for the Kit-Cat, has been denied a working permit.

Action here is the tip that all American bands will be refused permission to work in England, at least for the present.

JURY OF PLAYERS DECIDES PLAY'S DATE

Budapest, Nov. 17.

"Wonder Bar" is running here with so much success that Fovarosi Operette theatre has postponed production of a new operetta, "The Good Boy," first scheduled for Nov. 7 and then for 21.

A heavy penalty was stipulated in case production was postponed. The authors, Markus and Vadnay, threatened to sue the theatre for the penalty, but agreed later to submit the matter to jury.

Members of the jury were six women and six men of the "Wonder Bar" cast, and also to appear in the next play. The chair was taken by Ilona Titkos, leading lady. After a discussion that lasted two hours, the jury agreed production of the new play must be postponed at least another week since "Wonder Bar" is doing so well. Since the authors suffered no actual loss through the later date, the jury voted they were to forego payment of penalty, if the premiere of "Good Boy" would take place no later than Nov. 28.

This is the first time actresses have acted as jurymen in a theatrical conflict. Jury's decision was universally approved, since everyone says that if a play does get a good run nowadays, everybody, including the authors, ought not put obstacles in the way.

It Took Time, but Breaks Starting for Ditta Parlo

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Ditta Parlo, German actress just brought over to do the Loretta Young role in "Kismet" at FN, is under consideration for an English role when studio resumes operations.

Par brought Miss Parlo over three years ago to play opposite Emil Jannings in a "next" for him that did not materialize. She stayed a week then returned to Germany.

Since then Miss Parlo has worked at the Par studio in Paris, and has learned to speak English.

See Pigmie Golf Passing As London Links Flop

London, Dec. 2.

The midget golf course in the Engineers' Club building, the largest and best located in the West End, was attached on a claim for rent today (Tuesday).

Establishment is operated by Dan Fish, film players' agent, and a well known picture reviewer is reported to be interested.

Difficulty in such a spot is greeted as marking the first phase of a passing vogue.

F.N.'s Defraud Case Fails, All Defendants Discharged

London, Nov. 24.

Charges of conspiracy to defraud film renters, brought in South Wales against Philip Absc, proprietor of the Palace, Bridgend, and others, have failed.

Case, the first of its kind in this country, was brought by First National. Four employees of the cinema were charged with conspiring to defraud, all defendants being discharged.

REINHARDT'S OPTION

Berlin, Nov. 22.

It is said that the Theatre am Kurfurstendamm will reopen at Christmas. Not certain who will be its director.

Reinhardt has an option on the building, but is unlikely to take it over as the Komodie, despite nightly receipts of about $1,000, does not leave a profit. However, in order to impede competition, he may assume the former theatre.

Rawles INS Manager

Wallace X. Rawles, from New York, succeeds Ben Mullen as Los Angeles manager of the International News Service.

Gloom Thick As Fog Over London Biz

London, Dec. 2.

Many circumstances conspired to choke theatre attendance last week. Rain and fog were added to the prevailing business depression and the remarkably early start of Christmas buying working to the same end.

Show business was utterly demoralized. Only the biggest successes were able to hold out against the force of circumstances. All West End shows nose dived 10 to 15%, the musicals faring worst of all. Only attractions to escape were "Private Lives," with Gertrude Lawrence and Noel Coward at the Phoenix, and "It's a Boy," at the Strand, due in both cases to heavy advance bookings.

However, the Oxford-Cambridge rugby matches and the Smithfield Cattle show are scheduled for next week. The crowds these events bring in are looked to revive theatre trade.

RUSSIA SEEKS PAINTERS AS PROPAGANDA AID

Communist Russia, evidently fearful of losing its proletarian artists and painters, is off on a subsidizing plan for the brush wielders. Many of these artists are in America, the majority in or around Greenwich Village, New York.

Along these lines Russia has invited Bill Droper, well known New York painter, to take off for the Volga. While he is in Russia that government has planted a stipend for the support of Droper's family in America.

Droper angle is said to have been impelled by Ribera, Mexican artist and formerly a member of the International Communist Party, but resigned.

It was following Ribera's move that Russia and the International Communist Party took to seeking artists. It is the Russian viewpoint that painters are powerful opinion makers, and that they might be lured by big fees from rich clients to acquire a defection in favor of capitalism.

Hague Rules Against Children on Stage

The Hague, Nov. 22.

The test case of children appearing on the stage here came up for final decision of the Supreme Court of the Netherlands and the Court ruled that the law had been infringed upon. Fritz Hirsch and Hugo Helm were found guilty and fined the minimum penalty, $2.

Seems insignificant but the cost to be paid by the defendants runs into a lot of money as the case went through three consecutive courts.

Bohr Producing and Starring in Spanish

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Jose Bohr will produce two indies for the Spanish market. First going in at the Metropolitan, Dec. 15, will be "Gay Bandelleros" and second "Women." Both are originals.

George Delano will direct the first and Bohr will be starred in both.

$1 Historical Series

The Hague, Nov. 22.

Three leading theatre companies at Amsterdam are preparing a series of performances, 10 in all, to form an historical pageant of theatre art. Each performance will show the best piece of the respective period it depicts. Venture will be staged by the Nederlandsch Tooneel, the Amsterdamsch Tooneel and the Schouwtooneel companies. City of Amsterdam may give its financial support to the scheme by a subsidy of $3,000 on condition that tickets will be issued at the flat rate of $1 each.

HERMAN GRAUAUG DIES

Geneva, Dec. 2.

Herman Grauaug, Switzerland's foremost musical hall proprietor, is dead in Berne.

He was 62 years old.

25 Lost and Entire Mexican Circus Destroyed in Railroad Explosion

Mexico City, Dec. 2.

Twenty-five persons were killed and the entire Modelo Beas Circus was destroyed when six of the 11 cars of the outfit were destroyed in the explosion of two gasoline cars on the train en route from here to Guadalajara.

The dead were all performers with the show, workmen or menagerie tenders. The damage is estimated at $500,000, including the destroyed property and animals lost or killed.

Frank Beas, the German proprietor, said he had lost the savings of a life time in the disaster. All that remained were two elephants, a goat and a trained dog.

Accident happened near Irapuato in the State of Guanajuato in the early morning, while all the performers were asleep in their berths. Explanation is that two gasoline tank cars had been attached to the special circus train and somehow became ignited.

Cars exploded and the sleeping cars of the circus train were swiftly enveloped in flames. Most of the victims were burned to death in their berths. The list of fatalities includes several women and children.

Americans

The dead were burned beyond recognition. It is believed that three clowns are among the lost, one known as Frank and another, Dan McGovern from Brooklyn, being missing. Third supposed victim called himself Jack Pratt and was from California.

The show carried 161 people, of whom 125 have been accounted for.

The military escort that accompanied the outfit shot many wild animals that escaped from their cages and some elephants. Several of the big cats got away and are supposed to be roaming the countryside. A few were rounded up and destroyed by a troup of Mexican cavalry called from a nearby garrison.

Accident was the worst in Mexican circus history. The personnel was made up of many nations with a minority of Mexicans. Many were Spaniards and a few Russians besides Germans, French and Italians.

Mexican National Railways, on whose lines the accident happened, has asked Beas to make a report and submit claims. It is believed the showman may recover a substantial sum. Other showmen in Mexico sent prompt aid and are helping the victims by staging benefits.

Curtails Smoking

London, Dec. 2.

The Lord Chamberlain has decided that smoking shall be prohibited in London theatres except for those playing musicals and revues.

West End managers have called a meeting this week with a view to protesting against the measure.

COCHRAN OFFERS $6,200 WKLY. FOR MARX BROS.

Charles B. Cochran cabled the William Morris agency in New York last week an offer of $6,200 weekly for four weeks for the Marx Brothers at the Palace, London. If the engagement goes through, unsettled up to yesterday, Cochran will play four weeks of vaudeville at the Palace with the bill holding the American headliner.

It's an abnormally large salary for a single attraction in London. Date set for start is Dec. 26.

The Marxes are finishing a tour for R-K-O. Dec. 4 they open for Publix at the Metropolitan, Boston, with the following week at the Michigan, Detroit, also Publix, at $10,000 at each of the two houses. Sailing immediately after the Detroit week the boys can just make London by Dec. 26.

Annoying Foreigners; Medical Examination

Paris, Dec. 2.

Difficulties of foreigners working in France has been increased within the last few days by the revival by the police of an old and long disused regulation.

The rule requires aliens already residing in France to submit to an official medical examination upon applying for a permanent theatre job.

Lauder Opens Big

London, Dec. 2.

The Palladium (vaude) made every effort to get Harry Lauder as a counter attraction to Chevalier at the Dominion for the current fortnight, but at the last moment Gillespie declined to release the Scotchman from the Finsbury.

The Scotchman opened at that house yesterday (Monday), doing more than an hour to a tumultuous reception. He opens at the Palladium next week.

Belgrade Dates Must Pass Actors' Ass'n Sanction

Belgrade, Dec. 2.

The Yugoslav Actors' Association has established an agency with official standing through which will pass engagements of foreign artists.

Announced purpose of the bureau is to see that only standard foreign performers shall be brought here, but there seems also to be a purpose of protecting native players.

Among the December engagements are Igor Stravinski, Juan Menen, William Pitck and the Japanese Theatre group which recently appeared in Paris. Another engagement is that of Krishna Murti, called "the Indian Messiah."

$10,000 Fire

London, Dec. 2.

A back stage fire at the New Victoria early yesterday morning (Monday), destroyed properties and damaged the house to the extent of $10,000.

The show carried on last night.

10-Night Run

London, Dec. 2.

Edgar Wallace's new drama, "The Mountebank," closed at Wyndham's Saturday (29) after only 10 performances.

Arrow Receiver and Armless Acrobat in Holland's Theatres

The Hague, Dec. 2.

There is no let up to the invasion of foreign artists in this territory. Two new ones billed are Benno Moiseiwitch, pianist, and Yehudi Menuhin, San Francisco boy violinist.

A curious freak attraction also is attracting attention in Paul Diebel, who allows an arrow to be apparently shot into his chest, penetrating two inches without drawing blood, even when it is withdrawn.

Another freak, playing the Arena, vaude, in Rotterdam, is the armless acrobat, Elroy who is creating talk.

B'way's Vienna Comedy

Vienna, Dec. 2.

Robert Garais' comedy "Diplomats Are Good Actors," which has been successful at the Akademie theatre here, is to be transplanted to Broadway.

Local announcement is that it will go on at the New York Empire, date not disclosed.

COL.'S SPANISH REELS

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Production of foreign versions of some of its product will be started by Columbia late in December, according to Jack Cohn.

Two slated to start are Spanish transcriptions of "Criminal Code" and "Brothers." Story translations and players now being set.

Col will probably stick to Spain versions only at first.

2 LONDON OPENINGS

"Murder" Has a Chance—Adapted German Farce Only Has Good Cast

London, Dec. 2.

"A Murder Has Been Arranged," originally produced for a Sunday performance Nov. 9, opened Nov. (26) at the St. James, where it was enthusiastically received by a friendly audience.

"Oh, Daddy," opening Nov. 27 at Prince's, is an adapted German farce, its only redeeming merit being excellent acting. Story deals with a hyprocritical reformer who chases a cabaret girl dancer, only to discover she is his step-daughter.

"Getting George Married" emerged at the Everyman theatre last week (26) as a rather crude work by Florence Kilpatrick. It all has to do with a young Bohemian with a ducal title who collects postage stamps and is annoyed by inconvenient relatives, only to find happiness at the final curtain in marriage with his charming secretary.

High Star Pay To Save Legit From Pictures

Vienna, Dec. 2.

The proposal to fix maximum salaries for stars has been emphatically rejected by the independent legitimate managers of Austria. Idea was originated by the German theatre men and supported afterward by the Vienna State theatres.

Director Hubert Marischka of the operetta theatre An der Wien, expressing the views of his confreres in the privately operated houses, declares:

"Stars can never be overpaid as long as they are valid stars, for the public goes to the theatre to see them. Popularity of the pictures has been built up on star values and star prestige, and if the theatre weakened its own personalities on the stage it would stupidly be handing its public over to the screen."

Marischka pointed out that he recently presented Lehar's "Land of Laughter" here with two of the most expensive stars in Europe, Richard Tauber and Vera Schwartz, and the box office verified his judgment.

REINHARDT CALLS OFF PLAY WITH JANNINGS

Berlin, Dec. 2.

Max Reinhardt has called off his deal with Ufa for the production of a talker with Jannings. Reason is that the Reinhardt theatre will probably be taken over by the State.

In assuming charge of the theatre, the Prussian government made the condition that Reinhardt should cease making pictures.

Ada May Walks

London, Dec. 2.

Ada May, under engagement by Camille Wyn for the French version of "Follow Thru," due at the New Ambassadeurs, Paris, Dec. 15, is out of the cast.

American comedienne walked after the first rehearsal, expressing dissatisfaction with the translation.

Over on "Cynara"

London, Dec. 2.

Herbert Marshall sails for New York tomorrow (Wednesday) for the purpose, among other things, of negotiating with Charles Dillingham for the Broadway production of "Cynara."

The Shuberts originally had the American rights of the play, but relinquished them due to a disagreement with Capt. Harwood, the London author.

'Cynara' Called Off

London, Dec. 2.

Capt. Harwood, who had arranged with the Shuberts to produce "Cynara" in the States, has had a disagreement with that firm.

In consequence the entire project has been abandoned.

French Syndicate May Take Legendary Dalmatian Island as Gambling Resort

Belgrade, Dec. 2.

It now seems certain that a French financial syndicate will take over the island of Lacromo, in the Adriatic, just off Ragusa, Dalmatia, to make it into a gambling resort rivalling Monte Carlo.

The island, a mile and a quarter in length, is a spot of great beauty but in local tradition is accursed. It once belonged to the Benedictine order of monks, but since has brought its owners to tragic ends. One of its proprietors was Maximillian, afterward Emperor of Mexico.

The French group is in negotiation with Yugo-Slavia to take title to the land, and successful outcome is all that remains for the launching of the project. As a side issue of the enterprise it is reported a modern hotel chain may be built in Dalmatia, one of the bankers being a New Yorker named Monk.

Among the island's landmarks are an 11th century Benedictine monastery and the remains of a very ancient church, besides the chateau and park built by ancient Austrian princes, among them one of crown prince Rudolph, restored in 1889.

A Fireman's Throne

Paris, Nov. 23.

In all theatres here, the fireman on duty has a special chair in the wings. During one of the latest shows, an American actress waiting to go on rested herself in it. The official came back on duty and ordered her off. She refused to get up, and was promptly reported to the stage manager who asked her to remember that the chair belonged to the fire official and was not to be sat upon even though vacant.

MEXICO STARTS BAN ON ALIEN MUSICALS

Mexico City, Dec. 2.

As a result of a nationalistic campaign carried on by the Chamber of Commerce of the State of Nueve Leon, the engagement of the American Negro jazz band, directed by Floyd Troy, has been cancelled.

Date had been arranged by a civic group in Monterey who wanted the band to play for a local pageant.

With cancellation, the local people paid the band the amount specified in the contract as liquidated damages in lieu of notice. Cancellation was ordered on the ground that native musicians could as well have been engaged.

It is understood simillar action will be taken in other parts of Mexico in favor of Mexican musicians.

Molnar Play Opens With Engers as Guest Star

The Hague, Dec. 2.

Molnar's "One, Two, Three" was presented for the first time at the Royal theatre here with Adolph Engers, who wrote the Dutch version, as guest star.

Engers has just returned from touring with a group of German players in the Far East and now goes on to Berlin to appear there in talking pictures.

Play was produced by Veterman of the Hofstadtoonell, with the other principals Pierre Balledux and Mary Dresselhuys. New piece is to be followed by "Souper," another Molnar work played here by the same company 14 years ago, with Engers, Roemer and Louise Kooimans in the cast.

South Africa Dealers Ignore Warning on Lyrics

Capetown, Dec. 2.

Police of Johannesburg broadcast a warning to all music stores not to sell or display for sale copies of a new dance song, "The Moochi," the words thereof being regarded as "indecent."

Decision on the point of the lyrics' propriety is pending in court, but the police threatened to prosecute any dealers who sold the number. The dealers unanimously ignored the warning.

Soph's 2 Months

London, Dec. 2.

Kit-Cat restaurant's option on Sophie Tucker for a second month has been taken up.

The red hot mama opened Nov. 24 for a month with an option for a return of the same duration. Present engagement thus terminates Dec. 22 while the return starts Dec. 29.

For the last six weeks of the cafe date Miss Tucker doubles in vaudeville playing for General Theatres and Moss Empires.

Ovation for Star

The Hague, Dec. 2.

Tilly Hallaman star, Mimi Gervines, appeared at a farewell gala of "The Waltz Dream" at the Tivoli, Rotterdam, where she was the heroine of a definite ovation.

Performance marks her departure from the Platz Haltzen Operetta Co

Chevalier Opens OK, but Estimate 'Nut' at $32,000

London, Dec. 2.

Fortnight engagement of Chevalier and his show opened at the Dominion last night (Monday) to a favorable reception from the audience and friendly but not enthusiastic comments from the reviewers.

Operating cost is around $32,000 a week, according to an outside estimate, with the libraries buying $50,000 in seats before the opening, and up to that performance had sold $30,000. Answer seems to be that aside from John McCormack and Chaliapin, Harry Lauder is the only solo entertainer in England who can support an evening of specialty entertainment.

This performance also marked the debut here of Melville Gideon and his British symphonic band. Chevalier program is divided into two parts, the first devoted to six acts as follows, in the order of their appearance: Melville Gideon and Band; Veloz and Yolanda, American dancers, who have been playing around London night clubs; 24 Mangan Tillerettes; Hank the Mule, and Bedoma. The former act muffed by the inclusion of the last named. Both turns could have played successfully as separate items. Ending the first half was "The Turban," a fantasy originated and staged by Francis Mangan and employing 30 Mangan-Tiller girls with Trevor Watkins and Mary Lee, the last named an American contortion dancer.

First half was slow and spotty, with plenty of trouble indicated back stage and the orchestra not always in unison with the stage. Brix and Partner, German act, billed for the first part, did not appear due to difficulty over a working permit.

Chevalier monopolized the second part of the program, running 50 minutes and finishing with a speech. Theatre proved too big for his voice, but the house was capacity.

The libraries took half the house for the premiere, assuming no obligations and is reported returning three rows of orchestra seats priced at 3c. Story is that the box office, seeing the returns before the rise of the curtain offered them for $1.40. Library demand for the second performance is said not to have been very urgent.

Paris, Dec. 2.

Maurice Chevalier has declined an invitation from the Shuberts to play "Wunder Bar," current legit novelty here, on Broadway.

Chevalier has contracts for two more Paramount pictures which interfere with any other plan.

Dramatists Guild Against Equity Censor Plan—No Result

Equity's attempt to reform show business by a system of self-censorship hit a seemingly unsurmountable snag at the first conclave between Equity, Managers' Protective Association and Dramatists Guild, held Monday afternoon at the Hotel Astor. The Dramatists Guild virtually bolted the idea, but later agreed to give the Equity plan further consideration.

Edwards Childs Carpenter, president of the Guild, threw a panic early in the meeting by making it emphatic that the playwrights are opposed to any sort of censorship, whether without or within, and were therefore not in accord with Equity's jury plan, which would amount to censorship on all questionable scripts before going into production.

Equity presented a plan for a repeal of the Wales padlock law and for reconstituting, with some changes, the play jury system that was abandoned several years ago. Any possible chance of approval of this plan was defeated by the persistent opposition of the Guild.

The idea of the three branches of the theatre getting together on the matter looked cold, but was slightly tempered later when William A. Brady, representing the M. P. A., prevailed upon Carpenter and his associates to delve further into Equity's proposed plan before scrapping it entirely. He got a half-hearted promise in that direction before the meeting adjourned.

Further Study

With the unexpected turn of events, Frank Gillmore, who presided at the meeting, agreed to withdraw Equity's plan in its entirety and call at further negotiations off, but was importuned by Brady and others not to take such an action, but to give the committees from the three branches of the theatre additional opportunity to give further study to the idea.

This was generally agreed upon, and the meeting adjourned with possibility of them getting together at a later date, but slim chance of the Guild swinging into line on the plan even then.

Gillmore in opening the meeting stressed the recent attacks on so-called "dirt shows" by Cardinal Hayes of the Catholic Church, Bishop Manning of the Episcopal Church and Rabbi Wise precipitated a forerunner to stage censorship if the three bodies involved did not invoke self-censorship.

She Passed Up Paris May Suffer Penalty

An application has been made in the Supreme Court to confirm an award of $1,000 in favor of Carol M. Six, against Rose Hobart for violation of a contract by which she was engaged on Sept. 12, 1929, to go to Paris and take part in a play at $100 a week for 12 weeks.

Miss Hobart asserted that she was unable to perform the contract because of physical disability and that it might have endangered her life to leave the United States at that time.

Thomas Broadhurst, Pedro de Cordoba and Alfred B. Jones, the arbitrators, decided that Miss Hobart must pay the penalty provided in the contract for failure to perform it.

Permanent Lay Off Band

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 2.

Membership in San Diego Troupers, an organization of former stage artists, has passed the century mark. Plenty of old-timers basking in the sunshine out here and they go for the get-together thing. Club holds frequent metings and puts on shows of its own. Some of the members are long in years, and they still remember when they goaled 'em years ago.

Revivals at Imperial

With the sudden withdrawal of "Princess Charming" from the Imperial, New York, the Shuberts will use that house for a series of revivals of Victor Herbert operettas. "Babes in Toyland" will be the first.

Same policy will be used as at Jolson's last season. Milton Aborn will again be in charge of production. General schedule is to play each revival two weeks.

EQUITY'S CASTER BOND LAPSES FOR PRESENT

Equity has called off its plan requiring agents licensed under the casting agent permits to post bond of $2,500 as a forfeit in case of violation of agreement and an insurance against chiselling.

The bonding proposition was an afterthought after permits had been issued to agents and Equity Council decided it would be unfair to invoke the forfeit bond plan now as an amendment to an existing agreement.

Few minor complaints have eventuated against licensed agents. The bonding measure goes into abeyance probably until the current permits mature next April.

The small fry casters opposed the bond idea, claiming that it had originated with their more affluent competitors and was designed to snuff them out of business, few being able to post such a bond with things as tough as they are.

There are 48 casting agents holding Equity permits and scarcely a handful of the number doing important business.

THREE DARK WEEKS FOR LEGIT IN L. A.

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

For the first time this year Los Angeles is without a legit attraction for three weeks. With the closing of "Bird of Flame" at the Belasco, last Saturday, the one tenanted house in the city went dark until Christmas night, when "Up Pops the Devil" opens.

Hollywood is feeding the legit actor with four houses open: Vine Street, Music Box, El Capitan and Hollywood Playhouse.

Lotta Left $3,311,806 N. Y. Appraisal Shows

An appraisal filed Monday of the estate of Lotta M. Crabtree, noted actress, who made her home in Boston and died Sept. 25, 1924, showed that she left a total estate of $3,311,806, of which $192,375 was in New York. The New York property was all in real estate with the exception of jewelry valued at $6,675, the most valuable parcels being the southeast corner of Madison Ave. and 125th St., worth $140,000, and 68 East 125th St., valued at $29,000. Jewelry in her name at the Harriman Bank included a diamond necklace appraised at $7,500, but it developed that this necklace belonged to Grace Cramer, who gave it to Miss Crabtree in 1911 as security for a loan.

Miss Crabtree left a total of about $2,800,000 for educational and charitable purposes. She established a fund of $2,000,000 for the aid of men and women who served in the World War, set aside $100,000 each for the Lotta Theatrical Fund, for Christmas distributions for the poor, and for discharged convicts; $25,000 for four scholarships at the New England Conservatory of Music, and $300,000 for the Lotta Dumb Animals Fund, part of which was to provide fountains for men, horses, dogs and birds.

Treasurers' Election

At the annual election of the Treasurers' Club of America, held Saturday (29), Harry B. Nelmes was made president for the 11th consecutive year. Balance of officers also re-elected: William F. Muenster, vice-pres.; Sol De Vries, treasurer; James N. Vincent, financial secretary, and James F. McIntee, secretary.

Newly elected governors: Saul Abraham, Rivington Bisland, Charles Bowman, Harry Martin, Allan Schnebbe and Leo Solomon.

Jane Cowl's Third

The third play for Jane Cowl's repertory season will probably be a revival of "The Man With a Load of Mischief."

It was done in New York four years ago.

2 NEW L. A. SHOWS

"She Had to Marry" Opens Dec. 8 and Belasco-Curran Doing "Topaze"

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

A new incoming play is "She Had to Marry" which will be the successor to "Ghosts" at the Vine Street Dec. 8. New piece is by Margaret Echart and Al Bridge. It will have Alberta Vaughn and Betty Boyd, from pictures, in the cast. It's a farce and this will be its first showing anywhere.

Another new entry will be "Topaze" at the Belasco. This will trail "Up Pops the Devil" into the Belasco and will be a Belasco-Curran Coast production.

10 LESS B'WAY SHOWS THAN IN '29

Legit attraction currently showing on Broadway total ten less than were running at this time last year and 25 less than during the first week in December 1928. So far this season the legit show count has failed to get far over the 40 mark, the four or five attractions, on an average, coming in each week being balanced by an equal number of departures either for the road or the storehouse. A year ago there were 53 shows as against 43 running this week.

Only three of the sponsors of current legit attractions can be classified as newcomers to the ranks. They are Max Gordon, Benjamin David and Billy Rose, with Gordon producing in association with the Erlanger office, the only one of the new producers having a smash hit, "Three's a Crowd."

As in previous years the Shuberts lead in the number of productions with seven current, none in the smash class, while Erlangers are next in line with three, two of them in association with Gensler & Green and one with Max Gordon, all of them money shows. Sam Harris and the Theatre Guild each have two productions playing. Other producers at present with years of experience to their credit are David Belasco, John Golden, Flo Ziegfeld, Arthur Hopkins, Earl Carroll, Charles Dillingham, Arch Selwyn, William Harris, Aarons & Freedly, Brock Pemberton, Marc Connolly, George White, Lew Leslie, Richard Herndon, Gilbert Miller, Charles Hopkins, McGowan and Reed and Henry Forbes. Younger group of producers with attractions now on Broadway include Dwight Wiman, Herman Shumlin, Robert Newman, Marty Forkins and Connolly & Swanstrom.

In on "Sorrento"

Shuberts are reported having an interest in the American production of "A Trip to Sorrento," by Paul and Hans Adler. "Sorrento" will be produced in New York by Oscar Serlin and the Theatre Assembly as the third of this season for the subscription producers. Serlin, it is said, represents the Shuberts, who own the American rights of the play.

"Sorrento" will be shown at a Shubert house, the "lease" taken by the Assembly on the Empire expiring quickly.

Play will not be given immediate production. It is being adapted by William A. Drake.

Minn. Rivalry to End

Minneapolis, Dec. 2.

Two legit road shows, "The Garrick Galeties," at the Lyceum, and "The Chinese Bungalow, at the Metropolitan, playing opposition to each other, got a front page newspaper break when the local Civic & Commerce association declared it had assurances from New York managers that they henceforth will endeavor to prevent a recurrence of the conflicts between touring attractions that has marked the season here.

It was the third time that the Metropolitan and Lyceum, dark most of the time, provided opposition for one another.

More Chorus Girls for Musicals But Lesser Number Now Than in '29

New musicals coming to Broadway are increasing the number of chorus people in their casts. "The New Yorkers," which had 34 in the chorus during its out-of-town break-in dates, has added 24 more, consisting of eight boys, eight shows girls and eight dancers.

Arthur Hammerstein's "Ballyhoo," Green & Gensler's "The Gang's All Here" and Lou Holtz and Jack Yellen's "You Said It," are new musicals for Broadway, will carry large ensemble groups, indicating the producers are getting away from the idea of economizing on choristers, usually the least expensive item in musical productions. Ziegfeld's "Smiles" now leads in the number of chorus people on the payroll.

Largest number of chorus people previously employed this season in one show was 84 in Connolly & Swanstrom's "Princess Charming." That number has been considerably reduced with a further cut anticipated when the show shortly takes to the road.

Few of the musicals are using show girls this season with the demand mainly for mediums, who can sing and dance. As a result many of the statuesque beauties have had to turn to the nite clubs for employment of else return to cloak and suit modelling.

Seal Selling

Last week Chorus Equity obtained jobs for 100 members selling Christmas seals for the Anti-Tuberculosis League in booths in department stores and hotels around New York. Only chorus boys who have dependents and chorus girls not living at home were employed by the League which pays them $3.50 a day and guarantees four weeks.

The Fifth Avenue department store that in previous years called on Equity to supply around a 100 boys and girls to work as extra salespeople for the pre-Christmas holiday trade, are not adding to their sales force this year from present indications. These jobs paid $25 a week and were good for four weeks.

While there are more musicals on Broadway now than at this time last season. There are considerably fewer chorus people steadily employed. More colored choristers are working on Broadway this year, three all-colored shows being current as against one last season.

ALBANY STOCK ENDS AS CAST STRIKES FOR PAY

Albany, Dec. 2.

The Capitol theatre, which has been playing a season of stock with guest artists, folded abruptly Saturday when the performers refused to go for the matinee unless they were paid salaries or were guaranteed payment after the night show. The curtain didn't go up and an audience of about 600, mostly women, were informed that, "due to the illness of the leading lady," there would be no show. Money was refunded.

Cast was present for the night show, and an even larger audience waited while the controversy went on. The second audience also was told there would be no show for the same reason, and money was again refunded.

The management had announced earlier in the week that the house was to close Saturday, due "to lack of support." This is the troupe Gov. Roosevelt urged Albany to encourage.

The house is owned by W. W. Farley, who leased it to the Shuberts, who in turn sub-leased it to Oscar Perrin, J. H. Dilson and Frederick Magin, who opened Oct. 13.

The cast included Eloise Taylor, guest artist; Robert Hyman, leading man; Clyde Dilson, John H. Dilson, Audrey Berry, Virginia Mann, William A. Norton, Harry Fischer, Tracie McCann.

CHICAGO OPERA STARS REVIVED OPERA CLUB

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Herbert Johnson, g. m. of the Chicago Civic opera, issued orders forbidding members of the company from attending as guests of honor at the first meeting of the revived Opera Club which was held Monday (1) at the College Inn. Charles Marshall and Mary McCormic were scheduled.

It's understood some friction developed within the opera company and that Johnson solved the problem by clamping a general embargo.

The club met anyhow.

N. Y. Harlem Idea Booms As a Novelty in Texas

Dallas, Dec. 2.

For first time since passing of colored minstrels, Texas find kick in dusky shows.

Central, local negro vaude stand, puts on shows for each Friday night at six bits, and plenty biz, with idea duplicated in other Texas towns playing colored vaude.

Some of the intellectual Negroes here have organized little theatre, with ace play for this season "Jute," written by Dallas school marm and winner in last year's Texas little theatre tourney. Play is negro yarn.

In Texas colored shows have problem, as old state law prevents mixing of colored-white audience, necessitating special performances for whites.

New Rose Payroll Cut

Principals in Billy Rose's "Sweet and Low," who last week agreed to a 20 per cent cut in salary, have decided to take an additional reduction. In order to keep the show running, a 25 per cent cut goes into effect this week.

Forrah Minnevitch and his harmonica players, featured in the show, are doubling into the Palace this week with Rose's permission, an unusual concession on the part of a musical comedy producer with an attraction spotted so close to a vaude house. The Chanin theatre, where "Sweet and Low" is current, is less than a block from the Palace.

"JACKS UP" CLOSES

"Jacks Up," authored and produced by Reginald Owen, has been withdrawn after two weeks out.

Owen has gone into the cast of "Petticoat Influence," featuring Helen Hayes, and which has gone into rehearsal as next for Gilbert Miller.

Critic in Hospital Is Given Free Show by 10 Vaude Acts in Town

Cleveland, Dec. 2.

Confined to a hospital bed by two broken legs, George Davis, Cleveland's champ show-socker, had a nifty surprise pulled on him when half of the vaudevillians in town got together and staged a 10-act bill for the press critic at his hospital.

It was the first time the profession had ever paid such an enthusiastic tribute to a local reviewer, dead or sick. But, as one wise-cracker cracked, the event was worth the celebration. Another flipped that Davis' auto smash-up was only just retribution for writing words for the pop tune, "Chicky."

Show, viewed by Davis from a wheel-chair in the hospital auditorium, surrounded by cooing nurses, included Bobbie Folsom, Frank Gabys, Eleanor Wittenberg, Gene and Glenn, Fred Meyer's band, Pat Henning, Seven Gordionanas, Hal Kemp's band and Humphrey and Tracy.

Frank Hines, Palace manager, supervised the show. He even postponed theatre performances to allow the acts to contribute their services gratis.

Nite Club in Hospital

Turkey dinners and gifts have poured in since the illness of the critic, who has turned his private room into a night club. Spot's so popular with the town's smart set that reservations are requested.

Davis is now thinking about soaking the gawkers admission prices or a cover charge. Between visitors and writing show yarns for hi-sheet, Davis has been practicing acrobatic tricks on the bar suspended above his bed. Secret agents are already dickering with him, according to reports, offering three full weeks when he recovers if he will do a dumb single act.

$250,000 FREE SCENERY; NO TAKERS

Scenery to burn and no takers, not even the shoestringers, has provided a problem for a number of producing firms whose effects have overcrowded their own storehouses and made additional hired space necessary. Overflow must be disposed of by the end of the month when the current leasing arrangements expire.

Sam H. Harris has nearly $100,000 worth of discarded scenery which he has been trying to give away for months. Only a small portion of it has been placed with some of the little theatre groups.

Harris' effects comprise entire production of the Marx Brothers musical, "Animal Crackers," "Conga!," "Amorous Antic," "The Marriage Bed," discarded scenes from "Once in a Lifetime," and others.

In addition to Harris' stuff it is estimated that at least $150,000 in discarded scenery by other producers will also be burned unless disposed of by the end of the month.

Shoestringers who might have been interested in the free scenery were knocked off by the decision that they cannot pick out what they need but must take the bulk and pay haulage charges. With each lot representing several carloads the shoestringers bowed out.

GREEN-HEIMAN TIFF OVER TICKETS STILL ON

Another angle in the ticket difficulties between Morris Green, of Green & Gensler, and Marcus Heiman, of Erlanger's, reported with the ticket sales for "Fine and Dandy" and "Pagan Lady" as the cause.

Seats for the two shows are being sold by Joe Leblang at b. o. prices, Leblang receiving 10% of sales in payment. Heiman is said to be unwilling to split the 10% with Green on a 50-50 basis. Leblang sells over 100 seats nightly for each show.

That Green will not accede to Heiman's desire that he (Heiman) remain in charge of ticket distribution was felt certain last week, with indications Green will either take over distribution or split with Erlanger's.

Saturday (29) Green was in conference with Jules Murray of Shuberts and was slated to meet Heiman Monday (1).

Belasco Out of Danger

David Belasco is reported out of danger.

Sunday and Monday found him stronger. His request for more nourishment was regarded as an encouraging sign.

It is believed the aftermath of the pneumonia attack, however, will necessitate a lengthy period of convalescence.

Merchants Inquire Into Springfield Dark House

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 2.

Local merchants object to having the only legit theatre in Springfield, Mass., dark month after month. Frederick Hillman, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, wrote a formal letter to Manager Dwight Gilmore, of the Court Square, asking how come?

Gilmore's reply, just dispatched, is that the producing managers are not sending shows on the road any more and he does not expect them to resume for at least another year.

Commerce body had received many residents' complaints of the lack of stage entertainment.

Annenberg Backing

Adrian Samish and Ken Friede, song writing team, have been assigned to prepare the score for "Of All Things," musical by Robert Woolsey and E. C. Lilley, produced by Aranze Productions.

Moe Annenberg, newspaper owner, reported partly backing the show.

FANNIE BRICE SHOW SALARY CUT 25%

A salary cut of 25% was agreed to by the Fannie Brice "Sweet and Low" company last week. The show is said to stand its producer, Billy Rose, Miss Brice's husband, about $150,000. It is three-starred, with the other two, George Jessel and Jim Barton. It is claimed the show must do a gross of $30,000 weekly to break.

The only holdout over the proposed cut was Borah Minnevitch, in the show at $2,000 weekly on a run of the play contract. This was finally adjusted when Abe Lastfogel for the Morris office, acting for Minnevitch, agreed to the 25% cut until Jan. 1, at the same time securing the engagement this week for Minnevitch to double at the R-K-O Palace at $2,500. The Minnevitch Palace contract was not closed until late Friday afternoon (28).

4 N. Y. JEWISH DAILIES RESENT SHUBERT 'SNUB'

Four metropolitan Jewish dailies have passed thumbs down orders on the Shuberts. For the past few weeks not a line of publicity regarding Shubert shows has appeared in any of the four dailies.

Feud between the Jewish press and the Shuberts grew out of the refusal of the Shuberts to issue passes to the reviewers of the Jewish dailies to cover their openings. Jewish dailies took this as a snub to them and their readers. Jam aggravated when the Shuberts withdrew all advertising.

"Forward," the leading Jewish paper, recently printed an article slamming the Shuberts for the cold shoulder they were giving the Jewish journal and the public the dailies represented.

Four Jewish dailies have an A.B.C. circulation of over 500,000, with a 1,000,000 readers claimed. "Forward" leads with a circulation of 200,000, "Morning Journal" is next with 130,000, "The Day" has 110,000 and the "Frilheit" 80,000.

"Smiles" Week-to-Week

Notice has been posted by Florenz Ziegfeld that, effective Monday (1) his musical, "Smiles," would continue on a week to week basis.

Gas Station Musical Opens

St. Louis, Dec. 2.

"Mobile Gas Show," musical produced by Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne, advertising agency, for the gas people, is slated to open tomorrow (4). Show is all about gas and will be shown exclusively to service station men.

Cast includes George Brooks, Ray Rawlins, James Mar, director, and Dorothy Kane. Edward Mar directed the dances.

Georgia Fawcett's Play

Scarborough, N. Y., Dec. 2.

The third of the presentations by the Beechwood Players this season at their theatre on the estate of Frank A. Vanderlip will be shown Dec. 10, 11 and 12.

"Mexico," a comedy-drama by Georgia Fawcett, daughter of the veteran actor, George Fawcett, is to be offered. Rosamond Slaker Maue and Judson Laire will play the leads.

Publisher-Producer

Road company of "The Ninth Guest" mystery by Owen Davis, is slated to open at the Adelphi, Chicago, Dec. 27. A. H. Woods and Sidney M. Biddell, who produced the New York show, sponsoring the Chi try. "Guest" went into rehearsal Monday (1).

Biddell, wealthy publisher, may enter the legit producing field as an independent.

Fixing "Smart Woman"

"A Smart Woman," produced by William A. Brady will not steer into New York as per schedule next week but instead folds for repairs this week (1).

It will be revised and recast.

That Way With Al?

A "Variety" mugg was whistling as he entered the Eltinge theatre bldg., and started toward the Woods office.

The elevator boy looked at him disapprovingly.

"Don't you know you ain't supposed to be happy around this office? Leastways not until Al finds a hit," he said.

DRAMA-HUNGRY TOWNS GIVE $10,000 WEEK

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Legit operators see the light in the success of Walker Whiteside's barnstorming "Chinese Bungalow" company.

With a small overhead, it is now playing the smaller towns through the Midwest and is making double the profits seen in the big towns.

For week at Davenport, Cedar Rapids and Fort Dodge, Ia., the company grossed a sweet $10,000. Compare this with the $4,725 grossed for its final week at the Studebaker in Chicago.

Whiteside is shrewdly hitting towns that haven't seen a legit show in two or three years.

SHOESTRINGERS OUT ON SUBWAY

Brandts Cured—Colored Show Clincher

Another clamp has been put on shoestring producers by William and Harry Brandt, operators of four subway circuit houses. They have ruled that no show without bonds posted with Equity and the stage hands union can play their theatres. Brandts' ruling came after "Hot Rhythm," colored musical, folded in Jamaica Saturday (29) after a week of poor business.

With no money coming in, Brandts were practically forced to make good on all expenses, including salaries.

"Hot Rhythm" was playing subway houses with Will Morrissey as the producer, after Max Rudnick and Irving Wormser original producers, "licensed" Morrissey to take the show after it closed at the Waldorf, New York.

3 Holdouts on Cut

All but Jack Benny, Jimmy Savo and Herb Williams of the Carroll "Vanities" cast, current at the New Amsterdam, New York, have accepted a 20% salary slash. Show is going into its 22d week there.

The three comedians compromised on 5% each.

"Old Homestead" Draw Sans S. A. in Maine

Portland, Me., Dec. 2.

"Old Homestead," presented a week ago by the Jefferson Players, brought out hundreds of old-timers who had not been to a theatre in years. B. o. receipts heaviest in many weeks.

Score one for drama sans sex appeal.

'Good as New,' Leblang's

When "As Good as New" moved from the Times Square to the Cort Monday, it assumed new management, Joe Leblang having taken over the show from Charles Dillingham.

Leblang controls the Cort. Under the terms of the transfer the new management guarantees a minimum engagement of three more weeks.

Pros and Cons of Bway's Ticket Situation—League's Aims Sincere

Amateur Play Tournament

Trenton, Dec. 2.

Trenton's 1930 Little Theatre Tournament will take place tomorrow night.

The winner is to receive, in addition to a silver cup, a week's engagement at the R-K-O Capitol theatre, through arrangements with James Brennan, manager of the R-K-O houses here.

Four one-act plays will be presented: "Altruism," "Jezobel," "The Valiant" and "The Widow of Wasdale Head."

Participating groups include the Trenton College Club, Group Players, "Y" Players and the Trenton Players' Club.

MET AGAIN PROSPERING AS IN WAR TIME GLOOM

The most consistently successful producer in the whole theatre field is the Metropolitan Opera Co., with fewer good seats obtainable this year than ever before. Of the 3,100 desirable locations, more than 2,500 are subscribed for for the entire season, and less than 1% of the 9,100 subscribers are offering their tickets for resale.

During the World War the Met did tremendous business and is again enjoying a banner year credited to the depression. Logic is that people demand a soothing influence in times of stress, and that opera is the most calming medium. Even the 400 off-center seats are sold out two or three nights every week, when popular scores draw from 300 to 400 standees.

Twenty-one select girls' finishing schools maintain boxes in the parterre, each seating 10, and include the cost of opera attendance their regular tuition. Girls attend the opera at least once a week for "cultural and educational" improvement.

"Hello Paris" 30% Cut

All excepting two members of Shuberts' "Hello Paris," and including the star, Chic Sale, accepted a 30% salary cut when requested to do so upon posting of notice last week.

The exceptions were Nat C. Haines and Jack Goode.

Show continues at the Shubert on week-to-week basis.

Play First Printed

A five-act play, entitled "Washington Pre-eminent," has been accepted for publication by Brentano's. Written by Mrs. Alice Hunt Bartlett, poet, and American editor of the "Poetry Review of London."

It has not yet been offered for production to anyone.

Hide-Out or Ballyhoo

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Arthur Greville Collins, coast producer, has made a one-year agreement with the Erlanger office to direct the latter's coast productions. In turn Erlanger houses will play Collins' own shows.

Collins' directing will be without publicity or program credits except at his own option in connection with plays he regards as of special merit.

Coward in Jan.

Noel Coward is due here late in January and will appear in "Private Lives" under the management of Arch Selwyn.

The show is reported a London hit but Coward appears unwilling to play in it over there for more than 16 weeks. He views the New York appearance in the light of a vacation.

CLAYTON'S 1ST FILM

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

Arthur Clayton, original male lead in "White Cargo," will get his first crack at pictures in "Charlie Chan Carries On," which will be made by Fox.

Studio is searching for someone to play the title assignment.

Broadway's legit managers active in the Theatre League say that mistakes may have been made in the campaign to control the pieces of tickets, but that the League's aims are sincere. They declare that they want to make it possible for the average person to buy tickets for the hits and would rather have that patronage than the well-to-do patrons whose last minute demand for tickets tilts the price for speculators.

Indications are that it will take a much longer time to work out the ticket problem than the League leaders expected—if there is a solution. When 5,000 persons want to see a show in a 1,000 seat theatre on the same night, which often happens with smashes, how the prices can be kept down is yet to be shown.

Right now the gyp agencies are reported getting bigger prices than ever because they are getting better tickets—dug out of Postal's agency or otherwise.

One of Broadway's best informed ticket men has time after time told the managers that gypping may be held down but never wiped out. Public reaction to the League's activities is not certain. Some tickets are getting to the public at 50c over the box office price through Postal and 75c premium from those half dozen agencies which the League allots tickets (principally because of their hotel stands) but there are plenty tickets going to the gyps.

Postal Operation

Postal with two officials constantly at the League offices daily is trying to work out the problem. 7 st. week its ticket sales slightly increased with the total between 6,500 and 7,000. That is not anything near enough for the wire company to approximate an even break. Its sales are preponderantly for the successes and its order slip system is not as simple as was expected.

It was reported the Postal people were dissatisfied with the allotments given its pooling office, front locations having in some cases been switched to the agencies. The Postal system has not been satisfactory in the matter of cancellations. Agencies have been able to handle cancellations without rousing customers.

The Raquet and Harvard clubs are reported ordering the direct Postal telephones out, unable to get the last minute service required on "locations" and resorting to the agencies or the indie and gyp agencies. The clubs mentioned are among the leading ticet bkuyers.

10c Per Ticket to League

The League informed the agencies handling tickets on allotments that they must pay 10c per ticket to the League, as does Postal. That indicates not enough revenue for the League is coming in. Heretofore each theatre paid the League 1% on the box office value of tickets sold by the agencies. The new order will cut the agencies down to a gross premium of 65c per ticket. If the 10 cents were added to the 75 cents premium (plus 4 cents tax) it would be an excess in the eyes of the government which would exact one-half of each dime. The matter of taxing the 50c charge of Postal has not yet been decided. Postal's claim is that it sells service, not tickets.

Flo Ziegfeld early this week charged that member-managers in the League were selling choice locations to the indie brokers. He also claimed he was preparing a suit against Postal for keeping tickets to "Smiles" out of the pooling agency, alleged to be discrimination. He also contemplates action against those agencies being allotted tickets by the League, stating they control hotel ticket distribution and that their contracts with the hotels stipulate they must serve guests for all attractions. Refusing to join the League, Ziegfeld asks the League why choice seats are held out by certain managers and lend with the gyps. Answering the League's charge he had made a buy for "Smiles" with gyp agencies, Ziegfeld stated he was doing business with the brokers that the League has originally accredited and that such tickets are not supposed to be sold for more than 75c premium.

George White, who railed against the League at its inception, joined

(Continued on page 60)

FUTURE PLAYS

With "Inspector General" currently rehearsing, Jed Harris has taken "Ways of Love," by S. N. Behrman, and a gangster story by Ben Hecht to produce. The Hecht play deals with the murder of Jim Colisimo, Chicago gangster.

"Blue Chips," musical comedy, with book by S. J. Trietle and score by Marie Devona, will be produced by Jerome Wallace, associated with the George Wintz office. Piece goes into rehearsal next week and will be routed by the Erlanger office to one and two-night stands in the South.

"Trip to Sorento" goes into rehearsal next week as next for New York Theatre Assembly, and when ready will be spotted at the Assembly (former Princess). Walter Greenough will direct.

"The Devil Is a Lady," by Garrett Fort and Garnet Weston, previously called "Armistice," is currently rehearsing, Lew Cantor producing and directing. Cast, headed by Olive Borden, from pictures, includes Freda Inescourt, Ara Gerald, Leonard Willie, Victor Morley. "Devil" will open in Atlantic City Christmas week.

"The Mysterious Dr. X," mystery by Howard Comstock, goes into rehearsal shortly for William and Harry Brandt, subway circuit theatre operators. Show will open in Great Neck (L. I.) Jan. 10 for one night and play Brandt's four houses before Broadway.

Brandt's may follow "Dr. X," previously announced for Staten and McKalg, with four other shows.

"Storm Song" is being cast by Robert V. Newman as his next production. Marion Gering will direct the piece. Newman will also organize a second company of "Bad Girl" for Chicago after launching "Storm Song."

"Spook House," mystery melo, is being readied for production by George Damroth. Ramroth had the chiller on a barnstorming tour of resort towns last summer and now intends reviving it for New York.

"The Frame Up," by Mark Linder, will be given production next month by Collins & Adams.

The piece is an elaboration of a protean act Linder formerly used in vaudeville.

Linder, who is now on the west coast, finished the play there and air-mailed the script to the producers.

Paul Streger has taken over "The Whip Hand" and will do it as his next on his own.

Streger produced "Sweet Stranger," backed by Erlanger finances. Erlanger is not in on the new one.

"Sadie Lou," musical by Lucky Roberts and Alex Rogers (deceased), postponed by Percy Oakes, is casting. Cast will mostly be recruits from vaude.

"Life Is Like That," by Jo Millward, currently rehearsing for Curtis Emery, opens Dec. 13 in Great Neck, L. I., for one night, going to Brooklyn Dec. 15 for week. Cast includes Edward Pawley and Helen Shipman. Directed by Paul Martin.

"Check and Double Check," musical revue, will be given production by Robert Burke. Producer was formerly manager of the Royale, New York, and this is the first thing at production.

Title may be changed later because of conflict with title of Amos 'n' Andy picture.

"Margie Cassidy" is next on list for A. H. Woods and will be given production next month.

"Intermission," by Irving Kaye Davis, will be follow up production for Woods.

"Love Thieves," new musical which Michael Kallesser is producing bows in at Montreal next week (8) and will play several weeks in Canadian territory and a few jump breakers back before hitting into New York.

Cast includes Lew Hearn, Raynor Lehr, Eldora Stanford, Virginia Smith, Beatrice Nichols, Chaterine Eyrnis, Arthur Cunningham and Three Mississippi Misses.

The musical has book by Elizabeth Wells, music by John Klenner and lyrics by Stella Unger. Lew Morton is staging the dialog with Frank Montgomery directing the dance numbers.

"Ballyhoo," new Arthur Hammerstein musical, starring W. C. Fields and shaping up on tour, will relight Hammerstein's, New York, Dec. 15.

"Taking Chances" goes into rehearsal next week (8) with Mumick Abbe figuring as producer.

Cast includes John Sullivan, Mary Harrington, Ruth Nagle, Arthur Stanley, Frank Forrest, John Hemmingway, Robert Burke, Edmund Brown, Jane Sargent, Florence Wagner and others. The piece will open cold at a New York house, undecided upon as yet.

"Promenade," by William Du Bois, will reach production via Gensler & Green. It's a comedy on American college life.

Du Bois authored "Pagan Lady" for Lenore Ulric, also produced by Gensler & Green.

"Ned McCobb's Daughter," by Sidney Howard, will open at the Cellar Players theatre on 27th street Dec. 12. Semi-pro cast was directed by Dorothy Cliesmond.

"Barbara," by G. M. Curci, which Jimmie Cooper has taken, is being rewritten by Jean Bart and will shortly go into production.

"This Ambition," by Matthew Boyd, will shortly be cast by Edward Sargent Brown, producer. Show is slated to open in January.

"Making Mary," college background musical by Harold Orloh, currently casting at the New Yorker, with producers unknown.

Ticket Situation

(Continued from page 59)

last week without comment. Indications are that the demand for his "Flying High" was dropping and a wider distribution would be the gained by joining the League.

While there is little doubt that the ticket matter has been muddled since the managers started the control plan, it is now indicated that its best chance was when the original 16 brokers were in on the plan. They at least could hold down gypping from their agencies by the specs but they claimed they were not getting the right deal from the League and too many tickets were seeping into the gyp offices. The managers blame the brokers for walking out and claim the alleged abuses of the rules was exaggerated.

A dinner at the Astor will be held tonight (3) by the International Telegraph and Telephone Co., which controls Postal. Al Smith and others will speak over the radio telephone. Showmen out of town and Europe will be told what the League is doing to curb graft in the ticket mart. Many showmen have been invited.

The decision in the case of Sam H. Harris against Jack Pasternack, an indie broker, whom Harris seeks to restrain from reselling tickets for "Once in a Lifetime," is expected to be handed down today (3).

N. Y. Cast Members May Do Coast "Lost Sheep"

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

Upon arrival here of Sidney Foxe, who is under contract to Universal, the Erlanger office started negotiations with the studio to permit the actress to play her original part in the Coast legit edition of "Lost Sheep."

Show opens in Frisco Dec. 26 with the management also after Cecelia Loftus who was also a member of the original cast and is now out here.

Joan Lowell Guest Star

Detroit, Dec. 2.

Joan Lowell, author of "Cradle of the Deep," is slated to be the guest star in presentation by Jessie Bonstelle and the Civic Theatre group of "Camille."

This appearance will be a return, since this girl was a member of this group before her fame as an author.

Jobless Benefit Shows

First of the Sunday night series of legit shows for the benefit of the Mayor's committee for the relief of the unemployed will be "Bad Girl" at the Hudson theatre.

Velvety Voice

Evelyn MacMevin in old and new songs at the Guild theatre, has a contralto of velvety quality. She sang both serious and lighter arias and songs, revealing technique and breadth of phrasing.

A group of Scottish folk songs wound up an interesting program.

Shows in Rehearsal

"Green Grow the Lilacs" (Theatre Guild), Beck.
"Made in Hollywood" (Brock Pemberton), Avon.
"Trade Winds" (Schwab & Mandel), Imperial.
"Inspector General" (Jed Harris), Morosco.
"The Devil Is a Lady" (Lew Cantor), Ritz.
"Life Is Like That" (Curtis Emery), Longacre.

STOCK "NAMES" JOIN TENTS ON CO-OP.

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Local Sunday papers are carrying numerous advertisements for talent from organizers of tent and rep shows. All are being framed on the co-operative basis with the fact stressed that only professionals are wanted.

Activity in this line, dead here for a number of years, is due to local conditions among show people. Outfits in the process of getting started have taken a number of people well known in Coast stock circles who have been playing small towns and circle stock up and down the Coast for a number of years.

Murphy Brothers, who at one time had four tent shows going within the city limits are reported getting ready to start out under canvas again. The brothers quit the game to get into the miniature golf business, but found that the things collected more grief than tents.

I. T. A. MAY PASS OUT

Notice Sent Mgrs. Over Non-Payment of Dues

The passing of the International Theatrical Association was indicated this week when a notice was sent to managers that because of failure to pay dues, the association would be compelled to stop functioning. The I. T. A. handled the labor problems of the legit theatre and also watched legislation hostile to the theatre.

When the I. T. A. was formed 10 years ago it was hailed as a movement that might prove of great benefit to the theatre. The membership included all of Broadway's legit theatre owners and most of those out of town. The decrease in the number of houses playing attractions caused many of the road houses to drop out, but the labor disputes of the balance had the advice and aid of the I. T. A. The late A. L. Erlanger kept the I. T. A. going and was its president. Since his death there was no new president named.

5% Meeting in Jan.

The special Equity meeting, necessary to pass on the new rules concerning alien actors, will be held the first week in January. English players will be principally affected should the proposed rules become effective.

Idea is to tax all aliens who are not resident aliens or who have not played 100 weeks in legit here, 5% of their weekly salaries. Stars and feature players will be exempt from the six months' gap as at present but will be subject to the 5% collection.

Actress Nearly Retires

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Esther Howard, who announced her retirement from legit when she came here from the east, has been cast for the femme lead in "Up Pops The Devil," coming to the Belasco.

"EXPERIMENT" AGAIN

"A Noble Experiment," which flopped after a week at the Waldorf, New York, some weeks ago, is being taken over by Burns Productions.

The new producers will recast the piece, try for an additional New York run and then send it out.

Concert

By Sallie

3 Shows Out

Four or five plays are among the closing possibilities this week, last Saturday three abrupt departures.

"Princess Charming," presented by Connolly and Swanstrom, shut at the Imperial after seven weeks. Costly operetta, regarded set for the winter. Operating expense too heavy. Might have been saved with an agency buy. Started out around $35,000 and lately has been getting $25,000, but closed to $30,000.

"Marseilles," presented at Henry Miller's by Gilbert Miller, was taken off after playing two weeks. Reviews not favorable and business light.

MARSEILLES

Opened Nov. 17. Winchell (Mirror) said: "Unsatisfactory evening." "Doubts of great popular appeal," Garland (Telegram), "Generally a disappointment," Lockbridge (Sun), "Variety" (Ibee): "Indications are negative."

"Pressing Business," an independent show, stopped at the Republic.

PRESSING BUSINESS

Opened Nov. 17. "Unfolded before a suffering audience," including Ruth Cambridge (Mirror). "Sleazy imitation" (World). Unsigned review (American) though it assured of "at least a fair run." "Variety" (Edba): "Won't do even at cut rates."

Played two weeks to very little money.

"Sons o' Guns" Settles Damita $2,100 Commish

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Producers of "Sons o' Guns" paid $2,100 for salary due Lily Damita, following a suit instituted by the William Morris agency through Harry Munns in Chicago.

At time of Damita placement show assumed obligation for commission.

Marion-Whiting's Musical For Schwab and Mandel

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

George Marion, Jr's., first Broadway musical for Schwab & Mandel next spring will be done in conjunction with Dick Whiting who will do score.

Both men collaborated on some of the best picture songs Paramount turned out during the past year.

'Real McCoy' at Republic

"The Real McCoy," Irish play by M. J. J. MacKeon, went into rehearsal Monday (1) via Sam Lowett. Arthur Sinclair is in the lead, playing the same role he had in the English production. Benrimo directing.

"McCoy" is slated to open at the Republic shortly after Christmas.

Lowett, newcomer, had "Alimony Acts," which never showed on Broadway, last year.

Richman as Gigolo

Shuberts have found a "gigolo" for "Wonderbar." Harry Richman will take the part when Connolly & Swanstrom's "Sons o' Guns" closes on the road, with Lita Grey Chaplin also in the show.

"Guns" is likely to fold after Chicago, completing a disastrous road trip. Business fell badly upon Richman filling the late Jack Donahue's lead place.

"F. O. B." WITHDRAWN

"F.O.B. Paris," produced by Eddie Dowling in association with the Shuberts, has folded permanently after two weeks out. The piece had been scheduled to lay off this week and reopen at a Shubert house next week (8), but folded instead.

Dowling bankrolled the production with the Shubert end being merely a guarantee for cast salaries at Equity.

Bakersfield Stock

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Cyr Forrest is organizing a stock company to open Dec. 14 at the Hippodrome in Bakersfield, Cal.

He goes into the house under arrangement with Fox-West Coast.

2 Operas at Met's Mat.

A holiday spirit buzzed all over the Met, Thanksgiving afternoon with two fascinating brilliant short operas, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci". Both were done in Italian.

Marie Jeritza (Santuzza), Armand Tokatyan (Turiddu), the principals in "Cavalleria", gave corking performances. Jeritza's tumble down the steps of the church was most graceful for a tumbling single. She is in good form this season, her voice always of large range and true, but the soul and feeling that others have put into this beautiful role seemed to be lacking. She wore only the peasant costume.

Tokatyan's notes are a joy and he never looked more handsome than in the black velvet, knickers, balero, red sash and red tie, bright red stockings and black pumps. Gladys Swarthout, as the mother, delightful, orchestration inspiring and the scenes typical of Italy.

"Pagliacci" after the intermission had Myrna Sharlow, soprano, in her debut as "Nedda", aside from a natural nervousness, she gave a splendid performance, as a very fine, well trained voice of beautiful quality and sings with understanding. Martinelli's great voice calls for no comment. De Lucca, always in a playful mood, came in for his share of the honors.

Fritzi Scheff, charming in black afternoon frock trimmed in white ermine and a tri-corn hat, Marguerite Sylvia also beautifully gowned in black with silver fox, and Alice Neilson, three former Neddas, occupied box seats.

Bellezza conducted both operas.

Back Again in Concert

Three seasons ago, Harold Kreutzburg and Yvonne Georgi, sponsored by Elicabeth Marbury, came to New York and gave a season of Sunday night dance recitals. At that time Mme. Georgi in no way measured up to Kreutzberg. Now Yvonne Georgi easily shares laurels with Kreutzberg.

Their Town Hall recital had dressing beautiful, the richest of materials. Miss Georgi wears a tight gold head dress while Mr. Kreutzberg's head is cleanly shaven, and aside from the Russian dance, is always uncovered.

Opera's Dress Rehearsal

The full dress rehearsal Friday morning at the Met of Petrovich Moussorgcky's Russian Opera "The Fair at Sorochintzy" in Italian, was an event. It seemed certain to be the big season's novelty at the opera house.

The first act in the market place had about 90 of the chorus on the stage. Maria Mueller (Parassia) arrived in the gypsy wagon.

The ballet in the second act has live steam clouds for an effect.

The first public performance was Saturday afternoon (29). Rosina Galli looked stunning in a mink coat and black velvet turban; Nanette Guilford, many pounds less, was pretty in furs topped off with a white felt tri-corn; Julia Claussen, breezed through in her fur wrap, black felt hat and usual infectious smile. Tullio Serafin conducted.

The harp in this opera is heard throughout.

Debutante

Bijur Sunday evening held a debutante to America, Nastia Poliakova. Her vogue lies in interpretative ability.

Mme. Poliakova's facial expressions and tone illustrate each word. Singing "Bog Vsemit" she proved mistress of her dramatic romantic and spirited numbers. She wears a Romany costume of many colors and a headdress of bejewelled rubies encrusted.

Two guitarists, Dimitri Poliakov and Ury Wosilivsky, assisted.

Individual Pianist

Herma Menth, Viennese pianist, was heard in her first recital this season, in the New Rochelle (N. Y.) auditorium. Her program was varied, covering numberless composers. Her Brahms Melody, as usual, brought forth a storm of applause. She plays it with much delicacy.

Miss Menth wore a foreign creation of black lace, cut very decollete and trailing, with brilliants in her ears and black satin pumps with buckles. Her headdress is a bob, worn wildly. She is decidedly individual.

FOOTBALL MOB GIVES CHI. $185,900

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Four inter-collegiate football teams and some 50,000 fans celebrating the Thanksgiving holidays and their team's spirit, pulled all box offices up to new season levels and threw "Sweet Adeline" in the lead with $28,000. On the other hand, "The Last Mile" folded, while "Cradle Call" exited after setting a new low before it closed the 29th.

Dramatic League's move from the Princess to Harris got "Death Takes a Holiday" an extra bit of money, while "Lysistrata" pushed over $23,000.

Houses going dark this week are the Playhouse, which carried the "House of Fear" for 14 weeks; the Princess, which had "The Last Mile," and the Grand, with "Sons o' Guns," the last being closed for seven days until "Simple Simon" opens Dec. 7. Dramatic League got its monthly new piece, "Michael and Mary," that opened yesterday (1st). Otherwise the town's the same, and "Dracula" succeeded to the Selwyn.

Estimates for Last Week

"A Month in the Country," Blackstone (2d week) (D-1,219-$3). Rather highbrow offering, with Nazimova. Went to $14,000, in keeping with the subscription average.

"Cradle Call," Selwyn, 3d week) (C-1,086-$3). After unfavorable notices this Hollywood comedy tried hard to stick, but went out at $4,000. "Dracula" opened the 30th.

"Death Takes a Holiday," Harris (4th, final week) (D-1,084-$3). Starting at the Princess and moving to this house, this Dramatic League piece climbed to $15,000, good.

"House of Fear," Playhouse (14th, final week) (D-603-$2.50). Longest season run finally closed to $4,500. At this figure or less the show made dough as the overhead was down. Nothing in prospect.

"Last Mile," Princess (3d week) (D-958-$3). After a struggle and a move from the Harris down to less than $6,000, with the company returning east and storing. Well liked by all the critics, the play was too grim to pull at the box office.

"Lysistrata," Majestic (3d week) D-1-997-$3.50). Doing a build-up and now running $23,000. Gets a play from the literati and those who come to town seeking thrills.

"Mendel, Inc.," Adelphi (3d week) (C-1,110-$2.50). Taking hold with around $15,000, with plenty of parties helping. Smartly handled.

"Old Rascal," Garrick (3d week) (D-1,276-$3). Hodges' first bedroom farce is sawing along at $12,000. Old neighbors are responding to the word-of-mouth plug, which makes it appear it will remain a few more weeks.

"Sons o' Guns," Grand (3d week) (M-1,200-$4). Picked up after slow start, but didn't groove. Football parties helped to $21,000. Now out, with the Grand dark a week until "Simple Simon" shows 7th.

"Sweet Adeline," Illinois (6th week) (M-1,500-$3.85). Sell out every performance with strong $28,000. Goes out Dec. 6, when the house will remain dark until the 22d, when "Ripples" arrives. Only out-of-town bookings responsible. Show could remain another month.

"Subway Express," Erlanger (2d week) (D-1,319-$3). Liked and up to $12,400, despite cut-rates. Likely will remain over the holiday season.

"Three Live Girls," Great Northern (9th week) (C-1,365-$3.85). Still holding around $15,000, although it is understood the cast has taken cut. Piece has appeal to operetta-loving class that seems inexhaustible in Chicago.

"Young Sinners," Apollo (6th week) (CD-1,443-$3). This one proving the surprise, climbing steadily to $16,000 this week, with healthy future prospects.

'APPLE CART' GOT GOOD $16,500 IN CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, Dec. 2.

Rain and severe cold had damaging effect on legit theatre last week. "Street Scene" at Shubert took its first b. o. beating of the road season, grossing only $10,500 at $2.50 top. The show is holding over with little prospect of betterment beyond next week.

"Apple Cart," at $3 and third of the Theatre Guild series at the Erlanger-Grand, did surprisingly well under the circumstances. Close to $16,500.

Taft and Cox, stock houses, drew less than usual. The Grand profited by having the mid-week matinee on Wednesday avoiding opposition of the Thanksgiving afternoon performances by the other three houses and the local college football games.

Sub-Zero in Minneapolis; Holiday Biz Is Spotty

Minneapolis, Dec. 2.

A bad Thanksgiving week with general business off, below zero weather and plenty of snow was not so hard on the legits as on pictures, road shows being infrequent here.

The Metropolitan and Lyceum again ran opposition to one another. Walker Whiteside came into the former the last three days in "The Chinese Bungalow" as a counter attraction to the New York Theatre Guild's "Garrick Gaieties" at the Lyceum all week.

Whiteside grossed around $3,000 for the four performances, including a Saturday matinee. Fair.

The "Garrick Gaieties" opened very strongly and came close to the $15,000 mark, good for this attraction.

With John Willurde, new leading man, as a special card in "Jonesy," the Bainbridge dramatic stock company at the Shubert enjoyed another very good week, about $5,400.

Offering "Town Topics," the stock burlesque company at the Gayety with wrestling matches as an added attraction on one of the nights, hit $4,000. Satisfactory.

$7,500 IS LOW, BUT L. A.'S TOP

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

Two new plays opened here last week, "The Infinite Shoeblack" at the Music Box and "Michael and Mary" at the El Capitan. Latter marks the first local appearance of Henry Duffy and his wife, Dale Winter, since Duffy's bankruptcy early this year.

The new Duffy piece got away to a good start with over $7,000 on the week. Returns should hearten his new backers. Show is in for three weeks.

Civic Repertory's "Shoeblack" started well, as was to be expected with the backing of Los Angeles' and Hollywood's elite. First week should always do great here, with who's who getting a chance to sneer at each other during intermissions. As is the show got $6,000 for the opener. Compared to last season, when a $2,000 draw was a riot, the Rep is doing not so bad.

"Bird of Flame" folded at the Belasco after three weeks of less than average business. Last week got $7,000. Closing of the Belasco leaves L. A. without a legitimate attraction for the next three weeks.

At the Hollywood Playhouse, "Mister Antonio" hangs on to fair business, getting $5,200 in the week. Show is using the radio for plugs, with the star, Leo Carillo, doing the talking.

"The Green Bottle" closed at the Vine Street after three weeks of bad business to $3,000 on the last stanza. Generally panned. Mrs. Patrick Campbell in "Ghosts" opened Monday for one week.

Estimates for Last Week

"Bird of Flame" (Belasco, 3d, final week). Closed to $7,500, which is plenty below average for this house. Theatre stays dark for next three weeks, opening Dec. 25 with "Up Pops the Devil."

"Green Bottle" (Vine Street, 3d, final week). Ended a three-week headache to $3,000. "Ghosts" opened Monday.

"Mister Antonio" (Hollywood Playhouse, 4th week). Fair profit at $5,200.

"Infinite Shoeblack" (Music Box, Civic Repertory, 1st week). Opened to $6,000 week. Too highbrow for the mob, so it's just in for two weeks.

"Michael and Mary" (El Capitan, 1st week). Henry Duffy's comeback got good reception at $7,100.

Mrs. Pat Campbell in "Ghosts," $8,000; Bad

San Francisco, Dec. 2.

One of the flops last week was Mrs. Patrick Campbell in "Ghosts," doing a second week at Erlanger's Columbia. Nearest to real business was copped at matinees but nights light. Total barely $8,000.

Louis O. MacLoon's sudden and unexpected closing of "Paris in Spring" left the Curran dark without an attraction.

"The Apple Cart" at Geary opened well and the whole cast made merry. Business has been fairly brisk with holdovers and gallery heavy and main floor fair. First week close $11,000, very good.

Henry Duffy's President with "Dracula" in fourth week Stanley, but still profitable at around $6,000. Alcazar with "Stepping Sisters" in fourth week has shown perdicel but persistent build. Got around $6,500.

Tivoli offered "Front Page" and hitting fair stride. Last not much profit at $4,000.

PITTSB'GH'S GROSSES

Pittsburgh, Dec. 2.

Nothing like musicals in this burg for a holiday week. Both legit houses had tune shows for Thanksgiving and mopped up.

The Stones at Nixon in "Ripples" at $4.40 top drew well for eight performances and sailed through to $33,750, biggest here so far this season.

"Artists and Models" at the Alvin also came through with neat $25,000 at $3 top except on Thanksgiving night when tax was raised to $4.40. Likewise this house's best figure for the season.

George Sharp Players at Pitt suffered little by heavy legit trade.

PHILLY SPOTTY, CARROLL REVUE TOP, $33,000

Philadelphia, Dec. 2.

Although Thanksgiving resulted in some real trade for a few shows in town, this traditionally profitable holiday week did not show as good a record as the one that preceded it when all five legit houses were clearly on the black side of the ledger.

Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" was the easy leader last week at $33,000 at the Shubert on the unusually low scale of $3 top. Reviews were fine and indications point to the best engagement for a Carroll revue here in some time. The other musical, "Anna and the Major," new Shubert operetta, opened Tuesday with little money in the house and gave matinees both Wednesday and Thursday to get full eight performances.

Dramatic leader was "Dishonored Lady," which, without extra matinee (Cornell played Wednesday but not a Thursday afternoon performance) got $16,000 in its first week at the Forrest. Start was a little disappointing, but the show ought to make plenty of profit here. Belasco's "It's a Wise Child" had a very weak opening with about $500 Monday night, but picked up steadily thereafter and, with three matinees, reported about $14,000 in its first week at the Broad.

"The First Mrs. Fraser," playing its fourth week at the Walnut under auspices of the Professional Players, jumped up again to $13,000 minus extra matinees. Engagement here was highly successful with $50,000 for four weeks at a $2.50 top and subscription seats $2.

The sixth legit offering of the week, "The Wife's Away," new Max Gordon production, started off to about a $175 Monday night and pitiful business thereafter except, of course, some life on Thanksgiving. Even with the holiday this total was under $4,000 at the Garrick.

As originally planned, there were to have been six openings last week, with "Mrs. Fraser" as the only holdover. However, the sixth newcomer, "Ballyhoo," Hammerstein's new musical, was postponed for a second time until this week. It reopened the Erlanger Monday night. Other premiere of the week was "As Good As Desire Me," Pirandello drama and the third offering of the Professional Players, at the Walnut.

"The Apple Cart," Theatre Guild's third offering of the current season, comes to the Garrick next Monday, and "Sons o' Guns" is set for the Forrest. The week of Dec. 15 is blank so far, but Christmas week will offer "Artists and Models," Shubert; "Strictly Dishonorable" at the Broad; "Sweet Adeline," Erlanger, and probably a Guild offering at the Garrick. "Garrick Gaieties" was originally scheduled but is reported cancelled. Dec. 29, "Topaze" comes to the Walnut as 5th Fourth Professional Players' attraction. Chestnut and Forrest holiday bookings are not set.

Estimates for Last Week

"It's a Wise Child" (Broad, 2d week). Belasco hit started weakly but developed to more reasonable proportions, with aid of three holidays it grossed almost $14,000, not great but promising.

"Arms and the Maid" (Chestnut, 2d week). New operetta opened Tuesday and generally panned, not over $15,000 in eight performances, if that, big Thanksgiving day helped.

"Ballyhoo" (Erlanger, 1st week). House reopened this week with this new Hammerstein musical, topped by W. C. Fields after two postponements.

"Dishonored Lady" (Forrest, 2d week). Fair dramatic record of week; got $16,000 first week. Big matinees.

"Sketch Book" (Shubert, 2d week). Earl Carroll revue with $33,000 on $3 top; looks like best Carroll revue showing here in a long time.

"As You Desire Me" (Walnut, 1st week). Third Professional Players offering. "First Mrs. Fraser" went up to $ 3,000 in fourth and final week; very good.

'Grand Hotel' Tops Dramas, $28,000; Hits on Broadway Drawing Big Money

This is a good season for hits. There are several money shows on Broadway. Although the list is considerably under normal in quantity, the quality attractions appear to be doing as well as in other seasons.

Business during Thanksgiving week was just about what had been indicated. Grosses did not advance except where extra matinees were held. Weakness early in the week and on the holiday itself resulted in some shows slipping. The peak of autumn period has passed and business will naturally ease downward until Christmas.

Production has slowed down and only one show is due next week—"The New Yorkers," postponed from this Thursday, opening the Broadway, formerly Moss's picture theatre, Colony at 53d street.

Among the new shows "The Vinegar Tree" looks much the best getting $17,500 in nine performances during its first full week at the Playhouse; "Scarlet Sister Mary" claimed $20,000 gross for its starting week at the Ethel Barrymore but a run is doubtful; "Oh Promise Me," laugh show at the Morosco, got $13,000 at the Morosco and should make the grade; "This Is New York," fairly well regarded at the Plymouth; "An Affair of State" looks hopeless at the Broadhurst; same for "First Night," Eltinge; "Hello Paris" regarded a lightweight at the Shubert; "Schoolgirl" light at the Ritz.

$47,000 Top

"Smiles" at the Ziegfeld tops the list in money and was quoted at $47,000 for its first full week. "Three's a Crowd," "Girl Crazy" and "Fine and Dandy" are the standout musicals otherwise. "Sweet and Low" improved the second week.

"Grand Hotel" is the dramatic topper at $28,000; "Once in a Lifetime" continues the comedy leader; "Greeks Had a Word For It" and "Tonight or Never," "Green Pastures," "Lysistrata," "Elizabeth the Queen," "That's Gratitude," "Vinegar Tree," "China," "Pagan Lady" and "On the Spot" are the other standouts.

Three more abrupt closings last week were "Princess Charming," Imperial; "Marseilles," Miller, and "Pressing Business," Republic.

Estimates Last Week

"An Affair of State," Broadhurst (3rd week) (C-1,118-$3). Notices not so good and business very weak; rated under $4,000; playing for the picture rights; may close Saturday (5).

"As Good As New," Cort (5th week) (C-1,043-$3.85). Moved here from Times Square; got about $6,000; doubtful except cut rates.

"Bad Girl," Hudson (10th week) (D-1,094-$3). Trade off generally early last week; pace affected here, too, but with gross around $10,000, satisfactory.

"Blackbirds," Royale (7th week) (R-1,118-$3.85). Has had rather tough time of it; Sunday night performances not what expected either; rated under $10,000.

"Brown Buddies," Liberty (9th week) (M-1-202-$3). Figuring this colored show will last into January; business quoted around $12,000 weekly.

"Elizabeth the Queen," Guild (5th week) (CD-914-$3). Playing to capacity with gross around $18,000; revival of "Much Ado About Nothing," the alternating attraction, not due now until mid-January.

"Fine and Dandy," Erlanger's (13th week) (M-1-531-$6.60). Virtual capacity throughout last week, easily holding its own against newer musicals; $40,000 or over.

"First Night," Eltinge (2d week) (CD-892-$3). Opened middle of last week; only mild notices and chances in doubt.

"Flying High," Apollo (30th week) (M-1,168-$4.40). Reduced the scale again and seats on sale through Theatre League; indicated drop in business to $25,000.

"Grand Hotel," National (4th week) (D-1,164-$4.40). Acts like a smash; strong advance sale; out in front of all dramas with gross of $28,000.

"Girl Crazy," Alvin (8th week) (M-1,387-$5.50). Such a musical going along to great business; weekly pace is $40,000 and more.

"Greeks Had a Name for It," Harris (11th week) (C-1,000-$3). Quiet to some extent; big in favor and one of strongest comedies on list; $20,000 or more to it.

"Green Pastures," Mansfield (44th week) (D-1,070-$4.40). Fine drama enjoying its second season; $15,000 or more.

"Hello, Paris," Shubert (1st week) (M-1,297-$4.40). One of the new shows; indications not very promising.

"Kiss of Importance," Fulton (1st week) (C-1,357-$3.85). Presented by Arch Selwyn; adapted from the French by Arthur Hopkins and David Mendoza.

"Ladies All," Ritz (2d week) (C-1,400-$3). Rated under $7,000 and $8,000 and probably turning a small profit.

"Lysistrata," 44th St. (27th week) (C-1,323-$3.85). Greek travesty still drawing well with better than a half year's run to its credit; $20,000 claimed.

"Man in Possession," Booth (6th week) (C-708-$3.85). Scale helping gross to $11,000 and sometimes a bit over; one of few English shows to make a go of it.

"Marseilles," Henry Miller's. Closed last Saturday after playing two weeks to light trade.

Nina Rosa," Majestic (11th week) (M-1,717-$5.50). Shuberts concentrating theatre parties for this show; not among the leaders and never was; approximately $25,000.

"Oh Promise Me," Morosco, (2d week) (C-893-$3.85). Should make money; notices favorable in the main; a laugh show which got about $13,000 the first week.

"On the Spot," Forrest (16th week) (D-1,015-$3). Maintains very good pace and figures to last through winter, averaging $15,000 and over.

"Once in a Lifetime," Music Box (11th week) (C-1,000-$3.85). Comedy leader and the front gross runner until "Grand Hotel" came; $23,000 the weekly score.

"Overture," Longacre (1st week) (CD-1,019-$3). Presented independently (Bella Blake) written by the late William Bolitho; opens Friday (5).

"Pagan Lady," 48th St. (7th week) (C-969-$3). Making good money and may stay through winter; grooved around $15,000 weekly.

"Pressing Business," Republic. Stopped last Saturday, two weeks.

"Princess Charming," Imperial. Closed suddenly last Saturday; got coin but overboard on operating expense.

"Rear China," Beck (6th week) (D-1,189-$3). Has good chance to stick into January and perhaps longer; business quoted over $16,000 last week.

"Stepping Sisters," Jolson's (33d week) (F-1,776-$3). Unusual in that low-cost show using cut-rate coupons continues to draw enough for profit; $6,000 to $7,000.

"Scarlet Sister Mary," Ethel Barrymore (2nd week) (D-1,000-$4.40). Using high scale because of the Ethel Barrymore draw; $5.50 first night and first week grossed around $20,000.

"Schoolgirl," Ritz (3rd week) (C-945-$3). Management hopeful about this book play; between $5,000 and $6,000 last week and claiming to be picking up.

"Smiles," Ziegfeld (3rd week) (M-1,622-$6.60). At present the big shot among the musicals and leading the list; second week's takings well over $47,000, virtual capacity.

"Strictly Dishonorable," Avon (64th week) (C-830-$3.85). May last through winter, when company will be sent to London; about $10,000 indicated.

"Sweet and Low," Chanin's (2d week) (C-1,413-$5.50). Doing fairly well but hooked up expensively; second week a bit better at $26,000.

"That's Gratitude," John Golden (13th week) (C-900-$4.40). Business first ten weeks excellent and still quite profitable considering conditions; extra matinee sent takings to $15,000.

"This Is New York," Plymouth (2nd week (CD-1,042-$3.85). Opened late last week; first night opinion favorable and figures to be in the money.

"The Vinegar Tree," Playhouse (3rd week) (C-968-$3). Looks like a fresh hit; finished to standee trade and with an extra matinee grossed $17,500.

"The New Yorkers," Broadway. Postponed until next Monday (8).

"Three's A Crowd," Selwyn (8th week) (R-1,067-$5.50). Has been capacity since opening; no let-up in the high ticket demand; weekly takings $35,000.

"Tonight or Never," Belasco (3rd week) (D-1,000-$3.85). Belasco's latest presentation looks like a real money maker; second week's gross over $19,000.

"Up Pops the Devil," Masque (11th week) (C-700-$3). Lively comedy making money, but not among the leaders; over $9,000 claimed.

"Vanities," New Amsterdam (23rd week) (R-1,702-$5.50). Should last into January, new attraction due then; recent off weeks around $24,000.

Other Attractions

"The Merchant of Venice," Times Square, revival with Maurice Moscovitch.

Allison's House," 14th Street; now for Civic Rep.

Twelfth Night," Maxine Elliott and "Are You Mrs. Bottle," Jolson's, this week.

"Mrs. Moonlight," Hopkins; indefinite.

"Light Wines and Beer," Republic; moved here from Wallack's (formerly shown as The Good Old Days).

Plays Out of Town

Cette Vieille Canaille

Paris, Nov. 21.

("This Old Bandit")

Comedy in three acts by Fernand Nozierre. Staged by Pierre Fresnay. Produced by Trebor and Brigon. Incidental music by Pares and Van Pares. Theatre Michel, Paris, Nov. 14.

Guillaume Vauthier.....Maurice de Feraudy
Jean Bonsard.....Pierre Bressny
Helene Lagrenn.....Alice Field
Mireille Fleury.....Marie-Louise Derby
Paul.....Rene Blancard
The Head Waiter.....Pierre Rauchet
Michel.....Dauvillier
Gravier.....Denis Rollet
Jacqueline.....Marcelle Monclair
Lina.....Suzy Leroy
The Florist.....Magda Garey
The Florist's Assistant.....Yette Pontys

Play is very timely, in this way: that immediately after the war the older generation was entirely put into the background by the young, and that nowadays those who were young at the time are getting gray and are pushed along by a younger generation, so that both the pre-war generation and that which came in immediately after the war, and still is holding the reins, feel sympathy for the character of the older man who is trying to keep his mistress from young men rivals. All men over 40 who are trying to prevent gigolos from catching their women cannot help but feel that the play has been written for them.

Story is that of a man about 60, retired politician and newspaper owner, very wealthy and wiley. He maintains a young woman who falls for a nice young composer who acts in a night club. The older man has no delusions as to what will be the outcome, and is wise enough to give a free rein to the girl, contenting himself by using his money to attract her. The musician and the girl go to the country on an unofficial honeymoon, while the old man is tactfully making a Mediterranean cruise. But what the old man had foreseen happens. The young woman gets somewhat tired of her young lover, who is sufficiently honorable himself to express the wish that they could live in surroundings not bought with the old man's money. It is this situation that shows the young man his folly, that such an entanglement will break his future. The young musician sees light, and disappears.

The play in itself is interesting and at times highly dramatic. All performers, however well they may act, are smothered by Maurice de Feraudy as the old politician. In his long career he has never created such a part, and his performance alone would make the play a success.

The first act takes place in a night club, setting being a reproduction of the Monseigneur Club in Paris. The play seems set for a long run at the Michel, and would probably do the same anywhere if acted as powerfully as it is here by Feraudy.

Mael.

ARMS AND THE MAID

Philadelphia, Dec. 2.

Latest Shubert musical importation, "Arms and the Maid," adapted by Harry B. Smith and Harry Clarke from the German of Ernst Neubach, opening at the Chestnut Street Opera House Nov. 25, is in vital need of plenty of doctoring. It has a chance, however, if certain radical changes are made.

Originally the piece was a very straight and legitimate drama, minus gags and gorgeous staging, and with a rather heavy accompanying musical score of very few numbers. Over here, it has been given a light score, contributed by Jean Gilbert, and a variety of comedy wheezes. On the other hand, the play staged with a single, unobtrusive although effective setting.

The story, which has a background of the war, is considerably above the average for musical comedy or operetta. But it is definitely the kind of a story that needs to be played by actors above the average musical comedy level. The scene is Galicia during the war—in Lemberg, to be exact—and the leading characters are either Austrian or Russian. An advance by the latter involves the Teuton heroine and her lover, a wounded German soldier, in numerous perilous situations. The slav leader, Colonel Orloff, an overbearing but susceptible officer in love with the girl, provides the third corner of the triangle. There are times when the action reminds, albeit faintly, of Shaw's "Arms and the Man," without, of course, the ironic and satiric slant.

Unfortunately, the leads are not equal to the task of making the occasional dramatic situations seem real and vital enough. Emmy Kosarky, a Continental prima donna, lacks both fire and personality. A good dramatic actress, with a passable voice, would have been better. A top-notch light operetta leading lady would be an improvement. Miss Kosarky sings well enough but lacks the spark. Alfred Young, also, is too stolid for the hero. On the other hand, Edward Nell, Jr., is capital as the heavy. He sings and acts with fervor and conviction. Best dramatic performance of all, however, is contributed by Florenz Ames as a spy, who only comes in on the last act. Ethel Norris is neatly effective as the ingenue and supplies the best of the lighter moments. She has the main tunes of the show and does very well by them. Solly Ward is the comedian and does his usual dialectic muttering. His low comedy does not seem to fit and he is best in his few serious moments.

Gilbert's score is graceful but undistinguished. Several of the numbers are easy to listen to, but hardly candidates for great favor. "I Like You" and "Forward, March Into My Arms" are the best.

Waters.

JACK'S UP

Providence, Nov. 28.

A comedy in three acts by Reginald Owen at the Providence Opera House, Thursday, Nov. 27.

Kuni.....J. Kuni
Lou.....Lou Pinedo
Harry Wolff.....Edward Rigby
Sam Goldstein.....Arthur S. Ross
John Montmorency.....Reginald Owen
Jack Gowan.....Reginald Owen
Ed.....Tom Farrell
Helen Nugent.....Kathryn March
The Rev. Thos. Sparling.....Jos. Sweeney
Zoke.....W. J. Paul
William.....Harold Hartwell

No chance for a sensational success in this saga of Hollywood morals, but it does provide a good evening's entertainment. Owen has a duel role and gives an excellent performance. The play has its far-fetched and exaggerated moments, but in general Owen has done a pretty good job of writing an amusing episode of that little dizzy village of Hollywood.

The action has doubles and troubles all mixed up into frenzied action. It primarily concerns one John Montmorency and his stuntman and severest critic, Jack Gowan. Montgomery had been a wow in the days of the silent screen, an idol and all that. But the talkers have put him in the background. He has a holdover contract so the producers have to make the most of him and use a double on the hazardous shots.

Owen plays both the screen star and double through a series of misadventures. At the finish the double comes into his own as a star, and into the arms of the heroine, played by the piquant Miss March.

Owen plays the roles of the detestable screen star and the likable Jack, a far call from each other, in convincing style and with a good deal of dexterity in changing from one to the other.

Arthur S. Ross is smooth as the Czar of Hollywood, and other members of the cast do well.

Owen has played in a few pictures himself, has spent considerable time in the picture colony and he knows his studio.

AUSTRALIA

(Continued from page 6)

being the means of supplying anti-foreign governments with their meal tickets. Anti-foreign element has adopted a dog-in-manger attitude. They want to keep American influence out of Australia, yet they tax American pictures beyond all reason. They also tell us to produce our own pictures, but have not assisted local producers in any way.

New Zealand government recently raised the tariff on film importation and American distributors at once told the government unless the slug was removed it would be impossible to do further business with that country except at a loss and this they (the distributors) were not prepared to do. Government handed a lot of flag waving stated it would not allow any foreign element to rule it.

But the public has set up such an outcry at their entertainment being taken from it it is certain the government will have to come back to earth. Should American distributors refuse to supply Australia with pictures then practically every theatre would have to close its doors.

Melbourne

Legit on the upward trend with "Mr. Cinders" and "Let Us Be Gay" getting nice business. Vaude revue solid. Edith Taliaferro will do "The Road to Romance," renamed from "Road to Rome" for W. T.

Wirth's Circus hitting public fancy and set for season. New talker attractions bringing in money and managers generally quite satisfied.

Chatter

"Sons o' Guns" biggest successes yet handled by W. T.

Most U. T. houses now playing vaude with talkers. Mostly local acts at present. Jack Musgrove in charge of U. T. booking office.

Old Chaplin silents finding their way into several theatres and pulling surprising business.

Stanley Crick returned from America and will have charge of the entire Hoyt-Fox circuit. Looks as though U. T. and Hoyts-Fox will work together instead of opposition. U. T. has a working agreement regarding territory made before Fox bought into the Hoyt group. This agreement will be adhered to until its expiration. Agreement has it that certain pictures can be played in Melbourne and other cities by U. T., with Hoyts playing same picture in Sydney and elsewhere.

Havana Chatter

(Continued from page 56)

next month's opening. It is a 10-story office building.

Feature will be the free bar, where Bacardi will be served to those fortunate enough to get a guest card.

The Presidente, Almendares and Sevilla are getting ready for the season. Sevilla will start Nov. 20. Victor Rodriguez, as usual, will furnish the music.

The Presidente will have a Cuban orchestra, and the Almendares is importing one from New York.

Some talk around that the race track and Casino would not open this year. Not so. Horses are coming with trainers and jockeys. New manager of the Casino is also in town and getting the gambling house ready.

Paramount celebrated "Paramount Week" recently. Scored a decided hit with its Spanish version of "Grumpy."

Metro is getting a big play with its Spanish Laurel and Hardy and Charlie Case comedies. These get top billing here.

Inside Stuff—Legit

(Continued from Page 55)

try was in association with James W. Elliott, not related. Program calls for two or three plays this winter, one probably having a name from pictures, as the star.

Lenore Ulric is said to have offered Ben David, producer of "An Affair of State," $30,000 for his rights before the play opened in New York last week, with Florence Eldridge. It's the first legit production by David, vaude producer and agent, and it is also the first produced script written by its author, Robert L. Buckner, who is 24.

Ina Claire is said to have wanted the story for a picture. Show started off like a hit.

Since newspaper critics seem to object to Saturday night openings, it is likely that producers will hereafter bring shows in on other days. There was only one first-string reviewer present at one recent Saturday nite opening, although there were no other shows beginning life that night.

Critics seem to feel that a Saturday night show cuts into their weekends.

Opening of "Overture" has been postponed from tonight (Wed), until Friday to permit completion of a cement stage at the Longacre.

Piece premiered in New Haven last week with unique billing giving publicity to three other compositions: Bela Blau presents "Overture," by William Bolitho, who wrote "12 Against the Gods," with Colin Clive, star of "Journey's End," staged by Marc Connelly, author and director of "Green Pastures."

The Authors' League has bulletined its members regarding the expiration next Feb. 1 of the dramatists' basic agreement with managers. Although no mention is made of changes in the agreement, it is reported a number will be made with reference to sales to pictures. One of the items complained about is the break given foreign playwrights on picture sales.

Idea of filling theatres with cheap shows via the 50 cent pass pick method has spread from "Stepping Sisters" and is attracting the attention of the shoestringers. "Sisters," the champ nicker, has been making money on this scheme with $5,000 grosses. Other shows to follow the example are "Hot Rhythm" and "Light Wines and Beer." Plan to keep "Frankie and Johnnie" on Broadway by this means didn't pan out.

A laundry on West 52d street, next to the Alvin, is selling tickets to Broadway shows, specializing in "Girl Crazy" next door. Aarons & Freedley, producers of "Crazy" have succeeded in chasing the laundry people off the streets and away from the theatre while selling, but have been unable to put a stop to digging.

The laundry has a number of signs in front advertising the tickets.

Valerie Taylor, who violently protested Equity's rule requiring foreign players to take a six-month intermission between legit engagements unless having the standing of having played 100 weeks over here, is in "Petticoat Influence." She crashed into the dailies with her views on the rule. Six months has elapsed since she appeared in "Berkeley Square," another Gilbert Miller show.

At the recent Lambs Gambol in the clubhouse Wilton Lackaye had a few words to say during the session that followed the show. He chilled fellow members, relating that he had been in the Lambs when it had 150 members and watched it grow to an organization of thousands. Yet when he was ill and abed only two Lambs visited him.

Professional advice about the lighting of shows is badly needed in Paris. Many scenes which otherwise would be passable, are exposed as terrible through deficient lighting. Francis A. Mangan's presentations at the Paramount, and Louis Lemarchand's at the Olympia, film houses, are about the only two properly lighted shows in Paris.

Joe Cook is interviewed almost daily by youngsters from school and college publications. Joe went to the U. of Dayton but that spot is yet to be heard from. General trend of the questions seeks to find out why Cook went into show business. To make money, he answers. He'll get out when he has enough but doubts that he ever will get that much.

Reported that Williamson-Tait, through one of its New York reps, is in on the Dillingham-Erlanger production of "Shylock," starring Maurice Moscovitch.

Moscovitch appeared for W.-T. in Australia and the firm is said to be backing any foreign showings the actor will make in this play.

Mrs. John Balderston, wife of the writer of "Berkeley Square," has arrived in New York with a new version of "Frankenstein," supposedly Americanized enough for local consumption. The play is based on Mrs. Shelly's novel.

Horace Liveright has an option on the play, which expires in February.

Jewish stage has been dealt its severest blow in years. All of the current Yiddish shows but one have cut salaries, with the actors working on half pay.

Only Jewish play that hasn't cut salaries is the one featuring Molly Picon.

Langdon Post, wealthy New York State Assemblyman, is said to be in back of Bela Blau, who will present "Overture" at the Longacre this week. Post is from the silk stocking district which includes the theatre zone. He is regarded as the theatre's friend at Albany.

Car card advertisements used in "Subway Express," mystery current in Chicago, are being paid for by Chicago advertisers at $25 per card per week.

It is said to be a higher rate than New York subway advertisers pay.

Sydney Phillips says the Shuberts have nothing to do with his contemplated stage production of "Blessed Event" and that Osgood Perkins is not engaged for it.

The Theatre Guild has recruited a group of cowboys from among rodeo performers now laying off for "Green Grow the Lilacs," opening in Boston next Monday (8).

Frank C. Page, vice-president of International Telegraph and Telephone, who is concentrating on Postal's ticket agency activities, is the son of Walter Hines Page, war-time ambassador to England.

Immediately after the closing of "Well of Romance" at the Craig, Preston Sturges assigned all his rights in the play to two unknowns.

"Well" may reappear as a Paramount stage unit.

Shuberts are reported having bought in on "You Said It," a revue to be presented by Lou Holtz and Jack Yellen and written by them. Goes into rehearsal this week.

Banks Might Fail!
Stock Markets Crash!
Firms Go Bankrupt!
BUT Life Insurance
Never Fails
Every form of insurance to suit your needs and pocketbook.
JOHN J.
KEMP
ESTABLISHED 1910
551 Fifth Ave. N. Y. C.
Phones: Murray Hill 7838-9

FOR SALE
"THE NEW YORKERS"
As produced by George W. Lederer for two years in New York and elsewhere. Adaptable for pictures or stage production, either as musical comedy or straight comedy. Good numbers. New York story. Amply protected.
GEORGE W. LEDERER
New Amsterdam Theatre Bldg., N. Y. C.
Wisconsin 5400

PAUL WHITEMAN
Booking Exclusively Through His Own Office
1560 Broadway
New York City
JAMES F. GILLESPIE
Personal Representative

Plays on Broadway

A Kiss of Importance

Comedy in three acts. Presented at the Fulton Dec. 1, by Arch Selwyn in association with Selwyn Productions, Inc. Adapted by Arthur Hornblow Jr., from the French, "Monsieur de St. Obin," by Andre Picard and H. M. Harwood. Basil Rathbone starred. Staged by Lionel Atwill. $3.85 top.

Fred	Johnnie Brewer
Arthur Dupin	Ivan Simpson
Mlle. Thomas	Allen Jarrige
Comte de Cerlasy	Frank Henderson
Christian Saint Obin	Basil Rathbone
Gilbert Laurent Courcel	Montagu Love
Isabelle De Cormefon	Ann Andrews
Octave De Corquefon	Frederick Kerr
Albertine	Marjorie Hollis
Gardener	George Wright, Sr.

"A Kiss of Importance" is an attractive title, but that it is an important addition to the season as a play is doubtful. Limited class draw indicated. Fine first-night audience, however.

Much too long in developing the story. Nothing very amusing until the last act, where the laugh lines are concentrated, which is hardly enough to carry this play from the French. The native pressmen there may have been more diverting. It doubtless was broader, and had to be toned down for use here.

First act is in the office of Dupin, a Parisian money lender, to whom Christian Saint Obin is indebted. He is the second son of a baron, with a way about him and little matters of owing mean little. His principal aim in life is horses. Senator Courcel, an old friend, calls on Dupin with a commission. He has fallen in love with Isabelle, young wife of the elderly fellow-senator, De Corquefon. But he cannot be involved in a scandal. He seeks a young man to make limitation love to Isabelle, who would then be divorced and they would be able to wed. The sporty Saint Obin accepts the job.

Saint Obin has been a month at the Corquefon chateau without making advances to Isabelle, rather going in for exercise and developing an old mare whom he thinks will be a champion steeplechaser. Prodded to start something, the young wife succumbs to his caresses. Then starts a real love affair. The old senator pretends not to see what is going on, but he discovers, his confrere, Courcel, trying to kiss his wife.

Last act has the old man and the young lover talking things over, and the laughs come in a bunch. Looks like an awkward situation, but when Isabelle explains her new lover was merely acting the part for Courcel, everything is all right. What is more, the old boy consents to the young wife having an apartment in Paris.

A Kiss of Importance" is one of several plays presented by Arch Selwyn with picture names in the cast. Basil Rathbone is starred, but he was featured on Broadway before he went to Hollywood. Rathbone as the dilettante is lively at times and, of course, attractive from the feminine viewpoint. Montagu Love, a film villain, plays the scheming and unsuccessful younger senator. It's not an attractive part; neither is his villain make-up.

Ann Andrews is Isabelle. She went along well enough until towards the latter part of act two, when she suddenly developed something akin to a French accent. She had not used it previously, and it was a surprise. Appears to be a distinct error in direction. The English veteran, Frederick Kerr, is the old senator. It was Kerr's interchange with Rathbone which lightened the last act. Johnnie Brewer is amusing as an excitable clerk to Dupin.

This is one of those French plays supposed to be naughty. That may be so in a way, but it doesn't provide the fun expected of it. Ibee.

Scarlet Sister Mary

Presented at the Ethel Barrymore, Nov. 25, by Lee Shubert, a drama in three acts, adapted from Julia Peterkin's novel by Daniel Reed; Ethel Barrymore starred; staged by E. M. Blythe.

Maum Hannah	Beatrice Terry
Mona	Anita Rothe
Tressie	Denise Morris
Sister Mary	Ethel Barrymore
Puddin Dan	Hugh Sothern
Cinder	Estelle Winwood
June	John Roseleigh
Billy	Walter Tilger
Cousin Andrew	Lee Kennedy
Big Boy	Herbert Gentry
Doll	Georgie Drew Mendum
Tussie	Dilmuse Collins
Luke	Burke Clarke
Gadsen	Wilbur Cox
Grieve	Marjorie Main
Reverend Bungamy	Marcel Dill
Brer Dee (an old churchman)	Daniel Reimell
Unex	Albert Hickey
Teddy Cudjoe	William H. Mack
Seraphine	Ethel Barrymore Colt
Phaladin	Manuel Del Campo
Brantah	Alan Campbell
Wade	Charles Quigley
Big Boy	Theodore De Corsia
Unex	Malcolm Sohan

"Scarlet Sister Mary" is not a wise selection for Ethel Barrymore. She gives an exceptional performance, without doubt, but under the dark sepia of a Southern negress her personality seemed lost in a fog. The new play should attract attendance on the strength of the star's popularity, but it probably won't last through winter.

Curiously, "Sister Mary," as they call her (and later "Si May-e"), is spotted across the street from "The Green Pastures," the real thing in colored cast dramas. Miss Barrymore has some grade A players in support, but their dialects are varied, and some anything but authentic. For instance, there is Estelle Winwood playing "Cinder," a husband-snatcher who gets the air. Cinder is a slim person in contrast to the ample bulk of the other women. That wouldn't make much difference, but she can't seem to shake her Piccadilly accent.

The people in this play of poor negroes are interesting in a number of ways, but so quiet is the performance generally that is questionable if the average person out front will be carried along. It seemed that a great deal more fun could have been made out of it all. The first half of the final act is amusing, but that about lets out. "Sister Mary" on the diversion end.

Mary, abandoned after one year by her husband, has had plenty of children in the 20-year span of the play's action, and in one case it was triplets. She has picked her men as she wanted them. On her wedding night she danced and was thrown out of the church, but she feels that when she is through with "sinnin'" she c'n go back to the church.

Mary married the wrong twin brother. She was on her way to motherhood before the ceremony, and so her first child was named "Unex," because he was unexpected. In the play's lapse of time her daughter, Seraphine, grows up. The girl has had an affair with a fellow in the city, has had a child by him and is on her way back to the only at home. Seraphine is played by Ethel Barrymore Colt, the newest of the Barrymore clan to come before the footlights. Under the direction of her mother (who staged the play under the name of Blythe, as usual) Miss Colt is all right in a naturally unimportant assignment.

Another of the family, Georgie Drew Mendum, plays the sister of Si May-e's husband, a good church member and inclined to be a bit humorous—but around the house a nagger; her husband complains. Horace Braham is a deformed lad, always a friend of Si May-e and her children. In the negro makeup, too, is William B. Mack as an old darky who makes love charms. Beatrice Terry is Mary's aunt, an understanding woman whose warnings, alas, fail to keep Si May-e in the ways of the churchly. Some of the makeups seemed streaky, but perhaps most of the cast is strange to blackface playing.

"Scarlet Sister Mary" was doing big business out of town, where it played a couple of months. Miss Barrymore might well have remained on tour, for there her latest show is better suited than to Broadway. Ibee.

THIS IS NEW YORK

Three act comedy by Robert E. Sherwood, produced and staged by Arthur Hopkins. Settings by Aline Bernstein. At Plymouth, New York, Nov. 28; $3 top.

Walter	Bruno Wick
Mrs. Krull	Virginia Hewitt
Senator Harvey L. Krull	Robert T. Haines
Hauser	Sam Wren
Emma Krull	Lois Moran
Mrs. Hauser	Allen Atwell
Joseph Gresham, Jr.	Geoffrey Kerr
Lucille	Henrietta Ravenel
Phyllis Adrian	Audrey Dale
Harry Glassmain	Robert Barrat
Jean Doran	Ruth Hammond
Babe Saxton	Alma Adams
Shirley Lawrence	Lola Bonner
Judge Gohagan	Raymond Bramley
Milt Fleisler	William T. Carpenter
Pete	Frank Layton
Conway	Thaddeus Clancy
Elevator Boy	Boris Nicholai
Kavanaugh	Norman Fadden
Szlineck	Martin Noble
Reporter	Charles A. Richards
Cameraman	W. W. Watson

Arthur Hopkins' third play of the season looks like an in-betweener, despite a sparkling second act and a wealth of keen and amusing modern American characters, plenty of shrewd observation on Broadway and Park avenue in relation and contrast to Sioux Falls, S. Dakota, and by inference the rest of the hinterland.

On a background of a western spread-eagle U. S. senator, whose daughter becomes engaged to a rich and broad minded young metropolitan, Sherwood has contrived many rapier thrusts at exalted Babbitt moral pretense and fakery, at the same time—and this is the point and meat of the play—giving the audience a delightful peep at the luscious metropolitan institution of the well endowed "love nest."

It takes a desperately dull first act to plant the story, to the end that the heroine may crash into an apartment in time on Central Park West occupied by an escorting girl, leaving to keep her fiance from an entanglement with the ex-chorine.

It is there in a modernistic "love nest" that the real substance of the play takes place. We have a master racketeer, a city judge, who is attending their gaudy party upstairs, miscellaneous flight ladies and a world champion prig, with the ex-chorine playing hostess and acting as a sort of sophisticated chorus for all the smart cracks that such a congress of metropolitan characters might be expected to evolve in their moments of relaxation.

It so happens in the interest of drama that the racketeer's girl in the flat above, under the spur of too much cocaine, jumps from the 21st story and the police surge in to look into the possibilities of a murder. Emmy, daughter of the most vehemently bumptious U. S. senator from South Dakota that ever appeared in literature, is present in the jam and that is plenty of poison for the Republican ticket in that inland community.

Things are squared because the racketeer is so big a racketeer that he had to be taken care of and the senator gets a chance to pose as the stanuch defender of the American home, besides which the racketeer promises to make his election certain.

On this frame-work there is hung much vivacious smart talk of a distinctly local slant toward Gotham, such as joshing of Walter Winchell, the current political and bootleg situation and other matters of the kind, not to speak of wise observations on morality—not altogether complimentary to the middle western brand.

Lois Moran playing her first feature engagement on the stage—she has done several pictures for Fox to which she is contracted—does moderately well under trying circumstances. Has a tough assignment since she is called upon to play a somewhat conventional ingenue role entirely surrounded by vivid character types. In particular, her best scenes find her contrasted to Aubrey Dale, the chatelaine of the "love nest" and a gaudy sketch of a graceful and fascinating demi-mondaine with the biting wit of a Zazu and played with the svelt elegance of Nazimova. It was no spot for a drawing room ingenue.

Robert Haines is the spread-eagle senator with the judgment and balance one expects from this western. He got his points over and never once stepped across the line of verity, a tribute in the handling of a role that was open for hoking all the way. Jeoffrey Kerr returns to the parts he deals with most successively, the quiet, easy young patrician type in which he excels here as always.

It's all very wise and delightfully jaunty and amusing in spots, but the flavor doesn't spread evenly enough. First act has the saving grace of a capital curtain and so has the second, but the third stanza is rather hard to take, with the playing coming of its finale three or four times before they decide to call it an evening. Rush.

ALISON'S HOUSE

Drama in three acts and two scenes by Susan Glaspell. Presented by and at the Civic Repertory Dec. 1. Costumes and settings designed by Aline Bernstein. Eva Le Gallienne, director.

Ann Leslie	Florida Friebus
Jennie Vronsky	Lenore Ulric
Richard Knowles	Robert Ross
Ted Stanhope	Herbert Shapiro
Louise	Josephine Hutchinson
John Stanhope	Walter Beck
Eben	Donald Cameron
Elsa	Eva Le Gallienne
Miss Agatha	Alma Kruger
Hodges	Howard da Silva
Mrs. Hodges	Mary Ward

Since the difference between a live play and a lethargic one is that in the former the characters control the plot while in the latter the plot controls the characters, it is unfortunate that "Alison's House" is so constructed that it suffers from anaesthesia. It is a narrative of suppressions in the American home of a half-century ago with the motivating personality that of a poetess who had been dead for a decade.

The decision of the Stanhope family to sell the old Iowa homestead is sufficient excuse for gathering of the clan. Even Elsa, the wayward daughter of John, returns to spend a last night under its roof. In the midst of the final preparations for a departure on the morrow an off-stage fire of incendiary origin introduces the hope that possibly the piece, which has moved at a snail's pace toward an unseen goal, perchance will resolve itself into a mystery-thriller. Instead the act was merely a last desperate effort on the part of Miss Agatha, aged and feeble, to destroy the place so that certain unpublished poems of her sister, Alison, would be lost to posterity.

Before the second act is well under way the suspicion that this is a chronicle of the life of Emily Dickinson, native poetess who died in 1886 and whose writings were concealed by her family until 1914, has become a conviction.

With the death of Miss Agatha in the second act, much of the spirit of the play departs, for it is Alma Kruger's picturization that lingers long after other members of the cast have been forgotten. As is customary, the gentle old woman changes her mind just before she expires and places in Elsa's hands the treasured oiled-skin wallet containing the innermost thoughts and secrets of Alison's. These, of course eventually are to be published because they reveal the great humanness of Alison who forswore her love for the husband of another.

Throughout the thoughts and memories of Alison guide the actions of the players. It is only a mild surprise when the drama closes on a note of renunciation with Elsa determined to live, broken-hearted, without the companionship of the married man with whom she eloped.

"Alison's House" affords chances for players to establish individuality. This is done, for the most part, in an admirable manner. Leona Roberts, as the housemaid, puts restrained feeling into a part which sometimes verges loudly, and close to hamming, but on the whole is the self-righteous and indignant daughter-in-law.

Howard da Silva and Mary Ward as the corn-husking neighbors who purchase the Stanhope home are convincing. Donald Cameron deserves mention as the elder son and Herbert Shapiro as his younger brother.

There was little enough excuse for the introduction of Robert Ross, as reporter for a Chicago newspaper assigned to cover the sale of the homestead, news of which had somehow traveled to the western metropolis, but he served as an excellent companion for Leona Roberts, the Stanhope secretary, and they made a refreshingly delightful pair of young lovers. Donald Cameron was impressive as the father.

Eva Le Gallienne showed good taste in choosing a role of not too obvious importance which she consistently built up without over-acting. Her direction was without fault. Aline Bernstein's costumes and scenery faithfully reproduced the dignity and charm of their period.

"Alison's House" has been given a chance of importance by the Pulitzer prize to which it is, perhaps, entitled. Resting quietly and securely on 14th street, Miss Glaspell's child is better left undisturbed for it is decidedly over the heads of the average uptowners and its slow, novel-like movement does not spell box office. It is a worthy attempt at something better, and should satisfy the subscribers.

Those who liked "The Cherry Orchard" of Anton Chekov will find "Alison's House" enjoyable. It was produced in England several weeks ago by the Liverpool Repertory Theatre and met with a moderate response.

FIRST NIGHT

Drama in three acts and prologue presented at the Eltinge Nov. 29 by Richard Herndon; staged by Frederick Hatch; staged by Milton Sitzel.

Joe	Tom Dutton
Larry	Walter Downie
Hogan	Al Goin
Joan Reid	Emily Graham
Richard Reid	Donald Hudswell
Warden Ross	Edwin Cushman
Governor Moore	John F. Morrissey
Bartlett Harvey	William Hosier
Inspector Owens	George MacQuarrie
Frank Pisano	Harold Huber
The "Duke"	Wallace Widdecombe
George	Richard N. Gregg
Betty	Ronnee Madson
Mary Reid	Elizabeth Patterson
First Reporter	Spencer Kimbell
Second Reporter	Britton Diller
Third Reporter	Frank Stringfellow
Berg	Jack A. Clifford
Connelly	Louis E. Miller
Barnes	Al Helton
Lena Barnes	Edith Broder
Kerr	Phil M. Sheridan
Hicks	Robert C. Schnitzer
Rizzo	Salvatore Zito
Sharpe	Spencer Kimbell
Convict	Perry Norman

A murder mystery drama which in itself is familiar in type. The effort here is to provide enough novelty in detail treatment to make it seem exceptional. First night impression was that the objective was not attained.

A killing is witnessed, enough evidence is obtained to convict a young man and he is sentenced to the chair. The governor declines to commute the sentence. But the lad's friends believe him innocent. To get new evidence before the governor, the crime and the events thereafter enacted—on the stage of Sing Sing's auditorium. The Eltinge audience includes the governor, warden, other characters, and the prisoners, the pay customers included.

His Excellency arises at each curtain to say he has noted no new evidence and it is useless to continue. He is persuaded that the actual culprit will be disclosed, and so the play goes on. Aiding the friends of the accused youth is Inspector Owens, the very person who had brought out the evidence that sent him to the death house.

Owens is in the lounge room of the Stuyvesant theatre with his right hand dick, Pisano. They are keeping tabs on an English crook, the "duke," who tries to rib the officers by references to Scotland Yard. A door leading from the basement under the stage opens into the lounge. A pistol shot thrust through the door and a man in a telephone booth is shot to death.

Indications are that the young man committed the murder. Owens had even heard him threaten to kill the victim because of his rotten treatment of a girl in the show. The duke had quit the theatre and he provides an alibi by apparently moving; he was in the Bank of America at the time of the shooting. A taxi driver and teller confirm that, while the stage doorman swears the duke did not enter the stage door. Later the old man changes his story and the guilty man is hauled to the stage from the audience, after a shot or two, by Owens.

Novelty carried the first act. First half of the second act slowed up too much, blamable on the long, quiet questioning of witnesses by George McQuarrie as the inspector. Third act carried itself because of the impending solution.

Little romance in this drama. Emily Graham plays the friend of the wrongly convicted boy, but the persons involved are much too busy with other things to develop a love story. Wallace Widdecombe all right as the crafty Duke. Harold Huber got a chance when interpreting the excited chatter of an Italian laborer. John F. Morrissey as the governor was the principal audience actor. He might have changed places with McQuarrie with better effect. Al Helton, a veteran, played the doorman, Edith Broder was a chorister. Only three feminine characters and none important.

Former governor Al Smith was in the audience and they said Warden Lawes was out front, too. However, neither got a further insight on murder cases. Other than the idea of its presentation, "First Night" appeared to be ordinary. Ibee.

Phillips-Berg Agency Jams With Phil Berg

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Phil Berg, local agent, is burning because his cousin, Phillip F. Berg from New York, has incorporated with Murray Phillips. Phil claims similarity of names with new combine, Phillips-Berg, will be confusing.

Berg and Phillips are here to operate generally, including agenting.

On squawk from Berg, Phillips and the cousin agreed to reincorporate if Berg would pay them $350, spent already for that purpose, stationery, etc. Then somebody called the request "a holdup," with that breaking up the cousins and Phillip F. Berg refusing to change the firm name for any amount.

AHEAD AND BACK

Ben Holzman, replacing Jeanne Stevens, as p.a. for "A Kiss of Importance". (Arch Selwyn).

Mac Hilliard, back, "Washington Heights" (Philip Goodman).

Arthur McHugh, p. a. for "Real McCoy" (Sa. Lowett).

Oliver Saylor, p. a., and Sarah Stamm, g. m., for Leo Bulgakov ("The Life Line").

Charles Washburn, p. a. "The Devil Is a Lady."

ENGAGEMENTS

Judith Anderson, "As You Desire Me."

Valerie Taylor, John Williams, "Petticoat Influence."

Larry Vale, Wally Stewart, "The New Yorkers."

William H. Barwald and Allan Davis, "Life Is Like That."

Elizabeth Patterson, Ray Walburn, John T. Doyle, "Rock Me, Julie."

Mary Adams replaced Polly Walker in "Hello, Paris."

CLARA JOEL SETTLES

Clara Joel, recently awarded a judgment of $55,000 against the Yellow Cab Co. in an accident case, has settled her claim against the company for close to the amount of the damages awarded by the court.

Wilstach's First Novel

John Wilstach has contracted for his first novel, "Under Cover Man," to be published in the spring by William Morrow & Co. The book is about the Whalen New York police under cover squad, and a foreword will read "certain of the characters and events are not entirely imaginary."

Wilstach and his wife, who was Evelyn Morton of the "Follies," sailed Saturday (29) on the "Ausonia," and he will write for Street & Smith all winter from the Isle of Capri. He says wood-pulp authors do not get as much per word as are not having it so badly. They slick-paper authors maybe, but their volume more'n makes up for that.

Wilstach was a police court reporter on the old "Sun;" afterward circus, and theatrical press agent, until going free lance.

Hale's Air Doubling

Richard Hale is doubling between legit and radio, rehearsing in Lynn Rigg's "Green Grow the Lilacs" and also on the Radio Home Makers' hour over Columbia network once weekly.

LITERATI

English Dailies' Situation

The present situation of the newspaper business in England is the most amazing mixture of complexity and insecurity ever known in the long history of Fleet Street (London).

Big newspaper syndicates are talking of fusing papers and merging interests. The stranglehold of the tremendous circulation drives started by the Rothermere papers has gripped the entire business and is steadily undermining the finances of many interests.

Journalism in England can be split into three major camps. Allied Newspapers, relatively weak in London and immensely strong in the provinces, the Rothermere papers headed by "The Daily Mail" and "The Evening News," strongest of all in London, and the Beaverbrook papers, led by "The Daily Express" and "The Evening Standard."

The last two are groups running parallel, and there is talk of fusion.

All this affects the working newspaperman in England very badly. Circulations continue to stagger up to huge figures, with advertising revenues dipping on all sides owing to condition.

The proportion of unemployed along Fleet Street is higher than it has ever been. The merger of "The Daily News" and "Daily Chronicle" recently flung something like 160 reporters out of work at once. Every paper along the street has started ruthless economy drives involving the wholesale dismissal of desk and news men.

Newspapers in England have overreached themselves. Circulations obtained by the methods current in England, free insurance, racing coupons, crossword puzzles and free gift schemes are expensive to the papers but useless to the advertisers. Result is the production overheads along Fleet Street are reaching appalling figures, with the advertising revenue steadily slipping.

It is safe to say there is hardly a London paper at present breaking even on its balance sheet.

There is talk of a "gentlemen's agreement" between newspaper proprietors over competitions and circulation drives. This means to say the rags are trying to stop each other cutting each other's throats, but they all hope to reserve the right of a place in the sun for themselves.

"Gentlemen's agreements" between most English newspaper owners is a joke if figured the right way. The only way the dailies can get back to their previous financial stability is by cutting down on the sales drive. The insurance stunts cost thousands, while the free gift schemes are hopelessly expensive.

At present the tendency all along Fleet Street is retrenchment. Papers are scared stiff of the future. Editors are sitting for expensive writers' contract to finish and then regularly decline to exercise option of renewal. It is generally felt London if the papers are to drive back to their old footing the competition to get star names must stop. At present the evil, muchly overdone, is hurting both ways. It is slicing into profit and loss accounts and doing havoc to the ranks of the professional newspaper men.

Another bane of the journalist's life in England is the ambitious amateur. These blights get jobs at cut salaries on leading papers, do precious little, and hold real newspaper men out of work. There are so many amateur journalists in England the profession is mainly made up by 'em.

A few weeks back "The Daily Mail," which ought to know better, engaged six lads fresh from Eton College, and gave then six months' contract at $25 weekly. The money means little to the amateurs, whose only ambition is to handle the sports section. The men on the desks are plenty sore over the whole business.

At present the one topic of Fleet Street, other than the usual question as to where there's work to be had, is the anticipated fusion of "The Daily Mail" and "The Daily Express." Rothermere and Beaverbrook have been getting so close in lately the merger seems a natural result.

As at present outlined the scheme looks like the best thing that could happen for the 'Daily Herald," indie Socialist paper which runs the Titans to third place on the circulation drive. Suggested a new paper, "The Mail Express" emerges from the two dailies, in the hope it cuts the overheads and carries on with the combined circulation, somewhere around 3,700,000 daily.

If this happens the "Express" could give up its Glasgow branch, always a dead loss. Situation was, when the two papers were at cut throat, the "Express" started running a Scottish edition in the hope of catching up on the "Mail's" northern sales, that paper having a Manchester edition with a big sale over the border. "Express" never succeeded in catching the "Mail" in Scotland.

Solution to the present depression along Fleet Street is the stoppage of all stunt circulation drives, particularly the racing coupon and the free insurance ticket.

Some of the papers may be assuming themselves whether $4,000 a page isn't too high, even for a national paper's ad rate.

BEST SELLERS

Best sellers for week ending Nov. 29, as reported by Brentano's, New York.

Fiction

Phillippa, ($2.50).....Anne Douglas Sedgewick
Imperial Palace ($2.50).....Arnold Bennett
The Water Gipsies ($2.50).....A. P. Herbert
Twenty Four Hours ($2.50).....Louis Bromfield
Cakes and Ale ($2.00).....W. Somerset Maugham
Vagabonds ($3.00).....Knut Hamsun

Non-Fiction

The Lives of a Bengal Lancer ($2.75).....F. Yeats Brown
Memories and Vagaries ($3.00).....Axel Munthe
Royal Charles, Ruler and Rake ($4.00).....David Loth
The Sins of New York ($5.00).....Edward Van Every India: Land of the Black Pagoda ($4.00).....Lowell Thomas
Wolsey ($5.00).....Hilaire Belloc

(American News is a distributor; Brentano's a retail book seller.)

Brazen Broker Gyp

One of the crudest authors broker gyps by an author's agent has been gotten away with for months through the agent's laconic reply that if they threw him in jail he'll never be able to pay off. The Authors' League is said to recognize this, although there has been some comment, especially on the west coast in connection with the sale of picture rights, why the League didn't advise all its members for protection.

One writer just learned that the sale of the dialog rights to one of his stories for an additional $20,000 was effected last March. Another learned that one of his stories is being screened, although he, the writer, received no compensation. The broker's jam in the market caused him to thus make use of his client's proceeds.

Sinclair on Awards

Around the offices of Harcourt, Brace, they are reported apprehensive as to what will happen when Sinclair Lewis reaches Sweden to receive the Nobel Prize for literature. The red-headed author said to be not altogether reconciled to the idea of the award, despite his apparent gratification over the news, and to still harbor some ideas about literary awards which he won't mind telling to the committees of organizations that sponsor them.

They say that when the award to Lewis was made known, Harcourt, Brace immediately brought up the author and his wife to its offices, with a hot discussion following. Lewis was for turning down the Nobel Prize, as he did the Pulitzer Prize in 1926, but his publishers and Mrs. Lewis (Dorothy Thompson) talked him out of it. Newspapermen, interviewing Lewis at the Harcourt, Brace offices soon after, found him none too cheerful.

When turning down the Pulitzer Prize, Lewis declared "all prizes are dangerous." How to be consistent and accept the Nobel award was a problem, but Lewis gave out that the $46,000 prize money would enable him to support his family and continue writing. That's a laugh, because Lewis is listed among the wealthiest scribblers on this side of the water.

If the Nobel Prize committee lets Lewis say anything, it will undoubtedly hear some things about literary awards. Sinclair Lewis is that kind of a guy.

The Lief Bros.

Those Lief brothers are writing again. Max, the lyricist, whose novel, "Hangover," was a best seller is completing "Penthouse." It, too, is a Broadway story. Liveright has it.

Alfred Lief's recent volume on U. S. Supreme Court Brandeis is attracting wide attention in literary and legal circles, repeating the click with the same author's book on Justice Holmes.

Nat, the dentist, is leisurely completing "Dental and Incidental," an informative book on the teeth, written in newspaper style. Nat and Max recently completed a musical play book.

Reichenbach Tells 'Em

Addressing the AMPA at a luncheon, Harry Reichenbach said: "Don't waste your time envying anyone. Do your work and if anyone else does a good job applaud him." Another high spot in the informal Reichenbach talk to the picture press agents was: "Never be patronizing, and above all never buy the friendship of a newspaperman. The average journalist is essentially honest, and if he can be bought he won't last long."

Ed. Is Ghost Author

On the coast to see what the studios are doing to his magazine stories, and also to contact about 50 of his more or less regular writers, H. N. Swanson, editor of "College Humor," evidenced express interest in "Big Business Girl," which is in production at Warners.

The story was published anonymously as written "By One of Them." Under pressure, Swanson broke down and confessed to "Variety" he had batted the thing off himself.

Sucker Lists

Receiving clerks in the offices of the book and magazine publishers make a nice bit of change by selling names of writers and would-be writers for literary sucker lists.

Anyone who contributes a bit of writing anywhere soon after finds himself solicited for all sorts of literary merchandise.

Clerks copy names and addresses from all manuscripts coming into their offices, selling them to concerns specializing in sucker lists. Thousands of such names come into the offices of the national weeklies each year.

Back to Back

At a forum of one of the writers' clubs, where they go over things literary, it was proved that William DuBois' play, "Pagan Lady," is a steal from Somerset Maugham's "Rain."

After it had been settled, somebody else proved that "Rain" is a steal from Anatole France's "Thais."

Then somebody else in turn offered to show that "Thais" is a steal from a still earlier work, and the subject was switched before it be made farther continuous.

German Firm Bankrupt

The bookprinting office and stationery concern of Lauser in Germany, one of the oldest and most reputable firms, has been forced to declare bankruptcy with nearly $250,000 in liabilities and only very limited assets.

One of the creditors is the singer, Sigrid Onegin, who entrusted to the owner of the concern about $15,000.

Geo. Harvey's Post

George W. Harvey, formerly advertising assistant to A. P. Waxman at Warners, is now associated with the Agencies' Service Co., Inc., typographers.

Prior to his connection with W.

(Continued on page 68)

European Runaround

By Frank Scully

Vienna, Nov. 17.

If you saw Buster Keaton fall off a roof, and then miss the net, your laugh couldn't be any more hysterical than Vienna's on losing Hans Chlumberg.

Chlumberg was in Leipzig, his home town, for his "Miracles at Verdun" opening. Resting from the fatigue of a final rehearsal, he leaned against what he thought was a wall. It turned out to be a stage curtain. He fell head first into the pit.

A sure laugh in pictures, but a brain, concussion for Chlumberg.

Hours later, while the mob was screaming "Author! Author!", the author was lying unconscious in a nearby hospital.

His play got raves the next morning, but he never read them.

By then he was dead.

"All Quiet" for Chlumberg

Story is Chlumberg was a cavalry officer in the war. You get an idea how desperately young Austrians officers were toward the end of that struggle when you realize that Chlumberg was only 32 when he died, making him 20 when the war ended.

He isn't known much outside of Germany, though London did his "Bolt From the Blue" thing last year in two different productions, one by Sir Nigel Playfair at Hammersmith.

In Central Europe, however, they spoke of him in terms of Hauptmann, Molnar and Schnitzler.

He was to do for the German stage what Remarque did for the German novel. Maybe he has.

Bronx Cheer for a Miracle

This "Miracles at Verdun" is a 1934 piece showing a mob of tourists trekking to the battlefields, 20 years after the opening gun was fired. Big celebrations planned.

Play opens with divine service for peace, and prayers for resurrection of the dead soldiers.

Resurrection miracle happens, but gets Bronx cheer from unbelieving mob.

Reborn Unknown Soldiers soon find that, despite well-phrased hooey since the Armistice, world is still overboard with hate.

It takes 'em 12 scenes to realize that their sacrifice has been useless. They're glad to return to their graves.

Nothing much original in this, yet due to Chlumberg's treatment and dialog, there hasn't been a play in years that has gripped critics more deeply than this mixture of irony and fantasy.

"Frazer" Is "Selby" in Translation

Current Viennese lucky girl is Fritzi Massary in "Die Erste Mrs. Selby." Sounds a little like "The Private Life of Kid McCoy," but it's really that ubiquitous "First Mrs. Frazer" of St. John Ervine's under another billing.

Fritzi Massary like Marie Tempest, is a no-longer young girl trying to get along. She musical-comedied like Marie, and only went straight a year ago in Berlin.

Eric Glass, 22-year-old Austrian son of an English mother, did the translation. He was in London a year ago last summer for a "Variety" job and grabbed off the "Frazer" German rights between phone calls.

After "Abie's" Record

Massary's second legit play puts her in the smash class, for Sinjun's "Frazer" oozes into the sentimental Germans deeper even than the English, if that's possible.

Reports are the Haymarket run of "Frazer" has now broken all records for that house, including "Bunty Pulls the Strings" which ran 69 weeks.

London inside now is "Frazer" will do 10 more before folding.

Getting Away With Merger Again

Felix Salten, to Sinjun at least who was down here for his play's opening, is only a Viennese show critic.

This great guy who writes such exquisite things as "Bambi, a Life in the Woods," "The Hound of Florence" and "Fifteen Rabbits" doesn't deserve to be slammed like that.

Like Eugene O'Neill, Salten's script needs a magnifying glass. He gets 1,500 words on a sheet smaller than a phone pad. Maybe O'Neill and Salten got this way from writing for, or about, the tiny theatres.

Thi mugg suggested once—only once—fusing J. P. McEvoy's "Dixie Dugan" and Salten's "Bambi" under the perfectly dandy title of "Bambi Dugan, a Night Life in the Al Woods," but nobody would buy in, and the scheme was suddenly dropped.

It passed Goldman Sachs on the way down.

Legit As Picture Subsidiary

Two trends in legit life abroad are discernible everywhere—smaller houses and more sets.

The old one-set, three-act idea seems to be giving way to the still older Shakespearean idea of acting all over the place.

It's not uncommon for new shows to have a dozen and sometimes three dozen changes of scenery.

Whether this is done to make subsequent picture treatment easier, or because playwrights realize legit is only a picture subsidiary now, is hard to say.

Probably latter, with midget legit house playing show-window role from now on.

Scene Shifters Get a Break

Latest is "The Sentimental Journey" at the 1931 Theatre, Paris. This brand new 130-seater has produced a new comedy by a new author—Jacques Chabannes.

Ten scene changes in this "Pelerinage Sentimental." To give you an idea of their variety, here are some: Train compartment, theatre of a casino, flop house in the sticks, mineral springs Kurhaus, farm, city of factories, cemetery, and once more a Pullman.

Audience, actors, scene-shifters, scenes and lights so close together they get into each other's hair. One gallery goof yawned and closed his mouth on four factories.

Yet it all moves easily.

Making Stage Hits of Pics

Another instance of the topsy-turvy character of the show biz at present is Jules Romain's "Donogoo," opened Oct. 25 at the Paris Pigalle. Romain wrote it for pictures and then transferred it to the stage with practically no script changes.

It gallops through 25 scenes, thanks to the mechanical speed of things at the Pigalle, with no time out for fouls.

Story concerns a sappo professor who describes Donogoo-Tonka, a non-existent town in his "History of South America." Wise boys kid prof about the bull. Young architect, to square the prof, goes to S. A. to establish Donogoo.

Arrives there only to find a boom gold-mining town actually has sprung up since prof first pulled his typographical boner.

No knockout idea but gay enough to give new Pigalle its first hit since last year's face-lifting.

SONG PLUGGERS REVOLT

N. Y. and Transfer Musicians on Verge of Battle Over Job Scarcity

Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, stirred up a hornet's nest in a statement reported to have been made last week. Report was that 802 was going to start a clean-up of the musical situation in New York to replace transferred men holding local jobs with members of 802. Out of town men, legally here on transfers, claims such a move is illegal and threaten to take the fight direct to Joe Weber and the National board if the edict goes through.

According to National headquarters, any musician, familiar with his laws, knows that the power to place a ban on transfer cards in a town, making it "forbidden territory," lies only with the National board. The same thing applies to refusal of full membership in a local to a transferred man after locating on a transfer job after six months.

It is possible, of course, to give an out of town musician the needles, and not offer him any employment. This is about the only method within the National Federation laws which can be used to keep the outside men away from a town or to drive them out after depositing their transfer cards.

New York is naturally overcrowded with musicians. To alleviate bad conditions now pilling into serious ones, procedure would be to petition the National board to have the entire New York district declared "forbidden territory." Thus by legal means the transfer card menace would be stopped.

At one time Los Angeles, due to the sudden demand for musicians on pictures, became the magnet for hundreds of men who swooped down on the California town, deposited their transfer cards, and went to work. The L. A. local, however, didn't wait like the N. Y. local has done, but applied at once for the "forbidden territory" ruling to the National Board. It was immediately granted and thereby halted what might have been as bad a situation as now exists in New York.

Up to Monday (1) no petition had been received by National headquarters from Local 802.

Best Sheet Sellers

Six best sellers for the week ending Nov. 29, listed by Plaza Music, were:

"Three Little Words" (Harms).

"When the Organ Played at Twilight" (Santly).

"I'm Yours" (Famous).

"Betty Co-Ed" (Carl Fischer).

"Moonlight on the Colorado" (Shapiro-Bernstein).

"Body and Soul" (Harms).

CHI.'S BON TON MOB BUYING NAME BANDS

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Chicago's socially registered are going for name orchestras for their holiday parties, and paying stiff prices. Trend is a complete reversal for the upper crust gang, who, in the other days, were content with any group of passable musicians.

Leading the corn-belt field with fancy figures is George Griffith, builder of Chicago's 1933 World Fair buildings, who is laying six grand on the line for Coon-Sanders for Christmas eve. Adela Whiting, A. Hasseler, Gwethyln Jones, Mrs. James Offield, P. D. Armour, and other handles that mean something in the social register, are all down for various name orchestras.

As a result of the sudden rush the Music Corp. has jumped its December business $35,000 over last year.

ALL ORGANISTS OUT

Portland's All-Sound Programs Have No Place for Them

Spokane, Dec. 2.

Only canned music will be heard in local picture palaces after this week. Orpheum, Liberty, Audian and Granada have given notices to organists.

Cut apparently was expected, as they do but about 15 minutes daily.

No union trouble predicted on the move, as there is no place for organists on the programs of straight pictures.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.

Not one theatre in Ottawa, the Canadian capital, now has an orchestra or organist.

The last orchestral stronghold in the pit of the Regent was vacated Saturday (29), when Orville Johnston, director, and musicians had their final pay-off.

ASCAP's After Coast Copyright Violators

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.

American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers is hot after a number of spots on the coast which have been violating the copyright law.

Phillip Cohen, local rep for the Society, has started infringement actions against the Swagger Inn, downtown (formerly Coffee Dan's), and the Stanley and Ramon theatres in Long Beach.

Latter houses have persistently refused to be licensed by the Society, according to Cohen.

NO SEATTLE DOUBLING

Seattle, Dec. 2.

Due to the present condition of musicians' employment, Seattle union has ordered a rule enforced against doubling.

This has cut Tiny Burnett from his night club playing in Venetian Gardens, Olympic hotel. Tiny is a fixture at the Orpheum.

Alabamians at Roseland, New York, starting Dec. 3, replacing Chick Webb's orchestra.

New Disc's Plug Line Is "Two Hits for Two Bits"

January will usher in a new popular-priced phonograph record, the Crown, sponsored by four men formerly connected with the American Record Corporation and each having at least 25 years' experience in the recording field.

Principal talking point for Crown is "two hits for two bits" instead of the usual smash tune on one side of a disc reversed with a dud. The new platter will be standard in size and composition and all recording will be done electrically under the supervision of Adrian Schubert.

Charles J. Kronberg is president of the new formed company and has appointed H. Germain head of sales and George Cheney laboratory director.

To stimulate interest different types of contests will be plugged in the monthly folders with $100 in prizes every 30 days. The first is a parody-writing competition with the best parodies on any of the 56 songs issued in January receiving the dough in $50, $25 and $5 pieces. Between 25 and 35 records will be issued each month.

FRED FISHER'S CO.

Fred Fisher, composer, has opened a music publishing office in New York.

Cal Hiller is general manager, with Fred Whiteman in charge of the professional and radio departments.

KORTLANDER'S TRIP

Max Kortlander, pres. of G. R. S., leaves for California early in December to join his wife for a short trip.

BUT WANT IT KEPT SECRET

First Invite "Variety" Then Try to Suppress Story—Open Resentment Against Impositions of Radio Bands and "Theatrical Nights"—Air Their Woes at Chicago Meeting

"WAITER, THE CHECK!"

Chicago, Dec. 2.

STATIC

(Song Pluggers' Theme Song)

Sound, Sound, the Clarion;
Fill the Zenith;
To All the Music World Proclaim
One Radio Band, Say What You Like,
Is Worth a Dozen Without a Mike.

Chicago's song pluggers, 21 in all, gathered on Lindy's Mezzanine in response to signals of distress seen from the belfry of mounting overhead.

It was evidently supposed to be a secret meeting, but by an odd coincidence Paul Revere called "Variety" on the phone and invited this sheet over as a guest. This sheet responded promptly, ducked across on a green light and arrived before the soup was cold.

In particular the boys were in convention assembled for the purpose of denouncing "theatrical nights" as practiced by a growing number of prominent bands in expensive night clubs with important radio outlets.

Outwardly innocent, these theatrical nights were branded clever commercial strategy whereby instead of entertaining a lot of bored waiters on the off evenings the bands are presented with a hand-picked and specially invited audience of famous fellows and lovely ladies from the loop theatres.

Always Out-Fumbled

As affecting the song-publishing fraternity the squawk is simply that they get stuck week after week with the checks for whole roomfuls of

(Continued on page 67)

U. S. MUSIC IS FALLING OFF IN EUROPE

Music men returning from abroad report that less and less American music is being heard on foreign shores. German and English tunes, they say, are now getting the breaks.

They report the biggest nash in England, France and Germany right now are tangoes. These are played in fox-trot time so all dancers won't be embarrassed. European publishing houses are picking up tango airs and publishing as many as possible. These tunes were always popular abroad.

They also state that the trend for home-made music can be witnessed in Germany where publishers are now putting songwriters under contract unheard of over there. Alberti, the biggest German publisher, has along placed several German writers under contract. However, the majority of the German tunesmiths are inclined to copy American hits, merely changing the meter to a slow German waltz rhythm. Sometimes they also change the key. This has been done in numerous tunes abroad.

"Sing Something Simple," hit number of the last White Show, is reported being used in a French revue with the natives believing it a home made tune.

Donaldson Firm Leads Song Trade Through Four Successive Sellers

Publishing Pug

Johnny Green, of Green & Green, music publishers, also does a little ring battling now and then when things get slow in the music biz.

Green fought a guy named Masters out in Cleveland last week and after the fight was over and the mike was raised up to the publishing pug for a word, Johnny took the opportunity to plug a few of the firm's songs.

$790 ONE-NIGHT GROSS IN LOUIS. 2,400-SEATER

Louisville, Dec. 2.

Lack of good publicity was held responsible for a gross of only $790 for the one-night stand of Terrebianca's Tipica orchestra at the 2,400-seat Memorial Auditorium. Originally booked for a matinee also, this was dispensed with due to insufficient advance sales. Prices of $1 to $2.50 were slashed to 50c with a newspaper coupon.

MEYER DAVIS' LINKS

May Establish In and Outdoor Golf String in Key Towns

Broadway's newest indoor golf course is being operated by Meyer Davis, the orchestra boy. It's Davis' first dip into the golf thing and if the New York venture is successful he intends to start a chain of these layouts, both indoors and outdoors, in key cities.

Davis, who still leads his orchestra at swank affairs in the east and south, is generally rated as the richest man in the band field, his wealth being conservatively estimated at $3,000,000.

In addition to orchestras, Davis operates Willow Grove, a Philadelphia amusement park, and the Lucky Strike bowling alleys in Washington, where he also has extensive realty holdings and is interested in the operation of nite clubs. Successful investments in various other businesses, among which are a cloak and suit house in New York, are also on Davis' list.

Whiteman's Midwestern % One-Niters, Jan. 1

Paul Whiteman will go on a one-night barnstorming tour of the middle west after Jan. 1. Until then the band will continue at the Granada, Chicago.

Whiteman will play one-night dance engagements and concerts on guarantee and percentage. Tour is now being arranged by M. C. A. with Jimmy Gillespie.

Better Pit Bands

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

R-K-O is seeing what can be done about improving the standards of pit bands. Dave Mordecai, western musical supervisor for the circuit, is on a tour covering all the pit bands in the territory.

Departure Saturday (29) for New York of Al Greenbaum, secretary of the San Francisco Musicians' local, is now holding up negotiations for settlement of the musicians' trouble. Nothing will be done until he returns.

[illegible] R-K-O [illegible] Cab Calloway's [illegible] go [illegible] Eddie [illegible] band [illegible] Calloway is now in [illegible]

Donaldson, Douglas & Gumble is getting a speed break as music publishers when the rest of the popular price music trade is yelling murder over business. The Donaldson firm has four sellers, all written by Walter Donaldson.

Its star seller, "Little White Lies," that passed the 700,000 sale mark and is still alive, has been followed by "Driving Me Crazy." The latter song started in November with the trade conceding it is already in high. It's the plug song of the firm. The single picture song on the list is "Baby Cares for Me," from the "Whoopee" talker. It's selling in large lots.

"Sweet Jenny Lee" is the other Donaldson number and claimed by the partners to be already established in demand.

The Donaldson firm is now looked to be the leader of the pop music trade in the matter of earned profit. This is mainly due to succession of Walter Donaldson song hits and low overhead. The firm has but three branches, in Chicago, Los Angeles and Boston. Its New York office also has been conservatively operated, mostly through press of circumstances.

$75,000 in Red

It was some time after Walter Donaldson, Walter Douglas and Mose Gumble formed the three-firm that the turn arrived. It obliged them to skimp along, but when the hits started to come they found themselves equipped with sufficient man power to handle them and did not increase expenses.

It is reported that before the Donaldson firm got the break it had gone about $75,000 in the red. That was long since cleared off through "White Lies" alone.

The Donaldson firm is not affiliated with any picture producer or other music publisher.

Coast Shakeup As Music Offices Start Cutting Down

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Economy wave is also hitting West Coast music publishing offices and shaking up number of the boys here. Sig. Bosley, for the past two years in charge of Robbins, leaves Dec. 15, and probably going East with other connections while Dick Arnold comes down from Frisco to replace him. Robbins is discontinuing its northern office.

Artie Mehlinger has resigned from Harms and is enroute to New York to join the De Sylva, Brown & Henderson. "Lucky" Wilbur, formerly with Red Star, replaces Mehlinger.

Famous is recalling Ed Janis to its home office with the possibility of closing its coast branch entirely. Further changes are expected out here before the first of year with movements due to the extinction of studio music business, although publishers are still holding on to their studio contracts.

Girl Show With Band

A departure in band barnstorming has been inaugurated by Howard Peterson, who carries an eight-girl revue with his orchestra.

The unit opened at Watertown Nov. 27 for a tour of Pennsylvania.

Best Xmas Present
Subscription to
VARIETY
$10 for One Year
Always Welcome

Panama

By Bea Drew

Panama, Nov. 22.

New show at Metropole with Isabelle Van, burlesque. Patricia Murray dancer, Buddy Werd and Vi Tibbits also new arrivals. Music by Mike's Melodians, Alamo and California cabarets are advertising they sell no drink at over 60c. California is under new management for the steenth time.

Colon

Bilgrays opened with Helen Kerle, Gloria Dale, Ruth Dale, May Gerard, Daisy Harris, May Intermaggio Dolores Leonard, Ruth Nagel, Lillian Nettis, Marjorie Norman, Delphine Ottru, Billy Griffin, Pauline Sliverman, Bernice Glowell, May West.

Stella Marls Chilean film actress is star dancer Canal Zoners seeing the show shocked at the lack of clothes on the chorus girls and entertainers. Most of the home folks have not reached the stage where they can consider naked women as entertainment.

Bernice Glowell and Delphine Ottru refused to be vaccinated, but when told they must or return to New York they decided to ruin their beauty with a small scar. A. C. Baker from Hollywood has charge of the floor show and Professor Pardo and orchestra will take care of the music.

Atlantic cabaret bills its show as direct from the "Main Stem" Thelma Seville, Blues Singer, Helen Johnson dancers, Mona Reid prima donna La Doloresa, Spanish dancer Gelbert Sisters Oriental dancers', Dolly White tap dancer and the Lap Zars, Mexican dancers.

Baby Killed

Gloria Arellano two year old daughter of the Lop Zars, Mexican Dancers, was killed by falling off the balcony of her home. The balcony gave way throwing the child two stories to the street.

Victoria Wolf, ex-stormy petrel hostess of Bilgray's now with Dunbar's circus left for France while the circus was playing Panama. Gilbert Ramos, Spanish tenor opened at Bilgray's with two assistants, patrons of the Atlantic were driven to the street when Roscoe Gauther Attorney of New York pulled out his gas pencil to show friends. It exploded and filled the cabaret with tear gas. Twenty dollars said the judge Gauther, still weeping, paid.

Unromantic Order

Hudy Geza, acrobat with the Dunbar circus, fell in love with a Mexican senorita entertainer at the Atlantic and tried his best to jump the circus. Immigration authorities with no romance said get back to the troupe. He did. Flo Trollman, entertainer at the Atlantic, married Alwyn C. Mitchell, soldier of France Field, Canal Zone. She will give up cabaret work.

International Cabaret for sale.

Florence Fairfax, entertainer at Kelley's Ritz who married a Mr. Conaveggio of Panama, sailed for the States under her maiden name, Elizabeth Pieper. She divorced the Mr. "Over the Top" cabaret in Colon has Chararria and Novoa, Rumba dancers, and Babe Darling and Gloria Carpentier.

Mrs. Harper Starts Taxi Accident Suit for $25,000

Arscola Harper, colored, wife of Leonard Harper, who stages the shows at the Lafayette and for Connie's Inn, has started a suit for $25,000 damages against the National Transportation Co., Inc., a taxi company.

Mrs. Harper claims that on Nov. 16, while riding along Seventh avenue in one of the company's cabs, the driver ran into a car parked along the street. She was rushed to the Harlem Hospital, she avers, where 18 stitches were taken in her forehead. Lou Handin represents Mrs. Harper.

Mrs. Harper was on the stage until married.

Harlan's Pom Pom

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Pearl Eaton has been engaged by Kenneth Harlan to stage the floor show at his Pom Pom cafe for its opening Dec. 4. Talent will be booked in by the local R-K-O office.

Pom Pom is just outside the L. A. city limits in Sherman, where dancing is permitted after one a. m. and on Sundays. Cafe has been closed for some time.

Dallas Muny's Jam

Dallas, Dec. 2.

WRR, Dallas' muny station, will broadcast its swan song Jan. 1, unless town divvy's up $20,000, so sez Federal Radio commish. Which leaves Commissioner Graves in a tough spot.

It will take that much to make stipulated improvements, including moving of transmitter from downtown location and remodelling the studio in the Jefferson hotel. Station has $5,000 surplus, where more than year back it was $12,000 in red. But present depression will make it hard to loosen the extra 5 G's from city dad's jeans.

Station claims to be oldest muny in the world.

61 Weeks

Don Parker band signed for 61 weeks on the Finlay Strauss hour over WMCA.

Radio Restrictions

Radio is bearing down pretty hard in New York on its speakers, on commercial or any other hours.

Scripts as edited after submission must be strictly adhered to, the stations say. In the editing anything unwanted goes out, and there seems enough unwanted. Politics and big business kidding or adverse comment or flippancy is always out.

The networks appear to be especially watchful not to offend official Washington. Probably always recalling that SOS on Senator Reed's speech.

VILLAGE SPOT FOLDS

Katzman Dispossessed at Log Cabin —Had Colored Floor Show

'Twas a case of all set to go but no place to show with "Plantation Nights," colored revue, at the Log Cabin, Greenwich Village, Saturday night (29). When the performers showed up for the usual performance they found that Moe Katzman, operator of the cabaret, had been dispossessed.

Katzman had run the colored cabaret for several months and, according to the Myron Realty Corp., had been several months in arrears on rent. The landlord had given him until Saturday noon to produce some of the coin or else. Katzman had been dispossessed several weeks ago with the landlords failing to execute to give him additional time to get some coin.

The show had gone in two weeks ago and had only received part of the first week's salary when the blow off came.

HOPE TEMPORAL PERMIT LETS VILLAGE DANCE

Despite the possibility of several Greenwich Village cabarets facing a danceless New Year through dance-hall licenses maturing, the props are going ahead as usual with preparations for the annual celebration.

With civic organizations opposing renewal of licenses, the proprietors are sanguine that they will at least be able to obtain temporary permits for New Year's Eve. Most depend upon the evening's intake to take them out of the red for months.

Most of the small cabarets of the Village are scaling the New Year's tariff at $5 and $7.50, which includes cover charge and a light repast. Others are charging a flat cover of $2 and $3 and no pass out on the house for these amounts.

Kabarett der Komiker

Berlin, Nov. 22.

Besides many a new appearance there is this month a reunion with some former performers of the Kabarett der Komiker. Maria Ney is so far the only woman over here who makes a good m. c. Then there is Paul Nikolaus, also an m. c. The two make a good performing couple. Vernier-Ricart, Paris street singers, are good cabaret, while Willy Rosen has always been welcome here. Hans Reimann, this time, attains his success not by his Saxon jargon but by using the real German.

Newcomers are the Five Juggling Mongadors, Salde Jackson, colored songstress, and the dancers Dinah Grace, Grit Michalczowa, and Louis Barrison who dances on stilts.

A short operetta with an abundance of names was produced with much effort.

"Moonbeams" as Act

Charlie Yates is bringing "Moonbeams," the midnight program on WOR, Newark, into vaude. Opens Dec. 10 in Elizabeth, N. J.

"Moonbeams" goes on nightly as WOR's sustaining program closer for an hour. It will double during vaude playing.

Ted Weems 2½-Yr. Deal

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Ted Weems orchestra has signed a two and one-half year contract to alternate in the Trianon and Aragon ballrooms.

Wayne King is also playing at present in the two spots, with a third outfit under consideration for a similar contract.

Weems gets 19 weeks out each year, during which time his contract allows him to play any engagement he wishes.

Disc Reviews

By Bob Landry

Jesse Crawford

(Victor 22551) For sheer enjoyment this couplet right off the contageous console of America's best known cinema organist beats lots of the bands that still seem able to persuade recording executives that they're good.

Particularly in "Confessin' I Love You" is the Paramounter at his fanciest. Therein he both reveals the range of his instrument as well as the scope of his talents. It's replete with trick embellishments, ticklish trills and sassy echoes.

"Little White Lies" furnishes a more restrained contrast.

Ignace Hilsberg

(Brunswick 4931) For the phonophiles rather than the general run of disc-buyers. Still, if by chance a non-fastid should encounter "Aufschwing" or "Cracovienne Fantastique" while the moon trickled through the casement the effect would probably arouse some curiosity as to the player.

Phil Spitalny

(Brunswick 4917) Spitalny is renowned, and justly, for his orchestrations and his advanced ideas on harmony. That renders him superlatively fine for radio and equally in the mode for discs.

It is not known whether this record was done prior to his present Chicago station. It might be either the old or the new for to the credit of this musician is the fact that in a very short space of time with only a nucleus of four men, he whipped the Edgewater outfit into a triple threat.

"Beyond the Blue Horizon" and "Maybe It's Love" possess the inherent rhythm and melody that gives the Spitalny technique lots of area to ramp.

Bennie Goodman

(Brunswick 4968) This belongs to the red hots although only semi-fervid. Because it isn't too belligerently blisterous, it rates somewhat higher from the ear range of non-fans than the regulation boiler factory wah-wah.

"Muskrat Scramble" is the arresting title of one of the items; "After Awhile" reverses.

Ritz Quartet

(Brunswick 4905) Exceptionally fine mechanically as well as vocally.

"Old Man Noah" and "Away to Rio" are strictly Grade A male quartetting.

Four Stars

(Okeh 41457) Another male foursome, this one heavily backgrounded by guitars. In toto quite good.

Included are "My Yesterday With You" and "As Long as You Have Me."

Jacques Renard

(Brunswick 4918) "Sing Something Simple" and "Lucky Seven" are considerably better than the odd crumbs frequently thrown to non-topnotchers.

Renard makes a very nice release, workmanlike and packing a sock.

Palakiko and Paalulu

(Brunswick 4921) These gents with the unpronounceable names also ask mono-linguists to handle the title "Mahina Malaulauna." Its mate is simply "Honolulu March."

Both samples are spirited Hawaiians, very effective in their division.

Rudy Vallee

(Victor 22545) It is probably no coincidence that Yale's most famous recent graduate makes a pretty curtsey to Princeton while at the same time singing about "Poor Old Harvard." Princeton and Yale have a common bond: both annoyed by Harvard.

"Princeton Cannon Song," no more than "Poor Old Harvard," will never overlap the narrow precincts of its native campus. Vallee will look back into the archives many a year before fishing up another "Stein Song."

Old grads will be the pushovers naturally for sales on this release.

If Golfers Dance That's O.K. on Topeka's Sundays

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 2.

Dance and golf is another attempt to get around Sunday closings. It's the innovation of the Old Mill pavilion on the edge of town and owned by syndicate of theatre men, most of whom are with Fox.

Plan is to put the pygmie course around the edge of the dance floor. Band will play dance tunes and if the golfers hoof it's okay. State's Attorney-General has ruled that the Sunday law does not apply to midget "pasture pool."

Broun's 1st Commercial

Heywood Broun has started on his first commercial air experience.

He is now radioing, locally (N.Y.) once weekly for Enos Fruit Salts via WABC.

Previously Broun spoke through the mike as part of a CBS sustainer.

N.B.C. COMMERCIALS

One NBC commercial dropping out for 1931 is Everready, which suspends its radio broadcasts this month.

RCA Radiotrone and RCA Victor, which have shared the same NBC program, will take separate time after the first of the year. Radiotrone will use two 15 minute periods weekly. Victor's time has not been arranged.

DANCEHALL FIRE

Manhattan, Ill., Dec. 2.

County authorities are investigating source of the fire which last night destroyed the Coliseum, dance hall, owned by Eugene Hoerrman, in a $6,000 loss.

It is believed the same gang which fired the Wilmington dance hall last summer set fire to the Hoerrman place.

Richman's New Show

Club Richman, which has been going to spotty trade since opening this season, closed Saturday night, with the reopening scheduled within the next 10 days.

New policy calls for a floor show in addition to Ted Lewis and his band. Con Conrad is writing the numbers for the new revue.

LEADING ORCHESTRAS DIRECTORY

IRVING AARONSON
and HIS COMMANDERS
Special Engagement
BEACON THEATRE
NEW YORK CITY

PHIL FABELLO
and His
R-K-O Entertainers
Creators of the Fabello Policy
R-K-O COLISEUM, New York
Indefinitely

ABE LYMAN
and HIS ORCHESTRA
Musical Entertainment Plus
Second Year at the
CARTHAY CIRCLE
Los Angeles
Brunswick Records

TED WEEMS
AND HIS ORCHESTRA
NEW LOWRY HOTEL
St. Paul, Minn.
(Return Engagement)

ANSON WEEKS
and His ORCHESTRA
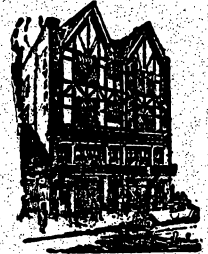
Fourth Year
MARK HOPKINS HOTEL
SAN FRANCISCO
Management M. C. A.

GEORGE OLSEN
AND HIS MUSIC
VICTOR RECORDS
George Olsen's Restaurant
Culver City, Calif.



B. A. ROLFE
Radio's Premier Conductor
LUCKY STRIKE
Dance Orchestra
Thrice Weekly Over N. B. C.

JESSE STAFFORD
and His ORCHESTRA
Now in Second Year at
PALACE HOTEL
San Francisco
(Brunswick Records)
Featuring His and Gene Rose's
"TONIGHT"

PAUL WHITEMAN
INDEFINITELY
GRANADA, CHICAGO
Personal Rep.: JAS. F. GILLESPIE

Ben Pollack's orchestra, currently at the Hollywood restaurant, Cleveland.

Dick Gasparre's orchestra opened at the Club Montmartre, New York, this week.

TAVERN
A CHOP HOUSE
OF EXCEPTIONAL MERIT
156-8 WEST 48TH STREET
East of Broadway

SONG HITS
"MIGHTY MONARCHS OF THE AIR"
The famous Coon-Sanders Orchestra broadcasting via the National Broadcasting System and WGN, Chicago, from the Blackhawk, Chicago, knows that great tunes make great orchestras.
That's why they consistently feature
"Here Comes the Sun"
"Go Home and Tell Your Mother"
"And Then Your Lips Met Mine"
ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION
799 SEVENTH AVE. NEW YORK

MR. JESSE CRAWFORD
ORGANIST
PARAMOUNT THEATRE, NEW YORK
"Anchors Aweigh," "Asleep in the Deep," "Song of the Navy"
WABC every Saturday from 10:30 to 11:00 P. M.; every Sunday from 8:45 to 9:00 P. M.; every Tuesday during Paramount-Public Hour
VICTOR RECORDS

See Benefit From Ad Campaign by Musicians' Union—Cost $700,000

The intense advertising campaign started last January by the American Federation of Musicians, regarding the replacement of living musicians in the theatre by "canned music," has been very satisfactory, according to an official at the national headquarters, 1440 Broadway.

Between six and $700,000 have been paid out for advertising, through all sources of publications in United States and Canada. That the ads appealing to music lovers brought forth fruit is evidenced by replies to the A. F. of M.

Over six and a half million people have signed the coupons incorporated with each ad, stating their mute testimonials for living music in the theatre. Thousands of people from all over the world, including such out-of-the-way spots as Turkey, Arabia, interior of China and others, have written letters praising the campaign of man vs. machine. Many of these people enclosed stamped and addressed envelopes, asking for a reply regarding the course of the campaign. It is almost impossible, according to the official, to answer these letters, much as they would like to. Ten girls have been employed as extras to sort and file the endless numbers of signed coupons received at President Jos. Weber's office.

There is now under consideration a question of continuing the advertising campaign. It will be decided by the meeting of the national board Friday (5). Although the peak of the idea has been reached, coupons continue to pour in by the thousands weekly.

There are 140,000 members of the Federation in U. S. and Canada. A great many have been affected by the mechanical music craze. Some spots around the country, according to this official, since the advertising started, have replaced musicians in their theatres. This is the desired aim of the Federation, he said, and results are looking more rosy for the future of theatre musicians.

When the idea of the campaign was proposed, the Federation officials turned to the Radio as the medium of getting their case before the American music-loving public. They were rebuffed on every side is the claim. Radio did not want to be a part of the idea, and that avenue of exploitation was closed to the musicians, with the result Street & Finney, advertising firm, was called in, and the extensive newspaper, trade paper and magazine ad program put over.

The total expense of this publicity has been met by the nickels and dimes gathered together from a very small salary tax placed upon each working musician over a period of three years.

New Club at Old Pierre's

Restaurant Princesse opened Monday at the old Pierre place on Park avenue. It seats 500. No cover charge. A Bernie orchestra of seven pieces is in.

Ercole Gorini (Henri's) and John Ricca (Embassy Club) are managing. A departure for New York at present may be a table d'hote Sunday night dinner, at either $4 or $5 per plate.

11-Yr.-Old Program

The Hague, Nov. 22.

Idzerda Radio Broadcasting, of Holland, broadcast the same program which marked its debut 11 years ago.

Idzerda is the pioneer broadcasting company in Europe.

10 Most Air-Plugged

Ten songs which received the greatest number of radio plugs in New York broadcasts for the week ended Nov. 28, and times plugged, were:

"Three Little Words" (Harms), 44.

"Cheerful Little Earful" (Remicks), 43.

"Loving You the Way I Do" (Shapiro-Bernstein), 29.

"Baby's Birthday Party" (Famous), 28.

"You're Driving Me Crazy" (Donaldson), 25.

"I'll Be Blue Just Thinking of You" (Feist), 24.

"You're the One I Care For" (Santly), 23.

"Sweetheart of My Student Days" (Feist), 23.

"Little Things in Life" (Berlin), 21.

"Here Comes the Sun" (Robbins), 20.

SONGSTERS' EXODUS TOUGH FOR REALTORS

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Persons seeking furnished apartments in Hollywood have lowered the average bid from $150 to $75, according to rental agencies.

"I haven't rented a $600 home since the song writers left town," sighed one.

Minn. Lads Holler at City Auditorium's Sat. Nites

Minneapolis, Dec. 2.

With the local municipal auditorium being turned into a huge night club every Saturday, privately owned clubs, cabarets and dance halls are up in arms because of the opposition set up by the city.

G. L. Adams, manager of the auditorium, is staging these Saturday night entertainments in an effort to keep the building self-supporting for the year.

HERE AND THERE

Joe Nesbitt orchestra will stick at the Arcadia ballroom, New York, until the second week in January.

Pep Casson, former Club Calais orchestra leader, goes to the Hotel Victoria, New York.

Witmark's has added Matty Levine, formerly of Berlin's, to the pro staff.

Harold Normanton, formerly Berlin's, now with prof department at Shapiro-Bernstein.

George Simon switched from Forster Music to Joe Davis.

Two British Firms Charge Fox Misrepresented in Music Deals, Cancel Contracts and Will Sue

Charging misrepresentation by Fox Films, Campbell & Connelly, English publisher, and D. Davis, of Australia, have cancelled their foreign contracts with Red Star, the Fox music subsidiary, demanding the return of payments for the foreign rights, and will sue for damages. Julian T. Abeles, of Abeles & Green, is retained by the foreign publishers. Defendants are Winfield Sheehan, Clayton Sheehan, Fox Films and Red Star Music Co.

Campbell & Connelly claim that before Red Star was founded, Clayton Sheehan went to London to arrange for the English releasing rights. C. & C. it is asserted, intended to pay Fox $25,000 a year, up, for the English rights.

C. & C.'s Charges

Complaint declares Sheehan represented the rights to be worth more, saying Fox had acquired an option on DeSylva, Brown & Henderson under which the latter firm was to come into Red Star and Red Star was to publish DeSylva's entire catalog. Sheehan at that time informed C. & C. it is alleged, that Fox had arranged with Warners for the absorption of DeSylva, Brown & Henderson, but that it couldn't be announced. ?

Sheehan is further alleged to have told C. & C. that Fox held options for the contracts of Al Dubin, Joe Burke, Gus Kahn and Harry Warren and that the four would write for Red Star. Also alleged that Sheehan advised that Fox had acquired production rights to 12 Broadway musicals which would be produced shortly.

This occurred, states Abeles, during the fall of 1929.

On strength of the representations Connelly claims he signed a two-year contract for $135,000 a year for the English rights and in March made an initial payment of $100,000.

Want Money Back

Charges of D. Davis are about the same in character. Bert Davis of that company alleges that when he arrived in New York more than a year ago similar statements were made and he contracted with Red Star for the Australian rights for two years at $10,000 per year and made an initial payment of that amount.

C. & C. is demanding the return of $100,000 and D. Davis $10,000.

Eton Boys on Air

A commercial cigar account has engaged the 4 Eton Boys of the Village Nite Club to go on the air. They started yesterday (2) over WOR. The broadcast is for three times weekly, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

"Graphic's" Publicity

Jerry Wald, radio editor, will handle the New York "Evening Graphic's" all-amateur weekly radio feature, which starts over WPCH Dec. 8.

Idea is to give the performers no pay but publicity.

Frank Wright and Frank Bessinger (Radio Franks) have installed a new floor show at their Rendezvous, North Bergen, N. J. Harry Walker staged.

Pluggers Revolt

(Continued from page 65)

people much better able to pay than themselves. It seems that the bandsmen always in all ways rely upon the song pluggers, although sometimes in small ways they pay back.

"Never," said the unaffiliated gavel holder of the convention, "has there been a body of men so insulted and abused while being exploited as song pluggers. They are belittled, kept out, kicked out, stalled, applesauced and treated with general disrespect. It is my hope that this meeting will lead to other meetings, and that by getting together on this present theatrical night nuisance we may learn how to cooperate among ourselves in the future and be treated with the respect we should get."

A suggestion that the financial nerve was lacerated from persistent nicking of private salaries because the New York allowances on expense were insufficient was denied by some of the boys. These patriots wished to disassociate themselves from any hint that their bosses were niggardly.

Lordly Radio Bands

Expressed in plain speech, the meeting was devoted to considering ways and means of discouraging theatrical nights, or at least that part of it that calls for most of the arrangements, social and financial, to be borne by the publishers. Radio bands, in their lordly fashion, were making demands beyond which the boys felt that they could not and should not go, and they wanted to stop it.

Some of the radio impresarios are reported functioning on the frank principle, "My Bandee Just Plays for Dough!" Not necessarily direct, but sufficiently so as represented by percentages on cover. None of the chump pluggers ever get the covers knocked off, even when everyone in their party had been "invited" by the management via Postal Telegraph.

Somewhat Scared

Every publisher's representative in town, with the exception of Willie Horowitz (Robbins) was present. No question about it being representative. And it was fairly typical, in that most of the boys were experiencing qualms-of-fear lest taking a too prominent position in the movement might antagonize some radio potentate and bring down the wrath of the New York office.

This undercurrent presently was manifest when Nervous Nellie, the delegate from Peoria, stood up and said that "Variety," the conventions' invited guest, should promise not to print anything about the meeting. The gavel wielder thereupon proposed, unquestionably without thinking, that the question of whether or not "Variety" might print the minutes should be voted upon.

At this point "Variety" reached for its silk-lined beaver hat, declined to have "Variety's" rights established by referendum, and bolted the convention.

College Jim, hearing of the burn up, issued through Frank Bering, managing director, a flat statement that cover charges are always lifted for theatrical celebs.

Within the last week several new theatrical nights have been announced.

Inside Stuff—Music

Bad Days for Wavy Haired Boys

With the jazz band craze dying standing up in our U. S., it looks like those wavy haired band boys with the big bottomed trousers, now lounging around street corners waiting for a break, will be waiting for a long time. Most of this type of musician got into music business by leaving school and grabbing a sax when the jazz habit was on. They are not, with few exceptions, schooled musicians. Few can read at sight and are no good for standard musical compositions. They cannot play in a theatre pit and seem only fit for snake tonguing a sax or caressing a drum with a wire brush.

The taste in this country, according to signs, is returning to good music. Old fashioned ballads are selling again. Standard overtures are once more welcome. Folks are renewing their acquaintances with their old friends, the strings, and are passing up the brasses. Looks like the boys will have to go back to school or work.

Traveling Religious Orchestra

A five piece mixed band, each member of which plays all of the 20-odd instruments carried by the organization, is a feature of the gospel "act" given in churches and schools by Dr. W. Leon Tucker of New York City, editor, publisher, Bible teacher, lecturer and musician.

Dr. Tucker has covered the entire United States and a good part of the world with his musical-religious turn.

He and Ralph Powell, of Syracuse, N. Y., are the male members of the band, the feminine members of which are Neva Johnson, Ohio, Ruth King, Endicott, N. Y., and Helen Miller, Oneonta, N. Y., and a Miss Johnson. The musical-gospel troupe travel in automobiles.

Oldest Commercial

With NBC and CBS taking nearly $30,000,000 in advertising for 1930 from commercials, it is recalled that the first commercial program was that of the Queensborough Corporation, a realty firm which bought the first time from WEAF on Sept. 7, 1922. That was four years before NBC was formed.

The oldest commercial currently on the air is the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which has broadcast six days a week since Jan. 27, 1923, and is now on NBC. Its programs are the Tower Health setting up exercises each morning.

"Special Arrangement" Slip

Apropos of the situation between certain band leaders in spots with a "wire," and some music publishers regarding the cut ins on song royalties, is another fast one pulled by the band boys for special orchestrations. Although the gag brings in less than the straight pay each week, or the cut in on royalties, it is being worked regularly on certain publishers. A few of the music men are wise to it and so far the band boys have not gotten far with them.

The idea is that a band sitting behind a broadcasting wire is supposed to be the ace plug of plugs for a song. Knowing this, the leaders agree to play certain plug songs, providing the publisher gives them $35 for a special arrangement. The arrangement is to be made by one of the leader's men. If it goes through, the leader puts the $35 in his pocket and the arranger in the band, who is under a salary to the leader, gets his usual weekly pay. Sometimes, if the get is large enough, say around $50, the leader may slip his arranger a five spot extra.

It don't look like heavy sugar for the band leader, but when one considers that one leader may hook up with five or more publishers each week at $35 per special arrangement, it amounts to $175.

Buncoing Bands on Club Dates

A spreading practice against which orchestras have little or no recourse is that of engaging "name" talent for social functions and then forgetting to pay-off.

The affairs are usually staged under the auspices of a club with a political-sounding name and the most expensive orchestras obtainable are booked for the date. Frequently there are from one to four bands that sell for $1,000 a night each.

These irresponsible clubs stage their dances in centrally-located but inexpensive ballrooms, relying solely on the pulling power of the orchestras' reputations to fill the floor at $1.50 a head.

Whenever possible no deposits are paid for either the ballroom or band, but if pressed the operators make a small down payment. By 11 p. m. the bands have usually filled the hall and the promoters have their cash for admissions. It doesn't matter if the bands decide to walk when the rest of their money is not forthcoming at the time agreed upon.

Sometimes the orchestras prefer to play out the rest of the night and either believe the stalls handed them or feel that they can collect through the courts later. The stalls are, of course, just that and the operators often turn out to be gangsters instead of gentlemen so whether it stays or leaves the band gets nothing.

To provide against all of their name attractions walking the club men hire a small and inexpensive local orchestra which is used to furnish any sort of music after the regular attractions quit. Even this "alternate" orchestra is seldom paid in full.

So far the idea has been velvet for the unscrupulous since the name bands always show up on their deposits believing the dates to be legitimate and 99% of the take is realized before these bands balk.

Probably the most successful group to work this racket to date is a club in Newark, N. J.

Wage Scale Not Salary

If Local 802 had proposed that 5% of the wage scale of a working musician be taxed weekly for the benefit of the unemployed musicians instead of 5% of the salary, there would have been a possibility of that being adopted, it is said, instead of the Local being forced to rescind it because of the strong objections of the musicians.

To the wage scale, it is reported, the musicians hadn't much objection but they squawked because if a better band and in a position to make more was no reason why they should be taxed more.

As an example of this, Rudy Vallee, working stage band leader at the Brooklyn Paramount, is getting $4,000 weekly. He would, therefore, were the 5% rule adopted, have to pay 5% of his net, over $100 weekly. Whereas, were the 5% proposed for the wage scale, Vallee would only have to pay $7.50 per week, since the wage scale for Vallee's job as leader is $150 per week.

35-Year-Old Tune

"Spring, Beautiful Spring," the standard instrumental number written about 35 years ago by Paul Lincke, has been modernized somewhat, lyrics have been added by L. Wolfe Gilbert, and is being published by E. B. Marks as a pop tune. Its new title is "Chimes of Spring."

Rudy Vallee takes credit for the modern version of this old piano fav and was instrumental in having Marks decide to re-publish it as a pop.

Obituary

WILLIS P. SWEATNAM

Willis P. Sweatnam, 76, blackface comedian and old-time minstrel, died Nov. 25 in the Lambs Club, where he had made his home. Mr. Sweatnam had been on the stage for 50 years.

Featured with many big minstrel organizations, he had also appeared in the legit. Two notable roles were the head porter in "Excuse Me" and the Negro role in George Ade's "College Widow."

He first appeared on the stage when seven years old, doing a rattle-bone solo. Later he became a famous minstrel end man.

He started with Frank Clark's Lilliputian Aeolians (blackface) when 15 years old and later was with shows bearing his own name such as Sweatnam, Fagan & Rice's Minstrels.

His first N. Y. appearance was with the Birch, Backus & Wambold Minstrels at Niblo's Gardens and it was there he succeeded Birch as endman. He later joined the John H. Haverly Minstrels and went with them to London in 1884.

G. E. MORRISON

G. E. Morrison, 70, until 1925 dramatic critic of the London "Morning Post," died there Nov. 19. He was one of the leading critics of his day and was an accomplished author and journalist.

Morrison had been on many of the leading papers in London, having served on Fleet St. for over 40 years. He was on the "Post" 32 years.

He co-authored with Robert Stewart on "Sixteen Not Out," produced in 1902. Among his many literary activities was a volume of poetry.

Morrison was one of the most popular critics of a few years back and was for three years chairman of the Critics' Circle.

JACK GIBSON

Jack Gibson, actor, died Nov. 23 in the Home for Consumptives in Chester, Pa., where he had been under the joint care of Actors' Fund and N. V. A. Interment in Philadelphia.

Gibson had been in vaude with teams including Sully and Mack and Kearney and Gibson and had also been a principal in burlesque shows, "Follies of the Day," Mollie Williams' company, "Look Us Over"; Hurtig & Seamon's "Talk of the Town," and Lou Kelly's "Mr. Sharp."

He married Isabelle Dean, actress, who, with two daughters, Dorothy and Marjorie, survive.

Gibson's family name was John T. Tumulty.

LADY HAWTREY

Lady Hawtrey, widow of Sir Charles Hawtrey, actor, died in London, Nov. 17. She was once a friend of the late King Edward and was a contemporary of Lily Langtry.

Although 70 years of age, she won a prize in a dancing competition at Monte Carlo five years ago.

A leading figure in London stage and general society of a generation back, her home was famous for its interior decorations.

MINNIE M. SHARP

Minnie Meyers Sharp, 75, actress, an invalid for many years under care of Actors' Fund and N. V. A., died recently in Chicago.

She had been in vaude, her last being known as Sharp and Sharp (her daughter Jessie appearing with her), and in legitimate she had been with A. H. Woods' "Across the Continent," "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," Joseph Grismer's "Sky Farm," C. D. Hess Opera Co., and the Jules Grau Opera Co.

Interment in Chicago.

KITTY PELHAM

Mrs. Kittie Pelham (Aryman), 69, actress, died in Yates, Pa., where she had been an invalid for four years, care of Actors' Fund.

Some years ago Mrs. Pelham headed her own repertoire company and had been with traveling stocks.

A daughter, Mrs. Una Lavant, survives.

THOMAS WRIGHT

Thomas Wright, 80, one time light opera tenor, died Nov. 28 in Bridgewater, Mass. He was one of the first employees of B. F. Keith.

Mr. Wright was a pianist as well as a singer. When his voice became impaired following an operation on his throat, he did general theatrical work. In addition to singing in operettas, he was with Lew Dockstader and other minstrels.

He is survived by a nephew, Frank Hollis, Fitchburg, Mass., theatre manager.

WILLIAM DORFMAN

William Dorfman, Yiddish actor and father of Nat Dorfman, general press representative for Florenz Ziegfeld, died Nov. 26 at Port Chester, New York, from a heart attack.

Mr. Dorfman was on the Yiddish stage for more than 25 years. He retired several years ago. His wife and four children, Nan, Jack, Sydney and George, survive.

Interment in Mt. Judah Cemetery, Cypress Hills, L. I.

W. A. HAHN

W. A. Hahn, 50, member of the Emperors of Harmony quartet, appearing with Panchon and Marco's "Way Back When" idea at the Fox theatre, San Jose, died suddenly from a heart attack Nov. 26.

Mr. Hahn had appeared with various quartets in vaudeville during the past 20 years. He is survived by his wife and one child.

JOHN MAX

John Max, 80, vaude and burlesque actor, died Nov. 14 in Cincinnati where he had been cared for by Actors' Fund for 10 years.

He had appeared with different acts on the Gus Sun circuit. His last stage appearance was in burlesque with Jack Reid's "Record Breakers."

WILLIAM A. CARSON

William A. Carson, 76, character comedian, died recently at his brother's home in Wheeling, W. Va., following a brief illness.

Mr. Carson had been with different traveling companies for many years and was professionally known as "Kit" Carson.

FRANK WESLEY

Frank Wesley (Frank Holligan), 49, comedian, died Dec. 1 in the Hospital for Joint Diseases, New York, where he had been under the care of the N. V. A.

Mr. Wesley had been in both vaude and legit and had been identified with principal comedy part in "Dr. Joy's Sanitarium" in vaude.

The funeral will take place at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning (4) from the Wesley home, 130 East 123d street, New York.

JOHN C. WEST

John C. West, 32, for 10 years with stock companies in New England, New York and Canada, died recently in Everett, Mass. He made his first stage appearance in stock in Boston, directed by Henry Jewett.

In recent years West played juvenile roles and leads in traveling stock in New England and eastern Canada and also with resident groups in Salem, Lowell and Lynn.

William H. Burke, 70, stagehand, died in New York of a complication of diseases. His home was at 20 St. Marks Place, N. Y. He had been receiving aid from the N. V. A. (although not a member) for some time.

A son, George Burke, survives.

Fred C. Fisher, 61, owner, Strand, Seneca Falls, N. Y., died Nov. 22 in Flagler hospital, St. Augustine, Fla., of injuries received in an auto accident. He built the Strand (then the Fisher) in 1914 and operated it as a film house for several years. He leased the house about a year ago and retired.

John Kirchmayer, 70, who when a youth played the role of Joseph in the "Passion Play," at Oberammergau, died recently in Cambridge, Mass.

Mother and father of Dean Fosler, organist at the Chicago theatre, Chicago, died Nov. 17 and 18, respectively. Burial in Chicago.

Convictions Triumph

Rae D. Meeklo, book publisher, who picks only manuscripts that do not conflict with his Christian Science beliefs, is again active in the publishing business after going through bankruptcy last year.

News From the Dailies

(Continued from page 54)

confessing his life with her was just a "mass of lies."

Stafford C. Campbell, legit, convicted of vagrancy. Girls testified he advertised for models and couldn't paint.

Second court victory in three days for "Prince" Alexander Light. Insanity complaint charged he regards himself as one of the five greatest Shakespearean actors of the day. He admitted it and the judge dismissed the charges.

Charges of conspiracy to steal the "Dawn Patrol" script from Warner Bros. studio dismissed. Joseph Marsh, scenarist; Forrest Easley, detective and Edith Higgins, studio secretary, freed. Case grew out of Caddo's copyright suit over "Hell's Angels."

Beverly Hills jury acquitted House Peters of throwing rocks at the house of William H. Simon and failed to agree on a charge he had called Simon's daughter and her playmates "a bunch of brats." Simon is the husband of Fanchon.

CHICAGO

Mari Sava, Russian nite club entertainer, was ordered deported last week. Sava was brought over with the Agrineva Slaviansky on a $500 bond. She scrammed the act and went out on her own.

Another loop theatre faced guns last week, when the Erlanger turned over $300 to bandits.

Circuit court ruled that Jack Kearns, flstic gent, must pay his wife, Mrs. Legna Kearns, former vaude performer, $500 monthly for temporary alimony.

LONDON

"Nippy," one of the few musicals in London making money, is playing three matinees weekly to meet demand.

Sir John Martin Harvey's season at the Savoy ends Nov. 22, to be followed by his son, strutting dancing programs at matinees.

Edgar Wallace has started a newspaper, "The Bucks Mail," circulating in a provincial spot where he is shortly to stand for Parliament.

A new British musical, "Daphne," by Myles Clifton is in the suburbs with the West End in sight.

Frederick Jackson, American author of "Her Past," has written a new play shortly to come to London with Alice Delysia starring.

Western Electric, which now has 1,122 installations in this country, has 173 of them in London.

Sybil Thorndike and Lewis Casson will appear in a new play, "The Matchmaker," by Ashley Dukes, starting in Scotland next month. Comes to London later under the Daniel Mayer banner.

First of the new RCA Photophone newsreel trucks, now being tried in the States, to come to this country is for a Pathe unit interest feature controlled by First National, Pathe, and British International.

Under the title of "The Mystery of Life," Wardour (British International) has succeeded in getting the censor's sanction for the screening of "Cosmos," a German film dealing with evolution. Picture was previously banned and has been sliced some.

Laddie Cliff's musical will push "The Love Race" from the Galety around the new year. George Clarke and Jean Colin principals.

Opening show by the People's theatre, playing at the Fortune, will be "The Man From Blankley's," Maurice Evans in the cast. This society has over 20,000 members.

"An Object of Virtue" (Duchess) and "Lucky Dip" (Comedy) finished last week. Both short runners.

Charles Cochran's production of "Evergreen," at the Adelphi, suspended due to house alterations not being finished.

"The Queen Bee," comedy produced recently by the Repertory Players, takes over from "The Man Who Kissed His Wife" at the Prince of Wales. Iris Hoey has the lead. Start scheduled Dec. 2.

Jack Buchanan has planned "Stand Up and Sing," musical, for production in Jan. Douglas Furber collaborating on the book.

"One Day More," by Conrad, and "Lady Julie," by Strindberg, forms the opening program at the small Faculty theatre, run by the Faculty of Arts. About to start off on the first floor of a spot in Piccadilly.

Questions were asked in Parliament whether the publication of "Green Pastures" in the "Evening Standard" constituted blasphemous libel as the play had been banned for production by the Lord Chamberlain. Answer was there appeared no intention of giving offense to religious convictions.

$100,000 Fire in Peru; Robinson Show Burns

Indianapolis, Dec. 2.

Fire of unknown origin razed a John Robinson circus barn at Ringling Brothers' winter quarters in Peru yesterday (Mon.) with an estimated loss of $100,000.

Twenty buildings, housing three circuses valued at millions, were threatened. Property carries partial insurance.

Several dogs died, 100 horses escaped, 300 tons of hay and harness equipment were destroyed. Favorable east wind saved the other buildings.

RURAL SENTIMENT

County Fair Communities, Which Fought Pari-Mutuels, Grab Aid

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 2.

Rural communities of Illinois fought legalized pari-mutuels, but there is now available from funds derived from race track revenue $243,743 for state aid to county agricultural fairs.

Sixty fairs have filed claims for $251,396, or something in excess of the revenue from tracks. Deficit is less than estimated, according to a preliminary survey by Stuart E. Pierson, director of the department of agriculture.

Heth Escapes in Child Attack with $100 Fine

Louisville, Dec. 2.

A criminal court jury fined Floyd R. Heth, 23-year-old circus man of Racine, Wis., $100, for attempting to attack Lavinia Elizabeth King, 15, when the Heth Greater Carnival shows played here last July.

Judge A. T. Burgevin and Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney George J. Mayer branded the verdict ridiculous and relieved the jury from further service. Earlier the same day one D. M. Smith was sentenced to a year in jail for stealing $30.60.

Heth's attorney before the trial offered to plead guilty and take a fine of $300, but the prosecutor rejected the offer. After the trial Mr. Mayer pointed out that Heth's own admissions made him liable to a sentence of from two to seven years.

Dust Off Old Title

Chicago, Dec. 2.

Robbins Bros. circus, owned by Fred Buchannan and wintering this year at Lancaster, Mo., will be known as the World Bros. Circus in 1931.

Six years ago Buchannan titled his trick World Bros.

LITERATI

(Continued from page 64)

B. Harvey was advertising and publicity chief for Pathe.

Trade Paper Control

With its acquisition of the Gehring publication, the "National Hotel Review," the Ahrens Publishing Co., now controls the entire trade paper business covering the hotel industry.

Bitter competition between Ahrens and Gehring, when the latter was alive, with numerous offers on the part of each to buy out the other. Death of Gehring made it only a matter of time when Ahrens would dominate the field for, with the passing of its founder, the "National Hotel Review" had been deteriorating.

Ahrens hotel mags are in addition to the "National Hotel Review," "Hotel Management" and the "Hotel World."

Real Names of Authors

Marian Keith, author of "The Forest Barrier," is Mrs. Mary Esther Miller MacGregor, but who is Eleanor Scott, author of "The Forgotten Image"?

Rosa Riley, Ed

Rosa Riley, writer, has been made associate editor of "Screenland." Her husband is Bill Riley, former editor of "Moving Picture World."

CHI CONVENTION DRAWS A CROWD

Chicago, Dec. 2.

A large attendance at the outdoor convention which got under way yesterday (1) at the Bismarck Hotel. Carnival owners and fair managers showed, all looking for a ray of hope in the future. With conditions tight the only chance of raising money for carnies next year is to secure negotiable fair contracts this week.

William Jennings O'Brien, special agent for Rubin and Cherry during the past several seasons, is switching to the Johnny J. Jones carnival, in what is considered one of the big changes of the present convention.

Lack of brotherly love among carnie owners is Ruben Gruberg's explanation of why the contemplated carnival merger flopped at the recent meeting in Montgomery, Ala.

Charley Sparks and Ringling Talk Terms

Chicago, Dec. 2.

A deal is pending between John Ringling and Charles Sparks, former owner of the Sparks circus, for Sparks to buy back his property and name.

Ringling had previously announced the Sparks circus would be placed on the shelf for 1931. Under the new arrangement it may go out over its regular territory.

Charles Sparks at present owns the Downie Bros. outfit, a truck show, which has netted him about $15,000 this season. Cliff Sparks will handle the Downie trick if the buy goes through.

THOSE UNION RULES

(Continued from page 42)

or five-act vaude bills on percentage in present straight picture theatres for one, two or more days a week—and saw its way clear to materialization but for one angle—the stage hands.

"Variety" was then asked by Fox to present the proposition to the stage hands. William Canavan, their national president, was interviewed for his reaction as representative of the stage hands nationally. Outside of having some personal sympathy for the plan, Canavan stated, he could do nothing to help it along, for the following reasons:

As the proposition tendered by Fox involved a limit of one stage hand for each house playing the percentage bills, it would be entirely optional with the various locals to accept or spurn the proposition; most locals' normal demands are for more than one man in stage-playing theatres and a departure from the rules would be strictly up to them.

Risk Too Big

Canavan stated that in view of this he would be in a tough spot if sanctioning or recommending adoption of the Fox offer, as it was strictly for local decision and out of his direct jurisdiction.

On a basis of 50 theatres entered by one or more circuits and indies as the total of houses to play the percentage bills, the one man per house terms would mean only 50 jobs all told for the stage hands, against the hundreds or thousands laying off at the present time. For that number of jobs the risk possibly taken by setting of an entirely new precedent and wage classification for national use would be too great, the stage hands' president estimated.

In view of that, stated Canavan, the I.A. would be forced to take a stand against the percentage bill idea as regards the stage hands' end of it, if or if not included as employees.

That, it is believed, drops the circuits from consideration as possible sponsors of the idea.

R-K-O booking office declared the plan held possibilities as the way to alleviation of the present severe scarcity of break-in time for new acts.

It now appears as though the idea is permanently cold, unless another way around the union labor angle is struck.

The musician union's angle would have been avoided through acts using a travelling piano player.

CHICAGO

Variety's Chicago Office

WOODS THEATRE BUILDING—CENTRAL 0644-4401

Englewood

Neither storm nor snow can keep the southsiders away from this house and its full Tuesday diet of 10 vaude acts. Town's first wintry blast cut down business at all the film palaces around this theatre but failed to make any difference at the Englewood, except the pews filled slower. At 8:15 disgruntled customers, who couldn't find a seat, were asking for their dough back, a part of the regular Tuesday program.

Gang wasn't disappointed in the offering that opened with the Six Tip Tops, four men and two girls demonstrating what the human frame can stand. An opener of this kind is always interesting when injected with a bit of comedy. The Tip Tops is one of those acts that gives the impression they are glad to be working, and they romped about in wild daring leaps to strong applause.

Dolcet and McCormack, two crooning youths, have added a femme piano player to the turn. She slides in on the harmony with a fair pair of pipes. The two boys are so overflowing with this crooning idea it flows out in their swaying bodies.

Galucci and Lewis into third place with some pit falls by the man and singing by the girl. Turn, weak on the music end, develops into slapstick, with the man's military dance a neat bit of hoofing dropped into a weak routine that saves the offering from total oblivion.

Hayley and Moore is a team that bears watching, one of the men having a tenor voice. Only immediate fault the two boys overdo. Song, "Swinging in a Hammock, with mosquito slapping great. Marcella Hardie and Friends, the latter being a creditable tab orchestra of five pieces, is good vaude. Miss Hardie is a neat dancer with exceedingly shapely legs and the ability to send over the lights that elusive personality that makes for charm. This is combined with a rather sweet voice. The show is built around Miss Hardie, the supporters carrying their end creditably.

Walter and Mary Austin, policeman and girl, open with a neat line of fast timely chatter that makes a fair enough impression and routine good for many ha ha's. Man sings pop tunes in bass, an unusual thing, and gets away with it. Gal a fair enough comic, with the last half showing up badly.

Harry Lord, with his shouting style of comedy interpolated with pop songs, sung in a pleasing enough voice in the seventh spot. His material slows up after the opening, the garbled comedy failing to click.

Vogues of 1931, a class turn from opening to close, with the male singer, male hoofer and two femme dancers all going over strong. Use of a semi-adagio, in full dress, a sweet bit of work. The male singer has a real voice, one of the surprises of the evening. Offering stood out with neat scenery and the contortion dancing of one of the girls.

Briscoe and Delorto, in hoke built around the Knights of the Bath pulling the usual laughs, ending with a banjo and violin bit that brought a couple of bows and set the act in the eyes of the gathered agents as worthy of consideration.

Closing was Busang and Fox and Mary Ann in a routine acrobatic turn, which is saved by the skillful work of the trio. Mary Ann being a child and clicking. Femme in this turn a real seller who pushed the act over the apron to success.

Picture "Worldly Goods" with biz piled into the rafters.

Margaret Wycherly added to the Goodman theatre company, joining for "Hay Fever," to open Dec. 9.

Crank stock company, Montgomery, Ala., has closed.

Earle Larimore, now here with the Theatre Guild's "Month in the Country," made a guest appearance at the Goodman theatre last week, taking over his old role in "Hotel Universe."

Three theatres turned over part of their night's receipts to bandits. The Ellington, the Crown Hippodrome and the Marshall Square, all contributed to the gunmen's maintenance fund.

Hyde and Burrell closed at the Oriental Nov. 26, jumped to Detroit for Thanksgiving and back again to Chicago for a Friday opening with their unit at the Uptown.

Robert Todd appointed chief artist for R-K-O by George Brown. Rose Cohen returns as Brown's secretary.

World, at Omaha now changes vaude bills Thursdays instead of Fridays as in the past.

Music Corporation has three bands represented on one Victor record. Ted Weems does "One Man Band" and Johnny Johnson does "Ding Dong Daddy." Both tunes written by another M. C. A. bandsman, Phil Baxter.

SPOKANE

By RAY BUDWIN

H. W. (Nick) Pierong, Pan house manager here for seven years, has opened the Pantages in Minneapolis.

Ray A. Grombacher, director Spokane Theaters, Inc., named trustee of Allied Amusements of the Northwest, F. C. Weskil, Sandpoint, Idaho, is new president.

The Ritz, newly wired, reopened by Lew Keeler. Second-run films and shorts. Keeler former exploitation man for Spokane Theaters, Inc.

With the closing of "New Moon" in Seattle, this town has been cut from the road map. Show was booked for the Post Street Dec. 13-14. Heavy advance sale refunded.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

By JOHN DALY

National—"Apple Cart," Theatre Guild.
Belasco—"The First Mrs. Fraser."
Constitution Hall—Beethoven Music Festival (four days).
Fox—"The Dancers."
Metro—"Outward Bound" (2nd week).
Palace—"Sea Legs."
Keith's (R-K-O)—"Sin Takes a Holiday."
Rialto—"See America Thirst."
Earle—"Man to Man."
Columbia—"Feet First."

Robert Milton, who directed the stage production of Sutton Vane's play, "Outward Bound," came to Washington for the premiere at the Belasco some four years ago. This past week Milton was in Washington again for the screen showing of the same play—which he also directed—at the Metropolitan. This picture started this house on the two-a-day schedule, with reserved seats.

Though President Hoover does not frequent the theatres he had as his house guest last week Ignace Padderewski, pianist. Of course, Mr. Paderewski is a politician on the side, having had the title Premier of Poland attached after his music degree. A special gold piano was placed in his suite at the White House so the musician-premier could practice between concerts. He drew a capacity crowd at Constitution Hall, with Mrs. Hoover the outstanding auditor.

Suzanne Pollard, daughter of the Governor of Virginia, stepped on the Belasco stage last Saturday morning (29) as star of J. M. Barrie's play, "A Kiss For Cinderella," put on by the National Junior Theatre, serving drama to youngsters in Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington.

Jos. M. Gaites has become a commuter between Washington and New York, making the distance each time by airplane, and flying here every week to look over new plays, having first productions in the Belasco.

DES MOINES

By R. W. MOORHEAD

Berchel—Dark.
Casino—Burlesque; picture "Rain or Shine."
Des Moines—"The Big Trail."
Family—Change.
Garden—"Anybody's Woman."
Orpheum—(Vaudfilm) "Cat Creeps"; "Portable David."
Palace—Change.
Paramount—(Fpublix) "Moby Dick"; "Remote Control."
President—"Other People's Business" (stock).
Strand—"Up the River"; "A Widow from Chicago."

Henry Prather's "Honeymoon Limited" Co. at Casino replacing Jack Root.

Ward Hatcher's 10, 20, 30 shows at President proving a draw.

Boyd Trousdale players from Sioux City to Ft. Dodge in hope of better business.

Iowa Edr Managers' association in annual convention here Dec. 8, 9, 10.

Arthur L. Mayer, newly appointed director for central west, with Jack Barry, personal director for Publix, on inspection trip here. Mayer supervises Iowa, Nebraska, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Minnesota, North and South Dakota.

Margaret Streeks now secretary of Des Moines Film Board of Trade coming from board at Winnipeg.

NEW HAVEN

By H. M. BONE

Shubert—Dark.
Roger Sherman—"Life of the Party."
Fox-Poli—Min and Bill; F. & M.
Paramount—"Derelict"; Publix idea.
Fox-Bijou—"Billy the Kid."

Kearney Walton, originally engaged for one week as m. c. at the Paramount, is now on his 14th.

WDRC, Hotel Taft radio station transferred to Hartford and is now a member of the Columbia Chain.

Fox has discontinued a number of 24-sheet billboards, confining advertising to 3-sheet boards and newspaper space.

Near-panic resulted when explosion blew door off boiler of Whalley Theatre as house was jammed with Thanksgiving day patrons. Prompt work of ushers averted trouble when smoke penetrated auditorium.

Ruth Draper booked for Shubert three days commencing Dec. 11.

Local Elks Club to spend $20,000 for big-time acts for six-day circus held here next month.

INDIANAPOLIS

By EDWIN V. O'NEEL

English's—Dark.
Indiana—"Half Shot at Sunrise."
Circle—"Laughter."
Palace—"Min and Bill."
Apollo—"Old English."
Lyric—"The Dancers"; R-K-O vaude.
Ohio—"The Santa Fe Trail."

Charles K. Long, asst. at the Indiana, succeeds Maurice Gable as Circle manager. Gable goes to Philadelphia to manage group in Warner chain. James Walker, chief of service, succeeds Long.

Earlham College Players to present three one-act plays Dec. 5.

Decatur, Ind., assured of new theatre and office building with incorporation of Decatur Theatres, Inc., by R. B. Troutman, B. E. and R. E. Saunders.

Cascade Garden amusement hall near Bloomington destroyed by fire. Loss, $15,000.

Government to accept bids on talking picture equipment for local veterans hospital Dec. 15 in Washington.

MILWAUKEE

By FRANK J. MILLER

Alhambra—"See America Thirst."
Davidson—"Dracula" (legit).
Garden—"Hell's Angels" (2d week).
Gayety—Stock-burlesque.
Majestic—"Doorway to Hell" (return date).
Pabst—German stock Sunday concerts.
Palace-Orpheum—"Sin Takes a Holiday."
Riverside—"College Lovers"; vaude.
Strand—"Big Trail" (2d week).
Wisconsin—"War Nurse"; stage show.

Fire and Police Commissioner Stein pinned medals of honor on eight Strand theatre ushers for bravery during recent fire scare in basement of the building during a show.

Alice Ward, Milwaukee entertainer, one of two girls shot by a nervous burglar during holdup of Chicago roadhouse, was buried here. Miss Ward was well known in Milwaukee night clubs and had only recently gone to Chicago.

Sudden drop in temperature put a crimp in theatre attendance last week. First really cold spell of the season combined with a young blizzard from the west.

Looked like old times at the Alhambra during "See America Thirst," when replica of Milwaukee's old favorite Palm Garden was incorporated into the decorative scheme.

The Princess cafe in the Alhambra building, where many stage folk used to dine, has gone out of business.

SEATTLE

By DAVE TREPP

Blue Mouse—"Third Alarm."
Follies—"Marlon" (Reyne).
Metropolitan—"The Rebound" (Stock).
Music Box—"Rat Whispers."
Orpheum—"The Pay Off"; vaude.
Fifth Ave.—"Just Imagine"; Stage.
Fox—"Big Trail"; Pit Band.
Paramount—"Sea Legs."
Liberty—"Sunny."

Rube Wolf, brother of Earnlon & Marco, opened Thanksgiving as m. c. at the Fifth.

Joe E. Brown will fly from L. A. on Dec. 16 to appear at charity show of Orpheum midnight frolic. Joe Cooper, manager, hopes to raise $3,000 for the Christmas fund. Acts, Brown, orchestra and employees will all donate services.

Joe Cooper now manager of Orpheum, handling publicity for division as well. Succeeds E. C. Bostwick, resigned.

Bainbridge Players, with Alice Brady as guest star, resumed after a ten-day interim, transferring to the Moore from the Metropolitan. E. C. Hostick has become associated with Bainbridge, while Carl Reiter, dean of Orpheum managers, is house manager.

Alice Brady, as guest star, will appear in "Lulu Belle" for her second week, while following Miss Brady, Pauline Frederick will be guest star. Bert Lytell and Florence Reed are under negotiation.

A group of business men guaranteed the company a certain amount of business for a period of six weeks. That will carry through the worst season of the year. Four weeks at the Met were encouraging. Prices to prevail, with guest star policy, 50-75-$1.

Bill McCurdy, formerly Duffy manager here and in Portland, now has the Duffwin, Portland, under his wing, and with his own company is getting away to a good start.

Carl Reiter, for 22 years Orpheum manager, is back in the biz again after a year in banking business.

Marie Gale, leading lady with Bainbridge Players, has returned to the Minneapolis company.

Will King opened with revue at Follies theatre, Seattle, to good biz. King had previous long run in Seattle.

Lindy's new eatery in the Hollywood theatre building is the new rendezvous for songwriters back from the coast.

Robert, headwaiter, at the Beaux Arts has been there 18 years, starting as a bus boy. Threatens to write a book covering his experiences.

CORRESPONDENCE

All matter in CORRESPONDENCE refers to current week unless otherwise indicated.

The cities under Correspondence in this issue of Variety are as follows and on pages:

BIRMINGHAM	70	NEW HAVEN	69
BRONX	70	OKLAHOMA CITY	70
BROOKLYN	70	OTTAWA	71
BUFFALO	70	PITTSBURGH	71
CHICAGO	69	ROCHESTER	71
DALLAS	71	ST. PAUL	70
DENVER	70	SAN ANTONIO	70
DES MOINES	69	SAN DIEGO	71
DETROIT	71	SAN FRANCISCO	71
INDIANAPOLIS	69	SEATTLE	69
LOS ANGELES	70	SOUTHERN TIER	71
MINNEAPOLIS	71	SPOKANE	69
MILWAUKEE	69	SYRACUSE	71
NEWARK	70	TOLEDO	70
NEW ENGLAND	70	WASHINGTON, D. C.	69

"In the Heart of the Loop"
New City Hall Square Hotel
69 W. Randolph St. Phone Franklin 4740
CHICAGO
Rates for an outside room with private bath:
$2.25 per day, single.
$14 per week, single.
$2.50 per day, double.
$15 per week, double.
Large outside room with twin beds (private bath), $3 per day or $18 per week.

HOTEL KNICKERBOCKER
Opposite the Drake
Adjoining Palmolive Bldg. CHICAGO
Walton Pl., Just East of Michigan
Special Rates to the Profession!
Coffee Shop—Dining Room—
Smart Cosmopolitan Atmosphere
Finer Rooms—Lower Rates

When in Chicago
Visit These Hits

BLACKSTONE Matinees Wednesday and Saturday
THEATRE GUILD, INC., Presents
"A Month in the Country" with MME. ALLA NAZIMOVA, EARLE LARIMORE, HENRY TRAVERS, CECIL YAPP, EDWARD ARNOLD and Others

ADELPHI Clark & Madison
JOE SMITH CHARLES DALE ALEXANDER CARR
in MENDEL, Inc.
with Lisa Silbert and Anna Chandler

SELWYN Mats. Thurs.-Sat.
"DRACULA"
SENSATIONAL VAMPIRE THRILLER

R-K-O STATE LAKE
"Sin Takes a Holiday"
With
CONSTANCE BENNETT
Kenneth McKenna & Basil Rathbone

DR. LLOYD M. LaPRES
DENTIST
Wishes to announce to his clients he is now located in his new offices
Suite 2035 Marshall Field Annex
25 E. Washington. Phone Central 4148
CHICAGO

DAISY HOWARD
NOW LOCATED AT
140 No. State St., Chicago
MABEL SYKES STUDIO
Phone State 9261

EASTGATE HOTEL
"YOUR HOME IN CHICAGO"
"JUST A WHISPER FROM THE LOOP"
$15.00 a Week Single $20.00 a Week Twin Beds
Ontario Street at Michigan Avenue

THE UNION RESTAURANT
68 W. Randolph St., at Dearborn, CHICAGO (Recently enlarged)
R. WELCH ON THE MIGHTY WURLITZER ORGAN
Our Popular Prices Remain the Same for the Best Food
NO COVER CHARGE OPEN ALL NIGHT

IN CHICAGO
LINDY'S RESTAURANT
On Randolph Street
Is Home, Sweet Home, to the Profession
A Good Place to Eat and Meet

HOTEL LORRAINE
CHICAGO
SINGLE ROOM, BATH, $2.00 UP
DOUBLE ROOM, BATH $17.50 AND $21.00 WEEKLY
DOUBLE WITHOUT BATH: $14.00 WEEKLY
LEONARD HICKS, President

HOLLYWOOD and Los Angeles

"Variety's" Office, 6282 Hollywood Boulevard, at Vine Street (Taft Bldg.)

Phone Hollywood 6141

The following assignments were made at the Coast studios last week:

Ray Shrock, dialog, "Comrades," U.

Regis Toomey, "Haddocks," Par.

Ken Maynard, "Two-Gun Man," Tiff.

Wynne Gibson, "June Moon," Par.

Victor Potel, "Scandal Sheet," Par.

George Chandler, "Inspiration," Metro.

Maude Turner Gordon, "Ladies' Man," Par.

Ray Cook, "Girls Demand Excitement," Fox.

J. Grubb Alexander, adaptation "Trilby," WB.

Lupe Velez, Spanish version of "Resurrection," U.

H. J. Warner, "Children of the Streets," Radio.

Tom Dugan, Betty Pierce, "Single Sin," Tiffany.

Dot Farley and Will Stanton, untitled shorts, Sennett.

John Holland and Gilbert Emery, "Ladies' Man," Par.

Margaret Livingston, "Children of the Streets," Radio.

Harold Beaudine to direct "Vanity," comedy, Christie.

Martha Sleeper, Emerson Treacy, "Neck and Neck," Fox.

Natalie Moorhead, untitled Buster Keaton picture, Metro.

Reginald Denny, Walter Merrill, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," Metro.

Lloyd Hughes, Hale Hamilton, Bill Powell, "Drums of Jeopardy," Tiff.

Malcolm Stuart Roylan dialoging "Shipmates," Metro.

Marjorie Rambeau, Clark Gable, "Easiest Way," Metro.

Fred Niblo, Jr., to collaborate with Tom Reed on "Up and Up," U.

Francois Razay (Mrs. Jacques Feyder), Marie Dressler part in French "Let Us Be Gay," Metro.

Fox decided Crauford Kent better suited for a spot in "Squadrons" than Ronald Goetz and made the switch.

Marjorie White, George Brent, John Garrick, Jason Robards, J. M. Kerrigan, Marguerite Churchill, Peter Cawthorne and Arthur Clayton, "Charley Chan Carries On," Fox.

An automatic street announcer projecting street names from motion picture film synchronized with the car wheels is being tested by Hollywood surface lines.

Ruth Roland has been given a permit to establish a public trout stream in the Wilshire district.

William Cullen replaced Robert Greenleaf as manager of the Hollywood Playhouse.

"Steppin' Sisters" follows "The Bad Man" into the Playhouse, May Robson and Max Fisher head cast.

Eddie Peabody opens at Loew's State next week for a stay of a fortnight at least. Gene Morgan moves to the Westlake, succeeding Dion Romandi, who went in to get house under way for stage shows. Rube Wolf stays in Seattle six more weeks.

T. W. Armentrout, assistant business manager of the operators' union, with four others was held over to trial in Superior court on conspiracy charges brought by the Rialto theatre. A stench bomb discovered in the house led to Armentrout's arrest. Rialto is on the union's unfair list.

The coast obviously has intentions on the Playhouse at Salt Lake City. Sixth proposition for the house in six weeks is Ben Ketcham's. He's hiring leads here for dramatic stock to open for the holidays. Previously mentioned as planning the same thing are George Ebey, Ralph Cloninger, the MacQuarrie brothers, Cyr Forrest, and Harry Holden.

Permit to build a $150,000 theatre and store building in Westwood, where Fox Movietone City is located, has been secured by the Beller Construction Co. Fox West Coast will operate.

Three-story dance studio on Western avenue to be occupied by the Belcher School of Dancing will be built by Cecile B. DeMille Productions, Inc.

Edgar Reeves to Seattle for second leads with Bainbridge stock.

Ernest Gordon, president of the Gordon Trading Co. of New York, says he will organize a Spanish picture producing unit here.

Stanley Theatre Co. of Long Beach was sold by Robert H. Cohen to Nicholas Karoly. Has one 900-seat grind.

ST. PAUL

By GEORGE N. BRADLEY

R-K-O Orpheum—"Sin Takes a Holiday," vaude.
Paramount—"Feet First."
Shubert—"Virtue's Bed" (stock).
Riviera—"Big Trail."
Metropolitan—Dark.
R-K-O President—"Pay Off."
Tower—"Renegades."

Clarence Darrow was a sellout Monday night (1) at the municipal auditorium where he upheld his agnostic views against a local Protestant, Catholic and Jew. Top $2.

St. Paul Players, little theatre group, opened their second show of the season last night (Tuesday), presenting "The Jest," to run through Saturday night under direction of Milton Roberts.

Met relights Monday (8), when Chicago company of "Death Takes a Holiday" opens for six days. Piece is last of three subscription plays Shuberts sent into the Twin cities.

"Name bands" mean something in St. Paul the Hotel Lowry found out. As result Ted Weems started second two-week engagement of the season here Saturday at the Terrace cafe.

R-K-O President cut prices from 50 to 35c and went into split weeks in effort to bolster business. House in the red continuously since opening, being off the Rialto.

OTTAWA, CAN.

By W. M. GLADISH

The Royal Household Band of His Excellency, Viscount Willingdon, Governor-General, played a benefit concert at Keith's, direction Manager Joe Franklin, Sunday evening (30).

Robbers failed to bore through the terra-cotta walls of the Palace, Cornwall, Can.

F. R. Lennon, pioneer Canadian film exchange man, is critically ill. For several years he has been the buyer for the Canadian Exhibitors Co-operative Society, which specializes in bookings on a mutual basis among the independents.

"Whoopee," after two weeks at the Centre theatre, is booked for a repeat Dec. 20.

OKLAHOMA CITY

By GEORGE NOBLE

Criterion—"War Nurse."
Capitol—"Derelict."
Midwest—"Big Trail."
Liberty—"Outside the Law."
Orpheum—"Last of Lone Wolf."
Empress—"Girl of Golden West."

Ben Greet players in "Hamlet" in Twelfth Night at the Shrine auditorium Monday afternoon and evening (24) to capacity.

R. & R. Palace, Sweetwater, Texas, reopened with sound.

The Grand, Mineral Wells, Tex., reopens with sound soon.

The Palace, Lampassas, Tex., purchased by Judge Roy Walker and associates.

Mike Segel has taken over the Ritz theatre at Baird, Tex.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

By ROBERT H. BROWN

Ritz—"The Dancers"; vaude.
Alabama—"Whoopee."
Strand—"Billy the Kid."
Empire—"One Night at Susie's."
Galax—"Man Hunter."
Trianon—Change.
Pantages—Musical tab.

Burglars broke into Rialto Thanksgiving night and escaped with $500 in cash after prying open the safe.

Terrapin race is booked for the Auditorium Dec. 19.

Vaudeville goes out of Ritz, R-K-O house, Saturday (6), because of the present business. House is packed tight at every show but thrift tickets calling for two admissions for one is the main reason. House seats about 1,600 and by the time half of these are thrift tickets and the other half paid admissions, there is not enough left.

Trial of Vernon Reaver, mgr. of Ritz, on a charge of violating child labor law was continued last week until Dec. 12. Reaver was arrested and released on bond in connection with the personal appearance of Baby Rose Marie.

TOLEDO

By M. C. GEORGE

Toledo Paramount—"Morocco"; stage show.
Alta Temple—"Soldiers' Plaything."
Pantheon—"Sunny" (2d week).
Princess—"Third Alarm."
R-K-O Rivoli—"Sin's Holiday"; vaude.
R-K-O Palace—"Big Money"; "Missing Men" (double).
Loew's Valentine—"Hell's Angels."
Cameo—"Madame Satan."
State—Split week.
Ohio—Split week.
Empire—Burlesque.

"The Dancers" lasted only two days at the Cameo. Replaced by "A Devil With Women." "Extravagance" at Greater Princess lasted until Wednesday, replaced by "Third Alarm." First time in Toledo a holiday bill was pulled.

Marsh Gollner, manager of the Toledo Paramount, has booked Buddy Rogers for a personal.

Lamsden Kumler, manager of the Pantheon, has secured Richard Barthelmess in "Adios" for his Christmas and New Year's booking. Pantheon is doing nicely with "Sunny," the first good house in some weeks seeing the picture.

Eight girls and a man given workhouse sentences on fines last week for conducting an indecent show in Moose Temple here.

Local R-K-O houses, Howard Feidley, manager, put 200 people to work in accordance with national R-K-O policy for ticket sellers. Feidley says jobs good until Feb.

Sixth City Investment Co., Cleveland, has put $8,200 on the line as down payment on property in Fostoria, O., for new theatre.

Cotton Club, local, raided and three patrons arrested on liquor charge. Mazie Kinder, blonde hostess of colored club, offered to take the rap but patrons wouldn't let her. The three men were released by Det. Art Langendorf, head of the liquor and vice squad, who said that he was not interested in nite clubs if they did not sell liquor. Hostess now in hospital for nervous breakdown.

BUFFALO

By SIDNEY BURTON

Erlanger—"Ladies of the Jury."
Buffalo—"Tom Sawyer."
Century—"Whoopee."
Hipp—"Girl of the Golden West."
Great Lakes—"War Nurse."
Lafayette—"Brothers."

Cole and Rogers Circus (two ring), carrying about 80 persons, has taken up new winter quarters at the DeMarco Farm in Springville near here.

Buffalo Studio of Theatre Players present "Paris Bound" for 10 performances beginning Dec. 8.

Edward L. Cullen, with Mrs. Fiske's in "Ladies of the Jury" at the Erlanger this week, formerly attended Lafayette High and Hume Dramatic School here.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

By JO ABRAMSON

Majestic—"Sisters of the Chorus."
Boulevard—"Frankie and Johnnie."
Flatbush—"A Smart Woman."
Paramount—"Feet First"; Stage Show.
Fox—"Oh, For a Man!"; Stage Show.
Albee—"Fatable David"; Vaude.
Strand—"College Lovers."
Met—"Whoopee"; Vaude.
Star—"Powder Puff Revue" (Mutual).
Gayety—"Big Revue" (Mutual).
Oxford—Stock Burlesque; Pictures.

One tryout this week: "A Smart Woman" (Brady) with Alan Dinehart and Katherine Alexander at the Flatbush.

Late changes at the Fox in publicity department. L. A. Blaufox, out, with Robert Doman taking his place. Doman hails from the coast. Blanche Livingston remains as Doman's assistant.

NEWARK, N. J.

By C. R. AUSTIN

Shubert—"Artists and Models."
Broad—"Bird in Hand."
R-K-O Proctor's—"Sin Takes a Holiday"; vaude.
Loew's State—"Feet First."
Newark—"Morocco"; Vaude.
Branford—"Life of the Party."
Mosque—"Outward Bound."
Capitol—"Doorway to Hell."
Fox Terminal—"Just Imagine."
Little—"Freedom."
Playhouse—"Extravagance."
Empire—"Take-a-Chance Show."

Two men held up the Hollywood (WB), East Orange, Nov. 27, tied up the manager and cashier and got away with over $1,300.

The Rialto reopens very shortly. If Warners do not lease it they will open the house themselves.

The Newark Art theatre is staging "The Romantic Young Lady" for three nights this week with part of receipts for the unemployed.

The Little, in receivership, has got back to English enough to offer "Freedom," the Martin Luther picture.

DENVER

Aladdin—"River's End."
Denver—"War Nurse"; stage show.
Paramount—"The Bat Whispers."
Rialto—"The Way of All Men."
Tabor—"Up the River."
Broadway—"Just Married" (stock).

In an effort to keep stock at the Broadway, Manager A. M. Oberfelder is cutting top night prices from $1.50 to $1 and mats from $1 to 75c. Mitzi, playing leads the past two weeks, has left for New York.

Fritz Kreisler (concert) in city auditorium packed the house and $3,400 worth of extra chairs were sold.

Joe Deitch, Publix division booker, New York, here changing district bookers. Bert Turgeon, Des Moines, succeeds Clayton Bray.

NEW ENGLAND

A syndicate of Boston men seeking possible locations at Provincetown, Mass., for an extensive amusement enterprise.

Publix's Olympia, New Bedford, Mass., has cut vaude to Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and plays double features rest of week.

"Just Imagine" moved from Fox-Poli theatre, Springfield, Mass., to Fox theatre for second week.

Adolph Goebel is new organist at the Paramount, Springfield, Mass.

The C.-B. Theatres Corp. of Springfield, Mass., and the Superior Credit Corp. of Worcester, Mass., are involved in suits over the Regent theatre, Worcester. C.-B., which had a lease of the Regent, sued Superior for $50,000, charging it was forced to vacate because a mortgage given by the New England Holding Co. was foreclosed by Superior. Superior seeks $25,000 for its alleged share of profits from the theatre, claiming C.-B. operated the Regent under a profit-sharing agreement.

SAN ANTONIO

By W. E. KEYS

Empire—"Sunny."
Palace—"Double Cheek."
Texas—"Morocco"; stage show.
Aztec—"Madame Satan."

Municipal Auditorium has booked "Cherries Are Ripe," Rod LaRocque and Vilma Banky, for Christmas night with "Flying High," White's road musical, Feb. 2.

Vic Insirllo, formerly m. c. at Texas, now at Keith's Georgia in Atlanta. Publix now rotating m. c.'s in Texas.

Plaza hotel roof remodeled and called El Mirador is pulling them in with aid of a Jean Goldkett unit. St. Anthony roof opened Saturday (29) with Earl Hatch's band. Gunter running nite club with Henry Lange and ballroom now called Pleasure Isle with Hymie Waldman and band drawing nicely.

BRONX, N. Y. C.

Independently booked vaude at the American lasted barely two weeks. House now playing sex picture.

After two Sundays at the Windsor, Nathan and Rose Goldberg moved their Yiddish legit Co. out, with Max Gabel and troupe in last week.

Fox will not resume vaude at the Park Plaza. Loew opposition not the reason, but that with straight picture policy house's profits equal that of previously.

Construction work starts soon on 1,500-seater (pictures), at Lydig and White Plains avenue, first theatre in the class Pelham Parkway section.

GIRLS
There is a
Charlotte Cushman Club
in BOSTON
(NON-PROFITMAKING)
And it's beautiful. Delicious food.
Single rooms (week) $8-$10.
Board (week) $10.
Board and room as low as $15 a week.
ONE MARLBOROUGH STREET
Address Secretary.

Dorothea Antel
226 W. 72d St.
New York City
The Sunshine Shoppe

FAMOUS STEIN BOOKLET
FREE
"HOW TO MAKE UP"
Complete instruction in the "Art of Make-Up" for amateur and professional use. Straight roles, character roles, etc. 16 pages in color. Free to anyone. Write
STEIN COSMETIC CO.
Dept. 50, 51 Madison Ave., N.Y.

Guerrini & Co.
The Largest and Largest ACCORDEON FACTORY
in the United States
The only Factory that makes any of it's Reeds — made by hand
277-279 Columbus Avenue
San Francisco Cal.
Free Catalogue

STRICTLY UNION MADE
H&M Theatrical Trunks
Hartmann, Oshkosh & Mendel Trunks
ALL MODELS—ALL SIZES ON HAND AT GREATLY REDUCED PRICES
COSTUME—SCENERY—PROPS
Also 1,000 USED TRUNKS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION, $5 and Up
WE DO REPAIRING WRITE FOR CATALOG
SAMUEL NATHANS, Inc.
568 Seventh Avenue, between 40th and 41st Streets, New York City
SOLE AGENTS FOR H & M TRUNKS IN THE EAST
Phones: Longacre 6197, Pennsylvania 9604

SYRACUSE

By CHESTER B. BAHN

Loew's—"Bat Whispers."
Keith's—"Big Money"; vaude.
Warners Strand—"Life of Party."
Paramount—"Tom Sawyer."
Fox-Eckel—"Just Imagine."
Empire—Dark.
Syracuse—Vaudfilm.

Paramount's first birthday with "Morocco," which opens Friday (5), Fox-Eckel currently marking 17th anniversary with "Just Imagine."

Neighborhood houses, whose standby in the past has been juvenile trade, particularly over the week-end, will fight to hold the kids, for whose patronage the de luxe downtown chain theatres are angling with special Saturday matinees and "clubs."

Lawrence Carkey, operating the Olympic, Utica, hopped to the stunt of utilizing unemployed to sell theatre tickets. He has 125 of the jobless peddling the Olympic pasteboards on commission. Mayor Donnelley in a personal letter of indorsement gave Carkey a pat on the back.

Leo Rosen, managing the Strand for Warners, pulled a fast one in his newspaper copy when he boxed the question, "Have you seen our new 3d dimension projection?" House, of course, hasn't a third dimension picture, but has $12,000 worth of new booth equipment, which Rosen determined had to be "sold" some way.

Free voice tests are the rule at the Paramount. Raymond B. Jones, managing director, tying up with the local Victor distributor, has installed one of the new record-making outfits on the mezzanine, and voice tests of patrons are being turned out at the rate of one every two minutes. Test records are a gift to the patrons after the play back to the theatre.

"Tom Sawyer," which opened at 6 p. m. last Wednesday at the Paramount, up to Monday had established a house attendance record. On a monetary basis it was a slightly different story, for the picture has been a strong matinee bet but weak at nights. Kid trade has been great, although earlier local films supposedly with a juvenile appeal—"The Big Trail," "Abraham Lincoln" and "Feet First"—failed to get the youngsters.

James McPeek is the new assistant manager at R-K-O Keith's, succeeding John D. Appleton, transferred to Proctor's at Troy. McPeek comes to the Keith circuit after three years with Publix in New York.

Loew's State will shelve Grace Moore's "A Lady's Morals," despite the fat advertising the Cosmopolitan production would have received in the local Hearst sheets. The house will probably play "Way for a Sailor."

Raymond B. Jones, Paramount pilot, was all set to cover local board fences with "Tom Sawyer" play dates, hand painted by his house staff, only to discover that the city was entirely without the old fences that were the rule in Tom Sawyer's day and later.

Jones did, however, put over an elaborate campaign for the picture. Local interest in Jackie, whose dad was born and raised here, was capitalized by inviting the Coogan clan to the preview.

The schools were intensively cultivated via telegrams, letters and heralds. With the approval of the school authorities—a plum in Jones' cap, for the educators here are cold—Jones invited one student from each English class in each school to see the picture; in return, the student gave an oral review before his class.

Picture was also used to give a send-off to the Paramount Booster Club, kid patron organization, formed on Saturday morning. Jones made a good tie-up for the club when he enrolled the fife and drum corps of the House of Providence as honorary members. The corps will attend each Saturday morning kid show and provide the musical numbers. No charge either way.

DALLAS

By RUDY DONAT

Majestic—"Reliable David"; vaude.
Palace—"Min and Bill."
Melba—"Passion Flower."
Old Mill—"Moby Dick."
Capitol—"East Is West."

Forest (suburb), increasing capacity to 1,000 seats.

"Strange Interlude" (road) here Dec. 10-11, with heavy advance buildup as second legit of season. Usual top, $2.50. "Strictly Dishonorable," first show, did good biz.

Doug Hawley, new dramatic critic for Times-Herald, replacing Jack Boal. Latter in Hollywood, free lancing.

Noel Francis, local girl, now under contract to Radio (films), beginning Dec. 15, completing her first year in pictures with Fox.

LETTERS

When Sending for Mail to VARIETY, Address Mail Clerk.

POSTCARDS, ADVERTISING OR CIRCULAR LETTERS WILL NOT BE ADVERTISED

LETTERS ADVERTISED IN ONE ISSUE ONLY

Achs Charles
Berowitz David
Cahill Mr
Cathro James L
Fisher May
Girard Harry
Goll Daisy
Healy Betty
Howells John Mead
Irwin Vic
Kuhlman L M Mrs
Koran the Great
La Carle A Co
Moore William
Morlen Billy
Parker Edith
Rayner Allan
Richards Ralph
Slater Fred
Wilson Robert

CHICAGO OFFICE

Anderson Lucille
Forbes Bros
Gilbert Bert
Hughes & Manring
Harrison Mrs
Leicester
Jones Davey
Koretz Mintor
Monror Jack
Myers Tim
Offerman George
Robertson Mr. L E
Smith Rex
White Mrs J F

DETROIT

By LEE ELMAN

Michigan—"Fast and Loose."
Fox—"Lightnin'."
Fisher—"Tom Sawyer."
R-K-O Downtown—"Sin Takes a Holiday."
United Artists—"Hell's Angels" (3d week).
Paramount—"Sunny."
State—"Min and Bill" (2d week).

"Sons o' Guns" pushed ahead a week to current week at the Cass due to house being dark. "June Moon" slated Xmas week.

Civic theatre produces revival of "Little Women" with Jessie Bonstelle personally appearing.

Flo Kelly (F. & M. production) adding Niagara Falls to her territory. Her other spots are Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis.

Four Marx Bros. here week Dec. 12 at the Michigan. Moran and Mack play the same house the following week.

MINNEAPOLIS

Metropolitan—"Death Takes a Holiday."
Lyceum—Dark.
Shubert—"Rose of Picardy". (Bainbridge stock).
Minnesota—"Tom Sawyer"; Publix unit, "Harem Hokum."
R-K-O Orpheum—"Sin Takes a Holiday"; vaude.
Gayety—Stock burlesque.
Century—"Hell's Angels."
State—"The Life of the Party."
R-K-O Seventh St.—"See America Thirst."
Lyric—"The Virtuous Sin."
Pantages—"The Third Alarm."
Astor—"College Lovers."
Grand—"Laughter" (2d loop run).

"Hell's Angels" at the Century opened with a midnight show Thanksgiving eve at regular 75c scale.

The Metropolitan, with "Death Takes a Holiday," has no legit opposition at the Lyceum. Next show at latter house is Nazimova in the Theatre Guild's "A Month in the Country," New Year's week.

The State (Publix) adding a featured organist, Jake Malerich, to its programs, formerly straight film entertainment.

Clarence Darrow with two local clergymen and Quin O'Brien, prominent Knight of Columbus, at the Auditorium for a one-night stand last week. Drew over $5,000 at $2 top.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF.

By LON J. SMITH

Spreckels—"Rich People."
Fox Orpheum—"Big Trail."
Fay—"Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," with May Robson (stock).
Fox—"The Perfect."
Fox California—"Fast and Loose."
Cabrillo—"Half Shot at Sunrise" (2d week).
Superba—"Sunny."
Broadway—"Honey."
Mission—"Animal Crackers."
Plaza—"Hell's Angels."
Fox Egyptian—"For the Defense."
Fox North Park—"Her Wedding Night."
Fox Fairmount—"Follow Thru."
Liberty—Stock burlesque.

Business in picture houses moderately good this week with "Hell's Angels" (Plaza) and "The Big Trail" (Fox Orpheum) leaders at the box office.

Balboa, dark some time, being remodeled by Fox West Coast in preparation for showing Spanish talkers. Work under supervision of Lester Fountain, Fox manager here. No date for the opening.

Jamie Erlson now at the console of Fox Orpheum organ.

Economy wave has hit Mission Beach Amusement Center. Tom Armstrong, manager for five years, is out. Bathhouse closed and ballroom struggling along.

PITTSBURGH

By HAROLD W. COHEN

Alvin—"June Moon."
Nixon—"Garrick Gaieties."
Pitt—"She Got What She Wanted" (Sharp stock).
Academy—Burlesque (Mutual).

Pictures

Penn—"Hell's Angels"; stage show.
Stanley—"Big Money"; stage show.
Warner—"Just Imagine."
Fulton—"Sin Takes a Holiday."
Harris—"Brothers"; vaude.
Aldine—"Devil With Women."
Enright—"Truth About Youth"; stage show.
Sheridan Sq.—"Sin Takes a Holiday."

Post-Gazette's benefit show for unemployed at Stanley grossed $6,000 (capacity). Ed Lowry acted as m. c., and bill included Fred Stone, Dorothy and Paula Stone, Phil Baker, Aileen Stanley, Shaw and Lee and Henry Santrey.

"Hell's Angels" goes into Aldine for run after present week at Penn. First time this has ever happened here.

Larry Jacobs now managing Fulton, following resignation of William B. Conklin.

SAN FRANCISCO

By WALTER RIVERS

Earl Crabb with Fox West Coast as division manager for Seattle district, replaced by Robert Lender, formerly with Universal.

Ralph Fincus will produce "Lost Sheep" at Erlanger's Columbia here shortly.

Fred Talbot was caught red-handed after looting the safe of the California theatre in Petaluma, near here, last week. Three of Talbot's companions escaped. James Ayres, theatre employe, heard the robbers and called the police. Talbot reported to have had $900 of the theatre's money in his pocket when captured.

"The Green Bottle" booked for Erlanger's Columbia direct from its Vine Street Hollywood run, to follow Mrs. Pat Campbell in "Ghosts," has been cancelled.

Junior League (society debs) instead of its annual show "or charity has closed with Publix whereby latter will buy a special preview performance of "Morocco," scheduled to open at Paramount here this week.

SOUTHERN TIER, N. Y.

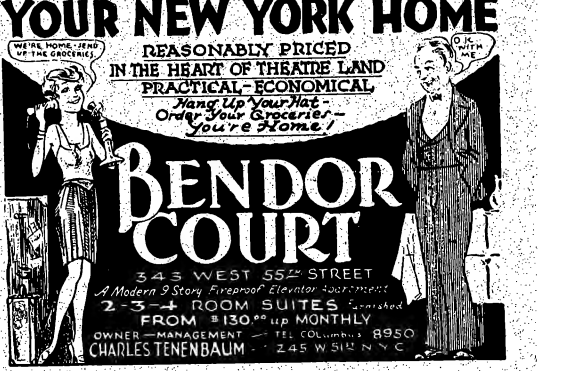
By PAUL M. WILDRICK

An ordinance permitting Sunday picture shows became effective Nov. 23 in Binghamton, N. Y.

The Crescent, Ithaca, N. Y., closed to install talker equipment; Lyceum also closed for the present, leaving Cornell Theatres, Inc., with a clear field, State, Strand and Temple.

Fred Albert Atwood, 56, father of Betty Atwood Jordan, New York film actress, was instantly killed when a splinter of wood hit him on the head while he was operating a turning machine in a Hornell, N. Y., woodworking plant.

Warner Bros., who control the Majestic and recently took a 25-year lease on the Shattuck, Hornell theatres, contemplate rebuilding the Shattuck.



Mutual Wheel

Weeks Dec. 1-8

Arlingtons Rev.—Hudson, Schenectady; 8, L. O.
Big Rev.—Gayety, Brooklyn; 8, Empire, Newark.
Dimpled Darlings—Garrick, St. Louis; 8, L. O.
Fine Feathers—Gayety, Baltimore; 8, Gayety, Washington.
Flapper Follies—Gayety, Detroit; 8, Columbia, Cleveland.
Frivolities—Orpheum, Paterson; 8, L. O.
Girls From the Follies—L. O.; 8, Trocadero, Philadelphia.
Girls in Blue—Trocadero, Philadelphia; 8, Roxy, N. Y.
Hi Ho Everybody—Academy, Pittsburgh; 8, L. O.
Jazz Babies—L. O.; 8, Gayety, Boston.
Kuddling Kuties—L. O.; 8, Hudson, Union City.
Lame Thru Gayety, Boston; 8, Lyric, Bridgeport.
Legs and Laughter—Modern, Providence; 8, Gayety, Boston.
Let's Go—Fox's Jamaica, N. Y.; 8, Irving Place, N. Y.
Nite Life in Paris—L. O.; 8, Modern, Providence.
Novelties of 1930—Columbia, Cleveland; 8, Hudson, Schenectady.
Opening Act—Empress, Cincinnati; 8 Garrick, St. Louis.
Peek-a-Boo—Hudson, Union City; 8, L. O.
Pretty Baby Rev.—Star, Brooklyn; 8, Howard, Boston.
Raisin Queen—Howard, Boston; 8, L. O.
Record Breakers—Irving Place, N. Y.; 8, Star, Brooklyn.
Sin Stockings—Rialto, Chicago; 8, Gayety, Detroit.
Step Lively Girls—Lyric, Bridgeport; 8, H. & S. Apollo, N. Y.
Step Along—Apollo, N. Y.; 8, Fox's Jamaica, N. Y.
Speed Girls—L. O.; 8, Rialto, Chicago.
Speed and Sparkle—L. O.; 8, Empire, Cleveland.
Sugar Babies—Gayety, Washington; 8, Academy, Pittsburgh.
Take a Chance—Empire, Newark; 8, Orpheum, Paterson.
20th Century Rev.—Route 1; 8, Gayety, Baltimore.
Watson Show—American N. Y.; 8, Gayety, Brooklyn.

HOTELS FOR SHOW PEOPLE

YOUR NEW YORK HOME
REASONABLY PRICED
IN THE HEART OF THEATRE LAND
PRACTICAL-ECONOMICAL
Hang Up Your Hat—Order Your Groceries—You're Home!

BENDOR COURT
343 WEST 55TH STREET
A Modern 9 Story Fireproof Elevator Apartment
2-3-4 ROOM SUITES Furnished
FROM $130.00 up MONTHLY
OWNER—MANAGEMENT — TEL. Columbus 8950
CHARLES TENENBAUM - - 245 W. 51st N.Y.C.

Phone: LONGACRE 6805 GEO. P. SCHNEIDER, Prop.
THE BERTHA FURNISHED APARTMENTS
COMPLETE FOR HOUSEKEEPING. CLEAN AND AIRY.
325 West 43rd Street NEW YORK CITY
Private Bath. 3-4 Rooms. Catering to the comfort and convenience of the profession.
STEAM HEAT AND ELECTRIC LIGHT. $15.00 UP Mrs. Jackson now in charge

THE CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN CLUB, Inc.
1010 SPRUCE STREET, PHILADELPHIA
CLOSE TO ALL DOWN-TOWN THEATRES
ORGANIZED IN 1907 FOR THE ACTRESS ON TOUR
RATES: Single Room, $18-$20; Double Rooms, Single Beds, $17-$18; three and four in room, single beds, $15-$16. This includes meals. Coffee and rolls, 9 to 10 A. M. Served in room if desired. Full breakfast, 12 noon; dinner, 6:30 to 6:30. Supper after theatre.
Annual Dues, $1.00. Address, Mrs. Edith S. Rice, House Secretary, 1010 Spruce Street. Phone, Pennypacker 3915

MUTUAL STOCKS

(Continued from page 54)

Minskys, who also are in on the H. & S., now Apollo, playing Mutual shows.

Brooklyn—Oxford, indie; reported Star and Gayety, Sam Raymond's present Mutuals, will install stock if the Mutuals withdraw, with denials that such a move is contemplated.

Detroit—Loop, indie, managed by Harry Abbott; Avenue, operated by Arthur Clamage, former Mutual operator; National, indie, with Vic Travers at the helm.

Chicago—State-Congress, one of the Mansbach & Frelich houses, indies; Haymarket, former Mutual stand, now an indie with Warren Irons controlling; Academy, indie, managed by N. S. Berger; Gem, also running independently.

Indianapolis—Mutual theatre, former Mutual wheel stand, owned and managed as indie by Duke Black; Colonial, indie under local direction.

Boston—Waldron's Casino, now indie stock, but former Mutual.

St. Louis—Liberty Music Hall, local indie.

Buffalo—Palace, Dewey Michaels.

Dayton, O.—Lyric, indie; James Morrison managing.

Milwaukee—Gayety, indie, Bob Simons, manager.

Kansas City—Gayety, indie, Jack Dickstein, manager.

Toledo—Empire, indie.

Los Angeles—Follies, indie, Grover Welsh, manager.

San Diego, Cal.—Liberty, indie.

San Francisco—Capitol, indie, Johnny Goldsmith, manager.

Minneapolis—Gayety, indie.

Scranton, Pa.—Gayety, indie, Spiegel Bros., managers.

Philadelphia—Trocadero, indie, John Beck, manager.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Majestic, indie, Joe DeRita, manager.

Society Welcomes Actor

(Continued from page 1)

and talkers. But more important than these in bringing about the new regime is the billowing of Broadway chatter reaching the ears and creating an interest in the affairs of the people of the stage. They are now looked upon by the native as most interesting and vital people in the community.

Mel Shauer of Par cut-short biz stay on the Coast to hurry back east because of the illness of E. E. Shauer, undergoing an operation for appendicitis in NY.

VARIETY BILLS

(Continued from page 46)

2 Rascals
Rob Cinsee
The Decardos
Hyden Curtis
Geo Hetton

NEWCASTLE
Empire

Scott & Whaley
Albert Saudler
Jean Kennedy
Betty Stafford
Austal & Arthur
The Bostons
The Kirks
Norman Clare

SWANSEA
Empire

Samson
Sweet & Curtis
Victoria, Carmen
Stan Stafford
Aston Bros
Nikolai Sisy
Antinette & Kibl
Mr. & Mrs Toby

CABARET BILLS

NEW YORK CITY

Barney's
Walter O'Keefe
Bobby Dolan Orch

Benny Aris
Katherine Parsons
Roger Fercier
Gladys Ivanova
Wilma Cox
Marihare's Orch

Central P'k Casino
Ethel Merman
De Marcos
Leo Reisman Orch

Chateau Madrid
Joe Lewis
Kahl
Anne Bolan
Al Jackers Orch

Club Abbey
Jean Malin
Lester Lamont
Billy Reed
Jerry Freedman Or

Club Argonaut
Texas Guinan
The Cronadiers

Club Calais
Arthur Budd
Jackie Maye
Frances Fay
Sue Austin
Mildred & Maurice
Lew Bruns Orch

Club Lido
Libby Holman
Moss & Fontana
Bobby Brooks Orch

Connie's Inn
A'da Ward
Edith Wilson
Louise Cook
Earl Turner
Dooty Rhodes

F Henderson Orch

Cotton Club
Isabelle Wehlingt'n
Maude Russell
Sherman Robinson
Letitia Hill
Mordie & Taylor
Swan & Lee
Henri Wessels
Duke Ellington Or

El Patio
Gomez & Winona
Emil Coleman Orch

Hollywood
Marion Sakt
John & Mary Mason
Heidel Sis
N T G Rev
Katz Orch

Paramount Grill
Kay Lazell
Hal Leroy
Jackie Ellers
Jerry Kendall
Vilma & Buddy Ebsen
Chas. O'Connor
Benny Dams Rev
Flo Richardson Or

Salon Royal
Elizabeth Welsh
Kid Sneeze
Opal Cooper
Sammy Richardson
International Orch

The Nest
Hannah Sylvester
Zottie Gee
Gwendolyn Posey
Clyde Parks
Mamie Smith
Villa Vallee
Eddie Peabody
Rudy Vallee Orch

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

By DON RECORD

Lyceum—Dark.
R-K-O Palace—"The Master Cradle."
R-K-O Temple—"Brothers"; "A Devil With Women."
Loew's Rochester—"Min and Bill."
Eastman—"Three Live Ghosts."
Regent—"Tom Sawyer."
Piccadilly—"Hell's Angels."
Capitol—"Coffee, Wife."
Apollo—Change.
Strand—Change.
Family—Change.

When "Heads Up" failed to click at the Regent, shift made to "Tom Sawyer" to draw school kids over the holiday.

Martha Atwell, former head scenario department for Eastman theatre stage shows, has joined the Sound Studios of New York as creator of radio program presentations.

Apollo remodeled Victorial dark a year, reopened Thanksgiving day with second-run talkers at 10-20c.

EQUITY IN FACT
as well as in name . . .

Ofttimes those who give most freely are not without need themselves

TODAY at the
I. MILLER Custom Shoe Salon
(562 Fifth Avenue)
ROBERT HALLIDAY
and EVELYN HERBERT
Famous Operetta Stars

•

TODAY at the
I. MILLER BROADWAY SHOP
(Broadway at 46th Street)
HERBERT RAWLINSON
Idol of the Movies
and MIRIAM HOPKINS
Famous Stage and Screen Star

•

TODAY at the
I. MILLER 34TH STREET STORE
(opposite Hotel McAlpin)
CLAIBORNE FOSTER
Famous Stage Star of "The Patsy" and ALEXANDER KIRKLAND
Theatre Guild Star

•

TODAY at the
I. MILLER FIFTH AVENUE STORE
(450 Fifth Avenue, below 40th)
FRANCES STARR
Famous Belasco Star
and RICHARD TABER
Author and Actor of "Is Zat So?"

•

TODAY at the
I. MILLER BROOKLYN STORE
(498 Fulton Street, corner Bond)
DONALD McDONALD
Famous Star of "Paris Bound" and RUTH HAMMOND
Famous Star of "Saturday's Children"

•

Sponsored by the
ACTORS' EQUITY ASSOCIATION
In co-operation with I. MILLER

MEMBERS of the Theatrical Profession have always given their time and talents gratuitously to worthy causes and movements, that have needed their help in the raising of funds for public welfare.

Even now they are being called upon to lend their services for the relief of the unemployed — and everywhere they are responding willingly and gladly. This they do regardless of the fact that within their own ranks there exists a condition which taxes their own resources and makes immediate action for relief a necessity.

Recognizing this condition and need, a plan has been devised whereby the public, without tax to itself, can materially assist not only the unemployed of the Actors' Equity Association, but also a number of other organizations engaged in welfare work.

The plan was conceived by I. Miller and the Actors' Equity Association, and was readily accepted by both because of the long and intimate friendship which has always existed between these institutions, and because of the extreme urgency of current conditions.

Here is the Plan:

I. MILLER HAS AGREED TO SET ASIDE 10% OF THE SALES OF HIS FIVE METROPOLITAN STORES as a Special Unemployment Fund. This arrangement will be continued until an appreciable sum has been realized.

During this time the entire sales supervision of these five I. Miller stores will be turned over to the Actors' Equity Association. This Special Unemployment Fund is to be distributed as follows:

50% to be donated by the Actors' Equity Association to the Actors' Fund, a fund for the unemployed.
20% for other organizations carrying on relief work among the unemployed.
5% for the Jewish Theatrical Guild.
5% for the Catholic Theatrical Guild.
5% for the Episcopalian Theatrical Guild.
5% for the Equity Emergency Fund.
5% for the Chorus Equity Emergency Fund.
5% for the N.V.A. Benevolent Fund.

Well-known celebrities of the stage will act as Sales Supervisors, Hosts, and Hostesses in the various I. Miller stores during this campaign. Announcements will be made daily giving the names of these actors and actresses, together with the addresses of the stores in which they will be present on particular days.

It is sincerely hoped that the public will recognize the timely significance of this praiseworthy effort, and respond with its immediate, spirited, and whole-hearted cooperation.

Sponsored by the
ACTORS' EQUITY ASSOCIATION IN COOPERATION WITH I. MILLER

SCREEN | HOLLYWOOD | BROADWAY | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 25¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th St., New York, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $10. Single copies, 25 cents.
Entered as second-class matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.
COPYRIGHT, 1930, BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

VOL. 100. No. 22 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1930 72 PAGES

CHINATOWN GONE B'WAY

No. 2 Night Club Furnishes Cheap Revelry to Femme Wall Flowers

By Cecelia Ager

Perfect ladies who like to dance between bits of their lunch hour sandwich don't have to depend on chop suey parlors any more. They can take their pleasure now in a most respectable tea room at Broadway and 52nd street, which has a nine-piece orchestra for just such a purpose.

These girls with a yen for noontime dancing always felt just a little demi-mondaine when they'd resort to a Chinese spot to satisfy their urge for revelry. Something about the dim lighting and faintly suggestive privacy of the dining booths didn't seem quite decent to young women who would dance with each other. They had to dance with each other, since their unfortunate lack of personal charms forced them into the very proper class which doesn't seem to attract many boy-friends. Not the type of gals who go places unescorted by males with the purpose of collecting some before the day is over, perfect ladies have found a refuge in a Broadway tea-room that is run for just the likes of them.

The 65c lunch is not too steep and the orchestra plays often. Although it doesn't bother to dress in uniform, the band is a singing bunch with megaphones to swell their already resounding tones. It gets hot, it croons, it does all the things that bands should do today. If it does seem to suffer from an excess of pep, it is only trying to make up for the dejection of the crowd it has to play to. The floor

(Continued on page 30)

PANSY PARLORS

Tough Chicago Has Epidemic of Male Butterflies

Chicago, Dec. 9.

World's toughest town, Chicago, is going pansy. And liking it.

Within the past six months some 35 new dim lit tea rooms, operated by boys who won't throw open the doors until at least two hours have been spent adjusting the drapes just so, have opened on the near northside. The southside of Chi, always reputed to be ready for battle any minute, also has had an increase of these sort of joints.

All have waitresses who are lads in gal's clothing. They are strong on the urge for single young men to sip tea in the little booths that line the walls of the spots.

Men with femme companions are welcome in these joints. Likewise all have duke readers. The readers pass for femmes in the dark.

Racketeers, who have made the near northside their playground for some years, have gone strong for these boy joints in a big way. It's evidently something new for these gun toting lads and they are supporting them nobly for the laughs.

Critic's All-American

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 9.

George David, film critic for the "Democrat and Chronicle," printed the following as his All-American team:

Ends—Dorothy Mackaill and Clara Bow.

Tackles—Gloria Swanson and Ilka Chase. Guards and center—Marie Dressler.

Quarterback—Ann Harding or Ruth Chatterton. Halfbacks Claudette Colbert and Nancy Carroll.

Fullback—Winnie Lightner.

Sub—Buddy Rogers.

'Alimony' Magazine for Alimony Sufferers in Alimony Cash Deals

Group interested in altering divorce laws, with particular respect to alleviating the alimony evil, is behind a mag called "Alimony." Might be the official organ of the "Alimony Club" in New York, in view of its contents.

Uses numerous articles each issue from various states with reference to the injustice of the domestic relations laws. Most of them funniest when intended to be most serious, though serious enough in their implication.

Mag insists contributors be all-mony-sufferers, but perhaps without realizing that money so paid out may go towards alimony payment, which it particularly agitates against.

Fannie Ward's Age

With no one but Fannie Ward knowing just how old she is, General Pershing came nearest to finding out.

Miss Ward was telling the General of the dismay she underwent on her first flight in a plane from London to Paris.

"How do you think, Fannie, you would have felt with Columbus on that little boat to this country?"

"I came over with him," answered the evergreen.

Girls Will Be Girls

Toronto, Dec. 9.

Imperial theatre invited the inmates of an old people's home to a free film performance, but the feminine inmates requested that the invitation be postponed until Maurice Chevalier in "Playboy of Paris," is current.

The "girls" range in age from 75 to 90.

TONGS LED BY COLLEGE GRADS

Marcelled Haired Yellow Waitresses in the Chinese District of New York—Beauty Shops, Too—Plenty of White Wives

ORIGINAL GANGLAND

Chinatown has gone Broadway. Even little yellow waitresses are having their hair marcelled in the best American fashion. Beauty shops are more numerous than joss houses.

Opium costs $300 a pound, triple that of a few years ago. Clay and briar pipes and an abundance of good 10c American tobacco are to be found everywhere.

Privately, the Asiatics indulge their taste for a 118-proof vintage that put Broadway's best pre-war stuff above the table. Three thimblefulls of this and a Broadwayite is ready to join any Tong. Four and he's demanding classification as a machine gunner.

Those Chinese tongs no longer have greybeards ruling their destiny. High powered young men, a lot of them college bred, have the big secret service jobs. One just back from a long trip over the country is a graduate of the University of California. Another, this one with cane, spats and camel's hair coat, remembers Hollywood and a job he had there as a chauffeur.

Chinatown's real denizens look with askance at the breadline which mars one of its thoroughfares late each night. A survey revealed not

(Continued on page 30)

100 WOMEN DIG HIT TICKETS FOR GYPS

Over 100 women employed by ticket specs to "dig" tickets on hit shows are earning $5 or more per day sniping seats. Working on a regular schedule, the women make the rounds of every hit box office, brokers and Postal offices and Joe Leblang's central agency. It is estimated by the manager of a hit that each woman buys upwards of 50 tickets daily.

The women are paid 10c per ticket.

In addition to the 52d street laundry now selling seats for "Girl Crazy," restaurants and a tailor shop on 40th street are specializing on tickets for "Grand Hotel."

Holiday Liquor Prices Drop 40%, Supply Over Demand—Uncut Stuff

Xmas Quotations

Rye—Golden Wedding, William Penn, Silver Dollar: $65 a case as against $95 last year.

Scotch—John Haig, Black and White, Bobby Burns, Peter Dawson, Dewar's White Label: $55. Last year's price, $85.

Gin—Booth's House of Lords, Gilbey's, Gordon's (frosted bottle), Burnett's White Satin: Now $55 and plentiful. Was $90 last year and hard to get.

Champagne — Pommery (1920), Lanson (1921), Dry Monopole (1921): currently $85, and was quoted at $135 a year ago.

Cordials and liqueurs—Benedictine, Cointreau, Apricot, Chartreuse: $75 as compared to $115 a year ago.

Cognac and brandy—Hennessey Three Star, Biscuit Dubouche, Martell Three Star, Otard: Now $70. Listed at $115 last year.

CALIF. THEATRES TRY ADMISSIONS ON CUFF TO OFFSET DULLNESS

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Theatre admissions on the cuff are a new indication of the times, reported here by film salesmen from the small towns in northern California.

Exhibitors are now taking their place with the corner grocer and the doctor. They have installed bookkeeping system to keep tally on the trust customers.

Trust gag is only working for families known to the theatre man. In some cases the exhibs send out weekly bills, while others let the credits go a month. Film salesmen now look forward to a new type of squawking from the house owners, along the line that "business is fair but collections are terrible."

NBC Fires 50 Off Staff; Benefit for Unemployed

In a cutdown affecting every department, about 50 employees were pruned off the NBC radio payroll last week. While execs placed the number fired at 30, others set the higher figure. No execs were released.

Reason offered is that the company is running too close, despite a greater intake than ever before.

NBC is shortly to broadcast a football game for the benefit of the unemployed.

Wholesale bootleggers, who figure their only chance of getting out of the red this year depends on the Christmas and New Year's trade, have again slashed prices on case lots to the consumer to stimulate early buying. With the holiday season only two weeks off, those who regularly keep up a supply of liquor in their homes or offices are beginning to show some interest, but most of the New York trading is being done on credit.

Those who pay cash can now get the better grades of rye for $65 a case scotch for $55, gin for $55, champagne for $85, cordials and liqueurs for $75 and cognac and brandy at $70. The entire list averages about 40% under the prices quoted at this time last year.

With the supply of New York liquor now far in excess of the demand, those bootleggers who have built up a solid clientele, through handling only quality goods, are doing their utmost to move the stock they have on hand and eliminate carrying charges. As a result, "McCoy," or original liquor of all kinds, is selling at $5 a case less than the prices quoted for the same brands last month. In previous years, with the demand heavy, the case lot prices quoted in November

(Continued on page 56)

Mary Garden Quitting Opera for Pictures

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Mary Garden, Chicago Civic Opera's best-known star, may retire from opera at the end of the present season in February. Miss Garden has been with this Chicago organization since its inception in 1910.

It is understood that Miss Garden has made successful screen tests in Hollywood and will star in a film to be made next summer.

The name of the producer of this picture is not mentioned.

Line Up for Poison

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Last week police discovered a druggist in the flop house district who was selling the down-and-outers wood alcohol, although he knew they were going to drink the stuff.

Bottles were plainly labeled poison, but the mugs were standing in line for the privilege of paying 50 cents for the suicide drink.

BROOKS
THE NAME YOU GO BY WHEN YOU GO TO BUY
COSTUMES
GOWNS AND UNIFORMS
1437 B'WAY, N.Y. TEL. 5580 PENN.
ALSO 25,000 COSTUMES TO RENT

Dane-Arthur Met Rockne, Who Told 'Em to Bet on U.S.C., and They Did

Karl Dane and George K. Arthur started out on a vaudeville tour, got as far as Chicago and found themselves without a job. They were prepared to go home to Hollywood and tell the folks that at least they'd met Knute Rockne, and as he had told them Southern California was sure to win, they'd bet their shirts and lost. However, in their moment of deepest despair, five weeks bookings came along and they wended their way east.

The pair met with one other mishap when they played Madison, Wis., and were entertained by the Kapa Kapa girls of Wisconsin University—entertained so well that Dane has hardly been on his feet since. Altogether, a big fellow like Dane is a hard partner to travel with Arthur says. He always has to have the lower berths and, besides, wants to sing in the act.

Dane hasn't been in New York in 10 years but doesn't see much difference outside the traffic. When he was here last everyone stayed down around 36th street. When he found no one down there he went up and stopped at the Alamac.

He says he finds the same offices around town, same people in them. Eschner of the William Morris office, who is booking him now, gave him one of his first jobs about 10 years ago. The same group of people are sticking at show business he finds. Dane, who always plays a Swedish character, is actually Danish. He'd be insulted to be called a Swede in private life.

Arthur's Side

And Arthur is rather glad to get out of Hollywood for awhile because he thinks the people and the life there is not sincere. No one sticks to anyone because of a genuine regard he feels. If a gas station starts giving away boxes of candy, everyone goes to that station instead of the one they had been patronizing. It's all pretty sad to Arthur. Also it is a relief to Arthur to talk to newspaper people in the east rather than on the Coast, where the picture people have gotten so in the habit of flattering and catering to the sob gals that relations with the press are almost sickening.

Performers on the Coast even try to discover the tastes and preferences of newspaper chatterers before they converse with them. Arthur had been told that the last sob sister who came to see him on the Coast liked a dirty story. He didn't know any but he asked someone to tell him one that he could relay. Later, he discovered that he had told the sobbie the same story that William Haines had told her the day before.

Dane and Arthur never mix socially because Arthur likes Ovaltine and Dane prefers other beverages.

Anderson Still Seeking U. Story at $3,500 Wkly.

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Universal is still without a story for John Murray Anderson. The director has been scanning scripts for the past four months, but neither he nor the studio can decide on one.

Meanwhile Anderson is getting $3,500 weekly.

Dud Nichols Acting

Dudley S. Nichols, former New York "World" feature writer, now under contract to Fox, may turn actor.

His first attempt is as a reporter in Fox' "The Man Who Came Back."

Wayne-Cherrill Team

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

John Wayne and Virginia Cherrill have been teamed again by Fox for the leads in "Three Girls Lost."

Production is still being held off pending story revamping.

"Never a man so good but what a good woman will make him better."

MR. AND MRS. JACK NORWORTH
130 West 44th Street
New York

Dusting the Attic

CLARK and McCULLOUGH
Comedy
13 Mins.; One
Hammerstein's
(From "Variety," Jan. 24, 1913)

Clark and McCullough might be technically termed a comedy acrobatic turn in "one." They introduce acrobatics among other things, but the act (and the best part of it) is made up of laughable nonsense. The two men dress as tramps. Each seems a good comedian.

The best thing they can do for themselves and the act is to have some real friend sit out front several shows, pick out the deadwood, pull the meat together more closely, and perhaps add some new matter.

The no-sig reviewer probably didn't think it necessary to mention the friend might also do some applauding.

Clark and McCullough were just out of burlesque when caught at the Hammerstein's almost 18 years ago. They've done all right since.

SPEAKER FINDS WHAT PUBLIC WANTS

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Public interest in Hollywood's morale is more acute than ever, according to the findings of Dr. Clinton Wunder, executive manager of the Motion Picture Academy. He is back after a speaking tour in behalf of pictures.

Dr. Wunder's trip included 18 cities, where he spoke before exhibs, women's club, and business organizations. He is preparing a report for distribution to producers and others in the academy.

Points gone into the Dr's report are as follows:

Public wants less dialog and sound effects.

Pictures appealing to children and the whole family are desired.

Family nights sugested.

Public has shown little interest in wide film.

Generally believed pictures are advertised as being much hotter from the sex angle than they actually are.

There is much misinformation about Hollywood extant with public thinking people still cavort as they did in the pre-Hays era.

People judge shows by the entire bill rather than the feature.

Women's clubs want to "co-operate."

Dr. Wunder notes the general belief that talking pictures are still on trial.

Judge Kelly Free

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Walter C. Kelly, "The Virginia Judge," is off the Fox lot, after completing his original three months' term. Kelly only worked in "The Seas Beneath" while doctoring the script of "Women of All Nations."

Kelly is now considering an offer from the Chevrolet Company in Detroit to broadcast over a national hook-up on a 26-week tie-up.

Two Off Via Chop

Hollywood, Dec. 2.

Another chop has been made in Metro's scenario department. Mildred Cram, novelist, and Wells Root, who adapted "Southern," are off.

Chaplin Fiddling

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Entire musical score for "City Lights," Charlie Chaplin's picture, is being written by Chaplin, turned composer and showing signs.

Chaplin is reported walking around with a violin and breaking in on all kinds of meetings to find out "what do you think of this tune."

WILL MAHONEY

On Tour with
Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book"

"Variety" said, "Will Mahoney inserted a sensational new dance in "Sketch Book." Going on after eleven o'clock, he stopped the show cold and had to beg off to permit the show to continue. The dance is done on a xylophone and Mahoney has the idea completely protected, having patented and copyrighted the idea and instrument throughout the entire world."

Direction
RALPH G. FARNUM
1560 Broadway

W. B.'s ST. LOUIS STOCK FOR BUILDING STARS

Warner Bros. will open a stock company at the Grand Central, St. Louis, Dec. 20. This is a Skouras house.

This may be the first of a string of stocks for the film co. The idea is to open up dark houses and take a chance that the casts may develop some picture talent. As it is generally known, Warners would like to freshen its lists of femme names at its own studio and that of First National.

The stock idea was first tried by Fox some time ago. It will also be depended upon by WB to line up new plays as prospective screen material.

Joseph Hayden will be in charge of the stock venture for WB.

STUDIO SANTA DUCKS COAST'S CHATTERERS

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Bad conditions this year take a Christmas slap at chatter writers, trade paper muggs and miscellaneous correspondents. Mob will be passed up entirely by the studio Santa Claus and his sleigh of electric clocks, cigs and happy water.

Studios will also save the trouble of meeting the usual pack of grafters who around this time of the year suddenly start to write studio stuff that never sees publication.

Foreign Talent West

Seven of the foreign talent bunch imported by Metro for version talkers left New York late last week for Culver City, after arriving from abroad.

They were Jean Blanchon and Roger Ferdinand, writers, and Charles Boyer, actor, all French; Maria Ladron Guevara and her husband, Rafael Rivalles, and Maria Luz Callejo, actors, and Benito Peroja, director, all Spanish.

WEATHER

Washington, Dec. 9.

The Weather Bureau furnished the following outlook week beginning tomorrow:

Fair Wednesday, and Thursday fair in eastern and rain in western sections. Friday, rain; Saturday, probably fair, slightly colder.

London, Dec. 9.

A great deal of fog last week with the condition this morning (Tuesday) the worst of the season. Objects were visible for only a yard or two. Street traffic just crawled.

Business was affected seriously with shipping almost at a standstill. Effect on the theatres was less disastrous than might have been expected.

Paris, Dec. 9.

Weather is normal and seasonably cold.

Blue Noses at Studio Gates Pan Hollywood Films as Kid Menace

How It Works

Ralph Morgan, legit player, returns to films for a part in Paramount's "Strictly Business," with Claudette Colbert, at the Astoria, L. I. studio. He is described by Par as "Frank Morgan's brother."

Before talkers Frank Morgan was generally known as "Ralph Morgan's brother."

Hollywood Nerts Over Art, but It Must Be on Cuff

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Portrait artists and painters coming to Hollywood in hope that they will strike a responsive chord in the hearts of the picture names are finding out that the picture mob is not interested in art if it costs anything.

Painters with both national and international reputations have been flocking to the Coast for the past six months and have been doing canvasses of everyone prominent in pictures. Every class hotel has stage exhibitions of the paintings and drawings, but there have been no sales.

When the mob visits to the shows there are plenty of "Oh's" and "Ah's," but there the enthusiasm stops. When it comes to digging down, their artistic appreciation stops with a trick camera angle.

Great Ballyhoo

One painter who has exhibited successfully here and in Europe came to Hollywood with a fanfare. He made 20 paintings of picture stars, then exhibited them at both the Roosevelt and Ambassador hotels. Plenty of breaks from the art critics on the dailies, and that was three months ago. Artist still has the 20 paintings.

The artist claims that everyone of those whose portraits he had made invited him to their homes or the studio. When he got there they told him what an honor it was for him to paint them and that it was going to do him a lot of good. When he replied that he expected to get paid for his work the chill was on. He said he was perfectly willing to keep the pictures for exhibition, but he was not giving them away. One star in dismissing him called him a sap.

Same goes for a Russian sculptor who made several busts of film stars.

Del Rio Ill Again

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Dolores Del Rio is laid up again, although for a while it seemed she was on the road to recovery.

Miss Del Rio, recently dropped from the United Artists line-up, is suffering from an aggravated kidney condition.

LILA LEE BACK FEB. 1

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Lila Lee, who has been resting in Arizona for some time from a run-down condition through overwork, is expected back Feb. 1.

On returning Miss Lee will go back with First National.

ERWIN ON STAGES

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Stuart Erwin, Paramount featured player, starts a Publix tour next week at Denver.

He will do a comedy act with a girl, probably Pauline Gaskins.

Slipping In

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Sue Carol and her husband, Nick Stuart, were due in Chicago Wednesday (10) on a "surprise" visit to Miss Carol's parents who live here.

Nobody knew they were coming except a dozen or so newspaper reporters.

While Paramount, through "Tom Sawyer," and other studios are angling to get kids back into the theatres, a religious publicity organization known as the Free Tract Society is carrying on an opposition campaign right in Hollywood.

Churchmen are distributing thousands of pamphlets. They work right at studio gates and have pretty thoroughly covered Hollywood and downtown Los Angeles.

Studio workers seem to be their mark. Stars coming out of clubs or theatres are handed the printed denunciations. The workers are obviously looking for conversions among Hollywood's gilded mob.

"Watchman, what of the night?" is the way one publicity sheet starts. Then it tells about sins kids are committing because of tricks learned on the screen. It also takes exception to the way the youngsters here do their tumbling, toe dancing and other tricks learned in dancing schools right out on the front lawn.

So far the publicity has been a loss.

HARRY AKST AS PIANO PLAYER IN 'JUNE MOON'

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

"June Moon" went into work today for Paramount with Harry Akst, songwriter, doing Harry Rosenthal's stage role.

Akst was chosen on his test above Rosenthal, Harry Green and Murray Smith, who played in the No. 2 company.

Harold Walridge was en route to the station to take the train east when Par recalled him for the nut role in "Moon," played on the stage by Philip Loeb. Walridge was slated to do the same part in the road tour of the stage play.

"Marius" with Colbert As French Film Only

"Marius," the Pagnol play which Gilbert Miller recently stage produced in New York as "Marseilles," will be done into a film by Paramount in its Joinville (France) studios.

Claudette Colbert will make the picture there.

Since a flop in New York, folding in less than two weeks, it is not thought an English version will be made.

SAILINGS

Dec. 27 (Paris to New York), Huguette (Mauretania).

Dec. 16 (Paris to New York), Mr. and Mrs. Messmore Kendall, Arthur Hornblow, Jr. (Olympic).

Dec. 16 (New York to London): Renee Macready (Mauretania).

Dec. 16 (Paris to New York) Laudy Lawrence (Paris).

Dec. 16 (London to New York) Henry Sherek (Leviathan).

Dec. 16 (Berlin to New York), Mary Wignan (Bremen).

Dec. 16 (Paris to New York), Dr. Julius Klein (Leviathan).

Dec. 16 (London to New York) Noble Sissle and Ambassadeurs Orchestra (Paris).

Dec. 11 (New York to Berlin), Seven Nelsons (Deutschland).

Dec. 10 (Paris to New York) Viola Brothers Shore, Wilma Shore (Lafayette).

Dec. 9 (Paris to New York), Galli Curci, N. B. Reid (Mauretania).

Dec. 8 (Paris to New York), Johanna Gadsky (Europa).

Dec. 7 (Paris to New York), Pola Negri (Europa).

Dec. 6 (New York to London), Dr. W. H. Schlesinger (Leviathan).

Dec. 6 (Berlin to New York), Arda Mae Edington (Europa).

Dec. 6 (New York to Berlin), Otto Allison, Three Allisons (Stuttgart).

Dec. 6 (New York to Buenos Aires): Guy P. Morgan (Southern France).

Dec. 5 (New York to London), Samuel Goldwyn (Bremen).

5,000 THEATRES FOR KIDS

Bank of Hollywood Closed With Show People's Money Tied Up in It

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

The Western Union Telegraph office and the Owl Drug store opposite the Bank of Hollywood, which failed to open its doors Monday (8), both did a bullish business due to the bank's not opening. New York actors were wiring for money and bromo seltzer was the most popular beverage.

Situated prominently on the corner of Vine and Hollywood, the bank was heavily patronized by picture people. Its frozen assets had been reported off and on with several insiders, notably Edward Small, the agent, finally withdrawing his account before Saturday closing and influencing his client, Jack Oakie, to do ditto.

Others arrived too late at noon when the word got around but were not permitted to make withdrawals.

The bank's assets and deposits are reported equal at about $4,000,000. Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Banks, stepped into possession when the bank could not pay off against checks.

Wood's statement was optimistic, and said that even if the bank were forced to liquidate, losses, if any, to depositors would be small. In typical sunshiny California spirit he declared this bank represented one-quarter of 1% of the total banking assets of Los Angeles.

In line with the bank's embarrassment, the Guaranty Building and Loan Association, one block away on Hollywood boulevard, had a run, through G. H. Blesmeyer, chairman of the board, and Samuel C. Kress, vice-president of the Bank of Hollywood, being also in on Guaranty. Latter bank exercised its prerogative of 30 days' withdrawal notice, thus stalling its clamoring depositors.

George R. Dexter, president of the Bank of Hollywood, issued a statement of optimism that within seven days everything would be adjusted. Wood hopes for a reopening to avoid liquidation but if unable within a week he would place the bank in liquidation. The bank was founded in 1922. It has a branch at Santa Monica boulevard and Vine.

Depositors

List of depositors reads like Hollywood's "Who's Who." A flock

(Continued on page 16)

Streger With Goldwyn

Paul Streger, young legit producer, has been engaged by Samuel Goldwyn as production assistant.

Streger, indie producer, produced "Sweet Stranger," a flop, this season. He had taken another show for production with Erlanger's but has called it off. Also associated with Bela Blau in producing "Overture."

Fairbankses Head East

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Doug Fairbanks, Jr., and his wife, Joan Crawford, will spend the holidays in New York. They leave here Dec. 15 and will vacation in the east until late January.

TALLULAH'S CAMPAIGN

Paramount will give Tallulah Bankhead a "Marlene Dietrich build-up" for her first American talker, "Her Past."

Miss Bankhead is due in New York from London about Jan. 20, with production to start at the Astoria lot immediately.

DELL OPTION LAPSES

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Warner Bros. will not exercise its option upon Claudia Dell.

Miss Dell originally came out from New York where she was a musical comedy player.

Big Hearted

(Reprinted from the "Hollywood Bulletin.)

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

A Boulevard barber shop has announced that layoff actors can get a free haircut and shave if they are up for a part.

Hollywood Layoffs Chisel 12 Mos. Free Rent—And Legally

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Several picture actors unable to get work are taking advantage of the California state laws protecting the buyer of a home against eviction.

Those who have been out of work for some time and can't meet the mortgage payments get sufficient protection from the state to keep them in their homes one year after they've quit digging down.

Out here it takes 60 days to serve the delinquent home owner and another four months to foreclose. After that the householder can hang on for another three months before he is tossed out.

When the sheriff finally knocks on the door, all the house owner has to do is get a statement from a doctor that any one member of his family cannot stand the rigors of eviction and he is set for another two or three months.

Weak-hearted Wives

Two leading men who have been out of work for nine months are taking advantage of the law and remaining in their homes in Beverly Hills, while the bloke holding the mortgage is whistling for his dough. Both claim their wives have weak hearts.

A former femme star has been living in a home valued at $45,000 for the past 11 months while a bank has been marking off the charges on its cuff. The lady claims she has been so affected physically through her inability to secure work that she is in danger of becoming a permanent semi-invalid. The last crack has the bank trying to get a part for her so it can get the house.

Maybe It's the "Von"

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Burned at her constant printed reference to him as "Joe Stern," Josef vonSternberg ordered Florabelle Muir, Hollywood correspondent of the New York "Daily News," to leave his "dishonored" set on the Paramount lot.

Josef stated his name always has been Sternberg and anybody claiming to remember him as the "Stern" person is in wrong with him right away.

Miss Muir was seeking an interview with the director. When told to scram is reported having snapped back, "Listen, buddy, I'll be in this business long after you are out."

Gilda Gray Announces Engagement to Brent

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Gilda Gray announced informally at a party that she is going to marry George Brent.

Latter is brother-in-law of Victor Watson, Hearst publisher.

Mexican Legit in Lead

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Virginia Fabregas, considered Mexico's foremost legit actress, arrived here Sunday (7), under contract to Metro or the Marie Dressler role in the Spanish "Min and Bill."

Miss Fabregas will return to the Mexican stage upon completion of this picture.

FILMS AND SHOWS FOR DARK HOUSES

Fox Lead in Jersey May Be Followed by Other Circuits—20,000,000 From 4 to 16—1,000 Houses Expected Now Available

IN DAYTIME ONLY

The kids between 4 and 16 have a weekly buying power of 20,000,000 tickets at the box offices. At an average of 20c per ticket it means additional revenue to filmdom of around $20,800,000 yearly.

The kids also hold the key to solving all censorship worries, and the reopening or placing on a profitable basis of some 5,000 darkened theatres.

What Fox has started in Jersey City is revealed inside to be actually the test cast of a new campaign to end, by satisfying the kid, censor clouds, dark houses and that fear of not having a good crop of fans from the next generation.

Not just running one kid picture a week will do it. Exhibitors have and are trying that angle with comparatively poor results.

The new idea, expected to be in 1,000 all-kid houses within the next six months, is to show only kid pictures in certain theatres. To widely publicize the fact throughout the country that such a house is all for the kiddie and his four or 16-year old screen palate. It is intended to run the show only in the daytime and to close the house at night.

Boundary Line

Big minds of the industry predict that before the end of 1931 filmdom in the United States will for the first time have two decided tastes—a boundary line between adult and child.

Already producers see where they can build up the adult trade with such demarcation. With kids out of the grown-ups' theatres altogether, adults can be treated as adults on the screen. In other words, it is admitted high on the inside, Hollywood is preparing to turn out really sophisticated dramas and at the same time westerns and nursery rhymes.

Parents of the nation will shortly be asked to co-operate with the industry; to steer their children to the specialized theatres. After that it's up to a round 10,000,000 youngsters of the important age period to do the rest. This co-operation will, it is anticipated, meet any local regulations concerning children entering a theatre by mutual arrangements with officials.

Film executives projecting the idea are certain that, once the child gets to know that a certain theatre in his locality is catering to his likes, he will prove himself 100% child.

The $400,000 a week which is the lowest gross estimated the child wave will wash up is practically pure gold, it is revealed. Those dark houses, many of them perfectly okay but antiquated by nearby competing palaces, can realize new life at no cost. In fact, the taxes being paid on them now would be worth the venture at first if paid by kid trade, it is pointed out.

Bancroft Renewal With Par Still Hot

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

George Bancroft's contract with Paramount expired Friday (5). Negotiations for a new contract continue, with the probability company will get together satisfactorily with Bancroft in a few weeks.

Meanwhile Bancroft is en route to New York for a week's engagement at the Paramount. He may also play a week at Paramount, Brooklyn.

"Scandal Sheet," Bancroft's last under the expired contract, was completed last week.

Tom Mix Forced to Clean Up His Son-in-Law When Sonny Got Fresh

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

It's just out in the inner circles that the last thing Tom Mix did before leaving here for the east, was to wash up his son-in-law when the latter got fresh, trying to show up Ruth's pop.

Tom had taken a bungalow near his daughter's and her husband, Douglas Gillmore, actor, of large stature, was with his wife. The western film ace had been in a hospital having his left shoulder braced up after an accident with the Sells-Floto circus last fall. Gillmore visited his father-in-law in the hospital and the two men seemed to be cultivating a mutual admiration for each other. This led to Tom spending his time in the Gillmores' home a good deal of the while.

One evening while Tom was in his own bungalow, Gillmore called with a man friend. A couple of fellows were visiting Tom at the time. Douglas seemed to have developed a grouch against Mix, and taunted Tom, saying he had heard he wasn't as nifty as reputed.

Mix accepted it as banter until Gillmore, towering over Mix, and 28 against his father-in-law's 47 or so, issued a boxing challenge. One of those tonight or never things made itself manifest and Mix decided it had to be.

Knocked Out 3 Times

After Gillmore was knocked cold and recovered, he was told by Tom to go home, behaving himself thereafter. Instead Gillmore went outside but returned for another bout. Again passing out with Tom exercising with the damaged left to see if it had fully recovered, Gillmore still wanted to fight when he went after his father-in-law for the third time.

The third was Gillmore's finish, for Tom wishing to return to the bridge game with his two friends, used both hands the last time.

The only reason ascribed locally as the possible cause of Gillmore's delayed rage is said to have been Mix's upheld application to court to relieve him of a $200 monthly payment to his 18-year old daughter, Ruth, by his first wife, following Ruth's recent marriage. At the time his application was granted, with Mix otherwise obligated to for the monthly payment to Ruth until she became 21, unless previously marrying, Mix declared he but wanted to be relieved of a court order and intended paying Ruth the amount regularly nevertheless.

How Mix feels now on the subject only he knows.

On Both Coasts

It happened.

Four or five guys lounging around a table in the Friars' grill, on 48th street, slumped back in their chairs, hats pushed off puckered brows, nothing to do but grouse about conditions, guessing what to do, wondering where to go.

After an hour of it, mumbled one:

"Geez, wish I was in New York tonight."

FAIRBANKS-PICKFORD PLAN OWN FINANCING

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford may return to producing their own pictures now and then instead of letting Joseph M. Schenck do the backing. After making their own films for years the two stars contracted with Schenck to finance them. Fairbanks made "Reaching for the Moon" and Miss Pickford is to do "Kiki" under this arrangement.

Through possibility of a future clash over stories the two stars and Schenck now have a new agreement. If Miss Pickford or Fairbanks find stories they like they can back themselves. There'll be the risk, but a chance for a bigger cut in on the profits.

If Schenck finds what he thinks is a good story he'll put up the money. Arrangement is expected to keep everybody happy.

Hollywood Famine on English Flap Players

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Swedish, Parisian and dark-eyed Spanish women are plentiful among the contract players in the studios, but English engenues are as scare as W.C.T.U.'s in a speakeasy.

Hollywood is flooded with English players, but most of them are men or character women. Girls who can act and deliver an English accent are in demand. Producers haven't been able to find enough of them, while English men and juves work on a bearish market.

Casting here for "Lost Sheep," old English play, was an easy matter except for leading femmes. Agent filled these parts a week after others were in the bag.

Sex Show Fine of $500

Calgary, Can., Dec. 9.

W. M. Davidson was fined $500 and costs here when he presented a sex-psychology show consisting of models on the stage, lecture and sex films.

Davidson later tried to open at Edmonton but was warned by the Alberta government that a larger penalty would be imposed.

Peggy in Hollywood, But Film Deal Cold

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce arrived here last week, apparently on spec. Miss Joyce had been reported submitted to Universal for the lead in "Fires of Youth" and "Lady of the Orchids." These deals may be cold now.

While under consideration, she decided to come west and take a chance.

RENEE MACREADY'S HOLIDAY

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Renee Macready, legit actress brought here by Radio Pictures and later released, is going to London for Christmas.

On returning Miss Macready will go into Metro's French version of "The Divorcee."

INDEX

Pictures	2-38
Foreign	6-7
Picture Reviews	15
Film House Reviews	46
Talking Shorts	15
Vaudeville	39-43
Vaude Reviews	44-46
New Acts	44
Bills	47
Times Square	48-51
Editorial	52
Women's Page	52-53
Legitimate	58-62
Literati	64
Music	65-67
Obituary	68
Correspondence	69-71
Radio	67
Night Clubs	66
Outdoors	68
Letter List	71
Inside—Pictures	53
Burlesque	54
Foreign Show News	56-57
Inside—Legit	65
Legit Reviews	62
News from the Dailies	54
Inside—Vaude	55

ROXY LEAVING BY JAN. 1ST FOR NBC AT $5,000 PER

Roxy (S. L. Rothafel) will sever his connection with the Roxy theatre and Fox theatres by Jan. 1. At that time the showman is expected to assume his new work as head of the broadcasting end of NBC, radio circuit and RCA subsidiary, until the Rockefeller Radio City is completed, when Rothafel will move over to direct that project.

Construction of Radio City is now under way, with demolition of certain buildings on the lots selected for the new venture.

Roxy will draw an increased salary at NBC of $5,000 weekly. Under his present contract the director of the Roxy theatre draws $3,000 per. The cancellation of the Fox contract was at Rothafel's request and mutually agreed upon. No financial emolument is included. The contract had over a year to go, not expiring until April, 1931, with a 5-year option from that date in favor of Fox.

Roxy's departure from the Roxy Theatre, which was built under his direction and which he developed, will send that theatre under the direct wing of Harry Arthur, general manager of Fox's eastern circuit, who managed the house during Roxy's vacation in Europe. M. Marco of Fanchon & Marco, will be in charge of the stage.

Whether this will bring about any changes of personnel or otherwise is not noted, although unlikely, as that being one of the specific conditions insisted upon by Roxy.

Roxy Title

The question of the house title was left sort of open. As it is given the Roxy Theatre will stick as is, but Rothafel may use the same name on any venture in which he may be interested, providing a distinguishing appendix such "new" or "own" is added.

Roxy is due as the guest of honor at the A.M.P.A. luncheon at the Dixie Hotel tomorrow (11), when he may or may not speak about his new plans. The luncheon, while planned as a personal tribute without knowledge of the contract settlement, now looms as a farewell gesture by the film boys to the showman, and it is being prepared on the big swing. All picture and radio editors have been invited, including the executives of NBC and RCA. The luncheon is at 1.

Le[illegible]'s Higher UA Spot As Goldwyn's Exec. Ass't

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

With Sam Goldwyn's assumption of the general production duties of the entire United Artists studio, Abraham Lehr moved up as general executive assistant to Goldwyn.

Al Brentinger continues as v. p. and g. m. of the studio corporation, but with Joseph M. Schenck bowing out of production to concentrate on the new U. A. circuit, and with Goldwyn stepping up into general production charge, Lehr's duties expand proportionately.

CONFIDENT

Ex-Film Salesman, Now Actor, Drops Contract for Freelancing

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Kane Richmond, featured in Universal's "Leather Pushers" series, is out at that studio. Richmond asked the studio to tear up his contract when his second option was up last week, believing he has a better chance as a freelancer. Contract called for five years with options.

Prior to being engaged by Universal, Richmond was a film salesman.

Metroites Resting

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Louis B. Mayer left last week for a fortnight's rest at the San Bernardino mountain resort.

Irving Thalberg and his wife will trip it to Europe after the holidays.

Pete Smith, Metro publicist, is resting at Santa Barbara. Smith has been on the sick list for the past month.

Some Reactions

A composite high school class of all grades was asked its theory of the public repeatedly lining up outside theatres at openings to watch the stars arrive, and often the same luminaries.

Some of the answers were as follows:

"To see if they looked as good off as on"—(girl).

"To watch the clothes they're wearing"—(girl).

"A chance to see stars without having to pay"—(boy).

"Just curious"—(boy).

"To try and find out what they've got to get so much money"—(boy).

JAIL HOLIDAY FOR PICTURE DIRECTOR

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

New idea for part time work is being carried out here on a two-reel comedy director. He works at one of the major studios during the week and spends his week ends in jail.

All came about because the director behaved himself while doing a six months' stretch for drunk driving. Reward was a trustyship. He whispered to the probation officer that he had some good comedy ideas, and the p. o. whispered to an agent.

"Safe" During Week

Agent sold a studio on using the director. He then went to bat for the prisoner, telling the authorities that the director's binges always came on week ends, therefore it would be safe to release him during week days.

Promise was made that the remainder of the two months would be served on Saturdays and Sundays. County agreed. Now every Friday night the director hangs his mug on a studio hook and saunters jailward.

In view of this, the director's agreement is that he'll mug no picture in which location jaunts figure.

MacARTHUR DIDN'T DELIVER

Radio Pictures Starts Recovery Suit for $7,500

Charles MacArthur has been sued in the N. Y. Supreme Court by Radio Pictures for $7,500 on the ground that he accepted the money as advances on royalties from F. B. O. Productions under an agreement made Jan. 2, 1929, that he would write an original story for F. B. O. suitable and satisfactory for sound or silent films. He was to receive $3,750 on singing the contract and $3,750 when delivering the manuscript. He never delivered, the plaintiff says, and got the second $3,750.

Process servers have tried without any success to find MacArthur. Plaintiff secured a court order permitting the papers to be left at his home, 25 East End avenue.

Dove Picture Third On Hughes Schedule

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Howard Hughes is going ahead on three pictures to be done after the first of the year.

Besides "Front Page," starting Jan. 1, and "Queer People," going in later, Hughes has a new one on the schedule in which he will star Billie Dove.

Joseph M. Marsh has been commissioned by Hughes to write an original for Miss Dove with sophisticated New York as the background. Marsh has been company manager for Hughes. Through switch to writing assignment, Reggie Callow succeeds as company manager.

Story Searcher

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Betty Roberts, head of Radio's scenario department, left here last night for New York in search of story material.

She will return west after the holidays.

Two-Way Sherman

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Irene Dunn has been assigned the femme lead opposite Lowell Sherman in "Bachelor Apartment" at Radio.

Sherman will also direct.

THE LEADERS

Len Maculoso of Colgate University holds the honor of being the highest scorer in the country. Notre Dame an undefeated team for two years. Geo. B. Shaw in literature, and "THE ORIGINATORS OF TINTYPE" in show business

(CHIC) (ROSE)
YORK and KING

Week Dec. 6: R-K-O Orpheum, Minneapolis.
R-K-O Direction LEE STEWART

DIETRICH BURNS UP CHI REPORTING LADS

Chicago, Dec. 9.

"I've posed grand opera stars dunking doughtnuts," was the classic remark of a Chicago newspaper photographer to Marlene Dietrich, German star, who refused to give the photographers some "action" on the plea that it was silly.

Miss Dietrich consented to see the press on her stopover, but showed such bad grace that the city desks of several of the dailies did a burn-up when their representatives carried back accounts of the German star's condescending attitude. With the newspaper people showing up at 9:30 in the morning without breakfast, Miss Dietrich kept them waiting while she took a bath and had her own breakfast.

Miss Dietrich was sufficiently emphatic in her replies to questions. She hates California which she stated dries up people physically and mentally. She also hates photographers and showed it. She stated that she is enroute to Germany and that when arriving there she will shoot any Germany newspaper photographers who try to copy American methods.

American Rules N. G.

When it was suggested that being nice to photographers was one of the penalties for being a film star in America, Miss Dietrich affirmed she wouldn't pay such a penalty.

About the only thing the German actress liked about Hollywood was Josef Von Sternberg. Joe was okay, according to Marlene. He's her idea of a genius.

It was noted that nobody from the German daily, "Abendpost," was present to see Miss Dietrich. In the past this paper which reaches the enormous German colony of Chicago has always given much prominence to the comings and goings and sayings of any film talent from the Fatherland.

Radio Renews Spence

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Ralph Spence starts a new six months' writing term with Radio Jan. 1.

Spence has just concluded a half year with the studio. Leo Morrison handled negotiations.

Johnny Walker's Solo

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Johnny Walker has purchased the rights to "His First Million," by David Silverstein. He will produce it independently in January with himself featured.

No release has been set.

BOLESLAVSKY SET

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Richard Boleslavsky received a term contract to direct at Radio. First assignment not yet settled.

Boleslavsky, former stage director, co-directed two features at Pathe recently and merged "The Last of the Lone Wolf" for Col.

Hollywood Bulletins

Briefly rewritten extracts from "Variety's" Hollywood Bulletin, printed each Saturday in Hollywood, and placed as a wrapper upon the regular weekly "Variety."

The Bulletin does not circulate other than on the Pacific Slope.

News from the Dailies in Los Angeles will be found in that customary department.

U is rushing the last four of 20 on its program with a view to closing down in January from three to six weeks.

With Sam Goldwyn's purchase of "Greeks Had a Name for It" at $110,000, Norma Talmadge will do it as a play in Los Angeles next spring before doing it as a talker.

El Capitan may go pictures as a two-a-day house. Sound equipment is being installed.

Dancers averaging $50 a week at studios responded 300 strong to the call of R-K-O for dance partners-hostesses for a smart country club affair at $3 for the night.

A $15,000 payroll cut at Par on orders from Adolph Zukor lets out among others Cornell Woolrich, Salisbury Field, Norman Houston, Robert Terry Shannon and Albert Shelby Levine, writers.

With 10 new multis under the wire by the holidays, Metro's foreign production will exceed the domestic for two months.

Wanting public reaction on following week's feature, R-K-O theatre is trying midnight previews of coming picture Saturday nights.

Paul Fejos instead of Arthur Robinson will direct Metro's German "Cheri Bibi."

Max Steiner, assistant to Victor Barravalle, former musical director for Radio, was made head of the department.

Trem Carr will put two westerns for Syndicate Pictures into production. "West of Cheyenne" and "Riders of the North" are the titles.

Story difficulty is holding up production on Fox's "Three Lost Girls."

Eugene Pallette is using a parlor, bedroom and bath trailer for location trips.

A two-story addition to the United Artists' publicity department has been built for the accommodation of the Howard Hughes unit.

Alan Mowbray goes into the cast of "The Devil Was Sick" at Warners.

Samuel Ornitz has been assigned by Metro to adapt Edward Knoblock's "The Lullaby."

Franklin Pangborn will do six shorts for Pathe. Harry Sweet and Fred Guiol will direct, alternately.

Una Merkel goes to Fox for "All Women Are Bad" on a loan from UA.

Grover Jones and William Slavins McNutt will write another original for Richard Arlen. Bartlett Cormack is adapting "The Glass Key" for Par.

Virginia Cherrill, suffering from a bad cold, held up production on Fox's "Girls Demand Excitement."

Irving Kaye Davis, Broadway playwright, has a three months' trial contract with Metro. Wm. A. Drake, who adapted "Grand Hotel," is also on the lot.

Al Jolson's "Some o' Guns" is set for March production at United Artists.

John Barrymore is back from a Central American sea trip with a load of tropical fever.

Lester Cohen, author of "Sweepings," has been dropped by Metro and will return to New York with a play for Belasco.

Six Hoot Gibson pictures will be made by Liberty.

Joe Reilly, chief of police at Fox, is technical advisor on "Charlie Chan Carries On." Reilly was formerly on the N.Y. strongarm squad.

Coast production of the legit, "The Shyster," is in rehearsal at UA. Harry Green is starred. Joseph Schenck owns half of the play and will later produce it as a picture.

Joe Marks, recently casting director of Warners, is now spotted in the leasing department. Bill Mayberry returned from Fox to the FN plant as assistant to Rufus Le Maire, new caster for W.B.-F.N.

Dorothy Herzog is on Columbia's writing staff adapting "Virtue's Red."

Radio has borrowed a director and star from Warners for "Kept Husbands." Former is Lloyd Bacon, and player is Dorothy Mackaill.

Settling for 64½% on his contract as a Metro songwriter, Harry Woods and his wife returned to New York.

Harold B. Franklin has moved his Hollywood headquarters from the Chinese theatre and has taken a two-story building.

Before taking a trip to Europe, William Sistrom went into the hospital to lose his appendix.

Pathe tore up the contract of Paul Stein, director, and passed out a new one calling for more jack. Same studio renewed on Bill Boyd and Eddie Quillan. New tickets at Radio go to Max Ree, art director; Pancho Berman, asst. to William Le Baron; Jane Murfin and Ralph Spence.

Inside why Clarence Brown won't direct Greta Garbo in "Susan Lenox" is friction which existed between the two during the shooting of "Inspiration."

Sanford Greenberger, from WB story dep't in the east, is here as story editor for First National.

Gag to get rid of scenario writers not wanted is to assign them the "lumps." These are stories lying around the lot that the studio dares anyone to make a picture from.

Universal has postponed production on "Mississippi." Difference of opinion between Erwin Gelsey, set to produce, and Carl Laemle, Jr., is the reason. Gelsey's contract extends to April, but he is not expected to stay after then.

After in legit with "On the Loose," Colleen Moore is heading back this way and hoping to re-enter pictures. Her asking price is $12,000 a week.

Pathe will use an all-silent player cast on "Lonely Wives." Top spots will be filled by Edward Everett Horton, Laura La Plante, Esther Ralston and Patsy Ruth Miller.

Moe Mark and his family are here. M. A. Silver of Warner's came with them.

Universal is trying to get a second story to fit the title "Barbary Coast." One yarn had been tried but discarded.

Cliff Reid is here from New York to conclude William J. Burns' Detective Mystery shorts for Tec-Art.

Bud Barsky is through at Tiffany after finishing supervision of the Ken Maynard picture, "Fighting Through."

Montagu Love will make a picture for Tiffany on an old contract he holds.

Harry Arthur will arrive here about the same time Oscar Oldknow and J. J. Sullivan get in from a trip to the middle-west. Arthur will spend the holidays with his family and at the same time will get together with Oldknow.

Hal Neidas, formerly manager of the Egyptian, has been made asst. to Jack Frost, L. A. division mgr. for Fox West Coast. Stanley Chambers replaces Neidas at the Egyptian.

R-K-O Coast managers meeting took place here at which arrangements were made for the sale of theatre tickets to help the unemployed.

Radio is holding off "Ladies for Hire," new title for "Children of the Streets," pending the recovery of H. B. Warner, ill with a severe cold.

United Broadcasting Co., with 11 stations on the Coast, is out to expand. Frederick C. Dalquist, g. m., is out on the road trying to line up more stations.

Frank Tuttle instead of Ernest Venturini and Edwin Knopf will direct "It Pays to Advertise" for Par.

New batch of Metro foreign imports are Charles Boyer, Jean Blanchon, Roger Ferdinand, Maria Guevara, Maria Callejo, Rafael Rivelles, Valentino Rero and Benito Peroja.

Radio is starting "Private Secretary" ahead of "White Shoulders," unable to connect with Thomas Meighan or Jack Holt for the latter picture. Melville Brown slated to direct "Shoulders" has been switched to "Secretary."

"NUDITY" BALLY OVERDONE

English Maker's Lesson on B'way Enough—Foreigns No Go at Cohan

The average foreign picture won't go on Broadway and British International, the one foreign company that decided to show the world with its own show window, now has the George M. Cohan for the remainder of the BIP lease up for whatever American producer wants to pay the rent.

United Artists is the first to make a move for the house, negotiations having been started whereby Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights" may in the next few weeks return the Cohan from a lowly two-bit grind to Broadway-American $2 top.

Foreigners, particularly the British, have, since fairly early in the silent days, raised the cry against the American industry that a lot of overseas product was and is okay, but that it didn't get the break here simply because Hollywood interests were afraid of an invasion.

Actually, it was just the reverse as frequent inside relations proved. What BIP considered its ace picture" Atlantic" was privately shown to Paramountites and turned down because of the same reasons that have flopped BIP pictures in their own house, the Cohan, since the big move to enter America on its own.

Too Far Behind

For a time American picture men took an interest in Briton's bold move on Broadway. Even independent exhibitors, however, after looking at some of the all-British product, agreed with reviewers that England is as far behind in the art of casting and direction now as in the silent days.

The six BIP pictures, all shown at the Cohan and not considered good material for any American box office, that Columbia agreed to distribute, are admitted inside the Columbia organization to have been taken on with the idea of paying a few salesmen. Radio Pictures is delaying closing its negotiations with BIP for some more pictures.

Where it was figured the British outfit could go in the red for the national ballyhoo its pictures got in the Cohan, the opposite is proving the case. Through its Broadway show window BIP has advertised, according to American showmen, the dire need of some Hollywood transportation to Elstree.

Marbro-Granada May Be Forced Into Flesh By Its Stockholders?

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Stage shows are reported set to return to the Marbro and Granada, Publix-B. & K. neighborhood spots, by the first of the year.

B. & K. headquarters deny the move, but it is understood that they will be probably forced back to flesh at these houses due to the demand of the stockholders in these two former Marks Bros. houses about the consistently weakening grosses.

When the houses were operated by the Marks', it was the stage show that proved the b. o. attractions, with both theatres shut off from drawing film product.

WEEK OF OLD CLOTHES AS CHARITY SCALE

Newark, N. J., Dec. 9.

Warners has about decided not to re-open the Rialto. The leasing of the house for foreign pictures is off.

A proposal was made to the unemployment committee to open the house for a week and accept old clothes, etc., for admission which would be turned over to the committee but it was not received with enthusiasm. The plan was successfully used in Paterson. It may be done here.

Gilded Lilies

New York law firm defending a legit producer against an injunction suit brought by an author over a similarity of titles, put several of its young lawyers on a research job that revealed that 700 original plays and books, some of them by famous playwrights and authors, had been made into pictures in the last ten years.

In practically all instances the author's title was discarded for one that the picture execs thought held more box office value.

'Ben-Hur' Every Few Yrs. in Try For Even Break

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

"Ben Hur," most expensive production in Metro's history, is being groomed for a second appearance.

Plans call for a release as a synchronized silent in all countries, using the original negative. No new scenes will be shot.

Execs feel that the market will stand for "Ben Hur" every few years and by musicalizing and shipping it out in a new dress they hope to get another crack toward pulling the picture out of the red.

DEFICIT IN TREASURY; THEATRE TICKET TAX

Washington, Dec. 9.

As the Treasury Department puts it, the government at the close of business the last day of November had collected $1,137,115,513 for the first five months of the year. During the same period it had disbursed $1,426,543,076. Figure it out for yourself. The figures show that for the same period in 1930 the government collected $1,334,597,930 and paid out $1,542,703,914.

There is no fooling about this theatre tax. Of course, it is now in operation, for all tickets priced over $3. Several congressmen, whose constituents are not theatre-goers, are reported planning bills to put back the old post-war tax. All revenue bills must originate in the House.

No theatre tax will be imposed without a fight. The theatre has many friends in Congress. But, the situation is serious, according to the figures.

Women 10% Canvassers

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 9.

Warner's theatre has adopted the R-K-O house to house sale of tickets, employing 20 young women.

They receive 10% of the sales. Offer books of tickets worth from $3 to $10.

Zukor in Frisco

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Before returning east Adolph Zukor stopped over in San Francisco to confer with Herman Wobber, apparently in line with the new plan by which all Par coast houses excepting the Paramount, Los Angeles, will be operated by Fox-West Coast.

From Frisco Zukor returned direct to New York.

PHONEY SPLURGES WEAKEN SEX LURE

Producers Now Put Faith in "Unusual" Themes Backed by Compelling Advertising Ideas — Specific Novelty Pulls Trade as Fans Pass Up Routine

STUDIOS AD. CONSCIOUS

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

The public must be given "unusual" pictures is the analysis of Louis B. Mayer and Irving Thalberg, speaking for the Metro objective right now in production standards. General conditions no longer make theatre patronizing a matter of after-dinner routine. They go to pictures these days because there's something specific they want to see. Everything else gets the go-by.

As picture makers, these execs opine that despite all the stars on the M-G-M lot, if the "unusual" element doesn't figure in their product they will not get a box-office play.

Studios Ad-Conscious

An aspect on advertising and exploitation presented by Thalberg indicates anew how publicity-conscious everybody out here is right now. Heretofore the advertising or pre-premiere "campaign" was taken as a matter of course, but latterly every production manager, studio executive and even directors and stars, are talking advertising men's slang, bandying terms like campaigns, tie-ups, ballyhoo, etc., in familiar fashion.

Thalberg, as an example, in discussing the disappointing business done hereabouts by two pictures from a rival studio blames it not on the picture but on the advertising —that it has been his observation and experience of late that almost all the "campaigns" went in for the usual pose of the extremely decolleté or semi-nude woman with the man in pash pose and with the same caption, in one form or another, about "should a woman pay" or "was she to blame?" etc. The phraseology may be different but substantially it's all the same formula, opines Thalberg. The same superlatives are attributed to every formula flicker opera so that when the adjectives finally fit, and the picture is intrinsically meritorious, advertising men and exploiters find

(Continued on page 10)

MORE PAR STK. TAKEN UP AT $80

Paramount is taking up 14,500 shares of its own stock today at $80 a share, the guaranteed price at this time. On the Stock Exchange yesterday Paramount was quoted at around $43 a share.

The present lot of Par stock was given over a year ago in exchange for theatre properties in and around Arizona jointly held by Rickards & Nace and Universal. The 14,500 shares were equally distributed between them.

This is the third time so far during 1930 Paramount has taken up outstanding stock under a guarantee, without asking or accepting a postponement of the maturity date and regardless of the market quotation on Paramount.

The last time was about two months ago, when Par paid $80 a share for 12,000 shares to the Leeches of Miami, when its stock was quoted around $49.

Actual cash Paramount is paying today for the 14,500 shares is $1,160,000.

No Promise of Dividend at W. B. Del. Meeting—Five Directors Are Re-elected—Questions Asked

Newsreels' Wrong Man

Washington, Dec. 9.

All of the newsreels guessed wrong last week over the reading of the President's message to Congress. The cameramen had studioed Tyler Page, Clerk of the House, as the reader, as he has done for many years, and he did it on the screen.

When the reading was actually done, however, on the floor, James Halligen, reading clerk, did it.

The error won't be detected.

U'S NEWSREEL OF TALK ONLY—NO SOUND AT ALL

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Another big newsreel, with the most complete world-wide distribution and coverage, is being materialized by Universal. U is breaking away from Kinograms, a running mate in the McNamee-newspaper reel combination, having served notice on that company it will handle the service itself within another month.

The U reel has been grossing $30,000 weekly of which around $5,000 is velvet for Universal. Under the term of the contract entered into a year ago either U or Kinograms could have control of the reel by serving notice on the other. The Luemmle organization, satisfied the experiment is a profitable one, is making us of this unique clause in the working agreement.

U's Own Cameras

Although Kinograms has been providing most of the news shots, U is now preparing to have its own cameramen in all parts of the world. Practically every key city in the U. S. will be covered from local depots according to present plans.

Under the new alignment Sam Jacobson will be promoted to editor-in-chief. Jacobson's rise from a press agent of little more than a year ago is one of the most rapid in the record of the organization. Lou Pollock will benefit by the change, becoming assistant to Jacobson.

Graham McNamee now becomes a permanent fixture in the newsreel. His weekly salary is reported at $750 for the newsreel comment.

No sound will be injected other than the announcing and incidental music. U figures that maintaining the present status of the reel eliminates not only a great expense, which has put most of the other reels in the red, but also removes multi-lingual complications.

The Universal reel had one of the oldest births of any department in filmdom. It is hooked up with the biggest daily newspapers in the United States which share in profits and reciprocate with ballyhoo.

Tuxes and Passes

New orders to all Fox houses places the free list responsibility on the managers and also includes a new routine that makes the house chiefs wear the tux.

It's an idea to dress up the atmosphere of the circuit as a whole. Up to now only the deluxers carried that routine.

The order on courtesies went out sometime ago and is simply following the policy of other circuits to cut down the non-paying clientele.

Washington, Dec. 9.

Directors of Warner Brothers received a vote of confidence, and five vacancies were filled by re-election at the annual board meeting held here yesterday (9). Total of 238,298 votes were cast by proxy.

While the officials would not commit themselves, it is understood the meeting was held here to try to get duPont or Raskob, or both, elected to the board. Many of the company's heaviest stockholders are local residents and attended the meeting.

Abel Cary Thomas, secretary of the corporation, acted as chairman in the absence of Harry M. Warner. During the session he remarked that "there are certain people here he would like to have on our board. They are influential gentlemen and large stockholders."

Asked following the meeting who those persons were, he declined to specify. There has been considerable talk in well-informed brokerage circles here for the past several months about electing Pr S. duPont and John Raskob to the board.

The five directors re-elected without opposition for the two-year terms each were Lewis J. Warner, Moe Mark, Morris Wolf, Walter E. Sachs and Richard F. Hoyt.

A brief flurry developed over the receivership application made last summer here and dismissed. When questioned about this, Mr. Thomas characterized all of the allegations made in the suit as lies. Demands were that action be taken by the Bar Association against the lawyer

(Continued on page 12)

INCENSED OVER OHIO'S CENSORS

Columbus, Dec. 9

"A day is coming when every picture theatre in Ohio will close, unless the present film censor board is removed."

That is the statement made by Jack O'Connell, manager of the Vita Temple here. O'Connell is burning up because of the censoring done by this board.

The Ohio censor board's headquarters was lately the centre of a state scandal through exhibiting scissorized clips from picture at an admission price for private exhibitions in the board's projection room, as previously reported in "Variety."

U. Dickers in Advance For World Flight Film

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Roger Q. Williams, former navy aviator, contemplates a non-stop flight around the world. Universal is dickering with him for production of a picture written around the flight. If the deal goes through, the picture will be produced here before he starts on the trip, except shots of the plane refueling.

Rogers expects to have the plane refueled 10 times during the trip.

Universal has assigned Henry McCrea, in charge of shorts, to prepare a story for the flier.

Colony's New Daily

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Dell's Daily Dozen," new local trade paper, appeared this week.

Dell Davenport, formerly of Radio's publicity department and editor of "Hollywood Filmograph," is ed.

Original Stories for Foreign Markets Look Like General American Production Policy

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Original stories for foreign countries instead of multi-lingual versions of pictures produced in English, as now, is on the way. As 1930-'31 programs for foreign distribution are prepared it is more than likely all producers will keep English talker material in English-speaking countries, using entirely different stories for other foreign fields.

Paramount from all indications will be first to swing away from remaking of its domestic talkers for the foreign markets. With some experimentation now under way, it is said in Inner Par circles that the company will in all probability abandon use of stories made here for the multi-linguals next season.

Other major producers turning out foreign versions of domestic product are similarly interested in distinct originals for all countries excepting English-speaking nations, and are expected to follow up Par's lead.

Using Shelved Stuff

One of the principal angles on originals for foreign markets that interests producing companies is the saving on play, novel and other rights to cover Germany, France, Spain and other countries. Up to now, studios have been forced to pay high prices in some instances for foreign rights to certain properties bought for filming in this country and later made into versions.

Meanwhile, it is pointed out, all studios have their shelves filled with material that was purchased years ago, with much of it including plays and novels that were purchased from foreign countries and foreign authors. These stories, never made, would go to make up material schedule on foreign production.

Native Stories

Part of the Par plan is to purchase French stories in France for distribution in that country; Spanish material for Spanish talkers, etc.

Foreign version insiders claim that many native stories in foreign countries are also more valuable for distribution in those countries as talkers.

Included in Par's plans is the making of Spanish originals at the Paris studio.

Out here, Par has made a talker version of "The Sea God," with the story so changed that it is being tagged a Spanish original by the studio. As a follow-up, studio is going over shelf material with a view to picking material it owns that was never done in English.

Darrin's Circuit

Paris, Dec. 9.

Henry Darrin, American, announces his intention to open a circuit of cinemas with houses in Paris, Nice, Cannes, Biarritz and Letouquet.

Spots will offer talker product in English. Plan of operating as a circuit, it is explained, is made necessary to cover the cost of importing special product, which would be impossible for a single house.

Conference Postponed

Paris, Dec. 9.

Paramount's conference on its production schedule was postponed until next week when Graham was suddenly called to London by the illness of Mrs. Graham.

Best Xmas Present
Subscription to
VARIETY
$10 for One Year
Always Welcome

PAR REVUE STOPPED

Binitchki Complains and Police Seize Print

Belgrade, Dec. 9.

The police seized the print of "Paramount On Parade" at the Edison Palace and decreed that a substitute print could not be used, all because of a legal dispute over details of the production.

Alexander Binitchki, well known producer, who says he made 12 sketches for the production, has applied to the courts for heavy damages on the representation that Paramount changed his ideas over his protest and his reputation and prestige have been injured because the film reviewers have condemned the work.

Although the picture ran for a few days in Belgrade, it is now banned for the entire state of Yugo-Slavia until the court renders judgment on the controversy.

This is the first case actually to be tried under the new copyright law for films.

CZECH FILM CLUB ASKS STATE SUBSIDY

Prague, Nov. 28.

A memorandum which the Czechoslovak Film Club has sent to the government, demands financial support for domestic made films having cultural value, as is now received by other art activities from the State.

The Czech films of this kind shall be relieved of all luxury taxes and considered in the awarding of the annual State prizes.

It is also asked that a new film law shall be enacted to relieve present film difficulties, and the number of sound films of foreign origin to be shown to be fixed by new regulations.

GIRL SHOOTS DIRECTOR AS HE DRIVES IN AUTO

Paris, Dec. 9.

Fernand Heurtzur, a director for Pathe-Natan, was shot and killed as he was driving along the street in his auto.

Slayer was identified as Rachel Mery, non-professional, with whom Heurtzur had been on intimate terms. The director had recently announced his intention of breaking with the girl.

UFA'S Hit

The Hague, Dec. 9.

The UFA picture, "Rosen Montag," is a great hit at the Luxor, Rotterdam. Film is based on the German play by Hartleben, produced by Hans Steinhoff.

The Dutch screen star, Lien Deyers, appears in the picture as heroine.

Politically Patriotic Kids Tear Down Theatre Screen

Paris, Dec. 9.

A group of students, followers of the reactionary element in politics, took exception to the picture 'Age d'Or' ("Golden Age"), and organized a raid on the Montmartre (surecseater) where it was current.

They crashed in while the show was going on and tore down the screen. Damage amounted to about $4,000. Showings were soon resumed when the damage had been repaired.

BROWN'S NEW BOARD

London, Dec. 9.

William Brown, member of the Gramophone board and also of Radio Pictures, English subsidiary of R-K-O, has now gone on the RCA Photophone board here.

Move is part of a plan to have the directors of the R-K-O subsidiary serve for both companies in order to more easily co-ordinate the working of the parent concern.

UA'S FRENCH FILMS

Doing "77 Park Lane" and Await Results on Mourre's Short

Paris, Dec. 2.

United Artists is at work on French films and will shortly begin in London on a French adaptation of "77 Park Lane." Murat, Suzy Pierson and Leon Barry head the cast. Another French production will soon follow.

The first short, which Antonin Mourre was to make for United Artists, has been completed. On its success depends whether UA will take up an option for five more. Exact date of release not yet decided.

Mourre, as an independent French producer, has been partly backed by Maurice Barbour.

Am. Crews for Russian Films As Release Bids

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

The Russian government, according to insiders, may make a raid on Hollywood with a view to importing directors, cameramen and technicians for production of pictures especially designed for release in the English-speaking markets. Government has its own film producing adjunct, Sovkino, and would make and release product, under plans, through that agency.

First American director going over is said to be Robert J. Flaherty, who was engaged through a deal with American representatives of Sovkino in this country.

Flaherty produced "Moana of the South Seas" and "Nanook of the North." Both were silents and released through Paramount.

Russia, through its Sovkino company, has been shipping its silents to America for several years, releasing through Amkino, Russian government's own distributing agency in this country, headquartering in New York.

Most of the Sovkino product has been absorbed by artles, but outstanding productions like "End of St. Petersburg," given two weeks at the Roxy, "Ten Days That Shook World," "Potemkin," and others, have gone into regular runs around the country.

Pictures will be silents with sound effects and synchronized scores.

"Trail" Opens Light

London, Dec. 9.

"The Big Trail" (Fox) was shown Dec. 5 at the Piccadilly, where it had a lukewarm reception.

Picture is regarded as too episodic to make much of a stir in England.

SUEDFILM'S DIVIDEND

Berlin, Dec. 1.

Suedfilm Company, after having passed its dividend for four years, proposes a 15% dividend this year.

French Disdain for Foreign Versions Becoming Stronger Than Any Quota

Paris, Dec. 1.

Two facts relating to films are serious current menaces for the American industry.

First is the increasing competition of native production since the advent of sound. Second, and quickly developing, is psychological. The natives react adversely against all imports camouflaged for local consumption.

Whether the situation should be met by producing foreign versions in Hollywood, like Metro, or abroad like Paramount, will not be clear until results have been proved and tabulated. But whether produced at home or abroad, foreign versions will more and more have to be strictly foreign in compliance with the growing psychological reaction of audiences here.

This reaction applies to every commodity. American cars, specially dolled up for the Continental market, are at a discount here. Films with a strictly local story and background are preferred to those "adapted." Casts with the slightest trace of a foreign accent are absolutely taboo.

Result is that the public is erecting a barrier against foreign product stronger than any quota, but one which no exhibitor can afford to disregard. This means that whether domestic or foreign made, American producers must consider foreign versions as so many distinct productions, instead of so many different foreign versions of the same film.

To the increase of cost price, and of competition from rapidly improving native production, will be added two further difficulties—that of quotas and that of obtaining releases.

More Quotas

Another era or quotas is looming to compel Americans to sell their product at the price the chain-owning producers will be willing to pay. In Italy the now discussed production quota would give Pittaluga practically a cinch on imports, since by producing 10 films in Rome he would command maybe 100 imported productions for his circuit. In Germany the situation is but too clear, and everything points to an early French quota, terms of which will probably be agreeable to Doktor Plugge, head of the German Spitzenorganization.

As in America, but on a smaller scale, native producers are whipping the theatres into circuits to make sure of releases. The time is soon coming when American distributors,

(Continued on page 71)

UFA'S SMALL NET

No Dividend Again This Year—Gross Receipts at $5,500,000

Berlin, Dec. 1.

Ufa's accounts for the year ended May 31, 1930, reveal a conscientious effort towards financial consolidation.

The exigencies of solid finance preclude the distribution of a dividend again this year. An upward development, the directors state, became evident at the end of the financial year and has continued to the present day. Further progress, however, can only be expected if the general economic situation improves.

The profit and loss account shows gross receipts amounting to about $5,500,000, about $250,000 less than in 1929. After allowing $2,500,000 (last year $3,000,000) for depreciation of films, and deducting $1,000,000 in taxes, $600,000 for commercial expenses, and $350,000 interest, a small net profit (last year about the same) is brought over to the new account.

22 ADDED DEFENDANTS IN CANADA'S PROBE

Ottawa, Can., Dec. 9.

No less than 22 theatre companies and film exchange organizations of Canada have been added to the Famous Players Canadian Corp., for the investigation under the Combines Act by order-in-council of the Canadian cabinet. The inquiry has been under way for a month but it has only started, judging by recent announcements.

The 22 additional companies comprise every leading theatre chain and distributing company in the Dominion.

The Motion Picture Distributors and Exhibitors Association of Canada, representing Will Hays in Canada, is included in the list.

U. S. CHECK-UP ON STUDIO IMPORTS

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Agents of the Department of Labor are here making an undercover check of studios and recent heavy influx of foreign talent for multi-lingual production. They're acting on complaints to Washington that producers are making the unemployment situation worse by importing people when there are plenty foreigners already here and available.

Possibility of putting down the lid on imports is mentioned after reports of undercover agents have gone in to Washington.

Government investigators are also checking on foreigners who came here for versions and overstayed their visa limit, with difficulties in that faced through the aliens changing their names often.

British Dailies See Color and Wide Screen as Another Revolution

London, Dec. 3.

Rothermere and Beaverbrook papers, in both daily and Sunday editions, have been carrying scare-head stories that the "Color and Wide Screen revolution from America" is about to upset the infant European film industry just as sound did two years ago. No particular wide screen process is mentioned, but Technicolor is emphasized as the only color process in successful quantity production. The fact is stressed that 150 all Technicolor pictures will come to England from Hollywood this year, and what is Elstree going to do about it?

The success of the all-color "Whoopee" seems to have started the excitement, though a strange angle is that up to few days ago Technicolor was not mentioned in the Tivoli ads or publicity by Gaumont British.

Dr. Kalmus, president of Technicolor, was here a year ago and unsuccessfully tried to interest British companies in the formation of British Technicolor.

Now, however, this amazing newspaper campaign makes it almost certain the man in the street would probably buy the shares for such a flotation, though practically no issues have been made in the last six months.

Just who, if anyone, is back of this campaign is not clear at the moment.

A recent survey of Hollywood production schedules showed a distinct drop in the number of all-color films to be made for the '30-'31 programs.

Seek Scandinavian Tax Aid for Native Films

Copenhagen, Dec. 9.

A congress of Scandinavian theatre owners in session here initiated a campaign for the encouragement of a native film industry.

First move was the adoption of a resolution calling upon the Scandinavian governments—Danish, Swedish and Norwegian—to legislate for a preferential entertainment tax on all theatres exhibiting pictures of native manufacture.

"Kentucky," Milan, Hit Despite Only 100 Words

Milan, Dec. 9.

Fox's "Song of Kentucky," retitled "Simfonia di Amore" started here at the San Carlo cinema to a promising reception in spite of the fact that the dialog had been cut to about 100 words.

Color effects superimposed upon the film created great interest here as did the acting of Lois Moran. Picture is among those leading the town for patronage.

Tryout New Screen

London, Dec. 3.

Press demonstration of a new type of screen at the Stoll theatre, Kingsway, made of rubber and perforated, enabling sound from behind to pass through without distortion. It also supposedly gives surface brilliancy in advance of most screens.

Specimen working at the Stoll is said to be the biggest made, and is the only one in this country. Trade names for it not decided upon yet.

Berlin Riot Over 'All Quiet' as Much Anti-Semitic as Anything Else–Forcing New Censor Law

Berlin, Dec. 9.

Premiere was given late last week of "All Quiet on the Western Front" (U) at the Mozartsaal to an enormous success. The audience was too stirred and moved to either disapprove or applaud.

Reception by the Berlin press was favorable, except, of course, the Nationalistic organs. A series of Nationalistic and anti-Semitic demonstrations planned for the premiere were nipped by the police, the authorities being forewarned.

On the second performance, Dec. 5, disturbances broke out. Nationalistic leaders, Goebbels and the Rev. Muenchmeyer, interrupted the screening with inciting speeches against the picture and against the Jews.

Stench bombs were used and several persons, whom the crowd took to be Jews, were attacked and beaten. Theatre manager called the police to clear the house and the following performance was canceled.

Commissioner Grzeszinski, police chief, stated that there would thereafter be sufficient policemen present at all performances to prevent any trouble and the same schedule would be followed through the major cities of Germany.

General Release After Xmas

Al Szekler, general manager for Universal, made it known that "All Quiet" will go into full release in the provinces after Christmas. Prospects are for big business.

Dr. Wirth, Minister of the Interior, declared in the Reichstag that the motion offered by Hugenberg, Nationalistic leader and owner of Ufa, and designed to prohibit showings of the picture, can be put in force only if the super-censor forbids the exhibition. Print of "All Quiet" will be examined this Thursday (11) by the national censor, but its banning is altogether unlikely.

Meanwhile, an effort has been made to resume the run of the film. There were renewed demonstrations in front of the Mozartsaal by the Nationalists and the police ordered the house closed to all except those who had purchased tickets in advance. Disturbance became more violent until the police cleared the entire Nollendorf platz, the square upon which the cinema fronts.

As an outcome of the whole matter, the German Government proposes to offer a new law making censorship obligatory in future for all foreign pictures, and also calling for the examination here of German-made foreign versions, object being to show whether the subjects contain any anti-German material.

Germans Return Home

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Heinrich Fraenkel, German novelist imported by Metro for the adaptation of "Olympia" and later going to First National for three pictures, has nothing in sight here and is returning to Europe in an attempt to line up picture work there.

Fraenkel says he is coming back in May.

Hans Junkermand and his wife, Julia Serda, performers brought over by Metro from Germany, and released to Universal for "Boudoir Diplomat," will return to Germany with Fraenkel.

NO MORE 'QUICKIES'

Competition of Par's Joinville Studio Sets French Production Standards

Paris, Dec. 9.

The practice of turning out pictures fast and cheap, called "quickies" in the states, is now practically obsolete here. Main reason is the improvement in local production instigated by Paramount's Joinville studio decision to better its workmanship by concentrating on German, Spanish, French and Swedish pictures exclusively. This at least means the temporary abandonment of all versions for other countries except upon occasion.

The Joinville plan now is to only branch away from productions in these four languages after the studio is thoroughly satisfied that the prescribed films are right.

SHEEHAN SKEPTICAL ON FOX ACTIVITY IN ITALY

Rome, Dec. 9.

Clayton Sheehan, here to make a survey of the field for Italian versions and the prospect for local production, has found the scheme unpromising.

"I find there are only 125 wired houses available in all Italy and the country in an economic state that does not forecast any great increase in this number. Under the circumstances I think the company will defer its decision at least for the time being. The future is not encouraging and I think that Fox will not handle Italian talkers just now," said Sheehan.

The Fox official gave it as his purely personal opinion that not more than three European countries can show a return on native tongue versions, the trio being Germany, France, and Spain.

The situation in relation to putting into effect Mussolini's order to permit 10% of English dialog in imported American talkers, is still perplexing. No detailed regulations have been issued by the Ministry of the Interior while Fox, Metro-Goldwyn, and Paramount have several subjects laying in the storehouse awaiting release. These cannot be released until it is known what percentage of Italian titles will have to be included.

Paris, Dec. 9.

Clayton Sheehan, Fox foreign head, is due back here Friday (12) from his tour of the Continent.

Wallace Declines Bid Of $25,000 for "Spot"

London, Dec. 9.

American producers have offered $25,000 for the screen rights of "On the Spot."

Edgar Wallace is asking $50,000, declaring he already has a tender of $40,000 from British film interests.

CAPETOWN APPROVES "JAZZ"

Capetown, Dec. 9.

"King of Jazz" (U) is doing capacity at African Theatres' Alhambra here.

German Dialog in N. Y.

Curious example of differences in audience reactions in different countries is shown by "The Blue Angel." American houses don't seem to object to intrusion of foreign languages in their films.

A great deal of the dialog in the picture is left in the original German. Makes the picture more realistic and works out best all around. Audience on Broadway, New York, at the Rialto, accept the German without a murmur.

Despite Poor Biz Tax Increase on Australian Theatres

Sydney, Dec. 9.

The West Australian government has just increased the admission tax to five cents for each 50 cents of the ticket price, aiming to collect $250,000 from the new impost. The government is injuring trade in the theatre everywhere and ignoring the fact that business is at its lowest ebb.

The Victorian administration has proposed to reduce the admission tax for legitimate theatres from two cents to one cent for each 25 cents of ticket cost and pro rata on the higher scale. Officials declare the legitimate theatre is sorely in need of aid from the tax reduction, but turns a deaf ear to the same need for picture houses.

Tax reduction on cinemas has been brusquely refused on the ground that the theatre operators are presenting foreign mechanical entertainment and must pay the full tax.

High rate of impost also applies to the concert stage.

Union Theatres is trying every possible means to stimulate business, which has again slumped way off. Amateur nights are being revived at the Lyric and the Capitol is offering miniature golf free in conjunction with a film program of talkers.

PAR'S EDGE AS FRENCH THREATEN ON IMPORTS

Paris, Dec. 9.

French theatre circuit owners who are also film producers are undertaking reprisals against the American companies, who, they charge, are enticing native players to Hollywood.

Native people now declare they will tighten up on the playing of American pictures originating in the studios which are active in engaging French actors.

An exception to the threat is Paramount, which has its Joinville studio over here. Company in this way has built up good will with the circuit people and the result is to be seen in Paramount bookings in local circuits.

Marcel Silver Out

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Marcel Silver, imported by Metro to direct the Spanish version of "Way for a Sailor" and who was running up a high cost sheet, is out.

"Whoopee's" Gen'l Dates

London, Dec. 9.

"Whoopee" (UA) goes into general release three weeks after leaving the Tivoli around Christmas.

This will be the first picture to be handled under United Artists' new policy of releasing pictures generally within a month of their pre-release showing. Policy becomes possible in this territory due to all talkers going through the Gaumont circuit with the exception of "Hell's Angels." Latter film pushes off at the Marble Arch Pavilion and the UA house on its grind career.

HUGUETTE FOR M-G

Paris, Dec. 9.

Huguette, former wife of Duflos, Paris producer, sails on the Mauretania Dec. 27 for Hollywood where she will appear in two Metro-Goldwyn pictures.

The films are French versions of "Mary Dugan" and "Divorcee."

Internationalization of Film Industry Starting With His Producing Intentions Abroad

SHAUER ON COAST

Setting Next Season's Foreign List for Paramount

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Mel Shauer, in charge of Paramount foreign production, returns here Wednesday (10) on a visit interrupted when his father became ill in the east.

Shauer will remain until January, settling next year's foreign schedule for Par here. Intent is to increase Spanish production locally, but no other languages in Hollywood except French versions for Maurice Chevalier and Claudette Colbert.

NATIVE ITALIAN OPERA FILM'S MIXED REACTION

Milan, Dec. 9.

Associated Sound Film Industries and the Tobis Klangfilm people in association presented "La Citta Canora" ("City of Song") at the Odeon cinema here to a mixed fan reception.

The picture gives opportunity to Jan Kiepura, who will sing at the Scala this season, to display his voice in such numbers as the popular Neopolitan song, "Pompeii Arena," and "Vienna Love Song." Brigette Helm, the lissome beauty of the screen, also is agreeably present as leading woman.

In spite of the picture's merits, the audience became restive at the opening performance, apparently tired by too much Naples and Capri scenery and the monotony of one man's singing.

Picture has much pictorial beauty. There is in particular a panoramic shot of Miss Helm walking amid tropical scenery with the setting sun in the far background and the effect heightened by distant music—all blended into one of the loveliest cinematographic compositions of present-day studio art. Reaction to this detail was enthusiastic.

Picture has no dialog, object of this treatment evidently being to make the subject adaptable to foreign markets by putting the emphasis on the singing. Tone of the recording is good, although the synchronizing is sometimes faulty.

Dr. Klein Returning With Full Film Report

Paris, Dec. 9.

Dr. Julius Klein, of the U. S. Department of Commerce, will sail for home Dec. 16 on the Leviathan with a full report on the foreign film situation.

Klein has conferences scheduled this Thursday and Friday with most of the commercial attaches in Europe. He will acquaint them with sales conditions and also the local facts required in reporting to Washington.

The recently promulgated internationalization of the film industry is already in motion. If current ideas of several American firms are carried through, London and not Berlin will be Europe's chief film producing center. The British Capital has been selected as the first build-up spot by the bankers. Berlin will come later.

Meanwhile plans afoot call for London in the very near future to outstrip both Berlin and Paris in film production. Foreign talker situation may have brought the idea about but there are other reasons for London's first choice. These are German kontingents and patents, and British quota laws.

Paramount which showed the way to making of foreign talkers in Europe is doing the advance on the new plan. Others include United Artists and another possibility is Fox. Latter through its connection with British-Gaumont.

Around the beginning of March, 1931, Paramount is slated to be found on a producing basis in London. Reasons generally given are the quota laws of Britain but somewhere back can be found the re-

(Continued on page 56)

Warners to Stage and Film New Vienna Play; Two Others for B'way

Vienna, Dec. 9.

Warner Bros. has bought "The Green Cat," by Willner and Rubrizius, and will give it stage presentation on Broadway as a preliminary to making it into a picture.

It is stated that two other plays are set for American production, but whether by Warners or others is not made public. The works are "The Last Veil," by "Wheatley," which is the pseudonym of two Vienna authors for whom Hirschfeld acts as American agents; and Cammelhohrs' "A Hundred Miles an Hour."

MEXICO'S "BERNHARDT" FOR M-G-M AT $1,500

Mexico City, Dec. 9.

Virginia Fabregas, veteran Mexican legitimate actress, has been engaged by Metro-Goldwyn for a series of Spanish versions at a salary of $1,500 a week.

This information was communicated by the actress to her manager here, Enrique Barberi, on the eve of her departure from Mazatlan for Hollywood.

Senora Fabregas is one of the leading figures of the Mexican stage, being now 60 years old. One of the biggest legit theatres in Mexico City is named after her.

Paris O. K.'s Two U. S. Versions

Replace Blackouts in English With Joinville Made Sketches in Par's "Parade"

Paris, Dec. 9.

"Paramount On Parade" (Par) opened big here with all dialog in English eliminated.

Entire group of comedy sketches were taken out and new material substituted. Sequences had been at the Joinville studios of Par. with an all-French group of players.

As an instance of the difficulty of obtaining show window spots on the Boulevards for new releases, except where producers control their own well placed theatres, Warners accepted a date in the Capucines (40 seater), for the pre-release of its French version of "Those Who Dance." It was well received.

This version was made in Hollywood employing an all-French cast with the edition retitled "Centre Enquete" ("Cross Examination").

Duce's Pay Cut Hurts Theatre; No Spur in Lower Admissions

Milan, Dec. 9.

The new economic maneuvers of Mussolini are playing havoc with the theatre here.

The general reduction of all salaries in the theatre and elsewhere is discouraging amusement spending, while at the same time the enforced reduction of theatre admission scales is not proving the expected stimulus to the box office.

Opening of the much advertised native film production "City of Song," with a great native opera star who is to sing at the Scala, should have attracted crowds to the local Odeon, but the attendance was small.

Prohibition of dialog (in spite of the new 10% edict which does not seem to be operative) does a great injury to imported dialog pictures and threatens to put them out of business by diverting the public to old silents.

Strong indication of such a trend comes in the showing of an old Chaplin silent at the Excelsior here which is attracting packed houses, while such modern productions as "The Great Gabbo," at the Corso, is an unredeemable dud because it has been mangled in the elimination of dialog. The latter picture depends upon its lines and without them it is chaos. At this showing jumbled atmospheric sounds only make it worse.

During the running of the Chaplin film, a nearby fan remarked, "We'll all be dead before the government allows the kind of pictures we want."

The public is mystified by the government's attitude in barring popular pictures.

'Sawyer' to Mostly Kids, $49,900 At Chi.; 'Feet First' Not Very Hot, '3rd Alarm,' $4,200; Good at Castle

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Kids had a holiday and jammed the loop for the first time since talkers for "Tom Sawyer," which played to matinees with youngsters outnumbering the grown-ups almost 3/1. Afternoon trade terrific for this reason, with night biz falling off. At $49,900 delivered this house's best week in some time, and accomplished the aim of the industry, bringing the children back to the theatre.

Other picture gaining loop attention is "Min and Bill," which opened in midweek at the McVicker's. Picture was shoved in hastily on two days' notice, having been slated for a one-week stand at the Chicago. In the flicker's three days at the run spot got over $19,000, tremendous pace with biz picking up over the week-end.

"Today" at the Woods continued nicely into its second week and is getting a steady draw, mainly on the help of its "pink" permit. House has developed somewhat into a special patronage grind house, with business remaining on an even keel with few fluctuations.

Turn-Downs Click

Two pictures which were accounted only weak material, and were refused for that reason by Publix-B. & K. are surprising the bookers by turning out excellent results at the cash register. "Third Alarm" is doing nicely at the tiny Castle, as the result of its location and the good notices. Same goes for "Man to Man" at the Orpheum, with the critics delivering this theatre a flock of favorable reviews.

Punch and Judy, the arty house on the southeast side of the loop, finally gave up the ghost after struggling for product. Shutters are up, although the management states that the house will reopen after the first of the year.

Estimates for Last Week

Castle (Beck) (299; 35-50-60)—"Third Alarm' (Tiff). Location and reviews helped this one to good $4,200. Another week, with "Juno and Paycock" (BI) set to replace Friday (14).

Chicago (Publix-B. & K.) (4,000; 50-75-85)—"Tom Sawyer" (Par). Stage show. Kids by the thousands, and the reason why, in spite of a terrific attendance count didn't do more than the good $49,900.

McVicker's (Publix-B. & K.) (4,000; 50-75-85)—"Feet First" (Par). Very bad in 2d week, dropped to $19,800 and out. "Min and Bill" (Metro), came in on midweek and showed real class from the start, grabbing a great $19,000 for the first three days.

Monroe (Fox) (1,000; 25-40)—"East Is West" (U). Quiet little picture that delivered generally peaceful business at $3,700 for the 2d loop run.

Oriental (Publix-B. & K.) (3,200; 50-75-85)—"River's End" (WB). Stage show. House picked up from previous week, with picture fair, and stage show meaning more. Benny Meroff, m. c., developing following that's showing its effect at the b. o. Better at $29,800.

Orpheum (Warner) (650; 40-60)—"Man to Man" (WB). Good at $5,400. Excellent exploitation and advertising campaign on this one helped greatly, with Warner office here determined to prove to B. & K. what can be done with rejected films.

Palace (R-K-O) (2,300; 50-75-85)—"Dancers". (Fox). Vaude. Moran and Mack meant plenty at b. o., with flicker only rating fair. Better than fair at $21,000.

Roosevelt (Publix-B. & K.) (1,500; 50-75-85)—"Life of the Party" (WB). Off on natural slide in 2d week to $16,900. Will hold on for another week, with "Lady's Morals" (Metro) coming in Thursday (11). Picture originally turned down by B. & K. and tentatively purchased by the tiny Castle. Hearst here raised such a howl, since the flicker is a Cosmopolitan production, that B. & K. changed its first intention and sent it in.

State-Lake (R-K-O) (2,700; 50-75-85)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). Went into 2d week with excellent $25,100. Will stick around to complete 16 days, then gives way to "Her Man" (Pathe).

United Artists (Publix-UA) (2,700; 50-75-85)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). Still big, with 2d week continuing at phenomenal pace to $31,300. But starting to drop.

Woods (Jones) (1,200; 75-85)—"Today" (Security). Opening week excellent at $16,300. Reviews divided on this one, but the femme fans went for its "adults only" rating. "Atlantic" (BI) slated to go in at first signs of weakening.

'CONTROL' $6,100, TACOMA

"Brothers" Low, $3,100, But Rialto's Dual Bill Fine, $4,200

Tacoma, Dec. 9.

(Draw. Pop., 125,000)
Weather: Rainy

Bill Haines helped at Broadway while "Fountain of Youth" stage idea was good. Orpheum poor in split week.

Estimates for Last Week

Broadway (Fox) (1,500; 25-60)—"Remote Control" (MGM). Good F. & M. stage idea in "Fountain of Youth." Most lavish of recent ones. Good with $6,100.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (1,500; 25-35-50)—"Brothers" (Tif) and "Cock o' the Walk" (Pathe). Off, $3,100.

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (650; 25-35-50)—"Life of Party" (WB). Neat at $3,400.

Rialto (Fox) (1,200; 25-35-50)—"Laughter" (Par) and "War Nurse" (MGM). Both good and week dandy at $4,200.

F. & M. Stage Unit Pulls Up National to $14,900 in L'ville

Louisville, Dec. 9.

(Draw Pop, 500,000)
Weather: Cold

Thanks to the Fanchon & Marco units the National was out in front again and got $14,900, which isn't as good as some previous weeks, but plenty to cover the overhead. "Captain of the Guard," so-so picture, neither aided nor hurt the take, but the stage show was okay.

Houses annoyed by sellers of local weed cigarets known as "muggles." This is the latest racket on the streets, and the play is made especially to newsboys and such persons as crave a thrill in the narcotic manner without its habit-forming results. Federal agents refuse to act, since the weed is banned only in New York and New Mexico, but local police will nab peddlers as contributing to delinquency of children.

Estimates for Last Week

Alamo (4th Ave.) (1,100; 15-25-40)—"A Soldier's Plaything" (Fox). Slightly off, $3,900.

Brown (Brown) (1,509; 15-25-40)—"Brothers" (Radio). Bert Lytell simply didn't pull in spite of fair film. Newspaper tie-ups couldn't overcome public reluctance. Barely hit $3,000.

Mary Anderson (R-K-O) (1,387; 30-50)—"The Gorilla" (FN). Didn't suffer as bad as most of them, but not up to average at $3,100.

National (Bass) (2,300; 30-50)—"Captain of the Guard" (U). Fanchon & Marco "Busy Bee" Idea on stage. Excellent stage bill. Average picture. Receipts up $3,000 to $14,900. This house has done better, but doesn't have to for substantial profits.

Rialto (R-K-O) (2,940; 30-50)—"Sunny" (Par). Marilyn Miller didn't startle anyone, but did about average, $4,000.

State (Loew) (3,252; 35-50)—"War Nurse" (M-G). This film shocker, but town has had enough shocks lately and doesn't seek them on screen. $9,100. n. g.

Strand (4th Ave.) (1,865; 35-50)—"Journey's End" (Fox). Met with indifferent reception and similar sale, $4,450.

'Wedding Night' Held Up With $4,000, Topeka's Top

Topeka, Dec. 9.

(Draw pop, 85,000)
Weather: Rain and cold

Only one hit in Topeka last week. It was "Her Wedding Night." Weather and start of Christmas shopping hit everything, and all grosses slid off.

Estimates for Last Week

Grand (1,400; 50) (Fox)—"Laughter" failed, despite enthusiastic praise. Public expected slapstick comedy from title. $3,000, light.

Jayhawk (1,500; 50) (Fox)—"Her Wedding Night" got good play, $2,700 first three days, but "Devil With Women" light last three days, with total $4,000; good.

Novelty (1,200; 50) (Fox)—"Three Faces East" fell off. General conditions, $1,900; poor.

Isis (600; 35) (Ind)—McOwen Players with "Old Man Sunshine" and vaudeville to near capacity all week. Take cut by snowstorm of "guest tickets," another variation of the two-for-one. $850; fair.

SCENIC GOLF

The Roxy Theatre Stage Entrance is DIRECTLY ACROSS THE STREET from 18 holes of cuss-provoking indoor golf, (At the Victoria Hotel, entrance on 51st street.)

Sure, it's new and novel and all that, and it's a good way to top off an evening after the theatre or reduce that waistline anytime.

Another MEYER DAVIS undertaking.

ZERO AND BLIZZARD HURT DETROIT WEEK

Detroit, Dec. 9.

Bad breaks in the weather meant low grosses last week, despite several very well liked and rated pictures. Ted Lewis in person at the Michigan was another "orphan of the storm." Eight weeks of "Hell's Angels" was plenty. Weather over the week-end was below zero and went into a blizzard.

Estimates for Last Week

Michigan—"Fast and Loose" meant little, due to lack of well-known names. Ted Lewis was responsible for most of the business, below expectations. Weather mainly responsible. Fair at $36,200.

Fox—"Lightnin'" (Fox) (5,100; 15-25-50). Picture well liked but weather too much; $31,300.

Fisher—"Tom Sawyer" (Par) (2,300; 35-50-75). Eight days including Thanksgiving meant little better than others by comparison. Picture well reviewed and liked. Very good considering weather; $26,400.

R-K-O Downtown—"Sin Takes Holiday" (Pathe) (2,700; 15-25-50). Picture well liked and notices good. Suffered the same. Excellent considering, at $18,000.

United Artists—"Hell's Angels" (UA) (3,300; 35-50-75-90). Eighth week good but not enough to warrant another. Besides "Abraham Lincoln" was getting cold and this town has to run them hot to get anything in important money. Good, $14,100.

Paramount—"Sunny" (3,000; 35-50-75). Off from start at $11,300; light.

State—"Min and Bill" (Metro) (3,000; 15-25-50). After big week at Michigan brought here for 2d run without interim. Kept up big business and held for third week; $18,000.

'ANGELS' FRISCO PANIC AT $36,000—WARFIELD

San Francisco, Dec. 9.

Good and bad grosses marked the week in the downtown picture houses. Outstanding attraction was "Hell's Angels," at the Warfield. Nailed a $7,000 opening day and never stopped, exceeding anything at this house since "Cock-eyed World."

The Fox was way off and none of the Publix houses, with the exception of the Paramount, approached normal.

Estimates for Last Week

Fox (5,000; 50-65-75-$1)—"A Lady's Morals" (M-G). Opened light, with not much pickup speed; around $32,000, far from good.

Warfield (Fox) (2,672; 50-65-90)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). A panic from the jump; terrific opening day, and never held 'em out at matinees during the week; grabbed better than $36,000.

Paramount (Publix) (2,698; 35-50-65-$1)—"Fast and Loose" (Par). Opened about average, but slipped; $17,000 just fair.

California (Publix) (2,200; 35-50-65-90)—"Going Wild" (FN). Didn't mean a dollar at the b. o.; opened normally, then slid for only about $13,600.

St. Francis (Publix) (1,375; 35-50-90)—"Extravagance" (FN). Probably just skipped red at near $6,000.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (2,270; 35-50-65)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). In second week bodied badly; $8,500 just so-so.

Golden Gate (R-K-O) (2,485; 30-40-50-65)—"See America Thirst" (U). Plus vaudeville copped better than average week; opened strong and held up for $16,000.

Mastbaum Up to $56,000 Last Week

"Angels" Off in 2d Week, $14,000—"Sin" and "Derelict" Start Nothing in Philly

Philadelphia, Dec. 9.

Business in the downtown picture houses way off last week. One outstanding exception, Mastbaum, which turned in a sensational gross of $56,000, almost entirely attributable to "Min and Bill." This is the best record that Philly's biggest picture house has had since the period around its original opening, with the exception when the stage bill was crowded with names.

Mastbaum's terrific business subordinated everything else in town. Nearest approach was the Fox, which got about $26,500 with "The Virtuous Sin." Nothing exceptional but better than some of the houses did.

Earle got $20,000—about normal—with "The Silver Horde" on the screen and ordinary stage show.

Outside of this trio, trade was painfully slow. The Boyd did $15,000 with "Sin Takes a Holiday." Quite disappointing in view of the business done by Constance Bennett's "Common Clay" at the Fox earlier in the fall. It was held over much to the surprise of some of the wise acres. Aldine took a nose-dive with the second week of "Hell's Angels." Off from $19,000 to $14,000, with matinees plenty weak and not much of an advance. Some talk of taking big air special off before Christmas holidays but this seems unlikely.

"River's End" was all off at the Stanley with $12,000 quoted, and taken off after a single week. Original silent version same story was a riot here and considerable comment has been made on the contrast.

Stanton was even worse off with less than $7,000 for second week of "Africa Speaks." Moved here from its first run showing at $1.50 top at the Aldine.

Keith's careened down to $16,000 or a little under for "The Derelict" and the Little Arcadia, second run Paramount house, got $3,500 with "Follow Thru."

The Karlton claimed around $5,000 with "Half Shot at Sunrise," moved down from the Stanley.

Estimates for Last Week

Mastbaum (4,800; 35-50-75) "Min and Bill". (M-G-M) Stage show; $56,000. One of best grosses house has had since opening.

Stanley (3,700; 35-50-75) "River's End" (FN). Bad at $12,000 and out Saturday. Remarkable reversal of showing of silent version of same picture here some years ago.

Aldine (1,500; $1.50) "Hell's Angels" (UA) (2d week). Dropped brutally in second full week, with $14,000 reported. Big disappointment but air special ought to be able to stick it out to holidays.

Fox (3,000; 35-50-75) "Virtuous Sin" (Par). Sensational advertising attempted, part of which was killed by dailies' refusal to accept copy; $27,000, fair.

Boyd (2,400; 35-50-75) "Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). After big trade of "Common Clay" this Constance Bennett film expected to click strongly. Instead under normal at $19,000 although held over.

Stanton (1,700; 25-65) "Africa Speaks" (Col). In 2d week at this house animal film dove to $7,000. Very low. Same thing happened to picture after fine trade in $1.50 first showing at Aldine.

Earle (2,000; 25-65) "The Silver Horde" (Radio). Good normal week at $20,000. Usual stage show.

Karlton (1,000; 50) "Half Shot at Sunrise" (Radio). Fairly good when moved from Stanley; $4,500.

Arcadia (600; 50) "Follow Thru" (Par). Not so forte at $3,500.

Keith's (1,800; 35-50-75). "The Derelict" (Par). Dropped a lot. Not over $16,000, nothing to brag about.

'IMAGINE' $48,000, ST. L.

Stage Shows Back at Fox and Ambassador—State, $26,500, "Angels"

St. Louis, Dec. 9.

(Draw. Pop., 1,000,000)
Weather: Cool

All film houses did pretty well last week. Not much outside competition, aside from usual legits. Return of stage shows and orchestras at the Ambassador and Fox brought up attendance noticeably at those houses. Loew's State led downtown with unusually large attendance; St. Louis led on Grand avenue.

Estimates for Last Week

Ambassador (3,000; 35-50-65)—"Sea Legs." Harry Rose stage show. Got $21,100, fair.

Fox (6,000; 25-35-65)—"Just Imagine." Stage show; good with $48,200.

Loew's State (3,300; 25-35-50)—"Hell's Angels." Brilliant at $26,500.

Missouri (3,800; 25-50)—"Widow from Chicago." Average. In six days, $8,300.

$1 Top, Reserved by W B For 'Outward Bound' in Wash, Not So Hot, $6,000

Washington, Dec. 9.

(Draw. Pop., 450,000)
Weather: cold and rain

Things went rather hay-wire hereabouts last week. Warner idea of making the Met a reserved seater at $1 for "Outward Bound" did not click. House went back to previous policy currently, other lasting, but the one week.

Fox had the "Dancers," but with opening of Congress brought in Will Rogers, the "Congressman-at-large," on Wednesday and with "Lightnin'" started in on a grand clean-up. Rogers continuing currently.

Earle not so good, "Man to Man" picture, with vaude.

Palace with "Sea Legs" dropped considerably under previous week, while the R-K-O house with "Sin Takes a Holiday" was doing well in contrast.

Rise with more sentational advertising had "See America Thirst," "Feet First" did expected.

Estimates for Last Week

Columbia (Loew) "Feet First" (Par). (1,232; 35-50). Got good week and holding over; $12,500.

Earle (Warner) "Man to Man" (FN) Vaude (2,424; 35-50-60). Pat Rooney couldn't stand off the limited draw of picture; Fred Clark for years musical director at Keith's goes in the pit this week; last week, $15,500.

Fox (Fox) "Dancers" and "Lightnin'" (Fox) Stage show (3,434; 15-25-35-60). Between two (not double bill) with credit going to Rogers, house got $22,000 on the week.

Met (Warners) "Outward Bound" (WB) (Reserved at $1). Didn't click; maybe $6,000. Price policy changed back.

Palace (Loew) "Sea Legs" (Par) Stage show (2,363; 35-40-50-60). Dropped to $18,700.

R-K-O (Keith's) "Sin Takes Holiday" (Pathe) (1,875; 35-50). Much interest and $9,500.

Rialto (U) "See America Thirst" (U) (1,978; 35-50-60). Not much interest; feature changed Thursday; $8,000.

B'KLYN MET $27,200 ON 'WHOOPEE'—BIZ OFF

Brooklyn, Dec. 9.

Comedies nearly always go flopping in Brooklyn. First the Marx Brothers' film and now Harold Lloyd's "Feet First" at the Paramount last week. Stage show satisfactory.

Fox with ordinary film, "Oh, for a Man," and stage show of merit.

Estimates for Last Week

Paramount—"Feet First" (4,000; 35-50-75). Sagging business due to comedy. Problem pictures go better here. Stage show okay. Lloyd picture tieup with shoe concern in town giving away feminine shoes to holders of lucky numbers. $46,300—ouch!

Fox—"Oh, for a Man" (4,000; 35-50-60-75). Unimportant film. Stage show. New publicity department head getting acquainted with eastern publicity tactics; $27,200 light.

Strand—"College Lovers" (2,800; 25-35-60-60-75). Only $12,000, low.

Albee—"Tol'able David" (3,248; 35-50-60-75). Pleasant pic. Vaude. Fair at $24,000.

Met—"Whoopee" (3,577; 35-50-75). Vaude. Good on $27,200.

No U Studio Close

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

At Universal here, the Laemmles, senior and junior, deny reports the studio is closing in January for three to six weeks. Move was contemplated some time ago, I guess they say, but has been set aside.

U is trying to get the film rights to "The Brat," old stage play written and played by Maude Fulton, ex.

Radio Gets Atrine

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Atrine Judge, eastern musical ingenue, has been given a term ticket by Radio.

She will come to the coast early in January.

TEST OF MARKET DEFERRED

'Sawyer' Smash, Minn., $25,200

'Hell's Angels' $17,300 and H. O.—Same With 'Sin,' $15,000

Minneapolis, Dec. 9.
(Drawing pop. 500,000)
Weather: Favorable

Stimulated by a number of exceptional attractions, business came back with a bang last week after a fortnight of discouraging grosses.

With "Tom Sawyer," as its attractions, the Minnesota emerged from a rather protracted slump and again entered the prosperity column. Picture real magnet. Holds over.

"Hell's Angels," at the Century, was another strong business getter, while "Sin Takes a Holiday" went over so big at the R-K-O Orpheum it transferred to the R-K-O Seventh Street at the end of its seven Orpheum days.

"Life of the Party" started out splendidly at the State but slipped badly the last four days, due in part to newspaper critics' roasts and only a moderately favorable impression on customers.

Pantages, the R-K-O Seventh Street and Lyric, in the face of strong opposition at the other leading houses, had rather tough going.

Estimates for Last Week

Minnesota (Publix) (4,200; 75) "Tom Sawyer" (Par) and Publix unit stage show, "Variety." Picture smash and stage show very good. Kiddie and matinee biz of record breaking proportions. Night trade, for most part, held up nicely; $25,200. Best week in long time. Good.

Century (Publix) (1,600; 75) "Hell's Angels" (UA). Went over big. Fine notices and great word-of-mouth boosting; $17,300. Held over.

State (Publix) (2,200; 60) "Life of Party" (WB). Opened very strong and held up for first few days. Started tumbling and finished weakly. Critics didn't like the picture and audience reaction mixed. Winnie Lightner fair draw here; $11,000 (8 days), fair.

R-K-O Orpheum (2,890; 50) "Sin Takes Holiday" (Pathe) Vaude. Constance Bennett rates in real money class here and picture demonstrated healthy box office power. Matinee business up and nights heavy. Vaudeville pleased, too; $15,000, very good. Picture moved over to R-K-O 7th St., Saturday (16), at same scale sans vaudeville.

R-K-O Seventh St. (1,400; 50) "See America Thirst" (U). Picture pleased; $3,900, fair.

Lyric (Publix) (1,300; 40) "Virtuous Sin" (Par). Despite sensational advertising, picture did not land solidly. Audience response not so hot; $2,600, fair.

Pantages (1,600; 35) "Third Alarm" (Tiffany). Picture satisfied, but held no strong b. o. appeal; $3,000, poor.

Aster (Publix) (900; 35) "College Lovers" (FN). Pleasing picture and boosted business somewhat above normal; $2,200; pretty good.

Grand (Publix) (1,100; 35) "Laughter" (Par); 2d loop run; $2,300, good.

$23,800 WAY TOPS IN NEWARK, AT PROCTOR'S

Newark, N. J., Dec. 9.
(Drav. Pop., 850,000)
Weather: fair

Nick Lucas, local boy, drew them in to Proctor's on the reopening of Vaudeville to a very pretty tune. Lloyd at Loew's disappointed as picture fell off during week. With strike off, managers are confident return of flesh will hold off Xmas slump.

Estimates for Last Week

Branford (WB) (2,350; 25-50-60) "Life of Party" (WB) (8 days). Includes holiday; $23,500, good.

Capitol (WB) (3,200; 15-25-35-50) "Doorway to Hell" (WB); 3d week downtown $6,000, good.

Little (Newark M. P. Guild) (299; 35-60) "Freedom" (Col). Silents weaker than Germans and house returns to these; $1,300. N. S. G.

Loew's State (2,800; 25-35-50) "Feet First" (Par). Good without vaude but not hot for Lloyd; $15,000.

Mosque (WB) (3,281; 25-50-60) "Outward Bound" (WB) (8 days). Includes holiday; $16,000, fair.

R-K-O Proctor's (2,650; 25-40-50-60) "Sin Takes Holiday" (Pathe) Vaude. Picture helped Nick Lucas, stage roll up fine total; $23,800.

$20,100 K. C.'S BEST, 'SIN TAKES' $19,600

Kansas City, Dec. 9.

Only three new pictures on the downtown first run screens last week. They were "Sin Takes a Holiday," Mainstreet; "Min and Bill," Loew's Midland, and "The Big Trail," Newman. Holdovers were "Tom Sawyer" at the Royal and "Africa Speaks" at the Pantages.

Dressler-Beery feature at Loew's clicked strongly on the first three days and held up nicely for the remaining four, although not as strong as the preceding week, with "Hell's Angels."

At the Mainstreet, the star, Constance Bennett, has become sure box-office and the picture with a strong vaudeville show included, for the one admission, kept the seats filled at most of the shows.

"Big Trail," at the Newman, had been given extensive advance publicity, and was played up from the local angle, the Westport Landing shots supposedly being this little old town in the early days before the name was changed from Westport to Kansas City.

Town is all decorated in keeping with the holiday spirit, and the downtown streets are a mass of Christmas greens and glittering colored lights.

Estimates for Last Week

Loew's Midland—"Min and Bill" (4,000; 25-50). Fans who expected broad, farce comedy from Dressler and Beery in this one were greatly surprised, but it was the best acting on the street. Week-end business gave the house a great start for a nice showing, $20,100.

Mainstreet—"Sin Takes a Holiday". (Pathe) (3,200; 25-35-50-60). Lots of talk in this feature, with hardly enough action for some of the Mainstreeters but most liked it. Stage show good entertainment. Business held up well. $19,600.

Newman—"Big Trail" (1,890; 25-35-50-60). Local angle to picture's start. Extra advance advertising helped greatly. $11,800.

Royal—"Tom Sawyer" (840; 25-35-50). 2d week and management showed good judgment in holding it over. $4,800.

Pantages—"Africa Talks" (2,200; 25-50). Hurt badly first three days of first week's run by advance in prices. Picture drew great notices and much word of mouth publicity; held for second week. $4,600.

"For the Love of Lil" at Globe.

LOEW'S PALACE ONLY GOOD MONEY IN IND.

Indianapolis, Dec. 9.
(Drav. pop. 450,000)
Weather: Mild

All first-run houses took a rap, except Loew's Palace, which had a good week with "Min and Bill," the talk of the town. Lyric, holding up splendidly with R-K-O vaudeville, also dropped off, despite heavy advertising. All downtown houses except the Palace going in for special kid prices, but Jack Flex, Palace manager, appeals to adults, keeping prices up. Theatre forgot this week's films Tuesday and started plugging for the coming openings with heavy daily ads. Heavy patronage at musical attractions cut into film grosses. Indiana, which has been featuring vaudeville in ads, switched to "musical comedy" this week.

Estimates for Last Week

Indiana (Publix) (3,300; 35-50-65)—"Half Shot at Sunrise" (R-K-O). Split week. Unit in "Glorified Vaudeville" to compete with R-K-O at Lyric didn't help. $16,700, light.

Circle (Publix) (2,600; 25-40-60)—"Laughter" (Par). Failed to sell; $8,200, light.

Palace (Loew's) (2,800; 25-35-50)—"Min and Bill" (M-G). Lion's share of biz. Good at $14,000.

Apollo (4th ave.) (1,100; 25-35-50)—"Old English" (WB). Poor opening, but picked up last half when gray-haired ladies got in their bridge talk. Considered good at $7,000.

Lyric (4th ave.) (2,000; 25-35-50)—"The Dancers" (Fox). No draw $8,000, considering recent grosses had.

Ohio (Publix) (1,400; 15-25)—"The Santa Fe Trail" (Par) did fairly as first-run at cut prices. $2,000.

AMUSEMENTS SAG BUT BY FRACTIONS

Banking Support Thrown In as Big Bank Merger Scheme Hits Snag—Eastman Rallies Sharply From Break—Surb Issues Go Boom

BONDS DROP BADLY

By AL GREASON

Stock market worked lower yesterday on somewhat increased volume, but the expected big bear drive for new bottoms did not come and apparently is postponed for a few days.

News was out that the four-bank merger plan has run into a snag and negotiations are off for present.

Big powers threw their support to the market to ease the resulting nervousness, and the bears decided it was not the moment for the big thrust.

The leading amusements struck minor new lows on the movement, but showed rallying power in the afternoon, closing off only by small fractions.

It was another story in the bond section. Those amusement issues that have been under pressure broke badly, many of them into new low ground for all time. They were but following the entire bond trend. Government bonds joined the decline yesterday for the first time, while the railroad securities crashed still further.

Curb amusement stocks were notably weak. Columbia Pictures lost 4 points in one trade of the old issue, and General Theatres was off again. Technicolor slipped to a new all-time low.

No satisfactory explanation of the special weakness in bonds has been offered except that no new investment money is going into securities and new flotations like the Paramount '50s and the Gen. Theatre 6s are having trouble getting distribution.

Yesterday's Prices

STOCK EXCHANGE

		High.	Low.	Last.	Chge.
500	Con. F. pf.	18	17½	17½	— ½
4,200	East. K.	158½	153¼	157¾	+2¾
15,700	Fox	31¾	30¼	30½	— ¼
2,000	Gen. Thr.	17	16	16½	— ½
14,100	Loew	55¾	54	54⅝	— ⅜
5,900	Par.	42¾	41¼	42	— ⅜
500	Pathe	3¾	3¾	3¾	— ⅛
600	Pathe A.	6¾	6¼	6¼	— ½
44,200	RCA	15	14⅜	14⅝	+ ⅛
20,300	R-K-O	20	19	19⅜	— ⅛
400	Shu.	5½	5½	5½
10,300	W. B.	17¼	16⅝	16¾	+ ⅛
	CURB
600	Gen. T.	10¾	9½	9½	— ¼
400	Do. pf.	30½	30	30	— ½
400	Gt. L. pf.	19¾	19¾	19¾	— ¼
1,700	Tech.	8	7¼	7⅞	+ ⅜
	BONDS
15,000	Gen. T.	67	66⅜	67	—1
10,000	Par-P.	83	82	82	—1
7,000	Pathe	55½	55	55
2,000	Shu.	28	28	28	—1
16,000	W. B.	68¾	67	67	—2

(Continued on Page 23)

$94,700 for "Lightnin'," Roxy; "Morocco" and "Blue Angel" Only Other Standout Films on B'way

'TRAIL' AND 'IMAGINE' $29,400 IN SEATTLE

Seattle, Dec. 9.
(Draw. Pop., 450,000)
Weather: Cool, fog and rain

First half last week showed life at the majority of the first run houses. All slumped toward the week-end except the Fifth Avenue and Fox theatres, where stellar attractions caught the fancy.

Fifth had a strong week with Rube Wolf as new m. c., after getting by without such a dignitary for months. Great campaign, ballyhooed Rube as world's "homeliest and cleverest"; as "clown prince of music," and as the "musical m. of c." He went over big, and local reception made Rube like Seattle. "Just Imagine" and stage (F. & M.) support.

Orpheum has dropped idea of free admission along with coupon clipped from a local advertising sheet. This cut down crush at house. Scramble for the two-for-one gag which virtually meant 30c. admission, instead of 60c.

Paramount having hard row to get 'em up the hill to its downtown suburban house. Liberty, Jensen-von Herberg house, now full-fledged first run with 50c. general, had good week with "Sunny."

Hamrick houses off to good start first of week, then flopped. "Bat Whispers," set for two weeks at Music Box, pulled after one week. "Hell's Angels" going in for run at pop prices.

Estimates for Last Week

Paramount (Pub) (3,106; 25-35-50)—"Sea Legs" (Par). Will have to be some news from this house before long, 'cause screen having tough time. Big house, dandy layout, but hard nut to crack. Bad week at $6,400.

Fifth Avenue (Fox) (2,500; 25-60)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Lines remaining of old times. Rube Wolf going great. Best week in months, on $17,400.

Fox (2,500; 25-60)—"Big Trail" (Fox). Those who like virile pictures get it plenty here. Sweeten band in atmospheric prolog; subject being near to local heart aided; $12,000.

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (900; 25-35-50)—"Third Alarm" (Tif). At $3,000, bad.

Music Box (Hamrick) (1,000; 25-35-50)—"Bat Whispers" (UA). Good start but dropped badly, and $6,500 for eight days only fair.

Liberty (Jensen-von Herberg) (2,000; 25-50)—"Sunny" (FN). First week of new policy and hit. Show all okay; $9,200 in eight days is swell.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (2,700; 25-60)—"The Pay-Off" (Pathe). Oke, but biz not so hot; $10,100.

'TOM' $42,600—'IMAGINE' $25,500 IN 2 HOUSES

Boston, Dec. 9.
(Drawing Population, 850,000)
Weather: Cold

Film houses netted good grosses all over town last week with the Met climbing back to its former pedestal of $41,000. Marx Brothers, in person, added money the last two days of week. They will continue at the Met to the middle of this week.

Estimates for Last Week

Met (Publix) (4,380; 50-75) "Tom Sawyer" (Par). At $42,600, fine.

Loew's State (4,000; 30-40-50)—"Dirigible" (UA). Got $16,100, indifferent.

Keith's (R-K-O) (1,000; 35-50-60)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe) (2d week). Pulled $9,900; not good.

Keith-Boston (R-K-O) (2,000; 50-60)—"Silver Horde" (Radio). Ran into $18,600; fair.

Fenway (1,360; 30-60)—"Outward Bound" (WB). Good for $8,000.

Uptown (1,700; 30-60)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Fine with $12,500.

Scollay (Vaudfilm) — "Derelict" (Par). Good on $14,000.

Olympia—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Back to fine figure of $13,000.

Loew's Orpheum (4,000; 35-50-60)—"A Lady's Morals" (M-G). Four days netted $13,000; average.

Overridden with "touchers," apple and pear sellers and social organization solicitors in the restaurants, Broadway's last and most gory reminder of depression—a breadline—has arrived. Real poverty is so manifest on the stem that even the regulars are noticing it.

All of these tokens of hard times are hitting the box office. No matter how good the picture, it isn't anywhere near its normal time draw. And if the feature is poor, it is abnormally subnormal.

"Lightnin'," at the Roxy, got the kick for the street at $94,700, which used to be only fair money at best for that house. But it's okay now, and the film holds over. "Morocco," in its fourth week, tolled $36,800, which is fine for the Rivoli. "Madonna of the Streets" registered $21,400 for the Globe, excellent. But all the others dove.

"Lottery Bride" knocked the bottom out of the Rialto with under $22,000 for the netire week. "Blue Angel" got $24,000 on the past week end, and was slipped into this house for emergency purposes. Looks as though Marlene Dietrich has made a decided impression.

The Capitol, with a second week of "Min and Bill," careened to $62,500, or a $16,000 drop.

Paramount was way off, "Fast and Loose" registering only $52,100. Believed to be a fair film and a fair stage show, it does something to prove that there's got to be some dynamite in the bill these days.

The $2 pictures are all suffering, while "Sin Takes a Holiday," which is holding over at the Mayfair, got $37,200 on its first week, okay. But the Strand, with "College Lovers," descended to around $16,000.

Estimates for Last Week

Astor—"War Nurse" (M-G) (1,-120; $1-$1.50) (7th week). Not getting anywhere.

Capitol—"Min and Bill" (M-G) (4,620; 25-85-$1.50). On holdover, $62,500 and too low.

Criterion-Gaiety—"Hell's Angels" (Caddo) (1,678; $1-$2.50) (19th week). Neither house can come back and merely waiting for new entrants.

Cohan—"Two Worlds" (BIP) (1,-137; 25-50-75). House a nonentity on intake with all-British product so they're finishing out the lease with American goods; Chaplin's "City Lights" (UA) will probably $2 here shortly.

Globe—"Madonna of the Streets" (Col) (1,065; 25-50-75). When the tape goes past $20,000 here business is fine; did $21,400; house drawing worst class of audience on street and getting so underworld film sure fire here.

Hollywood—"Kismet" (WB) (1,-066; $1-$2). (6th week). The picture closed Sunday night, the house going dark and will remain dark.

Mayfair—"Sins Takes a Holiday" (Pathe) (2,200; 40-$1) (2d week). Good money at $37,200 and getting a second week; house, however, geared for $50,000 but so far hasn't gonged; "Danger Lights" (Radio) coming in on wide film next.

Paramount—"Fast and Loose" (Par) (3,665; 65-85-$1). Bad at $52,100; no important names in film or on stage and it hurt.

Rialto—"Lottery Bride" (UA) (2,000; 40-65-85-$1). Broke two records for the house; at $22,400 got the lowest week and, lasting only a week, marked the shortest run in the theatre's career; "Blue Angel" (Ufa-Par) over past week and nailed $24,000, with Jannings and Dietrich.

Rivoli—"Morocco" (Par) (2,200; 40-65-85-$1) (4th week). Happy third week of $36,800 and "Royal Family" (Par) due in Dec. 17 for $5 premiere may be postponed.

Roxy—"Lightnin'" (Fox) (6,205; 50-75-$1.00) (3d week). At $94,700 got more money now and enough to warrant holdover, second week and also started well.

Strand—"College Lovers" (WB) (2,300; 25-50-75). Only $16,000 for college film; not good.

Warners—"Viennese Nights" (WB) (1,460; $1-$2) (2d week). Doubtful entry as to run requirements and around $12,500 shows luck of $2 strength.

Winter Garden—"Mothers Cry" (WB) (1,418; 35-85-$1). Did not start so well. Opinion around is that the title may be hurting. "Life of the Party" (WB) folded with $12,200 on five days after five weeks.

Football Kicks Bottom Out Of L. A.—Everything Dives from Previous Week—$1.50 Films Fair

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.
(Draw. population, 1,500,000)
Weather: Fair

Even the natives are beginning to comment on the continued unusualness of the weather. The balmy outdoors has not been conducive to theatre patronage, and this, combined with everybody being nerts about football, ruined biz generally.

All week, preparatory to the Notre Dame-Southern California game, half the town seemed to be working nights cramming in extra licks in order to be away all day Saturday. All of which crippled business. On top of that, they're now sitting around talking the game all over again. House partying is bullish just for chewing the rag about the big California upset.

Two notable brodies were recorded by "Lottery Bride," which lasted only a week, and "Jenny Lind," which died in two weeks. The two Warner houses, playing "Doorway to Hell" day and date, were okay, as were the $1.50 specials at the Carthay and Chinese, but both these recorded noticeable drops. One surprise was "War Nurse," at the State, which did okay. Picture has been improved through cutting. Attendant ballyhoo over Eddie Peabody's stage return also figures optimistically.

The Paramount had another of its slough weeks on tap after a strong preceding week. House is after the kid trade, and following next week's "Along Came You," Mitzi Green appears in person with "Follow the Leader" for Xmas week.

Estimates for Last Week

Carthay Circle (Fox)—"Min and Bill" (M-G) (1,500; 75-$1.50) (3d week). Dropped off $500 for $16,500.

Chinese (Fox)—"Morocco" (Par) (2,028; 50-$1.50) (2d wk). At $25,000 okay, although a dip of $6,000 below the fast pace of the opening six days.

Criterion (Fox)—"Jenny Lind" (M-G) (1,600; 25-75) (2d-final wk). Didn't get anywhere, and $6,000 very poor for a second and prematurely final week; "Paid" (M-G) follows in here tomorrow (10).

Egyptian (UA-Fox)—"Derelicts" (Par) (1,800; 20-65). Definitely below average at $4,500.

State (Loew-Fox)—"War Nurse" (M-G) (2,024; 25-$1). Normal on $25,000.

Orpheum—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe) (2,270; 50-75) (2d-final wk). Disappointing and failed to build as expected; $11,000 for holdover week.

Pantages (Fox)—"Way for a Sailor" (M-G) (2,700; 20-40-65-90). Rather awful at $11,000; few more weeks like this and house's squawk for day and date with downtown showings, or second runs shortly thereafter, may prove justification for complaint.

Paramount (Publix)—"Only Saps Work" (Par) (3,595; 25-75). Only $16,000, and that's much too close to record low.

R-K-O—"The Cat Creeps" (U) (2,950; 30-65). Fair on $13,000 and maybe better than that when considering the diving contest on all sides.

United Artists (Pub-UA)—"Lottery Bride" (UA) (2,100; 25-$1). Extremely bad at $9,000, and only one week for this operetta; "Lincoln" (UA) opens Friday (12), with Arthur Zellner to do special educational publicity.

Downtown (WB)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB) (1,800; 50-75) (2d-final wk). All right with $18,000 for holdover.

Hollywood (WB)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB) (2,756; 25-75) (2d-final wk). Not bad at $14,000 on its second week, but a bit of a letdown, in that it was hoped film might stick three weeks.

Opposish "Girl" Talkers

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Metro contemplates a school girl film in opposition to Paramount's "Schoolgirl" and has taken an original by Helen Meinardi for it.

Piece is called "Should Girls Tell?" and is an expose of high school conditions. Miss Meinardi is 24 and the former secretary to Rosita Duncan.

Script will get an early production, with A. P. Younger now writing the dialog.

OFFERING COUNT

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Count von Luckner, German U-Boat authority and author of "The Sea Devil," one of last year's best sellers, is being offered to studios for technical work.

The Count is in New York at present.

MONTREAL IN DROP; CAPITOL BEST, $18,500

Montreal, Dec. 9.
(Draw. Pop., 600,000)
Weather: Mild

Grosses again low last week with Capitol below expectations although Lillian Roth in person and good Publix acts were standout attractions. Capitol naturally topped the bunch with $18,500, just fair. Clara Bow picture, "Wedding Night," didn't jibe with the Roth appearance.

Palace had good draw in "Laughter," which usually would have been good for $20,000 at least, but fell off badly to $13,000. Loew's also below average with $12,000 on "Big Boy." Princess repeated "Raffles" 2d week and collected $9,000, total of $25,000 for the two weeks, good. Imperial stuck around the usual $4,000 with double bill. Roxy badly in red with "Flying Scotchman," around $2,000. His Majesty's played "Balaclava," British picture with little appeal, to about $6,000. Neighborhoods only fair.

Estimates for Last Week

His Majesty's (CT) (1,600; 50-$1)—"Balaclava" (British). Not enough old old country people to make a go of this film. Only $6,000, poor.

Palace (FP) (2,700; 40-75)—"Laughter" (Par). Even Nancy Carroll couldn't undo their purses and $13,000, light.

Capitol (FP) (2,700; 40-75)—"Her Wedding Night" (Par). Lillian Roth in person. Picture side line and Clara Bow outlived welcome here; $18,500, satisfactory.

Loew's (FP) (3,200; 40-65)—"Big Boy" (Warner). Al Jolson has big following locally, but they didn't turn up; $12,000, light.

Princess (CT) (2,300; 35-60)—"Raffles" (UA) (2d week). Faded badly on repeat with $9,000, but totaled $25,000 for fortnight, good.

Imperial (FP) (1,900; 25-40)—Double bill. Usual, $4,000.

Roxy (Ind) (600; 50)—"Flying Scotchman" (British). Bad at $2,000.

New Haven Scores Big Figures for Pre-Xmas

New Haven, Dec. 9.
(Draw. Pop., 300,000)
Weather: Favorable

Pre-Xmas lull meant nothing to Fox-Poli last week, as "Min and Bill" pulled the biggest houses the theatre has had in recent months.

"Billy the Kid" fell off from the usual gross at the Bijou, probably because the customers went across the street to "Min and Bill."

Estimates for Last Week

Paramount (Publix) (2,353; 65)—"Derelict" and Publix stage unit. House runs about the same from week to week, $16,800.

Roger Sherman (WB) (2,200; 60)—"Life of Party"; $8,300 satisfactory.

Fox-Poli (Fox) (3,040; 65)—"Min and Bill" and F. & M. lead. Best returns in many weeks, $20,500; handsome net.

Bijou (Fox) (1,536; 50)—"Billy the Kid." Drop to $4,900, moderate business.

OVERDO "NUDE" BALLY

(Continued from page 3)

themselves stumped for some new thought or new ideas to employ for ballyhoo purposes.

Marquee Billing Changes

This seems to express a common opinion. So much so that marquees and billboards on the west coast already reflect the inner studio mandates for "different" type of ballyhoo.

The Warners out here have their marquees featuring equally as prominent as "Doorway to Hell" that this is "the picture Gangland dared Hollywood to make." Paramount goes about "Morocco" by bally'ing Marlene Dietrich as a new personality. Carl Laemmle, Sr. and Jr., express themselves as exceptionally well pleased with the type of ad work coming out of their home offices. Adolph Zukor advocates greater advertising and exploitation.

That the out-of-the-ordinary "Amos 'n' Andy" campaign helped set the piece was extensively covered by the "Variety" Hollywood Bulletin a couple of weeks ago, and this general studio opinion is assuming wider belief. Local dope is that pictures these days must be "different" and that increased advertising of a different calibre must also contribute.

JED DOOLEY

One of the smartest and most original comedians in vaudeville and presentation houses.

Keith's Flushing and Eighty-sixth St., New York, this week.

Doing master-of-ceremony and a sensational text-to-closing act.

Direction Weber-Simons Agency.

'BAT WHISPERS' FAIR IN DENVER AT $11,000

Denver, Dec. 9.
(Draw pop, 400,000)
Weather: Fair

Three of the houses did good business.

"War Nurse," at the Denver, backed by Ted Mack, and "Sky High," stage show, turned in a week slightly better than average.

The Tabor, with a new low the week before, came back with "Up the River" and registered a $1,500 increase. This house is holding up exceptionally well since Harry Huffman took it over.

"The Bat Whispers" did about as expected. Paramount twins on the organs, Katherine Kaderly and Eloise Rowan, billed as Jackie and Jean, played their best presentation, "Raymond," since the opening.

"The Way of All Men" did a nose-dive at the Rialto. Lack of exploitation hurt the gross.

"River's End" did $500 better than the previous week at the Aladdin.

Estimates for Last Week

Huffman's Aladdin (1,500; 35-50-75)—"River's End" (WB). Fair at $6,500.

Denver (Publix) (2,300; 25-35-60)—"War Nurse" (M-G-M). Good. $14,000.

Paramount (Publix) (2,000; 25-35-50)—"Bat Whispers" (UA). Fair at $11,000.

Rialto (Publix) (1,040; 25-35-50)—"Way of All Men" (FN). Poor at $2,800.

Tabor (Publix) (1,900; 25-35-50)—"Up the River" (Fox). Good. $11,500.

'SAPS' DOWN IN PROV., $9,000; TWIN BILL O.K.

Providence, Dec. 9.
(Draw. Pop., 315,000)
Weather: Cold and Fair

Spotty week. Cold put the skids to some of the houses while others went big despite zero. Loew's State with "Min and Bill" got $25,000, biggest for weeks. Other standout was Majestic with twin bill, "Sin Takes Holiday" at R-K-O Albee in 2d week held up fairly well.

Estimates for Last Week

Loew's State (3,500; 20-50)—"Min and Bill" (MGM). One of biggest weeks for some time; $25,000 reported. Big.

Paramount (2,200; 15-50)—"Only Saps Work" (Par). Title failed to help. Reported $9,000 lowest since house opened early last summer by Publix.

Majestic (2,200; 15-50)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB), "Oh, Sailor Behave" (WB). Best balanced bill in town. Burg going big for two features and showing it; $13,000. Good.

R-K-O Albee (2,500; 15-50)—"Sin Takes Holiday" (Pathe), 2d week. Pulled out on Thursday day earlier to permit new Friday opening. "Big Money" in; $11,000 reported. Good.

R-K-O Victory (1,600; 15-50)—"Danger Lights" (Radio) and "Bird Island of Peru" (Epic). What good Radio picture did was offset by animal feature. Under $8,000. Fair.

Fay's (1,600; 15-50)—"Dancers," Vaude. Fairly good at reported $7,000.

Cincy Jumped $11,000 on Bulked Gross

Palace, With "Whoopee," Up $7,000 Over Week Before—"Morocco" Liked

Cincinnati, Dec. 9.

Inviting screen fare and favorable climatic conditions last week enabled downtown picture houses to recover from the previous week's slump, with a gain of $11,000 in combined receipts.

Grosses of the Palace, Capitol and Lyric made respective climbs of $7,000, $3,500, and $3,000, while the Albee fell off about $1,000.

Estimates for Last Week

Albee (R-K-O) (3,300; 35-75)—"Sea Legs" (Par), vaude. Jack Oakie popular bar and stage show, topped by Tom Patricola, above average. Only fair at $27,000.

Palace (R-K-O) (2,700; 30-50)—"Whoopee" (UA). Eddie Cantor magnetism, rave notices, flash window displays in record and book shops about town, sheet music plugs at leading stands, and classified ad contact with "The Post" helped make an excellent $22,000.

Lyric (R-K-O) (1,400; 30-50)—"Morocco" (Par). Smash praise from dailies, with Marlene Dietrich clicking heavy. Above $13,000. Good.

Capitol (R-K-O) (2,000; 30-50)—"War Nurse" (M-G-M). Hit for good $15,500.

Keith's (Libson) (1,600; 30-50)—"Santa Fe Trail" (Par), $6,000. Normal.

Strand (R-K-O) (1,350; 25-50)—"Feet First" (UA). Return got over $5,000. Good.

Family (R-K-O) (1,140; 20-40)—"Phantom of Desert" (Ind.), and "One Mad Kiss" (Fox), split. Up to house average at $4,000.

N. O. PREFERRED 'MIN' TO 'LIFE OF PARTY'

New Orleans, Dec. 9.
(Draw. Pop., 500,000)
Weather: Clear and Cool

Outdistancing all competitors last week was "Min and Bill," rolled along merrily to $18,500 at Loew's State, almost $5,000 above any other picture in town.

Things were quite gloomy at the Saenger where "Life of the Party" sent the theatre down to $13,900. Bill Bamker, star of last year's Tulane football team, which won the southern conference title, meant much to the Strand last week, when, as one of the principals in "Maybe It's Love," he helped the gross to $5,300.

Tudor had "Big Trail" for $4,300. Picture played under a peculiar booking arrangement, the house getting the film for two weeks for the price of a first run 7-day rental. Tudor broke even on its first week and this week will make money, as it is getting the picture free.

Estimates for Last Week

Loew's State (3,218; 60)—"Min and Bill." Best in six months; $18,500.

Saenger (3,568; 65)—"Life of Party." Picture liked by those who viewed it but simply would not click at wicket; $13,900.

Strand (1,800; 50)—"Maybe It's Love." Healthy profit at $5,300.

Tudor (800; 50)—"Big Trail." $4,300 during its first week and held over.

"Sin Takes a Holiday and vaude got $13,000 at the Orpheum last week.

"IMAGINE" $16,000 IN PORTL'D AND VERY BIG

Portland, Ore., Dec. 9.
(Draw. pop., 400,000)

R-K-O Orpheum kept up its pace. House has climbed steadily in recent months. Only Fox and R-K-O have stage shows with pictures.

Good biz at other houses. Fox "Just Imagine" clicked at the Broadway. Paramount with "Tom Sawyer" did huge mat biz.

Estimates for Last Week

Broadway (Fox) (2,000; 25-60)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Laugh film clicked. F. & M.'s "Doll Follies," ace stage show. $16,000; very big.

Paramount (Publix) (3,500; 25-50)—"Tom Sawyer" (Par). Great mat. biz; fair nights. $10,10c; fair.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (2,000; 25-60)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). Big. Also vaude. $15,500; good.

United Artists (Parker-Fox) (1,200; 25-60) — "Abraham Lincoln" (UA). Got raves, but fell away. $7,000; light. One week.

Rialto (Publix) (2,000; 25-50)—"East and Loose" (Par). Okay program. Fair. $2,900.

Music Box (Hamrick) (2,000; 15-35)—"Third Alarm" (Tiff). Did fairly well. $4,600; light.

Dufwin (Durwin Co.) (1,500; 25-$1.25)—Pauline Frederick guest star with stock in "The Crimson Hour." Bumper biz. $8,000; big.

'SAWYER' BUFF'S BEST AT $35,400—COIN LIGHT

Buffalo, Dec. 9.
(Draw. Pop., 500,000)
Weather: Rain

Shea's Buffalo acted as an offset among the downtown houses last week. The heavy business drawn there operated as a drain on the other box offices.

Estimates for Last Week

Buffalo (Publix) (3,600; 30-40-65)—"Tom Sawyer" (Par). Great week's business with a special appeal for kids; matinees were turnaway but some weakness in evidence at nights; $35,400.

Hipp (Publix) (2,400; 40-60)—"Girl of the Golden West" (WB), and vaude. Business off several notches; $13,900.

Century (Publix) (3,400; 40-60)—"Whoopee" (UA). Failed to hold for second week; $11,800.

Great Lakes (Fox) (3,400; 25-35-50)—"War Nurse" (M-G). Played up with sensational advertising but only fair takings; under $10,000.

Lafayette (Ind) (3,400; 25)—"Brothers" (Col). Box office still holding up; $10,500.

'TOL'ABLE,' $7,800, FAIR AT RIVOLI, BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Dec. 9.
(Draw. Pop., 850,000)
Weather: fair

Business continues big at the two big Loew houses, Century and Stanley. Latter has had five consecutive weeks with figures over $20,000, the first time this has happened since the fall of 1929.

"Tol'able David" at the Rivoli was supplemented by the personal appearance of the boy star.

A change in managerial personnel brings Walter Morris, late of Publix in Perth Amboy, to the Metropolitan, succeeding R. G. Wood, called to Charleston, W. Va., through illness of his father.

Keith's had "Tom Sawyer" for big juvenile trade. Holiday spot would have been best for this one, however. "Min and Bill" moved from big Stanley to elevator Valencia for continued run, got the biggest week of season for latter house. "Tol'able David" did well at the Rivoli, "Lightnin'" got a good week at the New. Little hit the low spots with "Juno and the Paycock" and "Hell's Angels" in third and closing week at the Auditorium, was pretty low. Combo Hipp ran below average.

A Shrine Circus in Fifth Regiment Armory, using Barnum and Bailey acts, offered indoor competition throughout week.

Estimates for Last Week

Century (Loew) "Sunny" (3,100; 25-50). Running on high these weeks. Gross off, but still good at $24,000.

Stanley (Loew) "War Nurse" (3,600; 25-60). Critics divided but public interested. House has built up good b. o. momentum in recent week. Very good at $21,000.

Rivoli (Wilson) "Tol'able David" (2,000; 25-60). Much expected of talker version. Cromwell in person. Draw but no b. o. riot; $7,800, fair.

Keith's (Schanbergers) "Tom Sawyer" (2,500; 25-50). Got juvenile trade. Some doubt about this one as to night trade, but held up far better than expected; $11,000, good.

New (Mechanic) "Lightnin'" (1,400; 25-50). Rogers' name and stage success of play got steady biz for this one; $9,000, good.

Valencia (Loew) "Min and Bill" (1,500; 25-35). Moved over from Stanley for continued run and got this house biggest intake since "Rogue Song." Only run of "Broadway Melody" topped gross of $4,800. Holding over.

Parkway (Loew) "Derelict" (1,000; 25-35). Business felt stiff competition and off. This he-man film not outstanding at big Stanley and ditto at this uptown stand; $3,100.

Auditorium (Schanbergers) "Hell's Angels" (1,500; 90-$1.50). Third and final week. Biz hardly justified stretching it into three weeks at this top. About $4,000.

Hippodrome (Pearce & Schock) "Extravagance" Tab show (2,250; 25-50). Pace somewhat slower; $5,500.

Metropolitan (Warner) "Check and Double Check" (1,800; 25-50). Apparently lacks lasting quality; $3,500.

A. P. SOCKS CHATTERERS

Circuit Operation as England Sees It, House Mgrs. $20-$50 and Ushers at $10

London, Dec. 1.

Theatre circuit attaches are squawking about the bad pay in the lobbies. Since the film business here has become a matter of two leading circuits, salaries have dipped to low levels.

Average pay for a picture house manager in this country is about $25 weekly. In some cases it's as high as $50. In others as low as $20. Some theatres, run by small circuits or controlled by American outlets, pay much higher, with at least one man getting $250 weekly, which is enormous on this side.

Doormen, ushers and attendants get as low as $10 weekly, with page boys drawing $3 a week.

Situation is made worse by reason of the mutual agreement between Gaumont British and Associated British, the leading circuits, not to take on men who have quit one or the other combine.

House managers, under the eye of district supervisors, etc., have to obey orders like office boys; must be dressed by a certain hour; have to stay in the theatre lobby between certain times, and hardly are allowed to spend a nickel without an okay from the head office.

Easy to Recruit

Circuits get their man-power easily, particularly in these days of unemployment. Boys straight from school, with a good appearance, become West End assistant managers at about $15, later emerging as managers of suburban theatres at $20.

Gaumont British publishes a monthly house organ called "Gaumont British News." It tells of the work being done in the circuits and publishes a list of prizes for workers.

Highest monthly award is $25, given to the showman who gets the best all-round b. o. results. Second prizes, $11, go to the best exploitation stunt and the best increase in cafe and other sales returns. Follows a list of "Special Commendations," carrying with them a prize of $2.

One of them reads as follows: "To Mr. Harris, Forcman, Palace, Kentish Town, London. Single handed he redecorated the various appointments in this theatre; he has done the work well and in his own time." For $2.

Hollywood Merchants Want Screen Credits

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Local dressmakers and milliners operating class establishments are after the studios demanding credit on the screen for dresses and hats designed and executed in their establishments.

Most of those making the demands have been designing clothing for the femme stars and finding out later that the studio was giving credit to its costume designing department for the creations. This also applies to the galleries in fan mags.

In a recent picture a femme star, according to press blurbs, was wearing an evening dress designed in the studio and made in New York. The man who designed the dress is a Hollywood costumer, and when he got a load of the press matter yelled plenty at the studio. Studio took the stand that it had paid him for his work and could say anything it wanted to about it.

Studios figure that if they start giving outsiders credit, the title sheet will look like the credits on a Ziegfeld show.

Branford's Stage Shows

Newark, N. J., Dec. 9.

The Branford restored the Publix units Friday with Gabriel Hines orchestra leader and Harold Rieder at the console.

Ben Bard is m. c.

WOOD ON TEXAS EPIC

Millionaire Behind "Under Six Flags"—Made in Texas

Dallas, Dec. 9.

Production on Texas' first epic, "Under Six Flags," started, with Larry H. Wood, production manager for "Covered Wagon," holding same job. Flicker will be ready for release in March, according to reports. Majority outdoor scenes to be shot at San Antonio and South Texas.

This time the propect is on the level, as Texas Pictures, Inc., boasts as stockholder, J. H. Kirby, millionaire lumberman and patriot.

Promoters figure sentimental appeal in state will warrant production cost, around $250,000.

HAYS' AD CODE ENFORCEMENT

Declaring that film publicity directors of most of the big producing companies have not only failed to live up to the Hays Advertising Code, filmdom's sages are considering the most radical step in the annals of picture advertising. The Hays board of governors at its next session shortly is slated to consider a measure which will put all advertising copy, particularly that appearing in the daily newspapers, under official censor treatment prior to release for public gaze.

Things in advertising have reached the point where denials, alibis or the garden variety of Hays' smooch, are of no avail. Official admission is finally made that the layouts for different pictures have had the female angle played up until it appears as though the publicity directors were having a private sexy stuff contest.

When the code was first drafted it was figured that the exhibitor away from New York was chiefly to blame for advertising troubles. In order to keep "sinful thoughts" and "resultant distortion of prepared copy" away from the sticks proprietor the Hays body ordered publicity departments of all its members to submit their press sheets to the Hays office. There the sheets were gone over with a magnifying glass.

Bill Johnson Is Editor Of Quigley's WC Daily; 'Herald'-'News' Merged

Under his new line-up of film trade papers, Martin Quigley will use New York City as headquarters, it is said. Heretofore, Chicago has been the home of the "Herald-World," but now, with an eastern coast daily, "The Review," and the take-over of the "Motion Picture News," which will be announced before the end of the week, Manhattan proves more convenient.

Quigley is also set with a new daily on the Pacific Coast. This will be handled by William Johnston, former owner and editor of the "M. P. News." The latter, according to present reported plans, will be consolidated with the "Herald-World."

Col's '10c a Dance' Title

"Ten Cents a Dance" is now title of Barbara Stanwyck's taxi-dance film for Columbia, with the song of the same name having been injected into the picture. Picture known as "Anybody's Girl."

"Ten Cent" song was in "Simple Simon," musical, and written by Lorenz Hart and Richard Rodgers.

NEWS WIRE IDEA CUTS IN ON 'EM

Hollywood Paste-Up Mob Exaggerated in Importance Through Local Politics and Hollywood Hooey —A .P. and Other News Services Getting 12 to 48 Hours' Break—Chatterers and Studio Angles

A. P. OFF P. A. STUFF

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

With the Associated Press now servicing 1,289 of its newspapers with a morning and afternoon wire service on Hollywood news, the importance of the Hollywood film chatters is only exaggerated for purposes of local politics and general hooey. When it comes to a real news break, the A. P. or any of the other important national and international news services is being accorded from 12 to 48 hours' protection on stories. After that it doesn't matter.

The local studios are still frank in their attitude towards exaggerating the importance of the local sheets, although conceding the ultimate greater benefits of the big news services. But, states the studio bunch, there are four very good reasons for playing up on the local news breaks. They rate these four important reasons as follows:

(1) Local publicity keeps the players and directors satisfied; they may not see national news breaks for days and weeks, whereas it's under their noses every morning or evening locally.

(2) Maintains the prestige of their own players, directors and other personnel in the eyes of others in the industry.

(3) If they are after an artist, director, writer or somebody like that, consistently favorable local publicity is employed as a bait sometimes to offset exaggerated salary demands. Publicity-hungry people will sacrifice monetary returns if convinced that they are going with an organization that is capably handling their exploitation.

Holding Jobs

(4) From the press departments' viewpoint, "the local breaks help us keep our jobs." The studio execs go by what they see at their breakfasts or around the dinner hour in the local rags.

Against this there is another type of Hollywood exec who thinks nothing but A. P. "It may not be important even for local consumption but, if in his own mind he deems it important, he thinks only of issuing a statement for the A. P.

A symposium of the Hollywood news services, chatterers and columnists rates the N. E. A., A. P., United Press and the North American Newspaper Alliance for the most worth-while national publicity breaks.

Dan Thomas for the N. E. A. is said to have a gross circulation of 15,000,000. That varies with the importance of his stuff, the service supplying all papers but not all utilizing it.

The A. P.'s 1,289 papers is estimable in its circulation.

Hubbard Keavy (a.m.) and Robbin Coons (p.m.) handle the wire service for A. P. and also send out a daily feature column. The wire stuff doesn't always break for daily service and if the quality of the news doesn't warrant it, there is no wire. A. P. is consisting in its policy to steer clear of p. a. stuff and only broadcast live news. The average for A. P. since it started its two-a-day spot news wire service has been wiring every other day.

Universal Service has 59 papers. This is a Hearst service. Louella Parsons goes out over it but not every paper uses her stuff, which

(Continued on page 20)

Fox Theatres Are Slowly Moving Into A Compact Body of Houses; Louis Cohen Now in Realty Dept.

2 "FRONT PAGE" LEADS

Decision to Come Between Tracy and Ames—Foster and Wolheim In

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Selection of the lead in Howard Hughes' "Front Page" is between Spencer Tracy and Robert Ames. Both have been tested, with Hughes and Lewis Milestone, directing, unable to agree on the selection.

Norman Foster, Paramount contract player, is also up, but not for the lead.

Louis Wolheim is set as the managing editor.

SUDEKUM SELLS 65 TO WARNERS

Nashville, Dec. 9.

Tony Sudekum, owner of the Crescent Amustment Co., is about to enter into an agreement to dispose of the 65 theatres of that company to Warner Brothers for a total net consideration of around $2,500,000. The deal has been on and off for some time. Sudekum left here late last week to close it in New York.

Under the agreement the Warners hold an option to buy the Sudekum houses outside of this city within two years. They are located in around 35 different towns of this territory.

In Nashville the deal is for Warners to build immediately, at Sixth and Church streets, with Sudekum in on it. Warners later is to take over the local Sudekum houses.

Publix is shortly to open its new Nashville house with other opposition theatres here, Princess and Vendome, operated by Loew's in a pool.

Consideration named is said to be almost the exact amount as at first agreed upon by Warners and Sudekum in the original deal which has been often postponed until now.

The Sudekum circuit is about the largest single individual independent string left in this country.

C. J. Fox Granted New Trial in Court Reversal

Milwaukee, Dec. 9.

Chas. J. Fox, local theatre manager, was granted a new trial by the United States Court of Appeals at Chicago, Dec. 6. Action reverses the verdict of a Milwaukee jury which earlier in the year found Fox guilty of aiding and abetting the defalcations of Erwin Voelz, savings department employe at the National Bank of Commerce, who was more than $200,000 short in his accounts.

At the time Fox was sentenced to five years in prison by Judge Geiger and fined $10,000. He has been free on bond since then pending the appeal.

According to present information, authorities at Washington will not take steps for the new trial until recommendations are received from the local federal district attorney's office.

SILENT "FRONTIER" FILM

A silent picture, "The Forgotten Frontier," never shown in New York and which was shot last summer in the Kentucky mountains, will be used in one feature of the entertainment scheduled for Jan. 15 in the Mecca Temple, New York. Affair is in behalf of the Frontier Nursing Service.

Picture, in six reels, was directed by Mrs. Marwin Breckenridge.

Beginning of the weave that will eventually shunt all Fox theatres, east and west, under the directorial assignment of Harry Arthur, with Oscar Oldknow supervising over all, is seen in the latest move of Fox by engaging Louis Cohen in the real estate department of the theatre division.

Cohen's affiliation with Fox is handed as the beginning of a big move to make one compact organization out of all the Fox theatre ends. He is scheduled to leave for the Coast shortly after the first of the year following certain deals now in negotiation here. Alex Kemper previously has had charge of the Fox realty and is still with the company.

Cohen is probably the best informed theatre realty expert in the industry. This connection will make his second affiliation with Fox West Coast which he left about two years ago to clean up the Universal theatre complex. He accomplished this successfully and at a profit for U.

With Cohen's affiliation comes also the extension of the alternating scheme for execs which was begun by Fox on the film end and will now include the theatre divisions on all ends.

Under this scheme, most of the theatre executives are to divide and alternate their duties and time between the two coasts. It includes Arthur and Oldknow and goes down to the publicity chieftains.

One of Two

In furtherance of this scheme Charles Cabellero, head of the purchasing and maintenance department, is now on the Coast reorganizing that department at West Coast and making one department where now there is two. Cabellero will head this division as before with headquarters in the east. Howard Sheehan will be Cabellero's contact at West Coast.

Arthur is scheduled to leave for the Coast next week and will probably return with Cabellero around Jan. 2. Arthur's visit is merely cursory, as given, and principally for confab with Oldknow with the shiftover and alternating scheme between the two not coming until later. Arthur is from the Coast and familiar with all West Coast theatre activities.

Gabe Yorke, head of the eastern advertising division, will alternate with Frank Whitbeck. Latter is expected east shortly after New Year's when Yorke will go to the Coast for a five-month stay. Yorke at present is making survey of the eastern territory, having left on that tour Sunday (7). He will leave for L. A. when his present tour is completed.

Schnitzer at Head of Radio's Coast Studio

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Ultimate removal of Radio studio control from William Le Baron is seen behind the formal announcement Monday (8) that Joseph Schnitzer, Radio Pictures president, and here some time now, will be mostly on the west coast assuming supervision of increasing business and financial matters.

Le Baron, according to Schnitzer's statement, will remain v. p. in charge of production with full supervision. With Schnitzer here the majority of the time it means the Radio president will be the last word at the studio in active jurisdiction over the plant.

Le Baron has a contract for two more years as vice-president, which it is said gives him free rein in production.

The official statement yesterday said that Schnitzer would assist with advice and counsel but would not take any price part in the production of pictures.

No Personnel Changes Upon Fox Take-Over of Par's Coast Houses

Hollywood, Dec. 8.

Oscar S. Oldknow, new of a Fox theatre inspection tour of St. Louis and Kansas City, is returning here Dec. 17. Harry Arthur is due Christmas week when both will probably decide future policies for the Publix houses Fox West Coast is about to acquire. That there will be no personnel changes has been stated.

Howard Sheehan, for F-WC, states that the stage show policy will have to be worked out. Previously when Fox and Paramount pooled their theatres, until the government stepped in, they found Portland and Seattle couldn't stand shows in two rival houses, with the same going for San Francisco and Los Angeles. This question will have to be adjusted.

Fanchon and Marco will probably take charge of Publix stage shows as before, with the FM trademark retained for F-WC houses and some other billing for the Publix shows.

United Artists' theatres' future has not been determined, as the Publix division head has not been notified yet of the closing of the deal. Most likely Schenck will withdraw the U theatre in Los Angeles as a spoke in the new UA chain.

No outline has been given for the L. A. Paramount, not included in the Par-Fox leasing deal.

No Warner Dividend

(Continued from page 3)

who handled the case for the plaintiff.

Dividend

Previous to passing vote of confidence, George A. Casey, who introduced the motion, and William Fayne, a vice-president of the duPont Company, subjected the directors to some grilling on the manner in which the last dividend was passed without a public statement. Questioned about additional financing, he said: "Sufficient funds are in hand to take care of us indefinitely. We are making more money now than at any time during the past eight months."

Write-offs for depreciation during the year were ascribed to acquisition of real estate and installation of sound equipment in theatres. It was stated the Warner company intends to continue acquiring from 10 to 15 theatres a year.

All pictures to be released during 1931 are produced and paid for, Thomas stated. Production of expensive musicals in color will be abandoned, he said, since they have consistently resulted in losses. He refused to estimate earnings for the next quarter at the request of some stockholders.

General Talk

Broadening out into a session of generalities of the picture industry, Thomas said that the company is spending much money on television; that fewer actors are under contract in Hollywood than ever before; that the foreign situation is good with the exception of France, Germany and Australia, with British trade particularly good; and that there is a growing necessity for the various companies to exhibit each other's pictures.

Intimations that big obligations are coming due in a lump sum shortly were flatly denied. Replying to a question on dividends, Thomas stated that the company is unwilling to resume payment until it is certain they will be continued uninterrupted. When this would be, he refused to predict.

Best Xmas Present

Subscription to

VARIETY

$10 for One Year

Always Welcome

"Trader Horn" Finished, But Headache Still on

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

After two years of headaches in production, Metro has completed "Trader Horn," but isn't sure whether it's a picture.

Unwilling to chance a local preview film is being taken to San Francisco next week by Metro for a preview away from professional contact.

Although spending months in Africa much of the present location stuff in "Trader" was taken in Mexico.

Theatre Owners Want Theatre Rental, Not Commercial Tenant

Topeka, Dec. 9.

Topeka owners of theatre properties are averse to converting their buildings to other uses, despite campaign by Fox to close several of the older houses.

Orpheum with 1,200 seats, Crystal with 800, and Cozy with 500 are dark. Fox owns leases on the properties and leases are about run out. Owners of Crystal have been approached with proposition to have the theatre remodeled to commercial uses, free of charge if lease is renewed, Fox to assume rental of building. Owners refuse, declaring theatre rentals are better than commercials.

Several parties are dickering for lease on Orpheum, with the object of reopening it for legit, it being only possibility for such house in city with talkers now in Grand, former resting place of road shows.

Isis, formerly dark, is now being used as stock company experiment and may be enlarged to accommodate better stage facilities if company shows Topeka wants stock.

SAM GOLDWYN TWICE USED ON UA'S BILLING

Since Sam Goldwyn's elevation to the Art Cinema post production, United Artists, always a little complicated politically, is more so. Things go on the record that way when several stories, slightly conflicting, were sent out about Norma Talmadge's UA picture just before Goldwyn sailed for Europe Friday (5).

For the benefit of the record, Goldwyn will be credited with "presenting" six pictures coming under the title of Art Cinema. Four others will be his own and, therefore, "Sam Goldwyn productions."

Warren Nolan will take care of all publicity matter when it pertains to the distribution end of Goldwyn "presents" or Goldwyn "produces." Lynn Farnol will have the last word on those which read "Goldwyn production."

Goldwyn, so far as story material and activities go, will proceed independent of the Pickford-Fairbanks-Chaplin trio.

Remaining in London until Jan. 15 during which time he will work, Goldwyn will then take the ferry for the Swiss Alps to rest up another month. After that he will use the return ticket, getting in New York about Feb. 15.

Incidentally, "Street Scene" and "The Greeks Had a Word for It" are on Goldwyn's personal production account and will be released as "Sam Goldwyn Productions."

N. Y. to L. A.

James R. Grainger.
J. R. West.
Mrs. Harry Arthur.
Jean Blanchon.
Roger Ferdinand.
Charles Boyer.
Maria Ladron Guevara.
Rafael Rivalles.
Maria Luz Callejo.
Benito Perojo.
Richard Cromwell.

L. A. to N. Y.

Edward Van Sloan.
George Bancroft.
Joseph H. Moskowitz.
Hugo Riesenfeld.

1st Runs on Broadway

(Subject to Change)

Week Dec. 12

Paramount—"Only Saps Work" (Par).
Globe—"See America Thirst" (U).
Capitol — "Way for Sailor" (M-G-M).
Rivoli—"Morocco" (Par).
Strand — "Truth About Youth" (WB).
Winter Garden — "Mother's Cry" (WB).
Rialto—"Blue Angel" (Ufa).
Mayfair — "Danger Lights" (Radio) (13).
Cohan—"Sleeping Partners" (B. I. P.).

Week Dec. 19

Paramount—"Tom Sawyer" (Par).
Globe—"See America Thirst" (U).
Capitol — "Passion Flower" (M-G-M).
Rivoli — "Royal Family" (Par) (17).
Strand—"Widow from Chicago" (WB).
Winter Garden — "Mother's Cry" (WB).
Rialto—"Blue Angel" (Ufa).
Mayfair — "Danger Lights" (Radio).
Cohan — "Birth of Nation" (Ind).

$2 Pictures

"Viennese Nights" (WB) (Warners).
"Hell's Angels" (UA) (Criterion).
"Hell's Angels" (UA) (Gaiety).
"War Nurse" (M-G-M) (Astor).
"Devil to Pay" (UA) (Gaiety) (14).
"New Moon" (M-G-M) (Astor) (18).

1-NIGHT STANDS LIKED BY WARNERS

Warners may play its picture names in the flesh on one-night stands in neighborhood straight picture houses from coast to coast under a plan now being discussed.

This follows W. B.'s successful routing this season of Davey Lee on small town one-nighters, with the kid drawing on his picture rep. Among localities touched by the Lee boy were many that hadn't seen an actor of any kind in person for years, outside of fair and tent performers.

Regarding the possibility that such lengthy burial in the sticks may tend to dull the screen juve's future picture chances and attractiveness, Warners considers it unlikely. The same attitude has been adopted toward playing of other talker names in the small film places, with added belief that closer contact with the picture fans through personal appearances might enhance their screen drawing ability.

In mind for the one-nighting in theatres, from reports, are all stars and feature players on the Warner and First National contract lists for use when available.

The dates involve playing on temporary platforms in theatres that haven't stages or stage equipment.

TIFFANY PROMOTIONS; HANSON, ASS'T GEN. MG

Grant L. Cook, executive vice-president of Tiffany Productions, announces that Oscar R. Hanson, former general sales manager, has been appointed assistant general manager of the company.

Carl J. Goe, assistant to Hanson, has been promoted to general sales manager, while Sterling Wilson, in charge of the contract department, moves up to assistant general sales manager to Goe.

In these promotions, Cook has followed a promise he made when assuming charge of the company's affairs, in promoting from the staff, through ability and worth.

The Social Side of Filmdom

(In the East)

By Joe Hoffman

Film basketball league started Wednesday (4) when Fox led R-K-O in a snappy scrap by 37 to 28. Pathe showed the way to its films rivals, Warners, by 37 to 27. Games were played aboard the U. S. S. Illinois, followed by a dance.

Metro and Columbia will commence their season tonight (10). At the same time Pathe will take on R-K-O in a contest which gives the Hoosiers a chance to gain the league lead. Fox plays Warners Friday (12) at the High School of Commerce gym. Despite the weather it will be a hot night for them.

Star players in the initial games were Girates, who ran up 22 of the 28 R-K-O points, and Morris Schlein of Fox, whose 11 points were important in his team's victory.

Standing of Clubs

	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Fox	1	0	1.000
Pathe	1	0	1.000
Warners	1	0	1.000
R-K-O	0	1	.000
Columbia	0	0	.000
Metro	0	0	.000

Fox Bowling

Publicity maintained its Fox bowling tournament lead of four games by capturing three matches from Auditing No. 2 at Dwyer's Wednesday (3). Auditing No. 1 also won three from Laboratory. Other four Fox departmental teams are beginning to pick up in playing, but are practically out of the race.

Metro

Metro's scheduled basketball game with Columbia was postponed from last Wednesday until tonight (10). It will be played aboard the "Illinois." Dec. 19 Metro tackles Fox with the winnings to be donated to the unemployment fund. Winnings are the side bets of each team. . . "Nose" Veils is unusually popular with the girls these days . . . With the closing of the football season Rainey Raines is forced to resort to writing to make side money . . . Belle Landau thinks that after the game aboard the "Illinois" they are all going for a ride up the Hudson with the ship. Anyway, she has good ideas. . . Other persons who don't want to see their names in print are Bernie Williams, Jack Kuhl, Larry Allen and Sid Prince. Another week and Metro will run out of names of those who don't. . . George K. Arthur and Karl Lane, film funsters, played a sociable game of football with Milton Beecher in the hallway. You should've seen Milton after it was over. . . Morris Franz has a new heart but keeps her secret. . . Rose Gaines will marry a title. . . Arthur Sheekman again caught telling Patsy Reis one of his famous jokes. Patsy tells him the finish when he's only half through. . . Vi Matlau contemplates joining the "Vanities" if stirred. . . Rose Lecher, pretty blonde cashier, never once made a mistake. Fears she'll have to sell samples if she does. . . Initial copy of "Mimeographic" will be distributed after the basketball game with Columbia. Sheet will contain the latest about the office. Staff is Charles K. Cohen, editor; Dutch Rickert, Sidney Salzer and Lou Adelman, columnists; Ira Heymann, sport editor, and Frank Sanfillippo, cartoons.

Warner

Bill Mullen supervising the departmental moving. . . Bernie Goodman working on still key sets. . . Teddy Trust giving the home office the twice over. . . Meyer Beck rushing to the dailies for placements. . . Harry Charnas donating to the Jewish Federation of Charities. . . George Handy, Winter Garden mgr., calling for an S. R. O. card, biz that good. . . Board of governors entering directors' room to discuss the club's future activities. . . Ronnie Madison, former Warnerite displaying acting ability in "First Night," one of the later Broadway shows. . . Mortie Hollywood cheered. . . Leying was secretly married July 26 last. . . Diligent Ettie Rudolf declaring boy boss the best in the business. . . Florence (Stanley) Englander, sweet gal, and her chum, Lillian Kaupf, anxiously awaiting the first rehearsal of the "Circus." . . . Jack Gilbert and Joe Rumo going it out for the Warner Club championship Friday (5) with Rumo winning by seven up. . . Johnny Feckner and Adele Negri know where there is a "cottage for sale" somewhere. . . Blanche Jarvis and Kelsey Brubach engaged. . . Shirley Frankel always buys her lunch at Miller's. You should have seen what the R-K-O ringsiders did to Warners basketball coach, Jules Girden, at the recent game. . . Elken Reiner congratulating Dorothy Earpel on her recent marriage. . . Leo DeLisser receipting bills, bills and bills. . . Eddie Bonns, in collaboration with C. E. Carrier, is the author of "Putting It Over," novelized success on exploitation. . . Renee Mellet appointed correspondent on "Warner News." . . Lee Salzberg ice skates at Iceland at a club discount . . . Jerry Loew and Harry Luljen sharing same office. . . George Sattan, among others, has been affiliated with Vitaphone since its infancy. . . Sam Serwer remarkoracks he's due at an Atlantic City convention to address 6,000 envelopes. . . Murphy Zimmerman has an address book several yards long. . . Bob Solomon knows all Warnerites by their first names. He's check-mate and double check. . . Milton Singer gets the medal for his acting. When not acting in pictures he plays office boy around the studio. . . Stuart Stewart has a new coupe. . . Bill Quinn, the handsome cameraman, wears a new tie every day. . . George Glenz has turned actor. His latest interpretation of a crying, temperamental prima donna is worthy of a Vitaphone recording. And he may get one. . . . Monte Shaff, Sam Sax's assistant, is the studio's wrestling champ.

Fox

Fred Bullock upholding the duties of a loyal citizen. He's on jury. . . . Frank Brown will balk the bleak blizzard of the winter with his big black bowler. . . . Greta Katz is planning to become a June bride. All that's known about the other side is that his first name's Irving. . . . Dotty Merman is one swell swimmer, and the Fox A. C. water splashers have a good bet in her. . . . Fox employee's contribution to Red Cross totaled $1,275. . . . Joe Keller, negative snipper, wonders why all the fuss about a "schnozzle" on a guy named Durante. "Look at mine," he says. He's sore 'cause he can't cash in on it like Durante. . . . Jules Solomon says some day some firm will publish his song. Office tells him he won't live that long. . . . Owen White is the Lab cashier, but looks like a musician. Yeh, he always needs a haircut. . . . Max Routstein has been wearing the same moustache for 15 years. . . . Harry Kosiner and Sam Schlein are behind a shrimp golf tournament for Foxites and have a ping-pong contest up their sleeves. . . . Resident nurse has new quarters, so white, so spick and span, it's almost a pleasure to get sick. . . . Two cages that convene the traffic department houses some versatile gents. Bill Vermont, formerly a blackface comedian, mag editor and shoelace merchant, and Felix Angier, who indulges in caricatures in his off moments. . . . James Costello, chief of the reception staff, could easily qualify for the diplomatic service—Members of the Fox A. C. through the efforts of Phil Horowitz, now have a 25c rebate at Iceland. . . . Teddy" Shaw is ill at the Polyclinic Hospital. . . . Annabelle Taub is now Mrs. Poltnik. . . . That gang in the Accounting department plays football on the cobblestones of 10th avenue. . . . Eddie Ettman arriving early to give tap dancing lesson to some comely females. Eddie points to Dave Ornstein up as a specimen of his teaching. . . . Marylin Waserick doesn't want her name in print. . . . Tom Quinn wants the world to know that "blondes make the best husbands."

Tiffany

Percy Gressberg, purchasing agent, takes home samples of all accessories to his three-year-old kiddie. . . . Jack Savage, artist, is unofficially on Christmas card duty for the next two weeks. . . . Even outsiders have learned not to offer Bill Fitelson big cigars. . . . Publicity dept. has fallen heir to a blackboard and will begin bringing apples to teacher. . . . Betty Kutsman, Jack London's sec, says he's the Floyd Gibbons of Bossdom. . . . Pop Mullins, Anthony and Bobbie, all of the mailing dept, approve of the "Mail Early" slogan for use all year 'round.

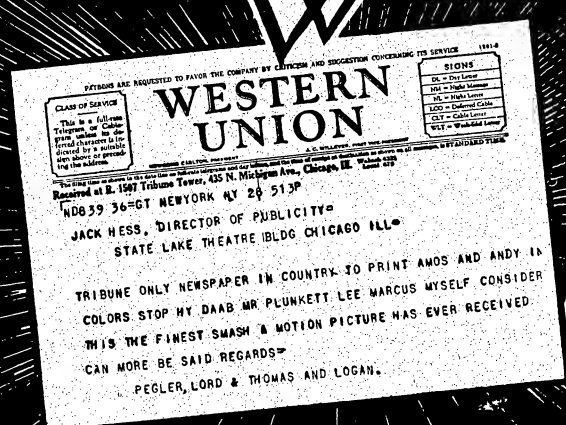
TEST CASE ON TALKER REMAKE STILL PENDING

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Local press perverted the gist of the courts ruling in denying an injunction to Julian Josephson against Pathe, the fact being that the merits of this test case have not been adjudicated. It's merely that the court decided an injunction isn't necessary pending the actual trial of the issues at some future date.

The test case of the dialog rights will not come to trial for some weeks hence, and the author's petition for a temporary restraining writ is not essential for whatever legal rights he has.

Josephson's "A Ship Comes In" was done as a silent in 1927, and redone, with dialog (German version only) in 1930. Josephson claims Pathe was unauthorized to adopt his basic idea, clothe it with supplementary dialog—no matter what the language is—and reissue it as a remake without compensating him.



TO ANNOUNCE THE AMOS 'N' ANDY OPENING TO THE LARGEST AUDIENCE IN CHICAGO AND SUBURBS R-K-O USED A DOUBLE-TRUCK SMASH IN TWO COLORS IN THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE

WITH THE RESULT THAT THE STATE-LAKE THEATER CHICAGO BROKE ALL HOUSE RECORDS!

CHECK and DOUBLE CHECK

FOR THE COMPLETE FACTS, ASK FOR A CHICAGO TRIBUNE SALESMAN

PATRONS ARE REQUESTED TO FAVOR THE COMPANY BY CRITICISM AND SUGGESTION CONCERNING ITS SERVICE

WESTERN UNION

CLASS OF SERVICE

This is a full-rate Telegram or Cable-gram unless its de-ferred character is in-dicated by a suitable sign above or preced-ing the address.

SIGNS
DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LCO = Deferred Cable
CLT = Cable Letter
WLT = Week-End Letter

Received at R. 1507 Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

ND839 36=GT NEWYORK NY 28 513P
JACK HESS, DIRECTOR OF PUBLICITY=
STATE LAKE THEATRE IBLDG CHICAGO ILL=

TRIBUNE ONLY NEWSPAPER IN COUNTRY TO PRINT AMOS AND ANDY IN COLORS STOP HY DAAB MR PLUNKETT LEE MARCUS MYSELF CONSIDER THIS THE FINEST SMASH & MOTION PICTURE HAS EVER RECEIVED CAN MORE BE SAID REGARDS=
PEGLER, LORD & THOMAS AND LOGAN.

PATRONS ARE REQUESTED TO FAVOR THE COMPANY BY CRITICISM AND SUGGESTION CONCERNING ITS SERVICE

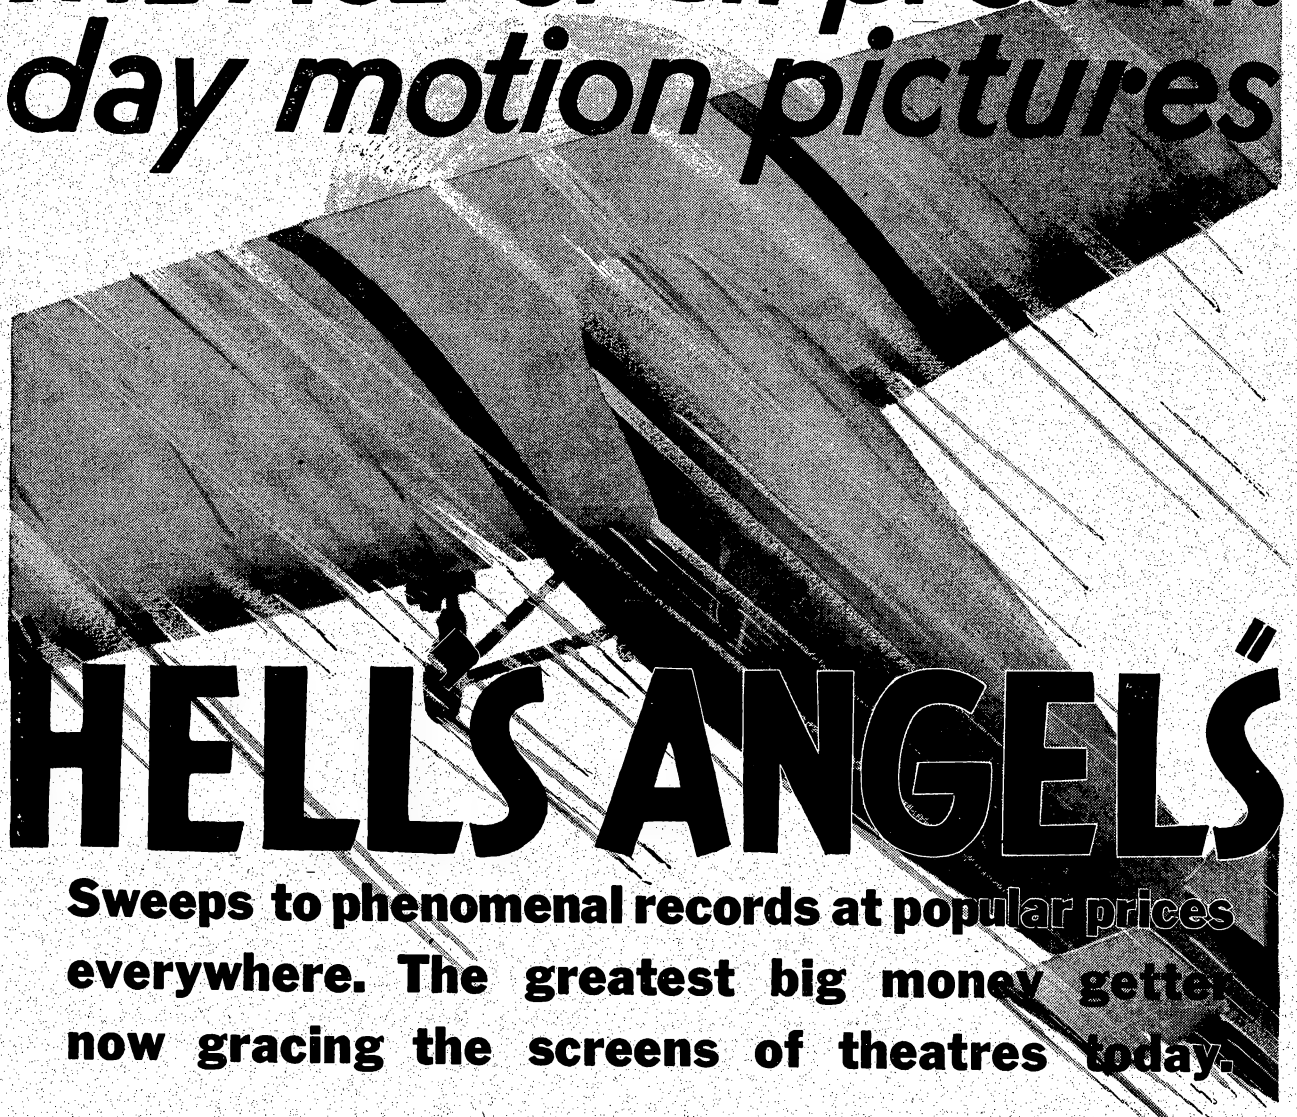
WESTERN UNION

CLASS OF SERVICE

This is a full-rate Telegram or Cable-gram unless its de-ferred character is in-dicated by a suitable sign above or preced-ing the address.

SIGNS
DL = Day Letter
NM = Night Message
NL = Night Letter
LCO = Deferred Cable
CLT = Cable Letter
WLT = Week-End Letter

Received at R. 1507 Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.



CA54 13=EJ NEWYORK NY 25 1212P
ADVERTISING MANAGER
CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE=
MANY THANKS GRAND HANDLING OUR TWO COLOR AD SENSATION IN EASTERN SHOW CIRCLES=
HY DAAB RADIO PICTURES.

Chicago Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Eastern Advertising Office, 220 East 42nd St., N. Y. C. Phone Vanderbilt 9292
Total Average Circulation, November, 1930, in Excess of 815,000 Daily; 1,080,000 Sunday

THE ACE of all present day motion pictures

HELL'S ANGELS

Sweeps to phenomenal records at popular prices everywhere. The greatest big money getter now gracing the screens of theatres today.

HERE ARE THE FACTS THAT SPELL HAPPINESS FOR YOU!

Century, Minneapolis	1st week	$15,268
Des Moines, Des Moines	" "	10,312
Paramount, Salt Lake	" "	8,882
Kirby, Houston	" "	15,829
Valentine, Toledo	" "	9,429
Fairfax, Miami	" "	10,524
Paramount, Atlanta	" "	13,269
State, St. Louis	" "	23,564
Loews Palace, Memphis	" "	8,473
Loews, Richmond	1st week	10,688
Florida, Jacksonville	" "	7,129
Aldine, Phila. (2 daily)	" "	18,889
United Artists, Chicago	" "	38,871
	2nd "	32,871
Penn, Pittsburgh	1st week	35,861
Palace, Indianapolis	1st 2 days	6,801
State, Louisville	1st 2 days	5,679
Loews, Dayton	1st 2 days	6,638

Date in THIS HOWARD HUGHES UNITED ARTISTS new record maker NOW!

THE BLUE ANGEL
(GERMAN MADE)
(English Version—With Songs)

Ufa production, supervised by Erich Pommer. Released over here by Paramount. Stars Emil Jannings, with Marlene Dietrich featured. Directed by Joseph Von Sternberg. Adapted by Carl Zuckmayer and Karl Vollmoller from Heinrich Mann's novel, "Professor Unrath." Scenario by Robert Liebmann, with Gunther Rittau and Hans Schneeberger cameramen. Music by Friedrich Hollaender and played by Wientraub's Syncopators. Klangfilm recording. At Rialto, New York, on grind run, starting Dec. 5. Running time, 99 mins.

Prof. Immanuel Rath.....Emil Jannings
Lola Frohlich.....Marlene Dietrich
Kiepert, a magician.....Kurt Gerron
Guste, his wife.....Rosa Valetti
Mazeppa.....Hans Albers

Splendid English version of a German original which should do something to make boxoffice figures resemble the good old days of '29. It's Emil Jannings' first talker with his name over the title and Marlene Dietrich's underneath. This one's got plenty, and where there's a heavy Teutonic colony business will be terrific.

It's a standout picture along typical UFA lines—meaning that the story is heavy, tends to drag and holds up more on the strength of the two principals than anything else. Besides which there are present the usual German expressive studio sets, photography and types.

As a transposition from the German to English it must rank as a superb piece of work because it's a cinch that America has turned out no foreign version of any of its pictures to compare with this one, according to the reports coming back from abroad. Also in its favor is that the American public isn't concerned with who makes the pictures. They don't care over here what the accent or nationality background is. If it's a good picture they go. If not, they stay away. They'll go to see "The Blue Angel." It's been a smash in Germany, all over Europe.

The film will mark Jannings' welcome return as a screen visitor and should just about set Marlene Dietrich over here. Between the advance exploitation spilled by Paramount ahead of "Morocco" for this girl, plus that she more definitely impresses in this one, it looks as though nothing but successive bad pictures can stop this German girl now. Those who think she's got s. a. will secure fresh ideas after viewing her here, and the mob who have turned thumbs down on her better hold themselves for a reversal until this picture gets around.

It also seems as if Paramount has an excellent chance to give Miss Dietrich a strong phonograph plug on the strength of one song included and which she has already recorded for Electrola in Germany. Tune carries a plaintiff melody which has a tendency to linger, and Miss Dietrich sings it better in this picture in English than on the record in German. Her delivery is not unlike that of Sophie Tucker, in that she mixes it up by singing and talking a line or two at a time, but in a softer manner than is Soph's brusque way.

On performance Miss Dietrich, as a cabaret girl of liberal morals, moves around more than in "Morocco" and plus those Continental soubret costumes of much stocking, bare limb and garters, she's an eyeful. Vocally it sounds very much as if this were her first fling at English before a microphone and she seems a bit timid as regards the dialog. This is not so when she sings.

There are other numbers by Hollander besides the main slow-tempoed item, reprised throughout, but none is particularly important. They're generally in for only a chorus and most of the time broken into or abruptly halted by story action. However, Miss Dietrich's final rendition of the main song astride a chair, as she tosses it with almost a sneer on her face at the low-brow mob in the sailor's dive, is something of a classic for a celluloid interpretation of a song.

As a matter of fact, this girl's voice is nothing to become frantic about. It's no good nor a big voice by any means. But there is an individuality and personality behind it which may explain the decided advantage for the screen as between the phonograph and Klangfilm recordings.

This is not by way of saying that Jannings is merely in the picture. But as long as there seems so much turmoil on the Coast as to whether Dietrich is going to click or not, it can be stated that Miss Dietrich is here to stay and is much too valuable to be merely used in German versions. Paramount thought it had something when it took a look at this woman, and if Par has finally found its Garbo, the film fan isn't going to be greatly concerned with the controversy. They'll like and go to see both if their pictures hold up.

Jannings gives a fine characterization of the circumspect school teacher who falls completely for the cabaret singer whom his students have been nightly sneaking away to see. It leads to his being dropped from the faculty, their marriage, and his selling of postcards of his wife from table to table. Ultimately, on a five-year leap, he descends to become the pantomimic clown assistant of the magician-manager of the show with the mimicking of a rooster as his comedy punch.

Climax starts building when the troupe is to play Jannings' former town where they are billing him under his academic name to attract the former students. Between this mortification and that his wife is starting an affair with a fellow performer, Jannings is on the verge of a mental collapse when it comes time to go on. When he sees his wife in the arms of the other man in the wings he goes completely out of his head and leaves the stage to strangle her. It ends as he is put into a straight-jacket, from which he is later released, and still more or less mentally deranged, makes his way back to his old schoolroom and desk, where he dies.

Von Sternberg, directing, has stretched the picture beyond its limit but has shown high judgment in handling the dialog. Numerous and quite long passages minus a word, simply because no conversation is called for and would be superfluous. As an appreciation of dialog values "The Blue Angel" may be a model.

Yet in America it has always been more or less of an open question as to just which directors direct Jannings and which directors Jannings directs. Although Erich Pommer supervised this one, and even Jannings recognizes Pommer's skill, this German actor is very highly regarded over here, and his performance in this picture is nothing but sustain that prestige. He does very well with his English.

UFA photography carries its own reputation, also borne out here. The Klangfilm recording, as reproduced at the Rialto, seemed uniformly good with at times a surprising absence of ground noise. The dialog throughout goes back and forth between English and German, while unfolding legitimate excuses for the use of English. These crop up every so often in the story as, for instance, Miss Dietrich asking Jannings to speak in her language (English) and Jannings also requesting one of his pupils to address him in this tongue. Miss Dietrich plays a British girl.

Musical accompaniment for the songs in the cabaret is credited to Wientraub's Syncopators, only occasionally and partly seen. Band listens as mostly a brass combination in which a clarinet is prominent. For the climax tramp through the snow to the schoolroom Von Sternberg has called in an atmospheric off shore boat whistle and a symphonic orchestral build-up for color.

Supporting cast members fit especially Kurt Gerron as the magician-manager. Types run throughout the film, with the first flash at Miss Dietrich showing that somebody evidently thought it just as well to take no chances, as for this initial flash they surround her with a group of typical barroom entertainers, fat, etc.

"The Blue Angel" was first released in Berlin last April. According to "Variety's" review of that date certain liberties have been taken with the novel upon which it is founded, but this English version evidently runs almost foot for foot with the original German screen presentation. It has Jannings, Miss Dietrich and the melody. There doesn't seem anything which can stop it from doing unusual business, including the pre-Xmas slump that figures to be a sock this year. Even the censors, who in some cases will likely try and cut certain costumes and postures of the German girl, will have a tough time holding this one back. Sid.

The Boudoir Diplomat

(Universal production and release. Based on the play, "Command to Love," by Rudolf Lothar and Fritz Gottwald. Screen play and adaptation by Benjamin Glazer and Tom Reed. Karl Freund, cameraman. At Globe, New York, week Dec. 5. Running time, 65 minutes.)

Helen Fenton.....Betty Compson
Baron Vahni.....Ian Keith
Mona.....Mary Duncan
Fenton.....Jean Dumpetie Jeff
Ambassador.....Lawrence Grant
War Minister.....Lionel Belmore
Potz, Tom Reed.....André Beranger

Lethargic treatment and a general matter of factness rob the screen version of the suspense and action of the stage play, "Command to Love." Long conversations and little movement permit an audience to react largely to repeated opening and shutting of doors also to absorb as the story unravels situations made familiar long ago in musical comedies. There are no hot love scenes, action in that respect being left to suggestions in dialog, more obvious than subtle. In merit the picture is just a regular program release of fullness.

Costumes and gowns are many. Ian Keith as the Baron, who negotiates a diplomatic post by charming officials' wives, is over-smooth. This is emphasized by an affectation in some of the dialog. Keith is always a cool lover, the slight bit of osculation he indulges in even being reduced to pecks.

Mary Duncan is more like a mannequin than a beautiful and anxious-to-be-entrapped wife of the minister. Miss Duncan exhibits some unusual gowns, and clearly indicates were she not so restrained by the direction, she could have given a warm accounting.

Quite likely all of this suppression in story handling and cast action was brought about by Betty Compson on the play at time start and later refusing to okay its title for the screen. How "Boudoir Diplomat" can be expected to sound more moral than "Command to Love" is one of the enigmas.

Flashes of undies and other silken things, but nothing in concert with them, except incidently, to let the audience mind to much more than that inspired by a fashion reel.

This Baron is insinuated to be a great lover but all that he does on the screen occurs after doors have been shut in the audience's face. These doors become very annoying to the average fan long before the running time is exhausted.

One of the best performances and the only getter of laughs of any length is that by Andre Beranger as Potz, pansy secretary to the Baron.

Betty Compson as one of the attendees to the Baron, is pert and attractive but leaves little more impression than the others. All have been very apparently held down, giving the thing a tone of artificiality. Waly.

Miniature Reviews

"The Code of Honor" (Syndicate). Dialog western of the old quickie type with some homely cowboy rhythm. For double bills.

"The Yellow Mask" (B. I. P.). Some customers may resent an opium smoke scene. In main, film is too slow and essentially weak in story to suit American audiences, although from a British angle, noteworthy.

"Boudoir Diplomat" (Universal). Fair program release with not enough strength for the deluxers. Hays hand in this making evident.

"The Blue Angel" (Ufa-Par). Excellent picture probably classing as the best foreign version made to date by any country. Jannings' first talker in which he gives a splendid performance in a mixture of English and German. Marlene Dietrich, a strong s.a. factor, who also sings. Heavy story somewhat prolonged but typical Ufa sets and photography. One ballad which may grow to mean something for film if Par. hurries Miss Dietrich into recording it in English for parlor dis. consumption. Surefire anywhere and particularly where there's a Teutonic representation.

"Verklungene Traume" (Echo of a Dream") (German made). Talker with songs on cluttered story and amateurish acting. Not worth serious consideration as internationally with native dialog.

"Extravagance" (Tiffany). Not for the deluxe houses, but domestic angle with sufficient suspense to register fairly elsewhere.

"Igdenbu" (Russian made) (Silent). One of Soviet's trick propaganda films on how the Bolshevists reclaimed a Mongolian tribe in Siberia. Not a historic record and faked on the romantic. Titles n. g.

SCARLET PAGES

Fox National production and release. Directed by Ray Enright. Elsie Ferguson starred. From stage play by Samuel Shipman and John B. Hymer. Cameraman William Sickner. Running time, 90 minutes. At the Strand, New York, week Dec. 5.

Mary Thatcher.....Elsie Ferguson
John Remington.....John Halliday
Nora Mayo.....Marion Nixon
John Lawrence.....Walter Pidgeon
Sister Beatrice.....Daisy Belmore
Judge.....DeWitt Jennings
Gregory Jackson.....Wilson Benge
Mr. Mason.....Wilbur Mack
Mrs. Mason.....Charlotte Walker
Secretary.....Helen Ferguson

"Madame X" and "Common Clay" story motif nicely carried out in another capital emotional performance by Elsie Ferguson, totalling probably a picture of fair return for program output. Timing at this time not long after both other parallel stories, it loses something of fan interest.

The play is on rather a lower plane than either of the other two, certainly in the particular that it is rather more theatrical and lacking in the element of genuineness, but the persuasive playing of Miss Ferguson does a great deal for it in the way of giving it the illusion. Hers is a fine legitimate rendering of a role that has become formula.

Next best performance is that of John Halliday, playing the district

(Continued on page 55)

Talking Shorts

DOUGLAS STANBURY
"Alpine Echoes"
8 Mins.
Strand, New York
Vitaphone No. 1087

Douglas Stanbury, standard baritone on Broadway, has been surrounded with an absurd atmospheric background for the singing of two straight songs in a subject rather less than so-so.

Setting is a Swiss inn in the Alps with Stanbury of a party of four mountain climbers, once in evening. They arrive at the inn on their way to the mountain peak, wearied, and pause for a comedy incident outside, testing the mountain echo with the shout "You big bum" coming back, "You're another." That stale gag is all there is of comedy.

Party enters the inn where a broken down opera singer, entertainer in the place, is taking up a collection. Stanbury's friends urge him to sing and he agrees to do so on condition that he be permitted to pass the hat for the old man.

Then he does two numbers, "There's a Sunny Smile Waiting for Me" and "Across the River," both enjoyable. But the question is why all the elaborate building up of two straight numbers and further why the inappropriate surroundings that promise a comedy intent and never make good?

Misdirected effort. Rush.

GEORGE JESSEL
"Politics"
18 Mins.
Winter Garden, New York
Vitaphone No. 1100-01

One of the best of the George Jessel series of shorts for Warners. Subject has capital comedy, consistent story and an attractive undercurrent of sentiment concealed beneath its clowning. Offered here on the bill with the First National's feature, "Mothers Cry."

Opens in a cigar store with Jessel acting as campaign manager for the shop keeper ambitious to become an alderman. Gagging over politics with smart topical laughs. Jessel explains that he has to meet his mother coming from the old country and detained at Ellis Island. He hasn't seen her in 15 years.

Scene shifts to Ellis Island with shots of the real immigrant station slipped in. The mama is herded with a lot of other alien old women. Gagging with Jessel trying to crash and being blocked by surly officials. He is allowed to interview many of the old women through the yell. Irish, Spanish, German and Yiddish, Jessel handling bits of each language glibly. At length finds the mama, but can't take her away.

Scene shifts back to the cigar store. Jessel and his candidate frame for Jessel to meet O'Leary, influential politician who can pull votes. Meeting is at a banquet where Jessel accidentally is mistaken for the principal speaker. Does a funny burlesque on the after-dinner orator and, making friends with O'Leary, it is fixed to get the Mama in.

Back to Ellis Island for the finish, with the tag gag the mama after one night in company with the Irish woman has suddenly developed a brogue. Surprise twist is ringing in the Irish immigrant for a line, which is delivered in rich Yiddish dialect.

Amusing all the way, with Jessel giving a nicely balanced performance. Arthur Hurley directed story, supplied by Burnet Hershey. Subject brings them both much credit. Rush.

RUTH ETTING
"One Good Turn—"
16 Mins.
Winter Garden
Vitaphone No. 1122-23

Ruth Etting sings three songs which alone is enough to make an acceptable short subject, but here the song cycle has been cleverly backed up with a light dramatic story into which the numbers are logically interwoven. Net effect is a first rate release.

Opens like a "salon" specialty. Miss Etting singing "The Kiss Waltz," with Jay Velie at the piano, singing a verse in an agreeable crooning style. At the end there is applause and the camera swings to show a theatre audience.

Story develops when theatre manager advises the singer to ditch the piano player and do a single, dialog developing story idea that she is in love with the partner and ready to sacrifice a chance for him. She traps him to be a performer, the number, "Don't Tell Her What's Happened to Me" being eased into the story during a scene where she is coaching the partner, fading into the performance where he makes good.

Presently he is the town's matinee idol, and the managers are battling to make him a star if he will work alone. He is persuaded to abandon his benefactress. Brief scene with Miss Etting and a girl friend talking it over with the typical philosophy of Broadway.

Velie's voice leaves him and he is down and out again. A benefit is arranged for him. All the advertised stars fail to appear. Miss Etting alone puts in an appearance, singing "If I Could be with You" to the audience, and for the finish a brief bit between the pair with the former partner begging to be forgiven and taken back and a clinch.

Story never intrudes, but carries itself on merit with its bright dialog and gag lines and the crooning Miss Etting's songs putting on the clincher.

A carefully thought out and well produced short and among the best of the new crop. Rush.

GEORGE SYDNEY and CHARLES MURRAY
"The Love Punch"
Comedy
20 Mins.
Cameo, New York
Universal

George Sydney and Charles Murray team in this one on their regular feature style that's well known. Sydney, as usual, is the Hebe partner and Murray the Irishman. Better casting of the woman foil would have helped.

Dialog is not original yet there's some laughs for the Sydney and Murray weight fans.

It's about the two ever quarrelling partners. Sydney to rid himself of Murray weds a woman jailbird. He thereby cashes in on a will proviso and gets enough to pay off Murray's end of the biz partnership. The humor is forced by Murray who seemingly knows the woman as a poison hound. He catches the laughs with Sydney in his attempts to save the latter from being slain by the woman. A cop arrives to save the situation all around and takes the woman back to jail. Shan.

CHESTER CONKLIN
"Cleaning Up"
18 Mins. (Comedy)
New York, New York
Paramount

Chester Conklin is again cast as a street cleaner in this lightweight slapstick of the old gag-man school. Laughs come at long intervals and those mainly through reliance on hokey situations. Mack Swain, also playing a "white wing" role, is in support of the pint-sized comic with the trick soup strainer.

Chester and Mack start this one off by throwing newspapers and garbage at one another, the fight carrying them into a spot where they unknowingly come to the rescue of the police commissioner about cue of the police commission about to be knocked off by hoodlums. That earns them a job on the police force and an assignment to the toughest street in town with instructions to bring-in a gang leader. Boys get the wrong guy through a fluke and drag him to the police station tied to the back of a wagon carrying explosives. After delivering their man to the cops the wagon blows up and the boys, buried under a pile of debris, decide that the life of a street cleaner isn't so tough after all.

Lots of shooting and chases in this short, which starts off slowly and winds up the same way. Grinds only.

TOM HOWARD
"Go Ahead and Eat"
11 Mins. (Comedy)
Rialto, N. Y.
Paramount

Satisfactory program addition unfolding more workmanship than in the average run of this type of film fare. Tom Howard is a veteran stage comic mostly using a dry wit and a cold "pan" to score. Here he is ably assisted by another lad (name muffed on the title), who foils expertly.

Idea has a couple of the comics trying to beat a hard-boiled cafeteria proprietor out of a free lunch, each taking turns at the policeman when the after-dinner scuffle commences. Following Howard, having eaten a real one shows up to make the pinch for a finish.

Not new from a stage standpoint and somewhat slow in getting started, but Howard and his partner together until reaching the climax build-up.

A number of chuckles and a couple of good laughs, fair enough quota for any one-reeler. Sid.

"MYSTERIOUS MOSE"
Comedy Cartoon
6 Mins.
Rialto, N. Y.
Paramount

Of Paramount's Talkartoon series, with the usual extreme antics put together for a lightly entertaining half reel.

Every so often uncorks a laugh-provoking idea, and with the cartoons having the head start of being welcomed upon the title flash, there won't be a great deal of disappointment. Advertised to "Mysterious Mose." Sid.

EXPLOITATION

This department is almost entirely made up of matter from "Variety's" own correspondents. Seldom are any of the exploitation notes sent out by the home/publicity offices of the chains used here.

"Variety's" correspondents have been requested to report on all local press or exploitation stunts that fail or prove too expensive for results achieved, as well as those which get over.

Ordinary or expected exploitation not included in this department. Repetition in several cities also excluded, after first mention, unless new angle is later developed.

Buffalo, N. Y.

Buffalo is one of the few key cities in the country where there has been an entire absence of exploitation and publicity stunts in connection with film showings at downtown de luxe houses.

The three downtown Shea-Publix houses, Buffalo, Century and Hipp, go in for no exploitation of any kind. Great Lakes (Fox) moves along from week to week with little special even for outstanding film features. New Lafayette (Inde) is the only house tying up for special stunts, but even this one not extending itself.

This town is unique in the respect mentioned.

Gave It the Works

Seattle.

Fox-West Coast p. a., Vic Gauntlett, for Northwest, went the works on ballyhoo for "The Big Trail," at Fox theatre. Used 1,500 book marks in book stores; extra 24-sheet stands; extra newspaper space; special preview for boy scout masters and girl scout leaders; special radio broadcast by Owen Sweeten band; ushers garbed as "forty-niners"; full page co-operative ads, pleased merchants buying the space; special cards in U. P. depot for first time ever. Also display at U. of W. homecoming in the U. district.

Ballyhooing M. C.

Seattle.

Rube Wolf, new m. of c. at Fifth avenue, Seattle, got hilarious welcome to Northwest. Serenaded by combined theatre bands; at reception mayor's rep gave "key" to city; appeared at Breakfast Club, before Washingtonians; on the air, KJR, for entire show; co-op advertising with stores and big banner across street 30 by 60 feet in size, told about Rube being at the Fifth.

Wrist Watch Giveaways

Hartford, Conn.

Fox Capitol and one of the local jewelers have been giving away $1,000 in jewelry in the past few weeks. The tie-up is with a national wrist watch manufacturer, in which the local jeweler is using the theatre as a means of Xmas publicity instead of copy in newspapers.

The method of giving away the watches and other items means issuing of cards bearing numbers with each admittance ticket. Drawing is held nightly on the stage, with three watches and consolation prizes given. In the event the bearer of a lucky number is not present the gift is mailed to the winner if he or she writes her name on the card.

Loew's Monthly Slogans

Starting in Jan. Loew's will go on a monthly exploitation spree like the one it conducted for a few months at the beginning of this year.

Loew's "January Festival" will inaugurate the campaign, with builder line: "Start Prosperity with Loew's January Festival."

Mgr. Won't Pay Fine

Dallas.

R. B. Allison, exec of Publix Texas at San Antonio, refused to pay a $10 fine, result of differences with a cop.

Cop charged Allison with violating town's advertising ordinance, prohibiting signs on sidewalks. Flat-foot sez he order Allison to remove two signs in front of the Texas and that Allison refused. Now Allison refuses to pay the fine, claiming he had nothing to do with the planks.

Cincinnati.

R-K-O exploitation forces won by a nose in a race against time in the folding up of the "Commercial-Tribune," Cincy's oldest newspaper.

The sheet's last Sunday edition carried a six-page section devoted entirely to the exhibition of made-in-Cincinnati products in lobbies of the Albee, Palace and Capitol, R-K-O's three leading local houses.

It was the biggest gratis newspaper space contact ever made here by an amusement enterprise. Credit goes to Manager J. L. McCurdy and Bill E. Danziger, his publicity chief.

Three days later the paper suspended publication, absorbed by the "Enquirer."

Toledo, O.

Jack O'Connell, manager, Vita Temple theatre, will hold a premiere showing of "White Hell of Pitz Palu" Dec. 12. All proceeds are to be turned over to Toledo "Blade," conducting a penny campaign hoping to get a ton of coppers.

New York City.

Tie-up between Loew's 175th street theatre and "Evening Graphic" for a girl to represent Washington Heights and pose for illustrations for a new serial story in the paper, brought out a few hundred girls. Arranged by Harry Berg, of the Loew press staff.

Toy Electric Train for Kids

Rochester, N. Y.

A promotion stunt that pleases the kids is a toy electric train with a maze of electric signal lights and switching arrangements set up in the corridor of the R-K-O Palace for "Danger Lights." Mothers taking kids to show had hard work dragging them from the display.

"Tom Sawyer" Kid Stunt

Quincy, Ill.

Children of Hannibal, Mo., some 25 miles from here, raised on Huck Finn, Tom Sawyer and Becky Thatcher, are drawing pictures of any or all of these characters, to win prizes offered by the merchants and the Orpheum theatre.

This is in connection with "Tom Sawyer." Children are divided into three groups by age. Each group will receive the same prizes. First, $2; 2d, Tom Sawyer shirt; third, month's pass to the Orpheum; fourth, $1 bank deposit.

First 10 entries get passes to see "Tom Sawyer." Drawings may be of the group or any one of the three characters.

The Hannibal Mark Twain society will furnish the judges for the contest.

Air Organ Programs

Lynchburg, Va.

With nearest CBS station 60 miles away, in an opposish town, Publix here is using the local 100-watter, WLVA, to put across its radio plugs. Programs are offered daytimes, with Paramount and Isis theatre organs.

Publix also rents use of two organs to other firms for air programs. Organ music is very popular here.

Des Moines.

The Paramount is starting a contest to develop personal following for members of the stage band. Idea is for each member of the band to strut his stuff and then a contest, supervised by Al Morey, regular m. c., will establish the winning boys as guest m. c.'s for the second matinee performances on Monday.

Management hopes to boost second Monday matinee biz in this manner.

Pre-Xmas Sales Spur

New Haven.

Paramount publicity men are making a determined effort to overcome any tendency toward a theater-going let-down during the pre-Xmas period. Local house has four of Par's films—"Morocco," "Only Saps Work," "Follow the Leader" and "The Right to Love" and started in early to plug them.

A four-page circular, distributed house-to-house, shows Mary Brian of "Only Saps Work" holding a placard urging folks to shop and mail early, together with a list of mailing instructions signed by the local postmaster. Into this circular has been worked some copy offering the weary shopper two and a half hours of relaxation at the theater and the whole thing is topped off with a list of pictures and stars for the next four weeks.

To exploit "Morocco," in addition to the regular advs., the front of the theatre has been painted and decorated to represent a city as shown in the film.

During the Saturday matinee special showing of the Rin-Tin-Tin serial for children the house tied up with Savitt, local jeweler, who supplied 50 watches for a Rin-Tin-Tin contest. Each week kids were given cards containing one letter of Rin-Tin-Tin's name. Fifty R's were held out till final week and child having complete name won watch. Also, cards were punched for each performance and children having complete card punched for attendance at entire serial were admitted free to first episode of new serial "Phantom of the West."

Something for All

Savannah, Ga.

Dijou, given over entirely to talkers, has helped business Thursday nights by inaugurating Thursday "Gift Night." Each patron of the house after 6 o'clock in the evening is given a small envelope as he surrenders his admission ticket. This envelope contains a gift. There are no blanks.

Gifts range in value from one cent to $1. One envelope may contain only a penny. Another will contain a penny and a pass for two to the show. Another will contain a quarter and another a 50-cent piece. Every patron gets something.

The biggest gift is a new dollar bill. There is always much interest in who gets this.

Management says the business has grown considerably through this means and the expense of putting on "the stunt" is not great.

Free Tea in Albany

Albany, N. Y.

The Hall offering an innovation for its patrons. The house last week opened a tea room where tea and crackers are served free of charge either before or after the shows.

Golf Course Stunt

Yonkers, N. Y.

The minnie golf courses are the only amusements playing up stunt exploitation this week.

One outfit has Capt. Jack Evans buried under 10 feet of turf at the edge of a bunker where he will remain in a regulation coffin for 10 days from the time he was planted last Saturday.

A periscope arrangement gives a view of the performer at all hours.

Cops Selling Tickets

St. Paul.

Benefit, benefit, who's got the benefit?

The answer to that in St. Paul is "Pretty nearly everybody."

RKO started with its ballyhoo for the unemployed which caught on strong, tied in to the Ramsey county board of welfare, a government agency watching after unfortunates. This board furnishes the ticket salesmen.

Not content with this Manager Ray O'Connell of RKO put over a fast one with the police department whereby coppers sold ducats to the RKO President, getting 25% commission, all of which goes into pot for Christmas dinner the police will give for jobless.

Fly of squawks on this, with matter even being taken before council, but by time action came 12,000 tickets had been disposed at 35c each. Complaints from taxpayers mostly after they bought two tickets instead of getting tag for illegal parking.

Especially burned was Shubert, stock house, which countered with two tieups this month. One a winner, puts the local Junior League, socialites, in charge of the house week Dec. 14, insuring a sell-out, with the league getting 25% to support home it maintains for convalescent women.

American Legion putting on drive this week for same house and filling seats on commission basis via mail and phone route.

Most novel Shubert stunt was sale of 1,000 tickets outright to a manufacturing concern at 25% discount for resale to employes. The deal, arranged by Dorothy Gardner, public relations expert, engineered to provide a hurt employe of the company with a $250 yule purse.

Kid Overflow

St. Paul.

Manager Ed Furni picked himself an overflow house all day Saturday and Sunday at the Paramount (Publix) and here's how:

Showing "Tom Sawyer," Furni sent letters to every school teacher in city, numbering some 1,100, inviting them to attend a preview. To make the preview at reasonable time Furni opened the Uptown, class neighborhooder, for a midweek afternoon and packed in the schoolmarms. They went into raves over the picture, carrying it into classrooms, whence kids took home the ballyhoo.

All of it made the opening biggest ever recorded here at a cost of less than $100.

Brothers and Twins

Louisville.

All twins that look alike were invited to the Brown last week by Manager Harry Martin who tried hard to sell Bert Lytell in "Brothers." By simply applying at the b. o. the twins, provided they looked alike, were entitled to free admissions.

In addition the house ran a Brothers Contest in the "Herald-Post" in an attempt to find how many famous pairs of brothers there have been in the history of the world. Answers included everyone from Cain and Abel to the Smith Brothers. A list of 200 sets of Brothers twins won first prize, $10; with second and third prizes, five and three pairs of passes each, going to persons who turned in 178 and 72 sets of Brothers twins. Fourth and fifth prizes went to those who sent in lists of 44 and 43 sets.

Best Xmas Present

Subscription to

VARIETY

$10 for One Year

Always Welcome

BEHIND THE KEYS

Toledo.

Thugs broke into office of Ohio theatre last week and carried a safe into the auditorium where they blasted it and made $1,400. House one of the O'Connell chain and is managed by L. Boon.

Attica, N. Y.

Frank C. Gath, Rochester, has purchased the Family theatre here and installed new screen, sound apparatus and self-playing organ. House reopened Sunday (7).

Bethlehem, Pa.

Commercializing the Sabbath in Bethlehem by conducting moving picture shows by various private organizations in their halls for their own members and friends has been tabooed by Mayor Robert Feile. This order embraces schools, halls and societies but does not include regularly conducted playhouses who have been giving benefits on Sundays for the unemployed and who may continue to do so.

Chicago.

Max Slott, formerly manager of the loop Warner Orpheum, hops up a couple of rungs when he becomes district manager for Warner.

Under Slott's jurisdiction come seven houses scattered through Chicago's south side.

Managership of the Orpheum passes to Al Sobler, gen. asst. exec. under James Coston, and Warner press agent for the midwest. Loop first run house is left entirely to Sobler's judgment who also gets all the responsibility for the success or failure of the house.

Chicago.

J. R. McCullough, mgr. of Publix, Peoria, Madison, has moved to the Peerless, Kewanee. Tom Pierce of Kewanee is at Madison.

R. M. Sternberg, northern Indiana district mgr. for Publix, has been called to the home office, awaiting a new assignment. Henry Sticklemaier takes over the Sternberg post.

Shenandoah, Ia.

Harry Leffert has joined Nebraska Theatres Corp. and will manage a house at Omaha.

Des Moines.

Orpheum, Cottonwood, reopened by Al Wagner.

Work has started on a new house at Garner, Ia., erected by Marks Amusement Co., St. Paul.

Reading, Pa.

Warner Bros. sold its old Savoy theatre to Michael Pantelis, ice cream manufacturer, who will raze the theatre to make way for an addition to his ice cream plant next door, to cost $100,000.

Indianapolis.

J. F. Murray, 23, asst. mgr. of the Fountain Square, neighborhood theatre, was robbed of $1,000 by a lone daylight bandit yesterday (8).

The bandit walked in while Murray was in the office on the mezzanine floor, forced him to open the safe, filled his pockets with the roll and walked out.

Chicago.

Will Singer, manager of the State-Lake for the past eight years, has been appointed city manager of Milwaukee R-K-O by divisional director William Elson. Singer has entirely recovered from the mysterious slugging given him some weeks ago.

Howard Kingsmore, former Loew manager in Baltimore, is now in Milwaukee as general exploitation head for both Riverside and Palace there. Everett Billings, present manager of the Riverside, will be reassigned to another spot.

Carleton Place, Can.

The ratepayers voted down the proposal to adopt daylight saving during 1931, rejected by a ratio of two to one.

Gananoque, Can.

James Delaney, veteran showman, has just opened the new Delaney theatre here. It will accommodate talkers and road shows.

Dallas.

The Forest, neighborhood theatre, opened after remodeling, with capacity increased to 1,000.

Oklahoma City.

Little Palace, Wortham, Tex., installed sound equipment.

The Crystal, Ralls, Tex., reopened after being dark for several months.

A neighborhood theatre being erected by F. G. Cameron in Dallas.

Fire partially destroyed the Omaha, Omaha, Tex.

Waterloo, Ia.

Publix reported closing Strand here and Spencer theatre in Rock Island soon. To reopen after the first of the year.

Springfield, Ill.

Archie Brown, Chicago, alleged to have been implicated in the Rochester State bank robbery Wednesday (3), has been identified by Charles Foranbarger, maintenance man at the Fox Illinois theatre, as the bandit who robbed the theatre of $1,800 the afternoon of Oct. 13. In addition to the theatre and the bank jobs, Brown is charged with implication in assault with intent to kill a Yellow Cab driver the afternoon of Nov. 22.

Urbana, Ill.

Prospects of a new theatre here rumored following purchase by Alger Bros., owners of the Princess in this city and Park, Champaign, of a site south of the Urbana free library. The lot, one of the landmarks of the city, is 66 feet wide and 178 feet deep.

H. R. Alger, head of the firm, has refused to make any announcement of the purpose of the purchase.

Clinton, Ia.

Strand, operated by the A-Muse-U Theatre Co., local operator for Central States, has been permanently closed. P. D. Alleman, manager and large stockholder in the company, has become manager of the Rialto. The A-Muse-U operated the Strand, Rialto and Capitol, and the Family Golf club, indoor.

J. R. Euler, manager of the Rialto the past several months, is returning to Texas.

District Grows From Zero to 58,000 Pop.; Circuits Invading?

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Battle on between the circuits for the virgin district of 95th and Ashland, on the far southside. Publix-B. & K., Warner, Fox and two indies are hustling around trying to fix up a deal for a new theatre in the neighborhood.

Local merchants and banks are eager for the move and will go along with any prospective tenant. Circuits are looking for a satisfactory bond house, following the bankruptcy of several of the leading theatre bonding houses.

Warner is particularly anxious about the deal since they practically control the entire extreme southern district.

District has sprung from nothing to a drawing population of 58,000 in the past 10 years.

Hollywood Bank Shut

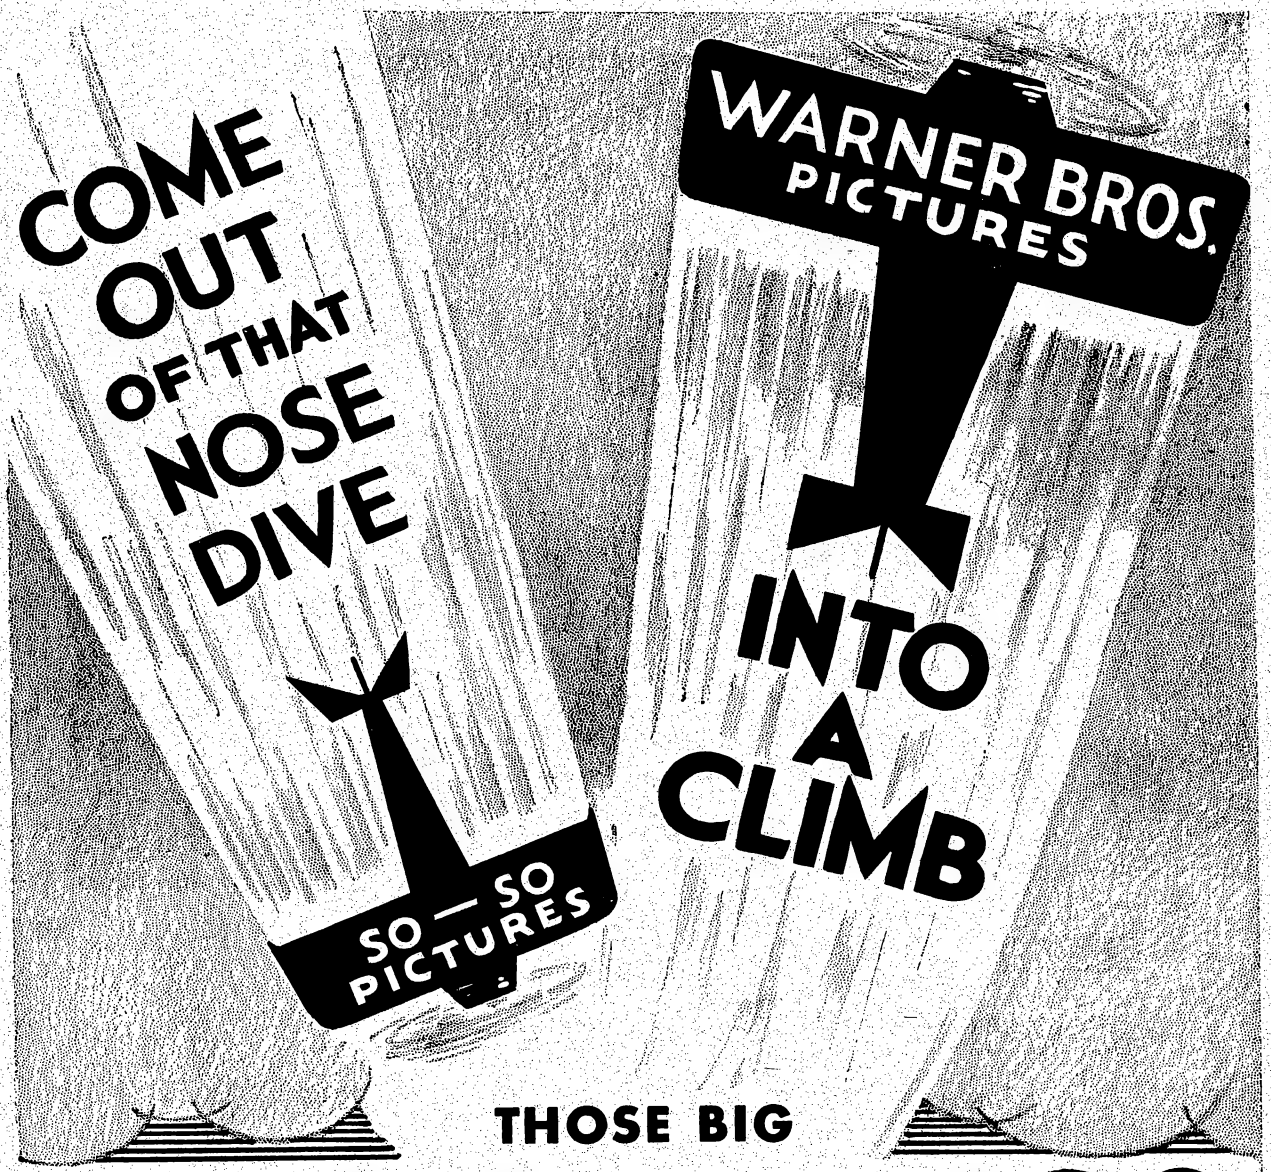
(Continued from page 3)

of important agents are depositors and they influenced their clients to do business there also.

Notably was the Joyce and Selznick agency and many subsidiary corporations. Bank was also 50-50 with J. & S. on their new insurance company enterprise.

Henry's Restaurant was caught for $45,000. Harry Weber, Arthur Landau, and Max Hart were among the agents in the bank. Jack Gardner, Fox caster, was a stockholder. Sol Wurtzel, William Wellman, the Pantages theatre next door, Al Rogell, Raquel Torres, Wallace Beery, William W. Howard, Doug Fairbanks, Jr., Jules Furthman, Edwin Carewe, and Mosconi brothers were also in.

Gardner, and his wife, Louise Dresser, had everything in the bank.



The R-K-O studio stopped payroll check payment Saturday for their employees' protection.

"Variety" was a depositor also, through its staff taking advantage of the convenience of the office being directly opposite the bank.

John Halliday, ill, had $17,000 on deposit, and planned a European vacation. Now he can't leave. Harry Delf had everything he had out here in the bank.

Other banks out here felt the general effect of panic through withdrawals, which larger banks covered cheerfully with statements of reassurance of sufficient liquid assets.

There may have been some truth in the kidding that pre-holiday withdrawals and also Southern California vetters paying off contributed to the run on the failing bank.

THOSE BIG

WARNER BROS. HITS

GIVE YOU THE POWER

WARNER BROS. & VITAPHONE TALKING PICTURES

"VITAPHONE" IS THE REGISTERED TRADE MARK OF THE VITAPHONE CORP. DESIGNATING ITS PRODUCT

340,000 NEW YORKERS SEE IT IN 21 DAYS!

Three weeks at New York Strand, day-and-date at Brooklyn Strand and Beacon! Then the Hippodrome played it to complete S. R. O.!

DOORWAY TO HELL

Setting new records from coast to coast!

SENSATIONAL WORLD PREMIERE!

Warner Bros. Theatre, New York, does biggest Thanksgiving business in history! And first week-end tops that!

VIENNESE NIGHTS

Play it Day-and-Date with Broadway!

Day House Record Wrecked By 3 Hours Receipts!

Never such business at the Troy in Troy, N. Y.! And the Roosevelt in Chicago holds it for 3 tremendous weeks!

LIFE OF THE PARTY

It's the life of the box-office!

Coming "ILLICIT"—Surest Thing You Know!

Only producers who know ca

MOT

aims at the heart of the world . . . . and hits!

NOW beats "Dawn Patrol"—"Life of The Party"—"Office Wife"—at N.Y.'S big Warner's Winter Garden—and that's the last word in records!

FIRST NATIONAL IS AS GOOD AS MONEY IN THE BANK

LITTLE CAESAR
with
EDW. G. ROBINSON
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR.

MARILYN MILLER
IN SUNNY
with LAWRENCE GRAY, JOE DONAHUE, O. P. HEGGIE

RICHARD
BARTHELMESS
IN THE LASH
with MARY ASTOR
MARIAN NIXON

OTIS
SKINNER
IN KISMET
WITH LORETTA YOUNG

THE HOT HEIRESS
with
BEN LYON
ONA MUNSON

TRUTH ABOUT YOUTH with LORETTA YOUNG
DAVID MANNERS
CONWAY TEARLE

WIDOW FROM CHICAGO
with ED. G. ROBINSON
NEIL HAMILTON

Deliver hits like —

HERS CRY

with
DOROTHY PETERSON
HELEN CHANDLER
DAVID MANNERS
SIDNEY BLACKMER

By
Helen Grace Carlisle

Directed by
HOBART HENLEY

And These Vitaphone Varieties make it a Perfect Winter Garden Show!

Ruth Etting in ONE GOOD TURN

George Jessel in POLITICS

Girls We Remember (Technicolor)

FIRST NATIONAL and VITAPHONE Picture REG. TRADE MARK First National Pictures PICTURES

Three Theatres, Golfies, Country Club and Jig Hall for $1 Month

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

A new slant on the two-for-one gag in theatres and other places of amusement has found its way into the hands of a promoting outfit out here who operate under the title of Consolidated Amusements Society. New wrinkle is a dollar a month membership, which entitles the member to a varied line of entertainment. It's mass entertainment for a buck.

For the four bits a month the society guarantees its members free admission to three local theatres, a flock of dance halls, miniature golf spots, driving ranges and country clubs, with other features to be added from time to time. Theatres are the Million Dollar and Rialto, downtown, and the Temple, a neighborhooder. Specific nights are set aside for the society members in the theatres and other places. Society guarantees each amusement spot so much money for certain nights during the week. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays are out.

Clause in the original application blank specifies that the Consolidated Amusements Society is under contract to the Community Amusements, Ltd., which, in turn, assumes no obligations.

Idea behind the scheme points to an organization of local amusement people back of it. Finding the new zoning laws of the Film Board of Trade putting thumbs down on price nights and two-for-one tickets in order to get by admission classification, a number of theatres have been trying to devise new means and methods to get around this ruling. So far as the dance and golf spots are concerned any kind of a plan to bring in business is okay with them.

While so far the $1 a month thing is strictly local, indications are an attempt will be made to spread it all around the coast, if and when it meets with success locally.

What the local Film Board of Trade will have to say to those theatres sponsoring this scheme remains to be seen. Board has been pursuing investigations along the coast in an effort to tab delinque houses, which have been consistently violating the classification law as set down by the Zoning Committee this year.

Schmeling's German Picture for Orpheum; Swedish Opus Big H.O.

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Max Schmeling returns to this country in celluloid, in a flicker tagged, "Love in the Ring."

Picture goes into the Warner Orpheum opening Jan. 6. Much is expected from the foreign talker.

Warners has had unusual success with a Swedish all-talker in several of its neighborhood spots, and is trying to locate other similar material.

Swede flicker was "For Her Sake." It held over to smash trade at such diverse houses as the Grove, Julian and Symphony. Each house established a new high with the talker.

Par Air Periods

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Paramount, in addition to 40 minutes over CBS and partial financing of "California Melodies" hour over KHJ, will use 15 minutes weekly starting tonight (9) on KNX.

Sam Coslow, studio songwriter, will do a musical series to plug Par pictures at local houses.

Interview Series

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

A series of interviews with stars will be produced by Jesse Weil, independent producer. Shorts will be called "Screen Interviews" and will be sold through the state righters.

Helen Louise Walker, fan mag writer, will do the interviewing. Weil has a tie up with the Motion Picture magazine for the series. Pictures will be made in color.

Casey Meets Execs

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

With nothing special to say, Pat Casey greeted the studio executives at a general meeting today in the Hays organization's office. Everything is smooth, currently, in the labor situation. Casey represents the studio in labor confabs.

Casey is going back to New York Dec. 20 for the holidays and will return early in January.

EXCESSIVE LAB COST USURY, RULES COURT

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

State supreme court has ruled that an excessive price exacted for laboratory service as condition for a loan carrying legal interest makes the transaction usurious.

Ruling has reopened litigation between Bud Barsky and the Terry Trading Corp. of New York over the financing of six indie pictures in 1925.

Barsky was sued three years ago by Terry Trading for balance due under a note for $17,512. Barsky replied that in addition to giving notes for amounts advanced he had been required to accept the Hirlagraph Motion Picture Corp., as exclusive laboratory, to guarantee that 35 prints of each negative would be ordered within a year, and that the Hirlagraph labs would receive $.0265 a foot for printing, or half a cent a foot in excess of the uniform print rate of that time.

Terry Trading's demurrers were consistently sustained in the Los Angeles courts, and after Barsky's second amended answer and cross-complaint he was denied further amendment, with judgment of $17,695 entered against him.

Barsky appealed, now obtaining a reversal. Accordingly Terry Trading now must answer Barsky's charges of usury.

MORE WORK IN MILLS AROUND READING, PA.

Reading, Pa., Dec. 9.

Theatre prospects here have improved with the settlement of the full fashioned hosiery knitters' strike, which at one time threatened to shut four of the largest textile mills and to paralyze business.

The strike was a failure, because not enough workers at important mills quit their machines to affect output. Since the strike a number of hosiery plants have put on night shifts and more people are now at work than for many months past.

Even with heavy wage cuts, the knitters are highly paid workers and liberal supporters of theatres.

Salary-Commish Suits On Fox Co. for $104,000

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Stanley S. Anderson is suing the Fox Film Corporation and Fox West Coast theatres for $54,000 or two years' salary claim, at $500 a week, as consultant and special agent on realty and building.

Anderson is also suing the film company for another $50,000 for services in signing Will Rogers two years ago. Anderson alleges William Fox personally agreed to a settlement May 9 of this year.

UA Salesmen Meet

Meeting of United Artists sales managers and salesmen was held at UA's New York office Sunday (7). Forty of UA's sales quads from New York, Boston, Charlotteville, Atlanta, New Orleans, New Haven, Philadelphia and Washington attended.

The meeting was addressed by Al Lichtman, general sales mgr., and Paul Burger. Lichtman said he had received many congratulations on Samuel Goldwyn's recent appointment on UA's recent entry into theatre building.

Rumors

The U. P., yesterday (9), was checking a report from South America anent the death of Gloria Swanson that prompted Warren Nolan's "Rumor Department" to issue a denial with the parting thought that there be peace on the pampas now.

"It is probably just as well to announce," went the denial, that among others alive also are Mary Pickford, Norma Talmadge, Dolores Del Rio, Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, Ronald Colman, Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, Evelyn Laye, Chester Morris, Lily Damita, Walter Huston, Joan Bennett and Al Lichtman.

"These extend Christmas greetings through the 'Rumor Department' which categorically denies all reports of demises—especially those emanating from Mexico and South America."

"POLITICS" OUT, SAYS ARTHUR TO FOX MEN

It may be a novel idea in filmdom but office politics has been tabooed at Fox theatres, under strict orders from Harry Arthur. Arthur's orders have been sent broadcast to all Fox theatre people with the admonition that anybody attempting a departmental or personal play at the expense of another employee or exec means instant dismissal.

Arthur cited an instance of how he will act by calling attention to one departmental exec he recently fired. That fellow, from accounts, tried some underhand broadcasting on his direct superior. The latter eventually was meant to go but that the talkative assistant was aiming for the same result sent him out regardless.

Arthur in his message which is published as an editorial in "The Last Word," official organ of the Fox Theatres, tells his departmental chieftains and employees "Don't Be a Sap," and then explains how come somebody was fired through office politics?

It is Arthur's recommendation to the theatre staff that he would rather have less competent but thoroughly loyal company employees than the more pompously able and less loyal. In another way it's given as a striking decalog to tell the Fox men they are working for a company and not for an individual or a department.

TRANS-LUX WAITS FOR R-K-O-PATHE CLOSING

Final closing of the purchase of Pathe by R-K-O will release the Trans-Lux Co.'s idea of a continuous grind program of shorts at 25c top, it is said. The Trans-Lux plan, created by Courtland Smith, who is the head of Trans-Lux, reported affiliated with Radio, has been held back, from the accounts, waiting for the outcome of the Pathe-R-K-O negotiations.

The Pathe sound news reel is figured an important part of the 25c. top show plan, although it is understood the idea is not a newsreel chain. Performance to run about an hour will hold other shorts.

At the Trans-Lux offices, Smith will say nothing concerning the company's intentions before an announcement is regularly issued. Associated with Smith is Jack Connolly, who made fame for himself as the European representative of Fox Movietone News. Smith is a former Fox vice-pres., who resigned to head Trans-Lux.

Dr. Reisenfeld in N. Y. Indef.

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Hugo Reisenfeld left for the east yesterday (Monday) after completing the synchronized score for "Tabu," the South Sea Island picture made by F. W. Murnau and Robert Flaherty for Radio release.

Reisenfeld has nothing lined up and may remain in New York indef.

Fox Weeding Out Houses in East; Some May Go Back to 1st Owners

VIC SHAPIRO DUE JAN. 10

No Staff Changes in Fox Publicity Forces on Shift

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

In line with Fox plans for shifting east and west coast department heads every six months, Vic Shapiro leaves Jan. 10 for New York, where he will confer with Glen Allvine for a full week to familiarize both with their respective divisions. Allvine will then shift westward. Joe Shea stays here as general assistant.

It has been mutually agreed there will be no personnel changes on either coast.

NO WARNER BROTHER AT WILMINGTON MEET

Remaining indifferent to session of the directorate in Wilmington, Del., Monday (8), neither Harry Warner, president, nor his brother, Albert, attended. That the brothers have their business situation in control was reiterated at their home office Monday.

While the sessions were on, it was learned that the Warner organization is set to affect further economies. These include a let-out of about 40 people next Saturday. Of the latter, mostly clerks, the statistical department is chiefly concerned. Installation of tabulating machines is given as the reason for less need here for human help.

Some of the let-outs also are in the contract department, the work being greatly reduced since the physical consolidation of First National, it is gleaned.

W. B. has also issued further restrictions on passes to Broadway theatres. Harry Charnas, supervising head, and the house managers themselves are the only ones who can dole out Oaklies from now on. Al Housman, general publicity director under A. P. Waxman, has had his pass-passing privileges revoked, along with several others.

A. P. Socks Chatter

(Continued from page 11)

is the general rule with all other columnists.

United Press services 1,300 papers. Duane Hennessy and George Beall, the Los Angeles bureau managers, handle a. m. and p. m. spot news wires on Hollywood.

Jessie Henderson, via Consolidated Press, is widely circulated. The C. P. has 200 rags.

International News Service (Hearst) ranges between 700 and 1,000 papers, with Fred Chase on the Hollywood news end.

Mollie Merrick handles the North American Newspaper Alliance and is widely circulated.

Franc Dillon, writing as Patricia Dillon, services the eight Paul Block papers. Alice Tildesley is here for the "Public Ledger" service. Bernice Chandler has the 11 Capper publications, the powerful midwestern Senator Arthur Capper chain. The Chicago "Tribune" serves 78 papers with George Shaffer and his wife, Rosalind, doing separate features for the same service.

Rosalind Shaffer is the New York "Mirror" Hollywood columnist. Shaffer specializes on spot news.

There are others doing single assignments such as Florabel Muir whose one paper, the New York "Daily News," with its largest circulation in America, makes her singly outstanding.

The A. P. or U. P. or any of the other services have the jump on the local chatterers such as Louella Parsons and Harrison Carroll (the biggest on the two big morning and afternoon "Examiner" and "Herald," respectively) through their stuff going to bed 48 hours in advance of publication. The local chatterers, however, take a by-line on spot news with separate stories.

Van Dine's Shorts

Warners has reached an agreement with S. S. Van Dine for shorts.

Author of mystery stories will turn out 12 originals along these lines to be filmed as one and two reelers.

A most thorough weeding of Fox theatres east of the Mississippi that will throw into discard all self-competition except where it is healthy and in the black is under way. All sections of the country will be combed by territories. Theatres in all will be studied as to present position and future. Those that can't be seen one way or the other will be dumped, it is said.

Brooklyn and Long Island are new conceded the most over-Foxed territories in the east, with about 60 in the zone. In some sections within a few blocks of each other are clustered five and six Fox theatres, with not more than one or two making a go at the box office, according to reports.

The mad rush for acquisitioning of a year ago when the old Fox organization worked up Metropolitan responsible for the local jumble. This must now be disentangled, it is and went after every available indie exhib in Greater New York is held admitted, with the result that careful statistical investigation, lengthy in detail, has been decided upon.

Buying Back.

The sell-outs mean that retired indies who want their old houses back may, in many instances, be able to get them.

While ostensibly on a good will tour of Fox theatres, with an eye on advancing local publicity and ballyhoo, Gabe Yorke, chief advertising executive for Fox theatres, is understood getting the low-down for future eliminations or build-ups of the box offices themselves. Yorke left Saturday (6) for the first of a series of inspection tours; this taking in Upper New York State. Immediately thereafter Yorke will take in New England and the middle west. During his absence Joel Swenson is handling the publicity.

W B Sees No Story Famine—Novels and Originals Above Plays

Warners has a writing staff of 18 now working at Hollywood and this firm's idea is that future story material for the screen will come more by way of originals and novels than through plays. That may or may not indicate a film opinion on the efficacy of the present Broadway legit season.

If there's a shortage of story material for the screen, Warners claims it doesn't know it. Figures compiled by the firm's statisticians and story supervisors indicate that WB already has fixed itself on 50% of its story material for 1931-32. That means 35 pictures and includes the output planned for both FN and WB on the premise that the two will make the usual 70 films.

On the same angle it's also stated that 55 of the present program of 70 films are completed and ready for release, leaving only 15 pictures to be shot t round out the '30-'31 program which ends its sales period in August, 8 months away.

Coming 15

These 15 include a story prepared by John Monk Saunders for Richard Barthelmess and "Svengall," which is definitely set as John Barrymore's next picture. Nine of the 15 are for WB and six for FN.

Stories on all these are finished and ready to go into production when the Burbank studios reopen soon. These include, besides those already mentioned, "A Husband's Privileges," by J. H. Gates; "Red Hot Sinners," for Winnie Lightner; "Beauty and the Boss," by Harriet Henry.

"Bad Women," an original; "The Idol," by Martin Brown; "God's Gift to Women," by F. H. Brennan; "Both Were Young," by H. M. Kahler; an orginal by Kalmar and Ruby; "Broadminded," with Joe Brown and Ona Munson; "The Reckless Hour"; "Party Husband," with Dorothy McKaill, and "Big Business Girl," with Loretta Young, are also on the list.

Rewriting "Tailor Made"

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Metro has assigned Edgar Allan Woolf to rewrite "A Tailor Made Man," William Haines' next.

Entire story changed.

TREMENDOUS!

"The Blue Angel" in first 3 days at Rialto, N. Y. smashed all previous records! S. R. O. crowds every day since.

EMIL JANNINGS

"Jannings the Great speaks. His strength is terrifying."—N. Y. American.
"Jannings is magnificent, amazing."—N. Y. Telegram

MARLENE DIETRICH

"Dietrich proves in 'Blue Angel' she is not accidental or publicity-built star but an indisputably brilliant actress."—N. Y. Herald Tribune

"THE BLUE ANGEL"

"The two finest acting performances on stage or screen. An exceptional picture."—N. Y. Sun. "Should crowd the Rialto, N.Y. for weeks."—N. Y. News

UFA'S Dramatic Masterpiece. Directed by Josef von Sternberg.
Erich Pommer Production

"Von Sternberg's direction is infinitely superior even to 'Morocco'"—N. Y. Times.
You get pictures like this only from

PARAMOUNT

MIGHTY MIRTHQUAKE!

Now Paramount brings talkie box offices the stage's greatest comedian—the Grand Nabob of Nonsense—ED WYNN! And HOW HE CLICKS!

"'Follow the Leader' is the funniest contribution ever made by a stage comedian to the talkies. Even better than Marx Brothers", says N. Y. Graphic. "Wynn one of the brightest lights of cinema comedy. Threatens audiences with hilarious heart failure", yells N. Y. American.

"Wynn is a joy to behold and listen to. Provokes full quota of mirth", says N. Y. Times. "Even funnier on screen than on stage".—N. Y. Eve. World.

ED WYNN

The Perfect Fool. Presented by arrangement with Florenz Ziegfeld. In

"Follow The Leader"

FOLLOW THE LEADER!

With "MOROCCO" in fourth record-breaking week at Rivoli, N. Y., and sold out three weeks in advance at Grauman's two-a-day Chinese, Hollywood; with "TOM SAWYER" sensationally cleaning up from coast to coast; with an army of resounding hits on the way, THE ONE LEADER NOW AND FOREVER IS

PARAMOUNT

NO TEST YET

(Continued from page 9)

ments were in narrow range. Some of the stocks that have been hardest hit—Warner Bros., for one—offer small profit to the short sellers at these levels, and the view seems to be that they have about discounted all that is likely to happen.

For the time being at least the threatening market situations in the amusements seem to have been cleared up. Nearly all the active issues give evidence of the satisfactory position of sponsors. Day to day changes apparently represent the give and take of outside traders trying for a turn, with the bulk holdings well settled in good hands. Whether this satisfactory situation will continue in the face of further market stress is another matter, but the ability of the theatre shares to hold their lines during liquidation elsewhere among the industrials is a favorable omen.

Cite Durant Case

Something of the problems that have faced the theatre stocks and most other stocks, for that matter—is hinted in the suit of a broker against W. C. Durant seeking a court order to sell certain collateral put up by the big bull of other times. Allegation is made in the broker's pleadings that Durant recently offered them a "give up order" to sell 3,000 shares of Loew. That is to say, the trader proposed to give this broker an order to sell the Loew shares carried at the time (apparently on margin account) with another broker, which would mean that that block of Loew would be hanging over the market.

The isolated case illustrates what may have been a general situation of other extended bulls who were forced to sell out special long lines to protect their general position. Any considerable number of instances of this kind would, of course, make for a pretty uncertain market. In the Durant case alone the court record tends to show that the trader's debit balance on Oct. 10 last was $644,367; but this has now been reduced to some $70,000 by the sale of stock carried for Durant's account or deposited as collateral. This one matter coming into the open hints at the possible extent of forced selling during the last few months.

The liquidation mentioned was accomplished beginning early in October and suggests that this situation may have been a carry-over from the crash of the autumn of '29. If that is the case, the matter might furnish a clue to a good deal of recent selling arising out of situations dating back to the collapse of the Coolidge market and many similar difficulties may still remain to be met, together with the innumerable traders' problems that were created in the upswing of last spring and the subsequent collapse in the June crash.

Chart Picture

Monday (8) the character of the market resembled a great deal the preliminary phases of the slump that culminated on Nov. 10, bringing the averages to the low for the year—expressed in the Dow Jones figure of 171.70. The sessions immediately preceding Nov. 10 were marked by gradual liquidation of standard investment shares like Telephone, Gas, Eastman and others, and it was those same pivotal issues that displayed special weakness Monday. The whole character of trading suggested that steady liquidation was going on from strong hands, and this time the former explanation of tax selling didn't sound as convincing as it did before.

There is plenty of logic on the bear side. Following the November break to a new bottom, the list recovered to around 191 on the average; backed away from that figure and then climbed back to the same level. The second retreat from 191 now has brought the averages down to around 176, or within five points or so of the November low. It seems a reasonable interpretation of the movement that the bull leaders, who inspired the recovery, twice found too much stock for sale at the high point, and it is a trading maxim that when prices twice back away from a double top it is extremely difficult to push up through that point of resistance.

The recovery never did gather a heavy following. It was generally recognized that sooner or later the former low prices would have to be tested. The ticker had demonstrated that prices could not go further up, and it followed that they probably would go down. They have now reached a level where the November lows are threatened, and there is a stubborn short interest of long standing in the market that is sure to do its utmost to break the averages through November's figure.

Test Close By

Powerful Wall street interests probably will make an effort to oppose the maneuver and it looks just now as though the conclusive tug of war is not many days distant. If the list can be made to hold the November line of resistance, it is pretty certain to bring on a sizable rally on the retreat of the bears. If the old lows fail to hold, of course, a recovery will be deferred indefinitely and it is likely a bottom will have to be established as the basis of a new stund. Brokerage opinion is as usual widely at variance, except that the consensus is a warning to outsiders to remain altogether out of the market until the skies clear somewhat.

One of the disheartening angles of the decline is the weakness in many departments of the bond list. Railroad fixed-return securities have been tobogganing for weeks and struck new bottoms Monday. The same is true of several amusement issues. The one that makes the poorest appearance is General Theatres 6s, which have made new bottoms week by week, with an extreme decline Monday of 2 to 7½. The new Paramount 5½s, after a feeble rally, slipped back to 83, with fairly heavy dealings in both securities.

On the contrary the Pathe bonds which have fluctuated wildly went into a sensational zoom last week, jumping 16 points to 66 on the closing of the R-K-O-Pathe deal. Pathe owns a 40% interest in the DuPont-Pathe Film Co., makers of raw stock, and this property does not go to R-K-O on the transaction, but remains with Pathe Exchange either as an investment holding for the bond owners or for liquidation sooner or later. Income from the DuPont holdings is said to be ample to meet bond interest charges.

The Pathe stock did little in response to the news of the deal. The A stock moved up fractionally to 7⅞ on relative large turnover, but no effort was made to stage a demonstration in it. R-K-O did nothing on the strength of the acquisition, idea being that its value to the company would have to prove itself in operation. R-K-O lost much of its aggressive support with the easing of the whole list and again broke through 20 for another bottom on the movement at 19¼. Probably the operating clique felt that in the general drop there would be plenty of outside selling and they were not anxious to take the offerings up at a higher price than necessary to maintain a stable front.

Columbia Pictures on the Curb, which has many ardent friends in theatre trade circles, presented a puzzling picture. Pressure was extremely light as indicated by a turnover of only 600 shares of the voting trust stock all last week. Nevertheless the price slipped off to a new low since listing of 20% established in a single trade Monday. Performance suggests that large holders are willing to take on stock at bargain prices, but is indifferent to the company's market appearance.

Story was about Monday that the company might seek new capital for the establishing of a foreign distributing system, to replace its present plan of what the street calls "jobbing," or what the trade knows as territorial sales. Explanation did not sound convincing to the film trade.

Aggregate Changes

Price changes last week showed the market tendency to chip away at quotations. Equities active amusements fell off an aggregate of 20 points, which is a narrow move, while four issues gained a total of a little over 5. Again, as the week before, the losses looked much more important than the gains, in respect to whether the buying or the selling was better. Eastman Kodak was the feature of the film group, sinking more than 10 points net on the week, the only important decline of the group. Loew lost a whole point and the others were either unchanged or only fractionally lower.

Most of the aggregate gain was an advance of 4 points in Orpheum from 66 to 70, a stock so inactive that its fluctuations have small significance.

Summary for week ending Saturday, Dec. 6:

STOCK EXCHANGE

1930 High	1930 Low	Sales	Issue and rate	High	Low	Last	Net Chge
26½	5	600	American Seat.	6¼	5	5	– 1⅛
28¼	12¼	3,500	Consol. Film (2)	13⅜	13	13	– ⅝
28½	16½	1,100	Consol. Film pfd. (2)	18⅛	18	18
226½	115¾	19,600	Eastman Kodak (8)	168¾	156¼	156¼	–10¾
57⅜	16⅛	98,000	Fox Class A (4)	32⅜	30	31
51¾	14¼	27,900	Gen. Thr. Equip.	18⅜	16⅝	17¼	– ½
97⅜	42⅜	31,500	Loew (6)	68¾	65¼	66	– 1
15⅝	6	800	Madison Sq. Garden	7	6½	6½	– ½
26⅜	23½	600	Met.-G.-M. pref. (1.80)	25	24½	24½	– ¼
77¼	46⅝	24,500	Paramount-Fam.-Lasky (4)	49⅜	42⅝	42⅝	– 1¼
9	2¾	13,000	Pathe Exchange	4	3¼	3½	+ ¼
19⅝	5	5,600	Pathe, Class A	7¾	6¾	7⅛	+ ⅜
69⅝	12⅝	340,000	Radio Corp.	17⅜	15⅝	15	– ⅜
50	17½	98,300	Radio-Keith-O	21⅝	19¾	20⅛	– ⅜
99⅝	63	20	Orph. pref. (8)	70	70	70	+ 4
35	4½	2,300	Shubert	6⅝	5⅝	5⅝	– ⅛
70	30	400	Universal pref. (8)	40	40	40	– 1½
80¼	13⅝	70,430	Warner Bros.	13⅝	10⅝	17
70¼	34	100	Do pref. (2.20)	39	39	39

CURB

55⅞	22	100	Columbia Picts. (1¼+)	22	22	22	– 2
54⅜	20⅝	600	Do v.t.c. (1¼+)	22	20⅜	20⅝	– 1¼
7⅜	2½	5,400	Fox Th. "A"	5⅞	4⅞	4⅞	– ⅜
18½	9	7,300	Gen. Theat. Equip., w. i.	11⅞	10¼	10⅝	+ ⅜
37¼	30½	5,300	Do pref., w. i.	34	30¼	31	– 3
4⅜	3	1,000	Loew warrants	4	3	3
32⅝	12½	600	National Screen (2)	20	17½	20
86½	7¾	7,500	Technicolor	11⅛	8	8	– 3

BONDS

100⅛	69⅜	$132,000	Gen. Thr. 6's, '40	72	69⅜	70	– 2⅜
91	74	8,000	Keith's 6's, '40	79	78½	79	+ 1½
330	101⅜	28,000	Loew 6's, '41	107⅛	105	105	– 2
100	91½	23,000	Do ex-w. 6's	95	93⅞	93⅝	+ ⅛
80	36	210,000	Pathe 7's, '37	67	50	61	+11
103¼	92⅜	44,000	Par-Fam-Lasky 6's, '47	99⅜	95¼	95½	– ⅛
94⅝	82⅝	173,000	Par-Fam-Lasky 5½'s	85	82⅜	83⅝	+ ⅝
20⅝	16½	25,000	Shubert 6's	32	28	29	+ 1
113⅛	98¾	245,000	Warner Bros. 6's, '39	72	67	69	+ 3⅜

ISSUES IN OTHER MARKETS

Produce Exchange, N. Y.

		Sales
...	...	400	Jenkins T. ex	3¼	3	3¼	+ ¼
...	...	100	Photo-color	2¾	2¾	2¾

Over the Counter, N. Y.

Quoted in Bid and Asked

Bid	Asked
19	20	.....	Roxy, Class A (3.50)	—	—	—
19	27	.....	Unit ...	—	—	—
½	1¼	.....	Unit ...	—	—	—
1	3	.....	De Forest Phono	—	—	—

Los Angeles

—	—	.....	Rain ...	—	—	6 bid
—	—	.....	Fox Thr.	—	—	4 bid

SHORTAGE ALLEGED IN JUNGLE FILM CO. MESS

Declaring that his arrest was an outrage and was done to prevent his making a disclosure, Samuel Goldstein, 32, treasurer of the Jungle Film Co., 639 9th avenue was arraigned in West Side Court before Magistrate Goodman on the charge of grand larceny. Goldstein obtained the necessary bail of $1,000 for a hearing this week.

Goldstein was arrested by Warrant Officer Dan Fisher in West Side Court. The defendant had been summoned by David Sohmer, secretary of the Jungle Film, Co., who alleged that an examination of the company's books showed that Goldstein appropriated over $800 of the concern's money to his own use.

This was denied by Goldstein. He stated that he was treasurer of the outfit because he was in charge of the film, "Sons of Tarzan." The latter film is owned by some one else and Goldstein is the representative of the owner.

Goldstein had a summons in his pocket at the time of arrest for the appearance of an officer of the Jungle Film Co. He told reporters there is a large shortage in the company and his arrest was caused so that he would be silenced. Goldstein lives at 751 Walton avenue, Bronx.

Sohmer laughed at Goldstein's story. Sohmer resides at 1364 46th street, Brooklyn. The shortage is alleged to have occurred Nov. 26.

'PHOTOPLAY' WARNER AND ARLISS MEDALS

Harry Warner was presented "Photoplay's" gold medal for the best picture of 1929 by Jim Quirk, mag's editor, at a tea party at the Ritz Dec. 3. Picture which won the medal was "Disraeli."

Through special permission, obtained by Warner from Quirk, a facsimile of the medal was also presented to George Arliss, star of the picture. Ordinarily but one medal is given by "Photoplay" to the producer, to avoid confusion and possible hurt feelings in the case of more than one star being in the picture.

Not Much Settled Upon in R-K-O-Pathe Deal Before Approval Day

While elimination of one set of exchanges is admitted a part of formal procedure in the take-over, Radio-Keith-Orpheum spokesmen, expressing the belief that there is a marked trend in the industry for independent production units, declare Pathe's production activities are scheduled to remain permanently segregated.

Until that big Radio home goes up on 5th Avenue, and it is not scheduled for occupancy until 1932, the home offices of both companies are slated to remain as they are.

While the final votes of Pathe stockholders will not be in until early January, little will be done in other respects in the nature of physical changes until then. At the same time with Lee Marcus, Radio vice-president, taking the chieftain's saddle at Pathe, there are other big changes in Pathe's executive personnel expected to be made.

Schnitzer on Production

One of the most important in the Radio-Pathe line-up is that of Joe Schnitzer. According to insiders, Schnitzer will permanently buckle

(Continued on page 46)

INCORPORATIONS

New York

Albany, Dec. 9.

Thulia Amusement Corp., New York, amusements; indoors and outdoors, $20,000; William Reutemann, Louis Straussman, Ernest Magnasco. Filed by Louis Napolitano, 154 Nassau street, New York.

Bobrich Productions, Inc., Brooklyn, conduct theatres, deal in motion pictures, plays, $500. Filed by Philip F. Jacobs, 66 Court street, Brooklyn.

International Studio of Moving Picture Machine Operators, Inc., Manhattan, instruction in the operation of moving picture machines, $10,000; Joseph Falk, Jacob Goodson, Samuel Cohn. Filed by George G. Gellert, 7 Market street, Poughkeepsie.

Fray and Braggiotti Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., New York, theatrical business, $50,000; Marie Braggiotti, Jacques Greenwald. Filed by Jerome A. Jacobs, 140 West 42nd street, New York.

Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., New York, general theatrical proprietors, deal in plays, motion pictures, 1,000 shares, no par value; Emile Bonnot, F. F. Kane, J. A. Lauridsen. Filed by John B. Jacobson, 487 Broadway, New York.

The Max Lowenstein Offices, Inc., New York, amusement business, $20,000; Murray T. Felden, Raymond Felden, Samuel Greenwald. Filed by Jerome A. Jacobs, 140 West 42nd street, New York.

Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., New York, general theatrical proprietors, deal in plays, motion pictures, 1,000 shares, no par value; Emile Bonnot, F. F. Kane, J. A. Lauridsen. Filed by John B. Jacobson, 487 Broadway, New York.

The Max Lowenstein Offices, Inc., New York, amusement business, $20,000; Murray T. Felden, Raymond Felden, Samuel Greenwald. Filed by Jerome A. Jacobs, 140 West 42nd street, New York.

Singer Midget Bank, Inc., New York, theatrical business, $10,000; Lottie Singer, Nondor Singer, Janos Palfi. Filed by Max J. Polson, 1180 Broadway, New York.

Gren-Gen Corp., Manhattan, theatrical business, 200 shares, no par value; Louis Singer, Herbert Koslan, Violet Markowitz. Filed by Bloomberg & Bloomberg, 1482 Broadway, New York.

Motion Picture Theatres of New England, Inc., Manhattan, theatrical business, 200 shares, no par value; Rose Kileman, Ethel Appell, Sophie Freeman. Filed by Morris Wolf, 220 Fifth avenue, New York.

Vichow Productions, Inc., Kings, theatrical business, $500; Philip F. Jacobs, Joseph Fort, Joseph Horowitz. Filed by Philip F. Jacobs, 66 Court street, Brooklyn.

Franklin Exhibition Corp., Manhattan, theatrical business, $10,000; William R. Frenchmann, Arthur E. H. Faulk, Irving Breiman. Filed by Guttman & Train, 1441 Broadway, New York.

National Recording Corp. of America, Manhattan, talking pictures, $20,000; Arthur Goodman, Benjamin D. Kaplan, W. William Suffin. Filed by Arthur Goodman, 1440 Broadway, New York.

Knights of the Orient, Inc., Manhattan, theatrical business, $1,000; Lily Ettinger, Hilda Dunham, Anne Wallace. Filed by Harold H. Straus, 1225 Broadway, New York.

Village Farm Barn, Ltd., Manhattan, realty, produce moving pictures, plays, entertainment of all kinds, $20,000; Joseph A. Rubino, Hanna Nagelberg, Anthony A. Moleti. Filed by Joseph A. Rubino, 160 Broadway, New York.

Markus-Birman Service, Inc., Manhattan, realty, theatrical employment agency, 200 shares, 100 preferred and 100 common no par value; Falcon Markus, Mary Markus, Jacob Mirman. Filed by Walter B. Morris, 277 Broadway, New York.

Presentation Pictures, Inc., Manhattan, deal in plays, vaudeville, motion pictures, musical performances, amusement of all kinds, 100 shares, no par value; Herman J. Grasberg, Thomas J. McNamara, Bryan Frankfort. Filed by Cohn, Glickstein, Isaacs, 126 West 46th street, New York.

The Children's Players, Inc., Manhattan, moving and talking pictures, $50,000; Julie A. Pinker, Adrienne S. Pinker, Jane Steiner. Filed by W. Herbert Adams, 5 East 44th street, New York.

F. O. B. Parts, Inc., Manhattan, theatrical business, 100 shares, no par value; Gorson H. Werner, Frederick G. Wasserman, Theresa Brown. Filed by William Klein, 226 West 44th street, New York.

Treax, Inc., New York, theatrical business, 10 shares, no par value; Henrietta Schiffman, Louis P. Randell, David Scher. Filed by Goldsmith, Goldblatt & Hanower, 1560 Broadway, New York.

Batchelor Enterprises, Inc., Manhattan, produce plays, vaude, public entertainment, $5,000; Walter Batchelor, Joseph Fuccello, Amelia Decher. Filed by Nathan Lieberman, 1560 Broadway, New York.

International Falls Museum, Inc., Manhattan, amusement parks, indoor and outdoor, 100 shares, no par value; Lillian Rosenoff, Herbert S. Kline, Joseph Bernstein. Filed by George M. Glassgold, 295 Madison avenue, New York.

Life Line Productions, Inc., New York, theatrical business, 100 shares, no par value; Roy C. Wilson, Francis D. Wells, Hilton I. Newman. Filed by Coudert Bros., 2 Rector str. New York.

Sea Breeze Beach Club, Inc., Manhattan, conduct bathing pavilions, restaurants, furnish entertainment, amusement, 100 shares, no par value; Joseph Shair, Rose Corth, Marie Siemson. Filed by Samuel H. Kaufman, 60 Wall street, New York.

Signick Theatre Corp., theatrical business, $10,000; Edward M. Jaines, Arthur Israel, Jr., Sidney Justin. Filed by Arthur Israel, 1501 Broadway, New York.

Flood Distributing Corpn., New York city, motion picture business, 200 shares, no par value; Albert G. Tate, Wilbur Nadel, Morton Weiss. Filed by Albert S. Katz, 25 West 43rd street, New York.

The Lazar Enterprises, Inc., Village of Rockville Centre, motion picture business, $50,000; David M. Lazar, James A. Warner, Edward Marks. Filed by Marks & Warner, 5 West Sunrise highway, Freeport, Long Island.

Statement and Designation

Theatre Service Corp., Del., motion picture advertising, 520 Lexington avenue, New York. William J. Johnson, president, 2,000 shares, no par value. Filed by Edward Schober & Morgan, 15 Broadway, New York.

Change of Capital

Edward Minsky, Inc., Hampton, 400 shares, no par value, increases to 600 shares, no par value. Filed by Raymond A. Smith, 42 Hamilton, New York.

WALTER ROGERS BETTER

Denver, Dec. 9.

Walter Browne Rogers, player, is at the home of his parents, recuperating from a two-month illness on the Coast.

While elimination of one set of exchanges is admitted a part of formal procedure in the take-over, Radio-Keith-Orpheum spokesmen, expressing the belief that there is a marked trend in the industry for independent production units, declare Pathe's production activities are scheduled to remain permanently segregated.

Until that big Radio home goes up on 5th Avenue, and it is not scheduled for occupancy until 1932, the home offices of both companies are slated to remain as they are.

While the final votes of Pathe stockholders will not be in until early January, little will be done in other respects in the nature of physical changes until then. At the same time with Lee Marcus, Radio vice-president, taking the chieftain's saddle at Pathe, there are other big changes in Pathe's executive personnel expected to be made.

Schnitzer on Production

One of the most important in the Radio-Pathe line-up is that of Joe Schnitzer. According to insiders, Schnitzer will permanently buckle

(Continued on page 46)

F & M'S COMBO ROAD UNIT MGR. AND P. A.

F. & M. is moving cautiously in the employment of road managers of its units. "Doc" Howe, booking chief, while reporting a number of applications for the jobs following announcement of the road plan figures the job too specialized to be handled lightly.

The aim is apparently to get a combo type of manager and p. a. and principally one with road show experience. That may mean legit people.

That type was usually aimed from legit although now and then special units from Publix and Loew's and private flash acts carry a manager along. The men will be put on from both sides of the country.

Howe is scheduled to leave for the Coast before Christmas, when M. Marco arrives from L. A., but before leaving hopes to entrain several road managers he is now interviewing. The unit route of F. & M. at the present runs to 36 weeks but is in process of being expanded. One manager for a unit means as many specialized individuals as there are units.

These managers will hook in with the house p. a.'s wherever the unit plays in advance and make a double concentration on exploitation values that way. The road manager will not supersede any house p. a. in authority but merely co-operate.

W. E. STANDS PAT O'I $3,000 AS MINIMUM

The game of checkers in reducing prices of talker equipment, started by the indie manufacturers, and which General Electric quickly followed up, is ended so far as Western Electric is concerned.

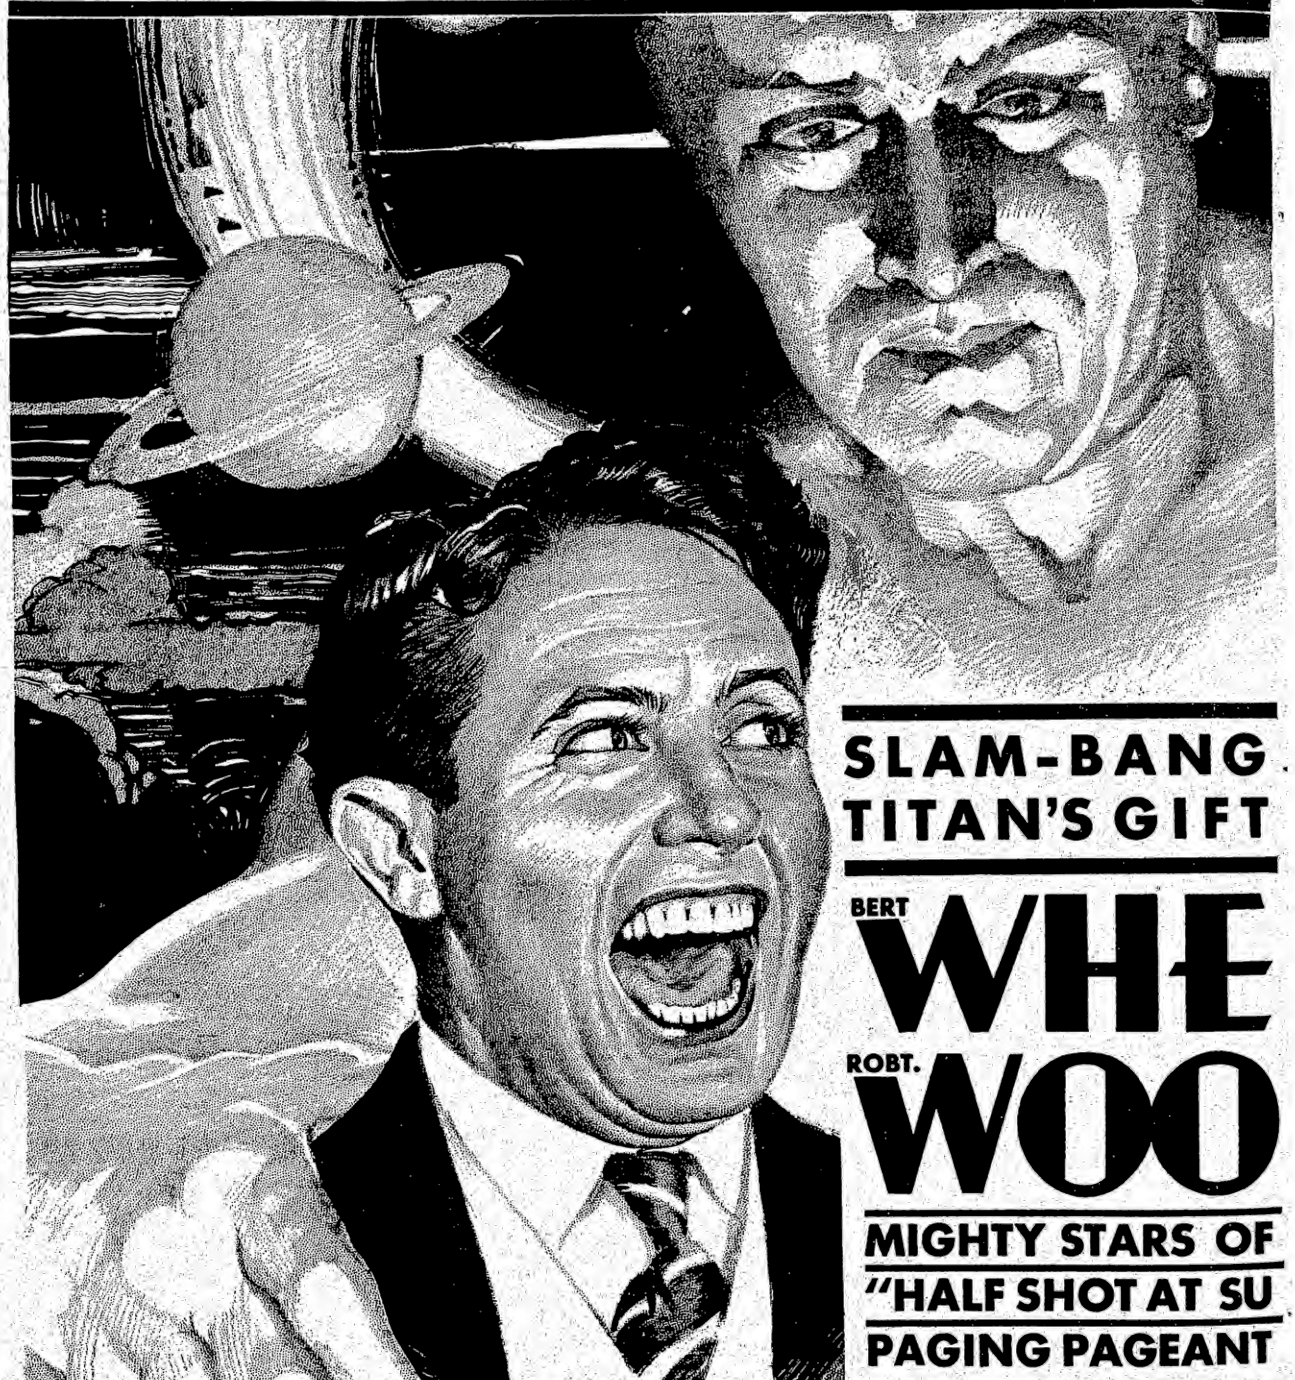
A round $3,000 is bed-rock for W. E. prices, coming down all the way from an initial $22,000 of even three years ago.

Experts for W. E. claim the company can't make money if it goes below $3,000 in the asking and that it is not in the show business just to be philanthropic.

Reports that W. E. is setting itself to release a $1,600 device, thereby cutting in half RCA's Photophone minimum, as well as its own, are termed by the experts "just propaganda."

JUDGMENTS

Ned Wayburn Studios; Ruthrauff & Ryan, Inc.; $1,530.



Connolly & Swanstrom, Inc.; William Morris Agency, Inc.; $10,371.

Harlem Broadcasting Corp.; A. E. Gelling et al.; $146.

Lew Cantor, Inc., and Lew Cantor; Times Square Trust Co.; $5,-115.

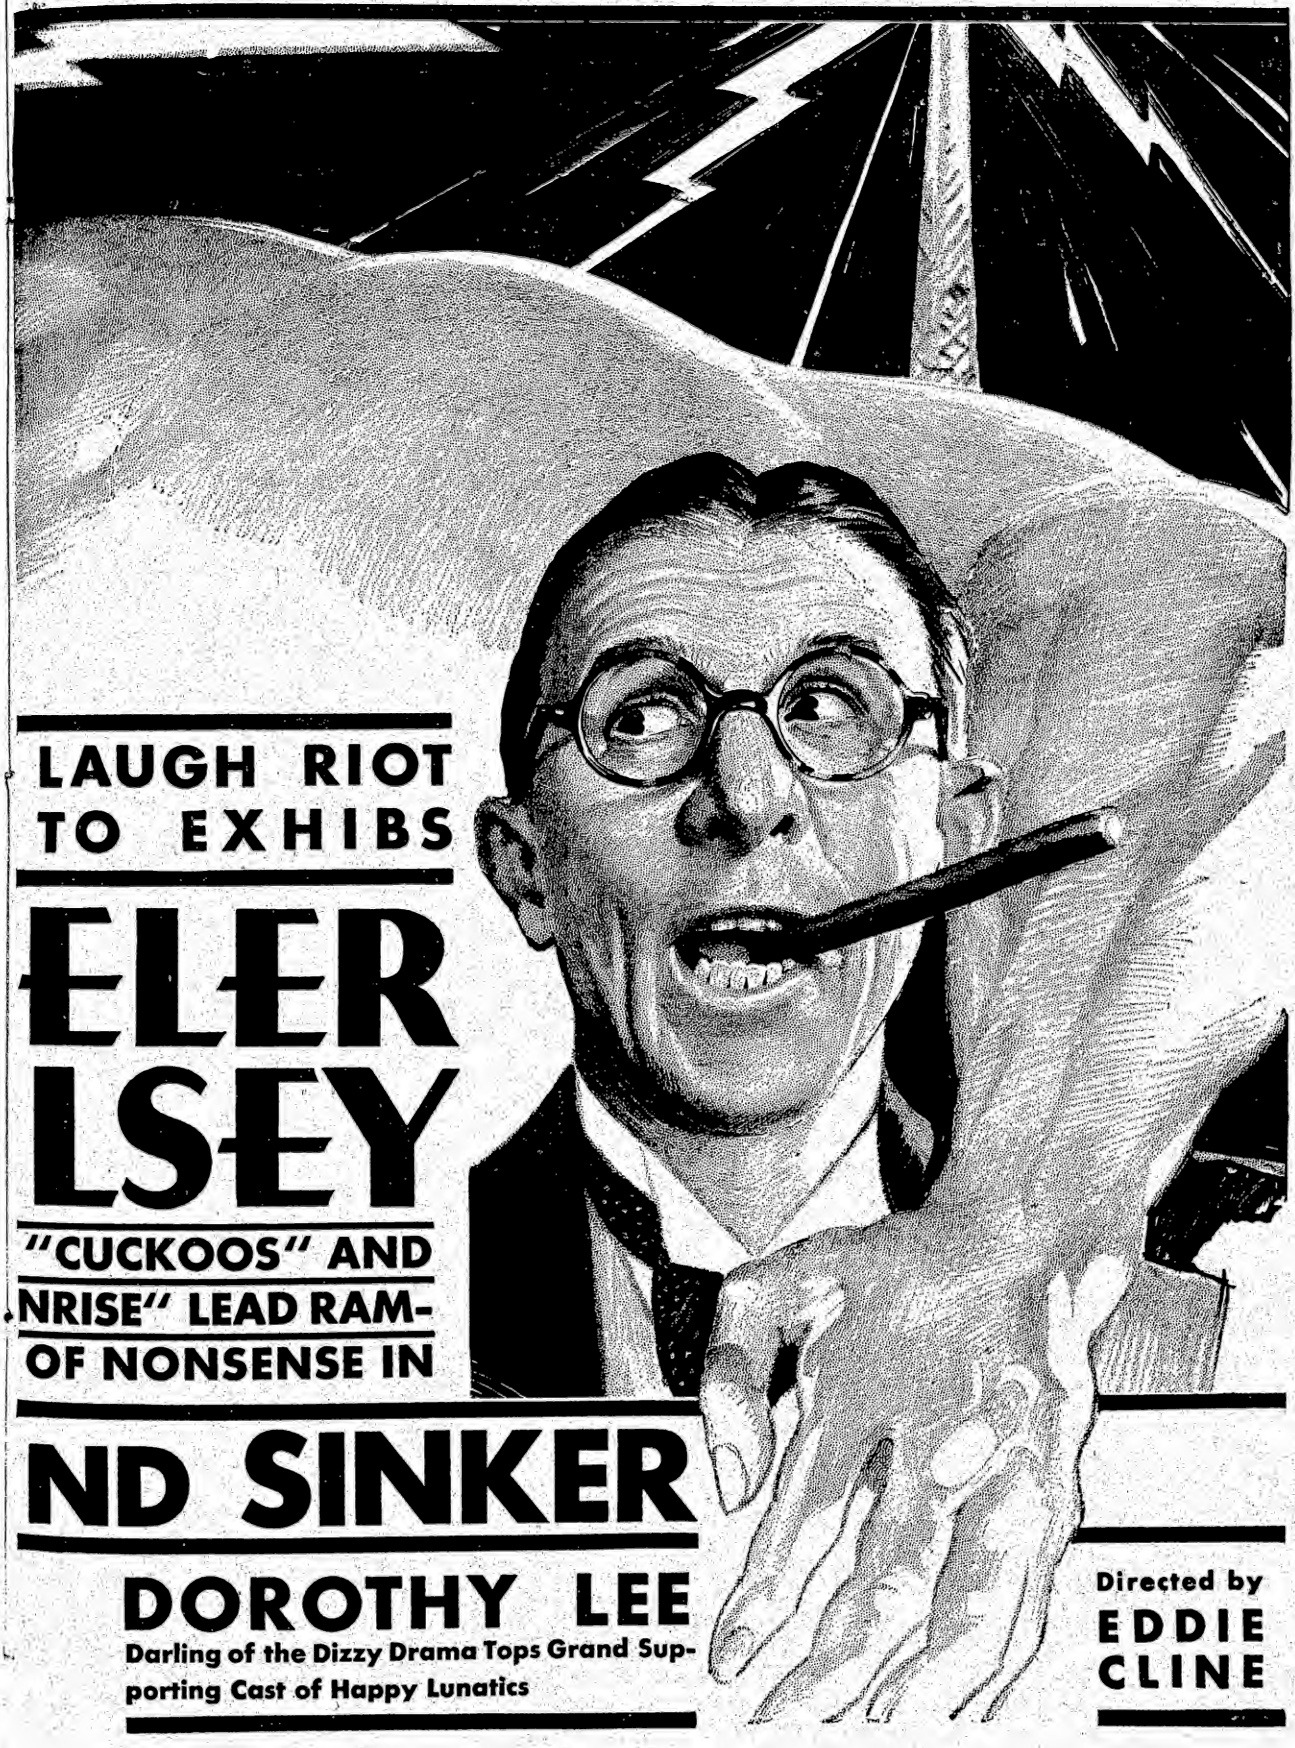
George Sayre (Gordon Sawyer Pictures, Inc.); Theatre Owners' Trading Corp.; $3,965.

SPLASH WHOOPEE ACR

SLAM-BANG
TITAN'S GIFT

BERT
WHE

ROBT.
WOO



MIGHTY STARS OF
"HALF SHOT AT SU
PAGING PAGEANT

HOOK, LINE A

Radio PICTURES
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Trouble Routed...Gloom Panicked as Champ Nuts Dodge Keepers to Run Show in Broadway Hotel!...All Floors Open ...Keys in the Ash-Can...House 'Dicks' Out...as Hilarity Runs Wild from First Floor to Fortieth!

OSS NATION'S SCREEN!

LAUGH RIOT TO EXHIBS

ELER LSEY

"CUCKOOS" AND NRISE" LEAD RAM- OF NONSENSE IN

ND SINKER

DOROTHY LEE

Darling of the Dizzy Drama Tops Grand Supporting Cast of Happy Lunatics

Directed by

EDDIE CLINE

SCARLET PAGES

(Continued from page 15)

attorney, giving it a suave and engaging reading. These two players monopolize the story and both playing characters no longer young, put the play in the all too common category of recent plays that slighted the element of love's young dream and played on the idea of matured romance. It's getting so that a romance involving an ingenue and a juvenile is the exception—probably the price the fans are paying for their own progress toward sophistication in entertainment.

The Strand is making a ballyhoo with lobby announcement that "this picture is not recommended for children," but apparently paying dividends on Broadway. It may do the same elsewhere. Title hooks up with the exploitation technique, but the advisability of the plan for general use is questionable. Picture isn't nearly so "daring" as "Common Clay," and will do business without the artificial stimulant, the title itself being an aid in this direction. Mosk.

Marion Nixon is not so happy in the ingenue role, not an easy assignment, and made no easier by the decision to make the part of Nora, the foundling who later becomes a cabaret girl, that of a rough, unpolished diamond. Girl carries the uncouth manner of the cabaret into the emotional scenes, robbing the character of sympathy and throwing still more sympathy to the older woman.

Much of the action takes place in a court room scene of which the screen has supplied an abundance. Even if this sequence is rich in quick surprise and capital comedy incident, the surroundings are becoming a little dulled by use. Same is true of the climax situation in which the brilliant woman lawyer defending a girl on trial for murder discovers that the defendant who seems in the shadow of the chair is her own child.

Familiar as the situation and obvious as its development have been long before its arrival, Miss Ferguson's perfect playing of the emotional makes it genuinely affecting. It is this scene that will help the feature in word of mouth advertising among women.

Grant Withers, a juvenile who has a good deal of distinction, plays an inconspicuous romantic role with a good deal of simple directness, giving a weak part much more than it deserves. Minor characters have been chosen with effect on the general aspect of the production. De Witt Jennings, the judge in the trial scene, supplies convincing atmosphere without seeming to be acting.

Physical production is excellent and the dialog flows smoothly as is usually the case with pictures made from original plays that had plenty of playing. There seems to be something in the lines of often repeated plays that crystallizes them in a way that is not achieved in newly contrived screen dialog. An illuminating case in point is that of "Lightnin'." Rush.

MOTHERS CRY

First National production and release. Directed by Robert Henley. Based on the novel by Helen Grace Carlisle. Adaptation by Lenore J. Coffee. Cameraman, G. Warren. Running time, 75 minutes. At New York Winter Garden, week Dec. 4.

Mary Williams	Dorothy Peterson
Beatty	Helen Chandler
Attie	David Manners
Danny	Edward Woods
Jenny	Evelyn Knapp
Sadye	Jean Bary
Frank Williams	Pat O'Malley
Mary's Mother	Clara McDonald
Mary's Father	Charles Jill Malless
Carl Muller	Reginald Pasch
Hart	Sidney Blackmer

A distressing dramatization of family troubles made into a parade of human agonies that takes an hour and a quarter to pass a given point. Title, for once, furnishes an accurate cue to what the screen will show, and its billing not attractive otherwise than perhaps to mothers. Altogether a depressing picture with minus box office potentials.

It is dramatically very well done, which only serves to aggravate its depressing effect. Why the studio decided that a story of mother grief could be made into a profitable commercial feature is one of those things. That better dramatic story, they made it the tougher assignment they wished on the sales force and they made it tough enough.

It is enough to indicate the tone of the picture to relate that one of its high light episodes is the farewell of a mother and son, the son being then in the prison death house about to go to the electric chair. One of the details upon which they dwell is that the mother thinks the boy's trouser leg is torn and he explains that it has been cut purposely in preparation for the execution. The scene is an affecting one as played here and it is guaranteed to spoil any sunny winter afternoon or brisk, star lit evening. Maybe the tears in the picture will draw the women anyway, even if the title doesn't.

That sequence is the climax of grief, although there are plenty of other uncomfortable scenes. One dance goes wrong, the father is killed in a freight train accident—probably the messiest demise the author could think of at the minute—and the whole picture is built up out of bad news for mother.

Capital acting by a cast of uniform excellence doesn't help much. Dorothy Peterson in the mother part does splendidly in the well balanced emotional passages, and David Manners, the good son, plays a difficult role with excellent judgment. Edward Woods, playing the son with criminal tendencies, gives a good deal of force without overplaying. Indeed the vigor of his portrayal contributes much of the depressing atmosphere. Rush.

FOLLOW THE LEADER

Paramount production and release. Ed Wynn starred. Director, Norman Taurog. Adapted by Sid Silvers and Gertrude Purcell from the William K. Wells, George White, DeSylva, Brown and Henderson musical, "Manhattan Mary." Dialog by Al Boasberg, Ginger Rogers, Stanley Smith and Lou Holtz featured. At Paramount, New York, week Dec. 5. Running time, 70 minutes.

Ed Wynn	Ed Wynn
Mary Brennan	Ginger Rogers
Jimmy Moore	Stanley Smith
Sam Pitts	Lou Holtz
Ma Brennan	Lida Kane
Helen King	Ethel Merman
George White	Bobby Watson
R. C. Black	Donald Kirke
Rob Sterling	William Halligan
Pritchett	Holly Hall
Two-Gun Terry	Preston Foster
Mickie	James C. Morton

Like the stage musical, "Manhattan Mary," from which it was taken, "Follow the Leader" is a one-man proposition, with Ed Wynn the one man again. Depending almost entirely on Wynn for its laughs, and on its laughs for results, the talker, minus the stage music, secured enough at the New York premiere amount to indicate it should do well anywhere. It's first run material and above average.

Along with Wynn as a topping comedian appears a new face on the talker horizon. Lou Holtz. In his Hebe dialect Holtz appears to have written his own stuff into the screen part as he did in the stage original, and can also be always Ed Wynn with his personal mugging and bughouse "inventions," the screen gains through this talker two distinctive comedy experts.

Beyond Wynn and Holtz, the players are insignificant, as to action. Ginger Rogers, with less to do than any time since reaching feature heights with Par, is a first rate trouper in a secondary love interest assignment, with Stanley Smith, opposite, about the same. Ethel Merman, the other girl among the principals, didn't have the best of help in her first picture.

Paramount saw enough in Miss Merman on the Astoria set to consider her for the future. What she possessed in the flesh on the lot was not recorded intact on this film. Faulty make-up marked down her true appearance and the recording didn't carry her voice naturally. In "Mary" she has one song, the only song in the picture, and Al Siegel's arrangement is all over it, without billing for Siegel.

Billy Halligan and James C. Morton are other vaudevillians present for bits. Bobby Watson, the ex-musical juve, plays "George White," with Par having carried over the personal plug the revue producer slipped himself in his stage show. Also some puffs for "Scandals." Ziegfeld has a one-line mention, in the same breath with White! Probably won't make any difference in the sticks where this picture will play, but where the producers' revues haven't for years if ever.

Lou Holtz, who has used Wynn's sun for most of the breathing spells. Each fade-out is centered on registering of goofy fright by the star. Wynn is funny off the bat and bulls, as does Holtz. The story, a silly-silly, is nothing as the start and remains there.

Dialog light and keeps things moving. Some of the gags sound like those Sid Silvers used to toss at Phil Baker from a stage box. Biga.

THE YELLOW MASK

(With Songs)
(BRITISH MADE)

British International production and release. Directed by Harry Lachman. Adaptation from Wallace Wallace's "The Traitor's Gate" (English). Photography by Claude Grisse-Greene. Adaptation by Val Valentine. Both recorded. American premiere at Cohan theatre, New York, week Dec. 6. Running time, 70 minutes.

Mary Trayne	Dorothy Seacombe
Al Sedan	Wyndham Goldie
John Carn	Wilfred Temple
Molly	Winnie Collins
Ah-Kong	Frank Cochrane
Sunshine	William Shine
Manuel	Wallace Lupino
Sam Slipper	Lupino Lane

When caught by "Variety" July 30 at the Palace, London, this film was rated substantially suited for the British, but weak for the U. S. excepting possibly the negroes over here. That opinion still holds after the American premiere, which was undistinguished by audience or otherwise Friday (5) at the Cohan on Broadway.

By the token of this picture the British film industry looks to have attained its peak to date in talker manufacture. This one, called a musical drama, is really a melodrama with incidental music. It's story is essentially weak for American audiences. The film must therefore be likewise. Further than this, the picture must look to another obstacle in the American customers' shrugging of the musical films. Whether this has changed since July has not been tested as yet.

The New York management displayed bad tact in the local exhibition with a trailer to the film's opening that carried the thought that Edgar Wallace and B. I. P. were offering this piece as "the end to end all musical comedies." Mebbe yes. Mebbe no. It must be understood, using the intelligence of an audience and make it felt that way or it's assuming an 'I-Tell-You" attitude from a foreign source that might be resented.

When the last of the three songs is about to be sung at the close, and the kidnapped girl rescued from the Chinese potentate on the eve of their wedding, the recollection of that trailer will not aid in offsetting the snickers that come from a glimpse of soldiers in half-panties marching for the kill like chorus boys in line. Perhaps that's a British attitude for candor, but it is not showmanship to miscast characters.

The yarn concerns the same Chinese potentate. He steals a diamond from the London Tower and kidnaps a soldier's sweetheart. The ending is achieved with the help of a reporter played by Lupino Lane. The usual Lane and just as funny, but stacked up against the serious intentioned hoke of the story as it unfolds with incongruous antipathy, his stuff comes out slapstick. But without Lane even in slapstick the film wouldn't be worth anything.

Photography and lighting keenly at fault. Most of the time it was undistinguishable whether it was day or night.

One of the tunes is rhythmic of military time. None outstanding, but all possessing swing, and but for the recording, which flipped them into unintelligibility, they might have gone beter. Dorothy Seacombe and Wilfred Temple have pleasant voices. Temple, tenor. Miss Seacombe, however, had nothing else.

The accompanying score themed too loud and above the action most of the time when it should have been contra.

The film could stand some speeding up even for England. A noticeable slowness of movement that suggests a Continental attitude on life in general. It's aloof to the theatre. Even when the diamond robbery is committed and the rescue later is effected, everything is in deliberation. That's draggy for American audiences.

One noticeable scenic effect that hasn't been shown in American films since the early days perhaps brings a twisty thought of how come a bird can be shown smoking an opium pipe as Lane is seen in this film. Maybe just a quirk. Shan.

REMOTE CONTROL

Metro production and release. Directed by Jack Conway. Chair and Nick Grinde. Free adaptation of play of the same name by Clyde North, Albert C. Fuller and Jack Nelson. Starring William Haines. Cameraman not credited on main title. Running time, 62 minutes. At Capitol, New York, week Dec. 5.

William Brennan	William Haines
Sam Ferguson	Charles King
Marion Ferguson	Mary Doran
Professor Kruger	Milan Milan
Polly	Polly Moran
Smedley	J. C. Nugent
Radio Engineer	Edward Nugent
Chief of Police	Wilbur Mack
Blodgett	James Donlan
Al	Edward Brophy
Mrs.	Warner P. Richmond
Frank	Russell Hupton

Haines' pictures haven't progressed notably in the last three starts and this one promises not much better. Story is taken from the play of the same name produced in New York last season, and one of those halfway ventures. The screen version bears small resemblance to the stage original, upon which it is rather an improvement in a literary way.

Material has been worked over to make it fit the Haines personality and the result is a typical comedy for Haines who is just a little more irritating than usual in his smart aleck characterization. Best assets are a succession of moderately hearty laughs and a good brisk melo finish.

Great deal of footage is devoted to the familiar "fresh" clowning of the young comedian engaged in his usual line of go-getter flirtation with the heroine, development that does the romantic angle no good. Everything Haines favors for a couple of thousand feet, you get an inkling of why his leading women usually seem pale and insipid. Any actress that has to play up to these episodes soon fades into the background like a juggler's assistant.

Trouble with the Haines character type is that it is never on the receiving end of the custard pie, no clown has ever lived who could be at once adored and unbruised.

Outside of the comic, brass-knuckle romance, "Remote Control" has its moments as a comedy crook story, developing swiftly and with many neat surprise twists. The broadcasting studio locale of the play has been retained. The master criminal insinuates himself into the air program with the purpose of directing his mob of bank robbers by sending instructions to them through the microphone in the guise of a clairvoyant advising people in answer to fan letters on their problems.

Haines suspects the clairvoyant is a criminal, but the studio secretary, with whom Haines is in love, falls for the suave seer's advances. To get Haines out of the way, the crooks kidnap him and hold him prisoner while they plan a final clean-up, intending to "knock him off". meantime and leave the suspicion he was involved in the crime. Building up of this situation is neatly accomplished.

In desperation Haines thinks up a scheme to get a hint of his predicament to friends. It all dovetails into one of those "chase" finishes, with cutbacks to trace the progress of the crooks to their crime and the ow moving events that will get his friends and the police on the ground to save him at the last minute. Skillful jockeying of these elements gives the final footage a capital touch of suspense with a fast climax and fadeout.

Polly Moran does an amusing bit in her usual manner, while John Miljan plays the smooth crook with his customary effect. Charles King does a minor role, brought in for the purpose of singing one song as an Irish tenor and kidding the cast, while a stuttering character contributes a couple of capital low comedy sequences, one a gem trimly woven into the dramatic action. Wilbur Mack also has a short incidental bit as the police inspector. Picture is full of first rate players all overshadowed by the main vehicle of forcing the Haines comedy. Rush.

EXTRAVAGANCE

Tiffany production and release. Directed by Phil Rosen. Story by A. P. Younger. M. DuPont, cameraman. In cast: Owen Moore, Jane Collyer, Lloyd Hughes, Dorothy Christy. At Beacon, New York, week Dec. 6. Running time, 60 minutes.

"Extravagance" is a good program picture, and no house, except a deluxer, can err in booking it. Despite considerable extraneous matter, in the nature of footage devoted to lighting cigarets, etc., this Tiff picture works up suspense about a couple of husbands and wives who get their sable coats bought by the same guy. That will please the average fan who doesn't ever expect to buy a sable, and therefore isn't expected to realize what complications might ensue if he had the lowdown.

As the Tiff experts have it, a woman who wears a sable coat is essentially wrong, unless her husband is a millionaire. From one perspective "Extravagance" might be categoried as Hollywood's epic on sables, since in no other feature by any other company has the moral effect and aftermath of wearing a sable coat been so deeply gone into as in this current production.

June Collyer and Lloyd Hughes as the younger married couple are at last permitted in the final reel to benefit by the experiences of the older couple, in the fur line, handled by Owen Moore and Dorothy Christy. Owen turns from 100% trustworthiness to a gun which ends himself, after his wife, when the story of her fur coat is unfurled.

If June hadn't this hankering for a sable A. P. Younger never would have collected his writer's check from Grant Cook. But Younger took a chance of including all the handkerchief-using situations of domesticity.

Fortunately for the writer, Phil Rosen appreciated it and made extra effort in the directorial job. The casting director made an equally good showing in picking the people. Waly.

Verklungene Traume

("Echo of a Dream")
(GERMAN MADE)
(With Songs)

Haesike production. Goldie release. Directed by Martin Berger. Cast includes Hans Stuwe, Mady Delschaft, Eugen Rex and Harry Hardt. Songs: "Verklungene Traume," "Siehst Du wohl das kommt davon" and "Beim Tango Pan Verling." At "Man sich So Leicht." American premiere at 8th Street Playhouse, week Dec. 5. Running time, 88 minutes.

From observation native patriotierism cluttering the international talker situation is serving as a boomerang on the countries where such enthusiasm is rampant. This film as produced by Haesike Films is slovenly. Except for certain fine pictorial scenes and music that is tuneful but not outstanding, and spotted offside the picture deserves no histrionic consideration. Cluttered, overdone and amateurish.

It brings serious thinking that's good for the industry. Germany's film horizon, for instance, is deluged annually with an abnormal number of overnight producers. Eighty-three in 1929. And for a total of 183 pictures or so. That's more producers than in the U. S. at any time.

The talker situation may have accentuated this condition. It may or may not be that way in other countries, but it seems logical to presume as much in view of foreign angles as observed. Haesike Films, given as the producer of "Verklungene Traume," is not listed in Germany's 1929 category. That may or may not mean it's a mushroomer.

Maybe art can be nationalized. But if it is, it will have to become a sport. Russia and its revolutions prove that. Hans Stuwe, who plays the scapgrace son of a Roumanian landed gentleman, was seen here about a year ago in Aafa's "Dich Habe Ich Geliebt," first talker from Germany to come over. "Variety" then noticed him pleasantly, but in the present film he's overplaying throughout.

That may be direction. Martin Berger, who handled the megaphone, is known in Germany for a couple of silents or so, but nothing outstanding. Not to be confused with Ludwig Berger, as with producing firms, so it is in Germany with directors. Sometimes and often the producer and the director might be one. That's another way of handling a meg. Few are heard of a second time over here.

Stuwe and characters are spotted on Roumanian soil in German dialog, with interspersed cafe shots at Bucharest, Constanza and some other locale. He is advised by his father to marry a peasant girl to strengthen the hereditary strain for future generations in the family. He picks a nifty svelte, literally grabbing her at a village party bossed by the old boy. But complications arise because Stuwe is now in love with the girl and ready to shed his vows that he might marry her.

Later comes back a former sweetheart, also a blonde of Stuwe's, and the complications begin over again to send the first blonde back to the priest who loved her on the eve of giving birth to a future heir for the Stuwe. It outs of just that suddenly, and with no real dramatic logic. Not altogether clear and too long.

A sunset shot and a rowboat maneuver on the river at Constanza are gems. Outdoor shots generally superior to interior photography, but due to natural outline of countryside. Peasants seem hand picked, being naturally dirty, clumsy and ignorant looking.

Mary Delschaft, the heroine, is well known in Germany.

The songs, except for one, are spotted in the safe scenes, and good voices hitch each one. One tune is in the Stuwe household and sung by a couple of servants on the comedy angle. The tunes are rhythmic and suggestive of American music, but nothing outstanding. Recording spotty. Shan.

Menschen im Kaefig

("Cape Forlorn")
(GERMAN MADE)
(All Talker)

Berlin, Nov. 28.

British International Pictures production. Stadtl release. Directed by Dupont over the stage play "Cape Forlorn" by Frank Harvey. Photography, Claude Friese-Greene. W. Blakeley and H. Young, Sound, Alec Murray. Recorded on R. C. A. Starring Conrad Veidt, Fritz Kortner, Heinrich George, Tala Birell and Julius Brandt. Running time, 98 minutes. At Gloria Palast, Berlin.

If there were unfavorable reports by the Berlin press about this picture, they were not unfounded. Its action is too heavy, too broad, and the experienced visitor will know in advance what is going to happen; he reads the names of four men and one woman and knows enough. Difficult, however, to imagine the kind and extent of noises. When Heinrich George is washing himself, it sounds like firing volleys. If a suit is being brushed, it is like the rattling of an automobile.

The main fault lies not in the selection of its topic but in its handling. Captain of a light house brings into the place of his life, and that of his comrades, a wife. The complication of a woman sharing the monotonous life could be made very interesting. Dupont did it the wrong way. Instead of running up the events and giving a clear description of them, he draws them apart. Very often the spectator does not know what is happening. Dupont, compared with his last talker, "Two Worlds," has become freer and more natural but he does not yet possess the easy hand and the naturalness of the great American and Russian directors.

Heinrich George is splendidly powerful in his primitive originality as a simple sailor and plays up manner with touching tragical humor. Tala Birell, young Viennese actress, new for the film, has effective moments, but she is more or less a good copy of the Garbo and a good actress. Unbearable is Fritz Kortner who plays in an affected manner. Conrad Veidt still has much of the demon which the little girls once upon a time used to adore, therefore unreal and posing. Only Julius Brandt in the small role of a sailor no longer young pleases by his simplicity.

It must be emphasized this picture by Dupont is far above most of the German productions, less in its execution but principally in the desire of producing something good. However, this director must submit to a more stringent standard of criticism than other directors of average rank. Here his extraordinary talent manifests itself repeatedly. Here and there one is fascinated by the harmony of light effects and action, but, as stated, these are only moments which give evidence that Dupont still could

(Continued on page 30)

FOX

JEANETTE MacDONALD

★

On the Screen:

All Women Are Bad
Oh, For a Man!
Monte Carlo
The Lottery Bride
Let's Go Native
The Vagabond King
The Love Parade

On the Stage:

Sunny Days
Yes, Yes, Yvette
Tip Toes
The Magic Ring
Tangerine
Irene
Night Boat
Demi-Tasse Revue

Youth will be served and Jeanette MacDonald's girlhood dream of being an opera star came true in "Oh, For a Man!". This sophisticated comedy lifts the curtain on a temperamental singer's private love and public life. Jeanette is behind that curtain.

Born in Philadelphia and quietly educated there, Miss MacDonald began to edge toward Broadway. Chorus work first, then speaking, and finally singing roles. From prim Philly to prima donna.

Lubitsch saw a Paramount test and made a bee-line for Chicago to see her perform. Result, "The Love Parade" opposite Chevalier. With each succeeding role, she's stepped up the success ladder. "Oh, For a Man!" won her a Fox contract. She is now in Movietone City making a new picture under William K. Howard's direction.

Miss MacDonald's hobby is pretty clothes — a most becoming hobby, all things considered. She is at home on horseback but not in a kitchen. She is fond of travel, mystery novels and a white canary. She has red-gold hair and blue-green eyes.

SECOND OF A SERIES OF FOX SCREEN PERSONALITIES

GAYNOR and FARRELL

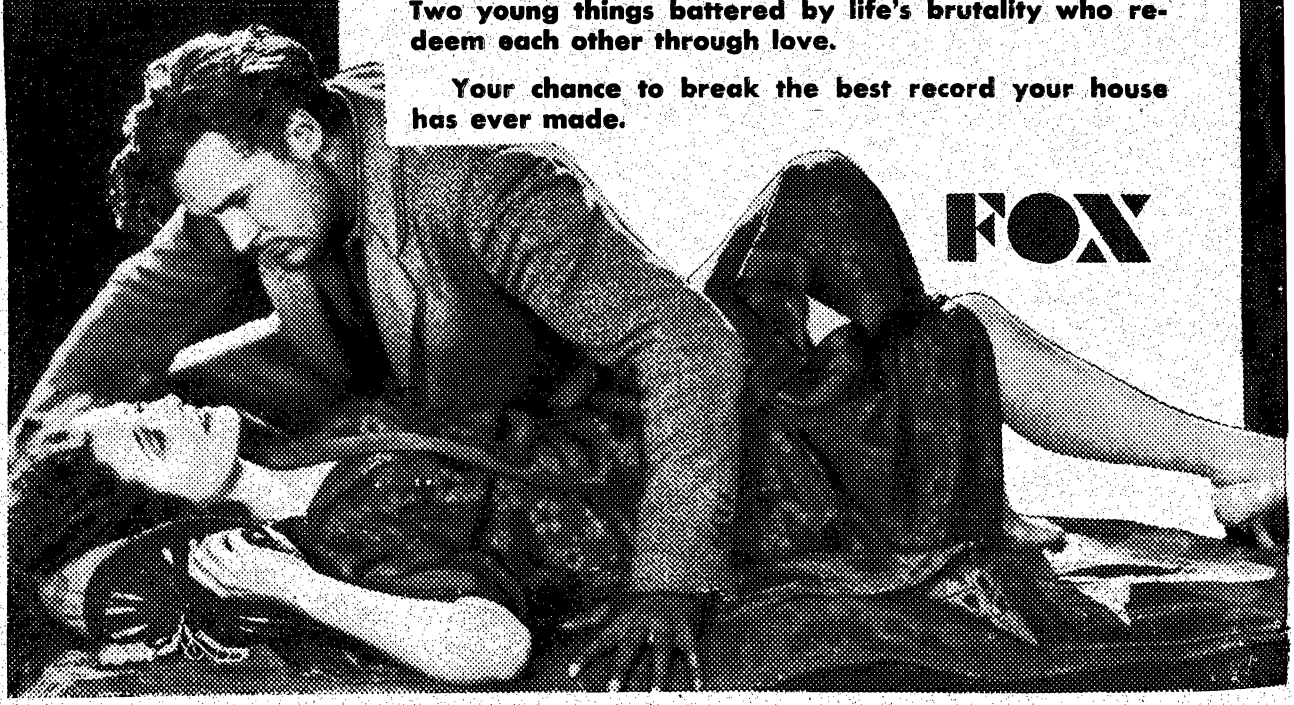
RAOUL WALSH'S

THE MAN WHO CAME BACK

From the play by Jules Eckert Goodman and John Fleming Wilson
Screen play by Edwin J. Burke Settings by Joseph Urban

●

Most sensationally successful box office team in screen history in tremendous love story that challenges the heart of humanity.



It arouses your deepest emotions, plays upon your sympathies, carries you off your feet.

"7th Heaven" was great. Made new attendance records to shoot at. Yet here's a picture that tops it in every way.

Box office from first scene to the last. Situation after situation that smashes home with terrific realism. Two young things battered by life's brutality who redeem each other through love.

Your chance to break the best record your house has ever made.

FOX

in a Box Office TORNADO!

Guys Who Fight at Wrong Time Should Be Tossed, Referring to Exhibs

Exhibitors are now going in for "one big family" talk. It's just preliminary, and some folks in the industry can't see it, but others can.

But there's the contract and all of those tax moves being introduced by legislatures throughout the land.

Ever since that convention of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America in Philadelphia a few weeks ago, and Charlie Pettijohn's warnings at that and two other conventions that guys who fought now and during January and February should be thrown out of the industry, there's been indications of a big handshaking party.

Last week was contract week in New York. Abe Myers and some of his lieuts, were here. So was M. A. Lightman, in all the way from Memphis.

Whether it was the contract or something else seems a secret.

Roach's Light Schedule

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Hal Roach studios will have but one company at a time working, from now until the end of the current program in April.

Heretofore schedule has called for two or more simultaneous productions.

FOX'S GANGSTER YARN

Fox is going in for the kidding type of gangster story.

Studio's first, as yet untitled, will have Warren Hymer and Spencer Tracy teamed in parts similar to those they had in "Up the River."

Yarn is being concocted by Courtney Terrett and Roland Brown. Latter joined Fox this week on a contract, which means probable directing later.

Murdock MacQuarrie engaged for "Drums of Jeopardy," Tiff.

Extra Optimism

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Big pick-up for the extra mob last Monday and Tuesday with over 1,000 working both days. Eddie Cline's peasant village for Radio's sole picture, "Assorted Nuts," accounted for 250 of them.

Week's total placements by Central Casting Bureau came to 4,390, the best in seven weeks. The biggest extra groups were at Paramount. Ted Sloman had 64 in a street scene for "The Westerner." Lothar Mendez used 133 in a fancy ball scene for "Ladies' Man," and Norman Taurog worked 96 on a ship scene for "Fin and Haddies Abroad."

STUDIOS DIG $125,795 FOR CHEST; FOX DEEPEST

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Response from 16 studios out here has netted the Community Chest fund $125,795 so far. Only two to be heard from yet are Harold Lloyd, who is in New York, and Howard Hughes.

Film colony's contributions are headed by Fox with $42,286. Metro comes next with $30,682, while United Artists nosed out Paramount for third place with $14,719 against the latter's $13,000.

Next in line are First National, $6,600; Universal, $6,383; Radio, $3,400; Warners, $2,500; Pathe, $2,048; Columbia, $1,800; Christie-Metropolitan, $623; Tiffany, $513; Chaplin, $500; Educational, $477; Sennett, $184, and Tec-Art, $150.

Feld Surveying Coast

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Milton Feld, co-director with John Balaban of Public theatres, arrived here by plane last night (8) from San Antonio.

Feld, in line with the Publix Fox West Coast deal, will make a two-day survey of Par's western theatres.

FILLING IN IDLE TIME ON SHORTS IN EAST

Paramount coast contract players when temporarily inactive, may have their future idle time occupied by talker short work in the east. The company is considering shipping to New York a number of contract people whose playing heretofore has been confined to features in Hollywood.

Arrangements for the talent transfer, it is reported, will be made during the coming coast visit of Larry Kent, Par shorts head. He will leave New York around Dec. 20 for a month's trip.

Upon Kent's return the Par 1931 shorts schedule will get under way at Astoria, L. I.

Menschen im Kaefig

(Continued from page 26)

be one of the great if he would find the right distance to his work. It should be repeated that Dupont can not well be his own director and producer at the same time. He needs somebody who brings him back to clear vision, who takes over many a thing he is not made for.

The commercial prospects of this picture will very likely not be big in Germany. Magnus.

Princess and Plumber

Fox production and release. Directed by Alexander Corda. Charles Farrell and Maureen O'Sullivan featured. Dialog by Howard J. Green from Alice Duer Miller's story. At Fox, Brooklyn, week Dec. 5. Running time, 72 minutes.

Grand duchess and waiter situation switched but slightly here. Nice looking leads, Charlie Farrell and Maureen O'Sullivan, surmount their young love assignments and please. Talker will just satisfy where it plays, not likely the first runs in keys.

Too unconvincing in plot and construction to warrant serious reception even there. This plumber is the son of the American head of a European plumbing concern, working from the bottom up. The bottom is a castle in one of those Continental principalities and the castle is being leased out by the impoverished resident prince for the summer. He has a daughter, yes. And a villainous baron wants to grab her, no.

Another rich American leases the castle and the wicked baron, after getting spurned plenty, spreads word around Paris that the princess and the tenant have had an affair. Her dad, the prince, hears the talk in Paris and insists, by mail and later in person, that the Yank tenant marry the girl. But she loves the other American, the plumber, and by the prince's mistake it works out as it ought to.

Bert Roach's playing as the tenant is light comedy in the usual manner of that player, but the laughs are constructed around another character. He is the Dutch comic all around man of the town, from postmaster to organist in the chapel and taking in everything in between. As each new job appears it's another laugh. At the finish they are coming faster and stronger.

In the neighbs "Princess and Plumber" will be noted for better than average settings and appearance generally. Its title is too much of a tip-off. Bige.

Fire in Galveston

Galveston, Dec. 9.

Flames swept interior new R. and R. $150,000 theatre at Palestine Monday (8), starting early in the day, from an automatic heater on first floor.

Interior completely destroyed. Insurance on building $56,000, and equipment also insured.

J. E. Jones, manager, saved money from safe at considerable personal risk.

Theatre opened last September.

Roanoke De Luxer Closing

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 9.

Deluxer at Roanoke, Va., known as the Roanoke, is closing indefinitely. Management has not given reason, but reports that house may reopen after first of year.

House is owned by Elmore Heins interests, also operating three other theatres in Roanoke.

No. 2 Nite Club

(Continued from page 1)

is polished marble to help the somewhat uncertain steps of the girls who do the "leading." Girls without men are seated on one side of the room; the lucky ones with escorts get the other side, for this is a tea-room.

Phonies

For 65c and a dime to the waitress, perennial wallflowers can get a slice of high-life, just as it's lived in the night clubs except cheaper. All the types are there, only no one has very much money. They see a dowager dancing with what must be a gigolo, his hair is so black and shiny, but the lady's pearls are too large to be real and her velvet dress shows signs of hard wear. What passes for men-about-town, with shiny suits and an excess of jewelry in the form of rings, tie-clips and stickpins, lend their presence to a room that needs hilarity badly. These slightly shabby blades wise-crack with the waitresses for the benefit of their party, in the manner made famous by sophomores in the city for one wild time. They dance with little back-kicks puntuating their antiquated style on the dance floor. Their eagerness to be nimble and full of life is thought too screaming for words by the others, and they are a great success before they go back to their dreary clerking.

Sirens, bon vivants, gigs, dandies, everything known to night life, but on a reduced scale, in this tea-room.

Here, combined with the decorum that the name "tea-room" gives, lonely ladies who would miss all the exciting things in life get their chance to see gaiety, dancing, and to dance themselves. Since all this goes on at noon time, no one could possibly criticize their being present. They can be just onlookers, made comfortable by the company of so many other girls who are in the same boat.

Jewish Federation After $70,000 From Show Biz

Eugene Zukor presided at a luncheon in the Astor Thursday (4), to provide ways of raising a necessary $70,000 for the Jewish Federation of Charities in New York. The Federation embraces 90 Hebrew charitable organizations, with one donation covering all.

The meeting was attended by around 30 show representatives. It was called by young Zukor and David Sarnoff. The various diners assumed a voluntary amount, to be procured from their business associates and friends, with Zukor taking by far the largest.

The Federation is pressed to secure its full yearly contributions by the end of this month. Zukor is chairman of the committee in charge for the show end.

Chinatown Goes B'way

(Continued from page 1)

an Asiatic in the line-up one night recently. This bore out claims of some of the more able citizens that Chinamen help Chinamen and don't need the Tom Noonans or the flop joints. Chinese pressed for sleep buy-in at the Bowery theatres. No Chinaman ever sticks out his hand for charity, nor has he a sob story to unfold.

Talking for Tongs

With those college boys presiding at sessions of the various Tongs, less use of the gun and more tongue work for tongs is being promulgated. These high trained lads, however, have body-guards. The latter are tall, wild-eyed fellows, who move nervously about, peering around while their boss is in conversation.

Since the introduction of intellectual leaders, Tongs are getting the psychological perspective of their enemies. Instead of exploding fire cracker phrases they now say of such "He has the face of a reverend," or "He smiles on the street to all but he is a friend only to himself in his home."

But the sophisticates of Chinatown still cling to the old lore of an eye for an eye. Let the territory or real estate of one tong be transgressed and there are words, more now than before. But Chinatown is essentially the Temple of the 10 Commandments of Beer Runners.

Know the Law

Long before beer was invented Chinamen practiced principles which white runners and gangsters of today are simply aping. Like the gangsters, and with more excuse because the practice has been handed down through countless generations, the Tongmen will put up with just so much and then guns are drawn.

The well read Chinese leaders of the new school are as familiar with the law as the average attorney; in certain penal phases, more so. Better the round table discussions as long as possible.

That last outbreak cost Chinatown its two film theatres. The city closed one because a couple of tongmen decided to match their skill with western heroes on the screen. The other house just folded as its owner had collected enough nickels to go back to the Yangste.

There are plenty of white women seen in Chinatown. The more learned of the younger element point with pride to wives who in several instances are former beauty product of white way musical comedies.

If the Chinamen have their brothels the best white "ins" can't get a line on them. The Asiatics point uptown when asked about where they go for good times. An educated Chinaman, several of them said, can have just as good a time on Broadway as any white man.

Horning In

Chinatown, if leaders are to be believed and a look into many parts would substantiate, has been harassed by the police and salvage societies to the point where real Occidental pride, plus the impetus of educator influences, will see this slot self-blue-lawed within another few years.

The biggest booster for the worthiness of Chinatown's 70,000 Asiatic souls is the Bowery. Any of the film houses on the street of derelicts welcome the Chinese above all others. The Bowery wouldn't be the hobo hang-out that it is were the Chinese population a little greater.

Otherwise Chinatown's district and boundaries have little changed with the years.

WANTED

A HIGHLY TRAINED

German Police Dog

FOR STAGE AND PICTURE WORK

Send Photographs and Experience

BOX 850, VARIETY, NEW YORK CITY

WANTED!

DeForest Phonofilm wants 75 Good Men

now unemployed, but capable and efficient, with knowledge and experience in the sound equipment field to participate in country-wide Phonofilm part sales campaign.

Apply by Mail Only

Sell Yourself in Your First Letter

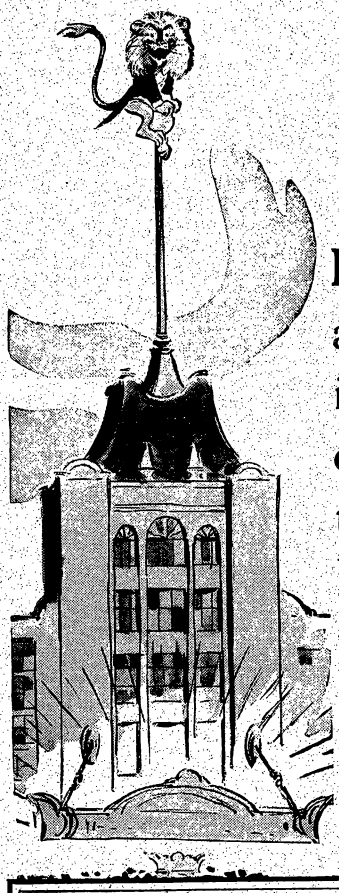
GENERAL TALKING PICTURES CORP.

218 West 42nd Street New York

Exhibitors of America using

DeForest Phonofilm

Join Us in the Fight on Unemployment



Buy Now Keep these men happily employed

Buy Now Keep your machine in perfect order

This company has kept its factory and manufacturing units working full time, and has made available a quarter million dollars' worth of spare parts for the Phonofilm, in order to provide employment for capable and deserving men in this industry now out of work. We call your attention to the "Want Ad" to the left.

GENERAL TALKING PICTURES CORP.

218 West 42nd St. New York

THE TOP-OF-THE-INDUSTRY SITTER

Fight with City Hall—there's no argument about it. There are a lot of good companies in this business but there's only one great one—M-G-M. Season in, season out you get the best from the company whose trademark, known to the world, is the lion. Pictures with magnetic personalities, backed by skillful and intensive promotion. Right now you are playing "Min and Bill", the Marie Dressler-Wallace Beery smash. A great picture and the right length for turning over the crowds. But the best is yet to come. Study the box at the left and figure out what you'll do with these sensational attractions already previewed.

En Route to You

MARION DAVIES in
The Bachelor Father
with RALPH FORBES; directed by ROBERT Z. LEONARD

GRETA GARBO in
Inspiration

with Robert Montgomery, Lewis Stone, Marjorie Rambeau; directed by CLARENCE BROWN.

MARIE DRESSLER and POLLY MORAN in

Reducing
with Anita Page, Lucien Littlefield; directed by Charles F. Riesner

JOAN CRAWFORD in Paid
with Robert Armstrong, Marie Prevost; directed by Sam Wood. Based on the play "Within the Law" by Bayard Veiller

LAWRENCE TIBBETT
GRACE MOORE in

New Moon
with Adolphe Menjou, Roland Young; Book and Lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein 2nd, Frank Mandel and Lawrence Schwab; Music by Sigmund Romberg. Directed by Jack Conway.

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER

HELD OVER

in

New York
Chicago
Los Angeles
Boston

CONSTANCE BENNETT

in Sin Takes a Holiday

with KENNETH MacKENNA
and BASIL RATHBONE

Directed by PAUL L. STEIN Produced by E. B. DERR

NEW YORK-CHICAGO LOS ANGELES SAYS—

N. Y. Evening World:
What an eyeful. Another winner. Has adroit direction.

N. Y. Daily News:
One grand dream for audiences.

N. Y. Morning Telegraph:
Pathe has clicked again.

N. Y Evening Post:
Suave and facile love.

N. Y. Sun:
Constance Bennett is as luscious as ever.

N. Y. Standard Union:
An unusual feast. A refreshing novelty.

N. Y. Daily Mirror:
Smartly staged. Highly entertaining.

N. Y. Telegram:
Strongly acted.

N. Y. Evening Journal:
Smartly acted and directed.

Chicago Herald Examiner:
A well-made, sophisticated picture, splendidly acted by an exceptional cast.

Chicago Daily Times:
Three good reasons for seeing this picture—Constance Bennett, Basil Rathbone and Kenneth MacKenna.

Chicago Evening American:
You simply mustn't miss it. Everything that goes to make up a "class" production.

Chicago Evening Post:
A smart, well costumed, beautifully staged affair.

Los Angeles Herald:
All the elements of popular success. Another feather in Pathe's cap.

Los Angeles Record:
Romance in a smart, expensive setting. A good bet.

Los Angeles Examiner:
Has everything a movie is supposed to have. Will bring a ray of joy to the exhibitor's heart.

Los Angeles Express:
A gay cinematic vacation. Connie is superb. Delightful dialogue.

Los Angeles Times:
One of the season's smartest talking pictures. Will delight all classes.

Los Angeles News.
An outstanding production for many reasons.

PATHE

The House of Hits

R-K-O Orders Better Film Bookings For All Combination Vaude Houses

In an effort to strengthen its vaude houses without an increase in stage budgets, R-K-O will book stronger picture product than heretofore into combination theatres. Under general order of Joseph Plunkett, in towns in which R-K-O operates two or more houses, with one using vaude, the "flesh" policy is to be given better film support.

This will mean the spotting of box office attractions and "draw" pictures in such towns in the combination house instead of the straight film first run.

Sloughing on Vaude

Up to now, R-K-O has sloughed the poorer picture product of its own company (Radio), Universal, Columbia and others, into the combination houses, figuring apparently that with the "flesh" material provided, draw from picture end was not as essential.

In many keys claim has been made by inside operating sources that R-K-O combination houses have been partly licked because of poor pictures to go along with the vaude.

Following order, R-K-O headquarters are beginning to switch bookings on pictures, taking what is considered "draw" product away from the all-sound houses.

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

In line with R-K-O New York policy as a try to build up combination houses with better pictures, "Tol'able David," scheduled for Orpheum (straight pictures) is to be switched to R-K-O (vaude), for week starting Thursday (11). First one switched here.

R-K-O has been getting most of the U and Col product not wanted in past for the Orpheum.

"Employ and Build" F-WC Exploitation On Building Program

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Fox West Coast is ballyhooing slogans such as "employ and build when employment is most needed," and in general is optimistically exploiting this idea in connection with the 17 new theatres in process of construction. These houses, states Howard Sheehan, FWC exec, are not in refutation of the original plans against further expansion, but the completion of previous arrangements. Sole exceptions are where property leases are lapsing and FWC, desirous of retaining its hold on the community, is building on its own to replace the old house.

A number of the new spots will be in readiness by spring, and all will be operating by next August.

Another exception to the "no expansion" ruling is the new house in Billings, Mont., and Phoenix, Ariz. (the latter with 1,870 seats), because FWC is represented in almost every other community in these states.

Bakersfield, Calif., Santa Barbara, Pomona, the new Stadium in L. A., a 1,700 seater in Westwood Village (Hollywood suburb), Hutchinson, Kan., Joplin, Mo., a 2,500 seater in Spokane and Kansas City will see new FWC theatres.

Santa Barbara house is taking on a civic significance through being the most important local building since the new City Hall. This one of the earthquake damaged towns and S. B. is giving its new building unusual artistic attention.

FOX REMODELING POLI'S

Taking Dull Month — Spending $45,000 on Hyperion, New Haven

New Haven, Dec. 9.

Fox New England headquarters are taking advantage of the present lull to remodel many of it's Poli houses in this section of the country. It costs less in lost patronage to darken a theatre today than it does in busy times and in many cases there has been a reduction in building materials as well.

Several houses have reopened, among them being the Fox-Poli in Meriden.

The sum of $45,000 is being expended on redecorating the old Hyperion, New Haven, and cutting a new entrance to the theatre through a business block. In order to obtain this new entrance, it was necessary to lease a building for a period of 21 years at a total price of $262,500.

INDIES ACCEPT % DESPITE SQUAWKS

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Despite the squawks of the indie exhibs that neighborhood houses cannot operate under stiff percentage deals, and their demands for straight purchase of product, they continue to sign up for guarantee and split contracts.

Illinois Co-operative Theatre Service, buying group of the local allied organization, was reported set on a policy banning any percentage deals. Yet this organization has just completed a contract with Warner Bros. which includes 17 road show attractions to be played on percentage.

Clause in special contract for these indie road houses reads: "In addition to the guarantee on each road show attraction, which consist of the following release Nos. 291, 292, 294, 295, 297, 299, 300, 302, 303, 304, 305, 308, 309, 310, 312, 319, 320, the distributor is to receive 50 percent of all receipts over an amount equal to the house expense allocated on the following basis: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, one-tenth each; Saturday, two-tenths; Sunday, three-tenths, plus one and one-half times the guarantee, plus cost of scores and short subjects."

Regular Sat. A. M. Gifts For Children's Admish

Minneapolis, Dec. 9.

The R-K-O Orpheum here is putting on Saturday morning shows for kiddies.

Vegetables, fruit, canned goods, preserves, clothing, toys and dolls are accepted for admission. All items received will be distributed to poor families prior to Christmas. Newspapers are co-operating and giving the theatre plenty of publicity.

It's Manager Emil Franke's idea.

Arrest for Editorial

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Newsboys selling copies of "The Weekly Citizen," labor paper, were arrested downtown by police and their papers confiscated due to an editorial demanding the boycott of the Rialto theatre (independent) which still has not come to terms on new union contracts.

"Citizen" is seeking an injunction restraining the police from interfering with its sales.

Arson Charge Up

Findlay, O., Dec. 9.

Joseph Abowd, Fostoria, is in jail awaiting arraignment on a charge of arson in connection with the fire which destroyed the Abowd theatre here Nov. 5. He was manager of the theatre.

The fire was discovered a half hour after the audience left. It is alleged Abowd took out a $20,000 insurance policy Oct. 30, 1930, on the theatre, in addition to an $13,000 policy obtained earlier.

Coast Zoning Rule on Ads Imminent As Publix Snagged by Second Runs

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

A ruling under narrowed protection here that would shut out possibilities of second-run advertising before first runs are completed, may be made as a result of a run-in between Publix and Fox West Coast.

With F-WC in two instances advertising pictures for second runs in Hollywood before downtown showings had been completed, Publix blew up, taking the squawk direct to Oscar S. Oldknow. The F-WC operator, on being informed of specific instances, has indicated Publix protection downtown will not be jeopardized in future.

Burn against F-WC started two weeks ago when Pantages, Hollywood, 65c first run (second to downtown) advertised "Tom Sawyer" (Par) for Christmas week before picture had opened downtown at Paramount. On top of this, Publix discovered that F-WC's Wilshire was publicizing "Feet First" (UA) while the Lloyd picture was still in a run downtown at United Artists.

Following this, Publix demanded security of protection against Hollywood showings, which under zoning classification, get pictures 21 days after completion of showings downtown.

Narrow Protection

Zoning and clearance plan for this territory makes no mention of advance advertising and publicity by second runs, with that left to discretion of theatres. In the opinion of showmen who criticize zoning plan, narrow protection of 21 days to downtown first runs makes it obviously advantageous for Hollywood seconds to slip in the advertising three weeks in advance.

Along with F-WC, the Million Dollar, downtown, incurred ire of Publix through advertising "Feet First" there for future showing. This is an independently operated house under lease from California Edison Co.

Frere and O'Rourke, Mgrs, With Girl Cashier Are Killed in Auto's Fire

Atlantic City, Dec. 9.

Arthur M. Frere, 40, formerly manager of the Colonial here and for the last two years manager of the Park in Philadelphia, was burned to death Thursday (4) with his companion, Estelle Napora, 18, cashier at the Park, when the two were trapped in an automobile which burst into flames after striking a truck at Magnolia, N. J.

John T. O'Rourke, 24, manager of the Keystone theatre in Philadelphia, driver of the car, was saved from the blazing wreckage by two state troopers but succumbed the following day from a fractured skull and internal injuries.

The trio were returning to Philadelphia, after spending the evening at an inn, when the accident occurred. Miss Napora who resides in Philadelphia was burned beyond recognition and it was several hours later before identification was made by her sister.

UA Coast Div. Head Checks Indie Booking

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

A check on territories and contact with exchanges in the west following United Artists' break away from Fox-West Coast and immediate campaign to spot product elsewhere throughout the country is being made by Jack Schlaifer.

The western div head for UA, headquartering here, is swinging north along the coast, will touch the northwest and return here by way of Denver, taking in entire division.

Mindlin's, Newark, Shut

Newark, N. J., Dec. 9.

Mindlin's Playhouse unexpectedly failed to open Saturday (6). Postcards announcing the new show had been mailed and the Sat. papers carried it.

Court appointed a receiver earlier in the week, but ordered him not to interfere with the operation of the house.

Special Exploiters

RKO is adding two special exploitation men for local assignments.

Al Burkes will be at the Albee theatre, Brooklyn, and Harold C. Fox will handle the city of Toledo, both directly under the circuit's national exploitation department.

FOREMOST FILM WRITERS AND DIALOGICIANS

Still Writing Together
Grover Jones
and
William Slavens McNutt
FOR PARAMOUNT

COURTENAY TERRETT
WRITING FOR FOX

CYRUS WOOD
Originals—Adaptations—Dialogue
R-K-O

CORNELL WOOLRICH
WRITING FOR
PARAMOUNT

RALPH SPENCE
R-K-O

SAM SPEWACK
WRITING FOR
PARAMOUNT

ADAPTATIONS ORIGINALS
HOWARD J. GREEN
(CONTRACT TO FOX)
DIALOGUE CONTINUITIES

LOUISE LONG
PARAMOUNT

ETHEL DOHERTY
PARAMOUNT

JOHN MEEHAN
"The Lady's Morals"
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

HORACE JACKSON
WRITING FOR
PATHE

PERCY HEATH
WROTE
"THE GANG BUSTER"
FOR PARAMOUNT

Small "Tabu" Distrib.

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Contrary to reports, Edward Small and not Fox will handle distribution of the Murnau-Flaherty picture, "Tabu," made in the south seas.

Picture probably will be released through Radio.

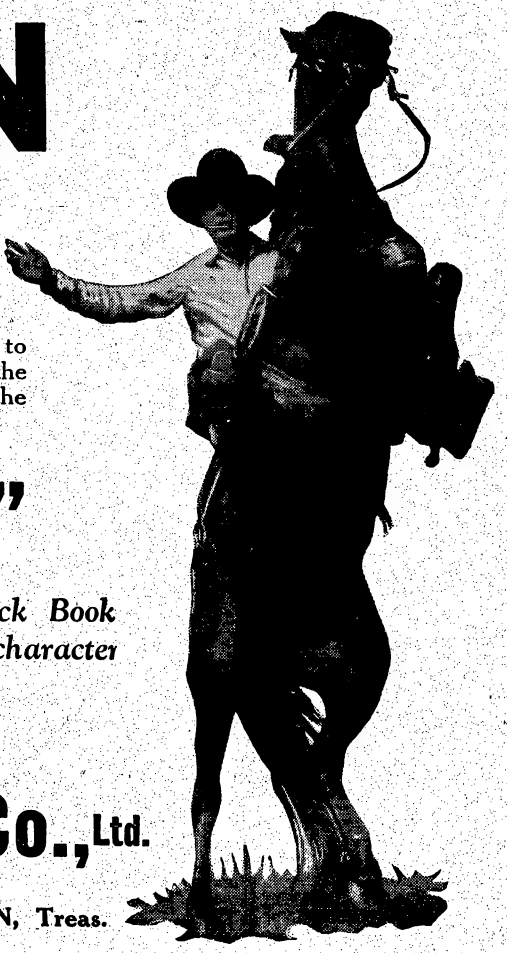
ATTENTION
PRODUCTION MANAGERS
MAY JOYCE
STAR IN THE EMBRYO
IS APPEARING AT PARAMOUNT, NEW YORK
THIS WEEK (DEC. 5th) WITH
"WHAT A NIGHT" UNIT
Production Offers Invited
She Sings, Talks, Dances and Is Beautiful
See Chas. Yates - - 160 W. 46th St., N. Y. C.

Messrs. CALIGARY Bros.
Care of Sammy Lee's "Fascinating Rhythm Idea"
Dear Boys:
Warm personal regards and best wishes!
Sincerely Yours,
Loew's State
Los Angeles
FANCHON & MARCO

OUR NEW YEAR'S GIFT

TO LOVERS OF WHOLESOME ENTERTAINMENT

HOOT GIBSON



IN SIX HIGH CLASS OUTSTANDING PRODUCTIONS

The most versatile showman in the world—From the branding of a calf to the mastery of the air—Popular with millions of adults and admittedly the idol of the American Youth . . . Endorsed by the women's clubs of the world.

In Preparation "The CLOUD-BUSTER"

Each Picture will be booked on its merits. No Block Book ...No Cat in the bag...No strings of any kind or character

APPLICATIONS FOR TERRITORIAL FRANCHISES OR FOR BOOKINGS WILL BE GIVEN ATTENTION IN ORDER OF THEIR RECEIPT

VICTORY PRODUCTIONS Co., Ltd.

1040 No. Las Palmas

M. H. HOFFMAN, Pres. HOLLYWOOD, CAL. H. M. GUMBIN, Treas.

WALK-OUT IN 9 IOWA TOWNS

Des Moines, Dec. 9.

A strike involving operators and musicians in houses in nine Iowa towns last week followed a walkout of employes of the Rialto and Palace at Burlington.

Musicians in the Rialto claimed that the Central States Theatre Corp., controlling houses in Mason City, Clinton, Albia, Chariton, Ft. Dodge, Boone, Iowa City, Centerville and Burlington, had violated its contract with them.

The Rialto boys claimed they had an agreement with the corporation when employed at the original Rialto, which recently burned, and the corporation then took over the Grand, converting it into a picture house and renamed it the Rialto. The striking musicians claimed they were not employed in the second Rialto, and that their original contract should still stand.

The corporation immediately secured non-union men from Muscatine for the Rialto and Palace.

Clyde A. Weston, representing the I.A.T.S.E. (machine operators), has arrived in Burlington.

According to Harry M. Weinberg of the Central States for A. H. Blank, striking employes will have to settle a $100 claim representing the expense the company was put to to import substitute operators before they will be reinstated on the payroll. This demand the operators refused to meet.

Racine, Wis., Settlement Of Mgrs. and Operators

Milwaukee, Dec. 9.

Although Racine, Wis., managers and operators reached an agreement Saturday (6), houses will remain dark until Dec. 13. A suggestion to close until Xmas was overruled.

Wages and hours will be same in Venetian, State and Main Street, big downtown houses. Others mostly neighborhood, operators agreed to 9% cut with working hours the same, 33-hour week.

Both sides are satisfied. Operators walked out of eight theatres Nov. 30, refusing 20% cut in neighborhoods and 7½% downtown.

Mayor Armstrong, who presided at conferences, is given principal credit for speedy settlement.

Warfield Wide Screen

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Loew's Warfield, in San Francisco, will be the spot in that city for wide films booked by Fox-West Coast. A. M. Bowles, F-WC Frisco division head, down here for the Notre Dame game and to confer with Oscar S. Oldknow, says report that stage shows might be placed in the Warfield is wrong.

"Hell's Angels" started a run Sunday (7) as first wide film at Warfield.

Radio Pictures has bought screen rights to "It Would All Depend," play by Daisy Wolf and Alfred Payson Terhune.

National Screen Service Trailers

are the backbone of Talking Picture Advertising

New York—126 West 46th St.
Chicago—810 South Wabash Ave.
Los Angeles—1922 S. Vermont Ave.

COSTUMES FOR HIRE
PRODUCTIONS EXPLOITATIONS PRESENTATIONS
BROOKS COSTUMES
123 W. 46 St. N.Y.C.

Another Last Silent Goes

Rochester, Dec. 9.

Little theatre, last of the silent houses in Rochester, has succumbed to the talkers. Started as arty two years ago and was closed for some months. Recently tried both foreign and domestic product without success and found it almost impossible to get any class silents.

New policy opens with "Hunting Tigers in India" and will aim at arty talkers.

Sunday Benefit Shows May Cause Row Over Blue Laws of Penn.

Philadelphia, Dec. 9.

Though the disturbance at the Kent theatre in Kensington Sunday night, when 7,000 patrons were ejected by police from a scheduled "unemployment" film show, promised to precipitate a real row on the "blue laws" situation in Philadelphia, action was apparently abandoned in view of a threatened "test-case" on the matter which may soon be inaugurated with Councilman William Roper and Director of Public Safety Lemuel Schofield, as the law and order addict. The officials of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, which staged last Sunday night's show at the Kent, have evidently elected to withdraw from the contest in view of the legal battles which will probably ensue in the next few weeks.

While the various combatants were resting on their arms, the blue laws problem shifted to Darby, Philadelphia suburb, Sunday night. Despite threats of legal action and protests of ministers, a picture and vaudeville show for the relief of the unemployed was held in the Parker theatre, sponsored by the Collingdale Republican Club and was attended by 2,000 persons.

In Philadelphia, the day passed without interference of any description. Several Sunday night functions were permitted to operate under permits from Superintendent of Police Mills. In no cases were the strict lines of the law transgressed. All of the events, including a film sponsored by a lodge at the Cedar theatre, in West Philadelphia, a lodge showing at the Karlton theatre, a concert at the Arch Street theatre, a fraternity dance at the Hotel Adelphia and other movie concerts, dances and musicals, which apparently did not interfere with the letter of the law, were permitted to proceed without molestation.

WB Script Books for Sale by Unemployed

Atlantic City, Dec. 9.

In order to relieve the distress of the needy here Warner Bros. have prepared a script book of amusement tickets, good at any of the local theatres, and which are being offered to the public by men and women solicitors.

These solicitors, taken from the ranks of the unemployed, are selling coupons, exchangeable for the script books at any of the theatre box offices upon payment of the additional amount printed on the coupons.

The plan originated by the local management has the endorsement of the home office of the Warners and will be extended over the vast chain operated by the company. The coupons provide a commission retained by the salesman.

8-Year Feud Ended

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 9.

A feud of eight years was publicly wiped out here Saturday night (6) when Ackerman J. Gill, newly appointed Albany city manager for R-K-O and contact man for them on the construction of their two new theatres in this city and Albany, was tendered a dinner along with three others who were recently promoted in the order that brought Gill from here to Albany. At this dinner William M. Shirley, president of the Farash Theatres Corporation and manager of the State theatre, and Gill shook hands and publicly declared that all the so and sos they had called each other didn't go.

FOX READJUSTMENT IN N.W.

J. J. Parker Heads Portland Theatres Co.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 9.

Fox readjustment of operating heads makes J. J. Parker, former local indie exhibitor, now president and gen. mgr. of Fox Portland Theatres Inc. Group includes all houses in Portland and Astoria. Fox division mgr. for Oregon, exclusive of Portland and Astoria, is Floyd Maxwell, of Fox Broadway and later city manager.

Parker's lieutenant is Chas. M. Couche, who continues as manager of the United Artists and assumes all exploitations for Fox Portland theatres. Marc Bowman, former p.a., is house mgr. of the Fox Broadway.

New title of J. J. Parker as Fox Portland president is another rung in ladder climbing since Parker was a small indie operator and later junior partner in Jensen & Von Herberg theatres.

Replenishing Fox Houses

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

A tour of the Fox theatres from coast to coast in the interests of physical conditions of theatres, equipment and needs is being made by Charles Caballero, general purchasing agent for Fox, and Louis Hunt, of the National Theatre Supply.

Both arrived here for the week-end from San Francisco.

Spasmodic Union Troubles as Reported from New York Offices

Spasmodic theatrical union trouble is reported in a number of localities at the I. A. home office in New York. In the midwest the A. H. Blank houses, 13 or more, have bumped into a real fight with the stage unions.

Among the houses on the Central States Theatres, Inc., list affected, with the m. p. operators the most vitally involved, are the Palace and Strand, Mason City, Ia.; Rialto and Strand, Fort Dodge, Ia.; Rialto, Boone, Ia.; Ritz-Carleton, Grand and President, Oelwein, Ia.; Capitol, Rialto and Strand, Clinton, Ia.; King and Rex theatres, Alvia, Ia.

In Elkhart, Ind., the operators' union is negotiating for a new contract in all local houses, with Warner Bros. the principal house operators there.

The I. A. call for all affiliated workers in the Capitol and Brandt theatres in Brantford, Can., is officially set to become effective Dec. 13.

The I. A. road call, due to call out the stagehands and m. p. operators in Hamilton, Can., where the Pantages theatre is the chief bone of labor contention, has been extended from Dec. 6 to 13.

Racine, Wis., has everything straightened out after all the houses had been closed following an argument over a salary cut demanded by the managers. All the men are back to work in the two Warner and one RKO house, as well as five neighs. Reported the union accepted a 5% cut in the neigh theatres. The theatre owners demanded a 25% slash.

Over Dismissed Man

A strike of I. A. men in Council Bluffs, Ia., resulted there when trouble arose over the discharge of a maintenance man who had been with the Publix house for years.

The musicians in the Paramount theatre in Seattle, Wash., are still endeavoring to adjust difficulties. The official I. A. call there has been extended until Dec. 13 to permit further negotiations.

Union matters are unchanged in San Francisco. The entire situation was discussed in New York last week during the semi-annual executive board session of the A. F. of M. From S. F. came Albert Greenbaum of the musicians' local of that city. The union men and the theatre operators are still negotiating.

Any picture can have this charming, atmospheric

COLOR

EVERY mood of the screen can be expressed in charming, atmospheric, overall tints, by means of Eastman Sonochrome Tinted Positive Films. They reproduce sound with striking fidelity, being designed especially with this function in mind. Best of all, they can be used in any picture, for they cost no more than ordinary black-and-white positive film.

EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY
ROCHESTER, NEW YORK

J. E. Brulatour, Inc., Distributors
New York Chicago Hollywood

MARVELOU
W
FR
TO
Presented by Carl Laemmle
And Keep Your Dates Open fo

HAT IT IS!

EE

VE

His wife! And in the arms of his best friend!

Watch it hit the high spots at ROXY'S big house starting Dec. 12! And at Stanley's Ace Philadelphia Theatre, The BOYD, playing day and date!

GEVEVIEVE TOBIN, CONRAD NAGEL, Zasu Pitts, Monroe Owsley, Slim Summerville, Bertha Mann.
From the stage hit by Sidney Howard.
Produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr.
Directed by
HOBART HENLEY

IT'S UNIVERSAL!

r "Dracula" and "Resurrection"!

Horowitz Persuades Texas Allied To Endorse His State Campaign

Dallas, Dec. 9.

Hot on footsteps of organization of Texas' new indie group, Motion Picture Theatre Protective Assn., Will Horowitz called his Texas Allied Board together here last week to officially indorse his state censorship campaign.

It was a complete surprise to the trade here that Allied, as a body, should actually indorse Horowitz's suicide move in face of the fact that they've been fighting censorship, Sunday laws, taxes, etc., for years. Furthermore, it gave a boost to the censorship move here, with dailies passing up the mess as a technical squawk among the trade, giving it plenty of space now. It's almost a cinch there'll be a censorship bill before the Texas legislature when it opens in Jan.

Sez the directors: "This association in principle would deplore censorship, politically administered, either locally, state wide, or national. Unless some such plan (referring to Hays organization) is put into effect, we, as an association and as individuals, independent exhibitors, feel that we cannot oppose reformation along this line, even though it should mean a political system of censorship to which, in principle, we demur."

It was virtually a Napoleonic stroke for Horowitz, admittedly a wise bird in spite of his ethics. He and his cronies talked for four hours, evolving a scheme to offset the new opposition group. It's alleged that local distributor firms were accused of offering M.P.TP.A.'s new secretary, J. K. Melcer, $15,000 to fight the Houston warhorse. That the distribs will fight censorship when they're needed is a known fact. It is also rumored Texas Allied expected the distribs to appeal to them to put a stop to this nonsense, and, of course, figure that the new indie group is planted by the distribs. Actually, M.P.T.P.A. took specific care to steer clear of chain affiliation.

The "Martyr"

To the public and press in this territory, Horwitz has sprouted angelic wings—sorta martyr. To showmen it looks like the worst trouble ever started south of the Mason-Dixon chalk. The mess has gone so far that even if Horowitz should pipe down now, public sentiment will carry it to the legislature with momentum created by Horowitz's ads, wires, letters to clubs, churches, and even legislators.

And, as for the press, most of the scribes are not posted enough on inside show biz to get Horowitz angles and objects or unable to visualize effects of political censorship.

At the least, it'll likely take time and money to quash this ruckus, judging by present situation, the producer-distributors can't start too soon.

4TH DARK HOUSE TO OPEN IN ROCHESTER

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 9.

Piccadilly, last dark theatre in city, reopens tomorrow (10) with grind policy at 25c top. Operated by Publix, which also runs the Eastman and Regent, the Piccadilly went dark eight months ago after trying vaude and first runs without success.

This is fourth downtown dark house reopened within a month, three on grind policy.

Theatre business seems good only for the hits, but operators figure a profit on the low price policy and frequent change of program.

The house was scheduled to open Dec. 6 but union trouble delayed its start.

ORGANIST ADDED TO SHOW

State, Minneapolis, Featuring Local For Publix House

Minneapolis, Dec. 9.

State, one of the leading Publix loop houses, seating 2,200 people and charging a flat 60c admission after 6:30 p. m., is adding flesh to its screen programs.

An organ specialty is prominent now, by a newly engaged organist, Jack Malerich, local favorite, who is featured in all billing.

Reports have it that Publix is considering also stage entertainment and orchestras for both the State and the Century, latter a 75c house.

5th YEAR

BENNY MEROFF

ORIENTAL—CHICAGO

INDEFINITELY

Publix Mgrs. Must Open And Close All Houses, Says Immerman in Chi.

Chicago, Dec. 9.

At a meeting of all Publix-Balaban & Katz managers it was announced by Walter Immerman, regional director, that henceforth the policy of one day off in every seven will be cancelled, and be no more days off.

Immerman, perhaps incensed over laxity among managers, added to the declaration a flat invitation to anyone who didn't like it to say so as there were plenty of men who would be glad to get the jobs. He also stated managers must pay closer attention to business and must be on hand to open their houses in the morning and close them in the evening.

There are about 55 managers and assistants in the greater Chicago division alone.

SYRACUSE STARTS ITS 25C NEWSREEL HOUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 9.

With a booking alliance claimed with the management of the Embassy, New York, the new Dewitt theatre, formerly Empire, opened Friday (5) as the first newsreel-short subject house between New York and Los Angeles.

Five-year lease of the Dewitt is held by the Dewitt Development Corporation, headed by Julian S. Brown, young Syracuse millionaire.

Robert Case is house manager at the Dewitt.

Dewitt will run from 11 to 11, with seats 25c. at any time.

First plan was to operate without ushers to keep down the payroll, but the city stepped in with an order for an usher to the aisle.

Coventry for Sun. Closing Faction in Vermont Town

Bellows Falls, Vt., Dec. 9.

Demand that theatres and baby golf courses be closed here on Sundays resulted in complete enforcement of the 1921 blue laws Sunday. In fact, the enforcement extended to no sales of milk, tobacco, fruit, Sunday newspapers, gasoline, and every other type of commodity.

A week ago Sunday, 26 business men were arrested, including film theatre managers, garage owners and druggists.

Church people raised the storm when approximately 100 signed a petition for enforcement. Now even their own neighbors, opposed to them, won't speak to them.

Concord, N. H., Dec. 9.

Strict enforcement of the Sunday blue laws has been demanded of the county solicitor. A petition asks the closing of every type of business. It was signed by Mayor Brown and eight other Concord residents who are associated in a minnie golf enterprise, which was ordered to remain closed on Sundays.

PUNCH AND JUDY FOLDS

No Films, Biz Or Profits So Art Spot Dark

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Without pictures a house can't operate. Punch and Judy, arty theatre, which opened gloriously some three months ago with "Abraham Lincoln," has discovered the truth of the statement, and last week put up the shutters.

House spotted in out-of-the-way corner of the loop, and couldn't attract without first run outstanding product, and exchanges with such films wouldn't dabble with this small 350-seat spot. After "Lincoln," house tried reissues, but business was hopeless.

Talking about reopening after Jan. 1, but it's probably only just talk.

Distribs Vs. Exhib Case Must Be Court-Tried; Arbitration Tangle

Denver, Dec. 9.

In what is probably the first decision of its kind since the Thacher and the following U. S. Supreme Court decisions, Judge Frank McDonough of the state district court in Denver, decided that the suit of Metro against the Bi-Metallis Investment Co., operators of the Tabor theatre here, would be tried on its merits. According to papers filed, the M-G-M company had offered to arbitrate the differences if some way could be found suitable to both parties that was not in conflict with the Thacher decision. This the Tabor owners refused to do and insisted upon arbitration as specified in paragraph 18 of the standard contract.

M-G-M filed suit on a contract signed March 19, 1929, calling for the showing of a number of its pictures at the Tabor. The contract was not carried out, according to M-G-M. Tabor owners wanted the case thrown out of court because of the refusal of M-G-M to arbitrate under paragraph 18.

In his ruling on this, Judge McDonough ruled that M-G-M had made the only offer it could under the Thacher decision and when the Tabor turned the proposition down it had forfeited its rights of arbitration and said the case would be tried on its merits.

WB Option on Scranton's Burlesque House of 1,500

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 9.

Gaiety, Scranton's only burlesque house for many years, will close stock burlesque season Dec. 13, day before option on property held by Warner Brothers expires.

Warners, frozen out of this territory since Par-Publix took over Comerford chain in July, obtained a 60-day option on the Gaiety property. Joseph Hebrew, representing WB, let it be known last week he was here looking for sites for theatres.

Hebrew is credited with planting story in local papers that Warners had decided to exercise Gaiety option, but theatre circles here generally are sceptical. Option calls for lease at monthly rental of $900 or privilege to buy at $55,000. Gaiety seats 1,500.

FWC-Radio Deal Would Leave UA Alone for Indies

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Fox-West Coast may yet tie up the Radio product for its entire chain aside from spots where now not available.

Negotiations toward a product deal with Radio have been entered into, but to date chain and distributor have not been able to agree on terms. F-WC, from inside reports, feels Radio is asking percentage arrangements that are too stiff. Figures are not quoted, but it is believed that on Radio outstanders such as Amos 'n' Andy top percentage is being demanded.

Contracting Radio would mean all major programs outside of United Artists would be held by the F-WC chain in all situations where not conflicting with Par, WB, Universal, Radio and others with own theatres or franchises.

Up to now, without a F-WC-Radio product deal, the UA and Radio programs, plus 50% of Warner and First National, are practically all that lays around "loose" for indies and others to go after on first run.

Mayor Balks Ticket Plan

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Because Mayor William Hale Thompson is giving away coupons on a political hook up with most of the large Chi mercantile establishments, the local R-K-O houses are unable to place in operation the coupon plan of the circuit.

To do so would be in direct conflict with the Mayor and his re-election plans.

"TOL'ABLE DAVID"

Dialogue by

JOHN V. A. WEAVER

VAUDE GETTING A CHANCE

Girl Fool for Benefits Tells of Hows and Whys Favoring Agents

Josephine Singlewoman talking:

"I don't know why but I'm a fool for benefits. Time and time again I say 'Never, no more'—then some booker or agent aske me to play for his pet charity, and I give in. Just can't say no.

"Until you've played a benefit, you don't know what a girl has to put up with. You want to make good with all those agents out front catching the show—a lot of swells and near swells, wise guys and would-bes. You can't do your whole routine, see. You wonder, 'Should I do the pop number or go right into the medley cold with a chance of flopping?' Worrying yourself sick, you arrive at the theatre and find out you'll have to follow Eddie Cantor!

"If you're lucky a car's been sent to pick you up at the theatre you're doubling from. No one cares how you get home from benefits—that's your own headache. If you're a sap like me you hop your own taxi and watch the meter. You're scared to death but you think, 'Even if the bookers don't like the act—it's for charity.'

"You take a look backstage to see what other single women are on the bill. There's Corinne Songshouter standing in the wings in a copy of your dress. That's the first burn-up. Sophie Tucker comes through the door and out goes your Red-Hot-Mama imitation. Then the Johnson Sisters go on and goal the house with rough stuff. That kills your drunk impersonation. You're ready to call quits when you hear two single women have already sung 'Cottage for Sale,' making a fool out of the orchestrations you brought along with your rabbit's foot. Even for charity you don't want to go lay an egg.

A Headliner

"In the stage dressing room you spot a girl you haven't seen since you played the Gus Sun time together. She's become Lizzie Headliner since then, while you are still playing benefits. You rush over to say 'Hello,' and the dame gives you the stare and looks back admiringly at herself in the mirror. Many's the time you paid for her coffee and cakes when that's all she was playing for. A headliner now—with a sec. to answer mail. A secret'ry? What she needs is a good routine.

"You spot the orchestra leader picking up lead sheets and you go over to tell him to do a verse and chorus of 'Am I Blue'—second chorus piano for the patter and last four bars a forte Jolson finish—when Lizzie Headliner pushes you out of the way. 'You don't mind, do you, dear, if I explain my music cues now?' she cracks. Patting her peroxided hair daintily, she segues: 'I have to run up to an affair at the Ritz, and I simply can't be late.'

"So you say a lot of things under your breath and go over to a stage hand. 'Has anyone done Jewish yet tonight?' you ask. He says 'No' and you make up your mind to use the Yiddish version of 'Heigh Ho Everybody' that you stuck in at the Delancey that night you thought you were flopping.

"About 11:30 you go on—and a hit. With the first Jewish crack, that audience rolls. This charity racket's not so bad after all. After six bows, you come off feeling like a big shot.

"Standing in the green room door eating a sandwich and forgetting all about that little supper at the Ritz,' is Lizzie Headliner. Maybe she'll remember you now you're a hit. You pass the door and overhear someone ask, 'Who is that little lady?' Lizzie looks you up and down, flecks a crumb off her sandwich and drawls, 'That, I believe, is a Miss Josephine Singlewoman.'

"It's lucky for that dame you were a hit—otherwise you'd tear her limb from limb. I dono't know, I can't understand how single women can be so jealous."

GEO. WALSH RELEASED

Wife Relents Upon Promise of $50 Wkly While Geo. is Working

George A. Walsh, pianist, who was sued in 1927 for a divorce by Mrs. Sadie Walsh of 395 Riverside Drive, and accused of turning his affections toward Myrna Darby of "Rio Rita" and other women, including a wealthy woman of Palm Beach who owned a yacht, is out of the N. Y. County Jail, after a guest there since Oct. 27. His wife had him put there for being behind $5,528 in alimony.

Walsh got out of jail on an affidavit by his wife without paying a cent. Mrs. Walsh told Justice Wasservogel, who ordered the pianist released, that she had talked with Val Rich and Paul South, associated with her husband in the Argonaut Boys, (Tex Guinan club) and said she believed he hadn't paid her anything because he has earned little of late, and couldn't pay. South and Rich told her they wanted him with them again and that they would see that $50 a week was deducted from his pay and turned over to her.

Guiseppe Bambaschek, former Metropolitan Opera conductor and musical secretary to Maestro Gatti-Casazza, also got out a few days ago, on digging up $250. It was suspected that Giovanni Martinelli, for whom he is accompanist in concert and radio work, had something to do with the cash payment.

L. A.'S DEPT. STORES ADOPT VAUDE RATES

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Department stores are getting wise to the depression in show business. Salaries for acts playing the stores for the holidays have been cut considerably under those paid last year.

Top for acts this year is $50 a week, with the performer obliged to punch a clock.

Last year agents could get from $75 to $100 for anything able to amuse the youngsters. Employment departments this year were canvassed by performers who figured they would beat commissions. Instead the agents got the work and the salaries were from hunger.

Ray O'Connell Critically Hurt in Auto Crash

St. Paul, Dec. 9.

Ray O'Connell, R-K-O city manager, critically hurt in an auto crash Friday (5), is fighting for his life in St. John's hospital.

With Jack Bruce, public relations man for R-K-O President, and his wife, O'Connell was bound for Stillwater to effect a tieup. Bruce was at the wheel when car with the three sitting in the front seat skidded on a curve and collided headon with a second machine. O'Connell has compound fracture of skull, dislocated back together with severe cuts and bruises.

Bruce suffered lacerations, painful but not serious, while Mrs. O'Connell, professional, formerly drummer with All-Girl Revue, was but slightly hurt. The O'Connells were married in Chicago in July.

Morgan Ames, Minneapolis division manager, took personal charge of two St. Paul houses.

Rockwell's Ask

Doctor Rockwell opened at the Opera House, New Brunswick, N. J., Dec. 4 for a three-day break-in, with the R-K-O Palace, New York, in view for Dec. 20.

Rockwell is reported asking $3,500.

PUBLIX AND FOX LINING UP TIME

Publix Will Start First in Middlewest — Conference in New York Next Week Over It—Fox Getting F. & M. Vaude Shows.

WM. MORRIS BOOKING

Vaudeville's best chance to come back at any time since it started to slip six years ago is now at hand, it appears, through renewed activity in the vaude line by two major circuits—Publix and Fox.

P-P's plans for stage shows in numerous straight picture theatres, just a mirage for almost a year, are now materializing into something definite. Sam Katz of that circuit may hold a meeting in New York on the vaude question for final settlement next week. The result, partly set by discussion in the Publix office, from reports, may be 30 weeks of stage time in the middle west for four and five-act bills ranging from $2,000 to $6,000 in cost.

Paramount's survey of all theatres for vaude adaptability led to the qualification of the 30 western weeks.

Publix vaude, when set, probably will be booked through the William Morris office, as is the small quantity of vaude time now on the circuit. That office, to handle the vaude proposition and shows, may have a staff of three bookers, composed of Lawrence Golde, Billy Diamond and Harry Hollander.

Golde is the present Publix vaude booker in the Morris office. Diamond is booking western indie vaude time out of Chicago but is reported coming east. Hollander was transferred Monday from the Publix presentation production headquarters in Astoria, L. I., to the Paramount home offices in New York, ostensibly to work on the vaude idea.

Fox and F. & M.

Inclusion of Fox in the possible vaude boom is through its move toward a more orthodox vaude style on the Fanchon & Marco presentation route, extending for 40 weeks or thereabouts from coast to coast. These vaude bills, averaging about the same as the F. & M. band units in cost and embellished by lines of 14 or 16 girls and costume and production help, will be played against every three presentations on the F. & M. route.

This will mean a change to vaude every fourth week by the F. & M.-playing Fox theatres.

Bills will use four acts each, with the cast booked from any point available and shipped to the coast for the opening date, the Colorado theatre in Pasadena, Cal. Majority of acts will be booked and sent out from the F. & M. booking office in New York.

Sedley's Wife in Act

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Roy Sedley, who got himself a wife while playing in an R-K-O unit in Syracuse, is putting the missus to work in the act, starting next week at Salt Lake City.

Mrs. Sedley replaces Virginia Martin.

6 Gals and Ancient Turk

Jack Linder is producing a vaude act around Zaro Agha, the 156-year old Turk, with a chorus of six girls, three Turkish sword-twirlers and Hadji Tahir, Agha's manager who also claims to be a centenarian.

R-K-O and Loew's Using Actors Out Front; Start as Ass'ts With Hopes

ROUGHNECKS HECKLE

Harrison and Dakin Leave Jefferson Bill—Disturbed Audience, Too

Charles Harrison and Sylvia Dakin left the bill at the R-K-O Jefferson on 14th street, New York, after the opening day (Wednesday) matinee of the last half last week over trouble with the audience.

A bunch of 14th street roughnecks of the type that has helped the Jeff to be known among acts as the toughest theatre in the east, started heckling the mixed team early. It so disturbed the rest of the audience and the act that Harrison stepped down stage and berated his hecklers.

"It's better than selling apples," said Harrison. Then he took an encore.

After the matinee the team's request for release from the engagement was granted.

PEACHES PAID SALARY TO ALLEN, SHE SAYS

Taking the stand in her own defense, Mrs. Frances (Peaches) Heenan Browning Monday (8) denied in N. Y. Supreme Court she had agreed to pay Edgar Allen, her manager during the latter part of 1928 and the beginning of 1929, 25% of her earnings. She was a witness at the trial of Allen's suit for $15,000 he alleges is due him for booking and managing her act. Peaches identified notes and checks indicating that she had given Allen $4,500 during the time he was her manager.

Allen was promised a flat $200 a week for booking her act, Mrs. Browning testified. No percentage figure was involved, she said. Allen handled all the business details, collecting the income from theatres and paying off the supporting cast and other expenses, Mrs. Browning said in every case he held out his $200 before he turned her share over to her, she maintained.

Mrs. Browning had just completed identifying a series of checks and "I.O.U." notes when

(Continued on page 71)

MRS. CHRISTIE'S ESCAPE

Woman Commercial Flier's Plane Burned, After Crash

Mrs. Dorothy Christie, wife of Wayne Christie, the agent, escaped serious injury when her airplane crashed Dec. 3 near DeWitt, Va. Joe Rock, assistant pilot and mechanic, was severely hurt in the crash. Fire that followed completely destroyed the ship.

Mrs. Christie has been an aviation enthusiast for about two years. Recently she compiled sufficient flying hours to secure a commercial license, becoming one of the few women commercial air pilots.

6-Mos. Check Charge

Minneapolis, Dec. 9.

Adeline Aldrich, dancer, who turned to writing bad checks after she had used all her funds to send the body of her dancing partner and fiance to Porto Rico for burial, chose a six months' workhouse sentence rather than face childhood friends in the little Iowa town where she was born.

When informed that she had broken her promise to return to Alexander, Ia., her birthplace, District Judge W. C. Leary revoked her probation and committed her to the workhouse.

"I can't go back there now after what has happened," she told the probation officer.

Since "Variety's" announcement that two former actors secured positions with R-K-O as assistant house managers, the idea has traveled among the performers. Both Loew and R-K-O have had numerous requests the past few weeks from actors for trials at managerial positions.

R-K-O now employs five former thespians, learning the ropes "out front," while Loew's has six of the boys planted in their big picture houses around New York.

The thing they have to overcome, according to an official of R-K-O, is over-eagerness to progress to a manager's berth too rapidly. According to this exec., the actors know 50% of the racket through their years on the stage, and pick up the front of the house duties rapidly. Only one ex-actor, a chap who was placed at an R-K-O house three weeks ago, has disappointed. This fellow evidently cannot forget his acting days, said the exec, and is constantly back stage whenever wanted out front. He gets himself a chair when the vaude show starts and sits in the wings. He will probably be replaced by some other ex-performer or shifted to another department.

Jos. Plunkett, for R-K-O, said he was satisfied with the way former players took hold of the new jobs. A Loew exec stated he is more than satisfied with the showing of actors that he had gone to the front personally for and installed as assistant managers. He said that he has at the present time over 15 applications for positions from actors ranging in ages from 30 to 45.

Actor's Body Identified After a Week in Morgue

St. John, N. B., Dec. 9.

When Capt. P. A. Hasty, went into a funeral home in Newburg, Me., he identified one of three bodies there as Frank Allen, formerly a member of his company in the 103rd Infantry. A. E. F. Allen was a buck and wing dancer in vaudeville and musical tab companies. In 1917 he was with a tab company which stranded in Augusta, Me. He enlisted in the 103rd and went overseas with that regiment.

"He was a fearless soldier," said Hasty, "and had never been in trouble while in the army." Allen became an entertainer for the soldiers between fighting periods, and was recognized as one of the most talented war performers.

With two companions Allen was found dead at Newburg after securing denatured alcohol at a garage. They claimed they wanted it for a car. They were fatally poisoned and all were dead when found. Nobody was able to identify the men for almost a week, during which the bodies laid in the undertaking rooms.

Allen's body was interred in a soldiers' lot in a little cemetery at Carmel, Me.

Fitzgerald Back

All okay except for one bad glim which needs some healing, Harry Fitzgerald, the R-K-O agent, returned to the floor Monday.

Fitz was in a coupe that climbed a pole on Long Island last month.

Best Xmas Present
Subscription to
VARIETY
$10 for One Year
Always Welcome

Radio Acts Scarce Freaks 2nd Choice To Get Kids Back

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Picture houses in the small towns scattered throughout the midwest are welcoming freak acts of any sort as business boosters. Those who see the return of flesh to these stages look to "freak" turns as ice-breaker.

In the midwest, Publix-Great States has definitely established itself upon such a policy, and is busy scouring the country for such available material. Starting out with radio features, they have about washed up that field, and are now turning to sideshow and circuit acts.

Billy Diamond has set the Godino boys, Siamese twins, in for eight towns on the Great States time, starting with Muncie and Crawfordsville, Ind., next week. Ike Rose's Midgets are planned for an entire swing around the circuit, playing from two to four days in each town, depending upon the size of the burg and the amount of competition.

Gets Kids

This sort of circus stuff has had the remarkable result of bringing back to the theatres the crowds of youngsters who had been weaned away by the talkers. In Chicago the small neighborhood spots have gone in heavily for out-and-out circus material on Saturdays with kids swarming in for the show.

Rubin's WB Six

Benny Rubin goes with Warners for six weeks commencing Jan. 2, at the Mastbaum, Philadelphia.

Rubin is currently playing for R-K-O at the Palace, New York, on a four weeks' booking as m. c.

Team's Shorts and Tour

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Harrison and Elmo, blackface team, finished the first of six shorts for Christie yesterday (Monday).

They will start a 10-week route for Publix Dec. 19, returning later to complete the series.

No Difference

Harry Jans and Harold Whalen, while at Loew's State last week, were asked who does the straight in their act.

They answered in unison: "The first one out on the stage."

Next-to-Shuts Getting All the Indie Breaks

Indie vaude bookers are hard pressed for good next to closing comedy acts that can be used for closing the shows if necessary. Flashes, novelties, singing acts, acrobats are offered the indie bookers daily by the hundreds. When an agent submits a good comedy act or the turn itself walks in to the office, it is like rain to the prairie wheat country in a drouth.

The indies have raised their ante on the next to closers, so bad is the shortage. Right now, taking all the indie stands, a good comedy act, in one, two or full stage, can play a fair sized route at pretty good money.

Bookers are all shaving costs on the bulk of their shows and adding it to the salaries of much needed next to shut offerings.

Tulsa Back on Route

Orpheum theatre, Tulsa, Okla., goes back on the R-K-O vaude books starting Dec. 26.

Sammy Tishman will book the house on the intact show route, with the units jumping into Tulsa from St. Louis.

Hart, Gill Alternate

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

In future Max Hart and William S. Gill, latter now in charge of the Hart agency here, will rotate between east and west.

Hart is coming back Jan. 15 with Gill switching to Hart's New York office Feb. 1.

ANN SEYMOUR

with HARRY SEYMOUR

Franklin H. Chase, "SYRACUSE JOURNAL," Dec. 1, said:

"Pretty, roguish Ann Seymour is back in vaudeville at Keith's after many months on Broadway. She qualifies today as most interesting and certainly one of the most beautiful comediennes on the stage. In short Ann has "It" with a vengeance."

Headlining R-K-O Circuit Season 1930-31.

Mentalist in WB Film Houses With Exploiting

Gene Dennis, mind reader, has been booked for 30 weeks by Warners for spotting both in vaude and straight picture houses, opening January 5.

Warners will exploit Miss Dennis heavily and have two agents ahead of the mind reader.

Australian Parade

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Six Blue Streaks sailed on the "Sierra" from San Francisco to Australia Dec. 8 with a route for the Union theatres there.

This is the first of a number of acts leaving here for the Antipodes at the rate of one a month.

Beauty in Distress

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Stanley (Go-Getter) Willis, manager of Margaret (Miss America) Ekdahl, and currently with her in Hollywood awaiting picture offers, complained to "Variety" that its Hollywood Bulletin had identified Miss Ekdahl as winner of the Galveston beauty contest instead of the one at Miami.

"Not that we care," said Willis, "but Galveston is squawking."

$250 Wkly. Royalty for "Burlesque" in Vaude

Arthur Hopkins has sanctioned the condensation of his former play hit, "Burlesque" into a vaude sketch for Jack Skelly, provided Skelly pays Hopkins a royalty of $250 weekly for its use while engaged.

Skelly was in the original play cast. In vaude he will have six people in support and probably ask $2,500.

Charlie Morrison is Skelly's agent.

WB Band Idea Off

Will Osborne's band, booked into Warner's Beacon for one week, will be held there indef. Osborne is in second week there.

Warners original intention to adopt the Beacon stage band policy for the Strand theatres in Brooklyn and New York has been dropped.

Schubert's Semi-Break

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Eddie Schubert, from eastern vaude, is getting his first picture break in an offstage part for a couple of mutts.

He's doing the dialog dubbing into a dog picture being made by Rene Hoffman, indie.

NEW YEAR'S EVE LOOKS VERY SLIM TO AGENTS

Holiday week, always counted upon by club agents in supplying entertainment to private parties, is pretty slow so far for engagements.

This is the time acts are dated for the holiday week, mostly New Year's Eve. Accounts for whom the agents have arranged parties for each New Year's Eve are cancelling the blowout for this year.

Gordon on New Gams Sets Self Up in Biz

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Jack Gordon, former p.a., just out of the General hospital here, is going into a small merchandizing biz on his own, staging a come-back.

Gordon had both his legs amputated and tried to get around too soon on his artificial limbs, causing complications which a 17 weeks' confinement in the local hosp. corrected.

Weighing over 200, Gordon now maneuvers very well on his artificial gams.

Extra Vaude Prospects Do Fadeout on Coast

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Prospects for local talent through addition of two acts to R-K-O intacts for here and San Francisco, plus a stage show policy at Orpheum, now in straight pictures, are dim.

It was believed that two additional acts for intacts would overload shows on this coast.

TOMMY SWIFT BACK

Tommy Swift, who has been out of show business for the past two seasons due to a nervous breakdown, is readying for a return to vaude.

Swift will do a new act, with four girls supporting. He w formerly the partner of Mary Kelly.

It won't be long now before 1930's biggest worries, the two 25ths, will be all over.

One is Christmas, of course, and the other is "Variety's" Silver

Anniversary Number, coarser.

• • •

That's all, a reminder.

WHITE RATS ADMIT FINISH

Club Bookings in L. A. Off 50% and Vaude a Myth, but Always New Faces

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Business depression locally has cut club bookings in half. Agents who specialize in the good-time Charley festivals say they are just getting by, and that it's a case of cutting the other guy's throat to land the jobs.

Clubs that paid from $500 to $1,000 for a show last year are on a 50% budget. Jobs once worth $200 are out entirely, as the clubs formerly paying that are now ducking the sheriff.

Recently an agent sent out a show with a line of 10 girls, five-piece band, comedy team and an m.c.—all for $60. After the agent paid street car transportation he was out dough and the talent got eating money.

Club bookings has been the mainstay of the majority of indie bookers locally for some time. With vaude out it has been about their only outlet. This year there has been an unusually large number of acts heading west, despite warnings broadcast that only malnutrition was available on the Coast. As a result, any agent's office downtown is a convention hall for lay-offs.

Boy Dancer's Father Corroborates Sampter

The scrap between Marty Sampter and Harry Richards (Rochm & Richards) over the managerial rights to Hal LeRoy (formerly Schotte) has assumed the proportions of a thumbs to the nose fight at present.

Sampter says he was told about LeRoy Schotte late in June by Matty Zimmerman who had seen the boy in Will Morrissey's Hobo show in Hoboken last summer. Sampter admits the first time he ever saw and talked to the boy was up in the rehearsal hall where a flock of actors and agents including Harry Richards were gathered to watch auditions. He was introduced to the boy, he says, by someone he cannot now remember and the boy wanted to show what he and his boy partner could do. Sampter and the Schotte boy and his partner went over to a dance school, where Sampter says he watched the double hoofing act and realized he could not use it. He told the Schotte boy to come to him if he ever decided to work alone.

This was around July 10, last, according to Sampter. The following day the boy and his mother came to him and said the kid had taken Sampter's advice and would do a single and wanted Sampter to handle him. The mother stated, according to Sampter, they had had six agents including Richards and had gotten nowhere.

Father's Okay

Sampter says he asked the mother at once if anyone had the boy signed to a contract and she said no, and would appoint him (Sampter) the sole representative. Nine days later Sampter says he took the lad and his mother to Boston on gamble that he could place him in "Tattle Tales," musical, that had opened a week before. Sampter landed the boy in the show on July 22 and a short while after they came back as the show closed. Since that time, Sampter says he has kept the boy working steadily. His last placement for the kid is in the Capitol theatre, New York, where the lad is getting $500 a week.

The statement made by George Schotte, the boy's father, bears out Sampter's story very closely. Schotte said also that changing the name of the boy from LeRoy Schotte to Hal LeRoy was the boy's own idea and not done by Sampter to disguise the boy as Harry Richards intimated in a previous story to "Variety."

Maybe Better Now

R-K-O theatres are economically using "good luck" pieces left over from last year, as giveaways this year.

On the pieces is the inscription, "Carry This for Good-luck and Good Times."

They didn't work before.

11 LOEW UNIT WEEKS WITH ADDED 3

Loew's routing of presentation units into present straight picture theatres will start around Xmas with Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse the first towns added. Units played will be those opening at the Capitol, New York, and reduced after that week to average around $3,000 in cost.

If the three new stands on Loew's unit route find the presentation policy successful the route probably will be extended to about 20 weeks. It will comprise 11 weeks when the three New York state weeks join in.

Previous report that Fanchon & Marco units may be booked into the Loew picture theatres was held unlikely at this time.

Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse, in that order, will follow Cleveland on the Loew route.

KNUTE ROCKNE WANTS PLENTY FOR VAUDE

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Knute Rockne is the "freak" feature in demand at present. Practically every circuit and large indie houses have made offers.

Rockne, it is said, has turned down many bids, standing pat on a high straight salary or a guarantee and percentage arrangement.

Besides Knute can't work until Dec. 18, under his contract with Notre Dame. No theatres are anxious on taking a chance on him at that late date, when football interest will be on the wane.

LeMaire and Agents

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Rufus LeMaire, newly installed casting head for WB-FN, called a meeting Saturday morning of agents and advised that hereafter none should bother studio execs in angling for consideration of players. LeMaire stated that all names should be submitted to him, and if there is merit in the submissions he will take the matter up with studio officials.

LeMaire as casting director for both studios is considered a break for the agents, as the former legit producer and agent is familiar with eastern and stage people generally unknown here.

During the meeting LeMaire also stated that the cold shoulder which Warners' and First National once turned toward agents is now a thing of the past.

AUSTRALIA FOR COUNTESS

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Countess Sonia, standard vaude act over here, opens in Australia for United Theatres Feb. 1.

Tour is for 10 weeks with usual options.

AFL CHARTER IS GIVEN TO 4 A'S

Bad Vaudeville Times Wash Up Variety Actors' Organization After Its Life of About 30 Years—Life and Paid Up Rats Members May Enter Equity in Similar Standing

MOUNTFORD EXPLAINS

After 30 years of valiant battling for the rights and benefits of the variety actors of America, during 23 years of which Harry Mountford has been the leader of the White Rats, that organization admitted itself through for all time last week when Mountford turned in its original charter from the American Federation of Labor to the Associated Actors and Artists of America (the 4 A's).

With that action and under agreement with Equity, the most potent remaining actors' union of the 4 A's; all White Rats holding a life membership or a paid up dues card in the American Artists Federation (the Rats' newer name) may step into Equity under similar classification. Frank Gilmore and Paul Dulzell acted for Equity in the arrangement made with Mountford. This refers to former Rats who may appear in legit. Otherwise Equity does not seem concerned in vaude at this time.

At the meeting Nov. 28 of the A. A. F. attended by Mountford, James W. Fitzpatrick and A. A. F. delegates, the action was voluntarily decided upon, with the A. A. F. offies at 1674 Broadway ordered closed, Nov. 29, the charter, the first actors' union recognized by the American Federation of Labor, was turned into the International (4 A's) and the White Rats officially declared deceased.

In 1918 when Mountford with Gillmore worked out the plan under which the 4 A's was formed, all were blanketed by the White Rats' charter for their affiliation in this manner with the A. F. of L. At that time the name of the White Rats was changed to the American Artists Federation.

In the 4 A's were Equity, German White Rats Union, Hebrew Actors' Union Nos. 1 and 2, Hebrew Chorus Union, Grand Opera Choral Alliance and American Artists' Federation.

Mountford Dominated

The White Rats formed around 1900 with the late George Fuller Golden its first president. In 1907 Harry Mountford, an English artist who had shortly before arrived over here, became the active organizer of the White Rats, with his designation executive secretary.

Mountford ever since dominated the White Rats. He led them in two strikes about eight years apart, with each a failure for the Rats. The second Mountford-led strike was the Rats' third, and their last. The first had been early in 1905, a hastily maneuvered operation which also failed, but became the reason for the founding of the Vaudeville Managers' Association that later was known as the United Booking Offices, to be again changed after some years to the B. F. Keith's Exchange and which is now R-K-O.

As the leader of the Rats and with Jim Fitzpatrick always his loyal and faithful co-patriot, with Fitzpatrick president of the Rats for several years, Mountford was spectacular. He was a powerful speaker before actors in meetings and easily swayed any group of White Rats he ever appeared before. While his sincerity was often doubted by outsiders, Mountford seemed to continuously enjoy the complete confidence of the White Rats who remained in the organiza-

(Continued on page 42)

Marveltone Road Show Quarrel Breaks Up Troupe at Macon, Ga.

Macon, Ga., Dec. 9.

At 9 o'clock Friday (5) evening, the patrons at the city auditorium were filing past the box office and receiving back their money for tickets to the Marveltone and vaudeville performance advertised to start at 8:30.

A quarrel back stage had brought an ultimatum from the local manager that the actors could have an additional twenty minutes to put on the show, or else there would be no show that night. They didn't go on hence the refunds.

The company came here, it developed this week, under the management of Lovett and Clark, but Clark had dropped out in High Point, N. C. Ming Toy had already returned to New York and word was received of her suicide during the engagement here.

Besides the Marveltone act, the following were in the troupe here: Billy and Grace Carmen, Four Warners, Dave Gardiner, Malde Lynne, Henry and Fields, Kala, and Count Nicholas, Le Rhumba Fanatisme.

The performance was given Monday through Thursday night, with matinees Tuesday and Thursday.

Trunks and other paraphernalia were attached here to make up for lodging, meals and other items advanced, but the last of the players has now left.

Apple Seller Tops

One of the five apple salesmen in front of the Palace will be headlined next week.

To carry the billing he'll sell alligator pears.

ONE DAY DATE IN LONDON, $6,800

The reunited Yacht Club Boys (Chick Endor, Billy Mann, Jimmy Kerns and Sammy Fain) have been engaged by Victor Emanuel, millionaire sportsman, to play a private party at his home, Rockingham Castle, England, 90 miles north of London, on Jan. 20. The quartet will receive $6,800 for the date, that amount including transportation both ways. The boys sail on the "Bremen," Jan. 4, and return to this side on the "Europa," Jan. 22, to open at the Embassy Club, Miami, Feb. 3.

Also engaged for Emanuel's swank affair are Moss and Fontana, dancers, currently at the Club Lido, New York, who will get $2,000 for their single appearance. Class dance team has been signed for five weeks at the Cafe de Paris, London, opening there Jan. 10.

STAR QUARTER GOT IDEAS—LOST JOB

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

The Paramount, Los Angeles, tried and failed to get Marshall Duffield, star quarterback of the U. S. C. football team, for a one week personal after the Notre Dame game Saturday.

Paramount offered $300 for the week, with Duffield suddenly acquiring a manager and a yen for $1,000.

Par passed him up faster than Bucky O'Connor.

Moro-Yaccanelli Again

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

An old vaude act, Moro and Yaccanelli, reteamed last week to join F. & M. Idea, current at Loew's State. Team has been set by Joe Cornbleth for the entire F. & M. route.

Lately both Moro and Yaccanelli have been doing picture work separately.

ANDERSON'S SHORTS

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Richard Anderson, of Anderson and Willard, standard vaude act for 20 years, will make a series of shorts tentatively titled "Caesar in Hollywood." Character in the pictures will be the same as he played in vaude.

For the past year, Anderson has been working at the Tec-Art studio.

PA. INDIE'S NO P. O.

Rajah theatre, Reading, Pa., booked independently in Philly, folded up Dec. 3 when reported unable to pay off.

Curly Burns and Co. was the feature act at the house at the time. Rajah formerly was on the old Keith books as part of the Wilmer & Vincent circuit.

Kutznetzoff for Frisco

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Anna Kutznetzoff, the Russian basso, and Mme. Nicolina will be a special feature this year at the San Francisco Automobile Show. Pair are now playing for R-K-O.

Kutznetzoff becomes an American citizen in New York on January 4.

Macon, Ga., Dec. 9.

At 9 o'clock Friday (5) evening, the patrons at the city auditorium were filing past the box office and receiving back their money for tickets to the Marveltone and vaudeville performance advertised to start at 8:30.

A quarrel back stage had brought an ultimatum from the local manager that the actors could have an additional twenty minutes to put on the show, or else there would be no show that night. They didn't go on hence the refunds.

The company came here, it developed this week, under the management of Lovett and Clark, but Clark had dropped out in High Point, N. C. Ming Toy had already returned to New York and word was received of her suicide during the engagement here.

Besides the Marveltone act, the following were in the troupe here: Billy and Grace Carmen, Four Warners, Dave Gardiner, Malde Lynne, Henry and Fields, Kala, and Count Nicholas, Le Rhumba Fanatisme.

The performance was given Monday through Thursday night, with matinees Tuesday and Thursday.

Trunks and other paraphernalia were attached here to make up for lodging, meals and other items advanced, but the last of the players has now left.

PARADE WHEN F. & M. MOVE HEADQUARTERS

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Hollywood Chamber of Commerce will parade and celebrate the moving of Fanchon & Marco's enterprises to Hollywood boulevard and Cherokee in the four-story Hollywood Centre Building, recently taken over.

F. & M. costume company, rehearsal studios and exec offices, once widely scattered, will be combined in the central location.

Plan to move the Fox studios to Movietone City and build a Fanchon & Marco building on the Fox lot site at Sunset and Western is off, because of conditions. Building alone, it was estimated, would mean an investment of $200,000.

Chamber of Commerce is interested in the move because of the large labor employment by F. & M.

Former Ring Rivals as Team—Leonard, Tendler

Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler, two of the best light names at one time in the ring, are headed for vaude as team in a comedy act now being shaped up by the Bill Schilling office.

It will be a burlesque boxing bout by the two former ring celebs.

The last act by the retired lightweight champ and the Philly southpaw was at the Polo Grounds in 1923. Leonard has done several vaude turns and played in musicals and burlesque since quitting the ring.

Al Klein's Damages

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Al Kleinman of the Klein Bros. vaude act, has been paid $900 by the Martin Hotel company of Sioux City, Ia., following a fight between the house detective on Dec. 7, 1928, in which Klein got the shiv.

Klein was a guest of the hotel while appearing at the R-K-O Orpheum. Somebody was giving a party in one of the ballrooms. Klein attempted to enter the room for a couple of peeks when he was allegedly assaulted by the house dick.

No. 936,871

Neville Fleeson has a new partner.

This time Sybilla Bowlan.

White Rats Admit Finish

(Continued from page 41)

tion. His theorizing was perfect but his execution faulty.

Following the Rats' second strike in 1916 and the Rats going into the 4 A's, I'ut still retaining their greatly cherished A. F. of L. charter, the Rats slowly started to slide. Their clubhouse on West 46th street, now the N. V. A., was taken from under them through the late E. F. Albee securing sufficient outstanding bonds issued by the Rats on the building, with the Albee-directed N. V. A. also stealing the membership of the Rats, excepting those faithful followers who remained and contributed to the cause, whether openly or under cover.

Mountford Explains

Harry Mountford, questioned on the passing of the former White Rats organization, said:

"In 1918 Actors' Equity got into a fight with the managers and I brought it into the labor movement, changing the name of the White Rats Actors' Union to the name of an organization already in existance, namely, the Associated Actors and Artists of America, called the 4 A's.

"This became the International. It issued charters to the Actors' Equity for the legit and to the old White Rats, which became the American Artists' Federation, because there were then injunctions against the White Rats and its officers.

"Equity was successful in its 1919 strike, and the A. A. F. not having the jurisdiction in all of the show business, as it had had before under the White Rats, had to confine its attentions to vaudeville, burlesque, clubs and concert.

"With the shrinking and virtual disappearance of important vaudeville, first class burlesque and the concert world, little by little the resources and ability to be of service to its members, caused the A. A. F. to dwindle away.

Loss of Dues

"It was kept going by the devotion of its officers and friends, one of the most prominent the late Jack Donahue, who loyally contributed his time and money for the cause. During the past year, 25% of its membership, composed of the standard acts of vaudeville, have not worked over three or four weeks at the most. This made the contribution of dues from them almost impossible, which we realized.

"Vaudeville, as the White Rats knew it, was no more. Only one two-a-day vaudeville house left in United States and Canada, and the two-a-day is where the White Rats got its membership from. When the class performer passed out of existence, it meant the doom of the American Artists' Federation.

"The position of the entire situation finally became so serious we all appreciated it was practically useless to continue. A meeting was called at which Mr. Fitzpatrick, the Executive Council and myself attended. We decided without a dissenting voice, to surrender our famous American Federation of Labor charter to the International.

23 Years At It

"I have worked and worked for the organization of the actors for 23 years. I have been kicked around, abused, villified, threatened, sued and called everything under the sun by the managers and even by those whom I was striving to help. Now I am all through with the whole business. The Actors' Equity is the only house of refuge left for the browbeaten actor. It is the last stand of talent and brains against money force.

"I wish all the folks in the show business, happiness, luck and good health. Personally, I wish to be let alone. I hope to be able to do something for myself from now until the time I leave this mortal earth."

There is much to be said of the White Rats, including the periods when "Variety" became a part of the Rats' situations, that a more complete story will be written for "Variety" Anniversary number.

$34,000 AT PROCTOR'S, RETURN OF FLESH SHOW

Newark, N. J., Dec. 9.

The reopening of vaude at Proctor's broke the house record for attendance with a total of over 49,000 in seven days. The gross record was not reached, but in nine days that the bill ran the house did over $34,000.

Monday 2,332 women attended up to five in the afternoon. On mats women are admitted for 25c.

"Sin Takes Holiday" on screen and Nick Lucas headlining on stage.

Tryouts, Fashion Shows As R-K-O Gross Builders

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Finding professional tryouts and fashion show nights going over at the local R-K-O theatre, R-K-O intends to continue these special entertainments in selected houses on the Coast. So far Oakland and Salt Lake have been tagged to inaugurate the features, probably on Monday nights, as in the local house.

R-K-O has estimated it can show an increase of $75,000 annually in these three houses alone with the added attraction. Tie-ups will be effected with local merchants in each town for prizes and giveaways at the theatres. This policy will alternate periodically with vaude-showing acts on top of the regular bills.

Levey in Frisco for Indie Vaude Line-Up

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

After three months here, Bert Levey has returned to San Francisco, from where he will start lining up indie vaude through the north and northwest.

Although left with practically no houses on the Coast, Levey continues to maintain offices in Los Angeles and Frisco. His present trip north is another of several attempts Levey has made during the past year to re-establish himself in the indie vaude field out here.

Sioux City and Tacoma Go on R-K-O Unit Route

Sioux City, Ia., and Tacoma, Wash., returning to vaude after about six months in straight pictures, will both go on the R-K-O western unit show route around Jan. 1.

Tacoma will be a full week and Sioux City a four day stand, latter playing the intacts last halves between Salt Lake City and Omaha on the route.

Vaude at Publix, Gary

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Publix-Great States Palace, at Gary, Ind., starts using three acts of vaude the end of this month.

This is one of the results of the circuits tryouts of flesh throughout Indiana, where short turns such as Broadus Earle, child violinist and others are used.

Club Bookings 'Way Off In Best Time of Year

Most of the crying heard around theatrical offices these days comes from those who book clubs. Grief ensues from the unusual slump in club dates which, in other years, has always been more or less profitable around the holidays. Many club shows have been called off and those to take place have sliced expenditures almost in half.

Even the club departments of the vaude circuits are not active.

ILL AND INJURED

Kathleen Walters, dancer, New York, in Leonard Hospital, Troy, N. Y., recovering from nervous disorder.

Mabel Clark, Baltimore actress, is in St. Luke's Hospital, Bethlehem, Pa., recovering from severe injuries received in an auto crash.

Julie Cruze, 17, daughter of James Cruze, at Hollywood hospital recovering from an operation to correct an injury to her spine.

UNIT REFRAMED AFTER LEAVING NEW YORK

First complete re-booking of an R-K-O unit show after the New York break-in occurred with the show opening this week in Syracuse, first road stand.

In the New York week and as originally booked the bill included Cardini, Jean Boydell and the Art Frank double act. Only Miss Boydell remains on the unit, which now contains Conrad and Eddy, Teck Murdock and Edith Karen and Boys.

Art Frank's time was set back two weeks to permit him to recast his turn. He'll break in the new people next week at the Jefferson, New York, and resume the R-K-O unit route at Syracuse the following week. Cardini's route was postponed 12 weeks to go on a bill to which he will be more suitable.

Seven Nelsons, closing an R-K-O tour today (7) at Waterbury, Conn., will sail for home on the "Deutschland" Dec. 11 to spend the holidays in Berlin.

Irving Yates

PRODUCTIONS

160 West 46th Street

NEW YORK CITY

JACK WEINER

R-K-O Artists' Representative is now located in his new office

Palace Theatre Bldg., N. Y. C.

Room 304 Phone Bryant 4519

Note: I am in a position to handle several good comedy acts and will interview and review all acts personally.

JACK CURTIS, THE FELLOW WHO KNOWS

"THE BLACK LAUGH"

THE ASSASSIN

OF

GRIEF AND REMORSE

AL HERMAN

THIS WEEK (DEC. 6)

R-K-O HIPPODROME, NEW YORK

Assisted by BOBBY BURNS

THANKS TO

HARRY KALCHEIM
SAM TISHMAN
ARTHUR WILLI
JOHNNY HYDE
WARNER BROS.
FANCHON AND MARCO
AND PUBLIX

FOR WHAT THEY OFFER IN THE FUTURE AND ALSO

ZIEGFELD—CARROLL—HAMMERSTEIN

Marcus Loew BOOKING AGENCY

General Executive Offices

LOEW BUILDING ANNEX

160 WEST 46TH ST.

BRYANT 7800 NEW YORK CITY

J. H. LUBIN

GENERAL MANAGER

MARVIN H. SCHENCK

BOOKING MANAGER

Useful Holiday Gifts

20% DISCOUNT TO THE PROFESSION

From Now Until Jan. 1, 1931

ALL HOLIDAY GOODS

GOLD MOUNTED WALLETS FITTED CASES
TRAVELING SETS DRESSER SETS
GLADSTONES HANDBAGS and PURSES
KIT BAGS SILK UMBRELLAS

AN ESPECIALLY ATTRACTIVE AND LASTING XMAS GIFT

STRICTLY UNION MADE

H&M Theatrical Trunks

SAMUEL NATHANS, Inc.

568 Seventh Avenue, between 40th and 41st Streets, New York City

SOLE AGENTS FOR H & M TRUNKS IN THE EAST

Phones: Longacre 6197—Pennsylvania 9064

GILBERT BROS.

R-K-O Palace, New York, This Week

N. Y. "EVENING POST," Dec. 8, 1930:

". . . while the Gilbert Bros. are better received with their acrobatic bit than any opening number has been in several months."

N. Y. "TELEGRAM," Dec. 8, 1930:

"And the Gilbert Brothers stop the show in the opening spot with "Athletics Extraordinary."

Direction

LEWIS MOSLEY

LEE STEWART OFFICE

Continuous Show, 3-a-Day and 5 Acts At 81st St., N. Y., to Lowered Scale

After a long-delayed change in policy in every way except the pictures, the R-K-O 81st Street, New York, finally dove in Saturday (6). It started with a continuous performance, three performances daily for five acts, and four shows Sundays, with admission reduced from $1 top at night to 50-60, and to 25-35 in the daytime.

Previously the acts at the 81st St. had appeared twice daily, with pictures added to the show. That, with the dollar top in a neighborhood holding opposition at lower prices, kept the 81st Street from escaping from a weekly red. Now it is said the R-K-O house is hooked up at around $8,000 overhead and is expected to show a weekly profit instead.

Under Price Opposish

Principal opposition to the 81st is Loew's 83d Street, two blocks away along Broadway, and with Loew's doing a banner business. Other opposish house is Warners' Beacon, at Broadway and 74th street, the latter mainly through an unusually fine theatre and also with a lower price of admission.

The $1 top, clung to for years at the large capacity 81st, from Keith's to R-K-O, was believed reasonable for the high-class neighborhood it is located in. Despite that, Loew's, with a more popular top, continued doing the most business.

The R-K-O Flushing house recently was placed on the same policy basis and increased its gross under Ed Lenihan around $2,000 to $3,000 weekly. Keith's, Flushing, is gaited abnormally high on the cost end through the tall rental its extravagant building starts off with.

A couple of other R-K-O New York vaudfilms theatres, particularly the Hamilton, is also in line with a changed policy.

HOUSE AS PALACE M. C.

Billy House goes in the R-K-O Palace, New York, as m. c. for the two weeks of Jan. 10-17.

$4,500 BUDGET FOR PALACE BILL, CHI.

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Henceforth vaude bills at the Palace will be held to a budget of approximately $4,500 weekly. Bills have frequently ran as high as $8,000, at which figure it's practically impossible for the house to break.

With the Palace exceptionally high geared on overhead and working against bad location house is still on the R-K-O headache list. At around $20,000 the house is said to be merely keeping out of debt.

New policy presumably eliminates from future booking such headliners as the Four Marx Brothers, Moran and Mack and other big figured salaries.

No 'Love Thieves' Pay-Off With Co. in Montreal

"Love Thieves" failed to pay off on its opening week in Montreal last week, with the company's Equity deputy calling upon Equity to forward salaries from the bond money posted at Equity.

Michael Kallesser, producer, got in touch with Equity Monday (8) and promised to settle in full by today (10). Equity granted the concession with provision that unless Kallesser paid off half of the two weeks' bond, money would be forwarded to liquidate last week's salary claims of the cast.

Otto Allison and Three Allison Girls, who recently completed a route for Publix, sailed Dec. 6 on the "Stuttgart" for Berlin where they open at the Wintergarten in January.

Playing Checkers

Checker board circuit made another move with A. & B. Dow office regaining the Palace, East Rutherford, N. J. Flo Rheingold had been booking it following a previous hop to the Dow book.

On the checker board layout none of the houses stay put.

"NO MEDDLING" WITH ACTS BY FOX MGRS.

House managers and acts on Fox time have been warned by Harry Arthur, general manager, that no meddling with presentations or routines will be countenanced.

Order was issued following investigation by Arthur and F. & M. officials that showed certain managers taking on their own shoulders to change routines and actors trying out new stuff when not called for, unbeknown to the manager or booking office. This investigation followed reports to F. & M. headquarters that showed certain units not doing as well as expected in spots.

Under the new order the responsibility of a presentation or vaude bill and routine is laid squarely on the house manager. He is to be provided with a mimeographed instruction of the nature and contents of the presentations and acts and how they must be routined, including dialog used. That form will be the final authority to a manager or act. These copies, which are really copies of the acts as presented word for word including stage directions will be shipped house managers before the presentation or act hits the house.

Deviations may be recommended before the show hits the house this way and passed on by the booking execs, "Doc" Howe and Phil Bloom, or Harry Singer, eastern production manager.

Stage Shows Boost Publix Grosses 25% on Coast and Still Building

BIG PCTS. SPIKE FOX UNIT IDEA TILL JAN. 1

Phil Bloom, Fox vaude booker, after working for several weeks lining up his houses for four-act unit shows, has had to discontinue the plan until after Jan. 1. The reason was the booking of big pictures which necessitated cutting the vaude to three and two acts, with the unit shows impossible to place under those conditions.

Houses have reverted back to spot bookings, which, according to Bloom, are not as satisfactory as the unit ideas. Pictures after the first of the year will be co-ordinated with the stage shows to permit return to the four-act units.

Birmingham Vaude Report Unknown in New York

Birmingham, Dec. 9.

Reported here that when the legit shows stop coming into the Erlanger that it will play nine acts of vaude in January, with Stan Stanley announced as m. c. At $1 top.

"Strictly Dishonorable" (road) booked here week Dec. 15, with "Flying High" (George White's road co.) due Christmas week. After that the proposed vaude invasion is anticipated.

In the Erlanger offices, New York, no one seems to know a thing about the proposed vaude advent. The road shows named are listed, but beyond that the policy seems more a matter of conjecture than anything else.

Just where the nine acts of vaude would come from is also unknown, and just where it would be assembled is also another unsolved problem.

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

After a month of stage shows on the regular Publix route from the east, Publix is locally convinced that entertainment in the flesh, if out of the smalltime vaude classification, is a paying policy.

Ed Smith, division chief for Publix here, estimates that the increase of patronage with units at the Paramount here runs easily to 25%, and indications are the house is building every week through attracting new fan cases to the theatre.

Previous Fadeout

Paramount here and in San Francisco, Portland and Seattle played stage shows three years ago on regular coast to coast Publix route, but at that time Fox-West Coast was operating the houses and feeling in some inner quarters then was that F-WC had not pushed Publix's houses as expected when operating deal was made.

Result was that shows went out and houses turned to straight picture policies, taking it on chin further. That in turn made it tougher to re-educate patronage to Publix entertainment out this way.

Smith is sold on Jack Partington and is anxious to retain the Publix eastern stager for strengthening of units on arrival from east. What Smith wants for L. A. and S. F. is unit shows that are stronger than when they play New York and other de luxe spots on route, this through augmentation, re-routing if necessary, and lengthening.

Building up flesh angle, Smith also is working out various other plans, including orchestra presentations with musical talent.

Reward With Catch to It

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 9.

Swan, downtown repeat house, offered $50 reward Sunday for the correct number of laughs furnished by "Top Speed," "Blotto" and "The Great Gob." One answer to "The Sap From Syracuse."

YOU Have Broken the One Day Record (Thanksgiving), Also the Standing House Record for the Week, Established 18 Years Ago.

F. H. WADGE, Manager
Proctor's, Newark, N. J.

NICK LUCAS

THIS WEEK (DEC. 6)

R-K-O PALACE, NEW YORK

New Acts

JACK SIDNEY and Co. (7)
Dances, Songs
22 Mins.; Full (Special)
Jefferson

Two years ago Sidney was around with a nine-piece orchestra. Orch is out now, with Sidney assisted by four male hoofers and three femme specialty dancers in a big-time flash.

Act is framed under a big drop, with Sidney as a ringmaster. Four boys open the turn with dancing and drift into solo eccentrics. The three girls are clever dancers in their individual styles. A brunette shows up as classy toe dancer, from which position she rolls out a tap dance. A slim blonde exhibited remarkable spins and pirouettes, whirling at a mile-a-minute gait. Another blonde, Addie Seamon, did a contortion dance that would make a pretzel bend its head in shame. She is announced as 16 years old.

Sidney is the cog knitting the works together. He introduces, gags and takes the solo spot for one song only, "Song of the Fool," into which he weaves a sob recitation.

Fred BERNARD and Co. (12)
Bands, Songs, Dances
19 Mins.; Full
Jefferson

Now carrying an eight-piece band, Freddy Bernard formerly was teamed with Sid Garry and later did a single. Of late he hasn't been seen locally. According to his announcement of a song which "ce brought back with us from England," may have been playing abroad.

Bernard has a good act here, but he isn't treating it properly. He's giving too much time to two girls, the Steele Sisters, who do three dance specialties, each resembling the other and none any too strong. Band is oke and could be given a little more to do.

Bernard is the best and largest portion of the act. His voice is a strong, clear tenor that carries. He puts plenty of vigor into his song deliveries, still including imitations of Eddie Leonard, Eddie Cantor and Al Jolson.

Two boys, Miller and Marks, lend strong support with dance specialties. Both are capable tap and eccentric hoofers.

LANE, MORGAN and CHICCO (4)
Dancers, Harpists (Flash)
15 Mins.; Full (Special)
81st St.

Around a year or so as Lane, Osborne and Chicco, but recently changed for a new middle name and girl. After a year there's nothing much necessary in the way of changes for a flash act, or to suggest, for to last a year a flash must be above average. The producers as a whole have set their own average and standard. Sometimes it almost appears they first thought of making it easy for themselves. This better-than-average dance flash with harp solos occasionally improve through changes, even if a year-old veteran in its class, the most important of which would be stepping on the gas. It takes quite a while to get to the punch and finish, a mechanical soldier dance with bends, kicks and contortionisms by Lester Lane and the girl. The dance is a holdover of Lane's from other acts.

Girl's best is a backward walkover into a split. She does that in the double number while dressed unbecomingly. Her song before a solo dance is just a song by a dancer and a handicap for the girl and the turn. Lane does his high kicks alone. Harpist, probably Chicco, has a spot between terp items for interesting jazz playing. Fourth member, girl, doubles at the harp from the piano to accompany Chicco, also a doubler.

Severe gold eye could stand some coloring in front for relief. Bige.

SEVEN UYENO JAPS
Acrobatics
6 Mins.; Three
State

Seven Japs, entire contingent about evenly proportioned in size, with their skill divided in ground acrobatics, pyramid work and risley.

Noticeably flashy, some nifty feats in the short time they were on; an apparent effort on the part of the seven to conceive some tricks that have not been used to a frazzle before.

All dressed in white with blue collars and belts in their favor. One of the best acts of its type in vaude. Mark.

"HAPPY" WONDER DOG (2)
Canine
10 Mins.; One and Full
Jefferson

An opener—and not too good. After the billing proves below the intellectual prowess of other canines in vaude.

Man and woman support with juggling and balancing. Latter, on form and appearance, means a lot to the act.

WILLIAM O'NEAL
Songs
10 Mins.; One
State

William O'Neal, Irish tenor, from the musical stage, appeared pretty stiff and inanimate for vaude; depending entirely on the pipes which came out best when he stepped into "Play, Gypsy, Play" from "Countess Maritza."

His opening number was just one of those things, perhaps a pipe exerciser as few words could be distinguished from the mezzanine section. Voice sounded musically melodious after its warmth had permitted the flexibility of the range to get working as in his third number he stopped there.

O'Neal is six feet or over; has plenty of power and apparently has studied. He seemed glued to one spot and stood there until the finish. Mark.

GYM-JAM GIRLS (6)
Acrobatic, Dances
7 Mins.; Full (Special)
Jefferson

Six girls in Oriental costumes working before a desert drop. All take a hand in acrobatic and dance specialties, working in threes, pairs and solos.

Dancing is of the acrobatic and contortion variety, all in fast style. A little dark-haired girl shines with swift body twists and spins.

Makes an oke opener or closer.

COOK SISTERS
Songs, Instruments
13 Mins.; One
Jefferson

With more playing this sister team should have no trouble making the grade. That experience seems a necessity since the girls aren't yet sure of themselves.

Have a pleasing routine of songs. One works at the ivories and harmonizes. Latter goes to an accordion and the other to a banjo for fast duo instrumentation.

Smaller and darker of the two has a bad habit of constantly looking at her partner to see if she's with or against. Other girl should see that she's ready for the stage before she comes on.

DAVE VINE
Monologue
17 Mins.; One
58th St.

In 1919 Vine was working with a girl under the billing of Vine and Temple. Since then he's been out of the files. As a single Vine is using the same style of delivery as when teamed. Vine's turn needs plenty fixing before he will rate high as a single.

Vine's familiar attitude toward the audience is retained and doesn't hurt the act any, but would mean more if Vine had some solid material. His start is slow and he doesn't get chuckles until mid-way when he goes into a series of hebe gags, some of which are funny and an equal amount of which are not.

His comeding along other lines, such as pretending to sing and practicing the song behind a curtain, is overdrawn. Which is primarily the fault with a lot of the material. He lingers too long.

Vine just has strong potentialities.

NEW ACTS

Jack Conway and Co. in "Television."

Elaine Sisters and Ormand (3).

White and Peters (2).

Jack Conway and Co.
"Television" (3).

Martin, D'Orsay and Kennedy.

Maxine Dancers (6), flash.

George Jinks and Co., 3-act.

Novelty Misses (5).

Eddie Carr and Co. (3).

Dalton Bros. (2).

Kerr and Grainger, 2-act.

Ben Blue and Co. (2).

Will Oakland (6).

"Pansy," horse, with two men and a woman.

Elizabeth Brice and Billy Griffin, comedy skit.

Pulp Paper Writers

Drop in story sales has hit the literary agents hard. At least one is taking in general typing work to meet his steno's salary every week, and another keeps going with odd part-time work, including free-lance advertising copy writing, his former trade.

Agents handling name authors can dispose of their products as readily as ever, but it's the one with the pulp paper scribblers who has found his market curtailed. Pulps generally using less stories per issue, and not buying more than an issue or two ahead.

81ST ST.

Latest of the R-K-O vaudfilmers to go grind with hopes. This occurs after 17 years of reserved seats in a neighborhood that formerly took first rank among all other New York neighbs for theatre and other tastes.

One result of the change was a squawk from about 10 akays accustomed to sitting where their seats said they should at the 81st for many years. Another and more important result was a distinct increase over recent average in both number of attendees at the cheaper scale and more gross in the first three days of the new policy, 6th to 8th.

Going into the switch the 81st might have received more of a push from the show end rather than a so-so, five-act stage bill and a picture that's problematical anywhere. "To'able David" and the Cromwell boy occupied all the marquee lights, whereas Ann Codee should have had a share. It was Miss Codee who, with Frank Orth, amounted to 75% of the vaude amusement as one turn out of five. After a heavy week end the picture didn't entice more than two-thirds on either floor Monday night.

Better than the 81st's average for some time, but two-thirds isn't much at the only vaude-playing theatre on Broadway between 47th and 145th streets.

Pop scale and grind send the 81st into more direct competition with the nearby straight film places, especially Loew's 83d St., and Warners' Beacon at 74th street, besides the 77th Street indie. Beacon has added a stage band without acts but remains a picture theatre. Band is there for safety's sake when the films are bad, which can happen often anywhere.

Five acts now instead of four at the 81st under three-a-day, split, with the office intending to spend around $4,000 on the week for bills, or $500 or so over the four-act budget.

Starting bill staggered under a laughless burden up to the final act Monday evening. LaMarrs and Boice (New Acts), two-girl team, tried early, No. 2, but got nowhere. Jeanne Richardson used his singing to land. A flash act came then and by the time Codee and Orth arrived the crowd seemed wide open for anything resembling a giggle. It was merely a matter of walking around the bases for this ace comedy team.

There is no speedier bill opener anywhere than Gaynor and Byron, roller skaters. On a raised platform, announced as eight feet square, they perform their hazardous skating stunts under a wisely chosen lighting effect. They stop but once, to announce the closing trick, worth the description and the extra time, a fast spin during which a one-foot hold with the foot tucked around the other fellow's neck.

After a brief screen trailer introduction Richardson was given recognition by hand. The former boy soprano from Philly has lost the pipes he possessed before going Hollywood, but showed he forgot considerable about stage talking while under the kleigs. His opening verbal bit about it feeling so good to play before people after singing into nothing but ice cold microphones has been the stock spiel of every film player ex-player "visiting" in vaude for years. That rolled off their knives as did the balance of his talk between the songs, each spiel making it tougher for the next vocal number.

"St. Louis Blues" was well done and enough to excuse Frankie had he stretched it to 12 minutes, but he cut off at 10 and ducked a recall. Some talk that would build up the songs instead of tearing them down before they're sung would make Richardson a sweet single for vaude with his film experience and rep therefrom a sure help.

Lane, Morgan and Chicco, four people, were the next-to-closing flash. Codee and Orth are others returned from the talkers, but not mentioned. They turned out some notable shorts and now, home again, they, too, show what trouping at the large end of a megaphone may sometimes do. Orth's pop straight to Miss Codee's Frenchy now seems too straight. And strange that, despite the advantage of intervening film training, his mugging isn't as effective as it used to be. The finish is also among things refined. Miss Codee used to tear her short husband apart at the walk-off. Now they exit straight, with Orth accompanying in German his partner's French lyric. It's "cute." But not a sock blow-off. The former knockabout would fit better in its place and probably would insure enough for a return for the singing of the language song.

They come back anyway to add a third person, top voiced big boy doing gag pansy and singing high. Richardson's earlier effort interfered with this fellow's pitch and his singing suffered accordingly. Under such conditions his stooge work was most important, many laughs resulting.

Scale for the grind policy is topped by 75c Saturday and Sunday nights. Week night top, 60c; week day mat, 35c down and 25c up; Saturday mat, 40c and Sunday mat 50c, both all over. Bige.

PALACE

(St. Vaude)

Entertainment in high this week at the Palace, with Ken Murray always in and all over the show. Sunday night the bill of eight acts closed before 11, including the ad libbing extra by Murray and a little by Benny Rubin. Neither m. c. called upon anyone in the audience to go on the stage nor stand for a bend; there was no need of extra acts, while, as Murray stated, when shutting off the night, there were plenty of benefits around that evening.

Headliner is Helen Kane, back to the Palace this week at $5,250 after her previous appearance in the same house a little over a year ago at $2,500. For what Murray did for Miss Kane Sunday night he was entitled to more than a kiss. Besides the one good shirt she ruined on him, and Ken was almost strangled with his necktie, Kane, Murray and Rubin were nothing less than a panic.

Murray and Rubin did a snappy blackout after intermission, to stall for the overcapacity house to be come still. It had a nance touch, recalling Lou Holtz's term at the Palace, and Rubin also recalled Holtz with more of the Yid jargon. When the R-K-O booking office looked for m. c.'s to follow Holtz, some of the single men turns approached said they didn't know Yiddish, which seemed so necessary at the Palace. Murray did as well as anyone could have done without the Yid thing, however, while the Three Swifts, kidding in German, got more than any of the Yid expressions have received anywhere except at Loew's Delancey Street.

The show-stopper and with second billing (Murray at bottom) was Nick Lucas, who did 16 minutes, and fine. Murray was in his act for laughs, mooching Nick to do his guitar instrumental for the finish. Previously Lucas had done three songs (new pops), and followed with two requests, properly placed, then the guitar, and off.

Miss Kane really closed the show, but Murray had Helen Charleston and his lanky stooge do a couple of minutes to wind up. Otherwise Murray strung himself through the running as his own act. It was enough. He's a robust m. c. and can grab a laugh at any second without apparently thinking. His bit of crossfire with Senorita Alverida held a couple of fast ones put over by the Spanish girl, who formerly had a dog act. She is on this bill for her bit with Murray only, and her "Business tonight" line is pretty warm. A couple of others just as spicy, with Miss Kane's snapper line in "Dangerous Nan McGrew" a chance taker, even for the Palace.

Only sketch was Lulu McConnell's "A Quiet Game," which Miss McConnell has been playing between shows for a couple of years. It's a fast talking skit, with Miss McConnell doing nearly all of the spieling while waiting to start a bridge game, including a souse moment. As Miss McConnell made a talking show of this skit and it turned out badly, she should get another vaude act, even if her reappearances are six months apart. This is an example of a short killing its parent act.

The Swifts deliver a pleasing and speedy club-juggling turn, with tricks of their own and some mild comedy well worked. Their club stuff is gotten into and over in a new way, making it a novelty turn.

Helen Brown is once more leading a troupe of Albertina Rasch toe-steppers. Miss Brown lately returned from London, in a musical comedy over there, and the girl looks qualified for the same thing on this side, her home. The Rasch troupe works well as all of Miss Rasch's girl acts do. It is dressed brightly, in good taste, but the act appeared to run a bit lengthy. Over okay.

Helen Kane is a sort of freak in the show business. A leap from a $100-a-week minor role in a musical to $5,500 on the Publix time, all through a baby voice, always using a trick catch in it, which pleases many evidently. Only the Palace management can tell if she is drawing into that $2 house, but she has drawn without question in the presentation picture palace, or she wouldn't be paid that 55. To separate her at the Palace from Murray is impossible, or to attempt to visualize how she would stand up alone there. Her style and delivery are now stereotyped with her, becoming monotonous, with the only variations in the lyrics or the catch. Joe Reden (or Keden, also billed) is Miss Kane's pianist.

Gilbert Bros. opened the show in a neat hat act.

Benny Rubin is doing a single act, other than his part in nation with Murray on the m. c. ing end. Rubin's own turn is sure-fire always, even if for some reason Benny will not use that great laugh of his own.

Palace will do its customary $28,000 or so this week, because there's strong entertainment to be found there. Sime.

PALACE, CHICAGO

Chicago, Dec. 8.

Better than good is the vaudeville bill current at the Palace. It has the elements of varied divertissement plus swiftness. "Noise, noise, noise," sings Charley Foy, "is the way to get ahead," meaning in vaude, and he proves at least that it's a very reliable method of bringing a good bill to a forceful conclusion.

Foy carries no less than eight assistants who unite in dealing sledge hammer blows to peace and quiet. It's the type of hokum that requires a full house and is apt to seem pretty hollow on a mid-week supper show. Yet of its type it is exceptionally clever and well-nigh perfect in the important matter of timing. Foy wisely avoids any milking of individual bits and to a very considerable degree the whole roitous hodge-podge partakes of the nature of spontaneity.

Charley Foy is certainly not the least valuable member of the late Eddie's brood. Particularly is the gifted with a knack for ingratiation. He wears well with his audience, doesn't need to force himself or his material, and with this independent venture he establishes himself as a showman.

In the order of running the bill read: The Dakotas, Scott Sanders, Tom Patricola and Pearl Twins, Kuznetzoff, Nicolina Trio and Foy. Each turn was solidly there and the combination merged naturally into an effective unit.

With whip, lariat and guitar the Dakotas presented a colorful and arresting assortment of cowpunchers' tricks, flavored by some songs and dancing from the trim blonde. This turn is safe anywhere. Only suggestion is that "Dangerous Nan McGrew" is much too old and should be replaced by the girl with something of more recent vintage.

Sanders, canny Scotch comedian, insinuated himself quickly into the popular esteem. His chatter is bright to start with and when filtered through his poised and cute delivery is even more lustrous.

Tom Patricola probably never had a better turn than he is presently offering and it's no reflection to state he seldom has done better in terms of audience gratification than at Saturday's matinee. A liberal helping of recognition belongs to the elegantly formed, fetchingly hobbed and impish Pearl Twins. These girls have other claims to theatrical endorsement than the mere fact of looking alike. Patricola and company wowed 'em.

Fortunately the Palace has extensive marquee space so there was room for the full billing on Kuznetzoff Nicolina Trio. This was the class entry of the bill. And with no strain whatever they found the bell and rang in a three alarm hit. Kuzentzoff has a suberb bass voice while Mme. Nicolina is a most attractive soprano. Both are of operatic calibre and both possess virile stage personalities. "Old Man River" served to get them off the stage to a broadside.

Columbia's "To'able David" was the screen bait. Biz looked pretty good. Hyde Park High School is scheduled for a mass meeting in Palace pews one night because Joan Peers in the film once attended that school. Her proud father is Frank O. Peers, house manager at the Adelphi here. He's getting more congratulations than a senator-elect. Land.

SYMPHONY, CHICAGO

Chicago, Dec. 8.

Eight weeks ago this house was the worry of the entire midwest Warner circuit, with week-end business so brutal the theatre was dropping as much as $450 on the two days. The house tried vaude on Sunday, and jumped its gross from $500 to more than triple the first figure. Sunday (7) the first show started off to a capacity crowd.

This early afternoon crowd worth noticing, for all other houses in town have found it their greatest difficulty to get the folks to leave their homes early on the week-end holiday. Houses have cut their prices from 85c to 50c and finally to 40c in an attempt to entice people into the shows for Sunday mats. This house had 'em in 30 minutes before even the picture flashed. According to the manager, ushers, booker, p. a. and everybody, the new era is due solely to the return of vaude.

If it is the aim of the industry at present to bring the kids back to the theatre, the industry should have been at the Symphony Sunday afternoon to ask the kids what brought 'em in, as they were asked. The answers were unanimously that the inducement was the stage show. There are four competing houses in the neighborhood, with picture bargain such a double features, gifts, serials, comedies, etc., and yet the kids came here.

And with the kids were their mothers, fathers, aunts, uncles, or somebody else. Afternoon was an old one less in what goes in a neighborhood far from the center of town. The theatre is situated off by itself, with no surrounding homes.

(Continued on page 46)

PARAMOUNT, N. Y.

New York, Dec. 5.

Stage unit, "What a Night," is an in-an-outer but with enough sock in two specialties to satisfy. Screen feature, Par's "Follow the Leader," and a pit interlude directed by Leo Reisman, in his third week, are the largest items of the current entertainment and through them the show is balanced.

Les Ghezzis, standard acrobatic team, and a quartet of tap dancing girls were the stage unit's result procurers. That the girls were unbilled indicates last minute addition to the show. If added starters, they didn't give the unit everything it needed, but enough to establish themselves as an extraordinary new foursome. That they are such a departure from routine femme dancing is their edge right now. They do uniform and solo rhythm work, near enough to the masculine style and unusual for girls. The audience saw it that way from its applause.

The hand over hand balance stunt by the Ghezzis still stops the show despite that the underman is putting it on more than ever now and possibly a bit too much. On the third attempt he takes more than enough exertion in contrast to the comparative ease with which the previous lift is accomplished. On the recall they stop off the mat for a black bottom "dance" on their hands, a beautifully executed novelty stunt that stopped the show double.

Hurst and Vogt, as standard as comedy acts come in vaude, worked throughout most of this unit and didn't do at all well or up to average for them. Spreading out of their talk made for brief insertions far too abrupt and ineffective and by the time they reached the bit in which one talks while the other, reaching under his armpits, performs the gestures, more ground was lost than could be regained. Besides which that gesture bit has been done around a lot lately by others, probably imitators but mimickers nevertheless. If Hurst and Vogt were the first to think of that one they'd be better off if becoming the first again to think of something else.

May Joyce's singing was enjoyed sufficiently to rate an encore after two numbers and the return was made in front of the dandy girls' toe number. It was their best. The ballet's cut routine needed more than the expert dressing to overcome a lack of originality.

Unit's alley set with topsy-turvy houses is striking enough to plant the intended idea. With the idea itself not so heavy. Thinking 'em over after five years of trying everything a task.

Frank Jenks, Paramount's run m. c., worked with the acts and kept things moving as well as he could with little to do. Theatre's plan for Broadway m. c.'s holds them down to minimum as far as action is concerned. Elsewhere, besides m. c.ing, Jenks contributed specialties. And it's Frank here instead of Frankie.

A change dropped Reisman from the stage to the rising pit this week. House musicians combined with Reisman's own men were seated in stage band formation, all facing the audience instead of the customary pit style of sitting sidewise and looking toward the center at the conductor. Last of three numbers, "Body and Soul" from "Three's a Crowd" (credited), included a piano solo by the song's composer, Johnny Green, and a chorus and accompaniment by a soprana not billed. This concluded about as sweet a symphonic jazz presentment that the Par crowd has listened to since Whiteman's run. Reisman's preference for heavy fiddle work makes for most of the sugar, and there is nothing so flattering to softly played jazz as deep string background.

Jesse Crawford went classical with selections from Tschaikowsky and they nobbled it. Bige.

BEACON, N. Y.

New York, Dec. 6.

Warners have Will Osborne and his Radio orchestra here for a few weeks.

Beacon always has been acknowledged to be in a spot where competition is tough. Pictures have to be just so.

While the house itself is attractive, and richer and newer than nearby box offices, there's a coldness evident to the fan as soon as he steps up to the window. The personnel is along the usual pit-lobby lines in manner, overdoing the scene, incidentally.

The screen seems to be something always out of gear in the Beacon. If the recording isn't a little off than the curtain sticks and the projection booth lets half of the newsreel go on just the same. The last happened Saturday afternoon. The management let the audience work itself into an uproar before someone got the curtain machinery back to shape.

Osborne did a surprise at the matinee. He opened up. Some of his lower notes in "Look Down the Lonesome Road" and exhibited a baritone quality better than his crooning. The folks noted the difference, also, and attested to that fact in their reaction.

The expressions on the faces of some of the Osborne boys in the orchestra were as though they took the job at the Beacon, playing to many empty seats, as a gag. Plus this a couple of flippers in the front row went through all kinds of gyrations to get the bass sax player to relax. Their efforts were so conspicuous that folks up in the loges commented and there was subdued tittering.

Shorts included: "Looney Tunes," Xtraphones cartoon also a Vitaphone comedy short "The Thirteenth Prisoner." Newsreel used, Universal. Feature, Tiffany's "Extravagance." An episode in Tiff's "Voice of Hollywood," also. Wally.

ORIENTAL, CHICAGO

Chicago, Dec. 5.

To take the curse off the routine offerings at this always dull-ful Loop house "Billy the Kid," the Metro Realife wide-screen offering, has been run in this week as the feature picture. Few in this really responsive audience gave any indication the event was other than the usual stock picture ballyed in a somewhat different manner. As a matter of record they responded more to the community sing, with the organ, than to anything else on the bill. When the organist flashed up an Irish tune it was easy to guess what sort of patronage this house gets on the first new show each week.

Nevertheless a short line stood in the lobby for the second show.

Paul Oscard has staged a "Chri O'Luck" idea which revolves around Benny Meroff, his orchestra, three acts and a Lamber ballet of 12 girls. The luck idea has dipped into the carnival field for its background and can be said to be tastily clowned and with a pleasing background. Routine of the femmes is not quite up to the standard this house has set. Nevertheless pleased.

Bruno Weise Trio, spotted in number one consists of three men with a pole balancing act, a bit of risley work and some music supplied by the trio. It's a skillful blend of in-time house act and went over with the aid of the comedy of one of the members.

Carl Emmy's pets, a dozen or so small dogs gave Oscard an opportunity for a ballet number costumed as poodles. It added class to Emmy's turn which nastily consisted of jumping and comedy. The canines are well trained, which the trainer's ad lib were good for an abundance of laughs.

Joyner and Foster, closing were the weak spot. Two lads in blackface which except for a few eccentric steps and a short line of colored comedy gags, all old, failed. The boys worked hard.

Flash ending the Oriental always hangs on the tail end of its presentations did not hold them this week.

FOX, SEATTLE

("Big Trail" Prolog)

Seattle, Dec. 2.

A series of atmospheric prologs all done in the pit with a band, is now under way at the Fox, with the Owen Sweeten band doing the stuff.

This week "The Big Trail" is on screen (standard width), and the band boys are in pioneer atmosphere, with setting reminding of the days of '49 and '65. Indian costumes on all boys, as band comes up on elevated pit, giving Indian yells and then chant.

Sweeten in bright red buckskin shirt, the rest in green shirts. Some prairie schooners in miniature, are about pit.

In center is teepee in slight elevation, and there stands Paul Turmare, soloist, who looks and acts with all the dignity of a big chief Injun and sings some doleful Indian chants. It's all very colorful.

Sweeten in short talk tells what the big idea is and that "Beyond Blue Horizon" comes next. It does and well done. Tuttsare again soloist. Then "Comes-See" stuff along at lazy speed, to give way to "A Friend of a Friend, etc." This is the bit of the prolog and gets away from the atmosphere, but in the setting goes for a goal anyhow, and the modern touch fits in. Each band member sings a bit, in solo, and then words in chorus are passed from one to the others, without a break in the routine. By way of variety they all briefly sing together.

To the beat of tom toms a la Indian style the pit descends and the screen takes on the "Big Trail."

Fox News includes shots of U. S. W. C. T. U. Thanksgiving gathering.

Sweeten and band have been working nicely and have big following. The boys turn all to something besides handling the instruments and the ideas worked up click right along. This band is a real feature and factor in the draw at the house and is getting good along all lines. Tyler.

CAPITOL, N. Y.

New York, Dec. 6.

Jules Bledsoe is the billing feature for a thrown-together medley of bits and specialties appropriately called "Odds and Ends," but a varied and interesting program of stage presentation, sprightly with dancing and lightened with comedy.

Bledsoe in evening clothes walked on with Dave Schooler's formal announcement, all in concert manner, and opened with the Toreador song from "Carmen," a fine number rendered, but not very appropriately in the Capitol surroundings. However, he used "Ole Man River" for the finale, and that redeemed the formality of the operatic number.

Walter "Dare" Wahl, working now with a single partner instead of the former trio, supplied the comedy flavoring with six minutes or so of his matchless burlesque acrobatics, getting Schooler involved in a legitimate encore which lacked the laughs, but did no good to Schooler's dinner coat. Pair top off a laugh session with just a few clean-cut straight hand-to-hand feats, illustrating all over again that nobody has a right to do a travesty unless he can do the same thing straight.

An audience that was far below the customary gathering at the Capitol was remarkably generous with applause for the stage show. Not only did they bring Wahl back for more, but they wouldn't let Ted Lewis after a brief sample of his remarkable eccentric stepping. This tall boy has a fascinating knack of extraordinary dance routining. His extreme height and the fact that he is a natural stepper gives him the foundation upon which he has built intricate contortion tricks delivered in the speediest tempo.

Roxyette Hale girls have three numbers, the finale being the best, a fan dance ensemble with the line manipulating ostrich fans a brilliant yellow on one side and jet black on the other with which some startling drill effects are achieved. Another number of comedy design had the girls dressed as prop dogs, worked by a clown. Prop animals are all of the melancholy pup type made familiar by toys and they are laughable in appearance, but the garb is drowsy and leaves the girls no ability for dancing. Opening number is another clown figure, chiefly interesting for its costume of white and red in four large squares in front and yellow and green in back. Hurting with this was stereotype.

Short feature this week in "Reunion Control" (M-G-M, with William Haines) left room for an "Our Gang" comedy, "Love Business," and only so-so, the full Metrotone newsreel with couple of clips local to New York and all else material to Chicago, was another spirited offering. Prop animals are all of the melancholy pup type made familiar by toys and they are laughable in appearance, but the garb is drowsy and leaves the girls no ability for dancing. Opening number is another clown figure, chiefly interesting for its costume of white and red in four large squares in front and yellow and green in back. Hurting with this was stereotype.

Short feature this week in "Reunion Control" (M-G-M, with William Haines) left room for an "Our Gang" comedy, "Love Business," and only so-so, the full Metrotone newsreel with couple of clips local to New York and all else material to Chicago, was another spirited offering. Vocalizing was another spirited medley of Victor Herbert standards, but most of the items away from the high lights of the Herbert repertory that have lately been overdone. Treatment was attractive with a portion handled as a violin solo with harp accompaniment.

Setting for the presentation is a pretty picture, the interior of a Japanese bungalow with the transparent paper windows at the back and the stage band occupying a sort of dais. Rush.

LOEW'S STATE, L. A.

Los Angeles, Dec. 3.

Eddie Peabody, returning to his home grounds for a fortnight, brings nothing especially Venetian to "The Gondoliers" idea, but the banjoist whammed over a healthy click just the same. Literally forced into the picture, clashing in general with the mouf, and not mixing or otherwise dovetailing, Peabody's supplementary contribution with his specialty is none the less effective.

Otherwise there is nothing monotonous about the current show. Gae Foster's "Gondoliers" unit evidences a little more elasticity on the F. & M. budget, and in toto rates well as a stage interlude.

The Romeros, ballroom dancing team with comedy specialties, and Morrow and Mconnell, wop singing-talking with comedy specialties, and Harris and Wallace, acrobatic dancers are the specialists. Each contribs nifftily with the dance specialties grossing the headliner honors on their instrumentations. A young Helen Kane personality stood out notably.

The Romeros are good ballroom dancers with comedy specialties, although their Italian stuff generally is flat. The general Venetian setting is the scene has kerplunked is fair enough in its Venetian effects, with appropriate costuming in ensembles quite a bit there.

Gae Foster has evolved several routines for the girls, one of the others, with the girls in white with full skirts, doing a fan and making for a real flash of general.

Stage bill as a whole is well balanced. Universal's Stranger's Series" of short, which is obvious paraphrase of the Bob Ripley [illegible] is here in [illegible] Technicolor and [illegible] screen effects which make the series a good short contribution. Usual news reels are included.

"War Nurse" seems to have been at to better advantage than heretofore, effecting some of transitions which invited uncomfy laughter in the past.

Everything seems thrown to Peabody for his fortnight's stay, with banners and special ads upon welcoming back a favorite vaude entertainer at the State, Peabody really got going after his first number, "Rhapsody in Blue." It was a slow starter, and should be cleaned a little. Tries, audibly recognized his "St. Louis Blues," popular Peabody Victor recording and forced him into a speech.

Abel.

PARAMOUNT, L. A.

Los Angeles, Dec. 4.

Starting this week the local Publix standby went on a newspaper advertising spree, telling the natives in no small words and space it has a big show to sell. Why this wasn't done a long time ago, at least since the cartoon invite been coming out here, is a question without an answer.

"Garden of Girls" is here this week. All around good entertainment and slightly a Boris Petroff staged the original unit, but it's Jack Partington's credit that the show looks so well out here. Usually when a unit blazes a trail to the Coast all the way from New York it's plenty nicked by the time it gets here. Partington is stationed locally to look after these things, replenishing and augmenting where necessary. This week he added Bert Frival eccentric dancer to the lineup. That numbers fills in a breach and builds up the show to an extent.

Costumes and scenery are other items that look fresh with a local touch evident. The 20 Fred Evans girls are all over the unit, with some attractive if not altogether new routines. Particularly noticeable about them is their even-sized appearance. Petroff on take a bow for that. It's not easy to pick a bunch of ponies that don't look like a winding staircase when they stretch out in line.

Billy Glason heads the specialty list with his usual clowning and cutting of cookoo quips. Vaudevillan has plenty to-way here to do it stuff, including a backdrop with clowns about to do the usual nine thing in this unit is another mystery. He's certainly fitted for the task; besides letting the audience know who's who in the show.

Gertrude Fisher is on early with an acro-contortionist's routine that gets over. Olive Sibley, a stereotyped prima soprano, accompanies the dance specialties. Good prettily in front of Bob, Bob and Bobbie, two men and a dog, with all three going through comedy juggling. For a local touch they use East Abel, house organist, in a piece of business that gets a laugh. Abel is in the middle while the two jugglers throw their dumbbells around him.

Finale is a strong flash, made stronger and applause proof by the stars and stripes musical and stage attunements.

Overtural session, with Oscar Baum, formerly of the Brooklyn Paramount, conducting, is appreciated. Baum knows his house even if he does overdo in gestures a bit. Arrangement of current pop hits is well knitted and favorably executed.

In all it's almost a three-hour show counting the feature, "Only Saps Work" (Par), newsreel and comedy, besides the community singing he put on by Abel at the organ.

Last show opening day (Thurs.) failed to fill the house, with trade through the day about normal. Sparr.

MICHIGAN

Detroit, Dec. 5.

One of the best all around shows the Michigan has had with eastern units is syncopated Steps. Presented Fred Evans, Sanborn and Blesting the Harry Rose and Peggy Taylor songsters to complete. Billie Taylor, adagio dancer, Gypsy Berne and Dave Gould girls and six boys.

The male lamps on the stage is Sanborn. For years this lad will be remembered as one of Ted Healy's stooges, or rather one of those recent Gilda Gray's. Last week he was booked here into the Fox's Detroit unit and held over for two weeks, as the Rialto and Fisher theatres.

Gilda Gray-Lopez Taylor fan some offbeat dancing stuff. Well liked. Gypsy Berne, a newcomer, well liked and pretty. Billie Farmer in male stuff pleased.

Dave Gould as a dance director has given the girls a few new routines. Especially pleasing is the [illegible] Lenard Wermer [illegible] plays [illegible] and [illegible] Wermer [illegible] Wermer [illegible] Wermer

SYMPHONY, CHICAGO

(Continued from page 44)

At the matinee the streets around the theatre were choked with parked cars.

As for the show itself, it ran not like the $250 it cost, but like more important money. Standard material and each act a click. Five acts built in an evenly balanced line-up that could make the grade in anybody's theatre.

Show set itself in quickly, with the performers managing to get over an intimate attitude that sold them sincerely with this house. Special mention goes to Joe Christy, who did the m. c. and who from the jump took pains to get close to the crowd both for himself and for the entire show. Stage presentations in big amphitheatres have made the performers as distant from the audience as the screen itself has done. And it's performers like Christy and houses like Symphony which will bring back the feeling for flesh and vaude.

Layout was 100%. Opening were Bender and Knapp, hand-to-hand workers with some neat balancing and strength stunts. Short, snappy act, and an excellent choice for the spot. In deuce was Chic Thomas, who, besides the new recruit routine, Thomas has been accused often of doing a copy of Johnny Burke's turn, but Thomas has sold himself here by being able to deliver proof of copyright from the bureau of Washington, besides scripts of both his and Burke's act showing that the two turns are not identical. Act is about fool-proof as far as material goes; nearly every line is a laugh. Some of his pansy references were a bit out of place for the kid trade in the afternoon, but not enough to hurt.

Dance Capers looked better than it sounds. "Two good dance acts paired to make a swift, nicely executed turn. Rolfe Sisters warble and do a comedy dance. The two men and girl from the former Hess and Shultz revue are present, the two fellows for two neat hoofing routines and the girl for an excellent acrobatic specialty.

"Joe Christy and his girl friend were surefire next to closing. Christy had the right sort and right amount of clowning, with his partner aiding neatly in the give and take. Closing were the Fox Hobbs Century Serenaders, clever entertaining band. Seven boys who instrumentallze and do three comedy numbers that was pie for this house. Cost of this act must have made the booker, Charlie Hogan, hesitate before penciling them in, but from the entertainment these boys delivered it was a good purchase.

Understood that James Coston, who manages the entire midwest Warner list, is so pleased with the success of vaude at this house on Sundays he will increase the flesh to four days on two split, besides resting the stage show to other weak spots on his Chicago slate, such as the Grove, Stratford, Avalon and Highland. And if the Symphony can make good, so can these other weak sisters.

58TH STREET

Nicely balanced layout of five acts the first half with Jeanette Hackett, next-to-shut, carrying off the major share of applause with a novel dance production. Neighborhood folks in for the first show Saturday at bargain prices reacted in a manner that left no doubt as to their appreciation of the bill. It ran heavily toward comedy.

Miss Hackett's offering stands out on class viewed from any angle, this act giving her a chance to demonstrate her skill as a costume and scenic designer as well as a dancesue. Four men and four girls are in support with the entire production skillfully built around Miss Hackett's terpsichorean specialties, each of which is a story. The songs are specials and fit.

Harris and Van, colored team, closed with their pleasing comedy routine, leading into a piano finish with Paul Harris on for some stair dancing in the Bill Robinson manner. Nonsense dialogue holds plenty of laughs and the hoofing of the younger Harris is better than most of the tap work around these days.

In the deuce Harry Foster Welsh got over with his musical instrument impersonations. Welsh imitates Whiteman's band and closes with his impresh of the Metropolitan opera orchestra, the latter bit registering most effectively. In between Welsh does voice impressions of various instruments.

Way Dalton and Jane Craig have a comedy turn specially suited to the family trade, the woman having a silly giggle bit that clicks, while Dalton sells a breezy line of chatter that packs a fair supply of laughs and sounds like special material. Opening held Don Valerio, wire dancer, with the Diaz Sisters in support. Trio offer difficult hoofing routines on the tight wire individually and together, getting the bill off to a fast start.

On the screen "Tol'able David" (Col.) with biz at the first show Saturday off, not more than half a house downstairs.

STATE

With the new show and picture Saturday the big State did a slow fill-up with the first appearance of the stage show finding only a handful on the second floor. Downstairs was slow, with the screen feature, "Du Barry" (UA). The romances and costume stories as a rule don't pull so well here.

The stage flash was the Anatole Friedland "12 o'Clock Revue," headed by Marty May. Runs mainly to dancing by the girls with Lucille Hayes the only principal singing, but depending upon an animated stepping solo to make her a standout. As to May, he gets in his inning ahead of the Friedland revue as a single. A good build-up for his stepping into the Friedland act as m. c.

May can be heard in such a big house as the State and works along with the girls in paving their introductions. There are two other men in the act, one a stooge used for a few laughs. The act closed the State show and seemed sufficient through the splendid work of the femmes as hoofing specialists.

State show, which does four on Saturdays, was pretty much speeded up with apparently lopped off sections. This also shortened the Friedland act, especially where any of the girls could have taken an encore.

Vaude got a corking start with the Seven Uyeno Japs (New Acts), flashy, circusy and away from the usual run of Japanese "dumb" turns. Then followed William O'Neal (New Acts), a pleasing voice heard in songs which O'Neal had sung many times before.

Wally Sharples and Co. gave the show its first comedy swish, much needed as there wasn't an overdose to follow in the May single and the May-Friedland turn.

Sharples got far better returns in this big house for his blackouts, the first part with the disappearing pants and domestic travesty between husband and wife and lovers being better received than the closing period.

On the screen, besides the feature, Hearst Metrophone News.

Mark.

TIVOLI, CHICAGO

Chicago, Dec. 6.

This house is the only one on the Publix-B. & K. circuit that responds to special events in a wholehearted and big money way. If the Publix-B. & K. press department can just let the southside natives know they are having an unusual and different party and show at the Tivoli the auditors work over-time counting the dough.

This week Frankie Masters is having a party celebrating his 5,000th appearance as m. c. at this house. That figures down to 1,196 appearances a year, which can be classed as work. Yet Masters round time last year to get hitched under his right name, Frank Masterman. He's a busy lad.

Publix-B. & K. like him because he has kept his head throughout his 5,000 appearances. He pleases the younger flap femmes, who all have a crush on him, yet at the same time the women scouting around 35, 40 and up love him, in a platonic way, also.

Because he is so popular his bosses threw the second party for him. He had one once after he had jumped up a 2,000 record.

Frankie's first appearance this week is leading H. Leopold Spitalny's Chicago theatre orchestra which has moved to the Tivoli for the 5,000th birthday party. Frankie tells the audience the orchestra and the soloist, were brought from uptown for the event.

As a matter of fact, with the Chicago film "Just Imagine" running an hour and 38 minutes, there wasn't any place for Mr. Spitalny's boys, so the happy birthday party and the added attractions at the Tivoli. The audience takes Frankie's word for the big orchestra and reward their hands welcoming the soloists.

"Down on the Farm" is the offering around Masters this week, with Gregory and Ramon doing their musical inner tube stunt as the opening turn. Boys pleased.

Williams and Delaney next showing what a long mah and a short feminine do to squeeze laughs out of an audience by real artistry without resorting to doubtful methods.

Closing the O'Connor family, who make their footwork pay in a big way. They brought down the eager house with their clogging only to make 'em yell later when they ran on for their old number.

Through all this Frankie leads his orchestra, giving way at all times to the acts and carrying some of the weight of the weak ones on his shoulders.

Originally this boy, who has probably hung up an m. c. record for one house, played tennis with Benny Kruger's orchestra. When he was given the lead of the orchestra, while Benny was away, he made good. He's been an m. c. ever since.

Another reason the office likes him is that he is able to meet situations cleverly. He is always around to smooth out the rough spots of shows and make things more enjoyable for the patrons.

Incidentally Masters is shooting at a 10,000th performance mark now. He claims he can make it as his health holds out and Publix-B. & K. doesn't merge with Fox.

86TH STREET

"Tol'able David" (Columbia) screen feature, and nothing on the stage in the way of "names," yet plenty of diversity and fun contributed by the five acts to a Sunday-night sell-out.

Evelyn Dean and Co. opened with a nifty dance flash quite above the ordinary and scored accordingly. Miss Dean, attractive blond dancer, has surrounded herself with a sextet of singing and dancing boys, all good supporters and backgrounding for Miss Dean's acrobatic and waltz solos. The boys have singing voices and are good hoofers, with the combo getting across nicely.

Dorle Robins followed and pleased with a song cycle. Accompanied by a male pianist, Miss Robbins contributed five numbers, all pops, faring better with blues and numbers of the lighter variety than the ballads.

Bob Hope is cutting up his act in two sections. Hope spots his double with Louise Troxell in "one" for 10 minutes of glib clowning and footery which fades into his revue, "Antics of 1931," in which he is supported by Miss Troxell, two other girls and three men. Hope's nonchalent delivery got them in both offerings. Clown stuff by two plants in opposite upper boxes wisecracking across at each other and then at Hope on the stage also tickled for comedy.

Girls have dancing specialties acceptable, and Hope follows with a series of comedy blackouts which enlist the remainder of his support. The hotel clerk bit and "Shot at Sunrise" were the comedy standouts of this division and brought laughs. Hope works hard throughout, is a likeable comedian, and got over in a big way here.

Runaway Four, male foursome of hoofers packing considerable clowning in their pedal work, were all but show stoppers in closing spot. They grab laughs on the walk-on in tattered attire and then effect gob dress for some knockabout stuff that registers.

Edba.

R-K-O UNIT

(CHESTER, NEW YORK)

This unit is not so forte, depending upon Art Frank and band to pull through. At that Frank cannot do it under ordinary circumstances. Just a band act with a semblance of comedy in the prelims but nothing wallopy, and that's the kindest. Maybe they'll go for it heavy in the sticks but they didn't go for it much at the Chester. From a critical slant nobody blames them.

Frank, headlining, depends upon his delineation of an a. k. war veteran for laughs, but they don't laugh. Saw too much of the same characterization from a dozen or more acts. While Frank's delineation is good it is no better than the mob preceeding.

When he gets into the band stuff it's better, but not enough to carry the bill through. Frank is doing a double act, according to running time, making his first break as a war veteran, falling for the wiles of a couple of more youthful femme dancers and then blacking out into another stanza when the band scrap uniforms for tuxedos and whoop up while the femme support go into their dances. A good act of its kind but far from sensational, and that's all this unit has to brag about.

Cardini opens with some clever card tricks and ball manipulation that bewilders them. Cardini's card tricks is nobody's business and clever. Probably one of the best acts of its kind still around in vaude and reaped a greater hand than anything else on the bills.

Jean Boydell, singing comedienne, deuced to more or less results with a song repertoire. Five songs in all, most in comedy vein, and okay if not overdoing the mugging but worked it overtime for a let-down and a mild walkaway. Nice girl with plenty of personality but unfortunately not a sufficient sense of showmanship. But maybe it will be better later.

Edba.

JEFFERSON

Seven acts of vaude and a feature picture made it a long show. "Happy" Wonder Dog (New Acts) opened, featuring a mutt. Cook Sisters (New Acts), two peppy songstresses, deuced and needed polish, but they went okay.

Conley and Mack Co., on the comedy end, have changed some of their material since last around. Both are low comics and the slapstick army general's conference is funny. Two girls, blonde and brunet, handle the songs and dances, just fair with both. Their looks and youth is built the light.

Brown and LaVelle dished out their comedy in fast style and closed to a fair hand. Brown starts by announcing he would do a few card tricks, when Miss LaVelle walks on and interrupts. She plays a mild

MILLION DOLLAR, L.A.

(Continued from page 45)

hibitions of the art of dressing up a model with long pieces of cloth and pins.

A weak next to closing act, Lyons and Lyons, might do better with better material. Idea of the imaginary character the girl shoots is oke but it's not developed into anything.

Closer Frank Evers and Gertie. It's a small time wire act in which Evers does three routines, all more or less on same order, and girl breaks each in minor dance and other bits.

Paramount News and a Van Beuren cartoon short for filler round out. Business Thursday afternoon at first show away off, with at least one-third of lower floor seats unwarmed.

Char.

IMPERIAL, TORONTO

Toronto, Dec. 6.

Stage presentation at Imperial this week a somewhat belated effort to cash in on last summer's outdoor miniature golf craze. With courses dismantled here two months ago, idea loses all timeliness.

Pepper's departure for the coast and the installation of Joe Carr as m. c. hasn't helped either. Carr still feeling his way and may improve toward the end of the week.

Stage bill dull and ill-paced, with songsters adding to the misery of suffering such numbers as "Sing You Sinners," "Dinah" and "If I Could Be With You." Lillian Roth plugged the first here six weeks ago, and Pepper has been singing the last nearly every week for the same period. Both numbers suffered in delivery contrasts.

Pit orchestra opens with a medley of deep sea ditties with boys in yachting caps and white ducks. Finales with Navy's "Sink-the-Army" song with buglers coming out on stage and drummers marching down the aisles. Only excuse for the lack of the Union Jack was probably the inappropriateness of the gesture.

Chevalier Bros. follow in 10 minutes of strong man stuff. Grace Johnston, blonde in mauve, uses the Pepper and Roth plugs and suffers by comparison. Ballet, for no reason at all, comes out in Highland costume and goes into a tap on toes. Ever dancing personable freshness of girls the bright spot of the show. Hunter and Percival follow with so-called comic straining for laughs and spoiling girl's song by ad lib-ing and fooling with a dummy guitar. Comic uses dialect but fails to warm up until he goes into a burlesque rope-tossing turn. This gets results, but it is a long time in coming.

Ballet again comes to the rescue with the six teams doing synchronized acrobatics. Girls in blue brassieres and scanty panties again offer tap and toe solos with ensemble coming in on swift-moving, leg-whirling finale.

Feature is "Life of the Party."

Sinclair.

souse. Crossfire thereafter, with Brown closing with a xylophone solo.

Jack Sidney and Co. (New Acts) was a strong song and dance affair neatly framed, with Sidney diversifying with gag bits.

Two colored hoke crossfire veterans, Moss and Frye, were as funny as ever. Coming at that tail end of the bill didn't make it any too easy for them.

Six Galenos, fast acrobats, closed. Boys have a showmanly turn with thrilling leaps and catches. Finish is a two and a half by one chap into a chair.

"Col's Tol'able David," feature, and Pathe Sound News.

R-K-O, L. A.

Los Angeles, Dec. 4.

Either a radical change should be made by the east in booking these four act units or the number of acts increased to five. As it is they start nowhere and end there.

Bill this week has Myers, Lubin and Rice, Raymond Baird, Loring Smith and Co. and Roy Sedley and Co., in bearing in that order.

Myers, Lubin and Rice open with a good flash act, but it's not right for this policy. Act would go very well on a longer bill, but just got by in the opening chill.

Raymond Baird followed with hi-trick sax playing. Fair returns.

Loring Smith and Co. are vaude of 20 years ago, with the talk nothing but cues for the next song.

Roy Sedley, closing, is a composite of a dozen comics. Assisted by Billy Smith, an age stooge, and Virginia Martin, pleasing dancer, he stopped the show with a flock of hot black-out material. Acc bit is Gilbert and Barrymore passing on the street with both whipping out a Bronx cheer. Great for L. A.

As long as this house features the lesser pictures more attention must be paid to the vaude. Average bill running $3,000 could be augmented without undue additional cost. It's a case of meeting competition from other local stage shows.

Call.

CASTLE, CHICAGO

Chicago, Dec. 4.

This small State street house was once the ace indie spot of the loop. State righters and the smaller exchanges looked to it as their own big Chicago outlet. At present it is the rival of the Woods, which, since being taken over by Aaron Jones for operation, has outbid the Castle for product.

But there is enough freak material to keep the Castle open. It has about 300 seats in a long narrow store. No lobby and with aisle and corridor space necessitating the most compact type of usherettes.

House of this sort depends almost solely on sensationalism. "Pinks," meaning for adults only, are its meat. Give it sex and murder and violence and war, and it runs along from week to week to excellent trade from the shopping femmes. If the title of a picture is not suggestive enough, the house does not hesitate to change it. Thus, picture slated to follow the present flicker is "Juno and the Paycock" (BI), a simple little Irish story that floundered in the red at the arty Punch and Judy. When the flicker comes here, however, its tag is going in heavy letters as "The Shame of Mary Boyle," with an "adults only" flash. And if the "Shame" is made obvious enough in the billing the lady shoppers are going to drop in.

Besides the sensational picture, the house has another sure-fire type of product—the foreign talker. It's a cheap little house, and the hang-out of the foreign element that may hit the loop. House has played several foreign talkers, all German, and has cleaned up. Whether this house will have free access to the foreign talkers in the future, however, is a question. Some months ago, nobody wanted 'em, and the house coined money. Circuits and big neighborhood spots, however, have discovered that there's profit in dialect pickers, and the demand has gone up. Exchanges which were once practically giving these talkers away are now real rentals.

But house needn't worry. It'll always get by nicely. Nut is low. Almost any picture can be made to go at the spot due to the enormous drop-in trade with this house situated right on the busiest corner in this part of the world, State and Madison. And at rates of 40c and 60c house can prosper.

Clarence Beck, who operates a couple more small spots in the loop, runs this one, which is his flagship. At the time the New York newsreel house started and proved it could make money, this house was the center of plenty of attention, with several offers coming in on prospects of turning the place into a newsreel theatre.

Everything fell through. Beck knew that you can't have a masqueraded stooge out front for any newsreel. Give him a Foreign Legion picture and the sidewalk is jammed with Riffs and French guerrillas glaring at each other. Give him an "Africa Speaks" and you have to fight your way through the stooge Zulus. With the present "Third Alarm" (Tiff), Beck had a lot of fun dressing his street men up with a rubber hat, boots, a couple of axes, and training voice, with which to tell the passing public that "the next show is just starting; go right in for all seats."

Dick Beck is house manager.

R-K-O Pathe Deal

(Conitnued from page 23)

down to production on the Coast, with Hy Daab, present Radio publicity chief, as a liason officer and advisor.

On the Pathe production end, E. B. Derr's continuance has not been passed upon.

There will be changes in the sales line-up, but according to word from Radiolites, every Radio salesman is being assured that he will retain his job.

In the matter of distribution, Radio, it is understood, will handle the Pathe product not included in the sale at a charge of 15% to the Rooster side of the ledger.

Although the Dupont Pathe Film Manufacturing Company is not in the Radio deal and now becomes a separate entity, the Pathe Pictures deal is figured two ways. Uptown the calculations are that the move was a very good one for R-K-O. This is expressed right in the latter ranks as well, it being pointed out there that with Pathe's 20 pictures and the company's 35, the combination now is as powerful in box-office fodder as the biggest companies in the field. Downtown the Pathe status is considered, and the sale at this time is figured beneficial.

Lee Marcus left for the West Coast Saturday (6) with word in New York it is chiefly for conferences on Pathe's picture line-up, also a scanning of the Pathe Hollywood personnel.

Variety Bills

NEXT WEEK (DECEMBER 13)
THIS WEEK (DECEMBER 6)

Numerals in connection with bills below indicate opening day of show, whether full or split week

R-K-O

NEW YORK CITY
Palace (13)
L Osborne & Chico
Ruth Etting
Runaway
Benny Rubin
F & Mitt Britton
(Two to fill)
(6)
Gilbert Bros
3 Swifts
Basil Lewis Co
Renard & West
Madeline Patrice
Lamarr & Boyce
F & Mitt Britton
4 of a kind
Hamilton
1st half (13-16)
Van Cello & Mary
Howard Marsh
Lane & Harper
Ken Murray
Nick Lucas
Benny Rubin
Lulu McConnell
Helen Kane
Brown & Rasch G's
Marla Alvarez
Chester
1st half (13-16)
Olivera Bros
Lillian Roth
(Two to fill)
2nd half (17-19)
Bert Nagle Co
Devito & Denny
Jos Regan
4 Ortons
2nd half (10-12)
N Arnaut Co
F & J Hubert
Tom & R Romaine
Georgie Price
Coliseum
1st half (13-16)
6 Galenos
Roy Smeck
Ann Suter
Vanessi
(One to fill)
2nd half (17-19)
Gilbert Bros
Mills & Bobby
Ben Blue
Leavitt & Lockwood
(One to fill)
2nd half (10-12)
Don Valeria Co
Galla Rini Co
Lewis & Moore
Ed Pardo Co
Frances White
86th St.
1st half (13-16)
Mills & Bobby
Gus Van
(Eight to fill)
2nd half (17-19)
Don Valeria
Cole & Snyder
Maxine Lewis
H Carroll Revue
2nd half (10-12)
Bet Comer Co
Jed Dooley
Ruth Etting
Moss & Fryn
81st St.
1st half (13-16)
Helen Lewis
(Others to fill)
2nd half (17-19)
Audrey Wycoff
Sybil Vane
Will Oakland
2nd half (10-12)
Evelyn Dean Co
Francis & Wally
Bobby Jarvis Co
Jos Regan
4 Ortons
58th St.
1st half (13-16)
Gym Jam Girls
Brady & Wells
Jack Thomas
Florence Whitney
R Huling & Seal
2nd half (17-19)
Cracker Jacks
Permaine & Shelly
Teck Murdock
Ernest Hiatt
St Claire Sis & O'D
2nd half (10-12)
Lewis & Beth
Doyle & Donnelly
Tuxedo Junior Girls
Conlin Glass
2nd half (17-19)
Ed Sheriff Co
Frozini
Ross & Bennett
F & R Romaine
Sam Hearn
Chinese Collegians
2nd half (10-12)
Will Morris
Taylor & Markley
Rucker & Perrin
Harris & Shipley
Lew Cameron Co
Gus Van
Dream Memories
Hippodrome (13)
Gordon! Tr
Henry J Kelly
Donahue & Breen
Gordon's Dogs
Reed & Lavere
Ardine & Tyrell
A Robbins
General Pisano Co
(6)
Frank Wilson
Kee-Chee & Yoki
Cadette 6
Kane & Ellis
Bert Nagle Co
Sybil Vane
Berkes-Wallace
6 Mascellos
Jefferson
1st half (13-16)
H't Whitestone & P
Frozini
Ryan & Noblette
Tom & R Romaine
Judson Cole
Marion Wilkins Co

A Small Time Manager's Letters To His New York Booking Agent

(A Revival of a series of letters written by J. A. Murphy for "Variety," starting in 1908. The letters ran for some time and will be repeated here weekly).

By J. A. Murphy
(Murphy and Willard)

East Cranberry, O., Nov. 29.

Dear Mike:

Yours received whereof you state I needn't tell you about the actors you send as you know all about them. Now if you know all about them I would like to know what you send some of them for at all. You say they take well other places and ought to suit my customers.

How do you know what is going to take in this town? I think sometimes you just gather up the first lot that comes along and ship them off to me, with a fool contract that says I can't discharge them and they daresent quit. What use is it for me to be the party of the first part?

Another thing I don't see is why you send me an acter one week for LK and then next week send another to do the same thing for $5 more. After this if you charge me more than LK for singers, or cloggers, or benders, I will deduct it off your commission fee.

Now this week you sent me for extry attraction, "Floatso, the Human Pickerel" that performs in a glass waterin trough. He wasn't no use to us. I wanted him to give his show without water. He could flap around and smoke and eat eggs just as good.

That Phisical Culter feller you said nothin about took better than all the rest. He put up a little shed and hung a bladder in the middle of it and whacked it around with his elbows. I was a little afraid the women folks would shy at him on account of his undershirt, but durned if he wasn't invited out to be a model by one of our society women that paints pictures on crockery. Well, he is a mighty powerful lookin chap and I suppose he could do a good day's work if he had a mind to. The magician and the hoop roller and the whistler are pretty poor shouts and the newspaper says they failed to amuse.

There is no gals in this show at all and I don't like it.

You will have to do better than this Mike as I am gettin the best people in town for customers. The proprietory of the Bodega Cafe, the boss of the coke ovens, the foreman of the Vienna Bakery and all their wives; also the superintendent of the ten-cent store and daughter. I tell you it takes a good showman to handle this town but I suppose it is in the blood. I had a half brother that used to be string six driver with the Andress Circus. He got promoted to manage the boosters for the games. I don't know where he is now but I heard he was doin some sort of work for the Government.

I enclose your commission fee of $12 which is in this letter. One of the bills is Canadian but I guess you can get rid of it. They won't take it at our post office or I would send a money order.

Adam Sovereign,
Manager.

Sardi's, which gets a good break in Rian James's new book about New York's restaurants, reciprocated by putting the book on exhibition at the cashier's desk a few days before the release date. When Rian walked in the same day, for lunch, he was so agreeably surprised that he agreed to spend an hour autographing the books instead of eating.

Best Xmas Present

Subscription to

VARIETY

$10 for One Year

Always Welcome

As a Preventive

Some of those boys who had a hunch as to what might happen had phonograph recordings made of the radio broadcast on the Notre Dame-U.S.C. game last Saturday.

The idea is that when visiting members of the Coast contingent start those California football sales talks, the local lads will not reply, but merely step to a Victrola and turn on the telltale disc.

LEO MITCHELL'S WIFE CALLED AT WRONG TIME

The results of a visit by his estranged wife and one of her women friends to the apartment of Leo Mitchell, California heavyweight boxer, at 1270 University avenue, Bronx, were described at a hearing before referee John M. Tierney in the undefended divorce action brought by Mrs. Sonya Mitchell, picture actress, of 40 West 52d street.

Mrs. Beverley Welch, Mrs. Mitchell's friend, who accompanied her on the visit to Mitchell's apartment early one morning in August, 1929, said they found the boxer in the company of a woman. Mitchell is said to be a protege of Jack Kearns, who believes him to be a coming champion.

Mrs. Mitchell was the only other witness. She said she and Mitchell were married at Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 16, 1928, and came to New York to live at the University avenue address, separating shortly after.

Referee Tierney after hearing the two women, received decision. Mrs. Mitchell was represented by Samuel M. Lovett.

ACCUSED AS BLACKMAILERS

Couple Easily Nabbed by Dicks—Both Indicted

Ray Ripley, 38, theatrical agent, of 221 West 70th street, and Howard Larkin, 28, salesman, 215 East 163d street, Bronx, will be placed on trial early next month before a jury in General Sessions on an indictment charging them with attempted blackmail. Both men are out under bail.

The arrest of the two occurred Oct. 23 after Mrs. Frances Thompson of Cazenovia, N. Y., reported to the detectives of the West 47th street station she had been receiving threatening letters. The last letter, Mrs. Thompson told the police, she received Oct. 19. It was signed "Grief, Secretary to Blackmere." The message demanded the payment of $2,000 under threat of "exposing you to the newspapers as being named as co-respondent in a divorce suit about to be begun by a prominent New York society woman against her husband."

The letter directed that should Mrs. Thompson agree to pay the money demanded, she insert in the personal column of a New York morning paper on Oct. 23 her phone in New York and the address of her hotel. The writer stated the "Boss" would send a messenger to receive the money.

Detectives Irving Frey and William Clarke were assigned and advised Mrs. Thompson insert the personal as directed by the writer. On the afternoon of Oct. 23 Mrs. Thompson received a phone call at her suite in the Biltmore. The caller said he was "The Boss" and asked her if she had the money. When she said she had he directed she place it in an envelope and wait in front of 884 7th avenue, where his "representative" would meet her. Mrs. Thompson, followed by detectives, did as directed. After a wait of a few minutes, a man, later identified as Larkin, approached her and asked for the envelope. As Mrs. Thompson handed it to him the officers placed him under arrest.

Larkin, according to the police, said Ripley was the instigator of the blackmail plot and that he was to meet the theatrical man at the entrance to the subway, 7th avenue and 49th street, after he had received the money. Larkin was to get $10 for his part in the job. The officers ordered Larkin to keep his appointment with Ripley, and when the latter appeared also placed him under arrest.

$10,000 BAIL GIVEN

Lavelle Girl Held for Grand Jury on Gun Charge

Lucille Lavelle, 19, redhaired dancer and student, arrested last week at 62nd street and Central Park West, New York, charged with felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan law and who admitted to cops she was gunning for Rudolph Cameron, actor, when arraigned in West Side Court was held in $10,000 bail for action by the Grand Jury.

Ex-Magistrate Charles Wahle appeared for Miss Lavelle and stated his client was gunning for Cameron, declaring that he (Cameron) had outraged her in the Plaza Annex. Miss Lavelle, pinched as she was riding in a taxi, had a gun in her possession. He promised some speedy action for those responsible for her plight.

Miss Lavelle had Cameron arrested several weeks ago, claiming he assaulted her. Cameron denied this and was freed in West Side Court, with Miss Lavelle dropping the charge. Cameron is former husand of Anita Stewart, actress. John F. Lins, sculptor, 730 5th avenue, furnished her bond. Her address was given as 138 East 38th street.

Three Hideaways For Film Stars' Moods or Yens

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

The Hollywood top-notchers must now have at least three hideaways.

Time was when a cottage in Laurel canyon or some other secluded spot far from the madding crowd on Hollywood boulevard was sufficient for all purposes. Now the dizzy pace demands a cottage by the sea, a mountain cabin, and a desert shack. This, of course, in addition to a spot in the city for an address.

Away From It All

The average star, director, and exec usually has a feeling that he wants to get away from it all. This makes him an easy mark for the crowd of real estate men who hang on his heels.

Malibu beach, Lake Arrowhead in the mountains, and Palm Springs in the desert are favorite locales for the film crowd when not working. But they spread out to other open spaces, too.

Another reason besides the one Hollywood usually suspects for the numerous homes is to play hide-and-seek with casting directors and production chiefs at the studio. A person will plan a jolly week-end or three-day vacation only to have it interrupted by a call for a conference. With the many hideouts he is harder to locate.

Of course, the owner says he needs all three spots to fit his various moods. Ocean for futility, desert for tranquility, and mountains for desirability. Name your mood.

Femme Bull-Fighter Flops on First Try, With the B. F. a Hero

Dallas, Dec. 9.

Senorita Celia Montalvan, Mexican actress, has gone down in books as Mexico's first femme bullfighter.

Senorita Montalvan, with either a yen for publicity or adventure, tried her hand at the taurian sport at Monterey, but lacked vim in a jab at el toro's side, dodged him twice with the bull successful on his third try.

About that time her boy friend figured it was his time. He jumped into the arena with a red flag and sword, saving the day—and the senorita.

The actress got off with minor injuries.

Razzing The Home Town

PORTLAND, ORE.

(A series of stories on the inside show end of key cities, without giving the cities any the best of it.)

Bp James T. Wyatt

Portland, Ore., Dec. 6.

Sullivan and Considine probably put this burg on the map of the U. S. when the old bowl and pitcher circuits first lured heads from the Indians. An old Sullivan and Considine house is still one of the largest and best built on the main stem. It has changed hands a dozen times and had its face lifted by Ackerman and Harris, Pantages and R-K-O Orpheum. But the present Orpheum with its highly ornate decorations of Spanish Conquistadores and Renaissance gingerbread is still the old shell which was once famous on the west coast as a sort of monument to Marcus Loew, and went in those early days by the name of the Empire.

After Sullivan and Considine discovered Portland, there was another pioneer showman, John F. Cordray, whose local dime museums were famous on the west coast. Cordray collected plenty dimes at his famed freak joint and then got arty. He took over the management of another celebrated landmark, the old Marquam Grand theatre. He hired a big husky stiff to haul up the curtain and hustle props, little dreaming that he'd live to see his awkward stage hand mayor of Portland, after a brilliant theatrical career. This bozo was George L. Baker, now serving in his tenth year as mayor of Portland.

Any tale of this burg's showdom or claim to fame simply has to click some place with the bookings of stage-hand Baker. John Cordray retired from legit management and started the Oaks amusement park in his later years. He died about five years ago.

Swam to Work

It fell to Prop Boy Baker to take over the Marquam Grand legit stock and from that inconspicuous beginning he built the erstwhile famous Baker stock company, which produced featured players by the dozen as a contribution to America's show world. The late Theodore Roberts used to swim across the river to rehearsals before they built any bridges in this dorp. Roberts was then a kid in Baker's company.

The Gleasons, Marjorie Rambeau, dozens of names that have since glittered were once proteges of the old Baker stock. Leona Powers was another Baker find.

It was reported that one time at least 15 ex-players of the Baker stock were featured on Manhattan's Broadway or in pictures.

George L. Baker felt the urge of politics and left showdom after building the Baker theatre. He ran for city commissioner and was first elected mayor 10 years ago. This is his third term and it looks like a perennial affair. His boast is to kiss every visiting stage celebrity

(Continued on page 53)

Hard Times Xmas Card

Early and first Christmas greeting has been sent out by Little Al Zimbalist.

On a condensed card, it's printed in small type, like this:

That I've Been Hard Hit
Since Times Are Hard
Is Shown by the Size
Of This Christmas Card
But it brings you cheer
For All the New Year
And On It, Old Pal,
Here's My Fist
Yours Be Hey-Hey
In a Great Big Way
Little Al Zimbalist.

'BABY FACE' WEEPER DIDN'T KID JUDGES

Andrew "Baby Face" Miller, 19, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who during the past six months has chiselled quite a few dollars from persons along Broadway who ordinarily wouldn't part with a nickel (including reporters) by his tales of woe, was sent to the New York City Reformatory in Special Sessions following his conviction of petty larceny. "Weeping Andrew's" downfall came as the result of stealing $10 from his employer.

Jacob Lichter, probation officer, related the story of Andrew's sob tales along Broadway which invariably got him money. "Baby Face" has been arrested seven times in the past two years for petty thefts. In all but one instance he wept his way to freedom. It seems that his stock of trade was to tell everybody that his entire family was wiped out by the influenza epidemic in 1918, leaving him alone.

Lichter informed the Justices that Andrew's tale about his family was all "wet." The relatives are all living, but want nothing to do with "Baby Face." The latter continually moaned and sobbed while Lichter read his report.

"Stop. You are breaking our hearts," Justice Murphy cried. "Tell your story to your future playmates in the reformatory." Andrews will be kept at the institution until he reaches 21.

Expect Mob in Court For Judge Lindsey Hearing

More than a dozen cops will shoo the curious Friday (12) at the hearing of former Judge Ben Lindsey in West Side Court. Magistrate August Dreyer will hear the case of the diminutive former Colorado judge, who was served with a summons after he is alleged to have created a disturbance in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine as Bishop Manning was intoning the ascription.

Hundreds jammed West Side Court yesterday (Monday), hoping that Bishop Manning would be present and that they could get an earful of Lindsey's theory of companionate marriage. Magistrate Dreyer, in granting the adjournment, announced that there would be no further adjournments. Arthur Garfield Hays, representing Judge Lindsey, Samuel Untermeyer, if needed, will be counsel in charge.

It was not definitely stated whether the ex-judge would sue the bishop for slander. Lindsey was ousted from the Cathedral last Sunday by police when he mounted the press table before the pulpit and shouted "liar," at Bishop Manning.

Badly Burned in Sleep As Cigarette Starts Blaze

Edward Crane, 26, actor in the cast of "Once in a Lifetime," lies critically ill in Flower Hospital from burns about the body. His room, on the second floor of the Hotel Deauville, caught fire, it is believed, from a smouldering cigarette. Fireman fought the blaze more than 30 minutes as guests of the hotel fled to the lobby.

Crane had been asleep only a short while when he was awakened by a choking sensation. He then discovered the fire and ran from his bedroom. He collapsed in the hallway.

POLICE DOG'S BOARD BILL

Florence Powell Told to Pay It—Rosalind Rensing Summoned

Florence Powell, 22, dancer in "Nina Rosa," cried in West Side Court when Magistrate Goodman dismissed the summons against Rosalind Rensing, formerly of the show "2 Little Girls," whom Miss Powell charged with refusing to return her police dog, "Queenie."

"Your Honor, please have Miss Rensing return my 'Queenie.' I am heartbroken," said the dancer. Miss Powell resides at 341 West 45th street. The Court suggested Miss Powell pay a board bill for the dog and it would be returned. She was opposed to this plan and the Court stated it was a case for the civil court. Miss Rensing lives at 18 West 76th street.

Miss Powell stated she had turned "Queenie" over to Lew Weissman, musician. She asserted Weissman said he would take care of the dog for her. Later she sought the return of the dog and learned that Miss Rensing had it.

"I pleaded with Miss Rensing to give me 'Queenie,' but she stated there was a large board bill and, moreover, Queenie had eaten some of her finery. Queenie would never do this," sobbed Florence.

An attorney for Miss Powell stated that the latter could have her dog if she paid the board bill.

Smuggled Scents Bring Quick Dollars For Hollywood's Femme Layoffs

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Smuggling perfume over the Mexican line at Tia Juana and Mexicali, formerly considered a social pass time by the Hollywood mob, is now reaching the status of a racket and is an explanation why some of the femme layoffs are eating.

Especially is the racket proving profitable to the army of below-the-border imports who came here for Spanish talkers.

Bringing liquor over the line is a piker's game compared with the perfume gag. With the American market price of French smell-water a femme can pack $100 profit in a quart.

One of the gals, working regularly in Spanish versions, is making more than three times her salary bringing scents over the line to Hollywood. Due to heavy duty, an ounce of the better perfume costing $25 here can be bought from agents in Tia Juana at $3. This gal makes weekly visits to Caliente, ostensibly pleasure bent, but on her return carries several hundred dollars' worth of the stuff hidden in her clothes.

This particular femme disposes of her weekly load to local druggists who cater to the femme picture trade.

Once a Pleasure

For years perfume smuggling has been carried on in a small way. Playboys and girls from here, below the border for the races and wheels, considered it smart to outwit the custom men by bringing in an ounce or two. But it wasn't until lately that the boys below the border saw an opportunity to go for the racket in a big way. The numerous emigres to Spanish pictures gave them the first in, and lately this has been extended to American girls.

Easy for the girls to get a b. f. to take them to Caliente for the week-end, and just as easy while below the border to make connection with the Mexican clearing stations.

Racket has reached such proportions that thousands of dollars' worth has been shipped out of Hollywood during the last few months for distribution to big city stores for Christmas trade.

'SCENARIO' RACKET IS NEW, CHEAP AND SAFE

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Another Hollywood racket, based on the same principle as the film acting schools, but safer and easier for the racketeer, is the business of "scenario criticism and advising." Has it on the school gag for several reasons, it's within the law, and, second, cheaper to operate.

All that's required to set up in this profession of guide and counsellor to the aspiring screen writer is the price of a few ads in not-too-inquiring trade papers, a couple of thousand cards and plenty of nerve. No overhead, like the acting schools. The "work" can be done at home, or by correspondence. No worry about the authorities stirring things up, as no promises of jobs are held out.

This racket is run on a strictly "literary" basis, with criticism offered at so much per thousand words. It is the standard rate, not including a's, an's and the's. This modest price is for plain or "construction" criticism. Fancy, or "thematic" criticism comes a little higher, while excursions into the realm of dialogue are priced as high as $5 per 1,000 words.

Chance Takers

These self-styled literary advisers are usually about as well equipped to guide the writing of scenarios as the heads of alleged film acting schools are to develop picture stars. Drawn from the ranks of the failures, futile and pathetic old maids from small towns, who used to be society editor of the local paper, or English teacher in the high school, and whose efforts at crashing the studios with scrips have been for years in vain; disgruntled scenarists from the old days, who haven't worked in years, and who see a chance to turn their familiarity with technical phrases into a little gain.

Or, for the most part, just grifters, without the daring to attempt a big or risky racket, but with the wit to realize that the number of saps who want to be actors are outnumbered only by the number of saps who want to be writers.

Waiters' Holiday

Dallas, Dec. 9.

Found—the stunt unique.

Hugo Bonoquid, down in busy Juarez, Mex., will show his American saloon patrons what's showmanship. On Dec. 13, waiters from each of the 150 saloons of the town will take a 15 block sprint down the main drag, each hasher balancing a tray containing a glass of whiskey, water chaser, bottle of beer, and a glass of beer. The guy that gets there first without spilling anything, gets 50 berries.

Bonoquid's stunt is strictly approved by the Juarez Waiters' and Bartenders' Union.

Cheap Chump Picture Draws in Epileptics And Sailors on B'way

The glory that was Broadway took another sock Saturday when the Central theatre sprouted posters a leather-lunged hallyhoo, and bulbs in its marquee shouting its attraction, "Chained, the Story of the Third Sex." Heretfore, the nearest this type of leeringly offensive performance, masquerading its intent under the name of scientific investigation has come to Broadway was when the Carroll theatre on 7th avenue sheltered a lecture on sex with its bait "living models." The Central is housing a sex picture which brazingly uses all the comeons usually associated with 14th street.

Passersby on Saturday afternoon paused to read the billing of the picture, listen to the ballyhoo, and digest the supposedly scientific facts placarded out front, but few stepped up to the box-office to pay the 50-cent charge.

The devil-may-care fellows who were strong enough to run the gamut of so many staring, disapproving eyes, slunk into the theatre and found a half-empty house made up almost entirely of men. White striped collars of sailors shone in the darkness in pairs, but most of the rest of the audience were seated singly.

Old French Silent

"Chained, the Story of the Third Sex," turned out to be an old French silent film, screened without musical accompaniment because, according to a sign, "the unusual nature of the subject." The silence that surrounded the showing of this antiquated flicker was like that of a prison. Whenever the film broke, which was often, there was none of the familiar protest from the audience. They were trying to be as individually unnoticed as possible. A docile, guilty bunch, who had crept in to see something they were led to believe was shocking and who were too ashamed of their presence there to complain at being roundly taken in.

When the picture was over, the house lights were turned on for the lecture and everyone squirmed in his seat at being found out. Even the lecturer tried to hide, for he placed his reading stand directly in front of his face, as he read to the morose audience a supposedly learned discourse on the trials and torments of the "Third Sex." He sprinkled his talk with the term "homosexual" in a feeble attempt to live up to the promises outside the theatre, and then the house lights went down, to the relief of his self-conscious listeners.

Some shorts completed the bill, and then the audience was faced with the problem of getting out so that no one would see them. They scurried up the aisles, but when they reached the lobby tried to act as if they were just looking at the posters.

The show and response at the Central are too shoddy to make any lasting impression or do any great damage to Broadway.

At least a couple of boys are optimistic about the coming winter. They've opened a cold drink stand in the corner store of the Mayfair Theatre building.

APPLES IN CHI

In Two Days Loop Dotted—Looks Organized

Chicago, Dec. 9.

On Thursday of last week there wasn't an apple vender in sight. By Saturday the loop was populated with 'em, three to every busy block. Sales were light.

All bore printed signs announcing themselves as ex-soldiers and unemployed. Uniformity of signs and efficient sales organization suggested a "master mind" in the background.

A SOBBER NEXT TO KELLY ON A POLE

It was a cold December day when a Variety sobbie decided to scoop the town in an interview with "Shipwreck" Kelly, at present establishing a flagpole residence high above the Paramount Hotel.

It was a simple matter commandeering a flagpole and scurrying to the top where reportorial pad and pencil were produced to show that this was no idle visit.

Sobbie sneezed sweetly by way of introduction.

"Mr. Kelly," she started and then, feeling that the tone was perhaps a little too formal, added, "may I —may I call you 'Shipwreck?'"

Mr. Kelly was prepared for this emergency. He has been prepared for anything ever since that memorable 13th of May, 1893, when his mother discovered him, a pink and white babe, perched on a flagpole.

"What do you think of unemployment?" asked Sobbie, resting an elbow on the flagpole and extending herself outward at an angle of forty-five degrees.

"It's an ill wind that blows nobody off," replied "Shipwreck," holding up a wet finger to see if there were indeed a wind blowing. "This is a banner year for flagpole sitting. So many people are out in the open air. To an old flagpole sitter like myself, it's the very breath of life to look down and see a multitude doing absolutely nothing. You may call me Alvin," he added as though by afterthought. "That" (dropping to one knee and extending his arms) "is the name my mother gave me. I followed the seafaring game for 13 years without a mishap—that's why they call me 'Shipwreck.'"

"I owe everything to the School of Hard Knocks," said Mr. K., "hard knocks and high buildings. I would like to say at this point," seeing that Sobbie's grip on her flagpole was slipping, "that in my 5,000 hours in the air (210 days to be exact) I have never sat on a better flagpole than the one I am occupying at present."

Hastily writing down, "'Shipwreck, Kelly Endorses Par. Hotel flagpole,'" Sobbie started groundward. Halfway to earth, she remembered the good manners for which "Variety" reporters are famed and smiling upward with a cheery invitation, called "Goodbye, 'Shipwreck,' don't forget to look me up when you get down."

More Facts

But after that aerial trip to see and talk with the champ hangeron, Variety's" sobber missed or muffed the best facts.

Those are that Kelly expects to drop off the Paramount pole Xmas Day; that his only income from the stunt is the gate of 25c per person for entrance to the Paramount roof for a closer view of the top of the pole, with anything else derived from the sale of knick-knacks on the same roof.

Kelly derives an income of about $20,000 yearly, flagpole sitting. He seems satisfied, and has a manager. The curious around Times Square wonder if Kelly sticks on the pole all night. To aid the illusion, a light is played on the pole after dark and the bundle up there that may be Kelly—or else.

5c a Look

Throngs peer through binoculars and other glasses to get a look at "Shipwreck." Chauffers' attention is directed to Kelly and no thought for the pedestrians. Even the blue-coats have quit looking for the "shoofly." Everything is "Shipwreck" in the sector of the Paramount.

Binocular and spyglass men are reaping a harvest. On Broadway and 8th ave. business is great, remarked one. Kelly's outfit has booklets and large "spyglasses." They are parked at 6th street and 8th avenue.

The booklets are for sale and the price of viewing "Shipwreck" is 10c. Nearby is another binocular outfit. It is not one of Kelly's. His sign reads, "See Flagpole Kelly." His price is 5c.

Kelly seems to be covered in some stout tarpaulin to check the cold. He is quite visible from the street.

Sid Silverman Boosts Hollywood At Newark High—Pans "Variety"

By C. R. Austin

Newark, N. J., Dec. 9.

Sid Silverman made his debut here in an orator. Invited to speak before the Vocational Conference at West Side High School here, he discussed the possibilities of stage and screen before a group of scholars and scored sensationally. He made a good impression and got a laugh at the start by saying he was scared to death. He was straightforward and sincere, unerring in his taste and good judgment.

He spoke very briefly at first, saying that he hated to throw a wet blanket upon the hopes of those who had aspirations to act, either on the stage or in pictures, and then proceeded to cover them in the biggest and wettest blanket possible by telling them it was hopeless.

For the business and executive ends, however, he held out more hopes and said there was a large field in these branches.

He then threw the meeting open for questions, and how they beat upon him! They came from every angle and covered everything. But Sid took them all and answered with accuracy and clarity for over two hours. As the questions interested him he expatiated upon the topics involved.

Among other things young Silverman stated that in one year out of 45,000 extras in Hollywood only 20 got work that was anything like regular. He gave Hollywood a clean bill of health (page the Grahams!) and spoke like a native son from Iowa.

Inside Stuff

Sid explained the Dunning process, told how the "Amos 'n' Andy" vide in New York was made, and discussed double exposure and stunt photography. On the sound he told how the experts can now remove a single syllable from the sound track and by looking at it can tell who sang or spoke.

But the mugg pulled one boner. Asked about "Variety," with all the chance in the world to give it a boost and sell all the copies in Newark, the mugg put the paper on the pan and said that it probably wouldn't interest his hearers.

Papa spank!

300% Hot Dogs

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Hot-dog stands have increased 300% in business the past five months.

Chicago, probably more than any other spot on earth, is full of root beer barrel joints which dish out drinks and dogs for a nickel. All are enjoying tremendous biz.

One local company, White Towers, which peddles hamburgs for five cents, with all the trimmings, is expanding at the rate of a new and elaborate spot a month.

$7,500 for 1st Actors' Benefit By Agents' Ass'n

The first benefit for unemployed actors grossed around $7,500. A $1 to $5 scale prevailed. Performance, engineered by the Theatrical Artists' Representatives' Ass'n., took place at the Ziegfeld theatre Sunday night (7), with I. Miller (shoe company) paying $1,000 for the radio broadcast privilege. All seats were sold directly to the profession.

W. R. Hearst gave a check of $1,000 for eight seats, but whether the total of $7,500 includes the Hearst donation is not definite. Up to Monday afternoon the intention was to hold three more benefits for the same purpose and under the same auspices. Future theatres were not made known.

Performance practically got an 8:30 start with about a 12:30 close. Among those introducing the acts were DeWolf Hopper, Victor Moore, Jack Benny, Bill Gaxton, Julius Tannen, George Jessel and Benny Rubin.

Volunteers, as they appeared, were Six Crackerjacks, Rudy Vallee, The DeMarcos, Jane Aubert and J. Fred Coots, Jimmy Savo, 'Vanities" group of Ray Cavanaugh's band (20), "Hittin' the Bottle" chorus and Conda Brothers, Ginger Rogers, Chic Sale, Bernice Claire, Ethel Barrymore, Burns and Allen, Gus Edwards, Norma Terris and Rex Evans, Jim Barton, Libby Holman, Roxyettes (32), Orth and Codee, Dora Maughan, Ted Healy, Ethel Waters and Borah Minevitch.

That was up to midnight, with Helen Kane and Ken Murray announced as in the wings.

Inserted was a group introduced by Tannen, including Mary and Florence Nash, Florence Eldridge, Agnes Ayres, Fannie Ward, Frederic March, Basil Rathbone, Lee Tracy and Montagu Love. Jessel also brought out Lina Basquette for a bow.

Those in charge of the benefit were M. S. Bentham, Jenie Jacobs and Tom Rooney. House staff, musicians, stagehands and electricians donated their services.

QUOITS TOO MASCULINE FOR MODERN B'WAY

An attempt to interest Broadway in horse-shoe pitching has failed.

George Dill, actor, opened a place for the purpose on Eighth avenue and had to close within a month, although he tried to put his idea over by explaining that horse-shoe pitching was a he-man's game requiring strength and prowess and far superior to the requirements of midget golf.

Seems this was just the trouble. Horse-shoe pitching may be too masculine for Broadway these days.

$7,500 for 1st Actors' Benefit By Agents' Ass'n

The first benefit for unemployed actors grossed around $7,500. A $1 to $5 scale prevailed. Performance, engineered by the Theatrical Artists' Representatives' Ass'n., took place at the Ziegfeld theatre Sunday night (7), with I. Miller (shoe company) paying $1,000 for the radio broadcast privilege. All seats were sold directly to the profession.

W. R. Hearst gave a check of $1,000 for eight seats, but whether the total of $7,500 includes the Hearst donation is not definite. Up to Monday afternoon the intention was to hold three more benefits for the same purpose and under the same auspices. Future theatres were not made known.

Performance practically got an 8:30 start with about a 12:30 close. Among those introducing the acts were DeWolf Hopper, Victor Moore, Jack Benny, Bill Gaxton, Julius Tannen, George Jessel and Benny Rubin.

Volunteers, as they appeared, were Six Crackerjacks, Rudy Vallee, The DeMarcos, Jane Aubert and J. Fred Coots, Jimmy Savo, 'Vanities" group of Ray Cavanaugh's band (20), "Hittin' the Bottle" chorus and Conda Brothers, Ginger Rogers, Chic Sale, Bernice Claire, Ethel Barrymore, Burns and Allen, Gus Edwards, Norma Terris and Rex Evans, Jim Barton, Libby Holman, Roxyettes (32), Orth and Codee, Dora Maughan, Ted Healy, Ethel Waters and Borah Minevitch.

That was up to midnight, with Helen Kane and Ken Murray announced as in the wings.

Inserted was a group introduced by Tannen, including Mary and Florence Nash, Florence Eldridge, Agnes Ayres, Fannie Ward, Frederic March, Basil Rathbone, Lee Tracy and Montagu Love. Jessel also brought out Lina Basquette for a bow.

Those in charge of the benefit were M. S. Bentham, Jenie Jacobs and Tom Rooney. House staff, musicians, stagehands and electricians donated their services.

COWS, PIGS, POULTRY DRAW $218,000—CHI.

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Chicago still dearly loves its cows and pigs.

Eight-day engagement of the 29th annual International Live Stock Exposition, held at the stockyards, grossed some $200,000, with over 500,000 paid admissions. This was an increase over last year.

At the same time a poultry show at the Coliseum, with 4,000 chickens on view, went over the top with a roar of any like exhibit. Estimated to have grabbed in excess of $18,000 a record.

CHURCH DEDICATION

New St. Malachy's, Under Father Leonard, Inaugural Ceremonies

The new St. Malachy's Church, West 49th street, was dedicated Sunday morning (7), with Cardinal Hayes, Bishop Dunn and pastors of the archdiocese participating in the ceremonies.

Known as the "Actors' Church," St. Malachy's was founded in 1902 by Rev. Thomas McLaughlin, "the singing priest." The present pastor, Father Leonard, is well known to show people and was recently made chaplain of the Catholic Actors' Guild. He has been the guiding spiritual adviser of the parish, which includes the Times Square district, for the last 10 years. Attendance for Sunday masses at St. Malachy's now averages 4,000 people. Because of his interest in the welfare of actors, Father Leonard has provided a special chapel for them.

Representing the theatrical profession at the dedication were Donald Brian, president of the Catholic Actors' Guild, and his wife, Virginia O'Brien; Mr. and Mrs. William Gaxton, Wallace Ford, Pedro de Cordoba, Gene Buck, Wilton Lackaye, Eva Condon, Frank Craven, Chauncey Olcott, Fritzi Scheff and many others.

CHATTER

Broadway

Sid Smith has a personal sec.

Mary Heaton is due from Paris.

Jack Mahler has a new iron hat.

Arthur Schwartz is off to Florida.

Ed Skinner doesn't intend to write a play.

King Kennedy on the coast for Xmas.

Bobby Connolly is almost never at his office.

Ralph Wilk is recovering from a breakdown.

Basil Sidney and Mary Ellis are reading plays.

Charles Maduro is touring Europe for his health.

Flo Hart is now hostessing at Guinan's Club.

Teddy Harris is engaged to Margerite Salomon.

Janet Adamson back from Paris for concert tour.

Publicity outfit of Salzman and Proser has split.

Lewis McMichael off on a long automobile trip.

Roy Rogers is already sending out New Year's cards.

John Golden back from South Carolina hunting trip.

Fannie Brice's baby skit is out of "Sweet and Low."

Walter Howey leaving for a six weeks' tour of Europe.

Natalie Schaeffer successfully lost an appendix last week.

Tom Mix is a terrific ping-pong player, and is in town.

Nov. 28 was Dan Hennessey's birthday. He was 75.

On 14th street the apple sellers sell 'em 8 for a quarter.

Teana and Palome, dancing around Europe, are back.

Hear newlywed Theron Bamberger talk about "my wife."

Dick Lamar is now associated with Lyons & Lyons agency.

You can expect to see Noble Sissle around almost any day now.

Fae Drake has a new penthouse overlooking the East River.

Janet of France has deserted the stage for a women's wear shop.

Elsie Frazee is in town from France. Will look over the shows.

Monty Woolley, stage director, has the neatest trimmed beard in town.

Harry K. Thaw, after a long absence, is hitting the Broadway clubs again.

Mrs. Ed Strong and Mrs. Chick Endor left for Miami Beach by motor.

Flo Hershfield is doing feature writing for the New York "American."

Jack White, the comic, is back on Broadway after a year in Hollywood.

Dennis Dufor is out of the Max Hart office, Gene McGregor replacing him.

Santa Ana, Cal., sends word John Breadon was married there last week.

Sam Goldwyn had quite a luncheon send-off last Friday. He sailed that night.

A lot of working actors are afraid to answer the phone. Requests to play benefits.

Manny Eisenberg leaves for Virginia next week to write another new play.

Harry W. Reiners is going to open a museum of freaks on Second avenue.

Max Gordon, legit producer, returns to New York on the "Europa" Friday (12).

Noiseless turnstiles are being installed in all subway stations of the I. R. T. lines.

Dick Green, former treasurer t. A. T. S. E., in Los Angeles, and expects to remain there.

Publicity Directors' Association, new p. a. outfit, will meet at the McAlpin Dec. 18.

Jerry Mannes is resuming vaude producing and has placed a new act in rehearsal.

Ben Kamsler has been appointed assistant to Walter Wanger at the Paramount studios.

Par has returned to the use of its film stars for radio broadcasts Tuesdays over CBS.

Walter Clinton is on the coast, where his wife, Julia Rooney, may open a dancing school.

Sam Harrison, Ziegfeld mgr., can now get fights on his radio without a soprano background.

Harry Hayman, associated with Jo Mielziner, scenic artist, has just dashed off his first play.

Lenore Ulric and Sidney Blackmer are among the most consistent nite clubbers these days.

Singer's Midgets will play the juvenile roles in the revival of "Babes in Toyland."

Rocco Vocco, E. F. Bittner, Walter Fisher and Cliff Odoms vacationing in Pinehurst, N. C.

Irving O'Hay leaves the big chairs of the Friars shortly to speak at a flock of dinners on the road.

Club Richman reopens Dec. 12 with Ted Lewis, Milton Douglas, tenor, and all girl floor show.

Sammy Fain, songwriter, has joined the Yacht Club Boys, currently at the Simplon Club.

John Cohen, Jr., couldn't get seats for the opening of "Vinegar Tree," but his office boy had a couple.

Dr. Bender says actor's toothaches, combined with pocketbook pains, are giving him headaches.

Dora Maughan is remaining with "Fine and Dandy." She's said to have a run-of-the-play contract.

Eddie Small, looking great, is back after a breakdown which has kept him on his farm since April.

William P. Farnsworth, who took a fling at legit producing, has resumed his law studies at Columbia.

Don Rodalito, who received publicity as Rudolf Valentino's "double," is preparing an act for vaude.

Broadway beauties who were once unhappy without big cars and rocks, are now satisfied with flivvers and food.

Arthur Lowenstein, for five years manager of Fox's Star, is now managing the Monroe at 76th and First avenue.

Fritzi Jacobi, assistant professional manager at E. B. Marks, expects four scars from that cut on her arm.

Blumey Blumenthal states any true report of his being in on a Broadway show means that's he's in on a hit.

Marie Cahill almost missed a rehearsal at the Broadway the other day because she couldn't find the stage door.

Kitty Wilkening claims to be the only femme to be accepted as an expert artist by the Make-Up Artists' Union.

"Shipwreck" Kelly had to go on the Paramount Hotel's flagpole, says E. K. Nadel, because he couldn't get an outside room.

Audrey Dale, prominent in "This Is New York," was a dancer in Ziegfeld's "Palm Beach Nights," her first show, four years ago.

Nate Leipzig's calling cards bill him as a "prestidigitatuer extraordinary," a mouthful of alphabet even for a magician.

Belle Livingstone, following the shut-down of her club by a raid, visited the Club Argonaut Saturday night and received an ovation.

Apple vendor in front of the Palace has gone comic. Now wears a battered top hat and has a toy poodle dog chained to his stand.

Warners is taking Clark and McCullough back to the picture fold for one commercial short, to be made east. Advertising ciggies.

Joe Lewis, at the Chateau Madrid, is using the ladies' room matron as well as waiters and cigarette and cloak room girls at the club in his floor show.

Twenty-five years ago Hiram S. Brown, R-K-O pres, was office boy to Bill Guard, p. a. of Metropolitan Opera, who was then on the New York "Herald."

Frank Bruen is said to be set as gen. mgr. of the Havana track and casino, despite New Orleans reports he would land in charge of the track in that city.

If that homing pigeon is ever turned loose, which Louella Parsons keeps referring to as "a little bird told me," it'll fly all the way to 154 W. 46th street.

That $100 assessment letter from the Friars Club has been mailed to all the unsuspecting resident members. The out is to bring in two new members or dig.

George Walsh is back at the Guinan Club after six weeks in the Almony Club on a promise to pay his wife, Josephine Davis, $50 a week while working.

They are saying now that Ethel Barrymore picked that blackface role because she had to compete with "Green Pastures," across the street at the Mansfield.

Edward Moore, one of the elevator boys in the Palace building, marries Irene Schneider, Jan. 4. Eddie has been inviting the world to the event for the past two months.

Most of the cooking experts broadcasting over the radio are unable to fry an egg. They are actresses chosen for their diction rather than culinary talents.

Jimmie Forbes, ill and back from the coast a few weeks, under the care of two nurses, is recuperating nicely. He is now allowed to venture out a couple of hours daily.

In a drug store on Broadway three out of the four soda-jerkers on one shift are ex-performers. Two come from vaude and one is a former juve lead. All three youngsters under 30.

Man, who calls himself the king of the Broadway apple sellers, claims he made $150 the first two weeks he was in business. Includes tips running as high as $2.

Hostess in a nite club, who figured on $50 a week in tips for sitting out with the stags, has been working seven weeks. Got a $50 handout the first week. Nothing since.

Morrie Allen of the Loew publicity staff is now doing all the stage manuals for the company. Nat Dyches, who formerly did them, is located in the scenario dep't of United Artists.

Table workers in some of the Broadway spots are singing themselves hoarse for a $2 tip, while the dough snatchers in the Harlem hideaways sing as many as 10 choruses for $1.

Indoor minnie golf spot now serving lunch which includes a three-decker sandwich, dessert, coffee and a choice of 18 holes of golf, 30 arrows of archery, or one hour of ping-pong.

Harry Davenport, director, is now running a free theatre at 138 East 27th street. Actors work for the experience and during the performances Davenport passes the hat. It's been going on for some time.

Flagpole Kelly's squatting stunt atop the Hotel Paramount, New York, has given the kids around Times Square a new racket. Youngsters are renting binocs for a nickel a look and getting some trade.

Checker enthusiasts throughout the country are contributing to a purse of $5,000 being raised for a match between Newell Banks and Robert Stewart, American and Scottish champions, to be played next August in Cedar Point.

Thelma, not Marjorie, was the smaller of that White sister act in vaude in 1922. A reprint of the New Act notice in "Variety" of that year credited Marjorie, now in pictures, as the comedienne and applause getter of the turn. But it was Thelma, also in pictures and now Mrs. Max Hoffman, Jr.

Dave, the Blue Room impresario, thought Marc Lachman was ribbing him when he phoned at three A. M. Sunday to have 200 sandwiches sent to the Broadway theatre where "The New Yorkers" was rehearsing. Sent a spy to the stage door to check up on Marc before going to work on the food order.

Wire companies must have made plenty on the Notre Dame-U. S. C. game. Telegrams, by the hundreds, went flying out of New York Sunday and Monday to the Coast in retribution for a constant stream of letters all fall from California predicting what the Jones boys were going to do to the Ramblers.

London

Spats with fur on.

Gordon Beckles still thinking of home pages.

New tube (subway) extensions everywhere.

Kathleen Mason hands out graceful press sandwiches.

Mrs. Laura Mannock is this town's breeziest press agent.

Problem as to who was the first film critic being argued.

Maurice Elvey mistook Bernard Shaw for a newspaperman.

Provincials stand gaping at the "Hell's Angels" electric sign.

Models in Charing Cross underground station draw rubbernecks.

New vaudeville technique started this week on radio. A little better than usual.

Percentage of open cars among new crop of autos seems higher than last year.

Walter Summers is now a certified airman. Learned the game for his new talkie.

Thames is flooding, as usual. Papers say it's unusual, as usual. Like California.

Geoffrey Swaffer also attends most of the first nights but can't get chucked out.

Roy Simmnods gets the bouquets as the best liaison between Fleet and Wardour streets.

James Carter, now a director at Twickenham, used to fling prods around in the old Worton Hall days.

Gag cracked by Buchanan Taylor to film critics last Saturday turned up in three signed features on Sunday.

Question is, now that Atkinson, critic, has gone over to them, will the "Telegraph" inscribe his portrait on their new Fleet Street clock?

Boston

All of Erlanger houses dark this week.

Fox deal regarding the Touraine Hotel site and adjacent property off.

Blast of cold weather, couple of days last week, improved theatrical situation.

"Street Scene," to good business at the Wilbur, moved across the street to Majestic.

Florence Reed in "Purity" opened under the Professional Player's Plan at the Plymouth for two weeks.

Paramount has commenced wrecking the old Adams House. Another de luxe Publix theatre next door to the Keith Memorial.

"The Blue Ghost," Jimmie Cooper's spooky thriller, formerly at the Majestic, moved to the Lyric (old B. F. Keith theatre).

Freiburg Passion Play, at Opera House, doing big business. Patronage of blue blood and Back Bay Society Set. In for two weeks.

Copley theatre, Shubert house but not generally known as such, is idle. Vacated by Clive players. Clive attributed his failure this season to the people not being interested in clean shows.

New Orleans

C. C. Pettijohn here for several days.

Rita Owin dancing at the Club Forest.

Unemployed gonna sell Louisiana oranges next week.

"The Tomb" won the one-act play tournament staged here.

Hector Downe up from Panama. General factotum at Club Kelley.

Howard McCoy being placed in charge of Tennessee houses of Publix.

Bert Collyer, syndicate racing tipster, has a bright tag, "Read 'Em But Don't Weep."

Ben Plazza wined and dined during his visit last week. Still calls New Orleans home.

Maurice Barr picking up the McCoy houses in addition to those already under his wing.

Shores of Lake Pontchartrain dotted with "speaks." Odd joints with blatant orchestras, and, oh, so brusque.

Lots of Californians here for the winter. They remark openly they came to New Orleans to escape the rigors of a Coast winter. Treason.

Rue Royal Rendezvous passed out the other day. A courtyard cafe that looked a winner for awhile. Its closing cost Pat Brennan a few pesetas.

Kenneth Knoblock, former dramatic critic of the "Times-Picayune," notified by Harpers that his first novel, "Murder Has Been Done," will be on the stands in January.

C. V. Whitney, son of H. P. Whitney, is running his father's stable under his own name. Mose Goldblatt, the "Cincy" turfman, is training the Whitney horses running here. They have been remarkably successful so far.

Loop

Abe Lastvogel visiting.

Town hasn't an apple seller.

Joe Cody is joining more lodges.

Danny Graham has yet to wear a hat.

Harry Mervis is being taken up by columnists.

Paul Whiteman threw away a trunk load of diet books.

Paye Balaban the first Publix man to take up backgammon.

George Meighan, John Rinzline's Chi man, never misses an opera.

Jack Lavin is rapidly increasing his collections of passes and police stars.

Ben Serkowich sat up all one night telling the boys about New York.

Edwin Levin stepped right from a college magazine to p.a. for the Goodman.

Harry Ross went duck hunting, and admits he sniped more than his share.

Irvin Cobb visited the stockyards before he made his radio debut for Armour.

Lloyd Lewis tried to enter some of his sheep in the International Stock show.

Tommy Sacco has expanded his agency so that it now covers every amusement angle.

Norman MacDonald doing a guest star week at the Kedzie for "Jekyll and Hyde."

Sam Bramson busy explaining the pink silk handkerchiefs and the new red crepe necktie.

M. Machat is now devoting his entire time to his first love, the Gold Coast Cinema.

Aaron Saperstein scrammed to New York to be among those present at the Allied confab.

Irene Castle McLaughlin is still busy corraling dogs for her "Orphans of the Storm" shelter.

Moochers still able to find Al Dezel, even though he did move his office to the United Artists roof.

Frank Dare gets all his fun by listening to the stories his wife tells him about the neighborhood kids.

Al Williamson still thinks the Bloomington "Pantagraph," which he used to edit, is one grand rag.

Morris Silver has found his life work—it's to install louder and better tuned bells in the Wm. Morris office.

Henri Ellman back in town with a golf-bowl game. Established offices along his happy hunting ground, film row.

A new speak in town has the inside front built like a "bull pen," with customers standing while the owner OO's them.

Eddie Quillan, passing through town, dropped around to see the guys who used to book his family through 10 weeks of Illinois sticks.

Plenty of mourners for the passing of Billy Connell, old watchman for both Palaces here. Knew everybody in show business in his 17 years backstage.

Hollywood

Myron Selznick back.

J. M. Kerrigan is collecting first editions.

Roland Young returning from his visit east.

They found that English bulldog for Sue Carol.

Mae Murray indef on her plans; back this week.

Joseph von Sternberg honor guest at Breakfast Club.

Bryan Foy is back after three months in the East.

John Cromwell has a good start on a string of polo ponies.

Al Ackerman (Publix) misses San Francisco's night life.

Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld will spend the rest of the winter here.

Sandor Incze, Hungarian publisher returning to Budapest.

H. E. Swanson, "College Humor" ed., stayed over for the game.

Mrs. Wells Root parking her typewriter at Columbia these days.

Louise Dresser almost entirely recovered from her recent illness.

Arthur Edison almost as good a horsemen as he is a cameraman.

The Gershwins have taken the Louis MacLoon house in Beverly.

Carroll Graham taking a chance eating among filmites in Henry's.

Edgar Allan Woolf getting tired of climbing those Hollywood hills.

Billie Dove getting lots of envious glances in her new Paris clothes.

Will Rogers has sent his sun

Jimmie, to a boys' school on Catalina Isle.

Louis John Bartels recovering from a bad cold, but the jaw's still swollen.

Harvey Fergusson has given up hotel life in favor of a bachelor apartment.

Kenneth McKenna and Humphrey Bogart are on the nut for a sail boat apiece.

Vic McLaglen is causing a lot of excitement with a brand new crop of lip hirsute.

Shell Oil has a 30-foot Santa that questions the kids through a loud speaker.

Virginia Cherrill, one of the few 100% natural blondes in Hollywood, has long hair now.

Nat Rothstein looking much better, with plenty golf and sunshine fixing him up. (Adv.)

L. A. Press Club now getting so crowded Saturday nights it's playing to standing room.

New York "Herald" Club of old "Herald" men is dining Edward Dean Sullivan this week.

Dave Bader planning a housewarming at the new swanky apartment he has sneaked into.

Following day he received a pay-or-we-sue letter from a collection agency representing the club.

Showmen think the people are reading books and bookmen think the people are going to shows.

Sig Krumgold and Andrea Setaro turning out tunes for Paramount's synchronized picture of Sumatra.

The Bert Lytells (Grace Menken) back here from San Francisco. Expect to reach New York by the holidays.

So much foreign chatter heard around Hollywood, some are faking it to make hearers think they're in pictures.

Sixty-odd Dartmouth boys, including the football team, dining at the expense of Henry Hobart, Dartmouth alumnus.

Dave Mordecai of R-K-O'S music department stopped over long enough on his theatre tour to try out Agua Caliente.

Agent resigning from a local social club was told by the secretary that he would have to wait a few days until the board acted on his resignation.

Breakfast Club will welcome Clinton Wunder, of the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences, Dec. 11. Dr. Wunder returns then from his good-will tour of 20 cities.

Viola Brothers Shore, Par writer, sails from France Dec. 10 on the "Lafayette." With her will be her daughter, Wilma, who has been studying painting in Paris for a year. Wilma will return to Paris in January to resume her studies, while Miss Shore will be back in Hollywood for Christmas.

Miami

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Aniory are among the early arrivals.

Ross Allen and band playing at Carter's Million Dollar pier.

Emil Mossbacher has leased the T. A. Clark house for the season.

Tina Valen and Alex Kernoff dancing atop the Hotel Alcazar.

Vincent Astor's yacht, "Nourhamal," will arrive here early in January.

"Hell's Angels" opened at the Fairfax Thanksgiving to big business.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and party spending a week here deep sea fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gershwin, parents of the composer, are at the Blackstone hotel.

Cabana Club, adjoining the Roney Plaza hotel, opened here for the season Thanksgiving.

Edward Shearson has leased his ocean front home to J. Leonard Replogle, the steel magnate.

Palm Beach Golf Club opens Monday for the season. Miss Bessie Fenn, the pro in charge, arrived last week.

Mrs. Keith-Miller's flight from Havana to Miami, in which she was lost, is thought here to have been a press stunt.

Al Williams and Jimmy Doolittle, noted stunt fliers, are signed to appear here in the All-American air meet Jan. 8-10.

The blimp of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corp. arrived here Friday. It will remain all winter carrying passengers at $5 each.

Margery Durant, daughter of the automobile man, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fatio. She recently flew in from Los Angeles.

Mayflower hotel, formerly the Royal Danell, is open. New Palm Beach hotel, owned by Thomas Clark, of Brooklyn, also open.

Ross Young, general manager of the Roman Pools, is in New York signing up talent for the water sports program and the night club.

Racing stables of Mrs. Payne Whitney, J. E. Widener, and George D. Widener are among the many arrived at Hialeach Park within the past few days.

"Young" Stribling, the heavyweight contender, has entered his plane, with himself as pilot, in the All-American air meet to be held here early in January.

Mrs. Jimmy Walker and Mrs. Sophie Rodgers are motoring here from Hot Springs, Ark. The Fleishmann estate, Miami Beach, is being made ready for their arrival.

Palm Beach Players, an organization headed by Muriel McCormick, of Chicago, will open a six weeks' season in a building on Royal Palm Way, which is being converted into an intimate theatre.

The Frolics Club opens for the season Dec. 27. Hugh McKay, manager, announces the following acts for the opening: Jack Irving, tenor; Donna and Darrel, dancers, and a tab show known as the "Kit Kat Follies."

Percy Long, night club singer, filed suit today against Albert (Bottles) Capone, asking $50,000 damages in five separate forms of $10,000 each. Long alleges he was beaten by Capone in the lobby of a local hotel without cause recently.

Classified Advertisements

At Liberty—For Sale and Exchange

AT LIBERTY—Musical conductor, arranger and composer, pianist for vaudeville act, musicals; 3 years with Al Jolson. Golden Production Co., Shubert Co., Charles E. Post, c/o N. Y. A. N. Y. C.

AT LIBERTY—Baritone, good soloist and harmony man, for vaudeville or radio combination. Phone Williamsburg 4553.

FOR SALE—A number of two acts, trios and big acts. Charles Williams, 1560 Broadway, N. Y. C., Suite 307.

AT LIBERTY—Light or eccentric singing and dancing comedian. Formerly with Marion Sunshine, Jimmy Hussey, Ned Washburn. Open for anything. Peter Seaton, c/o Variety, N. Y. C.

AT LIBERTY—Young lady (Russian) dramatic soprano, wishes position with concert, stage, or radio. Can sing in 6 various languages. Call Miss Eva Kite, Sheepshead 6401, 8 p.m.

The Influence?

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Sunshine Annies who bet the wad on Southern California against Notre Dame last Saturday can use this on their spinach for sand.

One of the U. S. C. boys visiting the studios earlier in the week was asked if he was anxious to tear into those Fighting Irishmen.

"Not me," answered the Gridiron Troubadour, "I've got to protect my face for pictures."

Paris

Queen of Spain in town.

French think Al Capone is simply swell.

Scarcely a play in Paris without a pyjama scene.

Louie Cole driving the pansies wild at Bricktops.

Mrs. Earl Carroll waving goodbye to Paris from the boat train.

Eddie Dolly being taken care of nights by his sister, Jenny.

Jean Nash driving around town in one of the Duhonnet Rolls Royces.

Milton now here to snap Camile Wyn's new revue "Miami" into shape.

Helen Macginnis going over to London soon to see what she can do there, maybe.

Erskine Gwynne as usual holding up the Ritz bar at noon, and Bricktops at night.

Pianist in Fred Payne's bar finds passing the hat more profitable than a straight salary.

Pearl White still trying to get a big salary for a talker and a scenario for nothing.

Wilson and Root doing a slow waltz in the party scene of "Monsieur le Duc," talker.

Jack Hylton turning away crowds at his concert, something which Rachmaninoff didn't do.

Three hundred German extras crowding into the Joinville studios for the next German picture.

Colonel Keith Trevor's wife, Jane Marnac, in a gigolo play before her first venture into the talkers.

Thelma Edwards serving George Washington coffee and real cream to actors in her dressing room.

Ethel Levey going to the U. S. next week to see Joe Schenck. Says she will do a picture if he insists.

Tommy Ladd began his career in the Cleveland Play House which is now watching his climb with pride.

Mabel Ball comes to Paris for the lawyer, but Mrs. Levine sent the cash for the ball from America, 'tis said.

The plantation scene talker supposed to be done by Sammy Pierce, still being talked about by Sammy Pierce.

Wyn Holcomb left a library here to his friends consisting of three books. Not one on how to shake cocktails.

Walter Huston settling down to about a three months' investigation of what can be found on the Paris boulevards.

Sumurum, the beautiful English mannequin in Paris, has just been offered $2,500 for a book of her life. Compliment?

Orchestra leader in "No, No, Nanette," has jet buttons in his tailcoat and a white cotton rose in his buttonhole.

Just another rich playboy going into pictures, Harry Morgan speaking his one French line in the talker, "Monsieur le Duc."

Jan and Cora Gordon just published their latest book about the old days last year when they were extras in Hollywood.

Hannen Swaffer publishing letters he gets from his readers who want to know whether he's Chevalier's press agent.

Pepi d'Albrew and Wilda Bennett had a last minute argument which kept Pepi in Paris while Wilda went back home. Brass band saw her off at the boat train.

Princess Leila Bederkan giving weekly teas in her studio to get the friends warmed up for her recital next month. Going to dance in America around January.

Mistinguette indignant because local papers say she is going to make a picture in America, then coming back to run her own night club. 'Taint so, says Mis.

French claquer in local theatre thrown out of a job by the success of the current play, takes his case to court. Eventually thrown out of court, as judge rules that claquing is not a profession.

Clifford B. Harmon went to Berlin to get some trophy or other, but it wasn't ready, so he had to come home without it. But he had his picture taken with President somebody or other in Austria.

Aziza Emir, Egyption actress, and Menaka, Indian dancer, seen at the Mosque here having Turkish coffee. Sitting at another table a boy with a mauve carnation, pearl bracelets, red fingernails, mascared eyes and a silver necklace.

Berlin

Well known stage attorney, Dr. Arthur Wolff, is dead.

Conrad Veidt will play this season under Max Reinhardt.

At a prize dancing contest, Guenther Mertino became the king of Berlin gigolos.

A new tenor has been discovered. Name is Guenther von Berg, and he is very good looking.

It is said that Hans Gregor will take over the management of the Berlin Stadtische Oper.

Baron Hans von Bleichroeder, husband of the late Maria Orska, is going to New York to live.

Lya Mara demands damages amounting to $40,000 for an automobile accident in April, 1927.

Russian dancer Elsa Krueger, has taken over the production management of the Lothar Stark Film Co.

Max Terpis is leaving the Berlin State Opera the end of this season to go to Mailand to reorganize the Scala Ballet.

"Hollywood" is the name of a new moving picture house on Lutherstrasse opposite the Scala. Will open this year.

Alfred Polgar has written a play for Max Pallenberg named "Der Raubtierbändiger." It will be shown at the Volksbuehne.

Pudowkin, Russian film director, is expected in Berlin next month to attend the premiere of his picture, "Life is Beautiful."

Felix Salten-burg has resigned as director of the Lessing theater and and will henceforth direct only the Theatre des Westens.

Richard Eichberg has left for London to prepare his new talker for British International, "The Bridegroom's Widow."

Max Reinhardt and Victor Barnowsky are in dispute over the actor Oscar Karlweis whom they wish to engage simultaneously.

The wellknown Berlin stage director, Heinz Hilpert, will direct the next talker "3 Tage Liebe" ("3 days of love") with Kaethe Dorsch.

Lien Deyers has gone to Paris for about 10 weeks to play in the Turjansky talker, "Der Herzog von Dreistadt" ("The Duke of Dreistadt").

French Ambassador, de Margerie, attended the shooting of the film operetta "Die Marquise von Pompadour" in the Efa studio on Cicero street.

Lizzi Waldmueller, Viennese soubrette, will not return to Vienna, but will sing in the new operetta by Franz Lehar, "Die Helt 1st Schon."

Ernst Verebes will appear in the Komische Oper at Christmas in the operetta "Pepina" by Robert Stolz, with Maria Paudler and Molly Wessely.

Betty Amann is studying Polish as she intends taking part in a picture which is being written by the Polish author, Ferdinand Ossendowsky.

Film actor Ernst Verebes, has become engaged to the opera singer, Gitta Alpar. The designer Herbert Dassel is betrothed to Erika Helmke, actress.

Robert Siodmak will shoot his new talker, "Voruntersuchung," ("Preliminary Trial"), with Erich Pommer for Ufa. Production the end of January.

Wilhelm Dieterle has had suit filed against him by the Silvia Film Co., for breach of contract because he has not returned from his Warner engagement in Hollywood.

Famous Hungarian opera singer, Sari Fedak, will appear here in the operetta "Die kluge Mama"; the same role she will sing in French in Paris and in Hungarian in Budapest.

Thea von Harbou and Fritz Lang gave a charitable reception at the Kaiserhof for the benefit of old artists. It was crowded by prominent personalities of political, stage, literary, art, film, and press fame.

Toronto

Joe Carr now manager of the Imperial.

Sinclair Lewis to picket it, Morley Callaghan.

Merrill Dennison's "Toronto the Good" playing Winnipeg.

Edgar Hoe, the poet, threat to do CKCL's morning broadcasts.

Wilson Macdonald's "Caw-Caw Ballads" go 1,258 copies in three weeks.

The Australian, Rofia Holdon, traveling 7,000 miles to marry Bobby Pearce.

Singing Consentino's heart affair crashes with prospective papa-in-law suing for back loans.

Jack Norworth and Mark Swan doctoring "People Like Us." Opens at the Empire here Dec. 22.

Jack Henderson called out that 35,000 word blog of Premier Ferguson in six days and nights.

Harriett (Happy) Ball will press agent for Maurice Colborne productions in trans-Canada rep tour.

Clarence Darrow sends congratulatory epistle to Sen McTaggart, local scribe, who covered recent debate for "Mail."

G. G. Garrette claims "Dumbells Revue" grossing $10,000 a week in Western Canada tour. Film men raise sceptical eyebrows.

Golf Under Canvas

Woonsocket, R. I., Dec. 9.

A big baby golf course is being operated in a tent here. Attempt is being made to provide heat by a blower system, shooting hot air from two furnaces.

Cost of the tent and heating plant is estimated at $6,000.

Racing Sheets Cutting

"Morning Telegraph" last week let out 35 employes in its engraving department without notice. The department, which was known as the Thomas Engraving Co., will be taken over by the Powers Engraving Co. Economy wave has also hit "Daily Running Horse," racing paper, owned by Moe Annenberg and the same interests that operate the "Telegraph" and "Racing Form," the first to be aired being Mack, the cartoonist, creator of "Parley Pete."

NEW YORK THEATRES

THE THEATRE GUILD Presents
ELIZABETH, THE QUEEN
GUILD THEATRE
52nd., West of B'way
Evgs. 8:40. Mats. Thurs. & Sat., 2:40.

ROAR CHINA
MARTIN BECK TH., 45th W. 8th Av.
Evgs. 8:50. Mats. Thurs. & Sat., 2:50

LAST 4 WEEKS
BROCK PEMBERTON Presents
Strictly Dishonorable
Preston Sturges' Famous Comedy
with TULLIO CARMINATI
Staged by Antoinette Perry & Mr. Pemberton
Never at Cut-Rates
AVON THEATRE, West 45th Street
Evgs. 8:50 Mats Thurs. & Sat. 2.30

DAVID BELASCO presents
HELEN GAHAGAN in
"TONIGHT OR NEVER"
"Miss Gahagan has a powerful, well-trained voice of operatic dimensions and could make her mark as a singer if she were not also an actress of extremely high voltage."—Robert Littell, World.
BELASCO THEA., W. 44th St. Evs. 8.40. Mats. Thur. & Sat.

EARL CARROLL VANITIES
EIGHTH EDITION
67 Glittering Scenes—1,000 Laughs
Herb. WILLIAMS—Jimmy SAVO—Jack BENNY
& Cast of 150 and the
Most Beautiful Girls in the World
Evgs. Good Seats 50c, $1, $1.50, $2 & $3
Wed. and Sat. Matinees, Entire Orchestra, $2.50
NEW AMSTERDAM W. 42nd St.

RKO Always a Good Show
PALACE 47th ST. & B'WAY
MISS HELEN KANE
NICK LUCAS
BENNY RUBIN
LULU McCONNELL
and KEN MURRAY
58th ST. AT THIRD AVE.
Wednesday to Friday, Dec. 10-12
"BIG MONEY"
With Eddie Quillan—
Robt. Armstrong
Billy Kelly & Co.
86th ST. AT LEX. AVE.
Wednesday to Friday, Dec. 10-12
"BIG MONEY"
With Eddie Quillan—
Robt. Armstrong
RUTH ETTING in Person

WILLIAM HAINES
in "Remote Control"
A METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER Picture
Stage Show—Dave Schooler, Jules Bledsoe, Bunchuk—Orchestra
CAPITOL B'WAY & 51st St.

ROXY 50th St. & 7th Ave. Dir. of S. L. Rothafel (ROXY)
2ND WEEK
WILL ROGERS
as LIGHTNIN'
with LOUISE DRESSER
Fox Movietone Production
On the Stage—"Gipsy Festival" also Full Roxy Ensemble

Sacha Guitry's French Farce
"SLEEPING PARTNERS"
All Laughing—All Talking—with
LYN HARDING EDNA BEST SEYMOUR HICKS
GEO. COHAN Theatre, Cor. 43rd St. Evs. 8.40 Mats. B'way & 43 to Moderate Prices

Midwest publishing house advertising in the writers' mags for a playwright to go under regular salary. Maybe got the idea from the picture people.

Among the Women

By The Skirt

The Best Dressed Woman of the Week
ANN ANDREWS
"A Kiss of Importance"
(Fulton Theatre)

Smart Clothes

Ann Andrews is wearing smart clothes in "A Kiss of Importance" at the Fulton. Her beige velvet dress had a hat of the same and a wide collar was of mink with a muff to match. Black velvet pajamas with a white frilly blouse underneath, had for trimming tiny rhinestone buttons. The legs of the trousers were slit to the knees. A white chiffon morning gown had the long sleeves once known as angel. At the back hung a circular scarf of sable. This same scarf was used on a flame velvet made like the white and worn over same.

Basil Rathbone is a model of what the best dressed man is wearing. The white satin sofa and the beige velvet davenport in the second and third act will probably remain clean for the duration of this show, which is destined to be short.

An admirable cast is worthy a better story.

"Grand Hotel" Grand

"Grand Hotel" at the National is attracting audiences different from most. Evening clothes are more in evidence and the people look like those who go to theatre only when it is worth while. What music it must be for the management to hear night after night the lobby barker calling out, "No seats left for this performance."

"Grand Hotel" is a grand show and deserves the praise heard everywhere. It is one big dramatic revue with a series of dramatic blackouts if you must know. It's all new and novel in that way. Be in your seats before the first curtain otherwise you will be kept waiting on the mat until that particular period has passed.

A fine bit of casting someone did with this play. Eugenie Leontovich, around for many seasons finding nothing to suit her particular talents, has at last arrived. How or why she was passed up in Hollywood is another of that colony's secrets. An actress of charm, gestures and shades.

And with it all she's a very good dresser. Clothes look like something on her tall slim figure. A boudoir outfit was a long gold brocade coat worn over a white satin slip. Another negligee was of pale grey made long and clinging with a band of chinchilla at the hem. Leontovich was lovely in a white ballet outfit and was ravishing in a gold dress and coat sumptuously trimmed with sable. The hat was a round affair real Russian in style of the gold and fur. Her black tailored was made in the prevailing fashion with the trimming of astrakan. The tiny veiled hat was most becoming.

Hortense Alden, always a favorite, and as a typist here, 100%, wore simple clothes but wore them well. A tiny black bolero was worn over a red cloth dress and a black velvet with nip ruffles was the outfit in the cafe scene.

Women walk through this play with no spoken word but dressed in the latest modes.

Siegfried Rumann and Sam Jaffe give outstanding performances, in fact the work of Herr Rumann is as fine as anything ever seen in New York. But it fell to Mr. Jaffe to receive the heartiest applause at the end an evening well spent.

Holtz, Wynn, Etc.

Lou Holtz' name should go right up with Ed Wynn's in the picture, "Follow the Leader," at the Paramount. Since Mr. Holtz made the smashing hit at the R-K-O Palace he has become a figure on Broadway. We could stand more pictures with this boy.

Mr. Wynn is going to amuse a public that sees little of the theatre. "Follow the Leader" is good comedy, a little tiresome at times but still amusing enough for the general public.

Ginger Rogers does nicely in it in a small way. She isn't allowed any dancing, but goes through dressed at first in simple sport clothes and then three lovely evening frocks. One was a two-flounce affair with rhinestone trimming, another was white organdie with ruffles placed at intervals with a neckline to match, still another was of chiffon and crystal.

Ethel Merman is unfortunate in screening badly, but her voice comes over nicely. A dandy fringed evening frock was of a dotted material, and a street outfit was of black with a tiny white figure.

Reisman's Rhythm

Leo Reisman has his band on the Paramount stage in white mess jackets and this Reisman orchestra is the last word in rhythm.

May Joyce does a couple of numbers, in periwinkle blue chiffon. Her long bob is so childish the dress looked a little old. A Gambarelli Ballet was done beautifully in white long ballets skirts. No bodices, just brassiers. Sleeves in the form of full cuffs fell from the elbows. Silver sequins were plentifully sprinkled over the costumes and the headdresses were huge diamond sunbursts.

Four nice looking girls were in white cloth trousers with blouses of white satin and red waistcoats, and white berets. These girls did some tapping, a credit to their unknown stager.

Boudoirs Minus Diplomats

"The Command to Love" comes to the screen as the Boudoir Diplomat" at the Globe. Four boudoirs, but the diplomat wasn't in any of them.

Scenically the picture can be said to be successful, but the casting is bad and the dialog worse.

Betty Compson, Mary Duncan and Jeanette Loff are the girls. The clothes on Miss Duncan were very fussy with lots of fol-de-rols, and meant little. Miss Compson's were no better, although a black with an ermine top looked promising. Miss Loff with but a minor role, appeared in clothes consistent of the imaginary country in which the story was supposed to take place.

Palace Perks Up

Another good show at the Palace, so the bad ones are forgotten. Monday afternoon looked like the old days. Ken Murray, as master of ceremonies, is doing the job of his life and there isn't a dull moment. Even Nick Lucas is only doing 16 minutes.

Helen Brown, with the Albertina Rasch dancers, number two, finish with a wedding ballet. Novel and well done. The girls are in full ruffled skirts with large lace trimmed leghorn hats. The color scheme is yellow green, pink and mauve. Pajamas of pink satin laced up the sides with blue ribbons were used for another number, and red leather jackets with dark blue skirts were the opening costume. Miss Brown appeared first in a grey coat with lamb collar and carried a muff. Her hat of gold had a pink ribbon band. She did a toe tap dance in black velvet pants and a print chiffon blouse. Berets were worn by the company matching the different changes.

Lulu McConnell, in her well known bridge sketch, was in black chiffon. Her companion, Virginia Mann, wore a printed chiffon. Mr. Murray

(Continued on page 55)

Did You Know That

Schwab and Mandel are said to be almost entirely recasting the show they bought from Connolly and Swanstron . . . Lee Tracy gives a swell performance, as usual, in "Ol Promise Me" . . . Marlene Deitrich's legs are the most gorgeous on the screen . . . Jeanette MacDonald had her lungs pumped with oxygen to relieve a cold, in order to sing on the Fleischmann radio hour the other night. She left immediately after for California . . . Bobbie Perkins has returned from a visit to Washington . . . Grace Brinkley looked smart in a green suit with a tiny green moleskin jacket and hat, lunching at Rumplemayer's the other day . . . Helen Gahagan deserves a great deal of credit for developing a fine voice in a comparatively short time . . . Carmel Myers is negotiating with R-K-O for a vaudeville tour . . . Dorothy Hall and Neal Andrews are moving into their new pent house any day now . . . Freddie March's mustache is in full bloom . . . Mrs. Delroy, mother of Irene, is recuperating from a serious accident when she was knocked down by an automobile on Park Avenue . . . Raydie Harris took a week-end in Atlantic City to rest after her strenuous work of late . . . Mrs. Max Winslow is quite a French student . . . the former Elizabeth Hines was strolling down Madison avenue the other day in a beige fur coat and cunning little brown tricorn hat . . . Ned Marin's getting over his influenza nicely on the Coast . . . Marion Davies wore a black coat trimmed in blue fox and a tiny black velvet cloche at the Sunday night benefit for the profession . . . one of the ladies who appeared on the bill was a little "nic nic . . . they're still rejoicing here about the Notre Dame-U. S. C. game . . . Marlyn Miller has the former Carrie and Grantland (dressmakers) in her employ . . . Carol Dempster (Larson) wore a stunning red suit trimmed in Alencons lace, lunching at the Ritz on Monday.

MARLENE A CHAMELEON WITH PERSONAL CHARM

Marlene Dietrich has a curious faculty of looking like many actresses (Jeannie Eagels, Billie Burke, and Garbo among others) and yet, remaining distinctly herself, an ingenue presence with a husky, slightly hard-boiled delivery. Her greatest assets are sincerity and restraint. She never spreads emotion too thickly; she keeps the tones of her voice musical and low, accomplishing more with a whisper than many actresses can with hysterical screams.

In "Blue Angel" she has been given freer rein than in "Morocco," in which it was apparent that the director was striving to keep her in the Garbo mold. It is folly to make her copy anybody's style, since her own is compelling.

A German importation she is supposedly the only English-speaking member of UFA's "Blue Angel" treatment which gives reason to the English speech throughout the film and is acceptable since the star's own speech is only faintly tinged with foreign accent. But by no stretch of imagination can she be considered America. Her songs are rendered with Continental phrasing, and she wears frankly vulgar costumes with the superb nonchalance of a born Rathskellar entertainer.

The costumes of "Blue Angel" are lusty and inoffensive bits of daring, forcibly establishing atmosphere and creating dramatic background that often steals importance from the slow doddering plot.

Wigman Dance Sunday

Mary Wigman, European dancer, will be presented at the Chanin theatre by S. Hurok for two sunday night concerts, Dec. 28 and Jan. 4.

RITZY

First debutante of the season to become engaged is Elizabeth Munn, who will marry George T. Glazebrook, grandson of Otis A. Glazebrook, former American Consul in Nice. Elizabeth is a daughter of Orson D. Munn, president of "The Scientific American" (now married to Carolyn Nunder), by his first wife, the late Margaret Lawrence, actress. Miss Lawrence subsequently married the late Wallace Eddinger, astor, and was murdered by Louis Bennison, actor, who then committed suicide.

Elizabeth has a sister, Louisine Munn, named after a great aunt, the late Mrs. Henry O. Havemeyer, who left an immensely valuable collection of paintings to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

In the Register

Mrs. Victor Cumming is in the social register and so are her daughters, Rose Cumming, interior decorator, and Mrs. Cumming Elliott, actress. The latter, as Dorothy Cumming, acted for David Belasco, and in pictures.

She divorced Frank Elliott Dakin, stage director, known as Frank Elliott, father of her two children. Now it is reported she may marry A. Edward Ellis, of Park Avenue, who recently separated from his wife, some years his senior. Mrs. Ellis was Nellie Wood, and divorced Thomas McKee, of Pittsburgh, father of her grown-up son, Henry S. McKee 2d.

Ellis recently sold his seat on the Stock Exchange for a reported price of $400,000.

Lefty Flynn's Past

For some months past Maurice "Lefty" Flynn, former Yale football star, has been paying attention to an American Society woman who lives in London. He was first divorced by Blanche Palmer, show girl, and later by Viola Dana, film actress.

Viola was the widow of John Collins, director, and she finally married Jimmy Thomson, professional golfer, her junior. Flynn acted in several pictures.

Viola, daughter of Emil A. Flugraph, is a sister of Edna Flugraph and Shirley Mason, actresses. Edna is the widow of Harold Shaw, director. Shirley was the widow of Bernard Durning, director, and, after being engaged to Harlan Gengdar, auto-racer, she married Sidney Landfield, director.

Last week's "Razzing the Home Town" treated of Baltimore. Well known show people from there include Catherine Calvert and Rida Johnson Young, playwright.

Phoebe Foster and Viola Tree are featured in "The Truth Game," by Ivor Novello, in which Novello and Billie Burke are co-starred. Miss Foster, who was Angeline Eager, married Harold Le Roy Whitney, New York society man, after his divorce from Kathryn Fisher. Mrs. Fisher Whitney remains in the Social Register, but Harold was dropped.

Josephine Victor's Birthplace

Josephine Victor is directing "Dr. X" for the Brandts. The play is by Howard Comstock, who wrote "Stepping Sisters," and Dorothy Pitou, daughter of Augustus Pitou, will have the leading role.

Miss Victor was born in Hungary, but was educated in New York, studying art at Cooper Union. She acted with Howard Kyle from 1902 until 1905, later playing important parts in "The Secret Orchard," 1905, "The Battle," 1910, "The Temperamental Journey," 1913, and "Just a Woman," 1916.

Two Morgans Among Wives

James Vail Converse recently married Ruth Morgan, "Smiles" show girl. He was first divorced by Nadine Melbourne, who then became the fourth wife of the late J. Ellis Hoffman, whom she divorced.

Converse was next divorced by Thelma Morgan, who later married Lord Furness, of London. Years ago Thelma Morgan played bits in pictures. Her twin sister is the widow of Reginald C. Vanderbilt.

Converse then married Elizabeth Walker, who had divorced Frank A. Brastow 2d. A few weeks ago she was killed in an accident. Converse in choosing a fourth wife, chose another Miss Morgan. This one was in Hollywood pictures, and later became a show girl in "Whoopee" for Ziegfeld. Her father is District Attorney at Fairmont, Va., and her mother, Mrs. M. Earle Morgan, types manuscripts for magazines.

Strollers Club's 44th

The 44th annual dinner of the Strollers Club was held last night (9), in the club rooms on the fourth floor of the Hotel Delmonico, when the new stage was dedicated. Robert Cornell Sands is president, and Edward Fales Coward m. c. On the committee were John Golden, Poultney Bigelow and John Adams Mayer. Mayer was formerly editor of "Town Topics," having previously been it's reporter for several years, retiring after marrying Dorothy Quick, heiress daughter of Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Mumford. Mayer once announced he had written a play, and later announced his wife had also written one.

Pulitzer Children

"Variety" reported a possibility of "The World" being taken over by "The Times," if the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer can be manipulated. The heirs include three sons and two daughters.

The present Joseph Pulitzer was first married to the late Elinor Wickham, and is now married to Elizabeth Edgar. Herbert Pulitzer married Gladys Munn, who divorced Charles Minot Armory. (Armory then became the fourth husband of Margaret Emerson, daughter of Isaac Emerson of Baltimore, "Bromo-Seltzer" millionaire.) Ralph Pulitzer was divorced by Fredericka Webb, who then married Cyril H. Jones. Ralph then married Margaret Leech. Constance Pulitzer married William Gray Emslie, and Edith Pulitzer married William S. Moore, grandson of Clement C. Moore, millionaire clergyman, who wrote the poem, "Twas the Night Before Christmas!"

A fashionable wedding last week at St. Bartholomew's Church was that of William C. Ladd and Natalie Potter, society girl who acted in "Let Us Be Gay" and "Those We Love."

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Professor Charles S. Sargent, of Harvard, and the bridegroom is a grandson of the late Professor George T. Ladd, of Yale.

Dress Glitter Detracts From Charm of Singer

Doris Robbins, at the 86th Street, commits an unfortunate error of stage dressing. The eyes of the audience are constantly drawn away from her face—a pleasant one, with nice expressions and a warm smile—by the sparkling beads intricately sewn on a bodice of white chiffon.

Under a spotlight, the gown radiates reflections to the farthest corner and detracts attention from her personality and story-type of song. Miss Robbins copies the Merman style of broken rhythms against an accompaniment complicated enough to drive any orchestra leader crazy.

Evelyn Dean is assisted in songs and dances by a sextet of boy hoofers. Her gowns, which are well chosen for color, stress skirt transparencies and are graceful in dance movement.

"Antics of 1931, a Glimpse of Tomorrow's Fun," turns out to be an assemblage of yesterday's wisecracks, black-outs and costumes, but agreeable amusement, nevertheless.

MARRIAGES

Elsie Walters to Guy Stratton in Lancaster, Pa., recently. Bride, staff pianist WHAM (Rochester). Groom, chief pilot for Kenny Flying Service of Buffalo.

Edith J. Foley, short story writer, to Frank Shay, founder of the Caravan Theatre and former owner and manager of "The Barnstormers," at Provincetown, Mass., Dec. 6.

Helen Lynd, actress, to Al Melnick, agent, at Newark, N. J., Dec. 6.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Yates Langley, in hospital in Newcastle, Pa., recently, son.

The Parisian Front

By Christine

Paris, Nov. 26.

There is one day in the year when French girls without husbands do both a little public praying on the subject, and also celebrating. They celebrate to console themselves and pray that the lack may be filled during the year. Because if you are 25 and spouseless in France and earn your living by an honest profession, you are entitled to a little public sympathy.

Yesterday was the big day for this. All the Catherinettes (meaning over or under 25 and without wedding lines) took the whole day off to parade the streets in fancy costume and large elaborate bonnets. St. Catherine had at least several thousand petitions for husbands wafted up to her early in the day, as the French girl has great faith that she can find a man where no one else could. After this was taken care of the girls gave themselves over to forgetting their single cursedness in public revelry.

Since most of these femmes are employed by the big dressmaking houses here, that was where most of the parties were held. Each big dressmaking house takes this opportunity for a little free publicity, by throwing a big party and letting their employees parade for prizes in costume. A few months before St. Catherine's Day they allow the girls to choose what materials they need for costumes, supplying it free of charge. Thus on the day itself the midinettes come forth in dresses of their own imaginations and often very fine materials.

A midinette is the name for anyone in a dressmaking establishment from the girl who picks up needles and pulls basting threads to the sewer of final seams. Their ages range from 12 to beyond 35.

Afternoon at Circus

Yesterday, Captain Molyneux, whose dressmaking house is one of the swankest in Paris, took over the whole circus for the afternoon. The little midinettes and their families or boy friends were ranged along the upper rows, while the journalists and big silk and fabric dealers—as well as some of the best French society—got into the boxes and the front rows. The Molyneux door and elevator men were sprightly m. c.'s. The program furnished from the current bill at the circus, was pretty complete, including mostly clowns, horses and one of the handsomest athletes ever seen. After the show the midinettes got into the arena and displayed their costumes and bonnets. You can choose—either wear an elaborate bonnet or an original costume. Some of the headgear was startling to say the least, containing everything from flower baskets with real flowers to bird's nests and violins made out of lace. The costumes showed tremendous ingenuity, and seeing them, it is perfectly simple to realize why Paris has the monopoly on fashions, when such kids who do the most menial tasks in a sewing room are able to make for themselves really extraordinary clothes.

Although they always seem to have a swell time on their one day in the year, nevertheless every midinette goes to bed that night hoping she won't be so much in the limelight the next year. She never minds being a midinette with a working certificate, but a Catherinette without a marriage ditto is a plain bore for 364 days in the year anyway.

French Sugar Daddy

How every little Broadway golddigger would like to know the type of sugar daddy now being played on the current Paris stage. He's not good looking, a little bald and appears over 60 years and a crick in both knees to his credit. But what a boy and what a bank account, and above all what ideas! If he sees you have it in you to be elegant, cold haughty and beautiful he's willing to develop you that way and all expenses paid.

Of course, as J. P. McEvoy would say, never make the mistake of being grateful for a fox fur when it's sables you want. If you want to be an artist or an actor (sometimes there is a difference) he is willing to put you through school and no questions asked.

Perhaps the best part of the situation is that the old man encourages you to encourage boy friends, just so you don't go picking and choosing among the lower classes, and eventually get the ordinary idea of becoming someone's little wife.

To sum it all up, he's a perfect creature and so rare it would be impossible to find him any place but on the stage.

Cooking School

There is a cooking school in Paris for elegant ladies. Both American and French learn to toss a mean omelette here, but not even a French woman is is president. Mrs. Paul Ettinger (Ethel Capehart) is at the head, Mrs. Cole Porter and lots of other English speaking femmes learn to keep their husbands in this school.

The other day the Countess du Boisrouvray (sister of the Prince of Monaco) was taking a turn with the gravy, while a lot of French senators' wives were standing around listening to Francois Ranavolo—fancy French chef—discourse on sauces and pastries.

Mildred Syre Squawks

Screams from Mildred Syre of the Folies Marigny on reading this column wherein Vivian Hunt was spoken of as the only American show girl in Paris. Mildred has been there all the time, but escaped notice during the rehearsal when Vivian's history was being collected. They both occupy the same dressing room and agree that it's fun working in a French revue—Mildred more than Vivian but then maybe it's all in the personality and the way you take a new experience.

Throwing Out Americans

Now that Mrs. Harry Symes Lehr has gone to Palm Beach for the season and everybody else has gone to St. Moritz or somewhere for the winter sports—and that the Seine is rising and the stock market still falling, Paris isn't so active socially.

Ganna Walska, however, rallied this week with a party in her box at the Challapin opera. She didn't have any Americans, only princesses and countesses. The only places holding out for the Americans still left in Paris are the American women's Club, Bricktops, Monseigneurs and the Ritz Bar. On the Left Bank—the Dome.

The best beer place on the arty side of the Seine gets nasty to Americans in winter. Their French trade is back. Within the past month at least 50 American newspaper men and their friends have been requested to get out and stay out, because the management says they make too much noise over their beer.

Razzing the Town

(Continued from page 48)

and he only missed one in the last ten years. That was Mary Garden, who was hurt or else sick. The mayor had a cold sore and stayed home.

What Jensen Did

It was C. S. Jensen of Jensen and Von Herberg who first got the local film market into shape. Jensen lined up six large houses and ran them with an iron hand. But the burg was on the map then and had three vaudeville houses.

Frank McGettigan was the old boss of the local Orpheum. His claim was that he had the only top gallery still doing business on the coast. That was around 1923, but Chi bookers never could see the town as anything but a jump from Seattle to Frisco. This was a split week at $1 top and they did capacity biz. The famous 15 cent gallery lined 'em up for blocks and downstairs they went to see vaudeville in boiled shirts and party suits.

Some of the local home folks like to call the tank the City of Roses. They play at it every summer, electing queens, jacks and spending ten spots. Nothing ever comes of that, except a few feet of newsreel, so maybe it's a good racket. Latest wrinkle is to stage a big circus Rose Festival week.

Just one other thing this burg is famous for, besides the tall timber and the hard benches at the union depot—and that's its 101% holy-pure water supply. They never stop yelping about how pure the water is, which seems kind of silly because who wants to drink water without a future?

Tears Suppressed Most Affecting, Film Proves

Marion Nixon's tough characterization in "Scarlet Pages" is only skin deep. She sneers a lot and tries to coarsen her voice, but underneath superficialities she is still a picture ingenue merely reciting lines. In all but one scene—and that, a surprising display of real tears—her performance is void of emotion.

The trick in acting is not to be able to cry, but to make audiences cry for you, since unrestrained weeping is apt to leave an audience cold. A cagier style is exemplified by Elsie Ferguson who, as an attorney, discovers during the trial that she is pleading for the life of her own daughter. Miss Ferguson's eyes brim over with tears she fights to control, her voice chokes with emotion, and the audience is deluged with sympathy.

On the Pacific

By Grace Green

Hollywood, Dec. 8.

Reflecting the pre-holiday season, Hollywood is sort of dull these days. Nothing much doing and people aren't interested in doing much. Openings have subsided and excepting for another Mayfair this Saturday, when Knute Rockne and his Notre Dame football players will attend, not much to look forward to.

Those who like to do things are starting to wonder when the Agua Caliente season starts again, Xmas when the racing season commences. Al Jolson, in anticipation, and hungry for something to do, probably, has sent for two of his horses from his racing stable. Many will celebrate their Xmas and New Year's below the border.

In line with people starved for action, the U. S. California-Notre Dame game seems to be the biggest thing in the existences of most people this week. By the time this sees print it will be all over, but they sure are abnormally enthusiastic about their football out here.

The Holiday Spirit

Hollywood boulevard is like the rest of the scenery out here, a big carnival circus right now with artificial Xmas trees lining the boulevard. Looks very spiffy and is costing the merchants lots for all those electric lights. Many Iowans, Kansans and New Yorkers will probably get those glazed fruit baskets which are now displayed even in stationery and drug stores. Ex-service men are selling Xmas seals; everybody is trying to cash in on the holiday spirit in some manner.

"Ghosts" Split Draw

At the opening of Hendrik Ibsen's "Ghosts" at the Vine St., starring Mrs. Patrick Campbell and featuring Tom Douglas, the house was only half full, but made up in enthusiasm for the vacant seats.

While somewhat of a talky play, it was capably done and gathered force as the play progressed.

Theda Bara, wearing a fitted black velvet gown with jeweled shoulder straps, and a striking tomato-red coat with enormous collar and cuffs of beige fox, was an interested and interesting attendant.

The Medburys' Party

The John P. Medburys threw one of those Hollywood parties in honor of their house guest, Eva Clarke, vaude comedienne, who looked lovely in a brown velvet dress with a gold brocade vestee. Gilda Grey was there in a turquoise lame gown and turban with which she wore a stunning sable coat. Mary Brian wore a smart frock of Persian-flowered black metal cloth.

Happy-go-lucky Polly Moran had everyone laughing as usual. Shush—secret: Polly has been secretly married to a second husband, William Kyarda, Detroit real estate man, for the last three years. Anyway, that's what Polly confessed.

Pretty Mary Osterman, who was there with her husband, Jackie, was bragging their "I-do" lasted three years longer than most of us anticipated.

Margaret Young, married to one of the Mosconi brothers, is still a natural born comedienne and should be a talking picture comedy find.

Eugene Stark, former manager of the Roosevelt Hotel, now has a delightfully decorated restaurant of his own, specializing in favorite German dishes. Rarely does one miss seeing a screen face or two. Evidently enjoying their food, Carmel Myers, recently, looked chic in a black velvet suit with which she wore a cute black velvet hat trimmed with blue.

Jetta Goudal looked snappy in an all black ensemble.

Gwen Lee teddy-bearish in a long white fur coat, wore dress, hat and gloves all of black. Her blonde hair against the combination was quite striking.

M. S. Bentham's suit for commission, growing out of placing Dorothy Appleby with "Young Sinners," now on tour, was settled out of court this week by agreement between Harold Goldblatt, representing Bentham, and William Klein, attorney for Miss Appleby. Matter involved $315 balance of commission claimed.

Sables Cost Good Name

A lady loses her good name when she wears a sable coat. That, at any rate, is the preachment of "Extravagance," a thin film, as tiresome as most marital disputes. But, no matter how maligned are the sables in question, they photograph with rich lustre and are, by far, the most convincing members of the cast.

June Collyer, as the wife whose extravagance leads her to the doors of the divorce court, is tiresome with overworked ingenue manners, and Dorothy Christy is artificial and unconvincing as another foolish matron.

Among the Women

(Continued from page 52)

introduced a nice looking Spanish girl who knew all the answers. She was in black velvet trimmed with blue rosettes on the caped sleeves. This girl would go far with a good straight man.

Helen Kane was a good sized hit with the help of Mr. Murray. Miss Kane was neatly garbed in a red georgette dress made quite plain. The skirt had three narrow ruffles at the hem and the neck had three layers of the georgette laid on in bands. There was a narrow belt with a diamond buckle. Helen Charleston, living up to her name, was in sparkling rompers with a huge red bow in back.

Timing a Benefit

The benefit for the unemployed actor at the Ziegfeld theatre Sunday night was a surprise, not for the actors who appeared but for the actors who didn't.

The masters of ceremonies were, DeWolf Hooper, Victor Moore, Jack Benny, Billy Gaxton, Julius Tannen, George Jessel and Benny Rubin. The show opened with The Six Cracker Jacks with the one colored girl in the act wearing a periwinkle blue velvet dress with white apron and cap. She changed to a pink dotted net with a green sash. They did 8 minutes. Rudy Vallee did 3¼ minutes. The Demarcos did 3¾ minutes. Jane Aubert, in all white, did 5 minutes. Jimmy Savo did 8¾ minutes. Kay Kavanaugh with girl from the "Vanities" and the boy tappers did 13 minutes.

Ginger Rogers in pale blue chiffon with accordian plaited flounce and sprinkled with brilliants, did 5¾ minutes. Chic Sale was on for 5 minutes. Bernice Claire, in a lovely frock of white lace made with long sleeves was on for nearly 3 minutes. Ethel Barrymore was emotional in a black lace gown. Burns and Allen did 3 minutes with the lady of the act in a mink coat and black hat. Gus Edwards held the stage for 10 minutes. Norma Terris, English, extra, with Rex Evans, did 11 minutes. Her costume was a black velvet two-piece suit with colored blouse. Lina Basquette deigned but a bow. She was in black lace and large black velvet hat. Jim Barton crashed for 10 minutes. Libby Holman also in black lace did but one song, 3 minutes.

Fredric March, Florence Eldridge, Basil Rathbone, Agnes Ayres, Lee Tracy Montague Love and the Nash Sisters made a brief appearance to help the less fortunate. Fannie Ward appeared in pale blue for just a second. The real spirit was shown by the Roxyettes, who after doing five or six shows that day at the Roxy, appeared as full of pep at the benefit as though it were their first show.

Ann Codee, in black velvet and gold jacket, did 8 minutes, and Dora Maughn did 6 in a flame chiffon.

It was then midnight with Ted Healy, Helen Kane, Ken Murray and the Minnevitch gang still expected.

Verree Teasdale's Sweet Potato Pie

Three cups mashed sweet potatoes, yellow yams preferred; 2 tablespoons butter; 3 tablespoons sugar; 1 tablespoon syrup; 3 egg yolks beaten; ½ teaspoon mace; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg; 3 cups rich milk; 1 teaspoon vanilla; boil and mash potato; put through colander.

Add butter and beat; next add sugar, syrup and egg yolks, beaten lighly; three cups milk, add extra milk if too thick; add mace, nutmeg and vanilla; three whites of egg beaten.

Line pie tin with a rich pastry dough and bake mixture as for pumpkin pie. Before serving cover top with currant jelly and top with whipped cream.

(Send around a piece if it comes out all right.)

New Show Needed Those Three Boys

"The New Yorkers," at the Broadway theatre, would be a sorry affair without Clayton, Jackson and Durante. These boys capture the show. They did all their old numbers and made Cole Porter's songs sound like dirges. Mr. Porter must have been out of sorts when he wrote for this newest of revues.

Hope Williams, from the legit, is very nice but a girl from the musical stage could have done much better. Two white chiffon dresses and three ermine wraps formed Miss Williams' wardrobe, excepting for pajamas. There was a pajama wedding and Miss Williams' were of white chiffon with a silver coat.

Frances Williams was her clever self but her numbers are sad. She wore two sets of pajamas. One of solid brilliants was particularly beautiful and so were the pale blue velvet ones. A bluish silver frock was worn with scarlet slippers. Her black chiffon velvet was so thin Miss Williams' suspender buckles showed.

Ann Pennington was there, but not much in evidence. Her first frock was a ruffled affair with green moline with coat fur-trimmed. Her dancing was done in a single row of ruching with brilliants for brassieres. A red velvet coat and skirt was followed by sailor-like pajamas of blue.

The chorus was dressed right up to the minute in all numbers. In the first night club scene the girls were in evening frocks in all shades and each a different model. At a penthouse party the material used for the dresses of the chorus was the last word. On a white ground were huge painted designs, each a different color combination.

A real Weber and Fields number had the girls in short pants and large hats. Bridesmaides were in chartreuse pajamas with a different shade of green coat and horse-hair hats.

It was nice to see Marie Cahill on the stage again, but what a pity Miss Cahill sang no song. Surely Mr. Porter could find inspiration in this talented lady. She wouldn't have to bo-no-po-do, either. In black velvet with rhinestones Miss Cahill looked charming, as she also did in pale blue and ermine. The finale she was in a printed chiffon of the orange shades.

The Broadway theatre hasn't a trace left of the Colony. It ranks with Broadway's best theatres.

News From the Dailies

This department contains rewritten theatrical news items as published during the week in the daily papers of New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Hollywood and London. Variety takes no credit for these news items; each has been rewritten from a daily paper.

NEW YORK

Charlotte Pixel Erlanger, asserted to be the common-law wife of the late A. L. Erlanger, lost another round in her fight to win the widow's share of the theatrical magnate's $75,000,000 estate. Appellate Division ruled against her application for an order for a pre-trial examination of Saul J. Baron, one of the executors of the will, and Leonard Bergman, Erlanger's nephew.

Arraigned on a charge of violating the Sullivan law and felonious assault, Lucille Lavelle, artists's model, was held in $10,000 bail. She is accused of having threatened Herman Saegart, taxi driver, with a gun. Through her attorney, she denied the charge and said she was on her way to shoot Rudy Cameron, whom she hailed to court recently on a charge of assault.

Frederick Jagel, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co., suffered a fractured leg when struck by an automobile as he was about to enter his home in Kew Gardens, Queens.

Inez Norton, show girl and sweetheart of the late Arnold Rothstein, was awarded $20,000 of his insurance by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, which reversed the decision of the lower court.

Miss Norton sued the trustee of the estate on the basis of a policy taken out by Rothstein in her favor a short time before he was shot in the Park Central Hotel in November, 1928.

Application for a change of frequency and hours of operation was filed by municipal radio station WNYC with the Federal Radio Commission. Station asked for unlimited time on 70 kilocycles, now used by WCFL of Chicago. WNYC shares time with WMCA on 570 kilos.

Sydelle Parker tied up the Traffic Court when she attempted to pay a $5 fine for speeding by tossing a $1,000 bill at the clerk. Court didn't have enough money to change it. After a slight delay the actress found something smaller in her purse. It was a $100 bill.

Charging Bishop William T. Manning with "vague and irresponsible attacks" upon the theatre, E. C. Carpenter, president of the Dramatists' Guild of the Authors' League, challenged the bishop and other clerical critics of the drama to come out into the open.

Carpenter's statement was a sequel to the announcement last week by the dramatists that they will oppose any kind of theatre censorship.

Radio Pictures filed suit in the Supreme Court against Charles MacArthur for $7,500, charging he refused to write a scenario after they had advanced him that sum.

Complaint said MacArthur contracted to write the scenario January, 1929, when $3,750 was given to him. A similar sum, to which he was not entitled, was given to him soon after, it was alleged.

Charging her husband, Leon E. Clifton, m. c. at the Village Grove Nut Club, failed to provide for her, Mrs. Patricia Clifton, a book critic, asked temporary alimony and counsel fees pending trial of her suit for separation in the Supreme Court.

In defense Clifton said that he had married her on the understanding that she would "leave him alone" after the ceremony. Mrs. Clifton was awarded $15 a week by the court.

George H. Nicolai, general manager for Arthur Hopkins, resigned and will leave for Florida to attend to business interests he has there.

S. J. Kaufman, former columnist and dramatic critic, was appointed Nicolai's successor.

A new system for recording talking pictures said to accomplish the best reproduction of the human voice since the inception of talking pictures, was revealed to electrical engineers and film executives in New York. New recording device totally eliminates all extraneous noises and increases volume range, it was said.

Introduction of the invention, to be known as the Western Electric New Process Noiseless Recording System, was made at a private showing at the Criterion of Par's new film, "The Right to Love." Similar demonstration was held at the Belle Labs over a month ago.

Mary McCormick, Chicago Civic Opera singer, admitted upon her arrival here from Europe that she expects to marry Prince Serge Mdivani, ex-husband of Pola Negri. Just when the ceremony will take place she couldn't say.

At a dinner given by the Postal Telegraph Co. to the League of New York Theatres at the Hotel Astor, C. E. Allsopp, vice-president of Postal, predicted more and bigger legitimate theatres and a new theatre-going public to fill them.

Although Eddie Cantor has kidded repeatedly on the stage about his stock losses, he is a highly prosperous man, it was disclosed by Daniel Lipsky, vice-president of the Manufacturers Trust Co. and Cantor's financial advisor. "Cantor did not speculate," said Lipsky. "He owned his stock outright."

These assertions were prompted by the publication of an advertisement for the sale of Cantor's realty holdings in New York, worth approximately $1,000,000.

Only reason Cantor is selling is that he wants to permanently live in Hollywood.

Police were charged with talking $365,000 in graft on theatre tickets at a hearing held before Isador J. Kresel, investigating police graft. Speculators were forced to pay $5 a day to the patrolman on the beat in which they operated to forestall being molested, it was declared.

It was said that Alfred Edward Ells, broker, left his wife, Mrs. Nellie F. W. McKee Ells, during the summer because of a fondness for Dorothy Cummins, who played in "King of Kings."

Miss Cummings admitted knowing Ells a long time, but denied any sort of engagement between them.

Sam H. Harris lost his court battle to limit the sale of tickets to brokers accredited by the League of New York Theatres, of which he is a member. Justice Wasservogel pointed out, however, that Harris is entitled to refuse admittance to the holders of tickets sold by the league and rebandled by scalpers.

Harris had sued for an injunction to restrain Jack's Theatre Service and its proprietor, Jack Pasternack, from selling tickets for the Harris production, "Once in a Lifetime."

Counsel for the League of New York Theatres later declared they would appeal the decision.

Crashing down five stories to the roof of the two-story annex of the Hotel Cadillac, Frank McEntee, 54, an actor, was seriously injured. He sustained possible fracture of the skull, internal injuries and lacerations.

It was not known whether he jumped or fell.

"Peaches" Browning was seen in court again, this time to defend herself against Edgar Allen's suit for $15,000 back pay. A jury of 12 men were picked and counsel for Allen set out to prove that he was her bonafide manager in 1928 and 1929.

Though "Peaches" counsel conceded freely that Allen was her manager and questioned only that he was entitled to 25% of her earnings on the stage, Allen's lawyers continued to present evidence on the feature of which was a letter to Allen from Louis E. Walters, of the National Booking Office, Boston, saying that Mayor Nichols himself had ordered that "Peaches" act be barred from Boston theatres.

Four bandits in an automobile followed Herman Dorlinsky, manager of Loew's Commodore, in his car Sunday, forced him to the curb and made him get in their car. They then drove back to the theatre where, according to Dorlinsky's story to the police, they forced him to call Charles Daly, the watchman, to let him to open the door, lead them into his office and open the safe. Bandits tied Dorlinsky, locked Daly in a closet, and escaped with $2,000.

Because union employees refused a 40% cut in wages, every Jewish theatre in Greater New York closed indefinitely Sunday night (7). Maurice Schwartz, as spokesman for the managers, asserted this has been the worst season in history for the Jewish theatres.

Show Boat, the $500,000 floating night club put into operation in Boston year ago by a syndicate of Boston and New York men, was sold at auction for $1,325. It will possibly be remodeled for a children's hospital on the Hudson.

A two ring air circus featuring the same aviation stars, with the "rings" 25 miles apart and on opposite sides of New York City, was held Monday after (8) for the benefit of the unemployed. One of the shows was staged at Curtiss Field and the other at Curtiss-Essex Airport.

Programs were so arranged that there was no interruption in the sequence of events at either field, each team of flyers finished his "act" before one group of spectators and then dashed away to appear before the other.

Eleanor Hutton Sturges doesn't need to care if her parents, the E. F. Huttons, live up to their threats to cut her out of the family will. The Park Avenue deb, who married Preston Sturges, who made nearly $1,000,000 with his "Strictly Dishonorable," came into possession of nearly $1,500,000, left by her grandparents, when she became 21 last week.

Betty King, dancehall hostess who was found unconscious, bruised and bleeding on the floor of a parked automobile with three men near Jersey City, refused to reveal to police how she was injured. She was ordered held in $250 bail by Judge Morris E. Barrison as a material witness.

Mildred Zukor Loew, who has been in Reno three months, expected to obtain a divorce yesterday (Tuesday) from Arthur Loew, son of Marcus Loew. Her father, Adolph Zukor, arrived in Reno Friday.

Two persons, an elderly man and woman, were knocked unconscious, two children were injured and 700 persons were thrown into a panic Sunday afternoon (7) by a false cry of "Fire" in the Royal theatre, Brooklyn. In a mad stampede for the two small exits the entire audience tore the clothing from one another as they fought their way to the street. A shrill whistle of escaping steam had caused the fire cry.

A special train has been chartered by the Theatre Guild to be run from Philadelphia to this city next Saturday (13) to bring Guild subscribers in the former city to witness the two Saturday performance of "Roar China" at the Martin Beck.

Guild announced that due to the elaborate stage production "Roar China" would not be sent on tour.

After annually arranging a gala benefit program for the Actors' Fund for 49 years, Daniel Frohman will this year celebrate the occasion as a special Golden Jubilee performance. Date set is Jan. 16 at the New Amsterdam. Walter Hartwig will again be in charge.

LOS ANGELES

John Barrymore and Dolores Costello returned from their 75-day cruise off Mexico.

Kenneth Harlan went into the night club biz Dec. 1 when the Pom-Pom Cafe on the road to Beverly Hills reopened under his management.

Human bones found near Hesperia, Cal., are partially identified as remains of Mrs. Thelma Mells, masseuse and vaude actress, who has been missing since April, 1928, when she left her husband's car 20 miles from Phoenix after a quarrel with him.

Mrs. Ethel Hamilton accepted $15,000 from Lloyd Hamilton as full settlement of $27,000 back alimony claims and waiving future alimony.

Julian Josephson was denied an injunction to restrain Pathe from releasing "A Ship Comes in" as a talker on the charge that his story was bought for a silent. Decision by Superior Judge Walter Gates doubts that contracts for screen rights made in the old silent days can restrict production to silent pictures.

Minor Paul Avery, pictures, sued for divorce. After the marriage at Yuma, Ariz., hubby went on location for seven weeks and returned a "changed man," says Mrs. Avery.

Erwin I. Hochberg, screen writer, divorced by Alice G. Hochberg.

Benjamin Glazer, director, sued for divorce by Alice Glazer, Mental cruelty and incompatibility.

Arvid Gillstrom, director, ordered to pay his suing wife $175 a month temporary alimony.

Ida LeTourneau, circus acrialist, divorced from George LeTourneau, ditto.

Friends of the late Emma Carus, vaude, are raising $850 to prevent her remains being removed from a mausoleum in Forest Lawn Memorial Park and placed in an ordinary grave. Although her estate was valued over $165,000 at her death in 1927, the administrator of the New York portion has refused to pay mausoleum charges unless they are reduced.

Attorneys of the Press Club imbroglio in a suit against Ralph Ince, picture director, for $35,000. Damages sought by W. M. Hatch, who says his eyesight was impaired and his spine injured when he tried to

(Continued on page 67)

EMPRESS' 25% CUT

Chicago House Still Keeping the Wolf Away

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Empress still mooching along with Mutual burlesque on an hour-to-hour basis. Owners not anxious to kick tenants out, with Mutual not caring either way.

Last week started a 25 percent salary cut in an effort to carry along until the first of the year.

Closing notice posted continuously. Rent being paid the same way; $250 from week to week, "on account."

Irving Place Cast

Stock burlesque, supplanting Mutual shows at the Irving Place, New York, Dec. 22, with Charles Burns continuing operation of the house, will have Joyce La Rue, Esther Bert, Peggy Wilson, Gertie Foreman, Virginia Muzio, Margie Yetman, Harry Stratton, Charles Marshall, Eddie Kaplin, Bobby Wilson, Bob Freedman, Tom Faircloush and George Walsh in the opening cast. The latter will stage the skits and Frank Gerald the musical numbers.

Burlesque Changes

Billy Hagan replaced Ray Reed with "Record Breakers" (Mutual). Reed was compelled to withdarw by his physician and left for home for an indefinite rest.

Hamlett and Leland closed with "Oriental Girls" (Mutual) last week and are returning to vaude.

Fay Norman and Billie Norman added to the stock at Gayety, Scranton, Pa., this week.

Irving Selig has replaced Sammy Weston as comic with "Powder Puff Revue" (Mutual). Leonard Kramer supplanted George Kinnear with same company.

Mildred Cozierre opened this week as featured house soub at the Gotham, New York.

Jean Kerman has switched from the Gotham to the Apollo, New York, on the runway.

LINCOLN BACK TO TABS

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Lincoln, colored house now running straight pictures, will shortly return to colored tab shows. Talent is being sought in the east, in view of local scarcity.

Park, Erie, Passes

Stock burlesque has folded at the Park, Erie, Pa., after several weeks of awful business.

The blow-up was the second futile attempt to establish strip and wiggle operas there.

Mutual Wheel

Weeks of Dec. 8-15

Arlington's Rev—L. O.; 15, Gayety, Boston.

Big Rev—Empire, Newark; 15, Orpheum, Paterson.

Dimpled Darlings—L. O.; 15, Rialto, Chicago.

Fine Feathers—Gayety, Washington; 15, Academy, Pittsburgh.

Flappers Follies—Columbia, Cleveland; 15, Hudson, Schenectady.

Frivolities—L. O.; 15, Trocadero, Philadelphia.

Girls from the Follies—Trocadero, Philadelphia; 15, Route No. 1.

Girls in Blue—Route No. 1; 15, Gayety, Baltimore.

Hi-Ho Everybody—L. O.; 15, Empress, Cincinnati.

Jazz Babies—Gayety, Boston; 15, Lyric, Bridgeport.

Kuddling Kuties—Hudson, Union City; 15, L. O.

Laffin Thru—Lyric, Bridgeport; 15, Apollo, N. Y.

Let's Go—Irving Place, N. Y.; 15, Star, Brooklyn.

Legs and Laughter—American, N. Y.; 15, Gayety, Boston.

Nite Life in Paris—Modern, Providence; 15, American, N. Y.

Novelties of 1930—Hudson, Schenectady; 15, L. O.

Powder Puff Rev—Howard, Boston; 15, L. O.

Radium Queens—L. O.; 15, Modern, Providence.

Record Breakers—Star, Brooklyn; 15, Howard, Boston.

Silk Stocking Rev—Gayety, Detroit; 15, Columbia, Cleveland.

Speed Girls—Rialto, Chicago; 15, Gayety, Detroit.

Speed and Sparkle—Empress, Cincinnati; 15, Gayety, St. Louis.

Step Lively Girls—Apollo, N. Y.; 15, Fox's Jamaica, N. Y.

Stepping Show—Fox's Jamaica, N. Y.; 15, Irving Place, N. Y. (closing date).

Sugar Babies—Academy, Pittsburgh; 15, L. O.

Take a Chance—Orpheum, Paterson; 15, Hudson, Union City.

20th Century Rev—Gayety, Baltimore; 15, Gayety, Washington.

Watson Show—Gayety, Brooklyn; 15, Empire, Newark.

The Liggett drug stores, which tried to compete with the 50c. books on sale at the United cigar stores, with a 75c. book, have already dropped the price down to 49c.

Another headache for the booksellers.

Mabelle Clark Hurt In Pa. Auto Accident

Baltimore, Dec. 9.

Mabelle Clark, vaude and burlesque actress, 3510 Noble street, this city, was injured in an automobile smash-up in Bethlehem, Pa., last week. Mrs. Clark was en route to New York with two other professionals, Marie Elgiff and Agnes Gillen, both of West Brighton, L. I.

All were members of a troupe that stranded in Ashland, Ky. Jerome J. Delmore of Brooklyn volunteered to drive them back to Broadway and was at the wheel when they connected abruptly with a telephone pole in the Pennsy town.

Miss Clark is under treatment for possible fracture of the spine.

Haymarket Shut

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Haymarket burlesque closed suddenly Sunday (7) night, leaving the entire west side to the Academy.

Meanwhile the Empress on the south side is living from hand to mouth and may fold any minute.

Oliver Stacey Quits

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 9.

Oliver H. Stacey has resigned as manager of the Empire, stock burlesque. He was manager for 12 years.

About two weeks ago the cast threatened to quit when not paid off. House said to be operating at a loss.

H. O. DEBTS CLOSE TAB

Birmingham, Dec. 9.

"New York Garden Revue," tab show at Pantages, closed in the middle of the second week.

Business was only fair, but debts accrued by another company in the house previous to the tab was the principal reason for closing.

STEPPE SHOW OFF DEC. 21

"Harry Steppe's Own Show" winds up its Mutual booking at the Irving Place, New York, Dec. 21.

No more Mutuals will play the Irving Place after the Steppe date, as the house goes stock.

LEGS AND LAUGHTER

(MUTUAL)

"Legs and Laughter" is just an average Mutual depending on flesh display rather than comedy to smack it across for what it amounts to, if anything.

The call for the flesh was loud and frequent from the mob at the American Music Hall, New York, Monday night, and the stage femmes strived to oblige. A stag audience looking for stag entertainment and the same answer to why burlesque isn't.

Show itself was lightweight on femme strippers but the house mob made up for it by projecting Billie Shaw, who gave them everything. They enjoyed it and wouldn't have cared if the show stopped there, but it didn't.

Mob didn't give the comics a tumble but prolonged applause on the teaser numbers until the gals got down to bare facts or as much as permissable. The show, seemingly burning over the house mobs' results, finally planted a tableau of four girls sans brassieres to even up on Miss Shaw's strip number, and they went heavy for it.

The show uses three comics, Eddie Dale, George Leon and Lou Costello. All have little to do and none send anyone into convulsions of laughter. Looked like a new stab at a new idea for burlesque in making the comics' rest periods between the dame numbers instead of vice versa, which has been the rule up to now and probably will remain so after this futile experiment.

Single comedy slam the show boasts is contributed by a male vaude trio billed as Three Upstarts, who plant a comedy acrobatic bit in first stanza that stops the show and deservedly so. The rest of the comedy is of the usual inclusive order.

Mary Ryan, buxom blond, is all that amounts in the femme section of the troupe. The gal has a dynamic personality, can toss her hips, but lost out on her strip teaser at this showing through too much stalling. Aside from that okay.

The chorus held a bunch of lookers, for burlesque, and hard workers who set a zippy tempo for the show but, with the comedy division sadly lacking, not sufficient to put it over.

"Legs and Laughter" is okay on the limb classification but contains little laughter. Edba.

VARIETY

Trade Mark Registered

Published Weekly by VARIETY, Inc.
Sime Silverman, President
154 West 46th Street New York City

SUBSCRIPTION:
Annual.....$10 Foreign.....$11
Single Copies.....35 Cents

VOL. 100 No. 22

50 YEARS AGO

(From Clipper)

Sarah Bernhardt opened her tour of the United States at Booth's theatre, New York, playing the role of Camille for the first time in her career. Clipper is of divided opinion on the merit of the performance, taking exception to parts of the star's interpretation.

Abbey was all ready to produce the Passion Play in New York when public opposition developed to the point where he withdrew the enterprise. The intention had been to present James O'Neill as the Christ, and he had been prevailed upon to appear.

William Manson, who ran a famous saloon at No. 19 Beekman street, New York, committed suicide, and in reporting the happening Clipper relates that he had formerly been a captain in the 79th N. Y. National Guard Regiment, had been captured in the first battle of Bull Run and had spent many months in Libby prison. The old 79th, by the way, was known as "The Highlanders."

Princeton and Yale battled to a tie on Thanksgiving day on the New York Polo Grounds, the game being played before 4,000 people—"the largest football crowd that had ever assembled in America"—while workmen shoveled snow off the field.

Besides Bernhardt at Booth's, Joseph Jefferson was appearing in "Rip" at the Grand Opera House, turning away crowds nightly, Tomaso Salvini arrived for an engagement, The welcoming committee that went down the bay to welcome him, was lost in the fog and missed the steamer.

The year must have been one of those "old-fashioned winters." There was skating on Central Park and Prospect Park lakes on Thanksgiving.

15 YEARS AGO

(From Variety and Clipper)

All the noise about film mergers must have started about this time. Wall Street was beginning to evince interest in the industry. The Harriman Bank made a survey and figured the trade had $500,000,000 invested. Morgan & Co. looked the field over, also, but didn't like the prospect so well. Analysis was to the effect that many amalgamations would be necessary to get it on a paying basis.

Vernon Castle left for England to enter the service, and there were conflicting reports of Irene Castle's future partner.

Photochrome, a new color system, was introduced at private exhibition. Claimed for the device that it made possible projection by standard machine. Idea belonged to the Kinemacolor Co. Other color system in the field was Charles Urban's.

Sarah Bernhardt appeared in Paris for the first time in two years. In the interval a leg had been amputated. Said to be her last appearance.

State rights plan of selling films was favored. Henry W. Savage received an offer of $110,000 for "Mme. X," but chose to market the picture on a territorial basis.

New York Hippodrome piled up a week's gross of $64,000, a record for the house under the management of Charles Dillingham. Attraction was the spectacle, "Hip Hip Hooray."

Railroads missed the business done by traveling shows and sent high-power executives into New York to make an effort to have managers revive the road.

Inside Stuff—Pictures

Wall Street's recent pronunciamento on financing privileges to independent producing companies who may be deemed worthy, is given on authority the privilege does not take in the area of theatre building in the amusement world. That may indicate that Wall Street is aiming ahead on that first financing idea.

The word comes from the highest authority, "downtown" that so far as the financial mentors are concerned theatre building in the U. S. has gone sufficiently far for the present; that 1931 will see a falling off in new playhouse construction activities.

Also that present projects of certain film individuals or parties to string up new chains or otherwise new theatres must do so away from Wall Street if that can be possible. It also means that the picture firms are advised of the attitude.

As Wall Street looks on the amusement biz the film industry is in need of more and better product rather than theatres. That looks like overseating from the "downtown" frame of mind as being the reason for the truce. That same attitude has been checked in the same way by certain producer reps infoed on the subject.

It is also indicated that this general truce in theatre building is being called in spite of the lower trend in building costs as is generally believed to exist. That is due to Wall Street's own figuring on the proviso that the present economic situation is offering "downtown" an opportunity for a clear size-up of its investment interests in the theatre world which is not given at other periods in the biz.

Although this is strictly a Wall Street attitude the lowdown is that this frame of mind is taken "downtown" on the experienced advice of the film chieftains themselves and requested by the bankers. Wall Street may "suggest," but in the film biz it's the "downtown" custom to get the opinions of the active film heads first. More often than not the latter prevail.

It may be little known but in the question of new financial ventures and especially on theatre construction the bankers act in concert on the advice routine. It's a regular method. After the final and most conservative Wall Street angle is reached or otherwise, it is shot to the film execs away from the particular financing job for a say-so.

A stand-in between doormen and cashiers in a pop price theatre around New York appears to have taken in the entire neighborhood. The chiseling had gone along for seven months before unearthed by the circuit's secret service and with the house manager still on the job, he stating and the circuit believing he had no knowledge of the conniving.

Bus drivers making the town a terminal were selling tickets to the theatre en route either way; strip tickets were on sale in the town's speaks and every one seemed to have knowledge of bargain tickets for the theatre excepting the house manager and the circuit.

A bonding company has made good $5,000 to the circuit so far. Whether it will demand arrests has not been stated. One of the theatre's mob fired with the exposure is said to have been immediately placed in another of the circuit's theatres.

Suspicion aroused in the home office, one of the undercover men was told to get next to the theatre's front. He did this by being introduced into a speakeasy across the street from it. Striking up an acquaintance with an elderly man in the speak, one of its prize customers, the elderly man took a liking to the investigator. He invited him out to dinner, but said they might just as well have a little party, and he would also invite a nice bunch of people from over in the theatre. Shortly after in came a couple of girl cashiers, a doorman and one or two others of the house staff. They spoke freely.

Another instance of a stand-in of another sort happened in a different house around New York. The house manager told a girl cashier she was fired. The girl replied the manager couldn't fire her as he had not hired her. That being new to a live house mgr., the girl found out immediately she was fired, but phoned back to the manager from the outside she would be working the next morning in another house on the circuit.

The next morning the girl phoned from another of the circuit's theatres in the same city, inviting the manager over to see her in the new cashier's cage.

Amos 'n' Andy picture falling down in the New York R-K-O houses last week and not doing overly well in Brooklyn, along with the slide taken by "Check and Double Check" in its second week when held over all over, will give the R-K-O and Radio Pictures people another chance for analysis of that freak talker.

In the Greater New York section the picture was held back two weeks after its R-K-O Mayfair exhibition on Broadway. It did a good first week there also, backed up as it had been elsewhere previously by the corking Radio pre-advertising campaign. Its second week at the Mayfair followed precedent. Going into the neighborhoods and suburbs of New York, no extra campaign was given the picture.

The more the A. & A. screen thing is dissected, the more credit will go to the extremely well laid out and extensive ad campaign that brought this picture through to the majority of its gross rentals in the first week.

Not much rental is anticipated by Radio in the foreign market from the talker. Amos 'n' Andy are strictly national. At present the estimate of the total gross for Radio Pictures from Amos 'n' Andy is between $2,300,000 and $2,600,000. The picture cost to make around $1,100,000. Extra heavy production investment through R. P. having been obligated to assume the additional expense of keeping the two boys on the air during the making on the Coast. This ran to around $15,000 weekly, alone. The initial payment to Amos 'n' Andy was $250,000. They also share in the net profit, after distribution cost.

Hollywood has found a new kind of temperament. It's of the breed that can't be tampered with. Once asserted it sticks, regardless of how many feelings are hurt and immune to all pleas and threats of press agents.

Marlene Dietrich has flashed it for the first time. She told the newsboys in Chicago that she didn't like Hollywood's sun, that it was a sun that "burned her brains out."

When the German lady got to New York she was met by one of Paramount's stoutest press agents; a man whose brawn has quailed males as well as females. He hadn't had much sleep and meeting the early morning rattler didn't help the situation. But all fierce looks and gesticulations were so much dust to Marlene. Her conversation ran this way if the visage of the stout one, when he returned to the office, is any criterion. "When I say no I mean no. When I say yes I mean yes. I say that the Hollywood sun burned my brains in Chicago, I say that the Hollywood sun burned my brains in New York."

Horribly angry, this same p. a. who has had to lie himself white in the face about various film escapades, turned from cherubic red to church white. The colors didn't mean any more to Marlene than the big build.

Where he had been able to handle Clara Bow like so much jelly, he had to do a teaser act with Miss Dietrich before he could get her to okay a story that she was going back to Hollywood after a fill of Gerokay a story that she was going back to Hollywood after a fill of German turkey. That she really like Paramount, Hollywood, Chicago, New York, America and Germany.

So, the press agent hurriedly released the story. It didn't deny the "burned out brains" angle. He just omitted it.

Metro hoped to bring John Gilbert back to fan favor with "Way for a Sailor," in which the former silent star was cast as a tough seaman.

Not interested in the plan, West Coast theatre men are billing it "Way for a Sailor, with Wallace Beery and John Gilbert."

Inside Stuff—Legit

Suit of Ivah Crown, novelist, to prevent Arthur Hammerstein from using "Ballyhoo" as the title for his musical comedy due on Broadway next week, met with failure, Justice Black in the New York Supreme Court denying her application for a temporary injunction pending litigation.

Alfred Beekman, attorney for Hammerstein, argued that five dramatic compositions and a motion picture used "Ballyhoo" as a title prior to the publication of Miss Brown's novel by that name published three years ago. Since then the records of the Register of Copyrights of the United States show three books, two dramatic compositions and a picture have used the word "ballyhoo" in a title.

Hammerstein denied that his musical comedy which has as its plot the transcontinental foot race promoted by C. C. Pyle, is an infringement on Miss Brown's novel which deals with carnival life. Metro has the picture rights to the novel.

Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, managing editor of the New Standard Dictionary, in his affidavit for the defense traced the origin of the word "ballyhoo," and declared that it will hereafter be included in the dictionary, which he edits. Ballyhoo, according to the lexicographer, is a contraction of ballyhooly, which is a proper name designating a village east of Mallow in Cork County, Ireland. This village was long famous for its party fights and to give or get ballyhooly was to berate or be berated.

Reports have been circulating Arthur Swanstrom and Bobby Connolly, young producing pair, were in line for a split up, either before or after their present Fields, Rogers and Hart show is produced. Report was denied by Connolly.

C. & S., in the red, because of "Princess Charming's" failure, have called in Schwab & Mandel to co-produce the F. R. & H. shows. No arrangements has been made yet as to the share S. & M. will have in the production or how producing billing will be arranged.

Report that the musical will play in Warner's Hollywood was denied. Tied up with rumors Buddy Rogers, Paramount picture star, would play in the musical, this led to the belief that Par might have something to do with the stage show.

If, as the report claimed, Connolly separates from his partner, the present musical will be produced by Schwab & Mandel, which strengthened the Paramount claim, as S. & M. have produced screen musicals for this picture concern.

Chiseling West Coast legit impresario was forced by the original Broadway producers of an operetta to shut the w. c. production down through chiseling on the statements to the Broadway impresarios. He had leased the territorial rights from them. Chisel came in through the Pacific Coast producer sharing 70/30 up to a certain fair business mark but 50/50 when biz hit a higher average.

In order to keep down the net split, the w. c. chiseler leblanged on his statements until found out and forced to shut down. The Broadway end of it had protected themselves through assigning a company manager to keep tabs on the count-up. When the West Coasters give up what they forgot to include in the original statements, the show may reopen and continue a tour through the west.

Annual Florida migration of legit managers starts Saturday when Sam Harris, Arch Selwyn and George White take off for Palm Beach. Harris and Selwyn will be away about two weeks while White will be south a week. In the party will be Nick Blair, night club operator.

White's trip south will include a stop over at Jacksonville to consider the purchase of a stable of eight horses offered him at bargain prices. White, who once was an exercise boy on the racetracks around New York, has gone over-board twice trying to beat the bangtails. Having steered clear of the bookies for the past few years, White, it is said, now aspires to become a race horse owner like Al Jolson and Bobby Crawford. If the pending deal for the stable is closed, White will start his horse at the winter tracks in St. Augustine and Miami.

"The New Yorkers" will have to play to around $38,000 at the Broadway to break, it is said. Talent payroll for stage alone runs to about $18,000 weekly. Show cost about $200,000 to produce. It did $48,000 in its week at Newark, at $4.95 top.

The Broadway seats around 1,900 with 1,050 on the orchestra floor. Top is $5.50, with possible gross about $55,000.

It's Ray Goetz' show. Goetz is also taking the Montmartre nite club, for operations, while his principal comedians in the show, the Durante trio, are going into the Silver Slipper nite club, according to their contractual privilege.

With his theatre having been open steadily for two years, William Brady, Sr., is one of the few legit producers showing a solid profit for the past two seasons.

"Street Scene" and "First Mrs. Fraser," both of which Brady produced, made money steadily, the former also being sold at a high price to pictures. Two road companies of "Scene" are now touring, one of "Mrs. Fraser."

Brady's only slap over this period was with "Cafe," one of this season's earlier quick ones produced in conjunction with Tuerk.

Inside Stuff—Vaude

When Billy (Single) Clifford, one of the first to introduce the "silly ass" English type in American vaude, died in Urbana, Ill., Nov. 20, of apoplexy, he was regarded as being well off.

Clifford was the sole owner of the Clifford theatre in Urbana which he inherited from his father and which he had under lease at the time of his death. He also operated an inside miniature golf course in the theatre building.

After retiring from the stage, Clifford settled in his home town, took an interest in politics and for two years served as deputy state fire marshal. His greatest stage success was with Maud Huth, the team appearing at both Tony Pastor's and Koster & Bial's in the old days.

A report passed around the R-K-O booking offices last week that Charlie Freeman has issued instructions to the bookers not to give out news; he would take care of that. No such order was made.

Freeman told the bookers to be careful in giving news to the trade papers, to prevent interference with the business operation of the office through publicity. If in doubt, the head booker said, the bookers should consult with him.

Otherwise no Albee gag up there.

Steadily the number of new vaude act "Variety" reviews around New York is decreasing. In days past "Variety's" New Act department, through which this can be checked, would run to over a page if all in type were printed. Three, four or five columns were the usual weekly quantity of New Act notices. Of late the same notices have fallen to a column or less.

"Variety's" reviewers catch the last half vaudfilm shows in New York, merely for the new acts that may be on them. Frequently there is no new act on the last half in one or more houses. Often the Palace plays without a new act.

It's the present situation of course, but what of the future?

Britain's "Road" Has Had Brutal Year
Provincial Mgrs. See Little Hope

London, Dec. 3.

Provincial show business in Great Britain during 1930 has been appalling.

The reasons for one of the worst years on record are many. Perhaps the chief factor is that out-of-towns residents no longer relish the idea of seeing West End successes enacted by mediocre casts. In this way there's a distinct parallel to be drawn with the American "road."

Time was when the road show of the West End stage success was the biggest provincial draw known to showmen. Even names which mean something to London mean nothing now in the sticks.

Paul Robeson, who has been touring under the Daniel Mayer banner at a guarantee of $1,500 weekly, has grossed as low as $250 a night in houses with a capacity of $1,500. In one city he even created a record low of $150 for one evening.

Sybil Thorndike, once considered a certainty for the provinces, has failed badly. She is now touring for Daniel Mayer in "The Squall" and at Liverpool opened to $250.

The second rate provincial houses have been flooded this year with snappy titles such as "Tout Paris," "Paris and Piccadilly," "Why Go to Paris?" "Un Nuit Excitant," "Le Reve Parisienne," and others. Semi-nudity has been the chief feature of these shows, but local police restrictions have minimized receipts.

Unemployment and Films

One of the main factors in this bad provincial business had obviously been the 2,000,000 unemployed in the country. Pictures are also blamed by the small town managers.

About the only shows which still attract big provincial business are the real London tryouts. Nearly all these companies click regardless of what they do later in the West End. Most of the Drury Lane musicals, however, and particularly "Rose-Marie," are still good provincial bets.

Vaudeville road shows, which have been replacing the old time vaudevillians, are now feeling the slump since the novelty has worn off. Shows built around certain variety artists are feeling the draught. Layton and Johnstone, although still surefire in Scotland, are not so strong elsewhere. Nervo and Knox could not duplicate with their second unit that which they did with their first.

Harry Lauder's popularity seems to be fading. His last provincial tour saw him averaging about 50% of capacity. Jack Hylton, Gracie Fields, and Toto are practically the last names left with general appeal over here.

Cinemas out of town have also had to boost the box offices with acts. These grinds generally charge as low as six cents admission to matinees, drawing money from the unemployed living on the dole.

Whenever a new picture house opens in a provincial town it immediately shows itself in the takings of the legit and vaude theatres there, demonstrating how much more critical these kick audiences are becoming.

The provincial outlook for 1931 is not good.

HIRSCH OPERETTA OPENS

The Hague, Dec. 9.

The Fritz Hirsch operetta, "Victoria und Ihr Husar," had its premiere here a few nights ago, making it the first showing of the piece in Holland.

Production has as its leading woman Hilde Harmat, German star from the Koenigs theatre, Budapest and especially engaged for this production.

CARTER JOINS BOARD

London, Dec. 3.

James Carter has been appointed to the board of directors of Twickenham Film Studios, indie unit which makes WB quota films.

Carter was originally art director of the studio, later taking over floor management. This is the first appointment of its kind in a British company.

Columbia's Mex Office

With A. L. Kalb, formerly with M-G-M, in charge, Columbia Pictures has opened an office in Mexico City.

Strictly in the Nude

Paris, Dec. 2.

A Paris bourgeois recently brought his wife to Raymond Pallier, painter, to be done in the nude, stating at he didn't care for his wife's portrait to become obsolete when fashion would change.

Pallier, himself a nudist, finds numerous models in the naturalist camp he frequents and never paints unless nude himself.

BERLIN AS U FOREIGN VERSION HUB PROBABLE

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Universal is further angling with the idea of shifting its foreign production to Europe.

Probability is that Paul Kohner, head of foreign production at the studio, will be sent overseas within a month to make a survey leading toward the centering of the concern's multi-linguals in Berlin.

Internationalization

(Continued from page 7)

cently promulgated American plan on the same angle.

England despite its hubbub and flair into production with the advent of its quota law that compelled distributors to shoot in a certain percentage of native made product to the exhibitor, hasn't been able to supply that self-designated native market. The American producers are on the angle that to protect themselves they must hem into production. By March the quota will call for 12½%.

The most safely fixed British company on production is British International, but on the inside track that is given as about to jolly itself, perhaps, into a hookup with Paramount. Latter, however, has nothing officially to speak on that score except that anything might happen. Its initial production plans are to be made through its London distributing subsid, the Paramount British Film Service, Ltd., of London.

Production Points

P-P will make six films to begin with, and use native talent. These films will be sent for distribution in America as well as in English colonies and the British Isles. On another tack, although not denied, the move of Par's takes on the cloak of a contemplated shifting of its studios at Joinville, near Paris, to London, or as much of that plant as is feasible. That may mean eventually aroun' 15 or 20 films for Par from London.

Bob Kane, now chief of Par's foreign production in the Paris plant, will also have charge of the London production, it is said. That looks like a two-spot production base for P-P abroad, as over here in Hollywood and on Long Island.

Fox's plans have not been announced, but U. A. is committed to a London policy.

This isn't given to mean that Berlin is being sidetracked, but that the big tie-in is coming first through London, and after that Berlin will be slanted on a somewhat similar plane. Though it can't be established, current talk links B. B. Buchanan's trip abroad for Par to install a new maintenance chief for Par's theatres in England as a prelim to a visit to Germany for another Par proposition that includes theatres and films production. This is unconfirmed.

London, speaking the same language as America, might be another reason for giving the producers first choice in the world build-up. A report says there are still many items of the patent pool, filed in Paris months ago, that haven't yet been ironed out. Some of these relate to exhibiting pictures in German houses.

Buchanan's visit to Europe is expected to survey that situation also for Par.

Egypt

By EDWARD ASSWAD

Cairo, Nov. 22.

Concession of the Cairo Royal Opera House for the 1930-31 season has been awarded to the well-known Italian impresario, Comm. Ferone. Impending season will be exclusively lyric.

Lists of artists to perform the French comic operatic plays include Renee Camia, Nini Roussel and Mathilde Cocyte of the Opera-Comique; Lucy Maltes and Gilberte Castera, of the Gaiete-Lyrique; Andree Moreau, of the Trianon Lyrique; Renee Courtade, of the Promenade de Nice; Jean Hirigaray, Georges Berger, Gregoire Cadet, Pierre Saint Pres, Albert De Beer, Georges Grandais and Alphonse Defrere of the Gaiete Lyrique; Alfred Magnenat and Jose Salvat, of the Opera Comique.

Orchestra will be conducted by Maestro Fichefet, assisted by Maestro Bourdarot. Music will be provided by 30 musicians while the dancing will be executed by Prima Ballerina Jeannette Arieta accompanied by Luigi Marzoni Pier and 24 girls.

The Italian Opera artists to perform at the Cairo Royal comprise the tenors: Pedro Mirassou, Giuseppe Bentonelli, Giovanni Voyer, Piero Girardi, Messina Sante; baritones Vincenzo Guicciardi, Luigi Borgonovo, Attilio Fordonali; bassos: Eugenio Sdanowski, Enrico Centini, Enrico Spada, Carl Scattola; sopranos Rosetta Pampanini, Anna Turkel, Dellamanconi De Martis, Ogla Brancucci, Emilia Mizza, Clara Menotti, Lina Zaccherini, Irma Mion; mezzo-sopranos Gabriella Galli, Trilla Mercedes, Bianchi Bianca. An orchestra of 60 will be conducted by Com. Pasquale La Rotella, assisted by Antonio Dajalis. A chorus of 55 girls will sing with their teacher, Bruno Erminero, and a group of 24 dancers will perform under the direction of Maria Mariana.

It is expected that the opera houses will be packed because of the reduced prices never available before.

HAPHAZARD TOUR

Japanese Troupe Being Sublet by German Mgr.—Dates Uncertain

The Hague, Nov. 29.

There has been some trouble over the Japanese company which is touring Europe and is now in Holland. A German impresario has arranged the tour and sublets the company to managers in other continental countries. Hugo Helm took over the troupe for Holland.

Helm heard the Japs were coming, this was cancelled again, but of a sudden they appeared and Helm had to find lodgings and foot the bill for the company. He had not done much advertising and it was a wonder that the first night here was a financial success.

Xmas Liquor Cheap

(Continued from page 1)

were usually tilted $5 or $10 with no questions asked for the holiday season.

Less Cutting

Practically 80% of the liquor now sold in New York is uncut. Only class of leggers who tamper with the original goods these days are the small fry who operate so-called cordial and non-alcoholic beverage stores spotted in various cheap locations around the city. These stores use runners who deliver a bottle or more at a time to homes in the neighborhood on a cash basis.

Most of this business comes in over the phone, though several have hotel bellhops on their payrolls selling bath-tub gin at $1 a quart, cut rye at $2 a pint, and synthetic Scotch at $3 a quart. Most of this bad booze goes to the transient trade.

GAMBLING BAN DELAY

Paris, Dec. 2.

French gambling houses are all supposed to disappear shortly according to a recent law. Vastness of these interests makes it probable that a delay will be extended, maybe several times.

WOULD UNLOAD

London, Dec. 9.

Capt. H. M. Harwood, lessee of the Ambassadors theatre, wants to dispose of same. His tenancy is for 12 more years.

Walter Payne has been commissioned to dispose of the house.

Foreign Deaths

The Hague, Dec. 9.

Lion Vanlier

Lion Vanlier, last surviving brother of the famous Vanlier family, three brothers of which formerly owned the Grand theatre in Amsterdam, died in that city at the age of 79.

The brothers were well known in artistic circles all over Europe. Their father, Abraham Lanvier started the Grand theatre in 1852 and among the international stars who played there were Duse, the original "Mikado" company from London, the German cabaret troupes sponsored by Wolzogen & Fleitz, and the French troupe from the Chat Noir in Paris.

Lion died in straightened circumstances; the theatre had long since passed out of his hands and he acted as a sort of poet laureate at jubilee celebrations in the theatrical world, writing appropriate verses for such events.

Will Keenan

Capetown, Dec. 9.

Will Keenan, 70, member of the managerial staff of African Theatres, and formerly a well-known English comedian, did here Dec. 3.

He leaves a widow and three children.

Victor Faassen

The Hague, Dec. 9.

Victor Faassen, 66, retired legitimate actor of the old school, died in Rotterdam.

Years ago he was extremely popular in presentations at country fairs.

Manfred Noa

Berlin, Dec. 9.

Manfred Noa, well known German film director, died here, following an operation for appendicitis in a local hospital.

Fred Coap

Sydney, Dec. 9.

Fred Coap, stock actor, died here.

Paris, Dec. 9.

Madeleine Roch, actress of the Comedie Francaise, died here following a long illness.

MEXICO CITY

Mexico City, Dec. 3.

"Where's the night life?"

That is the query of all American tourists who come down here. They have no complaint about time hanging heavily upon their hands during the day, for they have plenty to look at, but after dinner boredom descends upon them. And reason enough.

This town, even though it has a population of more than 1,000,000, has the least amount of night life of any of the world's capitals. It's practically a nine p. m. town. Legit, burlesque and film houses give night shows, and there are several cabarets, but the "life" is not what those who come here from the States desire.

About all the stranger can find in the way of nocturnal diversion are a few cheap honkey tonks, running bootleg since President Rubio's order that the lid must be slapped on, two or three Continental style cafes, where actors out of work and bull fighters foregather, Yanks, and especially those from the "blue law" zones of the U. S. A., are frankly disappointed. Looks like a swell opportunity for some bright nephew of Uncle Sam to step in and cop by handing visiting Americans something they'd think was really Mexican.

"Tom and Jerry" are in town. Receiving a hearty welcome from thirsty lads from the north, and Mexicans as well. The cold weather booze is on hand at all saloons catering to Americans and other English speakers. Drink is advertised by "Tom and Jerry" signs in all windows. Mexicans are falling hard for this concoction these days, which are pretty nippy here.

British International's "Atlantic" (film) is a smash at the Teatro Regis and Teatro Imperial here.

Liquor is being attacked in plays presented from time to time in recreation centers by the Ministry of Public Education. Actors are school children. This is part of government's anti-alcoholism crusade.

University of Mexico has launched a school of dramatic art, object of which is to develop thespian abilities of students and citizens as well. Announcement says that everybody, including laborers and farmers, will be entitled to enroll for courses.

Spotting Gags

London, Dec. 3.

The day after "Animal Crackers" (Par) opened at the Carlton, pictures, there were five guys with pencils in the house taking down the gags. The following day this number was increased to 12.

Already the zip-fastener gag in the film, "Whoopee," has found its way into a lot of the touring revues. Londoners, seeing the smalltime shows in the sticks, yell "Whoopee" as the gag is delivered.

Kit Cat Off Big Yankee Acts—May Affect the Palladium

London, Dec. 3.

Humphrey Cooke, owner of the Cafe de Paris and debenture holder of the Kit-Cat, has found that while big names for the Kit-Cat have not proven any draw, they have been sufficient to injure his class trade at the Cafe de Paris.

With the Kit-Cat unable to pay its debenture holders, Cooke was asked to lend financial aid. This he promised to do, providing the Kit-Cat directors would permit him (Cooke) to appoint a nominee to look after his interests at the Kit-Cat. Robin Humphreys is acting in that capacity.

Result is that the Kit-Cat is finished as an importer of big American acts and bands. Sophie Tucker's current engagement will end it.

Instead Humphreys' policy will be to cater for middle class trade, figuring on the 300 seating capacity. Starts with tea dances at 60 cents per head, and charging $1.85 for Sunday dinners with the management unconcerned as to evening dress.

Meanwhile Poulsen, formerly manager of Kit-Cat and now running the Cafe Anglais, figures the new arrangement should help him draw the more exclusive of London's cabaret habitues.

This will have a direct effect upon the Palladium (vaude) bookings, In the past there was always a likelihood of securing a hit actor at the Kit-Cat to double in to the Palladium at a "reasonable" salary.

Writer Pans Hollywood In Berlin Radio Talk

Berlin, Dec. 1.

The German writer, Walter Hasenclever has returned from Hollywood and delivered a radio lecture expressing himself against the American film producers.

He asserts that the authors are without rights in America and that he has had unpleasant experiences with American producers. There are, he says, artistic personalities, but these are exceptions.

HIGH SPEED WORK

London, Dec. 3.

Welsh-Pearson-Elder, indie production unit, which has done practically nothing since sound came in, and recently announced its intention of making song films of Harry Lauder, has called a stockholders' meeting to delete the name "Elder" from its title.

T. C. Elder left the company about two years ago. They are now thinking of changing the name.

MABEL GILLILAND SAILING

London, Dec. 9.

Mabel Gilliland has been engaged for the new Drury Lane show, the transaction being carried out by cable to New York. She sails immediately.

Evelyn Laye and Edith Day both were offered the engagement, but declined the part, which they regarded as not sufficiently distinguished from the second femme role played by Marie Burke.

FRISCO YOUNGSTER BIG

The Hague, Dec. 9.

The child violinist prodigy, Menuhin, is a sensational success here. San Francisco boy played to packed houses all over the country.

Only Two Americans in Destroyed Beas Circus—Both Saved—30 Lost

Mexico City, Dec. 9.

With the return to Mexico City of the survivors of the railroad disaster which killed 30 people and that destroyed the Beas Circus, Capt. Charles Betts, who had a trained seal and monkey act with the outfit, recounted the circumstances of the train wreck. Betts was the only American turn with the show, working with his wife, Rita. The other Americans had quit the Beas organization upon its departure from Mexico City.

"The special show train," said Capt. Betts, "was enroute from Agua Caliente City to Guadaljara. About four o'clock in the morning we were awakened by a crash and found ourselves surrounded by flaming railroad cars, screaming people and roaring animals. The animals were trapped in their dens.

"The show carried 250 performers and workmen and there were about 100 wild animals in the menagerie and ring show. Nearly all the people were Spanish and Mexican, except us, one German, one Russian and one French act. Our porter saved all our stuff, including the animals.

"Fire was caused by the ignition and explosion of two gasoline and one petroleum tank cars which had been hooked on to the train without our knowledge during the night. The show property was wiped out in 20 minutes. Thirty persons were burned to death, several of them being women and children. Fire caught many in their berths. Eighteen bodies, charred beyond recognition, were recovered. Six were buried in one coffin. One woman was found burned to a crisp with her baby still in her arms."

2 Wild Lions

"Two lions which had escaped from their dens had mauled several bodies. A dwarfed Mexican clown made his way past a flaming pool of oil and killed the cats.

"The authorities grossly mismanaged the relief work. Twenty injured people were placed in a nearby military hospital, but were left there unattended all night. Two of them were found dead in the morning.

"The show was a total loss, including a 'Lindy Loop' which Beas had just taken and which cost $10,000. The people assembled as much of the show props as were left and gave an emergency show the next day, well attended by an indulgent audience attracted by sympathy for the performers.

"Most of the money went to Beas and little was received by the desperately needy people of the show.

"The show was one of the biggest playing in Latin-America. We played with it between seasons as a means of keeping employed and now are hoping to get some sort of booking out of Mexico City.

"President Ortiz Rubol, and other government officials, have been generous in their treatment of the unfortunate show people, answering appeals of those in a desperate plight by franking packages of clothing and food to the scene of the disaster. One of the elephants, recently purchased from Max Gruber, was badly burned, but will recover."

Author Closes Show

Paris, Dec. 9.

Henri Pernstein, French dramatist, has ordered the discontinuance of his play "Melo" in Berlin.

He complains that the German producers have taken liberties with his work.

PROLIFIC WALLACE HALTED

London, Dec. 9.

Edgar Wallace, who is in line as the Liberal Party candidate for Aylesbury, was scheduled for an address at a meeting yesterday (Monday).

He is suffering from a severe attack of bronchitis. This is news because it means he won't be able to write a play for at least three days.

SHEREK'S FAST TRIP

London, Dec. 9.

Henry Sherek, agent, sails Dec. 16 for the States.

He will be in New York only two days, returning on the next boat.

VAUDE IS ROTTERDAM'S PRINCIPAL NEW PASTIME

The Hague, Dec. 9.

Since the opening of the Arena, Rotterdam, as a vaudevill house, that town has gone vaudeville crazy. Specialty type of entertainment had been in Holland for several years.

But now that the Arena has clicked, the Casino in Rotterdam which for a long time has offered a straight bill of operatta, will stage vaudeville bills between now and the holidays.

Not only this but a project is on foot to build a new vaudeville house capable of holding 2,800 people. Building is promised for start in January.

AmerAnglo Favors East For U. S. Type Spaniards

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

AmerAnglo, indie foreign producer-distributor, is planning importation of talent from New York for original Spanish versions to be made here at the Larry Darmour studio.

A series of eight originals in Spanish will be made, with the first starting this week. That and a second, also untitled, to go in as soon as the first is completed are original stories and ready.

Jose del Rincon, Spaniard educated in England, has been engaged for the full series as leading man.

AmerAnglo's idea is to round up talent representing American types familiar to foreign fans but speaking good Spanish.

June Won't Appeal

London, Dec. 9.

June has decided not to appeal from the adverse decision for an annulment of her marriage to Lord Inverclyde.

Decision dismissing the action in England gave permission for June to renew it in Scotland. She is now on her way to America.

Lauder Does 50 Mins. On New Palladium Bill

London, Dec. 9.

Harry Lauder held the audience at the Palladium for 50 minutes as a feature of the new show yesterday (Monday).

Little Doreen, 12-year-old xylophonist, scored emphatically, doing a full-size xylophone turn which would do credit to an adult. She also dances.

"Referee' Sale Cold

London, Dec. 9.

Negotiations for the sale of "The Referee," London daily with a leaning toward theatricals, to the Liberal party, reported in "Variety" last week, fell through at the 11th hour.

It is understood another deal is pending.

"Boen" Has Chance

Paris, Dec. 9.

The renovated Odeon opened with "Boen," comedy by Jules Romains, poorly staged, but very well acted.

Piece was well received by the premiere audience. It has strong appeal for the mob, due to its theme of decrying sudden wealth and its morally degrading influence.

VICTOR GRANIER DEAD

Paris, Dec. 9.

Victor Granier, actor of the Paris opera, died suddenly.

Death was ascribed to embolisage of the brain.

Michael Arlen's Son

London, Dec. 9.

Mrs. Michael Arlen gave birth to a son here today.

FOX'S ENGLISH BAND

Probably at Kit Kat—Currently Playing in Paris

London, Dec. 9.

Roy Fox and orchestra, after eight weeks in the Cafe de Paris, here, are now filling dates in the French capital, but has been granted a labor permit.

He will return to London to form an all-English band. Both the Savoy hotel and the Kit Kat have made bids for Fox, who is reported likely to tie up with the Kit Kat.

The bandsman has also contracted with the Decca Gramaphone Co. for a series of recordings.

Werfel's New Play Art, But Not Money; 2nd Show for U. S.

Vienna, Dec. 9.

Two plays, both of them clever, but as far apart as the poles, had world premieres in Vienna, one last night (Monday).

One is "Das Reich Gottes in Boehman" ("God's Country, Bohemia") by Franz Werfel, author of "Juarez and Maximillian," "Verdie" and other successful plays and novels. It is a historical piece of high literary pretensions, brilliantly produced and acted, but difficult to appreciate unless you are up on medieval history in Bohemia—and, why should you be?

It's the kind of a play that gives a glow of satisfaction to the connoisseur and nightmares to the box-office. However, it is housed at the Burg theatre where the Austrian Government pays the annual deficit of $250,000.

The other play which opened last week is Leo Perutz's "A Trip to Pressburg." It also is not without literary merit, and it is good theatre as demonstrated in its attendance at Reinhardt's Josefstaedter theatre. It is written with a shrewd eye to the native taste, but whether it would do for the States is another matter.

The story has to do with a young clerk who commits a fraud in order to go with a woman, who he supposes is a Polish countess, to see the wide world. In the end he commits suicide by throwing himself into the Danube when he finds that his Countess is really a woman of the streets who deceived him while she was going from one brothel to another.

Play has a novel device that fascinates the local patron. Action one scene showing a young American girl writing a letter to an unknown man whom she seeks to meet. Nothing more is seen of the girl until almost the end of the play when it is revealed that her prospectitve lover was the young suicide, who thus had unwittingly brushed the skirts of love and romance on his plunge to destruction.

If they try to adapt it for America, it will be a problem to modify some of the dialog and scenes. Also the treatment of the gruesome angle of young romance. Report here is that the piece is destined for Broadway.

Year's Expedition Includes Stay at Maharaja's Estate

Paris, Dec. 2.

New York Geographical Society's donation of $25,000, supplemented by similar donations of the French Geographical Society, and also from wealthy ethnology students, will be spent on an expedition to film the wilderness of Russian, Chinese Turkestan, and the Gobi Desert. Main object is to obtain filmed information centering round the discovery of the skeleton of the Ape-man of Pekin five years ago.

Expedition is to last a year, including a three months' stay in India, where the Maharajah of Baroda has offered his estate for interior and outdoor shots.

Jean de Limur, director for Pathe Natan, will be in charge of the film part of the expedition, using two sound trucks and one telephotography car. Film will be shot mainly as a scenic, though some sort of plot will be later injected, so that no actors need be taken along.

A complete radio broadcasting apparatus will permit results to be announced during the progress of this so-called "Yellow Cruise."

"Wonder Bar" Question in London; "Evergreen" Enjoys Strong Start

London, Dec. 9.

The London production of "Wonder Bar" emerged as a striking novelty at the Savoy Friday evening (5) with a lengthy cast headed by Joe Coyewald, but its fate was hanging in the balance for the first few days.

The single setting and a plot pattern much in the same key work against the piece which required much cutting and quickening. It was difficult to forecast if audiences after the premiere crowd would be greatly interested in a picture of Viennese cabaret life.

The libraries were holding back to await some definite indication of public reaction.

"Evergreen," C. B. Cochran's spectacular musical at the reconstructed Adelphi, is the biggest thing of the kind ever done in London. Book is by Benn Levy and lyrics and music by Rodgers and Hart.

Reception was enthusiastic, although it is admitted that the show requires cutting since it ran more than three hours at the premiere last week (3). Sonnie Hale, Jessie Matthews, and Leon Morton are the featured principals. Carlos and Chita and Barry and FitzGibbon, dancing teams, scored sensationally.

Scenic production and the costuming are sumptuous with the whole piece a riot of artistic color. Dillingham already is negotiating for the American rights.

"The Queen Bee" opened Dec. 2 at the Prince of Wales and proved an enjoyable evening for the sophisticates. Piece was reported by "Variety" when it was shown at a Sunday performance a month ago. It has been somewhat modified for presentation to a more general public. Story has daring angles in the development of a French attitude toward marriage. Piece is delightfully acted, but its general appeal is doubtful.

"The Witch," also opening Dec. 2, at the Embassy, is a powerful but dull drama and does not figure for popularity.

"Twelve Hours," by John Willard, is new at the Comedy, proving another old fashioned thriller, the fourth in the last fortnight.

NEW COLISEUM BILL IS NOT SO STRONG

London, Dec. 9.

Ilse Bois, billed as the "International revue star," featured the new show at the Coliseum (vaudeville). She offers an elemental quick change turn satirizing typical vaudeville types. Turn was widely advertised in advance, but shows nothing new. Item was received in friendly fashion by the audience with the aid of an apparent claque.

Desmond Jeans, former actor, but now a professional heavyweight boxer, appeared in the sketch "Put 'Em Up," by Dion Titheradge, which turns out to be just another skit to exploit a ring notable. With Jeans a comparative newcomer to the sporting world, the feature has no box office value.

"Billy," an electrical automaton, is unworthy of a West End vaudeville house, being more suited to a children's entertainment.

Holland Critics Complain Against Current Talent

The Hague, Dec. 9.

Music critics are complaining bitterly at the influx of foreign artists without talent.

Charge is made that they are responsible for alienating the public from the smaller concert events which once had a large following. Complaint is that the visitors have no voices, or if they are instrumental soloists hav. no technique.

Latest flop is that of Ella Arengo, Hungarian soprano, who appeared before an array of empty seats in a local concert hall.

Chevalier's $47,000

London, Dec. 9.

The Dominion grossed around $47,000 last week on 11 performances of the show headed by Maurice Chevalier.

Overhead for the show is $15,000 outside of Chevalier. Star is on a percentage arrangement with a guarantee of $20,000 for the week.

Current week is not expected to equal last week's figure due to Chevalier playing Sunday at Albert Hall on 50-50 terms. The attendance at this performance was about a quarter of capacity.

2 British Comedies Are Liked in Vienna

Vienna, Dec. 9.

Two English comedies are making notable successes in Vienna, the better being Nell Grant's "Petticoat Politics," which has the charming Lilly Darvas in the leading role.

Walter Ellis's "Almost a Honeymoon" is a close second at the Kammerspiele, being an adaptation of the English original by Erich Glass.

Two Stoll Vets Leave

London, Dec. 9.

Arthur Crocker, stage manager for many years at Stoll's Alhambra, is vacating that post at the end of the year, having accepted a similar spot with General Theatres.

Alfred Doxe, musical director at the Coliseum, and with Stoll's enterprises for 28 years, leaves there Dec. 12. Horace Sheldon replaces.

KENDALL'S SHOW

Paris, Dec. 9.

Messmore Kendall returning to New York after European travels will produce the Somerset Maugham piece, "Bread Winners," on Broadway.

He intends to make it a spring production.

ENGLISH PLAYERS' VISIT

Belgrade, Dec. 9.

English players from Paris paid their annual visit of the year to Belgrade.

Played Edgar Wallace's "On the Spot" and "The Silent Witness" one evening each and last night (6).

Lower Palace Figuure Satisfies Bee Lillie, Due to Conditions

London, Dec. 9.

Beatrice Lillie has received an offer to the New York Palace at $5,000 a week.

Although the English star received $7,500 for her last Palace appearance, she regards the new figure as satisfactory under the present circumstances surrounding show business.

Thus it is probable that she will accept the engagement when she reaches New York about the end of January.

"Black Coffee" Light

London, Dec. 19.

"Black Coffee" opening last night (8) at the Embassy is too lightweight to find favor in any metropolis.

It's a rather conventional detective plot by Agatha Christie.

Films Autobiography

London, Dec. 9.

Gracie Fields is to star in a talker written by Archie Pitt, the theme being built upon events in the life of the actress herself.

Production by British International.

Jessie Millward Ill

London, Dec. 9.

Jessie Millward is seriously ill. She is at a hospital in Brighton suffering from bronchitis and heart trouble.

GROSSMITH AT DRURY?

London, Dec. 9.

Report is out here that George Grossmith will assume production management at the Drury Lane shortly.

Ticket League, Postal, Managers and Brokers Far from Harmonizing

The leading spirits in the Theatre League appear to realize that the League's functioning machinery is minus the power to make managers conform to orders and rules. They know that managers with hits change their ideas about ticket control.

After three months of operation the League acknowledges the muddle of the ticket situation and sees a big task ahead. Agency buys are supposedly out but that appears to have aided the ticket brokers rather than the managers. High prices still exist because the gyps have been running wild—with the good seats for the good shows. Gyp prices generally are lower in the better known agencies but that does not apply to the little fellows.

Postal Telegraph, created as a new agency when the original 16 accredited brokers walked out of the League, is anything but satisfied with its deal, from reports. Postal has complained to the League that it is not receiving the allotments promised, neither as to the quantity or the location of tickets for the hit shows. Indications are that Postal heads figure that when they cannot deliver, it results in a dissatisfied rather than a new customer.

At a dinner given by the International Telegraph and Telephone Co. last week, one official complimented the League leaders with having "sold Postal" the ticket idea, indicating the picture painted by the League was not up to the sales talk. It was further stated that Postal did not expect to make money selling tickets but to advertise its service.

Six former box office men were let out of Postal's poolin office last Saturday, indicating a drop in business. Estimated sales last week were 5,000 tickets. Number claimed was 10,000.

Postal is reticent about figures on its suburban trade and the indication there is that little patronage from the outlying districts has been secured. If that is true then the big idea in tying up with Postal has been missed. League people pointed out to Postal what a great thing it would be if a person in the suburbs could lift the telephone and secure tickets easily and at a modest service charge. The matter isn't that simple and the development of a ticket agency is a matter of seasons, not weeks.

Postal went to bat with the League over the reduction of tickets for "Three's a Crowd" and the withdrawal of front locations. Arch Selwyn in whose theatre the attraction is current was asked to tell why. The manager stated that not only did the bulk of the better located tickets go into the hands of diggers or gyps who resold them at high prices, but that Postal was not getting rid of the tickets then allotted it. Postal countered that that was because the locations were rear, with Selwyn saying that any agency could sell good tickets for hits, even to the gyps.

Hits

The complaint about allotments and locations is the same that split the brokers away from the League. The upset of the Selwyn-Postal row was the alloting to the latter of 10 front locations nightly. Postal is getting 77 tickets for "Three's a Crowd" now, although announced it is getting 100. Originally Postal got 150 tickets for that hit but was cut down because of the number returned to the box office. Last week when Postal tried to show its ticket selling value, plenty of tickets for "Crowd" were returned. The Selwyn sought to have the same right to distribution as "Grand Hotel," also smash, the producer of which is distributing 30 good tickets, as he sees it. Herman Shumlin owns the latter show and has been against the League plan from the start.

The answer is that producers with real hits cannot be made to adhere to rules, because the rules don't work. It is also the answer that was put to the League at the start: "What happens if a producer not in the League objects and has a hit—shall he be thrown out and the house probably kept dark?" House owners appear to have refused to evict a hit, especially in this season or any other. League people take the attitude that those who do not fall in line with the rules should take it on the chin. The rules have been changed or voided so often the League itself probably has to go into a huddle to find out what is what.

Last week when the "Three's a Crowd" matter turned up some errors, it was resolved that theatres and attractions shall have the right to make allotments as to number and location along with the League. It was also voted that recognized brokers (those taken back from the original 16) can buy tickets over the allotments for cash and no return. That appears to be a modified buy idea. Just what tickets are to remain in the box was not indicated, if any when the diggers got through.

Refunds

Postal is having its troubles over making refunds or exchanges. Its system has no provision for that. Where a customer insists it is said that a refund is made but the 50 cents per ticket charge is held out. Postal is said to give actual possession of tickets to new customers with charge accounts and that such tickets can be exchanged or refunded.

How many managers are following the rules is a question. A few are still very hot for the League idea, but most showmen are getting their tickets into salable channels. The supposed safeguards against tickets reaching gyps appear not to have been workable.

Ziegfeld declared he would start suits if tickets for "Smiles" were not handled by Postal or any other agency. He said he would join the League if satisfied it was working along the lines promised, but he stated he knew it was not and that nearly all managers were selling tickets wherever they could. George White joined the League as "Flying High" is on the skids and the hotel agencies might sell some of his tickets. Some brokers figured White strengthened the League by joining it. Others asked "what difference does it make?"

The order that the recognized brokers are to pay 10 cents a ticket to the League has met with resistance by those agencies. They do not see why that percentage is necessary to maintain the League and none has paid the money. There is a considerable indebtedness incurred by the League that has not been paid off. Reports are the managers are not paying the one per cent as levied.

Can't Stop Brokers

Sam H. Harris and the League lost the suit to restrain independent brokers from reselling tickets for "Once in a Lifetime," the test case being that against Jack Pasternack. The court stated it appeared that the managers had not exhausted the legal process of stopping such resale, such as refusing such tickets at the door. The League was disappointed at the decision and an appeal may be taken. But managers hesitate about stopping tickets at the door.

Again the managerial price trend when high demand is anticipated is shown in the scales of several attractions this week-end for the Army-Navy game crowds. "The New Yorkers" will be $7.70 top Friday and Saturday, on the latter night the top for "Vanities" goes to $6.60 and "The Vinegar Tree" goes to $5.50 from $8.25.

Francis X. Bushman as Kedzie's Guest Star

Chicago, Dec. 9.

From pictures to vaude to legit. That's the route of Francis X. Bushman who has been playing midwest vaude spots, and now goes legit as guest star at the Kedzie.

Bushman comes in Jan. 4. Bushman is being agented around town by Max Landau. Under contract agreement Bushman must not show at any spot within two miles of the theatre before his opening date.

Bushman is set for two weeks of one and two-day appearances in small northern Michigan towns during January. Booked by Bill Diamond.

ERROL AT $5,000

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Leon Errol heads the Erlanger Coast cast of "Lost Sheep," with $20,000 guaranteed him for four weeks.

Show opens at the Columbia, San Francisco, Dec. 29, and then moves to the Biltmore, Los Angeles.

Rehearsals started here Monday.

OBJECT TO LEGIT WIRING

Merchants in Colony Don't Want El Capitan to Go Sound

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Hollywood business interests are squawking at the reported wiring of the legit house, El Capitan, claiming a picture house can't bring trade from other parts of the town.

As the house is owned by C. E. Toberman, who is heavily interested in Hollywood realty, he will probably heed the noise.

11 Flivs Run $448,000 in Red Within 5 Weeks

Broadway legit flops from Nov. 3 to Dec. 6 (five weeks) saw the failures absorb an estimated total of $448,000. Amount is top for any five consecutive weeks of the current season.

Outstanding loss is $225,000 supposedly on "Princess Charming," produced by Connolly & Swanstrom and running seven weeks. That the amount was even more than this is believed in many quarters. Shuberts were in on "Princess" for a third.

Previous high loss was credited to another musical, Arthur Hammerstein's "Luana," which went for around $200,000. Both shows are thought to have suffered principally from lack of ticket brokers' support, as have many others.

"Vanderbilt Revue," produced by Lew Fields and Lyle Andrews, is estimated at $60,000; "Well of Romance," at the Craig, third musical to flop, for a similar amount.

Highest dramatic flop was Charles L. Wagner's "The Tyrant," Rafael Sabatini's costume play, set at $30,000. Other losses were "Room of Dreams" (Theatre Assembly), $15,000; "Mrs. Samuel" (George Tyler and Erlanger's), high at $15,000; "Made in France," Lya de Putti flop, produced by Laura Wilck, at $10,000; "Marseilles," another flop for Gilbert Miller, $15,000; "Pressing Business" (G. C. Fitchett), $8,000.

Out of town, "On the Loose," Colleen Moore play produced by Arch Selwyn and Erlanger's, is thought to be in the red for $30,000.

"LIZZIE" MAY BE CLOSED IN NEW YORK

Because business had fallen off and the "Girard Trust Co. and the estate of Dr. Howard Furness couldn't be bothered," a week to week notice was posted for "Lysistrata" Monday (8). Both the show and the New York office of the Philadelphia Theatrical Association, which produced "Lizzie," may be closed at the end of this week.

Having played on Broadway for six months, with receipts lately going down, the producers are reported figuring the show was finished in New York, and are now concentrating on the Chicago company, now showing.

Robert Sparks, who handled the production for the Philly backers, was in Philadelphia Monday (8), where he was given the news. Sparks leaves for Chicago today.

With a salary list of nearly $10,000 "Lizzie" opened in New York June 5, 1930, after five weeks in its home town. Since opening show has covered its original outlay of $130,000 and made money, but has played into hard luck consistently.

Old-Time Names Pass

Syacuse, Dec. 9.

With the Empire re-named the Dewitt, the downtown Main Stem without a single theatre name familiar to the older generation of amusement patrons. The Eckel and the Strand survive, but with claim prefixes that are fast taking the place of the established names.

Downtown houses to pass out include the Grand Opera House, where the Shuberts and Marcus Heiman, aniong others, started; the Bastable, the System, Crescent, Temple, Wieting and, finally, the Empire.

How Postal's Ticket System Works

Few Hitches, but Regular Agencies Sell Most Coupons—Easy for Gyps' Digggers

Few hitches in the Postal Telegraph's order slips system are noticeable, although there is slight confusion attached. Those hitches are on names, misunderstood over the phone, dates and location.

At a 42d street house last week, a customer claimed misrepresentation on the part of Postal's clerk handling the sale, as seats were on the extreme side and not aisle. Said to be the first complaint of this kind so far, as Postal men have theatre diagrams before them.

Asked about Postal mistakes, one manager stated there were not enough business to warrant confusion.

From observations made at theatres with hits, Postal business seemed to contradict the League's claim it is selling 35,000 tickets weekly, particularly since the League's heaviest sale are for big hits.

Allotment Cut Down

One 48th street show asserted the League disposed of only two orders on a Friday night. In opposition to the League's claim were complaints made by "Three's A Crowd" management, which resulted in a cut down on Postal's allotment from 167 to 100 seats last week.

At one house where Postal was reported making a mistake as to date of performance, the telegraph company was said to have made good financially.

To the specs, Postal seems to be little more than a joke, since no trouble whatsoever is encountered in "digging." It simply means the specs' seats must be put in a new envelope to be called for by the users. There is no trouble in getting them, either for specs or ultimate users.

Even with a reduced number of brokers handling seats, orders from the latter were observed to predominate by far over the Postal's orders. Entire attitude of patrons seems to indicate a dislike for buying through the wire company, an entirely new procedure to them. There were also some praising the service.

Although Postal claims to have several men working on cancellations, there were reports of slip ups in this direction, leaving the box offices in the dark as to the returned seats.

Admittedly out to increase its own business, the Postal is claimed to be a dead loss to all but hit shows and cannot replace the brokers' aid on this angle.

League says it is working now on a scheme to do away with speculation, but making no plans public.

Right now a laundry, restaurant and tailor shop are among the outsiders handling seats for hit shows.

Kerr Goes to Radio

Geoffery Kerr, legit, currently playing in "This Is New York," has been placed under contract to Radio for six months commencing Feb. 25, next.

Kerr was engaged for "This Is New York" at practically the same time he went under contract to Radio. Radio consented to postpone the starting date until 12 weeks after the show opened, with Arthur Hopkins, producer of the show agreeing.

Kerr was engaged through Maxwell Arnow of the Leo Morrison office.

S-M Take C-S Show; May Change Cast, as After Buddy Rogers

Schwab & Mandel have taken over the Fields, Rogers and Hart musical, "Success," from Connolly & Swanstrom. Efforts are being made to secure Charles "Buddy" Rogers from Paramount as the juvenile.

As originally planned, under Connolly-Swanstrom piloting, Warner Brothers was to have been in on the venture, with the show to ultimately make its Broadway debut at the film firm's Hollywood theatre. Switch in management will probably change the New York destination and may also cause changes in the cast before it goes into rehearsal around Dec. 22.

Initial cast lineup named Jack Whiting, Irene Delroy, Inez Courtney and Gus Shy as the leading principals. But Schwab & Mandel opened negotiations for the male film star and also for Jack Haley, comedian, who recently and voluntarily called off his $80,000 contract with S-M. If Rogers and Haley are obtained, it apparently means that Whiting and Shy will be dropped. Whether the Misses Delroy and Courtney are to be retained is not known. The Haley engagement looks cold at present.

Operetta Off

As first put together the entire undertaking had a distinct Warner flavor, due to Whiting and Miss Delroy being under WB contracts; as also Rogers and Hart to First National. In collaboration with Herb Fields, the latter team did a picture for FN last summer, "Hot Heiress," as yet unreleased.

Through taking over "Success," and because they can't get the people they want, Schwab & Mandel have postponed the operetta they were to produce during the winter. This is a Hammerstein, Mandel and Romberg works which now goes over until next August, and for which no title has been selected.

Rogers in "Follies"

Ziegfeld has signed Will Rogers for his next "Follies" which he will produce in May or June. Producer is also after Ruth Etting for the same show.

Mrs. Pat in Wrangle

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell and the Vine Street theatre are having a squabble, the controversy being over what is coming to her for two lecture dates preceding the "Ghosts" engagement.

Both parties are trying to keep it out of the courts. Equity has refused to handle arbitration, ruling that lectures are not show biz.

Difficulty was caused by two separate agreements, one calling for cash and the other on percentage. Percentage was less than Mrs. Campbell anticipated.

PAULINE LORD STARRING

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Frankyn Warner is producing "Barren Trees," play by Arthur Gregor. Pauline Lord is mentioned for the lead, with opening sometime in January.

Gregor also wrote "Decency," produced by Warner last spring.

"MOB" TOO DANGEROUS IN SPIRIT, L. A. FEARS

Civic Repertory theatre has called off production of "The Mob," scheduled to follow "Porgy," and will substitute another John Galsworthy play.

Display of mob spirit and social leanings in the story were thought possibly dangerous under present business conditions.

Sale Show to Coast

Shuberts have decided to send "Hello Paris," with Chic Sale to the Coast with plenty of one-night-ers on the way.

The show has one week after this in New York, lays off a week and then goes into the Wilbur, Boston, for two weeks with the subsequent western trek being booked.

Polly Walker will not go, being replaced by Mary Adams, already in the show, with the latter's part taken over by Dorothy Blair.

For the pending road tour only eight of the original 12 Jubilee Singers (colored) will be carried.

Next at Vine St.

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

"Ladies of Creation," new play by Gladys Unger, is on tap for production soon at the Vine Street.

HOLLYWOOD'S LEGIT TRY

$10,000 and Hall, Rent Free, Is Minn. Town's Bid for Flesh Shows

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Hibbing, Minnesota, population 15,000, has just made a present, rent free, of its Municipal Auditorium, seating 1,200,, to the Northwestern Amusement Co. of St. Paul, which will undertake starting in January to provide the town with three days of vaudefilm and three days of dramatic stock. Hibbing now has talking pictures.

On top of giving the booking agency the place without rent or obligation the city put up a fund of $10,000 for the agency to undertake the correction of the acoustics, previously the chief obstacle.

Always Nice

Among showmen Hibbing has for decades been known as a natural show town. It has been so good in fact that traveling companies invariably boosted their scale and the natives ungrudgingly paid the extra tariff, although the same shows frequently played neighboring towns at a lower scale. The latest action of donating their Municipal Auditorium solely to obtain entertainment is described as the climax of liberality by an always-liberal burg.

Hibbing is 275 miles above St. Paul in a region heavily Swedish and plenty cold. They're not only hungry but crazy for in-person actors. Stock company will spend the other half of the week in another small town, Virginia, Minnesota, population 14,000.

British Fog

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

The jolly old accent is nine points of the part these days, and the agent knows it.

A director, his casting going very slowly, sent out for every possibility. One agent had only one entry and apologized for that. "She's a little crazy," he said, laying down the photograph, "but she's English."

PROFIT OF HITS FOR OUTSIDERS

While the wiser and more experienced producers are passing up scripts which later develop into hits, three of the biggest hits current on Broadway, are paying big profits to men outside of show biz. "Grand Hotel," Herman Shumlin's hit, is paying Harry Moses, of the underwear business, weekly profits. His share is figured as reaching a total of $100,000 or more.

Roland Stebbins, also an outsider, is steadily collecting from "The Green Pastures," holdover hit. "Lysistrata," is paying a part of its profits to the estate of Dr. H. H. Furness, late Philadelphia patron of the arts.

The Players Free Gag for Paid Commercial Time on the Air

Inducing stars, featured players or entertainers to appear without charge on an air commercial hour in New York is developing almost into a racket.

So far this has been done mostly by newspaper people acting as announcers for the commercial hours they represent. With most of these solicitors of gratis services from "guest-stars for radio," the understanding that they provide a "name" each time they broadcast is a part of their contract with the firm employing them and the radio.

Were these paid announcers to protest against furnishing a free name as part of their radio time, it is doubtful if some could obtain a broadcasting contract, or if so, then at least at one-half the amount they now receive with the "guest star" added gag.

The Publicity Alibi

Several reasons are attributable to the players falling for this bunko. The most favored alibi is publicity, that of the air and the announcement of the appearance in the newspapers of the announcers. The newspapers, themselves, are not the commercial payer for the hour, although some of the dailies benefit through obliging the commercial air advertiser employing its people as announcer, to also advertise in the sheets. Which leaves those newspapers far from altruistic in the radio matter.

The publicity in the dailies is momentarily a line or two once or twice. The air publicity might be of some value to the player if repeated. But appearing once only, if there is a reaction to the air publicity it probably lies in the thought of the listeners-in that the players must be air flops, since they are not heard the second time.

While the commercial advertisers pays the price, of the announcer, of the radio time and of the daily advertising. And the player gets nothing but the bull, probably promises for the future in the newspaper or an intimation that the free air appearance will pay off some of the "notices" given by the newspaper men in the past.

Radio Lives and Kills

Radio lives on music and entertainment.

Radio has killed the music business.

Radio has hurt the theatres.

These very things that have made Radio possible and an enormous industry, their sole valuable sources of supply, are injured mostly by Radio.

There is every reason why a player or an entertainer should not volunteer for the Radio unless for charity. If the radio advertisers can pay everyone else, the advertiser should pay the talent.

There is no reason why the player or entertainer should give away their talent to appease or please a newspaper man or women, no matter who or she may be or what paper they represent. It's a bad precedent; it decreases the value of the air entertainer, at present or in the future; it returns the player no actual benefit, for air publicity to stand up must at least be somewhat continuous.

If air entertainment in person is of such little worth it can be constantly given away, why should Radio or a national or local air advertiser appraise its value at any higher figure than the giveaway actors themselves?

Exceptions

Actors under engagements to theatre circuits or show managements, appearing on the air in a regular exploiting radio program of course are not included or looked upon as "free entertainers."

ALL PRODUCERS SOON STAGING

Universal and Columbia Preparing to Join Metro, Warners, Par, Radio in Putting Scripts on Boards Before Filming—Like Extra Legit Cut and Lower Play Prices

ECONOMICAL

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Legit production by picture producers grows more popular, with indications that all the majors will be in before long. Latest companies figuring on backing shows are Universal and Columbia.

Universal is known to be looking for a suitable script but at Columbia it's a case of a divided house. Harry Cohn is strong for it but brother John doesn't yet see it.

Angle of the picture-legit producer is that it's another move toward economy. One producer who is headed toward legit points to recent play buys in which heavy money was paid before the shows opened and no accurate estimate could be made on their worth.

As the picture maker puts it, "Why pay $60,000 for rights for a play before it is produced? Isn't it better to put it on yourself for not over $15,000 and if it goes you get a cut on the legit returns plus the picture? Otherwise you pay top price even though you are still speculating."

Bidding Angle

Although the Author's League requires a producer to offer his piece to the highest bidder for screen rights, the picture-play producer can afford to outbid his competitors because half of the proceeds will come back to him anyway.

Leaning by the picture producers toward legit is their intent to fill their next year's programs with stage contributions. Looking over the recent returns from the b. o., they find that adaptations from the boards have been big kale makers.

Scramble started with the pictures mob not waiting until the plays

(Continued on page 63)

Build International Theatre at Chicago For World's Fair

Chicago, Dec. 9.

A new theatre, seating about 2,000, will shortly be erected for use during the 1933 World's Fair. House is to be known as the International theatre, and will become a fixture, remaining after closing of the fair.

Moscow Art Players, and troupes of standing from about six foreign countries have been approached to give performances during the run of the fair.

Understood all troupes imported will come in on a guarantee basis.

Theatre Owner's Musical

Craig theatre, dark since "Veil of Romance" closed after less than two weeks, will be relighted again shortly with another musical.

Theatre owners are producing, the show coming in in about a month.

Betty Boyd Halts Play

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

"She Had to Marry," new play by Al Bridge, failed to open at the Vine Street Monday night when Betty Boyd left the cast to accept a picture engagement.

Nancy Fair replaced and announcement was made the show will open Friday (12).

Statistics Not Kept by League Or Postal—No Line on Added Trade

Legit Gets Smart

Chicago, Dec. 9.

First time sidewalk spieler used for legit when "Subway Express" installed a barker in front of the Erlanger. Starts in at 9 a. m. and keeps barking all day.

"Step right up and get good tickets for the 'Subway Express'; most exciting play in town," is the sales cry.

SHUBERT OFFER FOR PRODUCER

Because of their failure to land a hit so far this season, Shuberts are reported offering a young indie producer $50,000 to $75,000 yearly salary to produce for them, the indie to take charge of a new corporation to be formed.

It is said Shuberts have received an answer from the indie in which he declares he would work only on certain conditions, giving him the entire say-so on production, but that present arrangements had him tied up for a period of time.

QUIZ FRISCO ACTORS IN MYSTERY SLAYING

San Francisco, Dec. 9.

Wallace Middleton, actor in "Ex-Mistress," at the Green Street theatre, was held for questioning in connection with the mysterious murder of Mrs. Rosetta Baker, former actress and society woman, aged 65, who was found strangled to death in her apartment.

Arthur and Al Beale from the Green Street cast were also held. Middleton was reported let out of the cast Saturday (6) night by the management.

The three men under examination, admitted, police say, that they were with Mrs. Baker the night before the murder. The motive of the killing is still a mystery.

Middleton was once with the Henry Duffy players. Mrs. Baker appeared with Reginald Travers Fairmont hotel theatre, highbrow producing outfit.

'VICE' ON POLICE SCANDAL

Meller Rushing to Reach New York While Investigation Is Hot

"Vice," melodrama by John Kane, on the current expose of the vice squad of the New York police, is being rushed into rehearsal. It is due for New York while the investigation is still hot. Murray Irving is producing.

Cast includes Helen Heibel, Albert Conway, George Austin, Thomas Haskell, Anita Klarmen, Frank Finnerty, William Carlomagno, Hubert Murray, Peter Daly, Walter G. Borne, Jane Kennedy, Thomas Findlay and others.

Warner Ill, Plans Cold

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

With Franklin Warner back in the hospital suffering from an intestinal infection, production of the second edition of "Temptations" has been postponed indefinitely. Also in abeyance is the contemplated Frisco showing of the first edition.

Same goes for "Oh! Susanna," produced here last spring and scheduled to be sent to New York by Warner shortly after the holidays.

A Variety reporter calling at the Ticket League and Postal Telegraph's ticket offices was unable to learn if either had increased the usual patronage of the Broadway legit theatre, with their attempted regulation of the ticket sale. Both admitted they had not compiled statistics of sales; that they did not know if an increase of purchasers from New York's surrounding neighborhoods or suburbs had been brought about by the entrance into the ticket field of the Theatre League and Postal's distribution.

At the Postal's uptown ticket office, an estimate was made that "perhaps 8% of the total tickets" sold by it came from the neighborhoods and suburbs. That computation left 92% of Postal's sales from the customary channels of regular legit goers, with the financial district and commercial houses purchasing tickets for buyers, as usual. The East Side of New York is a considerable buyer of legit tickets but those purchasers are said to have been built up by Joe Leblang's cut rates. They sidestep the regular box office priced coupons.

Neither could the box office men state if they had observed any increase from New York neighborhoods. The Postal's order slips and marked by code numbers, they state, signifying the location of the Postal branch office taking the order, only.

Col. Harlow Savage of the League said he has no idea of suburban buying of legit tickets, but that the League's recognized agencies are selling from 35,000 to 40,000 tickets weekly.

No Explaining

At neither office was an explanation offered why no statistics had been gathered to denote an extension of theatre patronage, if that exists, and if so where the increase mostly has been found.

The opinion has prevailed that the Ticket League and the Postal, co-operating, must increase the legit theatre's trade to be denoted a success. An increase, if the Postal's and League's system of furnishing buyers with legits tickets at the reasonable service of 50c per ticket, should first be detected from the suburbs, it is claimed, since those

(Continued on page 63)

$10,350 Judgment for Film Sale by Morris Of "Sons o' Guns" Rights

A judgment for $10,350 has been filed in the N. Y. Supreme Court in favor of the William Morris Agency against Connolly & Swanstrom.

The plaintiff sued on the ground that the defendant agreed that it was to receive $10,000 on Oct. 1, last, for bringing about the sale of the defendant's play, "Sons o' Guns," to the Art Cinema Corp for a film production, but has failed to pay.

"Hobohemia" in Village

"Hobohemia," satirical comedy on Greenwich Village by Sinclair Lewis, has gone into rehearsal. It will open at the Grove Street, in the Village, Dec. 29.

Agnes Gill, Benjamin Halliday, Gwendolyn Morrissey, Lulu Lackey, Eugene Skinner, Arthur Brown, James Dillon, Robert Giodoni, Ralph Davis, Joseph Smith, Leo Hayes, Frank Perry, Frank Klein and others in play.

Par Keeps Starrett

Paramount has decided to exercise its option on Charles Starrett in two features at the Astoria studios. Pending a picture assignment, Starrett has been engaged by Edward Dolejen for the lead male role in "With the Tide," drama, now in rehearsal.

FUTURE PLAYS

"In Hock," by Frank Rosendale, goes into rehearsal today (10) with the writer figuring as producer. Show will open Christmas week.

"Old Man Murphy," by Patrick Kearny, has been taken for production by Robert V. Newman, with opening planned for next April and Arthur Sinclair reported in the lead. Sinclair is currently rehearsing in "Rain McCoy" for Sam Lowett.

"The Life Line," by Gretchen Damrosch Finletter, will open in New York Dec. 27, Leo Bulgakov producing. Cast includes Carroll Ashburn, Eunice Stoddard, Lewis Leverett, Helen Ambrose, Harry Green, Herbert Delmore, Rosalind Ivan, Akim Tourinoff, Sally Gabler, Robert Parsons.

Francine Larrimore has been engaged as star for "Storm Song," which Robert V. Newman will produce. Newman is now rounding up support cast with the production scheduled to go into rehearsal next week.

"Storm Song" was written for the late Jeanne Eagels and had been held under option by Sam H. Harris with Newman taking it over from Harris.

"Black Sheep" goes into rehearsal next week (15) with Charles Farwell as producer. The piece is destined for Chicago.

Cast includes Mabel Trineer, Jerome Daly, Arthur Holt, Eugene Kennedy, Charles Waverly, Margaret Flynn, Martha Rutledge, Frank Shaw, Maurice Berry, Felix Muldoon, Harry Madero and others.

"The Truth Game," the new Shubert show with Billie Burke, opens Dec. 22 at the Broad Street, Newark.

Robert V. Newman is organizing a second company of "Bad Girl" for Chicago. After disposing of the duplicate "Bad Girl," Newman will direct his attention to "Storm Song."

"Fair Play," by Philip Katz, in rehearsal with Louis Bollerman figuring as producer. Opens at Bayonne, N. J., Dec. 22. Cast: Robert Rowley, Eugene Marshall, Antoinette Bookman, John Kraft, Hazel Farwell, Elsie Leininger, Joseph Lynch, Frank Madden, Marjorie Healy, Gertrude Shaw, Leonard Polk and Martha McGraw.

June Walker hopped into the femme lead of "Green Grow the Lilacs" on short notice last week and opened with the show this week (8) at the Tremont, Boston.

John Loeffler has withdrawn as general manager for George W. Lederer to produce on his own. He is casting a musical, "Daisies Won't Tell."

"Beating the Town," newspaper melo by Charles Hagan, will be given a stock trial at Rialto, Hoboken, N. J., Jan. 5. Author is a Brooklyn newspaperman.

"My Twin Sister," musical adapted from the German, for the Shuberts. In rehearsal. Bettina Hall, Walter Slezak, Fortunia Bononova, Harry Welsh among the players.

Herman Shumlin is casting a second company of "Grand Hotel" for Chicago, with the Shuberts reported in on the duplicate.

"Garrison's Folly" goes into rehearsal next week with Bertram Meiher author-producer. Cast has James T. O'Connor, Harold Clarke, Maymie Metherington, Florence Russell, Joseph Rupel, Janet Reade, Dorothy Milne, Leo Hutzel and Robert Carraway.

"Derelicts," which tried out last summer and was scrapped, is being readied for another try with Joseph Woods again figuring as producer. The piece starts at Allentown, Pa., Dec. 22, and New York later.

Cast includes Joseph Hodgins, Anthony Palumbo, Irene Carlson, Florence Major, Edward Broadhurst, Mabel Thompson, Arlene Fowler, Patrick J. Kelly, James Brennan and Walter Cassidy.

"The Baby in the Case," farce comedy by Anita Hart and Maurice Braddell, goes into rehearsal in 10 days for Thomas Kilpatrick, young indie producer.

"Hearts Are Trump," tentative title for musical adapted from the French of Louis Vourni by Russell Medcraft, has been taken by Galen Bogue. Slated for January, with Irene Bordoni as lead.

"Much Ado About Nothing," Shakespeare's comedy, went into rehearsal Monday (8) for the Theatre Guild. It opens at the Guild Jan. 12.

"She Got Into the Papers," tentative title for play by Denton Whitson, and "Don Juan," play tried out by the Goodwin, Chicago, have been taken for production by the Theatre Assembly.

Walter Connolly and Osgood Perkins will have the leads in "A Trip to Sorrento," by Hans Adler, which Oscar Serlin and the Theatre Assembly are producing. Play goes into rehearsal shortly. Serlin has also taken "Wedding" by Judith Kandel.

"Life Is Like That," which Curtis Emery is producing will open cold at the Little, New York, Dec. 23. Cast includes Helen Shipman, Edward Pawley, Mary Morris, Doris Covert and others. Paul Martin is staging.

"Life Line" has gone into rehearsal as next for Leo Bulgankov.

"Stepping Sisters" current at the Jolson, New York, and figured to fold week, will instead shift to the Ritz.

GREEN-GENSLER'S 2 NEW SHOWS FOR SHUBERTS?

With no settlement on ticket difficulties between Morris Green of Green and Gensler and Marcus Heiman of Erlanger's reported, "Rock Me, Julie," third for G. & G., has gone into rehearsal at the Sam H. Harris, Shubert house.

Auditions for G. & G.'s musical, "Gang's All Here," are being held at the Comedy, also Shubert.

Although no split is reported between the young producers and Erlangers, release of Paul Muni by Shuberts for the lead in "Julie" is said to have included a clause providing for both new shows to play at Shubert houses. Muni had been contracted to play in "This One Man" until June, 1931, with touring planned for the play.

Question of payment to Joe Leblang of 10% of total sales he makes for "Pagan Lady" and "Fine and Dandy" has apparently been set, with G. & G. making all payments and Erlanger's none. Trouble on this count had come up with Heiman of Erlanger's said to be unwilling to pay half. Leblang sells $8,000 to $10,000 worth of tickets weekly for "Lady" and "Fine."

G. & G. have had trouble casting "Julie," with three replacements going in this week. John T. Doyle, Elizabeth Patterson and Rose Keane reported out of the company, which Robert Milton is directing.

It had been originally planned to open both plays on Broadway by New Year's, with the dates now set back to late January. Green and Heiman are said to have had trouble on ticket distribution, with Green wishing to take it over.

Role Amputated, Actor Files Claim for Pay

William Pringle has filed a claim for one week's salary against Lou Holtz and Jack Yellen, producers of "You Said It," musical, currently in rehearsal.

Pringle's claim at Equity states that he rehearsed several days with the show and was informed his role had been written out of the piece. Under Equity regulations he is entitled to a week's salary, but, not having a signed contract, may have to arbitrate the amount.

Equity's regulation provides that when an actor is engaged for a part and it is written out on revision he is entitled to a week's salary if rehearsing under seven days and two weeks' salary if rehearsing beyond seven days.

Herndon's Home Props Wife's, Suit Discloses

A sheriff's jury decided that Richard G. Herndon, who is now producing "First Night," owns nothing in the apartment he occupies with his wife and some of her relatives at 240 East 57th street and that the property all belongs to Mrs. Herndon. Property is valued at $9,700.

The question of how much property Herndon hasn't got, came before the jury in a suit by the National Surety Co. which paid $977 on a bond given for Herndon for the salaries of the musicians in "Ginger Snaps." In an effort to collect the $977 the bonding company levied against the property in the Herndon apartment.

Herndon testified he has no bank account.

• Shows in Rehearsal

"You Said It" (Holtz & Yellen), 49th St.

"Colonel Satan" (Erlangers), Erlanger.

"Philip Goes Forth" (Lawrence Weber), Times Sq.

"Babes in Toyland" (Shuberts), Imperial.

"Jonesy" (George Wintz), Little.

"Inspector General" (Jed Harris), Biltmore.

"Life Line" (Leo Bulgakov), Bryant Hall.

"Made in Hollywood" (Brock Pemberton), Avon.

"Dr. X" (Brandt Enterprises), Cort.

"Deserted Village" (Kathleen Kirkwood), Triangle.

"Life Is Like That" (Curtis Emery), President.

"The Devil Is a Lady" (Lew Cantor), Ritz.

Shubert Musical Closed; Another's 1 Week Only

Shuberts have only given "My Twin Sister," German adapted musical, one week's booking. Show opens Dec. 22 in Brooklyn, with no other stand yet set. Cast so far includes Bettina Hall, Kay McKay, Olive Olsen, Walter Slezak and Harry Welch.

"Arms and the Maid," another Shubert musical, closed out of town Saturday (6).

5 Shows Out

"Scarlet Sister Mary," presented by Lee Shubert, will be sent forth from the Ethel Barrymore Saturday (13). It is the quickest flop Ethel Barrymore has ever recorded on Broadway. Three weeks, less a day. First week okay but the drop in trade the second week so marked it was decided to again go to the road. Claimed $20,000 first week, $14,000 the second, and this week will probably dive much lower.

SCARLET SISTER MARY

Opened Nov. 25. "Likely to disappoint," Mantel (News). "Difficult to understand what attracted Miss Barrymore to such a trifling narrative," Atkinson (Times). "Variety" (Ibee): "Probably won't last through winter."

"Schoolgirl," Independent, will close at the Ritz. Will have played a bit less than four weeks. Got between $5,000 and $6,000 and slipped lower last week.

SCHOOLGIRL

Opened Nov. 20. "Painful exhibition," Brown (Post). "No picnic for the audience," Darnton (Eve. World). "All too tiresome," Garland (Telegram). "Variety" (Ibee): "Does not figure on Broadway."

"An Affair of State," independent, taken off at the Broadhurst Tuesday night. Played three weeks to protect managerial end of picture rights. Fair notices but bad trade with $3,000 or less indicated.

AN AFFAIR OF STATE

Opened Nov. 19. Many of the second stringers were impressed. "Thoroughly amusing evening," Ruhl (Her-Trib). "Naughty but never offensive," thought Rathbun (Sun). Smith (World): "Thoroughly diverting evening." "Variety" (Ibee): "Limited stay indicated."

"Ladies All," Shubert show, leaves the Bijou this week too. Is in its 26th week. Started off at Morosco at about $12,000 then slipped under $10,000 and has been getting $7,000 to $8,000 lately.

"Blackbirds," presented by Lew Leslie at the Royale, closed suddenly Saturday (6). Played seven weeks. About $11,000 for a few weeks and under that lately.

BLACKBIRDS

Opened Oct. 22. Garland (Telegram) figured "Rhythm is likely to make a success out of Lew Leslie's new revue." "First-rate entertainment," Anderson (Journal). "Exciting and diverting revue," Coleman (Mirror). "Slow-paced and generally sleepy," Brown (Post). "Variety" (Ibee): "Limited engagement indicated."

Concerts

By Sallie

REDUCED ROYALTY PROPOSED FOR REPS

Equity is backing up the campaign of tent show reps and small stock operators to importune play brokers for lower royalties on play releases for both divisions.

The tent troupes and small stocks have perforcedly had to rely upon oldboy bills and mediocre originals, unable to stand the gaff of high rentals for better plays.

Two plans have been submitted to the brokers. One is for a reduction on individual releases for the stocks, and the other for a season's fee for use of plays by the reps, the latter after the method now employed by the brokers on Chautauqua rights where bills are leased for the season.

The tent men are willing to meet the Chautauqua figure on blanket contracts for the season, but so far have not been able to interest the brokers at the figures.

Rep House in White Plains

A repertory theatre for Westchester county is contemplated by Princess Deer Horn, American Indian and former night club dancer. The theatre, to be known as the Drama Repertory Company of Westchester, in White Plains, where Miss Deer Horn owns property.

The first production of a series of classical productions to be given by the company is now in rehearsal. Actors engaged are to become permanent members of the company.

Chicago Cushman Club Closed—Temporarily?

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Charlotte Cushman club here is closed, having vacated their building on Elm street on Dec. 1. Closing, however, is described as temporary while structural changes are being made. No date for reopening is announced.

Local club was organized in 1925 and for nearly a year was located in the home of Mrs. Caroline Kohl.

During the past summer with only one show in town and with the theatrical season late in starting, the club is understood to have been deprived of all its nominal income. Like the Cushman clubs in Boston and Philadelphia the rates were extremely reasonable. A fine building in an excellent neighborhood was utilized.

Gerton-Adler Split; Each Will Do Mystery Show

Philip Gerton, who teamed with Hyman Adler in producing "With Privileges," is going solo on his next show, "The Panther," mystery by James J. Judge. Play is slated for production in January.

Adler's next will be "Laughing Lanterns," by Frank Whitfield. "Lanterns" is also a mystery, and will feature the producer in the cast.

Now in the hosiery business, Gerton is an ex-vaude actor.

Stock's Beauty Lecture

Easton, Pa., Dec. 9.

Players' Guild stock, which has been here since early in September, is using a novel trade stimulant.

At each performance, during intermission, Henri, local beauty culturist, delivers a 10-minute talk on "The Art of Social Makeup," and presents to each woman holder of a 75-cent seat a package of beauty toiletries.

WESTERN PLAY OFF

Production by William Brady, Jr., of "The Frontier," western play by Richard Stevenson, has been called off. Theme similarity between "Frontier" and "Billy the Kid" (M-G) given as the reason.

Brady has taken no other play as yet.

Songs in eight languages were sung by Frances Newsom, lyric-coloratura soprano, in the Barbizon Plaza Concert Hall. She has an intriguing voice.

Her gown of turquoise blue velvet, finely encrusted in brilliants with evening slippers of the same shade, made a pretty stage picture.

Program chiefly German groups, Marietta's Lied zur Laute, from "Die Tote Stadt," Das Standchen (first performance in America), by E. W. Korngold, showed good phrasing and control; the Variation number on a Theme by Mozart, brought out the quality of Miss Newsom's lyric voice and she sang it with breath of tone color.

Factory Noises

Conductor Sokoloff and his Cleveland orchestra reach New York each season, Mr. Sokoloff presented two novelties at Carnegie, a Soviet number and one American. The cowboy songs gave a certain color in the second and third movements but the rollicking third movement outclassed the others. The other creation was "Factory Music for Machines" by A. Mossoloff, composer of Russia and little known. This composition was very brief. He evidently understood people are satisfied with the fewest of factory noises, but it's a good attempt and a departure.

House, as usual, capacity.

New Yorker's Recital

Harold Bryson, New Yorker, and a good baritone, gave a recital at Town Hall, assisted by Elma Zoller at the piano. His voice in its lower register is rich but there seems to be a little too much nasal resonance.

Mr. Bryson's stage experience has been limited, but he should develop. His program was well arranged, Brahms, Handel, Beethoven and Schubert.

"At the Ball" in English seemed to grip the audience most. He sang many encores to standees.

Plenty of Spanish

Are all the Spanish dancers transplanted in America this season? Their rhythm, considering the capacity houses that they draw, have caught the public.

Carola Goya, instead of a series of Sunday night recitals of Spanish dances, as has been her custom, will remain for an entire week at the Comedy theatre, from Dec. 15, on.

Upper and Lower in German

"Verklungene Traume" (Echo of a Dream) in German is a picture with lovely scenes of Roumania. This picture tells a pathetic love story in both the peasant and upper class life of Roumania.

Madeline, played by Maly Delschaft, is in love with a priest, who will renounce his faith to marry her. During a festive dance in the open, the son of a rich land owner Pulu (Hans Steuewe) falls in love with and introduces her to his parents. The priest, broken-hearted, later, marries them. A year after she flees from her rich husband, returns to her present home where the former priest and Madeline are reunited.

This picture shows many beautiful scenic effects, the herd of sheep being called from the field with music, a cabaret with a floor show and a song and dance act by a colored boy and girl. Women at the tables are dressed in formal clothes. Miss Delschaft appearing in a white satin evening gown with a white velvet short wrap, with shawl collar of white fox. She is very blond, with brown eyes and a bewitching smile, as well as being a good actress.

The voices register well and the photography is very clear and, as should be, the house has the story printed in English.

Training an Audience

Not an empty seat at Carnegie Friday afternoon at the performance of the Philharmonic Orchestra with Leopold Stokowski as guest conductor. His silhouette figure and expressive hands enthrall an audience.

Program covered one hour and a half with the outstanding number Stravinsgy's "Rites of Spring." His audiences are as well trained as his orchestra. At no time is one permitted to be seated during the playing of a number.

'ARMS AND MAID' TO $7,000—AWFUL

Philadelphia, Dec. 9.

After two or three excellent weeks the legit trade took a wallop on the chin last week.

Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book," which had achieved a very commendable $33,000 in its first week at the Shubert without the aid of an extra matinee but helped by holiday crowd, nose-dived badly to around $23,000 without any apparent reason. Notices were fine and people seemed to like the show.

Another musical, "Arms and the Maid," new Shubert operetta, got a pitiful $7,000 in its second and final week at the Chestnut Street Opera House.

Dramatic attractions fared considerably better. Katharine Cornell's "Dishonored Lady," although sloughed under by the critics, had laid hold of a couple of tremendous matinees at which trade mounted to around $3,000, and got $19,000 in its second and final week at the Forrest.

A surprise was the showing of "As You Desire Me," the high-brow Pirandello drama which served as the Professional Players' third at the Walnut. A very uneven show and panned by the critics, this one showed the value of the subscription idea, and with the additional aid of Judith Anderson's personal draw it grossed $11,500 in its first week. Show has possibilities with cast changes and re-direction. Advance sale is promising here.

Arthur Hammerstein's "Ballyhoo" with W. C. Fields, at the Erlanger, got some pans and the show was taken out of here Saturday to move to Baltimore. This looked like a foolish move, considering cost of moving and fact that show needs a couple of weeks' fixing prior to Broadway debut but Hammerstein figured reviewers had killed show here. Thanks to football crowds at the end of the week "Ballyhoo" got about $14,000.

This week's newcomers are "The Apple Cart," at the Garrick, and "Sons o' Guns," at the Forrest.

Next week is blank as far as openings are concerned, with only three houses apparently set for business: Walnut, Garrick and Forrest.

Monday, 22d, brings "Sweet Adeline" to the Erlanger, and "Artists and Models" to the Shubert.

Christmas night has the new Lou Holtz musical at the Forrest and "Blackbirds" at the Chestnut.

Estimates for Last Week

"Wise Child" (Grand, 3d week). Great notices and well liked but hasn't done what it should. $13,000.

"The Apple Cart" (Garrick, 1st week). House reopened after one dark week. Sale for Guild play good.

"Sons o' Guns" (Forrest, 1st week). Advance only fair, with 2d week looking better than first. "Dishonored Lady" got fine $19,000 in second and last week.

"Sketch Book" (Shubert, 3d week). Nose-dived last week after fine start. $33,000 to $23,000 or a little less hard to explain.

"As You Desire Me" (Walnut, 2d week). Despite mixed notices, Pirandello drama drew very well. $11,600 at $2.50 top with subscriptions at $2. Looks good in advance sale, too.

Erlanger is dark again after being open one week with "Ballyhoo." Scant $14,000 with bad notices.

Chestnut also dark. "Arms and the Maid" got a pitiful $7,000 in second week there.

Corey Paying Off

Arthur Corey has settled former differences with Equity and will shortly resume legit producing with "A Small Town Affair."

Corey had formerly been a stock producer and stranded a company in Maine last season. Equity held salary claims against him which he has now arranged to liquidate before proceeding on the new play.

Seattle Stock's New Start

Seattle, Dec. 9.

The Moore theatre opened last week with Alice Brady, guest star of Bainbridge stock, in "Rebound," and big started off big, dropped, then came up again. Miss Brady here for another week, "Little Belle" next which looks like winner.

Moore (Bainbridge-Bostock) (2,000; 50-75-$1)—"Rebound" (Bainbridge Players). With Alice Brady guesting.

Morosco's Comeback Try

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Oliver Morosco has posted a bond with Equity for the Los Angeles production of Between the Devil, his comeback hope.

He is after the Belasco for the piece.

Frisco Grosses

San Francisco, Dec. 9.

"The Apple Cart" at the Geary has been the outstanding box office surprise. The business in a season marked for dullness has been exceptionally big. Opening to around $11,000 its first stanza, the second week will hit better than $12,000.

Curran has been dark since Macloon's "Paris in Spring" folded suddenly and will remain so for three or four weeks. Erlanger's Columbia also went dark with closing of "Ghosts." No attraction in sight for a month.

"Stepping Sisters" at Henry Duffy's Alcazar in fifth week got around $5,000, not much of a drop. "Dracula" at President, also in fifth week, prodid. Garnered around $3,500.

Tivoli with second week of "Front Page" slipped, but still on safe side at $3,500.

MRS. PAT'S L. A. FAILURE, $4,700

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

This is the season's low legit ebb with only the Hollywood houses open. All L. A. legit theatres are dark.

Best grosser for the week was second stanza of "Michael and Mary" at the El Capitan. Home town folks continued turning out to greet Henry Duffy and handed over $7,100. Duffy and his wife, Dale Winter, have been local favs for a long time, and their appearance in this show is a natural for the $1.50 crowd.

At the Hollywood Playhouse another Duffy effort, Leo Carrillo in "The Bad Man," got away to a fair start at $6,500, although it has played here in legit and pictures, the piece is a draw through its star.

In its second and final week at the Music Box the Civic Repertory's production of "The Infinite Shoeblack" did a nose dive to $4,600. Mats held up, but the evening carriage trade was missing. Close cooperation for a week, then "Peter Pan" for the juvenile Christmas trade.

"Ghosts" in the Vine Street for one week failed to draw in spite of its star, Mrs. Patrick Campbell. Piece has been done by everyone locally, including Lucille La Verne, $4,700 on the week at $2.50 top was starvation. "She Had to Marry," an original play by Al Bridge, who will also act it, opened Sunday.

Estimates for Last Week

"Michael and Mary"—(El Capitan, 2d week). Above average at $7,100. Run of three weeks may be extended.

"The Bad Man"—(Hollywood Playhouse, 1st week). Despite a number of former appearances it got away to a good start at $6,500.

"Infinite Shoeblack"—(Music Box, Civic Rep, 2d, final week). Folded to $4,600 not so hot.

"Ghosts"—(Vine Street, one week only). No nourishment with a $4,700 take.

Ark.-Tenn.-Miss. Election

Memphis, Dec. 9.

H. D. Wharton of Warren, Ark., was elected president of the Motion Picture Owners of Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi at the closing session. Wharton succeeds J. F. Norman of England, Ark.

Other officers elected: Ed E. Kuykendall, Columbus, Miss.; W. F. Ruffin, Covington, Tenn., and M. Norman, vice pres.; M. S. McCord, Memphis, sec. and treas. and Annie Mae Day, Memphis, asst. sec., with the following directors: R. J. Goodman, Starkville, Miss.; Paul Zerilla and M. A. Lightman of Memphis; R. W. Williams, Oxford, Miss.; Sidney M. Nutt, Hot Springs, Ark.; W. L. Landers, Batesville, Ark.; E. H. Butler, Russellville, Ark.; Charles Marshall, Rogers, Ark., S. B. Johnson, Cleveland, Miss.; E. L. Drake, Jackson, Tenn.; L. K. Hellbrun, Memphis; L. N. Keane, Atalanta; M. L. Mrisch, manager of Warner Brothers' theatre of Memphis and W. E. Elkins of Aberdeen, Miss.

Convention in April will be held at Biloxi, Miss.

Reading Stock Strands

Reading, Dec. 9.

A stock company shaping up at Rajah Theatre managed by Jack G. Van Cleef, headed by Curley Burns and Lillian Walker in the roles in the first week. Admission for the opening of the company is again raised to 75 cents.

Permission was obtained from Wilmer & Vincent theatre chain to use the house for legit shows. A committee headed by George Gross, orchestra leader, and James G. Updegraff, foreman of the stage hands, made the arrangements.

5 CLICKS, NO FLOPS IN CHICAGO GROUP

Blackstone Dark to Avoid Pre-Christmas Subscription Headache

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Business climbed for the hits, in spite of this two more houses, the Illinois and the Blackstone, went dark Saturday for two weeks. The Blackstone, Theatre Guild house, chose to slam the doors, recalling last season's pre-holiday experience with switching and moving ticket subscribers. The Illinois closed on account of advanced bookings for "Sweet Adeline." Adeline could have remained, as it led the parade with $28,500, an increase over last week.

Town now has a total of six closed houses. Only three are set to open before Christmas. Jonesy goes into the Playhouse Dec. 23, "Ripples" at the Illinois Dec. 22 and George M. Cohan's "The Tavern," not a guild play, at the Blackstone Dec. 21.

"Berkeley Square" replaces "Dracula" at the Selwyn the 25th. Otherwise the line-up remains the same, with a gentle increase indicative of better times. "Simple Simon," which opened the stand after a week of darkness, Sunday, has a strong advance sale.

Estimates for Last Week

"A Month in the Country," Blackstone (3rd week) (D-1,219-$3). Went to $13,000, a slight increase over last week. House goes dark for two weeks, reopening with "The Tavern" and Geo. M. Cohan in person.

"Dracula," Selwyn (1st week) (D-1,086-$2.50). Piece has been a visitor in Chicago before. Road company gives good performance and close to $10,000, considered good. Out the 22nd to make room for "Berkeley Square."

"Lysistrata," Majestic (4th week) (D-1,897-$3.50). Features in newspaper ads it will never cut rate. Got $21,500, a slight decrease, but strong enough to look like a sticker into new year.

"Michael and Mary," Harris (1st week) (D-1,084-$3). Got off to $13,000 with the aid of Madge Kennedy as a draw. Liked. Shubert Dramatic League offering.

"Mendel, Inc," Adelphi (4th week) (C-1,118-$2.50). Despite being on cut rate plan got around $16,000, a build-up over last week. Going for stunt advertising. Strongly exploited.

"Old Rascal," Garrick (4th week) (D-1,276-$3). Up to a comfortable $14,000 and this despite the two-for-one coupons being handed out. At this figure making money and will remain.

"Simple Simon," Grand (opened the 7th) (M-1,200-$4.40). Opened to a sell-out with indications, from advance ticket sales, of several weeks good biz. Premiere ducats commanded $6.60.

"Subway Express," Erlanger (3rd week) (D-1,319-$3). Like many others this one is cut rating and going after party trade. Good healthy indications at $13,700.

"Sweet Adeline," Illinois (7th final week) (M-1,500-$3.85). Sold out every performance despite cut in ads. Got $28,500 and could have finished month. House always kept plenty of ducats on hand, shorting the speculators, and profited thereby.

"Three Little Girls," Great Northern (10th week) (O-1,365-$3.85). Picking up with musical scarcity $16,000. On a cut-rate basis.

"Young Sinners," Apollo (10th week) (CD-1,443-$3). Going up the ladder with a strong $16,500. Has clicked in last few weeks, markedly increasing takings.

Illustrators' Skits

J. J. Shubert has bought material and production used in the Artists and Illustrators' annual show Friday (5) at the New Yorker theatre.

Material included skits by Ike Rube Goldberg.

"I'se de Law" Go Boom

Leigh Whipper and Andre Tridon "I'se De Law," all-Negro show, closed suddenly in Newark, N. J., with plenty of debts.

One of the first attachments was for $800. The [illegible] and [illegible] were paid.

COAST "PEGGY" CAST

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Evelyn Treer, star of the former Lafayette players (colored), and Harrington Carter take the leads in "Porgy," at the Civic Repertory, Dec. 15.

Orlando Howard, Edward Thompson, Zack William, Arthur Ray, Beatrice Reeves, [illegible] and Clarence Brooke are [illegible] cast [illegible].

Merry Xmas Goes for But Few B'way Legits—Couple of Surprises About

Legit eased off all along the line last week. With Thanksgiving passed and not so good in itself. Several leading musicals were affected, one dropping $3,000 and further declines expected up to "Merry Christmas," if there's one still left.

The musical leaders appear to be fairly well bunched. "Smiles," at the Ziegfeld, is getting around $40,000, under capacity but important. It has an agency buy, but whether that can support the show for the 20 weeks of the agency deal is not certain. "Girl Crazy" and "Fine and Dandy" come next. A new contender for leadership arrived Monday in "The New Yorkers" at the newly named Broadway. "Three's a Crowd" holds to capacity and is the strongest in ticket demand.

"Grand Hotel" is the leader of the dramas at $28,000, with "Once in a Lifetime" the comedy smash at $23,000. Neither affected, if at all, last week. "Tonight or Never" is well up, getting more than $19,500 last week. Latter show and "Smiles" are now in the Theatre League and are the only shows with actual agency buys. "The Vinegar Tree" is a hit. Other successes slightly down last week.

"Kiss" Surprise

Of the new shows "A Kiss of Importance" proved something of a surprise, getting $13,000 at the Fulton, first week, after rather a critical panning. "This Is New York" is figured to have a chance at the Plymouth with a starting pace of $13,000. "Overture" at the Longacre landed some rave notices, but chances not yet indicated.

The decision to send "Scarlet Sister Mary" out of the Ethel Barrymore this week is another surprise. It dropped from $20,000 to $14,000 within a week, closing this week, too, is "Ladies All," Bijou; "An Affair of State" stopped Tuesday (9); "Schoolgirl" due to withdraw from the Biltz; "Blackbirds" stopped at the Royale Saturday. All houses went dark.

One new show slated for next week, "Petticoat Influence," at the Empire.

Estimates for Last Week

"An Affair of State," Broadhurst: Closed Tuesday (9); played three weeks to poor trade but protected managerial end of picture rights.

"As Good As New," Cort (6th week) (C-1,043-$3.85). Doing mild trade and appears to have just missed; will go along for time; about $6,000.

"Bad Girl," Hudson (11th week) (D-1,094-$3). Slipped off along with nearly entire list; last week around $8,000, but some profit.

"Blackbirds," Royale. Closed Saturday; seven weeks in red; reported resuming a bit later.

"Brown Buddies," Liberty (10th week) (M-1,202-$3). May stick through winter and can lay best of showings this season so far; about $11,500.

"Elizabeth the Queen," Guild (6th week) (CD-914-$3). Supported by first six weeks of subscriptions; capacity to about $18,000 weekly.

"Fine and Dandy," Erlanger's (12th week) (M-1,531-$6.60). Slid off like the others but much stronger than expected; quoted at $37,000.

"First Night," Eltinge (3d week) (CD-892-$3). May stick for time but trade very light.

"Flying High," Apollo (31st week) (M-1,168-$4.40). Doing okay considering length of run and season; with all agencies handling tickets. Took best week between $26,000 and $27,000; goes out after three weeks more.

"Grand Hotel," National (6th week) (CD-1,164-$4.40). No let-up in pace of new smash; capacity all performances for $28,000.

"Girl Crazy," Alvin (9th week) (M-1,387-$7.50). Approximating $40,000

House Shifts Cut Into Run Grosses in Boston

Boston, Dec. 9.

Shifting of houses has considerably cut grosses of [illegible] Wilbur and Majestic [illegible] Boston's two [illegible] theatres.

Estimates for Last Week

"Purity" (Plymouth, 2d week) [illegible] $7,000.

"The Blue Ghost" (Tremont, 2d week) [illegible] $7,000.

"Street Singer" (Majestic, 2d week) [illegible] $7,000.

"Street Scene" (Majestic, 1st week) [illegible] $26,000 (est.) (6 days).

"Dishonored Lady"—(Wilbur, Opened Monday; takes Bway Lyric's spot) $23,000 (est.) (6 days).

"Green Grow the Lilacs," Tremont. [illegible] Opened last night.

Business was off all along the line since opening, slightly affected last week but one of Broadway's leaders.

"Greeks Had a Name for It," Harris (12th week) (C-1,060-$3). In the big money among non-musicals and should go through season; eased to $18,000 last week.

"Green Pastures," Mansfield (42d week) (C-1,050-$4.40). Eased off but still big at $18,500.

"Hello Paris," Shubert (5th week) (R-1,395-$4.40). Doubtful of lasting and house may get new attraction soon.

"Kiss of Importance," Fulton (2d week) (C-913-$3.85). Notices not so hot but first week's trade quite promising; better than $13,000 claimed.

"Ladies All," Bijou (20th week) (C-606-$3). Final week; did well enough early in engagement at $12,000; $7,000 or less indicated lately; goes to road.

"Lysistrata," 44th St. (28th week) (C-1,323-$3.85). Slipped off with held last week too; estimated about $17,500.

"Man in Possession," Booth (5th week) (CD-708-$3.85). Not among leaders but profitable to date; $10,000 estimated last week.

"Nina Rosa," Majestic (12th week) (M-1,717-$5.50). Plugged by means of parties; business fair; around $23,000 last week.

"Oh Promise Me," Morosco (3d week) (C-894-$3.85). Rated among best of season's laugh shows; not among leaders but doing well at $13,000.

"On the Spot," Forrest (7th week) (D-1,015-$3). Will probably go through winter; last week bit off at $14,000.

"Once in a Lifetime," Music Box (12th week) (C-1,000-$3.85). Season's comedy smash with all performances capacity; $23,000 and over.

"Overture," Longacre (2d week) (CD-1,019-$3). Opened Saturday (6); some rave notices.

"Pagan Lady," 48th St. (8th week) (C-969-$3). Should coast into January; eased off last week to about $13,000, but profitable.

"Roar China," Beck (7th week) (D-1,189-$3). Show held to big money, subscriptions figuring; pace from this week on will indicate stay.

"Stepping Sisters," Jolson's (34th week) (F-1,776-$3). Cut rate marvel; wows little, which explains run at low grosses; $8,000.

"Scarlet Sister Mary," Ethel Barrymore (3d week) (D-1,090-$4.40). Final week; slipped markedly under first week; second week estimated not over $14,000; less this week and management decided for road again.

"Schoolgirl," Biltz (4th week) (C-945-$3). Final week; book play did not attract expected attention; under $5,000 last week.

"Smiles," Ziegfeld (4th week) (M-1,622-$6.60). Getting as much as anything on the list; well under capacity but around $40,000 or over last week.

"Strictly Dishonorable," Avon (65th week) (C-830-$3.85). Last four weeks announced; pace around $10,000 lately; less last week.

"Sweet and Low," Chanin's (4th week) (R-1,413-$5.50). Did not start so well and run chances in doubt; $24,000 last week; with some salary cuts may be even break.

"That's Gratitude," John Golden (14th week) (C-900-$4.40). One of season's best comedies; under pace of early going, but okay around $13,000.

"This Is New York," Plymouth (3d week) (CD-1,042-$3.85). First full week's gross approximated $11,000; should make grade.

"The Vinegar Tree," Playhouse (4th week) (C-968-$3.85). Capacity for new comedy success which bettered $17,000 last week.

"The New Yorkers," Broadway (1st week) (R-1,800-$5.50). Presented by E. Ray Goetz; opened Monday (8) with a $46.50 top; well regarded out of town.

"Three's a Crowd," Selwyn (4th week) (C-1,067-$5.50). Still in high favor and should run through season to big money; last week $25,000 as again.

"Tonight or Never," Belasco (4th week) (CD-1,000-$3.85). Going big; last week $19,500; certainties hit only.

"Up Pops the Devil," Masque (3d week) (C-760-$4). Around $5,000 [illegible] could go along but [illegible].

"Vanities," New Amsterdam (24th week) (R-1,762-$5.50). Little change and week ahead around $24,000; could last into January.

Other Attractions

"The Merchant of Venice," Times Sq. (2d week) (C-1,000-$3.85). Getting very well received by critics, but trade very light.

"Twelfth Night," [illegible] "Art and Mrs. Bottle," Elliott; [illegible] intentions [illegible] week ending.

"Mrs. Moonlight," Hopkins [illegible] around $8,000; [illegible] some [illegible] money here.

"Light Wines and Beer," Republic.

Plays on Broadway

THE NEW YORKERS

Musical satire of revue type presented at Broadway (formerly Moss' Colony) Dec. 8 by E. Ray Goetz. Score by Cole Porter; book by Herbert Fields, Peter Arno and Goetz. Staged by Monty Woolley, George Hale and Fred Waring. Jackson, Clayton and Durante, Hope Williams, Frances Williams, Charles King, Ann Pennington, Mark Cahill, Richard Carle, Waring's Pennsylvanians. Featured. $5.50 top.

Alice Wentworth ..... Hope Williams
Felix ..... Charles Angelo
Dr. Wentworth ..... Richard Carle
Lois McGee ..... Ann Pennington
Gloria Wentworth ..... Marie Cahill
Alfredo Gomez ..... Maurice Lapon
James Livingston ..... Barrie Oliver
Mona Low ..... Frances Williams
Al Spanish ..... Charles King
Jimmie Deegan ..... Jimmy Durante
Cyril Gregory ..... Lou Clayton
Ronald Monahan ..... Eddie Jackson
Butch McGeehan ..... Tammany Young
Burns ..... Ralph Glover
Dopey ..... Billy Cullen
Mary ..... Kathryn Crawford
Attendant at Sing Sing ..... Donald McGinnis
Plague ..... Stanley Harrison
Mildew ..... Oscar Ragland
An Interne ..... Owen Coll
A Nurse ..... Marjorie Arnold
Assistant Nurse ..... Ulilia Reichel
Dr. Cornhandt Jenks ..... Paul Huber
Three Girl Friends—June Shafer, Ida Pearson, Stella Friend

"The New Yorkers" makes its bid through the popularity of its featured people. It is good entertainment not really a musical comedy and therefore not conventional. No great production splurge, despite the $5.50 top (and $16.50 for the premiere).

Jimmy Durante is the big noise, nose and laugh of the show. Of course, Lew Clayton, Eddie Jackson are side-kicking with him, but Jimmy is the main idea when Frances Williams isn't warbling. Latter has a lot of the score to do. Parts of many of male trio's routines run throughout the performance, more so than when the boys have played the Palace. Other feature routines have been switched and added but to those in the know the numbers are all familiar. It's a full evening's work for the schnozzles, and if they are to double in a night club (Silver Slipper) they'll have to get themselves some valets or something.

Clayton, Jackson and Durante have invariably dominated the Palace bills, which lends the idea that if Goetz could give his "New Yorks" best Sunday nights it would go a long way toward taking the nut for the week off. That they are dominating this show is evidence of managerial smartness in letting them doll up a book that needed it.

Out of town the word was that the first act was good and the second bad. Some fixing has been done, no doubt, but the latter section still can stand strengthening.

Plenty of night club stuff in the show. Two full sets picturing two different night spots, one on Broadway and the other over near Park Avenue. The three boys start with "The Hot Patata," always a lively, manic thing. But it was 45 minutes after the curtain was up that the first real score came. This was with "Venice." The participation of Hope Williams in part of the lyric provided consternation to Jimmy and Lee to the first nighters. The Money number came near the first part wind, which was then Woolleyed nonsense with the stage piled plenty high. Durante and Clayton labored on the stage and Clayton in the pit.

In the second part, a Sing Sing scene for the most part, the trio and the prisoners, who were Waring's Pennsylvanians (and who counted every time in the song exercises which they were really specialties) gave "Data." It turned out to be the boys' judicious storm number. Then came a comedy jail break, with Jimmy shot when he wasn't looking. Hospital next with Jimmy lying on his stomach. A yell. It too gives Richard Carle his only real chance in the show. He is a doctor and a specialist in part where Jimmy is hurt. That scene should be enough to carry the second act.

Cole Porter and Goetz have done well as composer and manager in several shows. Porter's lyrics are usually somewhat snappy and that goes for "The New Yorkers." As for instance "I'm Getting Myself Ready for You," sung by Frances Williams and Barrie Oliver, and "Love for Sale," with Kathryn Crawford and Three Girl Friends (as street walkers) a melody that might land.

Hope Williams worked opposite Charles King as a society girl who gets stuck on a pistol-using but neat bootlegger (King). King's standout number is "Sing Sing for Sing Sing." Here the Waring bunch came through in great form. Pennsylvanians played in the swank night club scene, using effects from their vaude act. Also a scene in Reuben's where the Peninsula again clicked, this time with a drinking song. One of Frances Williams' late numbers was "Take Me Back to Manhattan."

Marie Cahill is Carle's wife of the book; both having their own affairs. Ann Pennington, as a night club entertainer, has a dance bit or two but is mostly decorative. "Let's Fly Away," with King and Miss Williams, is down late and could be cut, that portion with the split curtain being not so good. Tammany Young plays a racket guy, shot so many times by Durante that the latter gets tired of it. Understood that Miss Cahill and Carle were supposed to have numbers when engaged but neither has. Chorus has comparatively little to do.

Miss Williams is a society girl who scored in two Arthur Hopkins' shows. It is her first time in musical comedy and she had to be spotted. Looked good and did well enough. Reports are that her friends on Park Avenue supplied the backing.

The Broadway is now Broadway's biggest legit house with a capacity of 1,800. It is the former B. S. Moss Colony, a film theatre. Stage had to be built, and it cost a chunk, but that was the only way it could go legit. It is at 53d street with the L alongside, but not noticed during the performance. This is now the only legit attraction actually on Broadway.

"The New Yorkers" is entertainment for those who like plenty of rough fun with their musicals, the kind that used to rock the Winter Garden. There should be enough of those people around for a successful engagement. Ibee.

OVERTURE

Drama in three acts presented at the Longacre Dec. 6 by Bela Blau, Inc.; written by William Bolitho; Colin Clive featured.

Mrs. Lopper ..... Lois Arnold
Peters ..... Armand Cortes
Attendant ..... George Bollmer
Thomas ..... William Furey
Jones ..... Paxie Ripple
The Mayor ..... Frederick Roland
Kraus ..... Daniel Makarenko
Felder ..... Richard Freeman
Liebermann ..... Martin Malloy
Karl Ritter ..... Colin Clive
Katie Tauler ..... Barbara Robbins
Maxim ..... Paul O'Brien
Doctor Levy ..... Maurice Cass
Rubens ..... Joseph Robison
Pepper ..... N. R. Cregan
Lieutenant ..... Ward Vernon
Paul ..... J. P. Gould
A Girl ..... Lee Burgess
Lieutenant of Police ..... Boyd C. Stout
Helber ..... Frederick Backus
Peter Hessel ..... William Doren
A Delegate ..... Bjorn Koefoed
A Corporal ..... Daniel Hamilton
Lieutenant Hoffman ..... John Hoyarsdt
General Von Hoeffer ..... Carlos Zizold
Another Corporal ..... Harry Selby
Chaplain ..... Bjorn Koefoed

"Overture" has the distinct earmarks of being a propaganda play, with the Communistic trend in Germany after the war its topic. It isn't exciting to any degree. Humor is moon-high away. There is no splash of color nor production effectiveness such as has "Roar China." At Saturday night's premiere its chances looked slim.

The play seems like a capricious effort on the part of the late William Bolitho, brilliant newspaper columnist and author who was snuffed out by the eve of the proposed production in London. Perhaps he intended it for reading rather than for actual stage presentation. Not that Bela Blau, former Columbia instructor on things theatrical, has not given "Overture" an intelligent presentation. The question is very much a play. Marc Connelly is of Blau's directional board along with Assemblyman Langdon Post of New York who is said to have provided the backing. No program credit for the staging, but it was probably Connelly's.

"Overture" is set in the council chamber of the town of Herfeld, 1920 (a splendid and substantial setting, so good it might be the replica of such an actual place). Council has passed a law calling for a 12-hour day at half wages, this to continue for 10 years and designed as a sure way back to prosperity. A workers' committee demands the recall of the law, threatening dire things.

The actual threat comes from Maxim, a follower of the Soviet Union, who promises the backing of an alleged Red army, some miles away. But the leader of the delegation is Karl Ritter, former German flying ace, who does the dealing with the councillors. With the workers' committee is Katie Tauler, mistress of Ritter but previously Maxim's woman. She and many Ritter into the movement, then fallen in love with him. Ritter never knew of her relation with Maxim until the bitter end, when he is condemned to face the firing squad.

The workers capture city hall and a number of defenders are killed. Necessary support of the Red army, however, is not forthcoming, Maxim cools, walking out, the crucial moment and leaving the others to face court martial. Government troops having arrived by this time to quell the disturbance.

It is the third act that stands out in "Overture" and in particular the scene where the disciplinarian, General Von Hoeffer, questions Ritter and then his girl, Katie. The General is inclined to give the former soldier a chance to explain yet he cannot but follow orders for his execution.

Carlos Zizold acts like a real German officer and dominates the scene. He seemed much more authentic than did Colin Clive playing Ritter, or Pat O'Brien, the top city Maxim. Barbara Robbins, a newcomer, is Katie. Not an attractive role but there is a chance for emotion when the general forces her to watch the firing squad at work in the courtyard under the window.

Why Katie should have been so terrorized is one of the play's weaknesses. She had seen the fighting the night before, had seen Maxim leave the room and shoot a councillor in cold blood, had been close by when Levy, one of her group, had committed suicide in the room. The off stage effect of the firing squad was bad. The soldiers might have been a mile away.

"Overture" is virtually an all male cast. Outside of Katie, a scrubwoman bit completes the feminine contingent. Some good acting in the considerable cast, but the performance seemed a wasted effort. Ibee.

Merchant of Venice

(Maurice Moscovitch)

Presented at the Times Square Dec. 3 by Charles Dillingham, in association with Erlanger Productions. Starring Maurice Moscovitch. Staged by Andrew Leigh.

Duke of Venice ..... Frank Howson
Prince of Morocco (Suitor to Portia) ..... Louis Polan
Antonio (a Merchant of Venice) ..... Hugh Buckler
Bassanio (Friend to Antonio, suitor likewise to Portia) ..... Geoffrey Wardwell
Friends to Antonio and Bassanio—
Salanio ..... Geoffrey Harwood
Salarino ..... Philip Hadwood
Gratiano ..... Albert Hayes
Lorenzo (in love with Jessica) ..... John Halloran
Shylock (a rich Jew) ..... Maurice Moscovitch
Tubal (a Jew, his friend) ..... Henry Alexander
Launcelot Gobbo (Servant to Shylock) ..... Maurice Tuckerman
Old Gobbo (Father to Launcelot) ..... Noel Ainley
Leonardo (Servant to Bassanio) ..... Sylvia Ware
Servants to Portia— ..... Charles Haring
Balthazar ..... Stephen Gratz
Stephano ..... Adelaide Lisle
A Page ..... Vera King
Portia (a rich heiress) ..... Selene Royle
Nerissa, her waiting maid ..... Judith Lloyd
Jessica (Daughter to Shylock) ..... Dorothy Tree
Madrigal Singers—Randall Fryer, William Banfield, Walter J. Owens, J. H. Eakin.
Magnificoes of Venice, Officers of the Court of Justice, Gaolers, Officers, Servants to Portia, and other attendants.

As Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice" Maurice Moscovitch triumphed for 10 months in London. That a revival of anything can last that long speaks for the actor. But not for the rest of this cast. Miscast, mostly disappointing, lethargic and at times inept in both speech and manner. Scenes and costumes handsomely mounted and given as adopted from a similar revival means low production cost and assuring a successful limited stay on Broadway. Rigidly, however, it is not commercial b. o. Shakespearean revivals are for a limited audience type, principally drawn for study than recreation. Their importance hinges upon the leading actor and his own importance, so perhaps the support doesn't matter.

That's where Broadway's interest is in Moscovitch. Earlier in the season he appeared in "Jew Suss," hardly notable at the b. o. As Shylock, Moscovitch's interpretation can be debated, but it must be accepted.

As presented here it removes the presumption of even unskilled critics. Even the producers themselves, including Moscovitch, are equally presumptuous. They have abridged the play from five to three acts and from 23 to 11 scenes. That makes it only half a study, even for educators and literateurs. May be modern expediency, but the five-act drama is unknown today.

But like all classics, it's potential b. o. for kids and school folks of all kinds, except dancers.

If anybody should have been the help of this show, since Moscovitch has picked himself the play, it should be Louis Polan as the Prince of Morocco. He brimmed fire and carried an edge with sparkle and poetic imagination. Moscovitch may offend with his serio-comic Jew type and the accented language, but he has added gestures and action to uphold his technique. His lines are clear and able.

Music goes with it. Not so in 1696. Shan.

LE SOIR DES NOCES

("The Wedding Night")

Paris, Nov. 29.

A comedy in three acts by Albert Acremant. Presented by Mademoiselle Falconetti at the Theatre de l'Avenue, Paris.

Jacques ..... Jacques Tarride
Lucien ..... Ray-Ray
Suzy ..... Henriette Delannoy
Thibaudier ..... Georges Lannes
Madame Degreve ..... Marcelle Irvin
Mademoiselle Gobezec ..... Mad Lopez
Gratien ..... Lucien Gadry

A terrible show, consisting of an inane story more than amateurishly acted and deservedly flopping.

Just before he is going to get married his jealous mistress first prevents a young man from attending his wedding, later permitting him to do so on condition that it will be a blank marriage, and that she will be allowed to remain in his house on the wedding night to make sure of the fact. The bride pretends to be in love with another man, makes the husband jealous, and wins him. The mistress gets the air.

Only one set is used for the three acts. This is a living room, the back of which is raised two steps, so that when the forward part is used, actors almost appear to be coming into the audience. Idea seems to have been suggested by the current "Nudist Bar" where show takes place in the audience.

Acting is terrible, and femmes look badly. Madeleine Lopez, naturally good-looking, acts an a. k. a. femme jazz band leader, who is seen conducting an off stage jazz band, which any sap would recognize as a gramophone. Maxi.

Plays Out of Town

IN THE MEANTIME

Baltimore, Dec. 5.

"In the Meantime," a play by Claire and Paul Sifton. Directed by Philip Moeller. Setting by Woodman Thompson. Produced by the Theatre Guild, Inc., and presented for the first time at Ford's Theatre, Baltimore.

Joe Diggers ..... Harold Vermilyea
Ann Biggers ..... Harriet Macfadden
Mrs. Weldon ..... Josephine Hull
Stella Weldon ..... Linda Watkins
Arthur Weldon ..... Clifford Odets
First Reporter ..... Tom H. A. Lewis
Messenger Boy ..... Charles Powers
Edward Weldon ..... Frederick Perry
Second Reporter ..... Harold Bolton
Third Reporter ..... Samuel Rosen
Jim Nolan ..... Glenn Anders
Car Boni ..... Jack La Rue
Richard Bickram ..... Francis Pierlot
Elizabeth McGrath ..... Maude Allan
Edgar Ingersoll ..... Fred Sullivan
Policeman ..... Neal Stone
Dr. Mannheim ..... Royal Dana Tracey
Woman Reporter ..... Zena Colner
Photographers ..... Louis Veda and James Parker
Plunkett ..... Robert Strange
Treadwell ..... William R. Kane

The chief trouble with "In the Meantime" is too much meantime. It goes in heavily for the George Kelley type of middle-class realism, but the authors lack Kelley's skill in humanizing the strap-hangers. The first act is mostly repertorial, giving inconsequental detail of an evening in Flatbush.

The authors strive to create the atmosphere of impending tragedy, but they only succeed in confusing. Audience doesn't know whether Edward Weldon, a family man, has been caught short in Wall Street, received a come-across note from a blonde stenog, or slipped on the sidewalk and smashed a quart of pre-war rye.

Later it is revealed that Weldon was foreman of a jury that recently convicted a woman of first degree murder. She's in the death house to be executed at midnight. "We must uphold the law," he repeats, as a cordon of police guard his Flatbush villa from the curious mob and the tabs have been printing vivid layouts of the Beautiful-Wife-Who-Slays-Husband-Who-Discovers-Love-Next, etc. The radio announces that they've turned on the juice, as his own daughter is pumping lead into an East Lynne villain somewhere offstage.

This climaxes in the second act curtain and carries plenty of suspense over into the final chapter. Some none too lucid preachment dilutes this, however, and leaves the audience still bewildered at the finale.

With the exception of the part of the father, well played by Frederick Perry, there are few successful characterizations. Most of the roles are rather sketchy.

The Siftons wrote this from journalists' angle. They're all roused up about capital punishment and yellow journalism. But their play, while it is theatrically effective at the climax, is on the whole unconvincing.

Needs lots of work en tour to bring it up to Guild standard. Drab subject and poverty of compelling characterizations limit appeal. Doesn't figure to last beyond subscription period. Till.

Petticoat Influence

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 7.

A comedy in three acts presented by Gilbert Miller at the Playhouse, Dec. 3; written by Neil Grant; staged by Mr. Miller; sets by Jo Mielziner and Stanley Pell.

Richard Chalfont ..... John Williams
Peggy Chalfont ..... Helen Hayes
Palmerston ..... Mary Heberden
Frenzie, Countess of Dornaway ..... Jane Wyatt
The Countess of Darnaway ..... Valecie Tallor
Lord Algernon Raytoun ..... Eric Cowley
The Earl of Darnaway ..... Henry Stephenson
Talbot ..... Henry Vincent

A strong suggestion of satire on British officialdom adds piquancy to this English comedy. In addition, there is just enough significance in the plot to make the play substantial. The work of its two stars, Helen Hayes and Henry Stephenson, Mr. Miller's direction and the well handled dialog make it a promising contender for a moderately profitable Broadway run.

The humor is on a par with "The First Mrs. Fraser," although the play's story is very different. The theme is the effect of family affairs on matters of state and much of the humor has to do with peculiarly British institutions.

A young Englishman has made it his life's work to study the history and people of a British island in the Pacific. He has spent seven years there in a subordinate position and has written a number of books on the subject. He hopes to get the job as governor of the island, but the wife of a cabinet minister persuades her husband to give it to her uncle, despite the fact that he doesn't even know where the island is.

Richard Chalfont is deeply disappointed at not getting the post, but refuses to use influence, declaring he will stand on his own work. Through the private secretary of the cabinet minister, however, Peggy Chalfont, Richard's wife, gets the under-cover on the appointment. She also finds out about a little affair of the secretary and the Countess of Darnaway in a Swiss hideaway.

The Countess calls unexpectedly at the Chalfont home in search of the secretary. During the conversation, Mrs. Chalfont makes it clear to the Countess by innuendo that she must persuade her husband to reconsider the appointment or else she will spill the dirt on the Swiss affair. This makes the first act curtain.

When the Countess suddenly abandons her uncle's cause and urges Chalfont for the post, the Earl of Darnaway concludes that she and Chalfont are in love. He attempts to reciprocate with attentions to Mrs. Chalfont, who encourages him in the interests of her husband.

All this leads into even more complication when Mrs. Chalfont is accused of blackmail by the Earl's secretary. The Earl's attempt to solve things at a round table conference and his miserable failure is the play's high spot.

With the exception of a good curtain and a scene with Stephenson and Miss Hayes, the second act is weaker than the other two. Technical defects in the first act, caused by the difficulty in building up the elaborate situation, give a first impression of artificiality. This handicap is chiefly apparent in weakly motivated exits and entrances.

The characters are all consistent and fairly well drawn. Miss Hayes as Peggy Chalfont is delightfully whimsical throughout. Stephenson, who plays the Earl of Darnaway, is well known here for his work in the Philadelphia company of "Journey's End" last season. He handles his role as the inscrutable cabinet minister and suspecting husband extremely well. His job is about the most difficult in the piece.

Reginald Owen as the secretary and Valerie Taylor as the Countess of Darnaway also contribute much. Curtin.

Green Grow the Lilacs

Boston, Dec. 9.

The Theatre Guild production on "Green Grow the Lilacs" will be censored for blue films and swearing language following its premiere at Tremont theatre last night. The story and situation will not be affected by the censorship, however.

The play is a folk drama of Oklahoma, dealing with the love story of a cowboy and a prairie lass, with the villain in the form of a farmhand moron. Folk songs of the Indian Territory around 1900 are woven into every scene with a chorus of 24 featured.

The inevitable sex psychology slant is built up on the reaction of the bride to the bucolic revelries of a cowboy charivari in which she is prematurely dragged out of her bed and tossed on to a haystack at midnight by a howling mob.

"Green Grow the Lilacs" looks like a one season natural hit for the Theatre Guild. It has several novel touches including two scenes which show simultaneous action and a novelty staging of open sides to a farm house showing the interior action from an exterior view.

It was written by Lynn Riggs, produced by Herbert J. Biberman and features June Walker, James Patterson and Helen Westley. Libbey.

OF ALL THINGS

Atlantic City, Dec. 9.

"Of All Things," an unconventional musical in two acts, had its first performance at the Apollo here last evening. There is, of all things, the story of the college boy and the college girl who want to get married and the father of the girl who refuses to give his consent until he learns the boy's mater, only to learn, as the final curtain drops, that she's the woman he met and married during a recent trip abroad!

That's the work of Robert Woolsey and E. C. Lilley. The tunes by Basil Ziegler are a tuneful, pleasant and reminiscent, and the dances arranged by Bunny Weldon, who ought to be advised that the present-day trend for trailing gowns calls for a new mode of steps.

During the intermission Jack Hazzard, who undertakes the hazardous task of dealing out the humors of the piece, apologized to the audience. Weinstraub.

Hollywood Legits

(Continued from page 59)

were produced before making offers. Wiser producers now realize that a waiting game would have been better and cheaper in some cases, hence their feeling to get in on the ground floor and cut the melon all the way, if it should turn out to be a melon.

Studios Play-Conscious

Every picture company seems to be more play conscious than ever before, an indication where the film makers will look for future product.

Every studio has its share of unproduced plays. Some of these will never be produced, either on the stage or screen.

For any play that stands a chance of hitting Broadway and has the smallest picture possibilities, the producers are ready to spend plenty. Paramount paid $50,000 for "Ladies Man," which lived only three days. Offers up to $40,000 were made for "This Is New York" before its opening, with asking price $100,000. Now that it's in the possible hit class the asking price has been boosted. Howard Hughes is reported to have offered $125,000 for "Greeks Had a Name for It." Metro paid $60,000 for "Torch Song" and Universal $20,000 for "Up and Up."

Plans

Metro, it is believed will be among the companies going heaviest for play-picture production since its experience with "Grand Hotel."

Paramount will continue in the two-way dabble despite the studio's more or less disastrous experience with "Step Daughters of War." This company will continue play production through the ownership of the Frohman organization, and will also back Charles Erskine.

Significance of the picture viewpoint is also seen in the Joe Schenck-Al Jolson setup, whereby this combination intends to get low priced options on every play opening in the sticks, working on the percentage theory that among the dogtown openings a few live ones will develop.

No League Statistics

(Continued from page 59)

sections would most readily respond and are needed to add to the Broadway mass of theatre goers. Otherwise with the out of town transient trade of customary size and the Postal's calls beyond the suburbs within a 300-mile radius of New York, being negligible, the only certain indicator of a legit increase other than for the smashes would be found in an added suburban call.

As the smashes are always at top speed, even before the League and its attempt to regulate the sale of Broadway's legit tickets, the smashes are no guide, although neither the League nor the Postal has maintained any informative statistics for the smashes, either.

As tabulating statistics in ticket sales would mean added costs in time and labor to either the League or Postal, the inference left especially by Postal was that it could not afford either.

Paterson's Stock

Dramatic stock is due at the Lyceum, Paterson, N. J., next week (15).

(With apologies to Rube Goldberg)
Don't Let This Happen to You!

A man took out an Accident Insurance Policy so he would be fully protected in case he got hurt;

He went through an Earthquake without a scratch;

He fell 10,000 feet in an aeroplane with no bones broken;

He had a miraculous escape in an automobile accident, came off unharmed;

So he got tired paying premiums on his Accident Insurance and threw the Policy in the waste basket—

And that very night the ceiling fell down and laid him up for six months!

Moral:—Insure with

JOHN J. KEMP

Insurance of Every Description

551 Fifth Ave. N. Y. C.

Phones: Murray Hill 7838-9

Brandts Forced Into Producing for Chain

Brandt Theatrical Enterprises, operating the chain of subway circuit houses in Greater New York, have been forced into legit producing to insure attractions to keep its stands lighted.

With a famine of attractions available for the nearby week stands, the Brandts have rushed two productions into rehearsal, "Mr. X" and "Steve" for spotting at their houses as soon as ready.

With shows closing in Broadway houses jumping direct to the storehouses and with few new ones caring to venture in the vicinity of New York for break-in showings, the Brandts have been having a rough time of it.

Brandts played around with shoestring producers by providing an additional four weeks after the latter's shows folded in New York but found this arrangement unsatisfactory.

"Devil Is Lady" Dec. 24 Starring Olive Borden

Lew Cantor's first play since returning from Hollywood and scenario post with U will be "The Devil Is a Lady," scheduled to open Christmas eve in New York.

Play, co-authored by Garrett Ford and Garnett Western, will have Olive Borden as its star.

"Interlude" Beats Squawk

San Antonio, Dec. 9.

Protest against "Strange Interlude" by the Guild road company at the municipal auditorium here Monday (8) was suddenly dropped by Federation of Associated Protestant Women.

After a squawk Mayor Chambers instructed the women to get together with board of censors. They talked it over and decided that because of variety of opinions expressed about play it would be best to let it show uncensored.

Meanwhile the box office benefitted while controversy was aired in dailies. Advance sale on $1-$3 scale reached $3,000 last Thursday with mail orders pouring in. Show will have to do $5,000 here to break even. Looks like "Interlude" will be first road presentation to get break here for several years.

"Lifetime's" Coast Snag

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Sid Grauman is dickering with C. E. Toberman, owner of the El Capitan theatre here for a short lease on the house to produce "Once In A Lifetime."

Deal is being held up by Toberman, who will not let the top admission be boosted above $1.50.

Folds in Rehearsal

"Tan Town Topics," colored musical in rehearsal off and on for several weeks, folded last week.

Several of the colored performers had previously rehearsed nine weeks with "Hash," which also never got a chance to show.

GROUP'S VAUDE DATE

Trenton, Dec. 9.

Trenton Players' Club, with presentation of "The Valiant" won the R-K-O Cup and a week's engagement at the R-K-O Capitol theatre in the first annual Trenton Little Theatre Tournament. The club also gets Samuel French medal.

Runner up in the competition was the Trenton College Club, with Pinero's "The Widow of Wasdale Head." Tournament will be permanent.

WOODRIDGE STOCK

Dramatic stock supplants vaude at the Central, Woodridge, N. J., next week (15) with "The Patsy" as the opening bill.

Company includes Grace Mahoney, Paul Ryman, Lee Fletcher, Dorothy Vadnais, Cameron Hyde, William Ruffner, James Barclay, Genevieve Marlowe, Margaret King, Edward McLaughlin and Bruce Naughton.

King's Seattle Stock

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.

Will King will re-open the Pantages, Seattle, with musical stock.

Jack Laughlin, staging the shows. Opening is set for Dec. 15. House has been dark since Jack Russell folded early in the fall.

YIDDISH THEATRES ALL DARK, PAY CUT OPPOSED

All the Jewish theatres in New York, numbering nine in all, closed for the season Sunday night (7) after the stage hands and musicians refused to agree to the demand of the nine Jewish managers, that they take a 40% cut in salaries. The theatres are the National, Second Avenue, Folks, Public and Odeon, in Manhattan; the Prospect, Bronx, and the Lyric, Rolland and Hopkinson in Brooklyn.

Jewish managers delivered their ultimatum to the unions last week stating that if the unions refused to take a cut they would be compelled to darken the theatres. They declared that without the cut the Yiddish stage could not exist.

Both the Theatrical Protective Union No. 1 and the A. F. M. Local 802 refused to agree. It was stated by the T. P. U. that in previous seasons they have helped the Yiddish stage wherever possible by cutting salaries in Yiddish theatres, but that they could not comply with this demand.

Hebrew Actors' Union, although sitting in the conferences between the unions and the managers, was said to be not much concerned, since most of their members were working on cut scales already. They voluntarily accepted, cuts to keep working. As reported in last week's Variety, they were working on a 50% basis.

Closing all the Jewish theatres in New York has thrown about 100 stagehands and about 200 musicians out of work, besides making layoffs of about 150 Yiddish actors.

In recent seasons the Yiddish theatre has been reported in a bad way, going down grade steadily. Current season is said to have been their worst, with practically all Yiddish producers suffering losses.

Producers admit there is barely an audience sufficient to support the Yiddish theatre. This, they declared, has come about through the immigration laws restricting foreigners, and through the fact that the present Jewish generation does not take great interest in the Yiddish stage.

Attempts were made last night (9) to organize a Yiddish stagehands' union along the same lines of the Hebrew Actors' Union, affiliated with the 4 A's. Idea is that the organization can then watch its own interests, but at the same time handle local problems and special conditions arising in its own field. If—and as soon as—organization is formed, it is thought the trouble in Jewish theatres will be stopped and opening of houses will follow.

Managers lately formed an association. It is Jewish Theatre Managers' Association, and Maurice Schwartz, actor-manager, is chairman. Each of the managers deposited a heavy bond, and then proceeded to lay down the law. Sunday, Nov. 3, notice was posted by the managers in all theatres, announcing that unless terms were made in the interim, all houses would go dark on the following Sunday.

Hebrew Trade Unions, which comprises Hebrew Actors Union, Hebrew Doormen and Ushers Union, and Hebrew Chorus Girls Union, talked things over and offered to compromise on a lower than 40% cut, if the stage hands were willing. Latter refused to budge.

It was not thought, until the very last minute, that the managers would carry through their threat, because of some having sell-out houses for several weeks ahead. Others having booked and received cash for a number of benefits. But Sunday night (7) the curtains were rung down.

Schwartz' Statement

Maurice Schwartz later explained the action was the only possible one, since — even with sell-out houses, which they don't have regularly, managers cannot meet current expenses under demands of the various unions.

"We must pay stage hands," he said, "a minimum of $110 weekly and are required to have constantly more men working the stage than we have need for.

"Terms are laid down for us that hold true in upper Broadway houses where prices are higher and other conditions different. The nine Yiddish theatres in New York have lost on an average of $1,500 each, every week thus far this season. We cannot continue thus any longer."

Xmas Week Premieres

Curtis W. Emery, staging "Life Is Like That," started rehearsals this week for a Christmas eve premiere. The new Lou Holtz show expects to be running on Broadway by Christmas.

"The Devil Is a Lady" is another headed for N. Y. around Christmas time. Lew Cantor's.

"Love Thieves," which Mike Kallesser is giving a road fling, is expected to hit Broadway around Dec. 24.

Rep in Boston

Walter Abel will head the cast of a new rep doing American plays never before seen at the Copley, Boston. Plays will run for two weeks, first "Rebound."

Vera Allen and Eloise Stream are in the company. Opening date is set for Dec. 26.

5% Tax on Foreigners To Go to Equity Vote

Tightening up its regulations framed two years ago, the Equity Council has ruled that alien stars and featured players may play consecutive engagements without laying off six months between shows on this side. Aliens not starred or featured must observe the present rules. Instead of dues, alien actors will be called on to pay 5% of their salaries, with a minimum of $10 weekly.

The plan has been submitted to the Manager's Producing Association and has the approval of that organization. New ruling regarding alien actors, it is expected, will reduce the number of actors imported mainly from England and create potential employment for native American actors. Plan will be voted on at a general meeting of Equity next week.

Gamble in Providence

Providence, Dec. 9.

D. E. Clive and his company of English actors, who for years have been playing at the Copely theatre, Boston, open at Opera House for indefinite season of stock.

Top prices will be $1.50. New enterprise conjectural, since Edward M. Fay's stock company at Carlton for last couple months at $1 top has had poor season and is folding next Saturday.

Arson Charged

Findlay, O., Dec. 9.

Joseph Abowd, manager of the Findlay theatre, landmark which burned to the ground several weeks ago, has been indicted by the Hancock county grand jury on the charge of arson.

He was arrested in Fostoria. The theatre was owned by his mother, Mrs. Fifi Abowd. Damage to theatre was $150,000.

DENVER STOCK FOLDS

Denver, Dec. 9.

The Broadway stock company, backed by A. M. Oberfelder, passed out Saturday night after lasting eight weeks. A vain attempt was made to keep going longer by cutting prices.

May open after the holidays for road shows, but there is nothing in sight.

Morrissey's Rush Queers Brandt's Ideas for Show

Proposed take over of Will Morrissey's colored musical, "Hot Rhythm," by Brandt Theatrical Enterprises is cold.

The Brandts spotted the piece at the Carlton, Jamaica, L. I., two weeks ago when unable to get an attraction for the house and would have carried it further, but Morrissey hopped in for spot bookings which queered the deal.

The Brandts wanted the show for their other subway circuit houses but Morrissey became impatient and booked the show on several wildcat dates in the interim which could not be cancelled.

"Negro World" Co-op

"Negro World," which suspended in rehearsal two weeks ago when Carey Productions had been unable to post the required Equity bond, has gone into rehearsal again, with cast waiving security.

The piece is scheduled to open Dec. 22.

Mystery Fire Destroys Costumes—$70,000 Loss

Fire of unknown origin gutted the three-story building of the Consolidated Theatrical Costume Co., 331 W. 51st street, Tuesday (2) night causing damage estimated at $70,000. Complete sets of principals' outfits for "Traviata," "Carmen," "Lucia" and other operas were destroyed.

A freak of the blaze was that the music library, containing 102 operatic scores and other compositions, and the room of Augustino Stevanello, vice-president of the firm, were only slightly damaged by water. The doors to these rooms were closed. A small part of the loss is covered by insurance.

"Cradle Call" Cold

"Cradle Call," produced by George Choos, will not steer into New York. It has folded for repairs.

The piece closed in Chicago last week.

'3d Little Show' in April

Dwight Wiman and Tom Weatherly will begin production of "Third Little Show" around Jan. 1, with Broadway opening set for April.

Wiman has also taken "The Strad Mystery" by Myrna Mannes and "Gilded Generation" by Knowles Entrikan for production.

Marshall's Coast Stock

James Marshall, colored theatrical manager, left last week with a company of Negro players, for stock in Los Angeles.

Marshall at one time managed the Lafayette theatre in Harlem.

Brandon Peters Returns

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Brandon Peters, who has been in Australia four years in legit, returned to San Francisco last week.

He is coming down here to possibly remain for the balance of the winter.

PAUL WHITEMAN
Booking Exclusively Through His Own Office
1560 Broadway
New York City
JAMES F. GILLESPIE
Personal Representative

WM. O'NEAL
Late of "Desert Song" and "New Moon"
Now Appearing at LOEW'S STATE, NEW YORK (Week Dec. 6th)
Address 101 West 55th Street, N. Y. C. Circle 1254.

LITERATI

Cincy "Trib" Folds

"The Commercial-Tribune," Cincinnati's oldest newspaper, folded Dec. 3. The sheet dated back to 1793. It was a two-cent morning paper, with a seven-cent Sunday edition. Sales were mostly on local streets. In late years its advertising dwindled. Last year, it is reported, the paper went into the red for $140,000, with the 1930 loss being almost as heavy. For long the paper was owned by the McLean interests which have "The Enquirer" in Cincinnati and "The Post" in Washington, but the operating company was under another name.

In Cincinnati press circles the story is that McLean operated "The Commercial Tribune" on a so-so basis to hold its Associated Press franchise and keep out another morning paper that might be used as genuine opposition to "The Enquirer."

"The Enquirer" announced that it has taken over the title and subscribers of "The Commercial-Tribune." With the passing of "The Commercial-Tribune" the price of "The Enquirer" in the Cincinnati area dropped from five to three cents daily, with the 10-cent Sunday price unchanged.

Years ago, when the late Montgomery Phister was its dramatic editor, "The Commercial-Tribune" held a place of prominence with Cincinnati readers and people in show business.

London Film Critics

Current problem exercising London film critics and the picture peddlers is whether the public is going to take to the new school of film criticism.

As a result of the economy drives on the Beaverbrook news sheets Clive MacManus and George Atkinson, two of the leading critics in England, are out. MacManus now holds the space desk at Producers' Distributing Company, Pathe outlet, and Atkinson is on "The Daily Telegraph."

Successor to MacManus on the "Standard" is Percy Cudlipp, who does comedy reports on oddities. As a film critic, so far, he has been a good writer of funny stuff.

Gordon Beckles, who combines the job of music critic, film critic, and home page editor of the "Daily Express," is Atkinson's successor, assisted by Ewart Hodgson, and he is following the best and most provocative film writer in the country, Hannen Swaffer is to do Atkinson's former Sunday features for the "Express."

Atkinson, on leaving the "Express," signed with the "Telegraph" within five minutes. This paper is reported to be spending $2,500,000 in the next six months on a sales drive.

Gail Borden's Column

Gail Borden, doing the dramatic end for Chicago's only tab, "Daily Times," has taken over the column of the sheet formerly handled by Art Sheckman and later by Francis Coughlin.

Borden is the town's second critic to be editing a column with the other Ashton Stevens on the "Herald-Examiner."

English $1.50 Fiction

Three of the leading British book publishers, getting out general fiction, are reported planning to invade the American market with $1.50 books of fiction only. The trio will distribute under a combined firm name.

Until now book publishers have kept to their respective sides of the water with the exception of two or three Parisian houses, which get out limited editions in English covering the American and British markets, as well as English-speaking people in France. In some cases publishers with foreign branches, but publication is local in each country.

One of the trio of British publishers planning the American invasion has been getting out or three-shilling book of fiction. It is this same type of book which the three will put on the American market at the $1.50 price. That's about twice that of the English price, but made necessary by the fact of import duty and, as is planned, bigger discounts to the book sellers.

Under the plan, the publishers will insist on world publication rights to all material accepted, with a large number of American writers to be represented on the list.

Inside On Dirt Books

Strictly dirt books have fallen off greatly in sales. The plump lad who used to mak the rounds of the newspaper offices weekly with his well-filled portfolio now calls less than once a month. Less demand, he explains, but doesn't know whether it's due to hard times or those who go in for that sort of stuff have become surfeited.

The plump lad, who is loquacious, reveals there are two publishing house in New York who get out these books, and that few, if any, comes from Paris, although most of them carry a Paris imprint. The Paris imprint is, of course, supposed to guarantee spiciness.

Some book stores carry the books, notably in the Greenwich Village sector, but most sales are through personal salesmanship. There is at least one circulating library for dirt books, also in the village. Chumps pay something like $5 for three days, and don't know that twice that amount, and sometimes even less, will buy the book.

At least from the plump lad, anyhow.

$1 Books No Panic

Despite all the claims made for the $1 book as a business getter, there is only one $1 book on the current list of the first 20 fiction and non-fiction best sellers. That one is a reprint.

Even $2 books on the list are in the minority. Louis Bromfield's "Twenty-Four Hours," which heads the list of fiction best sellers, is $2. But Priestley's "Angel Pavement," second in demand among the fiction sellers, is $3; "Years of Grace" and "Plowing Clear," third and fourth, are each priced at $2.50.

"The Story of San Michele," first among the non-fiction best sellers, is $3.75, and "The Strange Death of President Harding," second, is $3.50. "The Adams Family" and "Letters of Henry Adams," both of which are among the non-fiction first ten, are priced at $4 and $5. Only dollar book among the entire lot is the reprint of Durant's "The Story of Philosophy."

Evidently proves that prices don't mean anything to the book buyers at that.

Havana Dailies' Troubles

When martial law was declared in Havana the government immediately put in effect strict censorship on cables, telegraph, telephone, mail put in effect strict censorship on cables, telegraph, telephone, mail and newspapers. Protesting, the newspapers decided to close down, thinking the government would lift the ban. The papers have now been closed since Nov. 14. Only papers now published are the Havana "Post" and "Telegram," belonging to Carl Byoir, and the "American," all edited in English, and the "Heraldo de Cuba," the Government paper edited in Spanish.

Big dailies and the weeklies got together and put out a sheet called "Prensa Unida" (United Press), and after more than 90,000 had been printed, the police confiscated the edition. Not one paper get to the street.

Real Names of Authors

Mary Graham Bonner, author of "A Hundred Trips to Storyland," is Mrs. Eugene E. Early; Everald Wilner, "The Mountain Top," is Henry Zalno.

But who is William Law, author of "Successful Speculation In Common Stocks?"

Mystery League Sales

The Mystery League publishing outfit is entering the Christmas book sales field next week with five mysteries, including one by Edgar Wallace, boxed in a Christmas holder and selling at United Cigar Stores for $2.50 per set.

It is expected total United States distribution for the set will reach 250,000, 75,000 coming from the New York city district.

The five books are "Monster of Graumont," by George Goodchild; "Hardway's Diamond Mystery," by Miles Tarton; "House of Fear," by Earl Woodward; "Peril," by Sidney Horler, and "Day of Uniting," by Wallace.

A new organization in opposition to the Mystery League has been started, with Schulte stores for distribution. New outfit's name is The Fiction League.

Charity at Home—First?

One of those sob-stories about soft-hearted, hard-boiled newspapermen occurred in the city room of the New York "Times" last week. At the very time that that newspaper started its hundred most deserving cases campaign, it cut off the payroll a man who had worked on the paper for four years. The excuse for firing him was incompetency.

The young man is the sole support of his aged mother and had no money saved. After a week or so out of work he couldn't pay his rent and was being faced with eviction. The editorial staff took up a collection and saved him from being thrown into the street, at the same time sending a petition to the powers to have him restored to the staff, basing their plea on the ground that if he was good enough to keep for four years, he ought to be held on at least until a more favorable time.

Darrow's Unknown P. A.

An unknown press agent is ahead, behind and promoter of Clarence A. Darrow, the ace arguer. He's George Whitehead, who got a rep for plenty of push in Columbus, O. He got up his first copy in that city for the state, and later was hooked up with chautauqua circuits.

Then he landed with Darrow, the champ single handed box office getter of several seasons. And still with him.

It is said Whitehead broached the scheme of Darrow arguing three ways in one evening at $2.50 per; against a Methodist minister, a Rabbi and a Catholic lawyer, in any city, and out-talking the whole three of 'em, standing up or sitting down, while packing the hall.

Xmas Crucial

Next two weeks, until Christmas time, will decide how many booksellers are to remain in business. Retail book business, terrible all season, has been getting worse, with the Christmas book buying a saviour for many, even in good times. If no rally this Christmas, many will drop out altogether.

Many booksellers inclined to be pessimistic, say that whereas people buying books for themselves will seek certain ones, even going to the booksellers to get them, those buying books for gifts will pick up most anything, favoring the book departments at the chain drug and cigar stores where they can get fancy publishers' remainders at cut prices.

Tellegen Tells

Lou Tellegen writing a book about himself, which Vanguard Press will publish. In it "the great lover" will reveal that he was a prizefighter, professional gambler and a bullfighter before becoming an actor.

Here's a Xmas Present
YOU WILL ENJOY READING
"THE CORNER"
(Recollections of Hammerstein's Victoria)
BY LONEY HASKELL
IN THE
NEW YORKER
In Two Installments
Dec. 13 and Dec. 20, 1930
A NEW YORK STORY IN THE NEW YORKER BY A NEW YORKER THAT WILL INTEREST NEW YORKERS

Hollywood's Reading

(Consensus of demand with Esme Wardo, Pat Hunt, Satyr Book Store, and Hollywood Book Store.)

Fictional

"Cakes and Ale," Somerset Maughan.

"Babe Gordon," Mae West.

"Twenty - four Hours," Louis Bromfield.

"Success," L. Feuchtwanger.

"Millie," Don Henderson Clarke.

"Imperial Palace," Arnold Bennett.

"Mad Man's Drums" (woodcuts), Lynd Ward.

General

"Al Capone," Fred D. Pasley.

"Story of San Michele," Axel Munthe.

"Chicago Surrenders," Edward D. Sullivan.

"Lives of a Bengal Lancer," Maj. F. Yeas Brown.

"Pearls, Arms and Rashish," Henri de Monfried.

"The Strange Death of President Harding," Gaston Means.

"Fouche," Stephen Zweig.

"Queer People" fades off the book list with a local newspaper serialization starting. Text of "Once in a Lifetime" went fast on Vine street.

The European Runaround

By Frank Scully

Nice, Nov. 21.

Is there any way to smoke out how much is hooey and how much fact in these "interviews" returning celebs toss off? Not a week passes without the retailing of these sappo stories in which Americans always carry the stooge roles.

Harry Vernon comes back to London with the latest. Giving himself and his "Mr. Wu" an indirect plug, and even a tieup with Gilbert and Sullivan, he declares "a prominent American actress" (name not mentioned) rang him up in New York for the part of "Yum Yum" in "Mr. Wu."

Dumb cluck refused to believe "Yum Yum" was in "The Mikado." Only Vernon says the d. c. called it "Milkado."

Names, please.

Either that, or lay off that prominent American actress billing. Call her an English actress being overpaid in America and therefore sore at the place.

"Cahsles" Gets the Air

Only week before Evelyn Laye, the Darling of the Guards, let some scribe quote her, on returning from Hollywood, in an equally silly vein. In her case she upheld King and Country by refusing to obey a Hollywood director in pronouncing "castle."

He said to air the "ah" as she was playing an American girl's role. But she stuck to her adenoids and pronounced it "cahsle."

That's how she put those Americans in their place.

What would se think of a silly squawk by, say, Peggy Wood, who, playing a Mayfair role, insisted on pronouncing "rather" as if it had two r's in it?

Which, come to think of it, it has.

Something to Hold 'Em Up, Anyway

Even old Fred Kerr got some space some time ago by telling how in Hollywood he went into a shop and asked for "braces."

Haberdasher said, "Oh, you mean 'suspenders.' Just a minute, sir."

Well, he jolly well didn't mean "suspenders." He meant "braces," and insisted on "braces."

Laughter and applause. Good old Fred. Always standing up for his rights. English rights, of course, even on oldest gag in the world.

Yet how much less goofey was he than an American in London who couldn't adapt himself to the custom of the country and say "braces"?

Or even wear 'em, if it made Englishmen feel happier.

Suppose somebody called Freddie Kerr, "Freddie Cur." Suppose, after Freddie insisted in his 70-year-old way, it was pronounced "Karr," the softie continued to call him "Cur."

Freddie would burn at the sap's boorishness.

Well, try that on your braces.

Defining Degrees of Saphood

The worst sap is the sap who can't adapt himself wherever he is. The wise guy always is able to change his style to suit changing conditions.

The first is a jackass; the second thinks with his head, not his emotions, nor his ancestors' traditions, snobbishly copied from the Duke of Malarkey's fourth cousin by marriage.

Overboard With Noblesse Oblige

There are lots of civilized people on either side of Par's Big Pond, but they're hampered in all directions from getting anywhere by these name-people who play mob feelings and ditch the band wagon of the square-shooter. Hamstring him even for a little applause.

Jolly Nice Writing Anyway

Here's Dudley Leslie, "Sunday Dispatch" top show critic, expressing himself on advertising:

"Another new departure that deserves our salute is the gloriously undignified campaign of loud publicity effected by 'Almost a Honeymoon' and 'Her First Affaire.' These two shows screech about themselves from omnibuses, tramway-cars, tubes, programmes and from entertaining and suggestive posters.

"This causes a few old gentlemen who were born in the theatre' to shake their heads in disgust, but, personally, I think that such methods are justified in these days if only because they attract people to the theatre.

"'The film houses have bored us for years with their screaming proclamations. Why shouldn't the theatre fight with the same weapons?"

Oooh, a Panning!

Study that document after you've stopped laughing.

That such an innocent should be even remotely connected with the show biz is cause for serious reflection for other people as well as John Southern, C. B. Cochran, Leon M. Lion or Joe Saks.

It reveals first, a patronizing attitude toward exploitation—a secret of b. o. success.

Second, a dawning realization that plugging may after all be alright, because it draws people to the b. o.

Third, that when picture people do it, it bores.

Fourth, since picture ballyhooing bores, why shouldn't legit do the same thing? Not copy him because he's successful, but because he bores!

Was there ever a more non sequitur reasoning?

Princely Husbands at Cute Rates

Bear market on titled sweeties, too. Everybody selling short.

What with Gloria's Hank in Hollywood, and Pola's Serge and June's Inverclyde on this side, all unsplitting the infinitive "to marry," and Peggy Joyce having put out her Swedish match some time ago, Mae Murray's Mdvani remains the only surviving memory of that post-war epidemic of regal boy-friends.

Mae is staying with her dad on La Riviera, where Pola, with her mother, is also Trying To Forget.

Negri for Broadway?

Negri is yenning to get back in pictures. As soon as she finished "My Confessions," her real life, as opposed to a p. a.'s dream, Pola hopes, in fact, to crash a Broadway production. About January.

Lya de Putti seems to have made it for a short while, anyway. Ever since their Ufa sahid days those two gals have followed each other around.

Goetz, Guitry, Coward and Craven

Europe is kinder to one-man shows than America. Frank Craven in New York is more than matched by Noel Coward in London, Sacha Guitry in Paris and Curt Goetz in Vienna. All lucky boys sure of followings regardless of material.

Goetz, no relation to Ray, directs the theatre and stars in the plays he writes for himself. His latest is "The Liar and the Sister," very human and humorous piece about a comic cardinal and a nun.

Ronald Squire, at present starring in Maugham's "The Breadwinners," will take it to London next spring.

Red Star's Sheet Music Cut to 15c Indicative of Trend Generally?

Following "the trend of modern industry toward more for the dollar," Jay Witmark, vice president and general manager of Red Star, has ordered a reduction in the wholesale price of all of that firm's sheet music from 18c to 15c. a copy, for wholesale buyers, effective January 1.

In an announcement the hope is expressed that this will pave the way to adoption of 25c as the standard retail price for all compositions, excepting possibly songs from musical shows.

Jobbers, syndicate stores and dealers ordering in 100 lots will save, with the 18c a copy price retained only for retailers who buy in small quantities.

Whether or not this move will bring about the expected result remains a question. Some publishers believe smash numbers can be successfully retailed at 35c, but that dud songs cannot sell at any price.

Feist's "Announcement"

Leo Feist may also cut its sheet music prices, although not confirmed. In a letter to the trade that firm announced that on Dec. 15 it would "introduce a radical change in the price of sheet music." Ed Bitner, for Feist, declined to describe the "radical change" as a cut or otherwise, declaring that since details would not be forthcoming until Dec. 15, Feist holds it back until then.

If Feist cuts to 15c with Red Star for 25c retailing, other publishers may follow. Some have stated they will not cut until the larger publishers, especially picture music publishers take the lead. Red Star is not accepted as a criterion.

Indie Angle

Santly's at first cut to 16½c for retailing 25c. This experiment didn't work, boosting the price back to 18c. Jack Mills was another publisher to sell low wholesale, but raised the scale later.

The only large publisher currently selling music to meet a 25c retail price between 15c and 16½c wholesale, is Shapiro-Bernstein, indie.

MPAL Wants Higher Fee On Collections Abroad

J. M. Dixie, secretary of the Music Publishers' Association, Ltd., of London, arrived in New York Sunday (7) to confer with the M. P. P. A. on a new collection fee for copyright music in pictures abroad. M. P. A. L. is the English protective society.

Aim is more intensive research into copyright music used in pictures shown in England as well as the new scale. M. P. A. L. reports to the M. P. P. A. on all European infringements of American copyrighted songs.

If the producers are not licensed for foreign showings by the M. P. P. A., the English body forces the producer to take a license. The funds received from the European license is paid to the M. P. P. A., with the M. P. A. L. receiving a collection fee.

M. P. A. L. desires a higher collection fee for itself.

AL WISE'S BUY

Al Wise, president of the retail Wise Music Stores, has bought in and is now treasurer of the Ashley Music Supply Co., which Abe Schlager, formerly with Richmond-Mayer, founded several months ago.

The affiliation will give Wise a wholesale connection and Ashley a retail outlet.

Best Xmas Present
Subscription to
VARIETY
$10 for One Year
Always Welcome

Agent Sues Agent Over Band Booking

Arthur Krauss, band and orchestra agent, started suit against Bernie Foyer, also a b. and o. agent, for alleged misrepresentation. Amount not mentioned.

Krauss alleges he arranged to book a band through Foyer for the Level Club, New York, on Nov. 29, to consist of 10 men, with Vincent Rose and Jack Taylor conducting. Krauss claims the band that showed up wasn't the outfit he contracted for.

Krauss is represented by Milton Harrison.

COLORED PLAYING FOOL

Willie Smith of Harlem Talks to Piano While Playing

"Jus' wait till ah lays ma hands on you. Ah'm gonna beat yo' all up tonight!"

With this homicidal threat, Willie Smith, Harlem's piano-maniac, greets the keyboard he maltreats nightly in the basement quarters of the Catagonia Club.

Just as the club is off the beaten tourists' track, so is its pianist aloof from other virtuosi. Willie is Jewish and colored at one and the same time, but that is not his only distinction.

With positively sadistic joy he is a pianistic pugilist. A heartless Simon Legree, with lifeless cigar butt clamped between bulging lips, he lashes the piano with a mixture of Yiddish and colored idiom.

"Cum awn, you Piano, roll out them notes. Harder! Harder! Cum awn you ol' debbil black notes, play for Willie."

He beats the keys, he batters the bass, he assaults arpeggios, making the piano sob with undercurrents that put the blues in dark-town jazz. He splits octaves to Rhumba tempo, he chops up phrases with insidious runs that anticipate harmonies and fight against a poor helpless tune. He's a playin' fool.

A soloist has a tough time trying to sustain a melody against Willie's obbligatos, but a tougher time should she be inclined to withhold Willie's split of the tips palmed during a floor number. Without looking up from his keyboard, Willie can tell, by the intonation of a singer's voice, when currency has changed hands. Staccato taps of Top C indicate his knowledge.

"Tha's the ol' cash register, Piano. Cain't you jus' hyeah it, honey? Tha's money in the bank for Willie. Hyah, hyah, cain't you hyeah Willie laffin', you old harmonics?"

Willie claims to have been able to play in "ev'ry key" long before he could read a note of music. Since then he's studied a lot. When asked for specific data, he explains: "Oh, hyeah and theah—comin' and goin'."

Then, just to prove his claim, he rips into Rachmaninoff's Prelude and goes completely mad.

"Skippy" Title Suit

Percy Crosby, who created the "Skippy" cartoon, via Lord, Day & Lord, has filed a copyright complaint against Harrison G. Smith, colored, over "Skippy" as the title of a song.

Smith's contention is that Crosby is using "unfair competition" in his action, claiming the cartoonist, now under contract to Feist, is interested in song which Con Conrad wrote under that title. Smith claims he secured a prior copyright last June.

$7,500 Song Buy

"Tears," the pop which was issued four weeks ago by Frank Capano & Co., of Philadelphia, has been bought by Shapiro-Bernstein for $7,500.

Tune was written by Frank Capano.

Santly's English Purchase

Santly's has purchased the American releasing rights to Campbell & Connelly's "Blue Pacific Moon."

This is the fourth number Santly's acquired from that English publisher.

Best Sheet Sellers

Six best sellers in sheet music for the week ending Dec. 6, as listed by Plaza Music, were:

"3 Little Words" (Harms).
"When the Organ Played at Twilight" (Santly).
"I'm Yours" (Famous).
"Sweet Jennie Lee" (Donaldson).
"Moonlight on the Colorado" (Shapiro-Bernstein).
"Little Things in Life" (Berlin).

LOCAL 802 PETITION REJECTED BY A. F. OF M.

A petition for a modification in the present form of government in Local 802 was rejected during the semi-annual session of the executive board of the American Federation of Musicians, held Wednesday through to Saturday (6).

A proposal was offered by a committee which, if accepted, would make it impossible for the local to remain affiliated with the A. F. of M. Means of driving out musicians from other cities were outlined. So drastic were the additional demands suggested to be made upon employers that authoritative sources believed the acceptance of the proposal would greatly increase unemployment.

A second committee appeared before the board and presented thousands of signatures attached to a petition asking for retention of the present mode of operation. The first committee then charged that the second had obtained signers through duress, but an investigation by the board failed to substantiate the accusation.

Under the present form of government members of Local 802 elect all 11 members of their trial board and four member of the governing board. This gives the local power to choose 15 of the 24 controlling officers with the remaining nine appointed by the Federation, chosen from along local members.

Weber's Statement

In declining to grant 802 local autonomy, which is virtually what the proposal called for, Joe Weber, A. F. of M. president, issued the following statement:

"The board holds that, by reason of existing circumstances, a change in the form of government of Local 802, which was given to the New York musicians at their own request (in 1902), is not advisable at present.

"For a proper supervision of the local it is suggested to the governing board that the jurisdiction of the local be zoned and a proper number of business agents be appointed to supervise the interests of the local under the direction of the governing board.

"The president is directed, in conjunction with the governing board and authorized committees, to lend all aid in the emergency situation and use for this purpose all other agencies as in his opinion may be helpful in this direction."

A great deal of the internal disorder of Local 802 may be laid to the enormous membership, 16,500, and that proposed acts and legislation must be translated into several languages for it to be understood by all members. During the recent closed meeting in the local's hall it was impossible for all of those present to hear what was being said and done. The result has been confusion and disorder, for the most part, with little definite action.

Educational Dates

Mid-Term dances, a series of balls among the universities of the south from Jan. 15 to Feb. 20, will use Jimmy Green and his orchestra this year.

Green will stay at each university three days, playing Georgia Tech, U. of Tenn., Wash. and Lee, and others.

CRITIC'S CONCERT TOUR

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 9.

George Smith, formerly music critic of "The Herald" and well known as a concert pianist, will go abroad early in the spring for a recital tour which will embrace London, Paris, Berlin and Amsterdam.

This will be Smith's second trip to the other side.

15c or 20c Music Drive Proposed To Find How Music Business Stands; Radio Royalty Per Song Per Time?

Decision Reserved in "Infirmary" Title Suit

Decision in Jack Mills' action for permanent injunction against Denton Haskins' use of the title "St. James Infirmary" was reserved by Judge Mullen of the Supreme Court, New York, after a three days' hearing, and ordered both to file briefs by Dec. 22.

Mills filed action against Denton & Haskins last April, alleging publication of a song of that title in March, 1929, and that D. & H. issued a song of the same title a year later. D. & H.'s song was titled "St. James Infirmary, or the Gambler's Blues."

Judge Bord of the Supreme Court awarded Mills a temporary injunction. D. & H. appealed the decision, but the Appellate Division upheld the Supreme Court.

D. & H. then changed the title to "St. Joe's Infirmary," and Mills immediately appealed on grounds of contempt of court. Defendant was fined $150 and Haskins, as an individual, $100. D. & H. appealed, but lost again.

Sam Buzzell is representing Mills.

Violinist Didn't Like Company, Agent Sues

Philipp Scharf, a violin virtuoso with reputation in Europe, is being sued in Supreme Court, New York, by Paul Sydow, concert manager, for $5,000 for breach of contract. Sydow alleges that Scharf engaged him last May to arrange concerts and that plaintiff played one on Nov. 15.

Scharf then broke the contract, Sydow says, on the ground that the people who appeared with him were not of sufficient standing and that he was accustomed to play on programs with "artists like Challapin."

9-Word Title

Shapiro-Bernstein again claims the longest title for a current pop song.

It's "Twenty Swedes Ran Through the Weeds Chasing a Norwegian," by Billy Moll.

Jos. Monk's Escape

Rochester, Dec. 9.

Joseph Monk, well known as a pianist and orchestra leader for the past 30 years in western New York, narrowly escaped serious injury when the automobile in which he was riding was wrecked in a collision. He picked himself out of the wreckage and continued on to his orchestra engagement.

Monk was leader of the orchestra at the old Gayety, burlesque, for many years, and with four sons comprised the Powers Hotel orchestra.

Stooge Pluggers

Detroit, Dec. 9.

With local song pluggers doing everything possible to plug their own tunes, three finally turned stooge. At the Michigan theatre Will Collins of Witmark, Joe Drake of Famous and Francis Maguire of Feist were planted in the audience during organ solo.

Announced as a voice test, Tracy and Duncan came out with a portable mike which was hooked up to screen amplifying horns. The pluggers sang into the mike for laughs.

Change Bands at Regal

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Publix-B. & K. Regal, southside colored deluxer, has given a four-week notice to Dave Peyton and band.

Does not mean house goes straight sound. Stage shows remain with a new band called to start Jan. 1.

S. S. Branches

Nat Cohen, of Silver Songs, is in Chicago opening a branch office for the firm.

Joe Gold, h. and o. manager, is doing the same in Boston.

Jobbers are firm in the belief that a reduction in sheet music prices would greatly benefit. One of the largest jobbing houses states sheet music prices should be cut down to 20c.

They declare publishers could still make money on a 20c price if cutting down on their weighty side expenses, such as paying for plugs and cutting in band leaders. Jobbers state that just to display the music attractively on counters at a price most anybody could afford would be half the trick of selling, and do the publishers more good than cutting bands in on songs.

The jobbers claim that is the reason why dog songs sold so well years ago, whereas now they don't mean a thing, with the sales concentrated around the hits. In the old days, state the jobbers, anyone after sheet music would walk into a store and if the copy on the counter was attractive and the lyric appealed, it would be bought, even if a dog number. Now when they want sheet music, the high price of it forces them to concentrate on only hits.

Drive at 15c

A feeling with some publishing houses is that possibly a drive to revive sales at 15c might be worth the experiment. This of course is based upon the 15c disc and its big rush of sales.

One of the arguments against a reduction that anyone suggesting a uniform cut runs into is that "if it's a hit, they'll buy," meaning the public and whatever price the music bears. That argument is steadily met by publishers who believe if there are 2,000,000 or more pianos in the homes of this country, a hit sale of 200,000 and a smash top sale at present of 700,000 copies of sheet music tell that something is decidedly wrong, with either the sales method, the sales outlet, the price or the music business.

If it's radio, say the publishers who believe in cutting the price, no better way to determine that than to make the retail cost to the public of 20c or 15c. If sales are not increased in that way, they say, then decide the music business as far as sales are concerned for the present is pretty nearly washed up.

Income Alternative

An alternative for income, these same publishers claim, is that very radio. Instead of the stupid contract that radio now holds and which permits it to live through the use of music at comparatively nothing, Radio, these publishers say, should be compelled to pay a royalty each time using a copyright song, to its publisher, and not to any music society or other organization.

With 700 or more radio stations at present, the income of a royalty per number per night per station cannot well be estimated, regardless of the amount of royalty set, is their statement, but it must be big for popular songs.

Another example of the stupidity of all music in bulk agreements made with radio station operators and makers of talking shorts, is further brought out through the canned radio record now going out in unknown but large quantities. These are used by the smaller radio stations which pay for them, but no music publisher derives one cent from the use of music on the canned radio record.

The large number of songs just now is considered in the arguments of the radical publishers, but they do not admit the 5-10c lyric sheet sales have affected the regular retail trade to sufficient extent to note it as opposition.

Henderson Sec. Member

Charles Henderson, pianist with Waring's Pennsylvanians, has been elected to membership in the Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers.

Henderson composed the score for "Rah, Rah, Daze," musical talker featuring Waring's band produced on the coast last summer.

Disc Reviews

By Bob Landry

Emmett Miller

(Okeh 41462) There are themes so trite and lyrics so asinine that inevitably there arises a suspicion of radio origin. Radio acts appearing in vaudeville drive home to the rest of the amusement world how insular and insufficient the standards of what's funny held by show biz proper are when applied to the great American parlor.

Miller has the assistance of Mr. Pick Maloney in the perpetration of "Sam and Bill at the Graveyard" and "The Licker Taster." A patient three minutes per side failed to establish either skit as arriving at any juncture sufficiently sharp to be described as the point. They leave the Broadway, or even loop, mind puzzled, piqued and shrouded in mist not only to understand the pieces themselves but even more difficult to grasp, why such discs are cut, and for whom.

Blackstone Trio

(Brunswick 4933) This release recommends itself naturally to the older folks or as a suggestion to children having their parents in mind. "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "Silver Threads Among the Gold" are rendered with that traditional heart-dilating sentimentality that is so irresistable to large chunks of the populace.

Jack McIntosh

(Columbia 2315) This pair can be separated from its mates and placed upon those that should find a special appeal in the immediate future climaxed by Christmas. "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful" is set to the solemn beauty of the hymn, "Adeste Fideles," and combines MacIntosh's reverent trumpet with organ accompaniment. W. G. Webber is the trumpeter on the reverse in similar musical combination for "Good King Wenceslas."

Johnny Marvin

(Victor 22555) Another explanation of the prominence enjoyed in the mechanical field by this artist. "I'm Yours" and "You Darling" constitute a peach of a pair, laden with melody.

Nat Shilkret

(Victor 22553) Victor's home office tempo-keeper has "When Kentucky Bids the World Good Morning" and "Oh, How I Cried." Makes a pleasant combo.

Leroy Shield

(Victor 22548) Apparently a new Victor recording group credited to Hollywood, and possibly coast-out, although billing on a disc need not mean what it says. "Song of the Big Trail" isn't much, but that's the song's fault primarily. Reverse, "Sing Song Girl," with a Chinese motif, gives the band a chance and the result is attractive. Further recordings will divulge a better idea of the band's proper classification.

Tom Gerun

(Brunswick 4942) "After All You're All I'm After" and "What a Fool I've Been" with a near-bass vocal refrain makes fairly good recording.

Ozzie Nelson

(Brunswick 4922) This band is on the upgrade, notably in the east. As yet the name is hardly familiar either to the trade or the general public outside the immediate following. Understood it's marked for escalation, however.

"Something to Remember You By" and "Body and Soul" are here united. The Nelson technique is smooth and agreeable.

Lloyd Huntley

(Brunswick 4937) Here's another new name attached to some progressive ideas. "Gee But I'd Like to Make You Happy" and "Lonely" is a really exceptional disc for melody and appeal.

WB Settles Selwyn's Infringement Claim

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Warners and Edgar Selwyn have reached an agreement out of court over the latter's claim that the picture company infringed on a number from his "Strike Up the Band" show.

Last summer, when Warners was running stage shows in its local theatres, the musical number involved was alleged to have been used without Selwyn's permission. Selwyn then filed suit for $100,000 damages.

Amount of settlement not disclosed, but reported to be considerably less than even 10% of the original sum demanded.

NO NITE LIFE

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 9.

According to attendance at local night clubs, New Haveners are apparently trying out the old system of "early to bed, early to rise."

One formerly popular spot sported a population of exactly nine couples the other evening while a second has cut its cover charge to 60 cents with no minimum check requirement.

PICARDY CLUB CLOSES

The Picardy Club folded last week following the withdrawal of Al White as m. c. When the Earl Lindsay revue and Ernie Vallee orchestra reported for work Tuesday they found the place dark. Owners are now having the interior redecorated and plan to reopen.

BEAUT'S $300

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Jeanette Eastman, winner of "America's Sweetheart" title this year, is hostess and entertainer at the Victor night club.

Salary is $300 a week.

Yes, You're Out

One publisher suggests "Am I In?" as the title of a new tune to be dedicated to the orchestra leaders.

This is the first question in maestros' monologs.

Towns Boards Cannot Shut Dancehalls on Sundays

Buffalo, Dec. 9.

Public dancehalls operating on Sundays in New York State are within the law and the town boards have no authority to prohibit dancing on Sundays. This is the gist of a decision handed down by Justice Larkin of the Supreme Court here in an action brought by the dancehalls of town of Evans, Erie County, to restrain the town boards from revoking the halls' licenses.

It is the first time that the precise question has even been presented to the courts for determination and is controlling. The ruling holds for all towns in the state.

The dancehalls were represented by Sidney B. Pfeifer, Buffalo attorney, and the town was represented by Gen. William H. Schohl, assistant state attorney general. It is reported that the towns will foster a movement to effect a change in the existing state law.

ADDISON HOTEL

(Florentine Room)

Detroit, Dec. 9.

This spot has had a varied career in the past four or five years. It came upon lean days and closed for the space of two years.

Last year the Green Brothers, proprietors of the Tavern, reopened it under the name of "Bal Tabarin," offering Henry Busse's band and a floor show. Six months' time failed to attract and the place closed. The Green boys were succeeded by Harry Abbott with an unnamed backer who reopened it as the Music Box. Summer came and the backer left, at about the same time, and again the place closed.

After the summer it was announced to reopen again. This time with Billy Kurth, formerly of the "Midnight Frolics" on the New Amsterdam Theatre roof, N. Y., and more recently here at the class spot—Blossom Heath.

This room has been open for about two months now without creating much comment, due no doubt, to not advertising. However, business has been building steadily despite doubts by experts. This probably because of a combination of circumstances. The atmosphere has been designed to attract the better type of night clubbers. Place has neither the cold atmosphere of a hotel supper spot nor the hotsy-totsy air of the night club. This, coupled with a band which equals the best dance music available locally, and a refined floor show, has pleased the people who happened to wander in. Another help has been the little competition from other night spots. Addison hotel is located in downtown Detroit with only one other downtown club running. The others were either padlocked or folded.

For the floor show a dance team and singer comprise the talent. This embellished by concert arrangements by the orchestra furnishing a pleasing if quiet show. Taking in consideration that people who come here like to dance rather than watch, the management has cut the floor show down to 20 minutes three time an evening, including the dinner show.

Dona and Darrell first do a jazz tango, then an excellent adagio. Young, attractive and clean looking couple with the boy seemingly very little heavier than his 100-pound partner.

Virginia Cooper sings with an attractive voice and appearance. She is very tall for a cabaret entertainer.

The band, under direction of Joe Reichman, specializes in soft toned "sweets" music. Good voices are introduced as Doc Davis and Nolan Reichman officiates as m. c. in an unobtrusive manner.

Spot looks like it has a good chance. Has enough to sell and the "no cover charge" policy is a big consideration in these times. But they're keeping it more or less a secret. Lee.

SILVER SLIPPER'S DATE

Christmas week will see the Silver Slipper nite club reopening. Its entertainers will be Clayton, Jacobson and Duarante, who will double from their show, "The New Yorkers," at the Broadway.

No coveur charge has yet been settled upon. Maybe $3 and $4 on week ends.

Belle's Pinch

Too much publicity finally resulted in a raid on Belle Livingstone's 58th St. Country Club last week. Prohibition agents who made the pinch charged Belle and eight of her employees with possession, selling and maintaining a nuisance.

The spot, just east of Park ave., for the past four weeks has been doing the best night club business in New York, drawing around 350 people nightly at a $3 couvert. The Saturday preceding the raid the salon, formerly John Murray Anderson's studio, drew 900 people with a $5 couvert in effect.

Picks Up Hat, Walks

Al Friedman, one of the indies to make a stab at music publishing in a small way, folded.

Friedman made his office at 1587 Broadway and specialized on one song. When it failed to click after more than a month's work, he picked up his hat and walked.

Previous to his attempt as a publisher, Friedman worked in the pro department at Harms.

RIGGS RE-ELECTED

Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 9.

John H. Riggs was elected president of the Des Moines Musicians' Ass'n for the fourth consecutive time. Walter G. Samuels was re-elected vice-president and Claude E. Pickett, secretary.

Executive board composed of Alonzo Leach, Burton Knouf, Ray Livingston, A. Garrett Barnard and Marion Prescott.

ROYAL PLUGGER

Bob Miller, professional manager of Witmark's, has added Prince Plotti to the staff.

Plotti is a pioneer radio artist and has been barnstorming. His principal duty at Witmark's will be to plug.

Kosloff Quits Publix

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Lou Kosloff, formerly B. & K. m. c. and lately doing the same job in Detroit, has resigned from the Publix organization.

Going out to California to live and work.

Kornheiser's Coast Rep

Lyle Thayer, formerly with the Los Angeles office of Sherman-Clay, has been appointed coast rep for Phil Kornheiser.

Mehlinger, Exploiter

Artie Mehlinger has been appointed to head the exploitation activities of DeSylva, Brown & Henderson.

Mehlinger formerly represented Harms on the coast.

Famous on Coast

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Famous Music is not closing its local office here as reported.

Ed Janis remains in charge.

Here and There

Famous has added George Dumont, formerly with Berlin's, to handle slides for local territory and all Paramount theatres.

Gene Fosdick orchestra opens Dec. 10 at the Town Club, Pittsburgh.

Rosemont ballroom, New York, will retain Leo Hannon's Musical Bellhops and Ben Tobler's California Cyclones indef. Original Dixieland Jazzband had been tentatively set to start.

Sammy Lerner, last with DeSylva, Brown & Henderson, is now writing at Famous. Extra lyrics.

Irving Sewitt of the Club Arbrook's Jewelry Hour over WMCA for 10 weeks.

Happy Felton orchestra opens Dec. 15 at the New Palm Beach hotel, Palm Beach, Fla.

STUNT NITE FLYING ON FLOOR SHOW IN TEST

When the grill room of the Roosevelt Aviation School's new hotel opens next month, stunt night flying will compete with three acts and an orchestra in deciding the policy for future entertainment.

The hotel, adjacent to the school, will have a specially constructed terrace facing the Garden City, L. I., flying field from which dinner and supper guests can watch stunt aviators in illuminated planes. It's an experiment to determine whether or not the air show will prove sufficiently strong to enable the hotel to eliminate the floor show.

L. A. Night Clubs Get A Nod from Football

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

Influx of the Notre Dame rooting contingent and the general gala holiday attending the Notre Dame-U. S. C. game was a break for dodering nite life hereabouts. Everybody did biz over the week-end as a result, with the town wide open Friday night before the game and Saturday and Sunday.

George Olsen's got Knute Rockne and the N. D. bunch Friday. The Mayfair feted the N. D. team Saturday night and every joint, even those flopping, got a break in some way or another.

DALLAS COMBO'S SONGS

Dallas, Dec. 9.

Harold Ramsay, organist at the Publix-Palace here, has collaborated with Joanne Hawthorne, poetess, for series of popular songs. Ramsay is doing the melodies.

Miss Hawthorne is a granddaughter of the famed Nathaniel Hawthorne, with most of the new combo's songs to be arranged for organ slides.

Rochester's Sat. Nights

Rochester, Dec. 9.

Seneca hotel's Saturday Nite Club started its second season to capacity crowd. It's the only downtown place aping the big city night spots.

Florence Colebrook Powers' studio furnishes the floor show and Gus Blum's band the music.

LEADING ORCHESTRAS DIRECTORY

IRVING AARONSON
and HIS COMMANDERS
Special Engagement
BEACON THEATRE
NEW YORK CITY

PHIL FABELLO
and His
R-K-O Entertainers
Creators of the Fabello Policy
R-K-O COLISEUM, New York
Indefinitely

ABE LYMAN
and HIS ORCHESTRA
Musical Entertainment Plus
Second Year at the
CARTHAY CIRCLE
Los Angeles
Brunswick Records

TED WEEMS
AND HIS ORCHESTRA
NEW LOWRY HOTEL
St. Paul, Minn.
Management M. C. A.

ANSON WEEKS
and His ORCHESTRA
Fourth Year
MARK HOPKINS HOTEL
SAN FRANCISCO
Management M. C. A.

GEORGE OLSEN
AND HIS MUSIC
VICTOR RECORDS
George Olsen's Restaurant
Culver City, Calif.

B. A. ROLFE
Radio's Premier Conductor
LUCKY STRIKE
Dance Orchestra
Thrice Weekly Over N. B. C.

JESSE STAFFORD
and His ORCHESTRA
Now in Second Year at
PALACE HOTEL
San Francisco
(Brunswick Records)
Featuring His and Gene Rose's
"TONIGHT"

PAUL WHITEMAN
INDEFINITELY
GRANADA, CHICAGO
Personal Rep.: JAS. F. GILLESPIE

Mort Beck resigned from Donaldson, Douglas & Gumble, where he was a road man.

Charlie Stein, formerly orchestra leader at the Hippodrome, has been transferred to the R-K-O Madison, Brooklyn.

TAVERN
A CHOP HOUSE
OF EXCEPTIONAL MERIT
156-8 WEST 48TH STREET
East of Broadway

SONG HITS
THEY DELIVER THE HITS!
Ira Schuster, Johnny Tucker and Monroe Silver, the famous "Harmony Boys" of WOR, are hit choosers par excellence. That's why composers go regularly to their program to hear the big, new 1931 song successes.
"Don't Forget Me in Your Dreams"
"Blue Again" Your Lips
"And Then Met Mine"
ROBBINS MUSIC CORPORATION 799 SEVENTH AVE. NEW YORK

MR. JESSE CRAWFORD
ORGANIST
PARAMOUNT THEATRE, NEW YORK
Selections from Tschaikowsky
WABC every Sunday, 10 to 10:30 P. M., "Royal" Hour
Every Tuesday during Paramount-Publix Hour
VICTOR RECORDS

RADIO FAN MAIL PEAK

BIGGEST PILE IN DECEMBER

World's Most Prolific Letter Writers Are Radio Fans, but Mostly Write in Bad Weather Only—Have to Be Handled With Care—Embarrassing Pash Notes From Women to Announcers—Stations Value Complaints

BY DAN GOLDBERG

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Since the founding of the local quarters of the National Broadcasting Company, every amorous letter to a radio performer has been from a femme fan to some male artist. No dame entertainer has ever received an "I Love You" letter from any male fan.

Hot ladies have increased so greatly in the past year that married radio performers have established all sorts of rules in an effort to keep jealous wives from blowing up at some of the letters. Many married announcers have instructed the letter department not to deliver any mail to their homes, but to send them to a private box at the post-office. Others have their mail sent to a personal friend, who reads the stuff, sorting out the combustible stuff from the rest.

Precautions are necessary often because of the crazy notions of some of the erotic femmes. Many women have directly accused announcers and performers of having been with them the night before. They talk about the hot petting party. Some of these letters get so heated and persistent that the postal authorities are appealed to in order to get them to stop sending the missives through.

Hard On Alibis

Males performers find themselves in tough spots due to these hot letters, both with their wives and the fans. Some wives won't listen to reason, and squawk that there must be something to the hints dropped in the fan letters. And as for the femmes themselves, announcers can't figure what to answer to dames who write such stuff as, "Last night I eagerly waited for your voice over the radio. At last it came over the air, soft and soothing; and as I lay there on the couch, I felt your hot lips burning against mine." Or, "When you announced that the next selection would be, 'After All, You're All I'm After Now,' I knew then, sweetheart that you were speaking directly to me."

Often these letters are signed quite boldly with names which have the Mrs. tag. Ladies don't care, and often confide to their radio pashes the most intimate details of their married life, which most state is very unhappy.

Rudy Vallee still leads in the amount of fan mail for any one person. No single performer comes even close to Vallee's pash mark. The remaining notes are distributed principally among the announcers, all of whom have their special femme following.

Other than pash mail, the greatest amount of radio letters are composed of requests. Requests for special songs, for photographs, autographs, money, letters, advice, inside dope, personal appearances, jobs, assistances, etc.

Tap, Tap, Tap

Requests for money are largely restricted to organizations. Individuals rarely ask for money from radio performers. Amos 'N Andy regularly receive letters from colored organizations asking for donations. This is due to the Amos 'N Andy "Mystic Knights of the Sea," which they use in their nightly feature. The Pickard Family, which is on the air twice daily with hill-billy tunes, receive numerous requests from small churches in the sticks for free-will offerings. And also for personal appearances. Deacons write that the Family should come down for the Strawberry Festival or some such occasion, with the proceeds derived to go into the church treasury, some, however, offer to pay the expenses for the trip.

Requests for numbers to be played over the air have to be handled carefully. Can't ignore them completely for fear of alienating the fans, but on the other hand, they can't let the fans get too close to them in this matter. Many, after having some request taken care of, become more outspoken, and make bigger and better demands, and raise loud squawks if the artists fail to come through. It takes a delicate touch to be both polite to the fan trade and at the same time keep them from practically coming into the family.

Like Squawks

However, of all the letters which are most appreciated at the studios, and which are read most closely, are those which are uncomplimentary. Especially when the complaints are tecnical.

Thus the Great Northern Hour received a letter from a man who stated that he didn't think the representation of the rushing train was true to life. He said it was too smooth, and that the Great Northern railroad had a number of switches on their tracks. Note immediately went to the sound effects man, who now puts in the switches at appropriate intervals.

Weather and season have a direct bearing upon the number of radio letters. This result has been found after a careful check-up, with weather reports and postmarks from various cities and for various days, all statistically taken into account.

December Peak

Radio mail reaches its peak in December, starts to drop off in March, and reaches its least mark in the hot days of the summer. In the fall, with big radio games taking people out of the homes on the week-ends, the number of letters received by radio stations on following days are correspondingly small. Circuses, special attractions at the picture houses, carnivals, fairs, and other attractions outside of the home, all have their effect upon the number of letters. The same goes for snow or rain or zero weather, with the mail count taking huge jumps following such days.

Listeners are always ready to write, however, no matter what time of the day the broadcast is on. Last week, Charlie Hamp, who goes on the air at six a. m., made an announcement over the air in which he wondered, "if anybody really gets up early enough to listen to this program." The following day, he received more than 3,000 letters, all telling him "why sure, we listen to your broadcast every morning during breakfast."

Long Beach Station Gets Hollywood Studio Tie-Up

Hollywood, Dec. 9.

KFOX, Long Beach station, will move to the Tec-Art picture studio in Hollywood Jan. 1. Transmission station and towers will remain at L. B.

Station believes it can get better talent here. Tec-Art will use the station one hour daily to plug independent pictures being produced on the lot.

BEAUMONT, TEX., MUNY

Dallas, Dec. 9.

Beaumont, south Texas oil-lumber town, was granted permission for a municipal broadcasting station by federal commission. Station will be chiefly for police and only 50 watts, one of smallest in the south.

Houston still has south Texas' only two commercial stations in a territory almost as large as New York State.

Miss Remsen's Switch

Alice Remsen, original contralto with Palmolive and Stromberg-Carlson hours and on sustaining bills for three years, has left NBC and is now producing and singing at WOR.

Invisible Extras' Good Pay for Yelling Into Mike in Air Mob Scenes

Radio also has its mob scenes, and extras, and it pays them more than the picture producers do.

Radio stations and chains frequently find need for a vocal mob scene. A playlet may call for a mob group of voices, to shout into the mike as film supers crowd before the camera.

For yelling over the ether, radio pays from $3 to $7.50 for 30 minutes or an hour.

Networks have a list of extras to call upon whenever the occasion arises.

COMMISSION CLASH ON TELEVISION WITH CBS

Washington, Dec. 9.

Federal Radio Commission and the Columbia Broadcasting Company are about to come to grips. The impending scrap is not over radio but television.

The Commission recently let drop the hint the large broadcasting companies were not in a position to aid materially in the development of television, stating the broadcasting companies, per se, are not primarily manufacturers of basis apparatus.

Immediately the Columbia excepted. The company, it seems, sees great possibilities in the future of television and intends to enter the field in a big way. It is planning to conduct experiments, but the Commission wants it to keep off. The company claims it will be as big a competitive factor in the field of television as it is in radio.

CBS' 3-Year Contracts

Fletcher Henderson, at Connie's Inn, and Paul Tremaine, at Yoeng's have been placed under CBS contracts for three years.

Will Osborne, whose CBS contract recently expired, is again in negotiation with the chain.

LOS ANGELES

(Continued from page 54)

keep Ince from assaulting another person.

Mrs. Pat Campbell denies she slapped Lionel Belmore when he read his lines at the opening of "Ghosts" in San Francisco. She says she merely whisked him playfully with a rose. She also squawks she received a rubber check for her lectures at the Hollywood Vine Street a few weeks ago.

Clyde A. Bruckman, pictures director, is out $3,500 in rugs when burglars hacked two trucks up to his Beverly Hills home.

Divorce from Monte M. Katterjohn, scenarist, granted Phyllis Knell Katterjohn, former studio steno. She complained his temperament forced her to subdue her personality. They were married in 1925.

Estelle Taylor hurried to Wilmington, Del., at word that her grandfather, Charles Barrett, was dying.

Engagement of Rodney Pantages, son of Alexander Pantages, to Beryl Sweeney, non-professional, is announced.

Betty Francisco, pictures, will marry Fred Collins, Spalding, New York broker, Dec. 15.

Identification of bones found in the desert as those of Thelma Mells, suicide, was a bad guess. Miss Mells reported missing by her husband two years ago, showed up in Hollywood to refute the identification. She's been doing Graziee work in talkies.

Trial of Daisy De Voe on charges of plundering Clara Bow while nursing as her secretary, is set for Jan. 12.

Another storage building roof party hit the local headlines when police raided a stag at the Hollywood Storage Building and arrested 500 men for gambling and four girls for dancing raw.

CHICAGO

Mrs. Ann Kerns Strom, formerly known in legit musicals as Ann Gardner, has filed suit for divorce from Ralph C. Strom. Mrs. Strom secured a lack alimony order against her first husband, Francis Kerns, for $865 to be paid at rate of one buck a week besides regular $10 weekly.

Radio station WNYC, of New York, is trying to muscle in on the air channel of station WCFL, local.

Henry Haldeman-Julius, 11, son of E. Haldeman-Julius, editor, of Girard, Kans., is being guarded following kidnaping threats.

Miss Helen Bacon, municipal picture censor, has been discharged and Miss Sara Riley appointed in her place.

Oak Park citizens, 350 of them, signed a petition requesting that the city council permit minnie golf on Sunday.

Giorgio Pollaco, director of the Chicago Civic Opera for many years, has resigned.

Two marriages failed to seal the bond between Frank Rens, in charge of the commissary for the Al G. Barnes circus, and his wife Gladys. He scrammed on Oct. 26, 1926, after marriages in 1919 and 1925, and Mrs. Rens got another divorce last week.

LONDON

Prof. Ernst Stern is coming from Germany to supervise the scenic end of the next Drury Lane show, musical.

"Sons o' Guns" leaves the Hippodrome Dec. 16, to be followed by a revival of "The Maid of the Mountains." "Stand Up and Sing," a Jack Buchanan musical, will take over the house after eight weeks of the revival.

Sam Goldwyn arrives Dec. 8 to arrange the presentation of Evelyn Laye's talker.

Marita Hunt, Eric Maturin, Douglas Burbridge and Charles Carson have been chosen for the cast of "Twelve Hours," new thriller by John Willard, at the Comedy.

Film players are in a huddle with agents over the habit of cutting their contract prices in order to please producers with whom the agents want to be friendly.

Millard Webb, American director, is to make a talker for Gaumont.

"Daily Telegraph," one of the oldest dailies in London, but its price from four to two cents Dec. 2.

Following the latest Maurice Browne revival of "The Unknown Warrior," closing Nov. 29, London Theatre company will produce "Caviare," an assortment of playlets and things.

Everyman Theatre Guild, running on subscription lines, is to produce a new play by Florence Kilpatrick, "Getting George Married."

Shell-Mex, biggest petroleum combine in the country, has started an advertising campaign of outdoor talker shows, given from a fleet of vans.

Duchess theatre, new playhouse which has had nothing but flops, starts "Jane's Legacy" at Xmas, new play by Eden Phillpotts. Piece being produced by Sir Barry Jackson.

J. B. Fagan is to produce "The New Gossoon," by George Sobl, for London in Jan. Barry Fitzgerald, Irish actor, will be the lead.

A boycott of all Birmingham cinemas by trade unionists is threatened in protest of low wages on the exhibiting side of the film trade.

The British International talkies and the Peacock," have caused news of a row developing in the local studio with the result these are to be regarded as being unjustly the native.

Society of Motion Picture Employees here calling a meeting to decide whether they shall sever themselves from the same body in America.

RADIO SCANS LEGISLATION CAREFULLY

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Individual radio tax and prohibition of auto radios are the big questions for the trade as the city councils and state legislatures all over the country go into action for their winter session.

Up to now the radio federations have been successful in blocking all unfavorable measures. All attempts to assess radios, as started in California, Wisconsin, Maine and Pennsylvania, have fallen through.

Municipalities such as Detroit, Seattle, Cleveland, Milwaukee and San Francisco, have proposed to ban auto radios on the argument that drivers listening to a red-hot band are apt to miss the red light. But the radio associations, who are keeping close watch on these legislative moves, have raised such squawks that the bills have been stopped.

DO CONTENTED COWS LIKE JAZZ, CLASSIC?

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Whether beef sells better to the tunes of Wagner or Donaldson is the question that's worrying Swift & Co., the packing outfit.

Stockyard company plans to go on the air shortly over N. B. C., and with a musical program. But can't make up their mind whether it's to be jazz or the classics.

Balto. Station Wants Wave Split With WJZ

Baltimore, Dec. 9.

Station WBAL of this city has filed with the Federal Radio Commission a request for permission to install equipment that will permit the big local to synchronize with WJZ, New York, in a broadcasting scheme never before tried outside of the laboratories.

Under the plan negotiated by F. R. Huber for the station and Merlin Aylesworth for the NBC, the local will use the 760 kilocycle wave-length of WJZ on the alternate days when it is now silent and shift over to the present 1060 kilocycle for present schedule.

Children's Co. and WOR Tieup for a 4 Wks. Try

With legit plays already being broadcast on the air, another tie-up between the stage and ether has been affected with WOR broadcasting children's dramas, beginning next Sunday (13).

Programs are being played by Adrienne Morrison's children's company current at the Princess on 39th street. Affiliation is for four weeks with an option, the station making the broadcasts a sustained program.

First air play for the youngsters is "Mike Believes," by A. A. Milne, which will spread over two Sundays.

Meredith and Doty as N.B.C. "First Nighters"

Chicago, Dec. 9.

New dramatic presentation program called the "First Nighter," set for N.B.C. over the blue network. Presented by the Campana Corporation of Italian Balm Lotion and includes June Meredith and Jack Doty, legit performers, as features. Each presentation distinct in itself, delivering a 30 mins. sketch.

Each Thursday evening starting at 7:30, out of the Chicago office.

Gus Van will be guest artist on the "Radio Follies" hour Dec. 12, over CBS.

Rodeos Growing in Popularity But Only Exceptions Get Money

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Rodeo biz in America has increased enough in the last 11 years to rate it as part of the outdoor show business. At the same time it presents one of the strangest phenomena in that it is generally a losing game.

In 1919 200,000 visited rodeos yearly.

In 1925 the figure jumped to 263,000.

The year 1928 brought 944,000 paid admissions.

In 1930 the figure rose to 2,624,781. Those in the know claim some 5,000,000 people will pay an average of $2 a head to see this cowboy game in 1931.

Contrary, however, to the marked increase in attendance, and the generally accepted idea, these rodeos, except in a few western spots, do not make money. Rodeos showing a yearly profit are: Cheyenne, Wyo.; Pendleton, Ore., and Fort Worth, Texas. Most of the capital stock in these three spots is now controlled by Swift and Armour. The stock has always paid well. Calgary, Canada, also pays out each year.

Balance of the country's touring rodeos are operated at a loss, according to W. T. "Candy" Hammer, who has been in the game 16 years.

The biggest fertile field for rodeos is the effete east, where any rodeo in any town can attract a mob.

Replacements Costly

To have a successful touring rodeo it is necessary to have a batch of fresh bucking cows and horses always in transit from the open western plains to the particular rodeo. After 60 days, it is claimed, the toughest bucking nag no longer acts in earnest. Replacing this stock, and keeping the contest interesting makes for heavy overhead which is the reason a bonafide rodeo gets nowhere on the cash end. Heavy prizes, for capable riders, also takes a big chunk of the gate receipts.

Rodeos staged in buildings lose their punch and seldom click.

Notable fact through the cast that a rodeo in town attracts more boy followers than any circus or like amusement. Several of the regular touring outfits keep one man busy tending to the kids wants and keeping them from beneath the hoofs of the horses. All young America

(Continued on page 71)

Indoor Circus Benefit

An indoor circus will be held from Dec. 27 to Jan. 3 in the 105th regiment field artillery armory, 166th and Franklin avenue, Bronx, for the benefit of New York's Boys Club, organization for youngsters of the East Side.

Charles H. Sabin is head of the organization. The show, in charge of J. F. Gillespie, will be made up principally of outdoor acts with added volunteers expected.

Concessions, but no wheels.

Texas Fair Shake-Up

Dallas, Dec. 9.

Following one of worst seasons in years general shake-up looming in State Fair personnel here. First to go is Roy Rupard, for several years secretary and chief advisor. Both Rupard and Jones were in Chi last week attending fair execs convention, while stockholders met in annual biz session.

Financial report presented by Jackson showed gross of $450,000, which is 35% less than 1929. Still, there was profit of $50,000, due chiefly to fact that expenses were peeled down $85,000, with no fireworks, few free exhibits and minor attractions.

L. A.'s Shrine Bill

Los Angelps, Dec. 9.

Shrine Indoor Circus will be held from Jan. 17 to 25 at the Shrine Auditorium. Charles Hatch of the R-K-O office is framing the show.

Hodgine Troupe, Flying Concellos, Dennie Curtiss, Aerial Walters, Great Shubert and the Aerial Kellys have been booked. Elephants from the Shell and Gentry shows contracted.

Ringling Loses Fair Date at Lincoln, Neb.

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Ringling has lost the Lincoln, Neb. fair date which was wanted for the Al. G. Barnes circus.

Last season the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus played the event.

An effort is being made by the Ringling office to have the Lincoln Fair board hold a second meeting in the hope the ruling will be changed.

12-YR.-OLD SUIT OVER "WILD MAN" IN CIRCUS

Bridgeport, Dec. 9.

Many Bridgeporters who had gathered to obtain a free look at "Bush," circus wild man, were disappointed when the wild man was not called as a witness in the Superior court in a $5,000 suit brought against the Ringling-Barnum show by Morris Hepston, former manager for the African dwarf.

The history of the case goes back to 1918, according to circus authorities. The show had returned from making its last stand in Texas and Hepston brought back the "wild man" to Bridgeport and put him in a furnished room. Occupants of the house noticed the African was poorly clad and notified circus officials.

Circus troupers came to the room and found the wild man wearing women's stockings, a woman's undergarment, women's shoes and a pair of Hepston's pants that had been "amputated" in the legs to fit the victim.

The little savage pleaded to be taken away. He was munching on crusts of stale bread and showed the circus people a glass of water, they said. He made them understand he was living on bread and water. He was taken to the circus quarters by the men and has been with the circus ever since as a free agent.

$65 Weekly Salary

Previous to this Hepston was his manager and the circus paid him $65 weekly for the services of the pygmy. Hepston took him from Africa with the permission of the South African government for the purpose of exhibiting him. The pygmy says he only received a bare existence from Hepston.

After the savage joined the circus as a free agent, Hepston brought suit, alleging that the circus officials had illegally contracted for the "wild man," while he was under his management. The suit was started 12 years ago, but apparently Hepston lost interest in it, for he never pressed it. Recently the case was listed for trial and Attorney Henry Burroughs, who represents the plaintiff, was notified to bring it before the court or take it off the docket.

Attorney Alexander DeLaney, representing the circus interests, moved that the case be stricken from the docket, arguing that the plaintiff is dead. Attorney Burroughs opposed the motion on the grounds that Hepston is alive. Officials of the circus who are in Bridgeport with the "wild man," whose real name is said to be Frank Taaibosh, are attempting to have the case cleared up, if possible.

Judge Frederick M. Peasely has not taken any action on Attorney Delaney's motion to have Hepston declared legally dead, but a ruling is expected within a few days.

The suit kept the "wild man" from filling an eight-week European booking, as the engagement was cancelled to have him here as a witness in an effort to end the suit.

Gentry Bros. in Storm

Chicago, Dec. 8.

Gentry Bros. truck show, owned by Sam Dill, lost the big-top in a bad storm at San Bernardino, Calif., last week.

Show at present is looking for a spot to winter in California.

Colorful?

The title of the new William Mayer mag shows more vivid imagination than even any one of the Harold Hersey publications. Mayer has named his, "Gin Mills Magazine."

Quiet Convention of Internat'l Ass'n of Fairs

Chicago, Dec. 9.

The 40th Annual Convention of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions closed here last week, with the following carnivals securing fair dates for 1931:

Morris & Castle, Ionia and Detroit, Michigan. Beckman & Garrity, the midwest circuit which includes Des Moines and other spots totaling 10 weeks of dates. Johnny J. Jones, the Minnesota State Fair, South Dakota, Mississippi, Alabama and Tulsa among others. Rubin & Cherry, Toronto, and the Brundage shows the Wisconsin circuit of six weeks.

New president of the association of fairs is P. W. Abbott, who served as v p the past year.

Showmen's League of America elected Sam Levy, president, with the three v p's being Fred L. Clark, Dan Odom and C. G. Dodson.

Annual banquet of the Showmen's League closed the convention. Concurrent at the Steven's Hotel the National Association of Amusement Parks met for three days.

Concessions Mixed by Chi. 1933 Commish

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Carnival and concession men took it on the chin here last week when it was announced by the 1933 World's Fair bunch that no carnival or concessions would be used.

A check-up by the fair committee, of six world fairs over the globe, revealed the fact that only one, Barcelona, Spain, made any dough with the usual type concessions and games of chance.

The 1933 bunch are using this to oust the regular midway which, it was hoped, would be part of the fair. Instead all attractions catering to the mob will be known as "allurements," with most of the consisting of straight exhibits of educational aspect.

Gentry Bros. Circus

Hollywood, Dec. 4.

After a season of 15,000 miles, Sam Dill can take bows on the appearance of his rubber-tired gilly show. The 75 trucks look like they came out of the paint shop yesterday.

Show in itself is not bad considering that the season ends next week. For the local showing of three days, two acts have been added. Features of the performances, Walter Jenner and his seal "Buddy" and George Strech and his three bulls, would be aces with any sawdust outfit. Rest of the performance is the regulation wire, swinging ladder, tumbling, high school horses and ponies and jockeys. Circus is heavy on the acrobatics, as is any show travelling highways.

A seven-cage menagerie is in the side show, besides six platform shows.

Trick carries 16 head of ring stock, three bulls and a flock of dogs. About 200 people are with the outfit. In the 34 weeks out the ghost has walked every week and General Motors has about been paid off for its trucks. Which is plenty okay for this past season.

Floyd King, former owner of Cole Bros. circus, is on the show as p. a. King's show folded in Kentucky late this fall after the printer decided he had waited for his money long enough. Call.

Downie Show on Rails

Chicago, Dec. 9.

Downie Brothers circus closes its season Dec. 19 in Florida and will winter it in Macon, Ga., home town of its owner, Charlie Sparks.

It's understood the show, now motorized, will go out next season as a railroad outfit because of Sparks' wish to carry more seats.

New for Hotels

New hotel giveaway, "This Week in New York," makes its first appearance this week. Successor to "Gotham Life," the former "Official Metropolitan Guide," gotten out by the Miller interests.

"This Week in New York," reported backed by the local hotel association, with Edward M. Carney, former Hearst man, as publisher.

Obituary

THOMAS WRIGHT

Thomas Wright, 80, minstrel and light opera singer, died Nov. 30 at his home in Bridgewater, Mass., of a complication of diseases.

Mr. Wright, born in Boston, began his stage career as a musician and having a fine tenor voice he joined Lew Dockstader's Minstrels, Harris' minstrels and other well-known troupes of those days.

He went from minstrelsy into light opera after he studied music for five years abroad and had sung tenor in "Pirates of Penzance," "Pinafore" and other Gilbert & Sullivan operas. One of his notable opera engagements was with the Carlisle Opera Co.

A throat operation forced his stage retirement and he went to work for B. F. Keith as ticket taker when he opened the Gaiety theatre in Boston. In later years when the new Keith Memorial opened and the Gaiety passed out of vaude Wright retired after taking the last ticket of the old house. He was with the old Keith Boston staff for 30 years and was retired on pension.

Two nephews living in Fitchburg and Brockton, Mass., survive. Interment in Bridgewater.

MRS. MARIE ROSSLEY

Mrs. Marie Rossley, formerly of Jack and Marie Rossley, vaudeville team, died in Montreal after a short illness. Surviving are one son, Victor, theatre worker at St. John, N. B., and a daughter, Mrs. Archie Roberts, known as Bonnie Rossley, chorus girl, also her husband, Jack Rossley.

Deceased came to America with her husband about 20 years ago from England. Couple retired from the stage to manage a theatre in St. John's Newfoundland, where they remained for three years. Later, they located in St. John, N. B., and Mrs. Rossley organized troupes of boys and girls for local musical productions.

For the two years prior to her death, Mrs. Rossley had been living in Montreal, where her husband, retired from the stage, is superintendent of an office building. The children's troupes were always known as the "Rossley Kiddies," during their career of about 14 years. Mrs. Rossley's daughter was with her during the fatal illness.

FRED LENOX

Fred Lenox, 60, character comedian, died Nov. 28 following a heart attack while attending a funeral of his old friend, Wilbur Sweatnam. He died in an ambulance on the way to the hospital.

Mr. Lenox had been on the stage many years, his earlier days being spent as a principal with the old McCall Opera Co. and other opera companies.

At the time of his death he was playing in the Arthur Richman show, "As Good as New," then at the Time Square theatre but since moved to the Cost, New York.

The death of Mr. Sweatnam was a severe shock and the funeral services so affected him that the heart attack followed.

He had been with many Broadway shows.

JEAN BORLIN

Jean Borlin, 35, Swedish singer, died Dec. 8 of an internal hemorrhage at his home at 14 East 60th street, New York. Borlin was seriously ill only a short time, but had not been in the best of health since he arrived from Paris last October.

Borlin was formerly ballet master and principal dancer of the Swedish Ballet and a director and teacher of dancing. Borlin directed the Swedish ballet on its world tour appearing in New York in 1923 at the Century theatre. He also led this group in the Theatre Champs Elysees in Paris, in which city he also established the Jean Borlin School of Dance.

Borlin was unmarried and left no near relatives. The body was cremated and the ashes will be sent to Paris.

CARL FIQUE

Carl Fique, musical composer, conductor and organist, died of heart disease in the Zion Lutheran Church, in Brooklyn, Dec. 6. The body was not found until Sunday morning by the sexton opening the church. Fique was 63.

Fique had been organist of the Zion Church since 1887 and conductor of the United Singers of Brooklyn since 1904. He had also served in the same capacity with the Brooklyn Quartet.

Fique was the composer of several musical comedies, choral works and comic operas, among which were "Papa Priesewitz," "Der Falsche Mufti," and "Orienta."

He is survived by the widow Mrs. Katherine Noack Fique and a brother, Herman Fique.

BART HOGAN

Bart Hogan, 32, casting director in the E. K. Nadel office, New York, died of tuberculosis Dec. 1 at the home of his parents in Providence, R. I., after an illness of 18 months.

Mr. Hogan had been in the Murray Phillips office prior to connecting with Nadel. During his employ with the latter he met Helen Compton, pianist, with Nadel's original "Happiness Girls" act, and the couple were married two years ago.

More than a year ago he became so ill he went to Flower Hospital, New York. His condition became so grave that Mrs. Hogan gave up all stage work to be with him.

Besides the widow and parents three brothers and five sisters survive. Interment in Providence.

BLANCHE E. PLUNKETT

Blanche E. Plunkett, actress, died in a New York hospital Dec. 7. Miss Plunkett was of the old school of thespians and was a daughter of Charles Percival Plunkett. She had been in ill health for some time and prior to her removal to the hospital had been a guest of the Actors' Fund Home for 10 years.

He most notable stage engagement was with Francis Wilson in whose support she appeared for many years.

She is survived by her brother, Harry Plunkett, actor, and two sisters.

Interment in Actors' Fund plot, Evergreen Cemetery, Brooklyn.

JAMES R. LEE

James Richard Lee, 50, who was perhaps best known professionally as Jimmy Vaudeville Lee, died Dec. 9. He had been a member of the N. V. A. since Dec. 9, 1920.

At one time Lee had also played in musical comedy, being a principal last season in "Rio Rita." Most of his stage life was spent in vaude. Among some of the acts in which he worked were Brown, Lee and Williams and of Sandberg (Bob) and Lee.

He was a talking and singing comedian. A brother, Robert E. Lee, living at 738A Madison street, Brooklyn, survives. Lee was a member of the Elks.

JOHN D. POWERS

John D. Powers, 42, manager for Paramount-Publix in Connecticut and Western Massachusetts, died last week in New York. He had suffered for several months from a brain tumor.

At one time Mr. Powers was connected with the Stanley Works of New Britain, Conn., the Underwood Typewriter Co. of Hartford, and the F. C. Bushnell Co. of New Haven.

For 11 years he had been with Paramount.

LEON CUNNINGHAM

Leon Cunningham, 34, actor and playwright, committed suicide by hanging himself Dec. 8 in his furnished room at 62 West 49th street, New York.

Cunningham was the author of "Hospitality," "Neighbors" and "Small Town Stuff," which were produced on Broadway. He had been associated with the theatre since 1912 and had played in "The Vagabond King," and with Sothern and Marlowe and Stuart Walker.

GEORGE A LEMMING

George A. Lemming, 78, was found dead in a chair at Dave Miller's Costume Shop, where he had been employed recently. Mr. Lemming was born in Detroit.

As a young man he starred with Dick Bullah in "Paul Revere" and played a lead in "The Divorce Question." At times he had lectured on the drama to Milwaukee organizations.

GEORGE BARRY

George Barry, 57, formerly of Barry and Wolford (vaude), died recently in Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Barry had lived for many years at Freeport, L. I., until the advent of

(Continued on page 71)

CHICAGO

Variety's Chicago Office

WOODS THEATRE BUILDING—CENTRAL 0444-4401

Englewood

Confliction plenty, and as a result the show ran more poorly than it really is. Three flash acts, repeats on toe work, piano numbers in succession, and an overdose of hoofing weakened the line-up.

La Fevre and Dolly, bike couple, opened, and over mildly. Old-fashioned turn. Arthur Borelli, comedy pantomime, is another act whose material is out of date.

"Frivolities," first of the flashes and the most pretentious, was not the best. Five girls and a boy, with Loretta Gray featured for her excellent toe dancing. Act has good material, but routined sloppily. Joe Christy, on and off during this bill, m. c.'ing and adding a few needed laughs, managed to squeeze in a bit of his own act at this point. Did only his piano specialty, but enough to stop the show. Holmes and Shaw Sisters a small but neat flash turn, featuring piano and violin numbers, with some good stepping by the boy. Jolce Lando and Co., a dance flash gone arty, with Geneva Butler doing some high range singing. Several adagio routines made up the remainder of the act, and good enough.

Cowan and Gray were a solid smash with comedy tumbling, general hoofing and clowning. Boys work hard and offer one of the neatest and best-paced turns seen in this house.

Joe Baldwin and Wally Bristol needed a screen trailer on to tell the house their act would be a satire on Prohibition. They didn't live up to their promise. Old stuff. Encore burlesque meller bit okay, but it went too far into the blue, with final punch line more of a shock than a laugh here. Three Machedon Bros. closed with a comedy bar turn. Standard stunts and comedy sent them over.

"Lady Surrenders" (U) feature. Business capacity, with sale of tickets stopped by 8 o'clock.

Claud Saunders, formerly with Paramount in New York and more recently with R-K-O in the mid-west, has joined the Federal Theatrical Accounting Service Co. as general assistant executive to Harry Ross, president.

Federal Service is now operating in 12 states, and expects to expand to cover 50 key cities throughout the country in the next year. They now hold contracts with practically every national film distributor for check-ups and audits on percentage films.

Theodore Kline ("Subway Express") and Alma Sue Scarborough, novelist, have collaborated on a series of newspaper sketches for radio broadcast.

Regal

This de luxe Publix-B. & K. colored house has had its grosses hammered down the past few weeks. Jay Fagan claims unemployment in the section is 50% worse than any other portion of the city. This, he says, is the cause of the drop-off.

Regular opening has a "Mother Goose Thyme-Censored" sketch that is draggy, but permits Ralph Cooper, m. c., to get in a few uncensored cracks, of which this audience is fond. Because Billy Mitchell, spotted second, was delayed, Carl Lynn, a preview single, stepped out and did animal imitations. His bee bit registered.

Regalettes, in their "banana" dance, with Florence Edmons, Josephine Baker's understudy, brought a thrill to the mob. Billy Mitchell showed, and possibly seemed to be suffering from a bad cold. His shambling dance brought out only a suggestion of his possible entertaining value.

Preview got under way with Serer and Melita, a hoke turn using thick trick clothing, bit of ventriloquism, and wrestling match with a life size dummy that wound up with dancing by the femme. Passable entertainment.

Benny Berger, from a school of magic, dropped a few cards now and then in the course of his tricks and like most beginners had too much chatter. He had enough tricks however, to slide over.

The Whirlers, two boy skaters from a local night club, whirled about for two minutes after Ralph Cooper brought out a broom and swept the stage for them. Cooper had a job, as the floor was littered, but his band stepped in and helped for comedy angle. Two skaters have a neat and exciting routine.

Seb Meza and Co., male hoofer in full dress, and a girl were worth waiting for. Dancing excellent. Femme, however, couldn't be heard past the 15th row, with all her gag lines still a secret. Comedy modern and good for laughs. Directing orchestra with legs novel. One fault they stayed too long.

Frank Hamilton and Co. did a swapping lies turn, good for a few giggles. Offering was mixed with a bit of singing and piano playing with the man's voice not good. Stuttering kid number helped pull this turn out of the mediocre hole.

At 11:07 Walsh and Grace, two men acrobatics, appeared. The program had then been running better than three hours and a half, but still they stuck to see Walsh and Grace.

Feature picture "Madame Satan" (M-G-M).

Although Chi censors continue with their direct ban on "Primrose Path" the state rights picture manages to get by other state censor boards. Virginia last week gave it a permit after the state rights were bought from the Roadshow pictures co. by F. W. Parker. Opens at the Park theatre, Roanoke, for a one-week stand.

Phillip R. Davis, who denies he is Chicago's most indefatigable stage door Johnny, will curtail the writing of legal briefs long enough to transmute Howard Vincent O'Brien's novel, "An Abandoned Woman" into a play. O'Brien is on the Chicago "Daily News."

Arthur Van Slyke replaced William Balfour, with "Old Rascal," Garrick.

"Dracula" playing a second Chicago engagement is at the Selwyn with Alfreda Sill, Arnold Daly, William Melville, Maurice Morris, Edward Forbes, Marcella Gaudel, William Olanthe Miller and Courtney White as the neck-biter. John D. Jamieson is company manager.

Katherine Redell made her debut with the Civic Opera in "Tannhauser." Critics were lukewarm.

Freddie Mack and Vincent Coleman replace Margaret Fuller and Stanley Price at the Kedzie stock company.

SARANAC LAKE

By "HAPPY" BENWAY

Buy Xmas gifts of hand-tooled leather novelties and hand-painted pictures from any one of these patients in care of the N. Y. A. Sanitoria Edwards, Eddie Voss, Ethel Clouds, Vernon Lawrence, Eddie De Caro and Lawrence McCarthy. Write them without further delay regarding kind of gift preferred.

Emily Kennedy (Portland, Me.), took a two months' vacation here and while here was successfully operated on and took the nerve operation okay, and then left for home noticeably improved in health.

For Thanksgiving holiday each patient received a gift from Jerry Vogel (Plaza Music Co.), the women a beautiful box of writing material and the men a box of "Not a Cough in a Carload" diggies.

After two weeks with her husband (Grant Simpson), Lulu McConnell left for New York to resume vaude dates. He's resting easy.

Voss' Apple Crack

An apple vendor came to the front of the Sun, shouting "An apple a day will keep the doctor away." Eddie Voss gave him a dirty look and said, "Keep the doctor away from here and we'll be in a h—— of a fix."

When notified his wife (Nell Gordon) was a little under the weather Roy Gordon, accompanied by his son Roy, Jr., shot to Roosevelt field on Long Island, chartered an airplane and within four hours was at his wife's bedside. Randy Enslow piloted the plane, making a successful landing in a very bad snow storm. Mrs. Gordon now resting and on way to recovery.

Toni Temple, much wrapped in woolens, account of pleurisy.

Lee Foster (vaude) now "curling" at the Central N. E. San., Rutland, Mass., much in the breakdown class. If you know him don't forget that little letter of cheer.

Sound pictures being installed at the San.... Harry Namba claims he found the pound he lost last week .... Talking about weight, Lilly Leonora, Angels Papulis, Alice Carman, Annamae Powers, Doris Moore and Mae Armitage all added plenty last few weeks.... Dick Kuni, in much pain, got two fingers caught in a "Lizzie" door.... Among those who anticipate visiting old folks at home Christmas are Fred Rith, Jack Lewis, Ben Schaffer, Constance Reeves and Russ Kelly.... Bobby Hatz, feeling so-so and much in bed .... Richard Moore swears to a 100% improvement.... Maybe you think that 20 below zero "ain't" cold; well, it's here now.

Write to those you know in Saranac.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

By JO ABRAMSON

Flatbush—"Street."
Boulevard—"Girl in Hand."
Carlton Jamaica—"Pressing Business."
Majestic—Dark.
Paramount—"Follow the Leader," stage show.
Fox—"Princess and the Plumber," stage show.
Alice—"Sin Takes A Holiday," vaude.
Loew's Met—DuHarry," vaude.
Strand—"Old English."
Oxford—Stock bur.
Gayety—Burlesque (Mutual).
Star—Burlesque (Mutual).

Eugene O'Brien (screen) appears this week in "Steve," play sponsored by the Brandt Brothers and on view at Brandt's Flatbush this week. Opus comes from a six months' stay in Chicago. "Steve" slated for the Carlton, Jamaica, next week.

"Life Is Like That," produced by Curtis W. Emery, coming to the Flatbush, New drama with music.

Slot machine problem up again. Arthur Herman, who owned some slot machines confiscated by the police, brought suit in Supreme Court asking for the return. Court ruled the machines gambling devices and praised cops for seizing them.

Graham theatre, little picture house in Williamsburg, was sure excited last week when during the exhibition of a western film shots were fired in the darkened theatre, wounding several people. Officers found a youngster (14) with the pistol in his hand who said it had accidently gone off. Held on a charge of juvenile delinquency.

Elizabeth B. Grimball Players in "Holy Night," Sierra's pantomime, at the Brooklyn Little theatre, next week. Cast of 33 with two nightly shows scheduled.

Little Theatre Opera Co. staging Offenbach's "Orpheus in Hades" this week at the Brooklyn Little theatre. Big turnout with organization seeking new voices in operatic circles.

CLEVELAND

By GLENN C. PULLEN

Ohio—"Tavern."
Hanna—"Dark Moon."
Play House—"Mask and Face."
Brickert—"Captive."

Pictures

Hipp—"Morocco."
Allen—"Big Trail."
Palace—"Brothers."—vaude.
Stillman—"Big Trail."
State—"Bar Whispers"—revue.
Keith's—"Sin Takes Holiday"—vaude.
Columbia—"Flapper Follies" (burl.).

John Royal, manager of WTAM, denies report he is to be promoted to NBC headquarters in New York. According to rumor, Royal was to become head of NBC's artists' bureau next month.

Dick Leibert, State organist, slated to be shifted back to Penn in Pittsburgh Jan. 2. Paul Ash now opening fourth week's engagement at State with own-produced show. Bert Gordon, Milton Watson and Peggy Bernier to be paid off next week, with Gordon holding over.

J. Knox Strachan mgr. of Hip.

Oscar Scheck re-elected president of local stagehands' union, along with Manus McCaffery, business manager, and Tommy Canton, vice-pres.

Howard Quigley with George Williams' band at New China cafe. Sam Bradley's staging new floor shows.

Yvonne Georgi and Harald Kreutzberg, German modern dancers, booked for three days, starting Dec. 14 at Ohio, dark for remainder of week.

Talkers of local high school football games being used with success by Palace to offset theatrical depression times. Eddie Cantor headlines this week.

BOSTON

Sale of Show Boat, boating night club, was ordered in the United States District Court. The enterprise has ridden the stormy waves of a stock promotion investigation by the Commonwealth and will now sail out of Boston night life on the waves of a bankruptcy proceeding into the hands of the Boston Floating Hospital.

The home of the late Judge J. Albert Brackett, who for years was attorney for practically the entire theatrical interests of Boston, has been put under the auctioneer's hammer. Supposedly wealthy, the judge left an estate of only $2,500 and his home, "The Claim."

The Tremont Theatre Corp. has petitioned for a new trial in the suit won by Evelyn Elsmore, who broke her neck in a fall at the theatre while in a show there. She won a $75,000 verdict.

George Whitfield Chadwick, dean of American composers, has resigned as director of the New England Conservatory of Music. He will remain as director emeritus.

DETROIT

By LEE ELMAN

Screen

Michigan—"War Nurse."
Fox—"Devil With the Women."
Fisher—"Truth About Youth."
R-K-O Downtown—"Reliable David."
United Artists—"Abraham Lincoln."
State—"Sin and Bill" (3rd week).
Paramount—"Outward Bound."

Stage

Wilson—"Ladies of the Jury."
Shubert-Lafayette — "Young Sinners" (6th week).
Casa—Dark.
Det. Civic—"School for Scandal."
Shubert-Detroit—Dark.

"Sons o' Guns" closed in Detroit with entire cast returning to New York. Business very bad here.

Publix announces that 70 season passes will not be renewed this year.

Joan Lowell, who appeared here as guest star in "Camille," is appearing in "School for Scandal," also as guest star.

Civic theatre changing from two-week runs to one week until further notice.

DENVER

Aladdin—"Sin Takes A Holiday."
Denver—"Min and Bill." (Stage Show).
Paramount—"Morocco."
Rialto—"Half Shot at Sunrise."
Tabor—"The Dancers."

Johnny Johnson and orchestra, after eight weeks at the Cosmopolitan hotel and broadcasting over NBC, left for a winter's job at the Westward hotel, Phoenix. Jimmy Joy and orchestra of Kansas City followed Johnson here.

S. H. Cain, Tiffany manager, has been ill.

Ten percent amusement tax looms in both Wyoming and New Mexico.

The Lyric, last silent house at Ft. Collins, installs Western Electroc sound.

Sam Henley resigned as manager of the Paramount exchange and has gone to the west coast. H. W. Braly, manager Rocky Mountain division, takes over Henley's work in addition to his own.

CORRESPONDENCE

All matter in CORRESPONDENCE refers to current week unless otherwise indicated

The cities under Correspondence in this issue of Variety are as follows and on pages:

BOSTON	69	LOUISVILLE	70
BRONX	70	MILWAUKEE	71
BROOKLYN	69	MINNEAPOLIS	70
CHICAGO	69	MONTREAL	70
CLEVELAND	69	NEW HAVEN	70
DALLAS	71	OAKLAND	70
DENVER	69	ST. PAUL	70
DETROIT	69	SAN FRANCISCO	71
INDIANAPOLIS	70	SARANAC LAKE	69
LOS ANGELES	70	SEATTLE	71
		SYRACUSE	70

Telephone Wabash 8439
THEATRE DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION
910 South Michigan Avenue
CHICAGO, ILL.
Organizing - Leasing - Selling - Architectural Supervising - Buying - Building - Service

HOTEL KNICKERBOCKER
Opposite the Drake
Adjoining Palmolive Bldg. CHICAGO
Walton Pl., Just East of Michigan
Special Rates to the Profession!
Coffee Shop—Dining Room—
Smart Cosmopolitan Atmosphere
Finer Rooms—Lower Rates

When in Chicago
Visit These Hits

ADELPHI Clark & Madison
JOE SMITH CHARLES DALE ALEXANDER CARR
in MENDEL, Inc.
with Lisa Silbert and Anna Chandler

SELWYN Mats. Thurs.-Sat.
"DRACULA"
SENSATIONAL VAMPIRE THRILLER

R-K-O STATE LAKE
"Sin Takes a Holiday"
With
CONSTANCE BENNETT
Kenneth McKenna & Basil Rathbone

ST. CLAIR HOTEL
5 Minutes' walk to Theatres—Beautifully Furnished Apartments
Complete Hotel Service—One Room and Kitchenette $25 a week, $90 a month
Two Rooms and Kitchenette $40.00 a Week; $145.00 a Month
Hotel Rooms $17.50 a Week
OHIO, STATE, MICHIGAN AVE., CHICAGO

THE UNION RESTAURANT
68 W. Randolph St., at Dearborn, CHICAGO (Recently enlarged)
R. WELCH ON THE MIGHTY WURLITZER ORGAN
Our Popular Prices Remain the Same for the Best Food
NO COVER CHARGE OPEN ALL NIGHT

IN CHICAGO
LINDY'S RESTAURANT
On Randolph Street
Is Home, Sweet Home, to the Profession
A Good Place to Eat and Meet

HOTEL LORRAINE
CHICAGO
SINGLE ROOM, BATH, $2.00 UP
DOUBLE ROOM, BATH, $17.50 AND $21.00 WEEKLY
DOUBLE WITHOUT BATH, $14.00 WEEKLY
LEONARD HICKS, President

HOLLYWOOD and Los Angeles

"Variety's" Office, 6282 Hollywood Boulevard, at Vine Street (Taft Bldg.)

Phone Hollywood 6141

Al Bridge is producing and acting in "She Had to Marry," going into the Vine Street. Bridge was formerly an agent here.

Another new band at the Blossom Room. Hale ("Pee Wee") Byers and his boys, who come from New York.

The following assignments were made at the Coast studios last week:

Mary Doran, "Basquerie," Fox.
Crauford Kent, "Squadrons," Fox.
Holmes Herbert, "Single Sin," Tiff.

Robert Ames, one picture for Radio.

Mildred Harris, "Night Nurse," Warners.

Thelma Todd, Harry Askt, "June Moon," Par.

Lewis Stone, "All Women Are Bad," Fox.

Dell Henderson, "The Easiest Way," Metro.

Mary Doran, "This Modern World," Fox.

Ann Brody, "Drums of Jeopardy," Tiffany.

Frank McHugh, "Fires of Youth," Universal.

Adolphe Menjou, Marcelle Corday, French "Let Us Be Gay," Metro.

Charles McNaughton, "The Single Sin," Tiffany.

Catherine Dale Owen, "Private Secretary," Radio.

Roy Neill to direct "Joaquin Murrietta," Columbia.

George Brent, untitled picture at Fox starting Dec. 26.

Walter Huston is under consideration for "The Idol."

Soledad Gimenez, Spanish version "Resurrection," U.

Tom Kennedy, Sally Blaine, No. 10 of Slim Summerville shorts, U.

Vivian Oakland, Gertrude Astor and James Towne Hall, "A Man's Past," Pathe.

Raymond Griffith has turned to writing. He is at First National awaiting his first assignment.

George Irving, Emerson Tracey, Eddie Nugent and Helen Jerome Eddy, "Girls Demand Excitement," Fox.

Louis Wolheim, Anita Page, John Miljan, Marie Prevost, George Cooper and George Marion, "Gentlemen's Fate," Metro.

Johnny Collins, in the agency field here for several months, closed his office last week.

Olympic Fields, Beverly Hills minnie golf course, is in the hands of its creditors. Bankruptcy proceedings were started by its femme angel.

The Hippodrome Co., operating a grind and vaude house on Main street, and owned 99.997% by Adolph Ramish, Inc., has been sued by Claude I. Parker for $750 for income tax advice.

West Coast division of Publix will be least disturbed, if disturbed at all, in present Publix realignment on operations.

C. C. Perry, divisional director for entire Pacific coast, taking in California, Oregon, Washington and bordering inland states, will remain in New York headquarters, according to information here, which kills previous reports.

Permit to build an $800,000 business and theatre building at Wilshire and Western was issued last week to the William Simpson Corp., constructing for the Serrano Corporation. Warners will operate.

ST. PAUL

By GEORGE N. BRADBURY

Met—"Death Takes a Holiday."
Paramount—"Tom Sawyer."
R-K-O Orpheum—"Tolable David"; vaude.
Shubert—"Hell Bent for Heaven" (stock).
Riviera—"Life of Party."
R-K-O President—"Sin Takes a Holiday."
Tower—"Heads Up."
Strand—"Bright Lights."

20th Century revue at Orpheum played the Hotel Lowry Terrace cafe as floor show one nite. Hotel staged party for artists and in addition sent Ted Weems and onto the Orpheum stage Friday night for an act to return the compliment. Scored both ways.

Mezzanine of Paramount converted into toy shop by local department store with small gifts for all kids from Santa.

Biggest draw in town is the courts. Sheriff forced to put on extra bailiffs to marshall great army of jobless which rocks into seven courtrooms here every day to see the free shows.

Joe Haymes left his own M. C. A. band at Atlantic City to join Weems band here this week as arranger.

NEW HAVEN

By H. M. BONE

Shubert—Ruth Draper (2nd half).
Hyperion—Dark.
Roger Sherman—"Doorway to Hell."
Fox-Poli—"Lightnin'," E. & M. Idea.
Paramount—"Morocco," Publix Unit.
Fox-Bijou—"Tolable David."

The Shubert feeling usual pre-Xmas jolt. House dark all last week, with only a single split week booking in sight.

Ernest Gann, student at Yale Drama School, removed to a hospital with injuries caused by the falling of a piano at the University Theatre.

The Fox thrift book idea has hit local theatres.

Pee-wee golf making stab to compete with show-houses. One of the biggest courses now offers 9 holes for 15c, while a second is carrying on a direct-mail campaign to responsible business men, enclosing Oakleys good for introductory game.

SYRACUSE

By CHESTER B. BAHN

Keith's—"The Pay-Off"; vaude.
Loew's State—"Remote Control."
Warner's Strand—"River's End."
Paramount—"Morocco."
Fox-Eckel—"The Cat Creeps."
Syracuse—Vaudfilm.
Dewitt—Newsreels.

Syracuse neighborhood houses will not follow the example of mid-west independents and kill the double feature policy. In all, say second runs, double features are the accepted thing here.

For the first time in the theatre's history, the Paramount was forced to add an extra night show Friday to accommodate patrons jamming the lobby. Last audience remained in their seats until 1:15 a. m.

Morris Shulman, former manager Fox-Eckel, here, and now at the Colonial, Utica, will enter a local hospital this week for a serious throat operation.

Donald Goff, for some time assistant manager of the Paramount, resigned Saturday. Robert Purcell, formerly of the Eastman staff, becomes acting assistant.

Advertising of "R-K-O entertainment" in the display copy of Emil and Will's Happy Days, new downtown eatery, led to an investigation by the local Keith house, and a report to New York headquarters.

MINNEAPOLIS

Metropolitan—Dark.
Lyceum—Dark.
Shubert—"Broken Dishes" (Bainbridge stock).
Minnesota—"Morocco"; "Hello Paris" (Publix Unit).
R-K-O Orpheum—"Big Money", Vaude.
Gayety—"The Crackerjacks" (Stock Burlesque).
Century—"Hell's Angels" (3rd week).
State—"Derelict."
R-K- Seventh Street—"Sin Takes A Holiday," (2nd loop week.),
Lyric—"Fast and Loose."
Pantages—"Extravagance."
Aster—"A Devil With Women."
Grand—"Madam Satan." (2nd loop run.)

Portal Players (local little theatre) will present "God of Vengeance" as its initial offering of season.

Although Merle Potter, Journal drama critic, gave it his highest rating and much praise, "White Hell of Pitz Palu" will not get into any of the loop houses. Public is giving it its first and only run at the Uptown (neighb) this week.

The Juvenile Repertory Co. continues to good business at the Little Theatre. "Monsieur Beaucaire" current offering.

The only road show in sight is Theatre Guild's "A Month in the Country" (Nazimova) at the Lyceum New Year's week.

One night stand of religion forum with Clarence Darrow featured, at the Municipal Auditorium at 75c to $2 scale, grossed more than $7,500.

With York and King on R. K. O. Orpheum bill the vaude this week cut to three acts.

LOUISVILLE

By M. W. HALL

Alamo—"Little Accident."
Brown—"Sin Takes a Holiday."
Mary Anderson—"The Widow from Chicago."
National—"The Squealer" and E. & M. "Smiles" idea on stage.
Rialto—"Morocco."
Slute—"Hell's Angels."
Strand—"Lightnin'."

Fire destroyed a large barn in the winter quarters of the John Robinson Circus at Peru, Ind., near here, last week causing an estimated loss of $140,000. No injuries, but some difficulty in saving all of the circus herd of horses and trained dogs.

"Street Scene," road show current for three days. Opened Monday at K. of C. Auditorium.

Police searching for William Tarcents, 21, employee of the Savoy theatre, who disappeared with $237 of the theatre's funds while en route to the bank. C. B. Blake, house manager, could not account for the disappearance of the youth, who has worked for him for several years.

Madrid, ritz ballroom, now charges 50c admission instead of $1.

Rumors about a stock company are pretty quiet since eight local banks went fizz.

E. A. Jonas, dramatic critic, and Francis E. Wyle, dramatic editor, of the "Herald-Post," had their salaries cut 50% along with all other "H-P" employees excepting the union men. Sheet has lost at rate of around $250,000 annually for some time.

OAKLAND, CALIF.

By WOOD SOANES

Roxie, formerly Dufwin, opened under the direction of American Theatres, Ltd., with Mike Newman in charge.

"Whoopee" first at 20c mat and 50c evenings. Considerable cut under the Fox-Oakland, chief West Coast house, despite Dufwin seats under 1,500.

Work has started on the new Paramount, 4,000-seater to be built at Hobart and Broadway, in the region of the Fox-Oakland, at a stipulated price of $3,000,000, including furnishings. The Paramount purchased the site some time ago at a time when Warner Brothers contemplated a luxury house adjacent.

Vitaphone closed for repairs and remodelling. Naify denied rumors house had been taken over by West Coast and said he will reopen Christmas day playing Warner pictures and filling in with open market purchases.

Fulton also closed, to reopen Christmas day with a new stock. Norman Field, veteran member of the company will be retained as will Marian Burns, recently acquired leading woman. George Fbey is in Los Angeles looking over talent.

MONTREAL

His Majesty's—"Love Thieves" (legit).
Palace—"Morocco."
Capitol—"Three French Girls."
Loew's—"The Squealer."
Princess—"Up the River."
Imperial—"Numbered Men."
Roxy—Double bill.
Strand—Double bill.
Empress—Double bill.
Orpheum—Stock.

Eugene Beaulac for 18 years with "La Canada," French language paper here, has been appointed chairman Province of Quebec Board of Moving Picture Censors, succeeding Marquis de Roussy de Sales, retired. Beaulac very popular here. Film men hoping for better break than understanding of films, now that native-born Canadian has the job.

Eddie English, Famous-Lasky manager here, engineered send-off banquet to Harry S. Dahn, Capitol manager, promoted district manager, Famous Players, for Ontario.

Gene Curtis, New Haven, succeeds Harry Dahn as manager Capitol.

Film theatres suffering as much as any other biz by depression, are doing bit toward alleviating unemployment. Loew's given to Musicians' Union for Wednesday's show (10). Other big main stems to follow suit this and next month.

Lou Tellegen and French company coming from Paris shortly to give season of French plays. Similar ventures in past have flopped here.

BRONX, N. Y. C.

After the first few days, newspaper ads of "Unguarded Girls," sex film at the America, got too sexy. "The Home News," local daily, pulled them out. No business, anyhow for the house.

This is perhaps the only part of the country where the minnie golf craze still holds. Cold weather is making the outdoor courses impracticable, most of the minnie course operators have taken to cover. What's worse, they've added ping pong in almost every instance.

Loew may install a Spanish-language musical stock troupe at the 116th street theatre, in the heart of the "Spick" colony. San Jose, formerly the 110th street theatre, phenom money-maker with this policy.

INDIANAPOLIS

By EDWIN V. O'NEEL

English's—"Sex."
Loew's Palace—"Hell's Angels."
Apollo—"Lightnin'."
Indiana—"The Cat Creeps."
Circle—"Sunny."
Lyric—"East Is West"; R-K-O vaude.

"Buster," alias "Joe Mendi II," whisked to jail on attachment proceedings for $1,000 purchase price. Mrs. Irene Lee, of Long Island, mother of the film stars, Catherine and June Lee, filed complaint, alleging Lou Bechenstoc had failed to pay anything on the purchase price.

"Love's Magic" presented by Mortonian Players.

St. Vincent's Hospital nurses presented "The Divine Reward," under directorship of Mrs. George Foerderer, proceeds to charity.

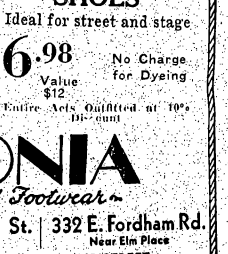
Robert Mathers and Dorothy Sereos played lead in "The Goose Hangs High," presented by Butler University dramatic club.

Henry Maddux and Roy Bartlett, St. Louis, sentenced 10 years for kidnapping and robbing Maurice Magers, Alamo manager.

"Colonel Satan," the new play by Booth Tarkington, local author, to open at English's, Jan. 5, with Mc-Kay Morris in cast. Other bookings announced by Manager Roltaire Eggleston: Dec. 15, "House of Fear"; Jan. 1, "Strictly Dishonorable"; 12, "Death Takes a Holiday"; 15, Pade-rewski; 26, "Young Sinners"; Feb. 12, "Artists and Models"; 23, "The Tavern"; 26, "Hello Paris"; March 9, "Sketch Book," and 11, "Street Singer."

Guerrini & Co
The Leading and Largest ACCORDION FACTORY in the United States
The only Factory that makes any set of Reeds — made by hand
277-279 Columbus Avenue
San Francisco, Cal.
Free Catalogues

Dorothea Antel
226 W. 72d St.
New York City
The Sunshine Shoppe



THEATRICAL CUTS
THE STANDARD ENGRAVING CO. Inc.
225-227 E. 45th St. NEW YORK, N.Y.

DARING! DIFFERENT! ORIGINAL!
Always the Hit of the Show!
Costumes That Click
For Rent, Sale or Manufactured to Your Design
For Prices
Wire or Write HARRY BOURNE
CARE
FANCHON & MARCO COSTUME CO.
643 SO. OLIVE ST., LOS ANGELES, CAL.

I. MILLER
INSTITUTION INTERNATIONALE
Shoes for the Stage and Street
SHOWFOLK'S SHOESHOP—1552 BROADWAY

FAMOUS STEIN BOOKLET FREE
"HOW TO MAKE UP"
Complete instruction in the "Art of Make-Up" for amateur and professional use. Straight roles, character roles, etc. 16 pages in color. Free to anyone. Write
STEIN COSMETIC CO.
Dept. 50, 51 Madison Ave., N.Y.

RUSSIAN BOOTS
Created by
ANSONIA
Originators, and Still the Foremost Boot Stylists in America

New Winter Styles
6.98 Vol. $12
In All Smart Materials and Combinations
TAP-DANCING SHOES
Ideal for street and stage
6.98 Value $12
No Charge for Dyeing
Entire Acts Outfitted at 10% Discount
ANSONIA
~Hand Turned Footwear~
1650 Broadway Cor. 51st St. | 124 W. 34th St. Opp. Macy's | 332 E. Fordham Rd. Near Elm Place
PHILADELPHIA STORE, 1130 CHESTNUT STREET

SAN FRANCISCO

By WALTER RIVERS

Richard Marshall, former general manager for Henry Duffy and recently engaged to operate the Tivoli as a stock house for Ackerman & Harris has taken over that theatre from A. & H. and with associates. Stock policy with weekly change planned.

Pee Wee golf courses dying out fast here. Only a few elaborate places still operating successfully.

William B. Wagnon has turned back the Embassy to Dan Markowitz from whom Wagnon leased the house. The latter will offer first run indie features. Wagnon continues to operate the Marion Davies theatre with Abe Markowitz directing. Wagnon said to be dickering to turn this one back to the original lessee, Universal Films.

DALLAS

By RUDY DONAT

Majestic—"Sin Takes a Holiday" vaude.
Palace—"Morocco"; stage show.
Melba—"Sally."
Old Mill—"Sea Legs."
Capitol—"Night Work."
Fair Park—"Strange Interlude"; "Cherries Are Ripe" (legit).

"Min and Bill" was ace draw for Publix-Palace, with "Passion Flower" second at Publix-Melba. "Cat Creeps" at Majestic and "Brothers" for Capitol slipped R-K-O out of b. o. lead held by heavy features past month.

"Hell's Angels" booked for Melba week Jan. 10.

Fair Park Auditorium's (muny) first week of legit for more than year good, Banky-LaRocque combine in "Cherries Are Ripe" and "Strange Interlude" road show drawing at $3 per.

Ray Stinnett and Eph Charninsky, operating Palace, San Antonio, ace indie stand in Texas, dropped plans for suburban here.

Publix doctoring its classy suburban, Arcadia. House barely holding on at 35c top, 2d runs, with most suburbans sticking to 20c.

MILWAUKEE

By FRANK J. MILLER

Alhambra—"Min and Bill."
Davidson—"House of Fear" (legit).
Garden—"Hell's Angels" (3d week).
Gayety—Burlesque.
Majestic—"Last of the Lone Wolf."
Pabst—"A Month in the Country" (N. Y. Theatre Guild).
Palace-Orpheum—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (2d week).
Riverside—"Silver Horde"; vaude.
Strand—"Tom Sawyer."
Wisconsin—"Sea Legs"; Fanchon & Marco "Southern" Idea.

For the first time in many years a Milwaukee newspaper took editorial exception to a theatrical offering when the "Sentinel" rapped Mae West in "Sex," at the Davidson. The town's only morning paper told Mae to take her show to the waterfront and invited the police to look in on the proceedings.

In a letter to the "Journal" a reader complained about burlesque censorship when "Sex" was allowed to run wild.

Milwaukee Woman's Club is going to put an end to spooning in dark theatre balconies. Following a meeting at the Hotel Schroeder, committees were appointed to look into the report that many young couples were sitting in balcony seats principally because there was more of an opportunity for hand holding or even a kiss in the dark. At any rate, it's not at all to the liking of the ladies, who are up in arms and are going to swing the club of the club women until it is done away with.

SEATTLE

By DAVE TREPP

Metropolitan—"Lulu Belle"; Bainbridge Players, stock.
Orpheum—"Sin Takes a Holiday" vaude.
Liberty—"Bright Lights."
Fifth Avenue—"Oh, for a Man"; stage.
Paramount—"Morocco."
Blue Mouse—"Big Money."
Music Box—"Hell's Angels."
Fox—"Big Trail" (2d week).
Columbia—"Spoilers."

Arthur Clausen, former musical director for Paramount theatre now same for Moore theatre.

Moore theatre staff includes A. G. Bainbridge, president and treasurer; E. C. Bostick, vice-president and secretary; Carl Reiter, business manager; Hugh M. Caldwell, former mayor of Seattle, legal advisor; Kent Thomson, theatre treasurer; Charles Bostick, assistant treasurer; Roy Pinkham, stage manager.

H. B. Shaffer now assistant to Jim Clemmer at Fifth avenue, succeeding Frank J. McCormick.

Club Victor, owned by Vic Meyers, has added floor show. People include Mary Dunn, pictures; Jerry Jarrett, with "New Moon," which disbanded here, and Moseman and Vance, dance team. Biz on the climb.

LETTERS

When Sending for Mail to VARIETY, Address Mail Clerk.

POSTCARDS ADVERTISING OR CIRCULAR LETTERS WILL NOT BE ADVERTISED

LETTERS ADVERTISED IN ONE ISSUE ONLY

Berg Mae	Lee Martin B
Blolosky Helen
Brewer Ernie	Marjorie W J
Bryant Molly	Mc'Coy Beth
Burke Sylvia	Murphy J A
Davies Wm Arthur	Ramsey Edna
Di Domenico Joseph	Repesky Anita
Farrell Thomas D	Sheerin Jean
Fields Harry	Sherman Edward C
	Siloat John
Greene Dorothy
Greene Ethel	Toy Mary
La Rive Ethel	Vernon Irene

CHICAGO OFFICE

Anderson Lucille	Jones Davez
Bell Maryon	Monroe Jack
Billison Billie	Myers Tim
Forbee Bros	Offerman Geo
Gilbert Bert	Robertson Mrs. L E
Harrison Mrs. Leicester	Smith Rex
Hughes & Manning	White Bob
	White Mrs J F

Obituary

(Continued from page 68)

talkers when he went to Hollywood and wrote dialog and special material.

Interment in New York.

CHARLES LOGAN

Charles Logan, 56, known professionally as Charles Montgomery La Vonna, died of complications at the American hospital, Chicago, Dec. 4. His first wife was Betty Montgomery, a sister of Rae Samuels.

He is survived by his widow and two children, living in Pittsburgh, Pa. Funeral at Chicago, Dec. 6.

WILLIAM DELMORE

William O. Sesse, 61, known professionally as William Delmore, died of cancer in Chicago Dec. 1. Mr. Delmore was an acrobat and appeared with the Liu Nette sisters for sometime. Interment in Old Forest cemetery, Dec. 3.

His widow and mother survive.

RAY FERN

Ray Fern, 44, of the vaude team of Fern and Maree, died Nov. 19 of heart disease at home in Philadelphia. He had been in show business since 1907.

Mrs. Fern (Maree) and parents survive.

JOSEPH BUCKLEY

Joseph Buckley, 55, actor with Radio Pictures, was killed Dec. 2 when his car was struck by an electric freight tram at a Van Nuys crossing.

Eugene Goss, 28, theatre manager at Waterville, Me. died last week of pneumonia. He was manager of the Maine theatre in Portland, Me. during the early part of 1930 and transferred later to Haine's theatre in Waterville. He was the son of ex-Mayor and Mrs. Henry E. Goss of Auburn, N. Y.

Mrs. William H. Conboy, wife of the manager of Luna Park, Hull, Can. (Quebec), dropped dead in Buffalo, N. Y., where she had gone to attend the funeral of her father, Walter C. Mason, former sports writer of Buffalo.

Ida Irene Ackerman, at one time treasurer at the Bijou theatre, the DeKalb, and last with Werba's Brooklyn, died recently in Amityville, L. I.

William Stuart Adams, 38, cameraman, died Dec. 3 in Hollywood, Cal., from fever contracted in Borneo on location for Universal's "White Captive."

William Connell, 60 (colored), for 17 years night watchman at both Palace theatres in Chicago, died Nov. 28 of heart disease.

Mother of Tom Wilson, former actor, died Dec. 1 in Hollywood.

The father of James and Mercer Templeton died last week.

Paris Arrests

Exporters of obscene books largely responsible for the increased local export book trade, are currently being hounded by the police.

Arrest took place of two exporters of obscene books and films to North and South America, one said to represent an American firm. Representatives of the United States and Argentine police were present.

Rodeos' Popularity

(Continued from page 68)

seems to want to be a broncho rider and rope spinner.

Towns like Newark, N. J., produce as high as 5,000 kids always milling about the grounds. A rodeo in these sort of spots means an epidemic of clothes line stealing, with all kids collecting every available piece of rope.

An American Sport

A limited number of big business men in America are also staunch rodeo fans, with many traveling about with troupes for weeks.

The present tie-up being used by rodeos, that lays claim to the fact the rodeo is the only real true American sport left today is having its effects on the spreading and increased attendance.

Life of the average rodeo rider and follower is about six years. After that it is claimed they are burned out from the tough abuse they take from the horses and steers. All pop rodeo riders today go in for extreme fancy clothing, a strict change from the early days, when old duds were worn.

Women riders have been receiving some attention the last few years, but many figure the game so tough few women care to play it. Riders who have left the game say there is no known form of sport or amusement that requires such a tough physical makeup as that required to throw steers and ride bucking horses for exhibition purposes.

PEACHES PAID ALLEN

(Continued from page 39)

Justice McGeehan, before whom the case is being heard with a jury in the Supreme Court, adjourned the trial.

Keith Franchise

Questioned by her own attorney George J. Langley, regarding a promissory note Allen gave her on Dec. 7, 1928, Mrs. Browning said that Allen told her that he was trying to raise money to open a booking office. He had obtained a Keith franchise, he explained, according to the witness, and would be able to book acts into Keith houses.

She lent him the money on a six-month note. When the note was deposited for collection it was returned to her. A long series of checks and notes, many of them undated and totaling some $4,500 was then identified. Mr. Langley brought out that these were all loans from Mrs. Browning to her manager. Presumably this amount was in addition to the $200 a week he withheld from her earnings as his salary.

Mrs. Caroline Heenan, co-defendant with her daughter, was the first defense witness. She said that her daughter was born June 23, 1910. Mrs. Heenan was interrogated by David Haar, Allen's lawyer, as to her source of support. Said she was being supported by her daughter and, in answer to questions, said that she is not living with her husband. Her daughter's income during 1928 came entirely from vaudeville, she said. Prior to that time Mrs. Browning "had been married," she explained, saying that her daughter married Edward W. (Daddy) Browning April 10, 1926.

Mrs. Browning took the stand following her mother and, after some difficulty in removing her tight black gloves, was sworn. She said she lived at 220 East 79th street, the address given by her mother. Her vaudeville work was managed by Marvin Welt until March, 1928, when Welt went to Europe, she said. At that time she was booked up to July 8, 1928.

Allen approached her in June, 1928, she said, told her he was unemployed and asked if he might act as her agent. She testified his compensation was discussed and she agreed to pay him $200 a week.

Earned $41,000

Mrs. Browning said that the figures of her earnings, as given by an accountant who compiled her income tax statements, were substantially correct. The accountant testified earlier that her earnings during the time Allen was her manager were about $41,000. The accountant had testified that no mention of any compensation to Allen had been made in her income tax report and that no copies of Form 1099 covering salaries paid to employees had been made out. Allen had asked her not to report his salary, she said, because he was involved in civil suits, and his wife was suing for alimony. Allen assured her that no trouble would come of her failure to report her payments to him, Mrs. Browning said.

Allen Testifies

Allen was the first witness of the trial. He avoided looking at the defendant. The defendant did not sit at the counsel table, called to the stand from the rear of the courtroom where she sat among a score of girls.

Allen, who gave his address as 264 West 59th street and said he was an "artists representative" with offices at 1560 Broadway, testified he was employed as her manager by Mrs. Browning on a 25% basis. He pointed out that the job of protecting Mrs. Browning's interests was more difficult than the ordinary duties of a "artists representative" because under her contracts she was to receive 50% of all over the average business of each theatre in which she played. This required the presence of her manager at the box office practically all of the time that the act was playing.

Allen testified that he had traveled with the act and that he had performed all of the regular duties of a manager. This was conceded by Mr. Langley.

French Disdain

(Continued from page 6)

unless they control theatres, films and their best product is frozen out.

The value of film exports to General American economy cannot be over-estimated, but the bankers may well eliminate from its export department the current duplication of efforts as they have already done in other lines of American economy.

The French have already done it when practically all producers combined a few months ago to extract Robert Hurel with the distribution of their films in Canada. He succeeded to the white mane of Sidney Kent who could have faced the overhead.

Building theatres here can be done with local capital, and the cures release for American product. Good theatres are increasingly patronized. But in the general interest of American business on equal terms is no chance obtainable.

HOTELS FOR SHOW PEOPLE

YOUR NEW YORK HOME "IN THE HEART OF THEATRE LAND"
REASONABLY PRICED—PRACTICAL—ECONOMICAL
ORDER YOUR GROCERIES—YOU'RE HOME
LANDSEER APARTMENTS
245 W. 51st STREET 9 STORY Modern Fireproof
2-3-4 ROOM SUITES—Furnished From $115.00 UP MONTHLY

OWNER-MANAGEMENT UNDER the PERSONAL SUPERVISION of CHARLES TENENBAUM
245 W. 51st St. NEW YORK
Telephone Columbus 8950

Phone: LONGACRE 6805 GEO. P. SCHNEIDER, Prop.
THE BERTHA FURNISHED APARTMENTS
COMPLETE FOR HOUSEKEEPING. CLEAN AND AIRY.
325 West 43rd Street NEW YORK CITY
Private Bath, 3-4 Rooms. Catering to the comfort and convenience of the profession.
STEAM HEAT AND ELECTRIC LIGHT. $15.00 UP Mrs. Jackson now in charge

The Charlotte Cushman Club, Inc.
No. 1 MARLBOROUGH STREET, BOSTON, MASS. Close to All Theatres
Rates: Single Room $18, $19, $20. Double Rooms, Single Beds, $17, $18, $19. Three and four in room, single beds, $15-$16. This includes meals, coffee and rolls, 8 to 10 a. m. Served in room if desired. Full Breakfast, 12 noon. Dinner, 5:30 to 6:30. Supper after theatre. Annual dues, $1.00. For the actress on tour.
Address Secretary Charlotte Cushman Club. Phone Commonwealth 9155

THE CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN CLUB, Inc.
1010 SPRUCE STREET, PHILADELPHIA
CLOSE TO ALL DOWN-TOWN THEATRES
ORGANIZED IN 1907 FOR THE ACTRESS ON TOUR
RATES: Single Room, $18-$20; Double Rooms, Single Beds, $17-$18; three and four in room, single beds, $15-$16. This includes meals. Coffee and rolls, 8 to 10 A. M. served in room if desired. Full breakfast, 12 noon. Dinner, 5:30 to 6:30. Supper after theatre. For the actress on tour.
Annual Dues, $1.00. Address, Mrs. Edith S. Rice, House Secretary, 1010 Spruce Street. Phone, Pennypacker 3915

VARIETY BILLS

(Continued from page 47)

YAKIMA, WASH.
Capitol
1st half (12-14)
"Fountain of Youth"
Lottie Mayer
Baryon & Young
Frank Stever
Bob Crosby
Ed Chaney

London

Week of Dec. 8

PINSBURY PARK
Empire
Hello Folks
Hippordome
"Sons o' Guns"

NEW CROSS
Empire
The Singing Clown
STRATFORD
Empire
La Reve Parisien

PROVINCIAL

NEWCASTLE
Empire
Will Hay Co
Jose Collins
Ryden Chimee
Hendler Bros
Ando Fam
Van Dock
Short & Dalziel
Willie Gardner

SHEFFIELD
Empire
Alfredo's Bd
Gordon Ray Co
Norman Carroll
The Bostons
Burr & Hope
Marie Nyman
The Desardos
Geo Betton

CABARET BILLS

NEW YORK CITY

Barney's
Walter O'Keefe
Bobby Dolan Orch
Beaux Arts
Katherine Parsons
Roger Ferrier
Gladys Ivanova
Wilma Cox
Marlin Orch
Central Park Casino
Ethel Merman
De Marcos
Leo Reisman Orch
Chateau Madrid
Joe Lewis
Kaiki
Anne Dolan
Al Jackson Orch
Club Abbey
Jean Malin
Peggy Lennon
Billy Reed
Betty Lloyd & Co
Club Argonaut
Texas Guinan
The Comedians
Club Chalis
Arthur Budd
James Mayo
Frankie Fay
Sue Austin
Mildred & Maurice
Lew Edge Orch
Club Delmonico
Morton Downey
Jack Berch Orch
Club Lido
Libby Holman
Moss & Fontana
Ribey Brooks Orch
Connie's Inn
Ada Ward
Edith Wilson
Connie Orch
Lu Fisher
Dotty Rhodes
F Henderson Orch
Cotton Club
Isabelle Washington
Maude Russell
Sherman Robinson
Lelha Hill
Mordecai & Taylor
Swan & Lee
Henri Woods
Duke Ellington Or
El Patio
Ramon & Rosita
Elena Zaldivar
Emil Coleman Orch
Hollywood
Marion Sasch
John & Mary Mason
Soviet Sis
N T G Rev
Kaia Orch
Paramount Grill
Kay Lazell
Billy Lerch
Jackie Ellers
P & Patty Kendall
Aleta & Buddy
Elsen
Chas O'Connor
Benny Dane Rev
Flo Richardson Or
Salon Royal
Elizabeth Welch
Red Sweeney
Opal Cooper
Sammy Richardson
International Orch
The Nest
Hannah Sis Lester
Lottie Gee
Gwendolyn Percy
Clyde Parks
Marion Sis 3
Villa Vallee
Eddie Peabody
Rudy Vallee Orch

What Abel Green in VARIETY said:

Nov. 26, 1930

CARTHAY CIRCLE

(Lyman's Band)

Los Angeles, Nov. 20.

"Abe Lyman's crack band, playing out their old contract with a new term not commencing until after the first of year, readily explains FWC's eagerness to secure this aggregation's services indefinitely. Lyman's is unquestionably the best stage band west of the Rockies and has a presentation which, while necessarily limited on the conventional rising rostrum, would give keen competition to kindred versatile combinations which have greater stage leeway.

The Lyman appeal is strictly on its extraordinary arrangements. Here's the paradox of a band which requires no versatility fanfare nor hokum to impress. In his arrangers, Herb Taylor, Arthur Johnston and himself, Lyman possesses his band's primary assets, excepting, of course, the team's basic skill as instrumentalists.

Lyman, through three recent changes of features—"Holiday," "Just Imagine" and now "Min and Bill"—has evidenced a consistency along these lines which, if it were feasible, might be an excellent pattern for contemporary stage bands.

The Lyman act opened with "Body and Soul," the English oddly rhythmed piece, out of which Lyman gets variations and graduations which will surprise Jack Hylton, who originally "started" and featured the piece all over Europe. Skin Young's vocalization is ever effective.

In Ted Dale, the xylophonist, Lyman has not only a soloist of merit but a genuine personality. Phil Neeley and Vern Bushway also figured in specialties."

Abel.

ABE LYMAN

and his

INTERNATIONAL BAND

INDEFINITELY

CARTHAY CIRCLE, LOS ANGELES

Brunswick Records

SCREEN | HOLLYWOOD | BROADWAY | STAGE

VARIETY

PRICE 25¢

Published Weekly at 154 West 46th St., New York, N. Y., by Variety, Inc. Annual subscription, $10. Single copies, 25 cents. Entered as second-class matter December 22, 1905, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.
COPYRIGHT, 1930, BY VARIETY, INC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED
VOL. 101. No. 1 NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1930 64 PAGES

WORLD'S ICIEST AUDIENCE

Gigolos at 15c a Dance or $2.80 The Hour in Broadway Dancehall

The gigolo has made his appearance in the American dance hall. Headquarters have been established in a Broadway spot. The gigs are on tap for 15 cents a dance, or three dances for 35 cents. "Hosts," they are called in this hoofing spot.

Lonely ladies who could never be sure of a dance partner before can have an evening's whirl, if they have the price. Six young men are available at this ballroom. A girl who doesn't rate an invita-

(Continued on page 35)

Decantied Redskins Parading Hollywood As Biz Stimulators

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

The stoical Indian maidens have gone in for sex appeal a la Hollywood. The braves are doing likewise.

It's common to see a couple of musking Americans dressed in Indian finery, according to the best picture traditions. The maidens have on a bit more than a revue Indian, while the braves wear as little wampum as is permissable.

Return of the Indian here is not brought about by western pictures but by the opening of numerous stores specializing in Indian apparel and furnishings.

Parade of the Redskins along the boulevard is calculated to make boulevardiers and tourists Indian [illegible]. Many film people have

(Continued on page 46)

Steam Heated Show Boat To Play Winter Tour

Pittsburgh, Dec. 16.

Captain J. W. Menke, owner of the Golden Rod Show Boat, is to open his floating palace tomorrow night (Wednesday) for a winter engagement.

Menke has equipped the Golden Rod with steam heat, will seal his house at the regular summer figures, $1 top, and opens with "Tilly Ann."

Venture at this time of season considered a gamble, but with small nut, Menke figures he can make a go of it.

Tragic Floor Show

Minneapolis, Dec. 16.

For its entertainment this week the Granada cafe, local night club, is offering a travesty, Sholem Asch's "The God of Vengeance," presented by the Pascal Players, little theatre group here. Three times per performance a night.

Management [illegible] novelty of thing to draw. Patrons sit around at tables in usual cafe fashion. Cover charge takes care of admission.

Reverse Advertising

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 16.

Advertising with reverse English to keep undesirables away from a dance was used by the Spanish War vets at Fairmount, near here, last week.

Notices inserted in the papers by the vets stated:

"Will those people who attended our last dance Tuesday, Dec. 9, please stay away this time? This means the red-headed moonshine peddler with moon on his breath and bear grease in his hair, the bald-headed lady killer, and the snooty bird with the fire escape whiskers.

"We don't want 'em or the likes of 'em."

ALL DE GREEKS AIN'T COLLEGE SHEIKS

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Recent disclosures in the newspapers, following a raid netting 400 victims, that gambling clubs and other hot joints are operating under fraternity names, has got the college boys sore. They claim the publicity hurts the standing of the real fraternities.

Operators of these gambling spots, which generally have stage entertainment, take Greek letter names to fool both public and police. The fraternal name makes

(Continued on page 35)

$2 Radio Tests

New Bedford, Mass., Dec. 16

Station WNBH has adopted the stage's amateur night idea. Everyone is invited to give his voice a tryout for a price. Each week a period will be set aside for the scheme.

To cover the operating cost a charge of $2 is made for each "test."

A CANADIAN TWIST

Weyburn, Sask., Dec. 16.

The talking picture theatre here has closed because of lack of patronage. English-speaking residents did not take kindly to the foreign accents on the screen while the local foreigners thought George Arliss was terrible.

Theatre will reopen after Christmas with silent films if possible.

COAST'S PARTY MANNERS CHILL

Dead Pans Go on Like Make-Up With the Shirt Front—But in the Studio They Act Custard Pie and Love It — Only Muggs Laugh

DESPAIR OF COMICS

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Picture people are the world's most thorough sophisticates when they're in evening dress. In business suits they are a pushover audience, but let them get into the white shirt fronts and nothing could ruffle their dead pans.

Witness the latest affair staged by the Mayfair club. This organization is the height of social scaling in picturedom. Only those that are can enter its portals.

At the latest gathering, Lowell Sherman, Roscoe Ails, Bert Wheeler and Dorothy Lee were called on for a bit of entertaining and each laid an individual egg. The Mayfairites refused to laugh or show receptiveness. James Rolph, Governor-elect, was the honored guest and had to be introduced twice before he got a hand.

But Ladies Interested

The only thing that stirred their blood was the presence of Knute

(Continued on page 35)

PICTURE PEOPLE BACK HOLLYWOOD GOLF OPEN

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Picture people are backing an open golf tourney to be held here Jan. 18 and 19. Douglas Fairbanks, Jack Warner, Harold Lloyd, Joseph Schenck and Al Jolson are the sponsors, coming across with a total of $5,000 in cash for prizes, besides a number of cups.

Play-off will be at the Lakeside Golf Club in Hollywood. Tourney comes two days after the Los Angeles $10,000 open, which assures the picture mob an entry list of ace niblick pushers.

New Kind of Ticket

Centerville, Ia., Dec. 16.

Police officers here have been equipped with two types of traffic tickets.

One admits the recipient to a place on mourner's bench in police court for violation of traffic rules. The other admits the receiver to seats in the shows of the town, and is given in recognition of careful driving.

Veterans Try Screen Comebacks As Money Tightens in Hollywood

Rough on Actors

After their backers vamped owing them three weeks' pay and the hotel had turned them out, 38 members of a tab playing New York talked the theatre into letting them stay free. They reopened on a mutual sharing plan, slept in the dressing rooms and ate now and then while dodging bills.

One day last week gross receipts were $35, and this was top. A newspaper grabbed the first $11.50 for advertising. The remainder, it was figured, would just about buy breakfast for the troupe next morning.

That night the Mayor's committee called at the theatre and asked the cast to give a benefit for the unemployed.

CAPONE IN FILM AT 200 G.'S FOR UNEMPLOYED?

A picture based on the career of Al (Scarface) Capone, with the notorious Chicago pineapple philosopher in the cast, may be started in New York shortly by a major producer, if the Hays' office closes both eyes and turns its back.

Capone is said to have set $200,000 as an agreeable price for his celluloid debut and is reported willing, even anxious, to turn the amount over to an unemployment fund. William C. Gill, agent, is handling negotiations for the benevolent philanthropist.

Edward Dean Sullivan, writer on crime subjects and currently batting out a script for Tiffany on the Coast, has been asked to write the scenario.

Eve Reservations Slow

Advance reservations for New Year's eve in the Broadway night clubs are coming in slowly with several of the better known spots asking $10 and $15 per person lacking a single booking to date.

Top price is being asked for reservations at the El Patio and the Central Park Casino, where the scale is $20 for supper. At the Club Abbey, Club Argonaut, Club Richman and Club Lido celebrators will be taxed $15. Chateau Madrid and the Club Calais are asking $10.

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

The studios have noted all of a sudden an unusual interest in work by certain free-lances who heretofore were lackadaisacal about things generally. They can only ascribe it to the tightness of the money situation locally. Closing of the Bank of Hollywood and the situation of the Guaranty Building & Loan crippled almost everybody out here.

It's for this reason that Monte

(Continued on page 38)

FOLDING OF N. Y. BANK CLIPS WINGS OF ANGELS

Although no parallel in trade effect to the crash of the Bank of Hollywood, the suspension of the Bank of United States had its effect on people in show biz. Its greatest damage, however, according to one manager, came to certain legit backers whose money was tied up when the bank shut down.

One Broadway manager says a check for backing a legit show shortly was deposited in the Bank of U. S. day before closing. Now the backer, producer and playwright are running around in circles. Through many of its clients being cloak and suit men, backing for many shows is figured to shut down.

26 Jobless Reporters In U. Newspaper Film

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Universal gave three days work to 26 unemployed newspapermen last week. Scribes worked in the city news room scene in "Fires of Youth."

Original plan was to have all local chatterers at the desks but John Lefroy Johnston, head of the publicity department, figured the jobless boys needed the money.

Dunhill Backs Show

London, Dec. 16.

The Lyric, Hammersmith, opens a season of light opera in January, the first attraction being "Titibly Towers," book by A. P. Herbert.

Music is by Thomas Dunhill, a relative of the millionaire pipe maker, who is backing the venture.

BROOKS
THE NAME YOU GO BY WHEN YOU GO TO BUY
COSTUMES
GOWNS AND UNIFORMS
1437 B'WAY, N.Y. TEL. 5580 PENN.
ALSO 25,000 COSTUMES TO RENT

Second Bank Closing Has Hollywood Hiding Dough in Safe Deposit Boxes

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

With hopes optimistic, and taking solace in that the Bank of Hollywood situation is not as pessimistic as is the present outlook of the Guaranty Building & Loan Association, which also failed to open its doors last week, the E. of H. none the less did not reopen yesterday (Monday) as was anticipated. Instead, George R. Dexter, its president, issued a formal statement that the seven days of grace allowed the bank for a reorganization plan will be extended for another few days in the hope that matters will be in a sufficiently promising condition to enable a resumption of normal business.

If not, stated the Bank of Hollywood's prexy, the loss to depositers would be small. Heretofore, in typical California spirit, statements referred to the losses, if any." The "if any" is now out.

The $8,000,000 speculations by Gilbert H. Beesemyer, secretary-manager of the Guaranty (and also chairman of the board of the B. of H.) is an even sadder mess for the Hollywoodites. Its effect has been widespread locally and safe-deposit boxes are bullish in rentals through localites' unwillingness to entrust any bank with currency.

Bouncing Paper

Checks have been bouncing back which might have been honored, because the B. of H. was yet open, but the notations, for clearing purposes, were "payment refused." No memo, as later, that it was a matter of "bank reported closed."

With other banks cognizant of the tottering condition of the B. of H., the local laws circumvented any tip-off to make withdrawals. Even those non-banking people who didn't have the advantage of the bankers in notating how checks

(Continued on page 38)

Checkmated

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

The day the Bank of Hollywood shut its doors, Harry Braxton, Hollywood art dealer and husband of Viola Brothers Shore, film writer, received a statement from a Westport (Conn.) creditor.

"Bank just failed," was scribbled at the bottom of the bill, "demand check."

Harry answered the request by postcard.

"My bank closed today," he wrote. "Check enclosed."

Name Changes if Any Notoriety for B. O. Protection

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

With picture scouts back from talent searches in legit and the hinterlands reporting an extreme scarcity of picture possibilities, producers are determined to take good care of those already lined up.

Included in the "mothering" process for youngsters showing talent is a plan to keep the potential stars free from scandal, even though unpleasant notoriety may make it necessary to pick out a new name for the affected individual and start the build-up all over again. Eventually reaching stardom by this roundabout method, the player will have a name unbesmirched by scandal, although it may not be their original designation.

Good players are scarce, scandal is too easily obtained, and picture execs realize something has to be done.

M-G Varying Gilbert Program and Hoping

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Admitting John Gilbert is the hardest player in the business to pick stories for, Metro has set his last two pictures under his present contract.

Gilbert's next is Zane Grey's western, "The Shepherd of Guadulupe," with the actor a cowboy. The final is Elmer Harris's "Stepping Out," sophisticated drama. Gilbert is now completing "Gentlemen's Fate," in which he is a tough.

MISS SEGAL'S 4 WKS.

Vivienne Segal will play four stage weeks for Warners in conjunction with "Viennese Nights" (WB), in which she is featured.

Warner booking office has not yet set the opening date.

Bee Lillie Appeals

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Beatrice Lillie's attorney, Roger Marchetti, filed an appeal Monday (15) from the court order throwing her damage suit against Warners out of court.

Demurrers of Warners, Vitagraph and Daryl Zanuck to Miss Lillie's fourth complaint were sustained without leave of further amendment.

Miss Lillie says she was damaged to the extent of $100,000 by the release as a short subject of a sequence done by her for a feature.

MARY NOLAN RESUMING

Universal City, Dec. 16.

Mary Nolan, too ill for many months to work, may be back on the U lot shortly after New Year's for a new picture. Showing improvement from her rundown condition, the U star dropped in at the studio last week.

Miss Nolan has done nothing since "Outside the Law," made early last summer.

AFTER 34 YRS.—DIVORCE

Pittsburgh, Dec. 16.

Harry Brown, veteran manager of the Nixon theatre, asked Judge Patterson in common pleas court last week to grant him a divorce from Gertrude H. Brown. Mrs. Brown contested the action, a hearing of which is to be completed next Friday.

The Browns have been married 34 years.

CLAUDIA AT RADIO

Claudia Dell, whose term contract with Warners ended last week, has been engaged by Radio.

Contract is for one picture with an option for another.

Held by Illness

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Arlene De Haas, here from New York to prepare a novelization of "East Lynn," did not leave for the east Sunday night (14) due to illness.

"The measure of a man's real character is what he would do if he knew he would never be found out."

MR. AND MRS. JACK NORWORTH
130 West 44th Street
New York

WILL MAHONEY
On Tour with Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book"

The Washington "Herald" said: "Earl Carroll's 'Sketch Book' has a number of strong points that deserve mention: first, second and third are Will Mahoney. His xylophone dance, which he calls the Mahoneyphone, is the most amazing thing I have ever seen on the stage."

Direction
RALPH G. FARNUM
1560 Broadway

PAR. WON'T LET INGENUE GO UNDERWORLD

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Lewis Milestone doesn't like Paramount's attitude over Sylvia Sidney's services. He is complaining to the Academy that he had her all set for "Front Page," but Par, which since contracted her, is holding her off.

Par's attitude is that the rough role she would be assigned in "Front Page" wouldn't jibe with the sweet ingenue innocence they're planning for her cinematic career.

Milestone's arrangements were with Miss Sidney personally and not via Howard Hughes for whom he's making the picture. Milestone has a percentage cut on "Front Page" with Hughes.

Charity Gestures

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Radio studios will feed 1,000 unemployed and their families in the studio restaurant Christmas Day. Free feed is Schnitzer's idea.

Studio is also donating the French version of "Royal Bed" for a midnight showing Dec. 27 at the Filmarte theatre, Hollywood, for the French relief. Picture will play at $2.50 top for that night only.

Mute Sidewalk Appeals Last Resort Of Foreigners Stranded on Coast

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Pathetically primitive in their wiles are the foreign girls stranded in Hollywood. Foreign men are in the same boat.

They are without knowledge of English. They have no American acquaintances. If they were important, agents would represent them. But they aren't, and there is no chance.

There is nothing for them to do but stand in front of studios and make their mute appeals physically. They accost studio workers and try desperately to make their plight of needing work obvious. Often they attract the wrong kind of attention.

In time, through contact with American layoffs, they acquire fragments of studio greetings: "Hello," and "What's new?" And quickly they come to understand the negative answers.

The life of the Iowa hopefuls hounding the studios is a picnic compared to that of the foreigners stranded in Hollywood.

Singer Hit by Loose Rock Dislodged by Truck

Julius Singer, Universal executive, is still limping from one of the most peculiar accidents on record.

Waiting to cross the street a truck bounced a dislodged cobblestone against his leg. While the muscles were wrenched severely and his sock was ripped to shreds, his trousers didn't even display any dust.

Singer will buy some more suits from the same tailor when he gets well.

BUTTERWORTH RESIGNED

Charles Butterworth has been resigned by Warners for six months with the usual options. Butterworth leaves for the Coast in February.

Butterworth, now in the road show of "Sweet Adeline," was on the Coast for Warners last season where he worked in "Life of the Party" and "...."

George Says '30 Girl Doesn't Know What's Good for Her; Too Thin Anyway

DYING GOLFIES SEEK AID OF STAGE BEAUTS

Operator of a chain of indoor minnie golf courses in New York last week asked Chorus Equity to supply him with 100 young, attractive girls from the chorus to work on commission at his courses.

Idea calls for the girls to work in a manner similar to hostesses in taxi dance halls, the girls filling out twosomes into foursomes with the stag customers and earning half the green fees received for the games in which they participate.

Indoor minnies, like the taxi dancehalls, along Broadway are now advertising 150 hostesses in hopes that the lookers will give the lonesome boys an incentive to take up the game, which has been starving for patronage.

Love-Tiff Settle

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Contractual relations between Tiffany and Montagu Love, dating back two years, is about to be adjusted with both parties dividing the score.

Love recently started suit for $1,750 against Tiffany, contending he had an old contract which was never validated. When Tiff's lawyers got around to the case it was discovered that Love's alleged contract was never signed.

Meanwhile, Love won out on his other claim that Tiffany owed him a picture on another and unfulfilled agreement. This was conceded by the studio and Love will be played off in a forthcoming picture. He is now appearing in a New York show.

Critic Abed Previews Films on Portable Set

Cleveland, Dec. 16.

Frank Hines, manager of the R-K-O Palace, moved an entire portable talker equipment over to George Davis, new in the hospital, so that the crippled newspaper critic could review the latest talkers from his bed side.

"Africa Speaks" (Col) and "Scarlet Pages" (WB) were screened for the reviewer, who had to break a couple of legs before he got famous.

Experiment was so successful that Hines is now planning to preview talkers each week in the hospital for Davis.

Aaronson and Durkin As Chi Stage Names

Chicago, Dec. 16.

Aaronson's Commanders will play the Chicago theatre week of Jan. 16. Because of the high salary the outfit will not play the outlying spots, going instead from here to Detroit.

Junior Durkin, kid picture star, comes into the Chicago a week later.

WEATHER

Washington, Dec. 16.

The Weather Bureau furnished the following outlook for week beginning today:

Fair and warmer Wednesday. Thursday cloudy and warmer with rain in western sections. Friday fair in west, rain in eastern section. Saturday increasing cloudiness, probably with rain.

Paris, Dec. 16.

Weather is moderate, but Paris is muddy after the floods. Conditions discourage trade in addition to pre-Christmas influence.

Smith's Phoney Ulcers

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Pete Smith is expected back at Metro before Christmas.

Seriously ill for some time and away from studio nearly three months, the publicity chief from late reports is recovering nicely and has nothing to worry about. The ulcers he thought he had didn't materialize.

"Pardon me for not getting up." The swaddled figure lying upon the dressing room cot was speaking. It was George Bancroft, the charming brute-nian of pictures.

"Are you ill, Mr. Bancroft?"

"No, no. The change in the weather. You know—I'm just exercising a little care." He pulled the blanket across his strapping chest.

"I just gargled," he said to his manager.

"That's right, George. By the way, there are a couple of people downstairs who want to see you."

"How can I?" the brute-man asked petulantly. "I'd love to, but I must have some rest. In two hours I go on again. You know I can't see anyone."

"All right, George."

"Six shows a day," the brute sighed. "You can imagine what it is," he said to Variety's sobbie.

"Must be very tiring."

"Why, I am just wringing, sopping wet. Wringing, sopping wet."

"Of course it must be awful to have people wanting to see you every minute."

"I would love to see them all, but I can't. Why, the other night when I came out of the theatre some man grabbed me and kept me standing in the rain. He recognized me from my pictures. I said to him, 'Please get into the cab with me and let me get out of the rain.' " The charming brute sighed faintly, and pulled the blanket around his neck.

"Do you think that ladies like brutes, Bancroft?" sobbie asked.

He couldn't answer this because as a matter of fact he is an amiable one-woman man himself. However, he told at length what brutes like in ladies.

"I don't like these thin little figures that the girls have today," George said, sitting up in bed and forgetting his ills, "especially when long skirts cover up their legs. Why, they look like little girls playing grown-up. When the legs are covered, they have nothing to show. Anyway, I don't like those figures. Little flat tummies—nothing to sell."

They're So Thin

"If the girls insist on being so thin the picture people ought to dress them differently for the screen. If they only could drape the long dresses around them so they would look as though they had some shape, and then let the dresses be short in spots so that the legs could peek through—the girls might have some appeal. The girls today haven't much of anything anyhow, and when they cover up their legs they have nothing.

"It's a shame, too," George con-

(Continued on page 34)

SCHENCK'S CALIENTE BID

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Joseph M. Schenck is trying to become a member of the Agua Caliente racing syndicate.

He is already a partner in hotel properties there.

SAILINGS

Jan. 7 (London to New York) Maurice Chevalier, Yvonne Vallee, Tom E. Hearn (Paris).

Jan. 3 (Berlin to New York) Heinrich George, Gustav Diesel (Europa).

Dec. 21 (Vancouver & Sidney)—Tom Holt, David Bloomberg, Alan Mills, Arthur Higgens (Monowai).

Dec. 17 (Paris to New York) Clayton Sheehan (Bremen).

Dec. 16 (Paris to New York), Tiffany Twins, Jack Powell (Olympic).

Dec. 16 (Paris to New York) Pete and Mrs. King (Paris).

Dec. 16 (London to New York) Kid Berg, Sol Gold, his manager (Olympic).

Dec. 16 (Paris to New York) Helen Maginnis (Leviathan).

Dec. 16 (London to New York), Billy Pierce, Clarence (Buddy) Bracey (Paris).

Dec. 15 (New York to London), Sydney Hayden (Europa).

Dec. 13 (New York to London)—Arthur Sinclair, Maire O'Neill (Majestic).

Dec. 13 (Los Angeles to New York), Ronald Colman (California).

Dec. 12 (Sydney to Vancouver), Edith Tallafer, H. Jamison (Orangi).

Dec. 2 (Capetown to London) Joan Denton, Leslie Latimer, Stewart West, Larler Lister (for Olga Lindo Co.) Arundel Castle.

NEW FIGHT ON SEX TITLES

Stars Soft Shoe Around N. Y. to Dodge Possible "Chill" and "Touches"

Screen celebs visiting New York are making a practice of keeping their presence at theatre and night clubs as inconspicuous as possible.

The film celebs are shying away from ringside tables, insisting that their respective parties desire the same privacy as accorded the average night club patron. Stars have also sent word along to layoff the usual flowery introductions and the customary demand for a big hand for the prominent guests.

There are two reasons for this evidently sincere attempt by the picture people to be shielded from finger pointers. One is that any flicker luminary who lays claims to intelligence is smart enough not to put the test of his or her popularity up against a sophisticated Broadway night club congregation. This element, that has been everywhere and seen everything, is mainly concerned with its own affairs and the entrance of a screen star, with his or her retinue, leaves them cold. But the reappearance of a former big spender, who has been missing from the night clubs during the past few months, is now watched for and considered of primary importance as indicating a turn for the better in business conditions.

In addition, those picture stars who usually make the rounds of the class clubs as soon as they hit New York, have learned that the news of their presence quickly circulates with the result that their stay thereafter is made burdensome by unemployed actors and acquaintances who "knew them when," and the "touching" is terrific.

ROD AND VILMA PUT OKLA. CITY ON THE PAN

Tulsa, Dec. 16.

Rod La Rocque and Vilma Banky, on the road with "Cherries are Ripe" (legit), gave Oklahoma City the razz. They said "it was a hick town."

Reporters asked for interviews and the La Rocque-Banky reply was that they didn't want to talk.

In Tulsa earlier in the week, the two were impressed by the Metropolitan airs of the oil capital, especially after no reporters wanted interviews.

Buddy Rogers Recovering From Appendicitis Knife

Toledo, Dec. 16.

Although suffering much pain, Charles "Buddy" Rogers has been declared out of danger by his doctors. Film star was operated on Saturday here for acute appendicitis.

Rogers was making personal appearances at the Paramount theatre and endured some physical suffering throughout the week. Saturday, however, his condition became so serious that an operation was necessary and he entered the hospital under the name of Max Schall, his manager.

Due back at the Coast almost immediately to start his next picture, this will, of course, have to be postponed.

Fox Struts the Works For Eng. Elissa Landi

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Although Elissa Landi has yet to complete her first American picture, Fox is already planning stardom for her.

Miss Landi, who has made films in England, arrived here last week and started immediately on "Squadrons." Two more stories have been picked for her. She had a lead in the legit "Farewell to Arms."

100% Muff

"Variety's" nose for news is ably demonstrated by its Hollywood staff.

With the Bank of Hollywood directly across from the Coast office, so that the "Variety" muggs can't help but see it every time they look out the window, the entire personnel muffed that something was doing on the other side of the street. The chumps noted the unusual activity across the way throughout the week preceding the bank's closing, but wrote it off to the banks' business picking up.

So three bankrolls belonging to "Variety's" reporters are tied up as also the office account.

All of which is known as muffing 100%.

JOLSON'S U.A. FILM IS OFF AGAIN, OR STILL

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Al Jolson's picture for United Artists is off. May be resumed later on, but now the dope is "Sons o' Guns" will not be shot until the summer of 1931 if at all.

Jolson's trick appendix has him worried beyond the actual graveness of the situation, as it's not appendicitis and an operation is not essential, but meantime Jolson has been put on a diet and is being X-rayed, etc. Ruby Keeler (Mrs. Jolson) came west hurriedly from New York, where she was slated for a show, to be with her husband.

The Jolsons are Palm Springs-ing it for a few days and by the middle of next week the comedian expects to hear from Max Gordon, his eastern agent, regarding the new Jolson-Erlanger musical which Al will do, sooner than expected.

Jolson takes the position that his illness may tie up a picture too expensively and that waiting for Sam Taylor to finish "Kiki" before starting on Jolson is holding things up too long.

Vice-President Entertains President With a Picture

Washington, Dec. 16.

When Vice-President Curtis entertained the President at dinner last week in a local hotel, the Chief Magistrate remained afterwards to see a picture—Will Rogers in "Lightnin'" (Fox).

A private showing, of course, arranged by Hardie Meakin, managing director of the Fox theatre here.

Amateur's Contract

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Making her film debut in "Inspiration," Karen Morely has been given a term contract by Metro. Her next is with Ramon Novarro in "Daybreak."

Miss Morely had previously been in amateur theatricals.

Mexican Flight

Galveston, Dec. 16.

Arthur Loew and Hal Roach were reported at Fort Crockett Army air field here yesterday (15) en route to Mexico City by airplane.

They were flying in Roach's plane piloted by Capt. Dixon, ex-army flyer.

CHEVALIER'S $5,000

Maurice Chevalier will appear on the Cities Service hour to be broadcast over NBC early next month.

Chevalier will receive $5,000 for the date.

THIS TIME HAYS RETINUE MEANS IT

Major Co's Agree to Curb Wild Advertising — Circuit Operators Will Fire House Managers Who Overstep—N. Y. as Tough Spot—Producers Verbally Slap Each Other

CHANGE 35 LABELS

Another offensive against salacious advertising, this time with every indication of a finish fight, has started. Member companies of the Hays organization, after taking personal jabs at each other, are striking at the roots and mean it. At the meeting last week titles on 35 future features were ordered changed.

One manager of an important theatre in the Middlewest has already been fired because of the sex ballyhoo he gave a picture. This was done as an object lesson, the heads of all circuits connected with the Hays organization hereafter being held personally responsible. Circuit operators, it is understood, have agreed to discharge summarily any manager caught doctoring a press sheet.

N. Y. Main Problem

New York City was held up as the worst problem. The Hays code was being disregarded by several of the companies on advertising copy and heads of these companies were called on the carpet. One took it squarely on the chin, exonerating his publicity director and holding himself to blame. The chief of another company held the operator of a rival circuit at fault, and told him so.

Enthusiasm of youthful managers, many of whom have replaced experienced showmen in some of the

(Continued on page 40)

15 Malibu Homes Burn as Second Blaze Sweeps Beach Colony

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Fifteen homes, mostly of noted picture people, were totally destroyed at an estimated loss of $200,000 by a second fire sweeping the exclusive Malibu Beach colony. There was a previous blaze about a year ago.

Beach homes burnt to the ground included those of Buddy DeSylva, Al Rockett, David Butler, Marie Prevost, Eddie Grainger, Hal Wallis, Bernard Toplitzky, brother of Joe; Ben Hendricks, Frank Fay and Oliver Marsh, the latter a Metro cameraman.

All those who were at Malibu helped fight the blaze to no avail, including George O'Brien, Wesley Ruggles and Fred Beetson, neighbors whose houses were not reached by the fire.

Blaze started from an explosion near Buddy DeSylva's house about two a.m. Monday (15). It's reported DeSylva lost jewelry valued at $300,000 besides his home, and a number of song manuscripts. The only thing he saved was his Hispano car, everything else going due to the rapidity with which the blaze spread.

Reichenbach Heads South

Harry Reichenbach has taken it on the wing for that annual winter vacation.

To the south and for three weeks.

Par. Holding Lukas

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Paramount's option to Paul Lukas, up before the first of the year, will be exercised.

With Directors Wary of New Faces, Best Chance for Legit Names in Pics Is Sub-Leads

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Just why and how it's so tough for legit names to break into pictures is best answered by a film exec. While having thorough sympathy for the qualifications and superiority of certain legit types over the strictly picture player, this official concludes that if he's to take any bows later on for his pictures it's not going to hurt him if there are as many standard picture names in the cast as possible.

"It's a cinch," he adds, "that the boy and the girl playing the story must be known by screen fans. Only in rare exceptions, such as Joan Crawford or Gloria Swanson, for example, is it immaterial if they have a male lead who's unknown.

Protection

"You make vows to yourself that here's a picture that's going to be suitably cast. And right off the bat you find you're casting with all picture people. You can't help yourself. The feature must be protected and screen names are the insurance.

"But if you have film name leads you can build up sub-femme and sub-juvenile leads from legit. That's the safest way to launch new faces. In time they'll command attention on their own and stand casting as first leads. Then they'll become primarily picture names and better known to the masses than when on Broadway at $4 to $6.60 a ticket.

Unknown

"Few legit people are strong enough to make a starring debut in pictures and have their first film get anywhere. The film public

(Continued on page 35)

'Doubles' New Jobs

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Doubles of film stars have found a new occupation when not working at studios. They're being employed by business men as secretaries or in other jobs where customers can see them.

Employers consider it good advertising.

LAEMMLE BIOGRAPHY OUT ON SILVER ANN.

Universal City, Dec. 16.

The life story of Carl Laemmle, written by John Drinkwater, British novelist-playwright, will be published in February, probably the 24th of that month, concurrent with Laemmle's silver anniversary in the picture business.

On that date the U head will be the only showman active in pictures with a quarter of a century behind him. Laemmle started as an indie exhib, swinging from that into the exchange end.

The Drinkwater story, as yet without title or sale price, will be published in this country by Putnam's and in England by Heinemann.

DIANE ELLIS DIES IN INDIA ON HONEYMOON

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Diane Ellis, 20, died at Madras, India, while on her honeymoon with Stephen C. Millet, New York broker. Cause of death was not stated in a cable to her parents here.

Miss Ellis, who had appeared in "Laughter" (Par), was scheduled to renew her film work upon her return to the States, with Par planning to take up its option held on the actress for a second picture.

Before her Par work, Miss Ellis did some work for Pathe, getting her start in films through Colleen Moore.

Zig-Zagging Extras

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Market for extras is still zig-zagging. Last week was another "zag" week and down to 3,389 placements by the Central Casting bureau.

King Arthur and his knights saved last week from establishing a new low. Fox worked mobs for "The Connecticut Yankee" four days at Fox, using 159, 347, 148, and 158, respectively.

Twenty-seven features were in production at coast studios last week, and the same number continue this week. No jump can be expected until the new year.

Miss Boardman's Tests

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Eleanor Boardman, retired for a couple of years, is being tested again by almost every studio.

She recently staged a comeback for Metro in "The Great Meadow," but isn't signed at M-G-M exclusively.

Wynn Gibson Lands

Wynn Gibson has been handed a term contract by Paramount as the result of her work in "The Gang Buster," Jack Oakie's latest. She has been cast in "June Moon."

Deal arranged by Al Rosen.

AMES AND CLARE LUCE ASK AND GET RELEASE

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Two Fox players voluntarily requested their release by the studio and were accorded it.

Clare Luce was one and Robert Ames also asked that his paper be torn up.

Miss Luce didn't fancy the manner in which she had been handled. Originally slated for "Painted Lady," that title was called off through lack of story. Miss Luce, from legit, was not contracted.

Ames, who had been farmed out extensively, wanted his release, so that he might free-lance. He had not been doing anything for Fox through being so intensively on loan. He is now set for "Private Secretary" (Radio) opposite Mary Astor.

INDEX

Pictures	2-30
Foreign	6-7
Picture Reviews	13
Film House Reviews	37
Talking Shorts	13
Vaudeville	31-34
Vaude Reviews	26
New Acts	26
Bills	39
Times Square	41-45
Editorial	48
Women's Page	46-47
Legitimate	49-56
Literati	56
Music	57-58
Obituary	60
Correspondence	61-62
Radio	59
Night Clubs	58
Outdoors	60
Legit, List	63
Inside—Pictures	48
Burlesque	35
Foreign Show News	59-51
Band-Orchestra Routes	40
Inside—Legit	48
Legit Reviews	54
News from the Dailies	55
Inside—Vaude	34
Inside—Music	59
Sports	45

Bohemian Hollywood Just Bohunk After All; Real Art Mob Scarce

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Bohemian Hollywood just aint. The long-haired boys and short-haired girls are missing. It all goes to make Hollywood anything but the haunt of the intelligensia in spite of what the mags and papers say.

As the literary and artistic center of the coast, the place is a washout. Hollywood Bowl gets a break for the highbrows during the summer, but if anything more artistic than "Light Cavalry" is tooted on the horns the peasants no savey.

All the authors in the world can come out here and lecture, but the most popular book in the circulating libraries is still "Lady Chatterley's Lover."

A flock of French postcards will fill any hall, but a Rembrandt creates no more excitement than a 24-sheet.

The opera season went over with a bang, but outside of the opening night when Hope Hampton made a bid for the picture mob, civic pride was the draw.

The class of the artistic world, when it makes the coast, hides out at either Laguna Beach or Carmel. Latter is ritzy, but the former has all the elements of a three-ring circus.

Now and then in some remote part of Hollywood, a close observer will come across a batik dipper, or some other class of trick artistic manifestation, but there it ends.

Sculptors who do a bit of sculping around here, confine their activities to highway advertising. If they tried to get a monument to do they'd starve. In the whole of L. A. and Hollywood there are just two monuments. To mention a "bust" to a local sculptor would be to set him screwy. The word personifies his career.

It has been so tough for concert musicians and singers here they are trying to form a union. About the best they can get is a hotel lobby job on Sunday nights. The hotel pays them off with a room and bed or a slice of roast beef. The audience is usually a flock of lay-offs and the artistic bodies go for that.

If the union goes through, it will not regulate concert salaries. Would only mean that they will get paid in cash for their efforts. The hotels will probably substitute a radio as an out.

The little theatres, for the advertised advancement of the drama, have fallen by the wayside. Too much exploitation for actors who were looking for picture work caused the downfall. Those that remain in operation attract no one but relatives. To help pay the rent one of them is ready to stage anything.

Lack of the artistic doesn't seem to bother Hollywood. Home towners will tell the world that the burg has that certain quality that defies description. They suggest and hope it's artistic, but they're not quite sure.

NO LETDOWN AT PATHE STUDIO BEFORE MERGE

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

With the R-K-O-Pathe merge not due for active consummation until the latter part of January, Pathe studio is going ahead full speed on production.

Five pictures will be in swing on the lot before the first of the year, including "Lonely Wives," just started. Others are "Rebound," which Ann Harding will begin as soon as she recovers from a slight case of laryngitis; an untitled Ernest Pascal story for Constance Bennet; "The Marriage Bed," with Helen Twelvetrees, and a story now in preparation which Al Green will direct.

Pathe's short product is way ahead of schedule. About 38 are completed with 14 more to go. Remaining shorts are being turned out at the rate of one a week.

"Pro Nites" Out

Detroit, Dec. 16.

Paldix chief has done out that all appearances of acts at "Professional Nights" are out.

Reason given is the people will stay away from the theatre if able to see same acts at night clubs.

READYING 'WASHINGTON'

Belle Bennett Cast—Crosland to Direct—22 Wk. Guarantee

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Charles Forrester, who is producing "The Life of George Washington" for the Historical Cinema Association, backed by Clarence Mackay, Mrs. Edward Bok, Samuel Insull, and others, leaves New York Wednesday (17) for the coast, with a carload of authentic furniture used by Washington.

Alan Crosland is to direct the film with Belle Bennett the only member of the cast so far set. She will play Martha Washington.

Actors under consideration have been assured of a 20-week guarantee.

GTP PLANNING 22 NEW SERVICE POINTS IN U. S.

General Talking Pictures (DeForest) plans the establishment of 22 contact headquarters throughout the country as sub-division service stations for its engineers. Latter are to be made available from these spots for exhibitors' needs in parts and equipment. The plan calls for an average of four stationary engineers to a centre, making about 80 in all.

Scheme is part of the expansion idea which has been going on at G. T. P. for the past two months, and resulted in the addition of approximately 100 executives in various capacities to the official G. T. P. staff.

In addition, G. T. P. is now aiming to hang on 75 additional salesmen in the field by Christmas to augment the engineering forces. The salesmen, as planned, will work out of the home office selling spare parts and replacement materials for Phonofilm equipment.

G. T. P. is also said to be aiming for a new factory site downtown in addition to its present facilities.

Denver Merger

Denver, Dec. 16.

Alexander Film Co. of Colorado Springs, and the Rothacker Film Corp., have merged in an exchange of stock. New Rothacker organization will be controlled by the Alexander company, with J. Don Alexander, D. M. Alexander and R. A. Duncan becoming officials of the Rothacker company.

Douglas Rothacker will remain as president of the Rothacker company and act as vice-president of the Alexander firm.

Combined production and service plants will be maintained at Colorado Springs, Chicago and New York. Companies will retain their separate identities with merged efforts in sales and service.

A. M. Shows Christmas Week at Neighborhoods

Chicago, Dec. 16.

For the first time in history of Publix-B. & K. outlying class A houses morning shows will be given beginning Dec. 27. Houses include Tivoli, Uptown and Paradise.

Picture "Tom Sawyer" (Par) is aimed for the kids and under the new arrangement it is hoped to get them all in early in the A. M. Price will be 15 cents.

U. and "Seed"

Universal City, Dec. 16.

The Charles G. Norris novel on birth control, "Seed," will be released under that title by U. At least that was the intention until the Hays meeting in N. Y. last week at which 35 titles were changed. This may be one of them.

Norris came down from Palo Alto nicely to advise on the story, not to do any collaborating.

U Wants 'Dodsworth'

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Film rights for "Dodsworth," novel by Sinclair Lewis, are being negotiated for by Carl Laemmle, Jr. Asking price is $50,000.

KNUTE ROCKNE

Is a fine General and a great strategist, but we, too, have a clean record of nothing but victories. Single handed we break attendance records and with our comedy, defeat old man gloom in every quarter.

"The Originators of Tintype"

(CHIC) (ROSE)

YORK and KING

Week Dec. 13: Orpheum, St. Paul
R-K-O Direction LEE STEWART

TEUTONIC FILMS REVIVE HOPES OF SONGSMITHS

Success of "The Blue Angel" (Ufa-Par) and "Two Hearts in Waltz Time" (Superfilm), both German-made pictures with music now showing in New York, has given songwriters and music publishers renewed confidence in the future for screen musicals. After seeing both pictures, one music publisher with a strong picture affiliation, said that the German film producers have done what American producers would like to do with music in pictures.

If theatre goers will accept musicals on the stage, the music publisher sees no reason why they will refuse to buy them on the screen once the proper technique of presenting them is formulated.

In Germany, a music loving country, continued the publisher the producers are willing to listen to a composer and call him into conference with the book writer. In Hollywood, when musicals were being ground out last year, songwriters were not allowed on the set and the story was often changed without the songsmiths aware of what was going on. The practice of allowing supervisors and directors to pick songs to be used in a picture also contributed to the reaction against musicals in this country, the publisher added.

Eight songs crammed into a picture running 70 or 90 minutes, according to the publisher, annihilated the action and soured the filmgoer, said the publisher.

What the music boys don't seem to realize is that the foreign departments of the various film companies may be the salvation of the musical picture. Officials on the foreign sales end are fast becoming convinced that American pictures must have music to stand a chance of getting over abroad. Some are even insisting upon tunes in the foreign versions.

Arthur-Marco East

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Mike Marco expects to leave here for New York Jan. 2 with Harry Arthur. Latter will spend the holidays here coming west Dec. 22.

Marco will get the Roxy shows set under his new regime before returning to the Coast around Feb. 1.

Col. Gets "24 Hrs."

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Columbia has purchased "24 Hours" for immediate production. It's a best seller by Louis Bromfield.

Farrell-Gaynor's Next

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Charles Farrell will be opposite Janet Gaynor in "Merely Mary Ann" (Fox).

Hollywood Bulletins

Briefly rewritten extracts from "Variety's" Hollywood Bulletin, printed each Saturday in Hollywood, and placed as a wrapper upon the regular weekly "Variety."

The Bulletin does not circulate other than on the Pacific Slope.

News from the Dailies in Los Angeles will be found in that customary department.

Fox has told its press agents to quit okaying lunch checks at the studio for chatter writers. Louella Parsons, not a very heavy eater, is excepted.

Advance reservations for participation in Pasadena's annual Tournament of Roses are so few that the organization has notified picture companies for the first time and is asking them to join in the fun—for a slight fee. Studios aren't enthusiastic.

After Charles Chaplin makes personal appearances at the openings of "City Lights" here, east and in London, he'll probably return to indulge in his admitted desire to direct a talking picture. Local opening of "Lights" may be delayed to Feb. 1 because the Los Angeles theatre isn't being completed on schedule.

Sergio Eisenstein is representing Soviino here in that Russian film company's negotiations for American directors and technical men. Robert Flaherty, the first contracted, is en route to New York for Moscow immediately.

Vine Street, tired of legit, goes into a grind picture policy Jan. 1.

Phillip Dunne, one of Finley Peter D's sons, is on the Fox lot learning to write scenarios.

Dan Kelly is new casting director for Columbia, replacing Cliff Robinson.

Joe Rock, indie, says he'll make a series of fairy tale shorts for children.

Fox is trying to borrow Loretta Young from First National for "Three Girls Lost."

Shy on bankrolls but with a good line for angels, a dozen or more shoestring legit producers are trying to promote theatres and casts with little luck so far. Equity stand for cash to cover bonds is having its effect.

U has scheduled four for Sidney Foxe. John Murray Anderson's Viennese story follows "Gambling Daughters," her first. Two others in the offing.

Al Lewin has been appointed exec head of Metro's foreign department with Harry Edington in charge of actual production.

WB and FN continue combining departments with P. A. Chase made comptroller over both with Henry Straus, FN auditing head, assisting.

Indies face inactivity with only one picture scheduled between now and Jan. 10, this an untitled Liberty production at Metropolitan.

Metro is pushing William Haines into "The Impostor," original by Edgar Allen Woolf, before giving him heavy dramatics in "Never the Twain Shall Meet."

Following infection from minor injury, Ernest Murray, picture and stage actor, lost his left leg.

Hank Arnold is on an advance tour of coast and northwest territory on "One Heavenly Night" (Evelyn Laye) and "Devil to Pay" (Ronald Colman).

Taking "Are You There?" Beatrice Lillie musical, off the shelf where it has lain six months, Fox will release it Feb. 22 after splicing in newly-shot sequences and re-cutting.

Al Boasberg, Radio associate producer, sold "Anybody's Mother" to Fox for Cissie Loftus, after rejection by his own studio.

Esther Ralston may return to Paramount, where she formerly starred. Her asking price is reported at $3,500.

First National cast its first English-speaking players since the shutdown, Claude Gillingwater, Vivian Oakland and George Byron were engaged for "Red Hot Sinners."

Humphrey Pearson and Francis Faragoh, First National writers, were dropped via option lapses.

Leon Larive, Vital and Helen Varley, Rolland Caillaux, Jeannie Helbling, Rolla Norman and Suzy Vernon, First National French imports, through and returning to France.

Metro is set on "Five o'Clock Girl" as the next piece for Marion Davies.

With H. B. Warner ill, Radio has borrowed Gilbert Emory from Paramount as a replacement in "Children of the Streets."

Al Boasberg and Arthur Landau, agent settled their commission difficulties, with Landau accepting $375 cash and 5% of "Cradle Call," Boasberg's legit piece, which opened and closed in Chicago within two weeks. Landau claimed $3,600.

"Lonely Wives" and three shorts are the only pictures scheduled for work at Pathe between now and Jan. 1.

J. Leslie Jacobs, head of Fox West Coast's real estate department, is out. H. F. Fetter succeeds.

Jose Mojica, Spanish actor in English for Fox, will go back on that lot again as a Spanish actor, since his pictures clicked in that tongue.

Geoffrey Kerr, New York stage actor, is due here in February on a Radio term contract.

Bette Davis and Helen Bond, from the Broadway stage, are here for Universal and Metro, respectively.

Metro handed a term contract to Clark Gable following first talker part in "The Easiest Way." Universal took up Slim Summerville's third option.

Johnny Arthur goes to Pathe for one comedy short, with the possibility of a series.

Huguet Duflos, from the French stage, and Heinrich George and Gustave Dies l, from the German legit, will be here after Christmas for Metro versions.

Joe Cooper, borrowed from Roach, and Jackie Searles, another kid player, are set for Par's "Skippy," getting started around Jan. 1.

Tiffany loaned Paul Hurst to Metro on a seven week guarantee for the comedy relief in "Secret Six," gang story.

With Mary Duncan set for the femme lead in "Among the Married," Metro is now testing for the male lead, with Reginald Denny likely.

Bert Marx, brother of Sam Marx, Metro scenario head, is now assistant to Bob Harris, scenario chief at Universal.

Fox was unable to get Reginald Denny for "All Women Are Bad." Denny is at Metro in "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath."

Louis Brock is readying a second series of "Broadway Headliners" for Radio.

Barbara Stanwyck will do an original, "Lover, Come Back to Me," by Lin Segal Root, for Col.

Fox will make "East Lynne" in Italian, French, Spanish and German.

Acoustical Society of America is here to study talkers.

Eddie Cantor opens at the Floridian, class night club in Miami, for two weeks starting Jan. 20 at $7,500 a week. Leo Morrison handled.

Ernest Pascal back to New York after finishing "In Deep," original story for Constance Bennett at Pathe. While in the east Pascal will do a novel, returning here in January to adapt his "Marriage Bed" for Pathe.

Warner-FN execs, including Jack Warner and Daryl Zanuck, headed a duck hunting party over the week end for which all were taxed $100 a head to defray expenses. Only deadheads were a political aggregation comprising Gov.-elect Rolph, Dist. Atty. Buron Fitts and Sheriff William Traeger.

Houston Branch, writer, has been placed with Warner-FN by the William Morris office.

Spanish "Many a Slip," with Lupita Tovar starring, will be made by U.

Columbia-UA Product Deal for England

Entire Columbia output for 1930-31 has been taken for distribution by United Artists, Ltd., for release throughout England. Announcement of the deal, which includes 19 Columbia features, was made Monday (15) by Arthur Kelly.

English distribution will be handled by Louis Metzger for Col. and Maurice Silverstone for U. A.

WIDE FILM IS RULED OUT

Fox, First to Drop Silents, Leading Return to Talkless Product for Foreign Revenue

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Fox, first of the majors to announce complete elimination of silent pictures from its lot, is also first to go back to a substantial number of silents for next year's foreign market.

Plan now is to make around 25 silents on its new program for foreign houses not yet wired and for the countries which can't produce profit on a version.

With virtually every other company abandoning silents within the last year, Fox organization still feels there is jack from this source, especially in view of the elimination of competition.

Policy on next year's foreign talker program is still somewhat in an indecisive state due to difficulty of getting set overseas on a studio for its foreign product, exclusive of Spanish, which will be made here. John Stone is on a survey of the European field, primarily to locate a studio and at the same time to get a proper estimate of various language market possibilities.

In view of the unsettled foreign situation, it is felt that a watchful waiting policy will prove more profitable in the long run.

Fox Plans Abroad

It is not believed here that Fox will begin making pictures abroad until at least the middle of next year. Then the plan is to make one in German, French and Italian and await reactions before going ahead.

The foreign product from Fox therefore will be much less next year than was earlier indicated. Original plans are retained only for Spanish talkers, 12 of which probably will be made here. Some French and German editions may be made also, but this will depend on the market conditions and applicability of the domestics, plus the production setup abroad.

It is also planned to synchronize some of the silents for wired houses whenever it is decided the picture won't stand versionizing.

5-FEATURE AVERAGE WEEKLY FOR WB-FN

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

According to the production schedule now being arranged by Warner-First National, there will be a weekly average of five pictures in production next year. This is exclusive of foreign versions. Production sheet calls for 52 working weeks.

First two features to get going under the new production combination are "Red Hot Sinners" and "Night Nurse," both slated to start about Jan. 5.

Offices at the old Vitagraph and Warner lots will be closed, but both studios will have stage activity.

Tech's Tri-Color

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Mrs. Herbert Kalmus, wife of the president of Technicolor, has returned to the Coast studios of that company, where she will work on new fabric dyes for color photography.

For the past four months she has been experimenting with new color combinations in the New York plant. Company is now concentrating on its new three-color process, which is expected to be ready early next year.

Annual WB Show

Roy Nash, director of Vitaphone shorts, has been conscripted by the Warner boys and girls to help them make their second "Gaieties" more gay than the first.

Rehearsals and arguments start right after Jan. 1.

Eastman's Plight

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Fox and Metro have advised Eastman that they will not pick up any more wide film. Both companies previously had announced 70 and 65 mm. productions, with De Mille's next for Metro on the Reallife schedule.

Eastman is caught with over 250,000 feet of double sized film on the floor.

Fox and Metro have been leaders in the wide film movement and their decision to abandon it is taken here to mean that the wide angle is out.

B. I. Near $30,000 In Red on B'way, But Makes 3 Deals

British International has been showing its pictures on Broadway now for nine weeks. In that time the company may have dropped around $30,000, but if it had cost twice as much it would still have been cheap from the English angle.

Since coming over B. I. P. has managed to swing three deals. One, for six features, with Columbia. Another, for a single feature, with R-K-O and a third is with ERPI. By terms of a contract already signed, ERPI buys 30 shorts yearly from B. I. P. for 10 years. These are educational reels apparently slated by ERPI to be shot as talker exploitation mediums to schools and universities. B. I. P. product is recorded on RCA equipment. These shorts are ready for release.

Wanted to Find Out

That the ERPI contract possibly means that B. I. P. may be reaching out for American financial support was not denied on the B. I. P. end. B. I. P.'s venture at the Cohan was specifically to find out once and for all if it had anything to sell over here, and B. I. P. is going back to British shores with three deals in its pocket.

When "Sleeping Partners," current B. I. P. film, goes off at the Cohan (17), this house will be used to screen first synchronized version of D. W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" (UA). B. I. P. plans to take it back around Feb. 1 for a continuation of its present show-case policy.

One English firm officially estimates it can make its best films at $100,000 or less. That $100,000 figure is about one-third, maybe less, of what a first-rate release costs in the States.

British company has also placed its "Middle Watch" at the Roxy, which opens there Dec. 9 and may plan another at this house shortly.

CAMOUFLAGED "GLORY" REMAKE ON FOX LIST

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

"What Price Glory" will be remade by Fox in dialog from present plans.

New title and treatment will endeavor to camouflage its antecedents.

PAT CASEY EAST

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

A cold prevented Pat Casey, studio representative in labor union relations, from addressing producers last week with his talk now slated for Tuesday (16).

Pat leaves for the east Dec. 20 to spend the holidays there.

ALL INNOVATIONS OFF FOR 2 YEARS

Even Includes Wide Angle Projection Lenses — Classes as Economy Move —Stop Television Experimenting — Fiscal Report on Industry Only Shows 4% Drop in Receipts, but Doesn't Include Last Autumn's Plunge

STUDIOS ENDORSE

All expensive innovations as regards the picture industry, with wide film highlighting, are to be dropped by the film industry for at least two years. This is according to official decree, unanimously approved, by the Hays Organization.

The decree is so definite it is learned, that not by word or gesture will the picture business permit the public's curiousity to be aroused about any new invention.

This means that not only is all thought of wide film abandoned, but that projection lenses and all devices which might create an appetite for the giant screen are to be abandoned. This goes for newsreel as well as feature films.

The Hays stand in respect to anti-innovation is endorsed by all of the big producers who have been experimenting with wide film, Television, and all other new or about-to-be-discovered arts. It is still reported that Television will not be ready for the public for another two years, and a parallel may be drawn between this and the producers, new decision.

The industry's first positive observation of economy, which will immediately materialize, is recorded by Haysites as not only safeguarding the physical structure of filmdom, but to co-operate with the Government during what was described at the meeting "as the worst time in the financial history of the country."

Entire filmdom, for the fiscal year ending in August, 1930, is only 4% under its gross total of the previous year. However, the bad autumn

(Continued on page 40)

FOX STUDIO IN JAM DUE TO LIGHT VALVES

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Fox is in a peculiar position due to its refusal to renew with Case for Acolite tubes after signing a contract with ERPI for Western Electric light valves as replacement for Case product. Now, ERPI will not guarantee recording or protection to Fox against lawsuits.

If the changeover from Case to ERPI is complete, the Fox plant may shut down for a period. New camera equipment will also be necessary.

At present Fox has 30 Acolight tubes on hand which are not enough to last over a month.

No U. Shutdown

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Carl Laemmle, Jr., denies that any shutdown of the Universal lot will occur in January.

He states that whatever ideas might have existed along those lines previously are nullified by the present heavy production schedule.

Execs Figuring Film Stories Told by Action Rather Than Dialog as World Wide Solution

Pictures which tell the story by action rather than dialog and which only need editing and no foreign versions. By this means the world can be served 100% from Hollywood, according to American producers, who are coming to this conclusion. Some think this will be a general practice before sound is much older. Only as much dialog as necessary for English speaking audiences, which can be snipped out of prints going to other countries, is the general idea.

Telling the story by action is the key to the plan which, it is also hoped, will bring back the children to the theatres.

Paramount, through Sidney Kent, shed the first light on the dialog situation when he recently declared that too much dialog is spoiling the picture business. That slant has since been followed through by other companies. It has revealed that the success Hollywood enjoyed abroad in silent days was due to the fact that all nations could understand a single version, being allowed their own interpretation of the unspoken dialog.

Retain Some Dialog

Sound effects and conversation will never be entirely eliminated. Producer spokesmen, other than Kent, agree that even in foreign versions there must be a little chatter. But for the latter, not enough talk to make it necessary to reproduce the production in as many languages as there are tongues.

English speaking countries will get their quota of dialog films but in such a way that the deaf, without the aid of a special receiver, will know just as much about the story as the fan with normal hearing.

Hence, "internationalizing" of sound pictures will come through action on the screen as the only satisfying and economic solution, according to current discussions in the trade.

No Gifts

Latest orders from Fox theatres puts the ban on all gifts to execs from employees. None must be given nor any accepted.

While specifically aimed for the Christmas season the order holds good in and out of season for all times. It was issued under the head of "No Rackets Tolerated."

It is similar to the rule enforced at Paramount where the edict has long been in force.

W. B.'s Brunswick Plug an 'Industrial' Touch on All Films

Unless the big electrics squawk, and there is that possibility, an innovation in screen advertising is being established by the Warners whereby all regularly released features and shorts may serve somewhat as "industrials."

Warners is first doing it with shorts to ballyhoo Brunswick radios and phonographs. In fact, WB is not stopping with the screen. It is making stores of some of its bigger theatres with Brunswick radio sets at each end of the stage. Brunswick is a Warner subsidiary.

A line added to the usual film title and extending the full width of the screen, innocently gives the impression that Warners is using the Brunswick method for its own recording. The line is even fooling trade people. The WE title is minimized by comparison.

Warners, however, call attention to the wording which reads, "Brunswick Radio Used Exclusively." What that really means is that a Brunswick radio, or phonograph, is shown in some scene in the picture which follows.

PAR FINALLY OKAYS 3-YR.-OLD 'TRAGEDY'

After breathing hot and cold for several years on Dreiser's "The American Tragedy," Par has made a final decision to talkerize the lengthy novel.

Originally purchased by Jesse Lasky, when Par had Herbert Brenon under contract and in mind to direct, story recently was considered for Sergei Eisenstein and as quickly dropped, with Metro later bidding for the rights.

Now Oliver H. P. Garrett will adapt it and John Cromwell will direct. Par's apparent choice to play the lead is Phillips Holmes.

Garrett gets busy on the script next week.

STAHL'S 'MIRACLE' FILM IN SECOND TIFF. TRY

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Tiffany is figuring on remaking and finishing "Miracle," uncompleted picture started by John Stahl a couple of years ago when the firm was Tiffany-Stahl.

When production was suspended the cost was around $160,000, which Tiff is now reluctant to lose.

Fox's "Bad Girl"

Fox has bought the screen rights to "Bad Girl." The show closed in New York run last Saturday (13).

No cast has been assigned as yet.

Think Schnitzer West To Stay on Production

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

What is believed here as further evidence of Joseph I. Schnitzer's intentions to take over production at Radio are substantiated by his plans for his trip east.

At first he intended going to New York for the holidays. This he has put off until after the New Year, and then it will only be for a brief stay.

Meanwhile he has taken for his permanent office that formerly occupied by Louis Sarecky. Publicity department has moved to an adjoining building to make office space for Sarecky and Pandro Berman, assistants to William LeBaron.

Metro-Par Studio Heads Snapping at Each Other

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

B. P. Schulberg and Irving Thalberg, of Par, and Metro respectively, are doing some heavy letter writing, with Par.'s production head claiming Thalberg is stimulating all Par.'s ideas stories.

Both are supposedly doing heavy burn-ups.

Quebec Censors Chop 36 Mins. From Metro's 'Gay'

Montreal, Dec. 16.

Prior to the appointment of a new chairman of the Quebec censors, the board got its hooks into "Let Us Be Gay" and chopped 36 minutes of the 98 of running time.

Big howl from fans who blurred the figure. Latter dared not write specs for fear of reprisals.

M-G South Africa Exchange Open to Any British Film

Capetown, Dec. 16.

Carl J. Sonin, formerly the business envoy in South America for Metro-Goldwyn, has arrived here to put into effect what is understood to be a new system of handling foreign territory by an American concern.

It is stated that he will first open a film distributing system here with branches in Johannesburg and other points for the handling of Metro product, but the exchange chain also will distribute any British product that is offered.

Plan seems to be to make plain that the company has no intention of fighting any interest already established in the territory. It also is made definite that Metro-Goldwyn has no intention of going in for production in South Africa.

Sonin's first move will be to sign contracts calling for the erection of a building to house the new exchange.

Fox Uses 60% of 'Trail's' Footage in All Versions

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

About 60% of the original footage from "Big Trail" is available without changes for Fox's four foreign versions of this outdoor film. The rest must be reshot separately for each version.

Studio will have the Spanish, French, German and Italian copies ready next week.

Hungary Tends Toward Silent Films Again

Budapest, Dec. 5.

Forum Cinema, which made a pot of money a little over a year ago because it was the first to be wired here and brought out "The Singing Fool" a few weeks ahead of any other talkie, is now the first to advertise in huge lights: "Back to the Silent Film!" They have a big box-office success with "Piz Palu," very finely photographed German Alpine picture, absolutely mute. Only other picture doing well at the moment is the Byrd South Pole film, at the Kamara and Corso. As an accompaniment to the Polar flight reel, Paramount had a Hungarian actor, Zatony, sent to Joinville to speak the explanatory text synchronized with the picture. This is no improvement.

French Version of 'House' Must Have English Title

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Metro's French version of "The Big House" will be released in France with the title in English, due to a stipulation made by French censors.

This is being done to make it clear that prison conditions shown are strictly American.

"Mrs. Fraser" Sold

London, Dec. 16.

British and Dominion has bought the screen rights to "The First Mrs. Fraser," long run dramatic here (done by Grace George in New York) for a talker.

Same producer will make "Chance of a Nighttime," an original screen musical by Ben Travers, author of many Aldwych farces.

Panto Unemployment

Paris, Dec. 16.

The Actors' Union is worried about the growing unemployment among players of the old silent screen who have not accommodated themselves to the sound technique.

Picture concerns of all descriptions here confine their search for talent to those for use in dialog pictures, ignoring all holdovers from the silent era.

DAY CIRCULATING

Buenos Aires, Dec. 16.

John Day, Paramount chief in South America, has just made a quick trip through Argentine and Chile and has returned to his Brazil headquarters.

ENGLISH STUDIO EXPOSE?

Magistrates Start Inquiry Into Immorality, is Report

London, Dec. 7.

Allegations against the behavior of certain people in film production here during the last two years are likely to become public property shortly.

Inside story here says magistrates in districts containing production plant have instigated investigations into alleged immorality in British studios, with the result sufficient evidence has been compiled for action to be brought.

PARIS HAILS VERSION OF GERMAN WAR FILM

Paris, Dec. 16.

In contrast to the German ban on "All Quiet on the Western Front" (U), a French version of the German war picture, "Westfront 1918," also called "Four Infantrymen," and made in Germany, has been accepted with lively interest on release through the Aubert houses.

The film even includes the opening sequence of the original German production, showing a French girl making love to German soldiers billeted in France.

Picture is preceded by a talking trailer in which Jose Germain, president of the Veteran Authors' Association, makes an address, extolling the picture for its peace value. The picture is almost without literary plot, being mostly a series of war horrors.

It is released in France by Vandal and Delac, the latter president of the Producers' Union.

Review of the picture in its original German version was printed in Variety of June 18.

Argentine Will Not Fall for Coast's Spanish Version

Paris, Dec. 7.

Argentina is not taking kindly to the Spanish dialog pictures supplied by American producers. The latest to get razzed unmercifully being a Sonoart production released through Paramount, "La Fuerza del Querer."

Argentine suffers from a superiority complex with regard to Spain and Central America. While Argentina speaks Spanish it abhors the Madrid form of speech, nor is it willing to accept that from Latin-America in general.

Argentina is supposed to supply the major quota of cash in the picture business down here, and because it has very few native artists is but another of the problems American producers must face. It is evident that so long as Hollywood turns out Spanish pictures made by Spaniards and Mexicans (in the main) this market will be fairly unreceptive to them.

It looks as though good productions with superimposed titles will make much more money than the purely Spanish productions. "Romance" (M-G) is currently packing the Palace four times daily, whereas the Spanish pictures are playing in the second-run and neighborhood houses to scant success.

Schooling Foreigners

Paris, Dec. 16.

Metro is sending more and more foreigners to school.

Latest move is to shift Pierre Weill, now editing film here, to Hollywood in order to absorb the technique of directing in the studios of the West Coast.

LONDON'S $2 CINEMA

London, Dec. 7.

Leicester Square theatre, house which was to have been bought by United Artists, and later reverted to the Bentley interests when the deal fell through, opens Dec. 19 with "Vennese Nights" (Wil).

House is a 2,000 seater, with prices up to $2.

TORENA FOX LEAD

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Juan Torena will have the Charles Farrell part in the Spanish "Man Who Came Back" when Fox starts its cycle of foreign versions on this picture in two weeks.

Following the Spanish edition the German, French and Italian go in one week apart.

HARRY HERSHFIELD

Cartoonist, humorist, author of "Super-City" and now raconteur in Loew's vaudeville.

And as he says himself, "A Plaziure"

SECTIONAL RELIGION AND HOLLAND CENSORS

The Hague, Dec. 16.

Roman Catholic churchmen have just held a convention, their first at the Hague, object of which among other things was to check circulation of what they regard as pictures detrimental to morals.

This raises a religious sectional issue. The Catholic south hold different views in some respects from the Protestant north of the country and as film censorship is general and for the whole nation, they have a problem in the banning of certain films in their territory which are unobjectionable to the north.

In deference to the clergy of the south, several film theatres have voluntarily submitted to a second review of pictures for their territory after the subjects have passed the general board.

Upshot of the convention was that the assembly adopted certain resolutions looking to the support of certain films regarded as meeting with the churchmen's views and also favoring the product sponsored by Catholic producers. It is hinted that influential Catholic laymen may seek to have financial support thrown to such producers.

ITALIAN KICK-BACK

Exhibs Pass 10% Cut Along to American Distributors

Rome, Dec. 16.

The all around slash in salaries and admission scales ordered by Mussolini is having a kick-back upon American distributors here.

The exhibitors are demanding a cut of the same amount in rentals and the renters are sending the demand along to the producers. Whole subject is being canvassed by the Americans and it seems likely that some adjustment will be made.

Some of the exhibs will gain by the whole thing, since they stand to win on the rental cut, while they will also gain by the reduction of salaries of all employes and the same thing on theatre rent, electric light and other fixed charges.

All they stand to lose against these savings is the lower admissions. Decision due this week on film rental adjustment.

Erdeka Bankrupt

Berlin, Dec. 5.

Erdeka Film Co. in Berlin has declared bankruptcy. This company, under the management of Georg Michael Hollering, a brother of Franz Hollering, chief editor of the Ullstein paper "B. Z. am Mittag," had not attained any publicity by any remarkable feature.

Some pictures had been shot which showed artistic purpose, but they had been without commercial success.

Shortly before bankruptcy film rights were acquired from the well-known German writer Emil Ludwig for his novel, "July, 1914," for $10,000, of which only $2,500 had been paid.

VERSION PROMOTIONS

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Promotions are starting within Metro's foreign version ranks.

First is Carlos Borcosque, Spanish assistant director, who will direct the Spanish "Madame Satan."

3-WAY ENGLISH-MADE

B. I. P. Using Old American Musical for Tri-Tongue Versions

London, Dec. 16.

British International is about to film "The Bridegroom's Widow," an old American musical, making the picture in three tongues, a version each for English, French and German.

Eichberg is directing and the cast will include Gene Gerrard, Dennis Wyndham, George Gee and Henry Wenman, who have been engaged.

RENTERS' SCOUTING ON PERCENTAGES ALL OFF

London, Dec. 7.

Sound inspection committee of the Kinematograph Renters society has folded.

"Official" reason, sniffed out by the news men here, is the body ceased to function as soon as it failed in its main objective, namely, in tripping up exhibs on phony percentage returns.

Inspection committee, which used to investigate cinemas where proprietors were suspected of making incorrect returns, was supposed merely to make reports on the acoustical properties of theatres.

This major reason, however, had long been an alibi which enabled the committee to carry on probing into the exhibs' return sheets.

Inside reason given for the folding up of the committee is different. Head of it was Major King, of United Artists, who, according to report, was wielding considerable power through it.

Col. Going Stronger For Multi-Linguals

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Columbia is planning to put in a heavy bid for foreign business, with most of its efforts along the line of gaining a foothold in the Spanish market.

Harry Ham, formerly in Par's foreign department, is now in charge of Col's Spanish version production. Joseph Friedman is in Spain and Louis Goldstein in Mexico and South America looking for talent. Studio wants to develop a Spanish team.

Firm is also dubbing in German for "Ladies of Leisure," "Af.ca Speaks," "Melody Man," "Flight" and "Hell's Island." It will make Spanish version of practically the whole feature program. Eddie Buzzell's shorts also go Spanish, German and French.

Rogell Wants Germany's Approval of Rhine Film

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

The inside of the American occupation of the Rhineland will be a German-approved film subject, providing Al Rogell's visit to the German Embassy in Washington, D. C., is successful next week.

Having completed "Aloha," Rogell is taking it east. Tiffany is to release, having bankrolled Rogell.

From New York the indie producer hops down to Washington, having a story by Seaton Miller and himself all set with the Rhinish locale.

Ostrer Visits Berlin

Berlin, Dec. 16.

Maurice Ostrer and William Gell, leaders in the operation of British Gaumont British interests, are reported on their way to Berlin on business.

No intimation of the significance of the visit is given.

Pug's Theatre Job

London, Dec. 4.

Trocadero, the Hyams new house at Elephant and Castle, South London, now approaches completion. Opening Dec. 22, with Mick Hyams general manager, transferred from Metropole, Victoria, another Hyams house.

James Holland, taken over from Regent, Portsmouth, is assistant manager, and Gunner Moir, one time heavyweight pug champ, staff supervisor. Moir was manager of Canterbury Theatre in Hyams' time before Phil and Syd sold out to Gaumont-British and made their fortunes.

Paul Farrell Blows To Hollywood From Paris—And Lands

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Paul Farrell, who followed Tommy Lyman into Harry's New York Bar, Paris, and built up a Parisian following, found out that not all the good timing Americans who visit the French capital forget their promises.

Coming here, Farrell propositioned Daryl Zanuck and Henri de la Falaise, both of whom had befriended him when they patronized Harry's thirst emporium, and Farrell is now set in pictures.

Farrell said things got too tough in Paree and he breezed here to try his luck.

Bundy, Picture Angel, Selling and Quitting

London, Dec. 5.

A. E. Bundy, who financed Herbert Wilcox to make "Nell Gwyn" with Dorothy Gish, which Jaydee Williams bought to start British National, and who later promoted British Instructional and Pro Patria companies, is quitting pictures.

He has got rid of his distribution end by putting it into Wardour company and is more or less merging his Welwyn Garden City studios with British International. Waiting for 18 months to get this set and to get the $350,000 bank overdraft he guaranteed personally for British Instructional cleared off, and resigning from chairmanship of company and active as well as financial interest to spend his time in advertising agenting, his regular business.

Owns several film theatres in and around London, but wants to sell these, too. Also bought Taggs Island, upriver resort, but no one can ever make this pay without importing Californian weather here.

Enterprising sort of guy, Bundy. Bought a screen concern, runs a steel plant and a safety razor company, and has a cut in Palace theatre with Cochran.

Willing to sell that, too, if there's a buyer in the field. Figures it would make a good key house for some American distrib who hasn't one yet.

Only film ever making real cash money at Palace seems to have been "Four Horsemen."

Eisenstein Filming in Mexico, All on His Own

Mexico City, Dec. 12.

Serge Eisenstein, Russian film producer, has arrived here for the purpose of making an extemporaneous picture of Mexican life and customs. Says he has no scenario and no financial backing other than his own funds.

Plans to take camera into wilds and other picturesque spots, and shoot scenes and people that strike his fancy, afterwards working out the continuity.

Eisenstein came here from Hollywood. Expects to make his picture in about six weeks and will seek to market it in Latin America.

Paris OK's Laurel-Hardy With English Dialog

Paris, Dec. 7.

Despite the current strong reaction of audiences against foreign dialog, Metro played Laurel and Hardy's "Perfect Day" with English dialog as part of the Madeleine program. French version of "Olympia" also on the bill.

A few explanatory printed titles have been inserted in the first few feet of the two-reeler, after which these are done away with. Favorable reception is considered due to Madeleine audiences being very cosmopolitan, to the local popularity of Laurel and Hardy (far better known here than many French artists) and on account of the action being self-explanatory.

Marlene's Hubby's Suit

Berlin, Dec. 7.

In the law suit of Rudolf Sieber, the husband of the film actress, Marlene Dietrich, against the actor, Rotter, for insult, the trial could not be held because the defendant did not appear and did not make known his present address.

The court refrained from an arrest for the time being, but it will become necessary if Rotter should fail to appear at the next hearing.

ENVOYS WARN PRODUCERS

2 U. S. Films Fail in Milan, but Another Scores, as Does Ufa Entry

Milan, Dec. 16.

Another American picture has been spoiled here by the necessity of cutting dialog. Trade view is that the Americans should combine in refusing talkers altogether until the talk embargo is lifted. If something is not done, Italy will presently get nothing but silents, if they are to be had.

The bust was Columbia's "Broadway Scandals" at the San Carlo. Whole show would have been flop if it hadn't had as a billing feature the Carnera-Paolino fight in Barcelona to bring the natives in.

Metro-Goldwyn's Italian version "Louis the Fox" was not much better. The Italian language sequences were badly mauled by the whole cast, with the exception of Franco Corsado. These actors should learn something about diction. Picture was widely heralded as the first Metro in Italian, and that kept plenty of people away. While the fans are broke, they don't want to spend money on experiments.

On the other hand, Ufa's first Italian picture, "Cavalieri della Montagna" ("Nights of the Mountain") is an enormous hit. It opened at the Corso cinema.

Story is based on the novel, "Der Sohn der Weissen Bergen," Adaptation is by Nunzio Malasoma, with lyrics by Mario Bonnard and a score by Maestro Becce. Picture was shot on location in Zermatt, resort in the Swiss Alps, and completed in Neubabelsberg, with sound recording by Tobis apparatus.

Some of the scenes are magnificent, notably a search party at night working with torches, and international skiing contest on the snow-covered slopes. For an open-air recording the sound is remarkable. Principals in the cast are Renata Muller and Louis Trenker.

Barrymore Clicks

The Reale Cinema here opened as a sound house with "General Crack" (WB) as the first attraction. Picture is drawing well in spite of the holiday season slump and the wage cuts that are hurting business everywhere.

All that was left of the dialog was the sequence dealing with the coronation. John Barrymore never had an audience that was more favorable to his most stagey moments. His heroic mode is in line with all Latin preference. Marion Nixon is a sure winner in this territory. Picture's settings inspired enthusiasm.

SEEK COMPROMISE ON ALSACE GERMAN EDICT

Paris, Dec. 16.

American distributors are conferring with the French Film syndicate in an attempt to have the French government repeal the order banning German dialog pictures from Alsace unless the films are over-printed with titles in French at least every 70 feet.

The Americans are offering to insure French versions of all films released in Germany thus making it certain that Alsace exhibitors will not import films made in Germany without French versions. It was this possibility that brought about the Alsace ban.

Hague U. S. Filmless

The Hague, Dec. 16.

For the first time in many months there is not a single American film current in The Hague.

Picture attractions are entirely German or Russian.

French-mades Hit

Cairo, Dec. 16.

The French-made talkers, "Accusee" and "Levez Vous," were extremely successful in a midnight presentation showing at the Metropole cinema here.

Sound reproduction is first rate.

R-K-O-SWEDISH DEAL?

Report Native Trade Would Co-operate in Production in Paris

Copenhagen, Dec. 16.

Newspapers here publish the idea of the Swedish industry to concentrate native-tongue talker production to Paris, product to be made in cooperation with Radio-Pictures and RCA Protophone.

Last year's total of native-mades was 11 subjects, work being done on one of the American sound recording devices taken on a rental basis.

Difficulty of this scheme is that bringing technical workers to Sweden is too expensive.

QUICK RETURNS, NOT LONG RUNS

Paris, Dec. 16.

A desire for quick returns on product is killing off the long run idea for American pictures in this territory, especially on Paris boulevards. Until now boulevard runs have been encouraged as exploitation, after the American manner of twice daily showings, as a preliminary to general release.

Osso is even showing the picture "Arthur" in the provinces before opening it in Paris—and making a great success out of that form of advertising.

Warner's French talker, "Contre Enquete," now at the Capucines, is being booked day and date at the other boulevard house, the 1,200-seat Folies Dramatique, and is soon to open in the Pathe-Natan neighborhood establishments without regard to a boulevard run.

EXPERTS TO DEAL WITH EUROPE'S TALKER JAM

Paris, Dec. 16.

The involved situation of talkers in Central Europe has become so aggravated, owing to language and political problems, that specialists have been assigned to handle the tangle. Experts are being picked from western European territories and shifted into the seat of the trouble.

The new supervisors will make their headquarters in Vienna which is the nearest big capital to the storm center. Western Electric is dispatching Francis Marion, now head of the organization in France and especially fitted for the mission by reason of his long experience in Austria. David Latourete Brown, formerly Austrian manager, moves in to substitute for Marion.

Cutting Hague Cinema Tax to Rate of Legit

The Hague, Dec. 16.

The financial committee of The Hague aldermen have proposed to the council that a reduction of 5% be ordered in the amusement tax assessed against cinemas.

Such a rate would bring the picture places in line with the rates paid by legitimate theatres. It is probable the council will adopt the recommendation.

Stinnes' Daughter to Wed

London, Dec. 16.

Carl Axel Soderstrom, described as a film producer, 36 years old, applied at the Registry office today (Tuesday) for a marriage license.

Bride-to-be is disclosed as Clarenore Stinnes, 29, daughter of the late Hugo Stinnes, German millionaire industrialist.

FRENCH-GERMAN VERSIONS ONLY OK

Paris Conference of Attaches Think Filming in U. S. Safer—Fear Overnight Legislation a Jeopardy to American Activity

URGE CIRCUIT CONTROL

Paris, Dec. 16.

Dr. Julius Klein, special U. S. Department of Commerce envoy to examine into the foreign film market closed his conferences here with American commercial attaches from all European centers in time to sail for home today (16).

Views were heard from the attaches from Germany, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, Spain, France, Czecho-Slovakia and Italy, making a pretty thorough survey at first hand of all Europe.

As an outcome of the whole series of pourlerleys, the consensus was disclosed that:

(1) The Continental market promises great potentialities, but to realize them it will be necessary to

(Continued on page 43)

DUBBED VOICE CASE SETTLED

London, Dec. 16.

The case of Warwick Ward against Warners, involving the rights of an actor whose voice is dubbed, has been settled with payment to the player of $5,000.

Ward sued for damages through Warners trade showing a picture in which his voice was dubbed, alleging that the result caused damage to his reputation and standing.

In addition to the sum in damages, Ward gets a permanent injunction against the release of the dubbed version.

The picture will be released as a silent.

MEXICO OUSTS FOREIGN GAMBLERS, COP GRAVY

Mexico City, Dec. 16.

Mexico is driving all foreign game operators out of the country on the grounds they evaded taxes, and will hereafter take charge of all gaming within her borders.

The edict started with a drive against all gambling joints along the border run by foreigners. First to go was George Pratt, an American, who for a long time has run flourishing spots in towns near the U. S. line, playing local officials against the Federal people.

The State Department determined to give Pratt the air when they catch him and has announced that all foreign jointsters who laugh at the law will get tickets home.

All legalized gambling in the Republic hereafter will be under the supervision of the Government.

Par's Dutch Film

The Hague, Dec. 16.

Agitation in Holland in favor of talkers in the native tongue has brought an experimental undertaking by Paramount in that direction. The American producer will make a Dutch version of "Television," made about a month ago by Thiele, dialog being German.

Roland Verno is star of the Par-amount cast.

Germany Bans "All Quiet" as Political Move, Orders Check On Propaganda; U Shifts Plans

FOX'S PARIS STUDIO

Shifts Production Plans From Berlin for Time Being

Paris, Dec. 16.

Fox has practically decided to do its European producing in Paris for the present, postponing all production plans for Berlin.

Company's agents are now dickering for a Paris plant and it is reported will shortly have an announcement on the location.

ARGENTINE '30 TRADE BIGGER

Buenos Aires, Dec. 16.

Picture business for Buenos Aires for 1930 will be better than in 1929, and this in spite of the political crisis and widespread business depression.

Warm weather this week reacts against theatre attendance, but all the film houses are doing moderately well. Metro-Goldwyn has made a wise move in releasing program material, while the Paramount, Fox and Universal new releases are hitting nicely.

The last named's "All Quiet" continues big in second run. With the exception of this film and "Love Parade" nothing great has been shown from Hollywood in this territory this year, and the increase in trade is thus regarded as even more significant.

Practically all the Spanish versions have made money, especially in second runs.

CON. FILM LAB. AFTER ALL BRITISH PLANTS?

London, Dec. 16.

H. J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Laboratories, of America, is in England gum-shoeing around while making a survey of the laboratory field.

Story in circulation is that he has in mind a plan to get the various British plants and consolidate them as a preliminary to taking them over as the English branch of the American organization. There also may be a color film idea involved.

Consolidated Film was reported some months ago as considering the project of establishing an English subsidiary.

Story around is that Yates would like to assemble all the British plants leaving outside only those plants connected with studios and devoted largely to the printing of "rushes."

Firms already approached with the idea understood to be Automatic Printers, Standard Film, Olympic Laboratories and Williamson's.

Argentine Indifferent To Native Film Project

Buenos Aires, Dec. 16.

A delegation of Argentine men who declare their intention of pushing ahead with native production of pictures, has been seeking an audience with the President of the Republic for some time.

They are anxious to obtain assurances that Spanish dialog film will receive preference at the hands of the government before they make the plunge. To this end they want legislation to protect such subjects.

The group has not yet been able to catch the President's ear.

Berlin, Dec. 16.

Prohibition in Germany of "All Quiet on the Western Front" (U) is a political move and is not directed against foreign pictures in general nor against the film trade. Ban was dictated by the foreign office and the Ministry of the Interior yielded to the Government, in the person of Dr. Seegar as the super-censor.

The ostensible grounds are that the picture would prejudice German prestige abroad, since it shows the defeat of the German people, and the population is now so depressed by economic adversity and so excited by Nationalistic agitation that further provocation must be avoided.

Political reasons are all that apply and there is no thrust at the picture trade involved in the incident. Public opinion in Germany is divided on the subject. Hugenberg, owner of Ufa, wrote a letter for the suppression of the film and another to the delegates of the Exhibitors' association asking that they refuse to run it.

The leading newspapers representing the party of the left wing, notably the "Berliner Tageblatt" and the Ullstein press, are indignant at the prohibition.

Berlin is greatly excited over the whole incident, and the provinces

(Continued on page 43)

U. S. Technicians In Williamson-Taits' Australian Pic. Plans

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Williamson-Tait, Australian theatre operators, previously reported entering the picture producing field, are engaging Hollywood picture directors, players and technicians for their studio in Melbourne.

Tom Holt, W-T exec, here for the past two weeks, has purchased a single R-C-A sound chanel recording unit which will be shipped to Australia next week. Additional sound equipment has been ordered for later delivery.

David Bloomberg and Alan Mills, sound engineers, have been given six-months' contracts and are leaving Dec. 21 for the Antipodes with Arthur Higgins, cameraman, on the Monowani from Vancouver.

Players and directors are expected to be engaged during the coming week. All will receive six-months' contracts with options.

Holt says the series of six features planned will be produced with the American market in mind. Each film will have at least two American names in the cast. No arrangements have been made for U. S. distribution as yet. Release for England, Canada, Africa and Australia is set.

Sound stages are now under construction at the Melbourne studio. Production on the first picture starts early in February.

GRANDEUR IN ITALY IS MILDLY RECEIVED

Milan, Dec. 16.

First demonstration of Grandeur film in Italy made no great impression, even in so sprightly a picture as "Happy Days" (Fox). There was mildly favorable fan reaction to the big screen, with each figure almost a close-up in effect.

Transfer of subject to Italy, however, works against it. Seems destined for a short run. Sound reproduction here was rather blurred.

McVicker's Loop's Hi-Light, $39,800, Palace, Minus Names, $22,200; "Today," Indie, $10,200, 2d Wk.

Chicago, Dec. 16.

"Min and Bill," at McVicker's, was one of the few flickers able to withstand the annual pre-Christmas wobble.

Wide film came into the Oriental with Realife, Metro-Goldwyn's process, for "Billy the Kid." Edge of the big screen was taken off, however, by the run of "Danger Lights" (Radio) at the State-Lake a couple of weeks ago. B. & K. realized it, and didn't go heavy on the Realife plug.

"Lady's Morals" was forced on B. & K., and surprised by receiving an excellent set of notices. Results, however, for the first three days were not stirring. "Life of the Party," which closed at the Roosevelt in midweek, was sent into the three B. & K. deluxe neighborhood immediately, B. & K. waiving the 14 days protection it might have claimed.

"Hell's Angels," hitting its first slump in midweek after a big week end on its third week, will stick around two weeks more.

Estimates for Last Week

Castle (Beck) (299; 35-40-60)—"Third Alarm" (Tiff.) Dropped badly in second week to $3,100; "Juno and the Paycock" (BI), now current, but being flaunted as the "Shame of Mary Boyle," with "adults only" over the entrance; flicker had uneventful run two weeks ago at the arty Punch and Judy, now only a memory.

Chicago (Publix-B. & K.) (4,000; 50-75-85)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Stage show. Couldn't hold to mark, with reviews and comment not strong; just fair at $41,000.

McVicker's (Publix-B. & K.) (1,-865; 50-75-85). "Min and Bill" (M-G). Ace of the loop; originally spotted for one week at the Chicago, but switched to this run house, where it cleaned up; excellent $39,-800 for first week.

Monroe (Fox) (1,000; 25-40)—"Check and Double Check" (Radio). Picture still showing strength, after runs both in loop and neighborhoods; boosted house nicely to $4,-800; well above average.

Oriental (Publix-B. & K.) (3,200; 50-75-85)—"Billy the Kid" (M-G). Stage show. Wide film of no special meaning here following State-Lake's big screen some weeks ago; picture and stage show pleased, however, to grab nice $31,400.

Orpheum (Warner) (650; 40-60)—"Gorilla" (FN). Couldn't get started, and mean reviews killed chances; first week not more than weak $3,100; Robert Ripley, cartoonist, did a personal appearance one night.

Palace (R-K-O) (2,300; 50-75-85)—"Tol'able David" (Col). Vaude. Picture a draw with Joan Peers, local girl; stage show accounted one of the most entertaining in weeks; picked up to good $22,250.

Roosevelt (Publix-B. & K.) (1,500; 50-75-85)—"Life of the Party" (Wil). Dropped in third week and yanked; not bad for last stanza at $11,000; "Lady's Morals" (M-G), opened in midweek and did fair trade with unknown Grace Moore as lead; $9,200 first three days.

State-Lake (R-K-O) (2,700; 50-75-85)—"Her Man" (Pathe). Another one that can't be explained by the boys who were predicting phenomenal trade; opened midweek, and for three days not good at $8,-900; "Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe) closed weakly for last four days at about $10,000; house starting to feel absence of vaude and a smash line-up of flickers.

United Artists (Publix-UA) (1,-700; 50-75-85)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). Still doing nicely, though had its first sharp slump; closed third week to $26,300; two more weeks.

Woods (Jones) (1,200; 50-75-85)—"Today" (Security). Slid in second week to $10,200, but still showing profit; "Atlantic" (BI) replaced on Saturday (13).

Twin City Theatre Man Leaves $1,000,000 Estate

Minneapolis, Dec. 16.

Twin Cities have the reputation of being bad show towns, but they can't be so terribly bad after all.

It has been revealed in probate court that the estate of the late L. N. Scott, who operated the Minneapolis and St. Paul Metropolitans, amounted to almost $1,000,000—$941,745 to be exact. Of this amount $11,500 was listed as real estate. The inheritance tax amounts to $33,534.

Bulk of the estate has been left to the widow, Mrs. L. N. Scott, the administrator, who is operating the two Metropolitans at present. Mr. Scott started in the show business here on a shoe string.

UP POPS DENVER

$23,000 Best—"Morocco" Does $10,700 —Tabor, at $9,500, Only Laggard

Denver, Dec. 16.
(Drawing population, 400,000)
Weather: Fair

All houses but the Tabor reported better grosses last week. "Morocco," at the Paramount, kept them coming all week.

"Min and Bill" boosted the Denver plenty while Ted Mack and stage show received a lot of word-of-mouth boosting. Figures for the Aladdin are better than for some time with "Sin Takes a Holiday," "Half Shot" did better than average at the Rialto.

Estimates for Last Week

Aladdin (Huffman) (1,500; 35-50-75)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). Good at $7,000.

Denver (Publix) (2,300; 25-35-50) —"Min and Bill" (M-G). Way above average at $23,000.

Paramount (Publix) (2,000; 25-35-50)—"Morocco" (Par). Fair at $10,-700.

Rialto (Publix) (1,040; 25-35-50) —"Half Shot at Sunrise" (Radio). Good with $5,300.

Tabor (Huffman) (1,900; 25-35-50)—"The Dancers" (Fox). Fair for $9,500.

'DOORWAY' $17,500 AND 'LIGHTNIN' AT $16,500

New Orleans, Dec. 16.
(Drawing population, 500,000)
Weather: Sultry

"Doorway to Hell" and "Lightnin'" ran neck and neck for box office consideration the first four days of last week, but during the final period the gang film opened up a gap to finish $1,000 ahead of Rogers. Both pictures did very well. "Lightnin'" took the Saenger out of the red for the first time in two months.

"Africa Speaks" let the Orpheum down considerably, the jungle film getting but $11,000. The Strand and Tudor were both off from previous weeks. "Lady's Morals" only got $3,300 at the Strand, while "The Big Trail," at a free rental for its second week at the Tudor, had to be taken off after three days.

Neighborhood houses showing an upturn after a rather dull summer.

Estimates for Last Week

Loew's State (3,218; 60)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB). Especially good in view of pre-Xmas period; $17,500 excellent week.

Saenger (3,568; 65)—"Lightnin'" (Fox). Rogers' latest gave theatre its best week in some time, $16,500.

Orpheum (2,400; 60)—"Africa Speaks" (Col.). Not so hot; $11,000.

Strand (1,800; 50)—"Lady's Morals" (M-G). Light at $3,300.

Tudor (800; 50)—"Big Trail" (Fox), and "Sea Legs" (Par). Just about broke even, $3,600.

$34,000 IN NINE DAYS FOR 'LIGHTNIN'"-WASH.

Washington, Dec. 16.
(Est. White Population, 450,000)
Weather: Rain and Cold

"Lightnin'" topped everything last week by a good $6,000. In for nine days, Will Rogers topped his previous two pictures.

Earle business was down somewhat but hanging higher than old figures. Other houses had nothing to write home about.

Estimates for Last Week

Columbia (Loew)—"Feet First" (Par) (1,232; 35-50). Fairly good second week; $9,000.

Earle (Warner)—"Widow from Chicago" (FN), vaude (2,244; 25-35-40-60-70). Down somewhat but still holding own; got $15,000; currently, with Winnie Lightner in person, place isn't big enough to hold them.

Fox (Fox)—"Lightnin'" (Fox), stage show (3,434; 15-25-35-50-60). Did right well at $25,100; on nine days $34,000.

Met (Warner)—"Mother's Cry" (WB) (1,685; 35-50). Still a problem; $5,500.

Rialto (U)—"Today" (Ind.) (1,-978; 35-50-60-70). Sensational advertising continuing to hold house well above previous levels; nine days may have brought $8,500.

R-K-O (Keith's)—"Big Money" (Pathe) (1,975; 35-50). Styled excellent picture but response not so good; $7,500.

ALWAYS FIRST

December FORTUNE magazine puts MEYER DAVIS' ORCHESTRAS in first place as society's favorite music.
This announcement follows right after all the Ball given by Mrs. A. Felix DuPont at the Bellevue Stratford, Philadelphia, November 28, for which Meyer Davis personally led his orchestra of 40.
Just a coincidence—but typical.

BEERY'S 3 CINCY FILMS, TOWN NEAR $100,000

Cincinnati, Dec. 16.
(Drawing Population, 700,000)
Weather: warm

Holiday shopping helped rather than hurt at the downtown theatres last week. Combined grosses hit high at barely under $100,000, beating previous week.

Current popularity of Wallace Beery was capitalized by the simultaneous showing of three pictures in which he appears. Never before had a screen artist been given such recognition here.

Estimates for Last Week

Albee (R-K-O) (3,300; 35-75)—"Cat Creeps" (U), and vaude. Stage show, topped by Jack Pearl, was so-so and screen fare lost edge because of the popularity that mystery play had in legit and as a silent picture; fairly good at $27,000.

Lyric (R-K-O) (1,400; 30-50)—"Min and Bill" (M-G). Winning team of Beery and Marie Dressler created town talk and drew $23,000; close to record set by "The Big House"; holds over.

Palace (R-K-O) (2,700; 30-50)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). Takings of $20,000 rated good considering attraction was road showed here at the Shubert for several weeks.

Capitol (R-K-O) (2,000; 30-50)—"Life of the Party" (WB). Fair at slightly over $14,000.

Strand (R-K-O) (1,350; 25-50)—"Billy the Kid" (M-G). Slightly under $5,000; fair.

Keith's (Lisbon) (1,600; 30-50)—"Way for a Sailor" (M-G). Average at $6,500.

Family (R-K-O) (1,140; 25-40)—"Headin' North" (Tiff), and "Africa Speaks" (Col). Split. Below average at $4,000.

$17,000 FOR 'CAT'-IND., 'ANGELS' BIG AT $15,300

Indianapolis, Dec. 16.
(Drawing population, 450,000)
Weather: Mild

Loew's Palace did most the business last week with "Hell's Angels." Other houses suffered from whatever pre-holiday spirit may be around.

Lyric got a lucky break with Rae Samuels. "Indianapolis News" introduced its "Blue Streak" sports edition a week prior to her billing, and public thought it exploitation of "The Blue Streak of Vaudeville."

Skouras-Publix boys fighting hard for business with big daily ads, "two-in-one" gag, and offering free parcel checking service to shoppers. Started plugging in ads for next week on Tuesday, with Friday opening.

Estimates for Last Week

Indiana (Publix) (3,300; 35-50-65)—"Cat Creeps" (U). Helen Twelvetrees local stock favorite and helped draw; fair at $17,000.

Circle (Publix) (2,800; 25-40-50)—"Sunny" (FN). Liked by those who saw it, but poor at $7,600.

Loew's Palace (Loew's) (2,800; 25-35-50)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). Was the show of the week; justified hold over; big at $15,300.

Apollo (4th Ave) (1,100; 25-35-50) —"Lightnin'" (Fox). Did a nice week's business; $7,700.

Lyric (4th Ave.) (2,000; 25-35-50) —"East Is West" (U). Rae Samuels topping R-K-O vaude bill. Picture weak, but Samuels drew; promotion tie-ups big help; $9,300 fair, considering recent grosses.

Ohio (Publix) (1,400; 15-25)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB). Did fairly for a second run, $2,000.

Minn.'s Good Week—'Morocco' $26,700

Most Houses Hold Own, Though Pan Closes —$8,500 for 'Derelict'—Orpheum $12,000

Minneapolis, Dec. 16.
(Drawing Population, 500,000)
Weather: Favorable

Mild weather, poison for the merchants, again helped show biz and the local loop enjoyed pretty good figures for a second successive week.

Marlene Dietrich and her initial picture, "Morocco," were the week's big noise. Audience reaction to Miss Dietrich was mixed. Moreover, the picture did not arouse a great amount of enthusiasm, but clever exploitation had piqued public curiosity and the crowds turned out.

"Hell's Angels," at the Century, did not hold up as well in its second and final week as expected, though it garnered profitable returns. After two weeks of bad business, Pantages called it quits and once more is dark. House was unable to solve the problem of obtaining sufficiently strong screen fare. Future of this valuable property is problematical. It is the only dark theatre in the loop and has one of the best locations.

Estimates for Last Week

Minnesota (Publix) (4,200; 75)—"Morocco" (Par) and Publix unit, "Hello Paree." Picture did not get outstanding comment but business was very good, due to the advance interest aroused in Marlene Dietrich; $26,700 one of the best weeks in a long time.

Century (Publix) (1,600; 75)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). Second and last week around $7,600, profitable and fair; had good fortnight.

State (Publix) (2,200; 60)—"Derelict" (Par). First Bancroft picture in a long while did not click so strongly; maybe $8,800, fair.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (3,890; 50)—"Big Money" (Pathe), and vaude. Picture and show pleased exceptionally well; little fluctuation week to week; around $12,000; good.

Seventh Street (R-K-O) (1,400; 50)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). Second successive week in loop, having been moved over from Orpheum; played at same prices as at latter house, but without stage entertainment; near $4,000 good enough.

Lyric (Publix) (1,200; 40)—"Fast and Loose" (Par). Deemed corking picture but absence of film names hurt; $2,900 fair.

Pantages (1,600; 35)—"Extravagance" (Tiff). Satisfactory, but not heavy enough to pull; about $2,-600; poor and house closed.

Aster (Publix) (900; 35)—"Devil with Women" (Fox). Failed to draw; only about $1,500.

Grand (Publix) (1,100; 35)—"Billy the Kid" (M-G), first half; "Madame Satan" (M-G), last half. Second loop runs. About $2,500, good.

NEW HAVEN UP AND DOWN

"Doorway" Gets $9,200—"Lightnin'" Light at $12,500

New Haven, Dec. 16.
(Drawing Population, 300,000)
Weather: Favorable

"Lightnin'" fell below expectations and "Tol'able David" also drew lightly.

Citizens of this town seem to have about $50,000 a week to spend among the four big houses, and the picture with the biggest appeal gets the largest share. Last week it was "Doorway to Hell," at the Roger Sherman, which pulled a heavy $9,-200, although "Morocco" was okay at the Paramount.

Estimates for Last Week

Roger Sherman (WB) (2,200; 60)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB). Best returns in many weeks; $9,200, good.

Paramount (Publix) (2,353; 65)—"Morocco" (Par), and Publix unit. Good stage show helped;

Fox-Poli (Fox) (3,040; 65)—"Lightnin'" (Fox), and F-M unit. Disappointing at $12,500.

Bijou (Fox) (1,536; 50)—"Tol'able David" (Col). Liked but couldn't draw; $3,200, low.

'ANGELS' SWAMPS PROV. WITH $23,300 AT STATE

Providence, Dec. 16.
(Drawing population, 315,000)
Weather: Favorable

Packing a terrific wallop, "Hell's Angels" went soaring sky-high for a sensational gross of $23,300 at Loew's State last week. Feature, of course, holds over.

Business here hurt the other stands, only the Albee being able to come through.

Estimates for Last Week

Loew's State (3,500; 15-50)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). Biggest opening town has ever had; so big that other theatres were virtually empty on first day; business brisk throughout week with capacity every night; $23,300, which is very high for this house.

R-K-O Albee (2,500; 15-50)—"Big Money" (Pathe). Only other bright spot in town; Eddie Quillan got raves everywhere; opened poorly but picked up to slightly under $14,000; good.

Paramount (2,200; 15-50)—"Along Came Youth" (Par). Town figured this weakest thing Buddy Rogers turned out; management must have thought so, too, as a novelty singing act was put in to strengthen show; low at $10,200.

Majestic (Fay) (2,200; 15-50)—"Big Trail" (Fox). Opened poorly and just barely got by rest of week; slightly over $12,500 reported.

R-K-O Victory (1,600; 15-50)—"See America Thirst" (U). Couldn't do anything. $6,500.

Fay's (1,600; 15-50)—"College Lovers" (FN), and Blackstone on stage. Vaude boosted gross higher this week; fairly good $8,000.

DETROIT HOUSES OFF; $30,500 FOR 'DANCERS'

Detroit, Dec. 16.

Business was very bad last week, with no obvious reason. Two pictures slated for runs managed to get one week only. Pictures were "Lincoln" and "Outward Bound." This despite rave notices. "Tol'able David" also with swell notices did poor business for six days.

"War Nurse" went the way of the rest.

Estimates for Last Week

Michigan — "War Nurse" (M-G) (4,045; 35-50-75). Picture disappointed with poor anticlimactic ending; gross at $36,900.

Fox—"Dancers" (Fox) (5,100; 15-25-50). Weak sister, with not much expected did accordingly; fair at $30,500.

Fisher — "Truth About Youth" (WB) (2,300; 35-50-75). Neighborhood house did lightly. $18,600.

R-K-O Downtown — "Tol'able David" (U) (2,700; 15-25-50). Picture was rushed into open Friday after preceding film was advertised as holding over. Did only fair at $12,000 for six days; house has been consistently making money.

United Artists — "Lincoln" (UA) (3,300; 35-50-75-90). Class picture failed to draw and was pulled after a week, although several weeks were hoped for; $10,800.

Paramount — "Outward Bound" (WB) (3,000; 35-50-75). Also failed to draw; neither title nor picture were boxoffice; $8,500.

State—"Min and Bill" (M-G) (3,-000; 15-25-50). Three weeks for this picture. Good at $12,000.

"Imagine's" $5,100 and Stock Troupe Top Topeka

Topeka, Dec. 16.
(Drawing Population, 85,000)
Weather: Normal

Only one real attraction in town last week, "Just Imagine." It stood up against the annual pre-Christmas slump.

Stock company, at the reopened Isis, continued to hold and also slightly increased patronage.

Estimates for Last Week

Grand (1,400; 50) (Fox)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Caught on and got $5,100, good.

Jayhawk (1,500; 50) (Fox)—"Virtuous Sin" (Par) first half. Suffered from title and got only $1,000; "The Gorilla" (WB), last half, did fair business despite play has been here three times; total, $2,800, is poor.

Novelty (1,200; 50) (Fox)—"Moby Dick" (WB). Disappointment to all who had seen silent version; slumped to $1,100, very poor.

Isis (600; 35) (Ind)—"Oh, Doctor." McOwen Stock Co. with vaudeville; boosted business again; company now well into velvet and slightly better than $1,000, good.

Best Xmas Present
Subscription to
VARIETY
$10 for One Year
Always Welcome

FILM STOCKS JOIN SLUMP

'MIN AND BILL' PHILLY BEAUT AT $15,000

Philadelphia, Dec. 16.

Business in the picture houses was far off last week with two exceptions. It was the expected pre-holiday slump, but a little more severe than generally hoped.

Cheerful exceptions were the Stanton and Keith's. "Min and Bill," following its sensational $56,000 week at the Mastbaum, moved down to the Stanton, which has a 25-65 cent scale, and clicked to the tune of $15,000. It was held over for a second week and looks good for a third. Not since "Big House" has a picture gone across so solidly here. The following for both Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery here exceeds that of nearly all the handsome ones.

Keith's turned in a $22,500, its best with the exception of Thanksgiving week since Paramount took it over, with "Morocco." The critics liked the film and, for once, the fans followed suit. Interest in Marlene Dietrich helped and it, too, was held over.

Otherwise there wasn't a great deal to boast about. In actual size of gross, the Mastbaum led the bunch with $40,000 for "The Cat Creeps." However, that looked tame after two big weeks. Stage shows are worrying the management. Stanley-Warner people want to put over that side of the theatre's program without bringing in big names from outside.

The Earle sagged to $18,000—about its summer average—with "Man to Man." Name of Grant Mitchell, great stage favorite here, meant nothing to film fans. The Stanley had a woeful tale to tell with less than $13,000 for "Du Barry." Critics were not kind and taken out after single week.

At the Aldine "Hell's Angels," which began so sensationally, was off to $7,500 in its third week. Some of the daily grosses were pitiful, matinees especially sad. There was talk of taking it out Saturday, but it is now being held in until Christmas Day, when "Outward Bound" succeeds.

On the strength of Constance Bennett's "Common Clay," some of the wiseacres figured the same star would mean a lot in "Sin Takes a Holiday." Quite the contrary. Picture couldn't touch $12,000 in its second week at the Boyd and was under $30,000 on its fortnight's stay. The Fox had a good though not sensational week with "Just Imagine," for about $27,500. Trade tapered towards end of the run.

Estimates for Last Week

Mastbaum (4,800; 35-50-75)—"Cat Creeps" (U). Around $40,000, a drop of $15,000 from average of preceding two weeks; not what house should do during winter season.

Stanley (3,700; 35-50-75)—"Du Barry" (UA). About $13,000 and takenoff after single week bad.

Boyd (2,400; 35-50-75)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). In second week dropped to about $11,500; didn't quite touch $30,000 in two weeks whereas house used to gross that in single week right along.

Keith's (1,800; 35-50-75)—"Morocco" (Par). Splendid trade and held over $22,500.

Fox (3,000; 35-50-75)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Fairly good at $27,000; started better than it finished but was not held over as hoped.

Earle (2,000; 25-65)—"Man to Man" (WB). Near $18,000, a little under recent pace.

Stanton (1,700; 25-65)—"Min and Bill" (M-G). Moved here from Mastbaum and continued sensational pace; biggest thing in town since "Big House" for holding up; $15,000 and kept in; may make three weeks.

Karlton (1,000; 50)—"Lady's Morals" (M-G). Not so forte at $4,000 or less.

Arcadia (600; 50)—"Fast and Loose" (Par). Ditto with just over $3,000.

Aldine (1,500; $1.50)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). In third week off to $7,500; amazing drop after sensational first week; out Christmas Eve with "Outward Bound" (WB) to follow.

Johnson Revamping

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Reporting for work at Paramount, where he is under contract, Arthur Johnson was immediately recalled to revamp his own synchronized score for "City Lights," Charlie Chaplin's next film.

WINNIE CREDITED FOR STANLEY'S BIG $36,800

Pittsburgh, Dec. 16.

(Drawing Population, 1,000,000)
Weather: Fair

Main stem was off last week except for the Stanley, where Winnie Lightner, in person, gave the Warners' ace house a fine $36,800. Picture was "Up the River."

Not even Par's big ballyhoo for Marlene Dietrich could awaken any excitement in "Morocco," and Penn fell off to an exceptionally weak $21,800. "Hell's Angels" moved to the Aldine after a big preceding week at the Penn, did nicely at $9,000, considering house couldn't advertise attraction until day it closed at sister theatre down the block.

"Derelict" was a big disappointment at both the Fulton and Sheridan Square, indicating that his recent pictures haven't helped Bancroft. "Just Imagine" dropped sharply on its second week at the Warner, and vaudfilm is not doing as well as expected at the Harris.

Estimates for Last Week

Aldine (Loew's) (1,900; 35-50)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). Okay at $9,000; week before picture did tremendously at Loew sister house, Penn.

Enright (WB) (3,700; 15-25-35-40-60)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB). Nice at $11,000 for first run in East Liberty; brought out here after big biz a few weeks ago at downtown Stanley.

Fulton (Shea-Benham) (1,750; 10-25-35-50)—"Derelict" (Par). A disappointment at $6,200, which is just fair.

Harris (WB) (1,800; 10-20-30-40)—Vaudfilm hasn't been the expected click here; last week, with "What Men Want" (U) and five acts, hardly bettered $4,700; that is just a little more than $1,000 above average under straight picture policy.

Penn (Loew's-UA) (3,300; 25-35-60-75)—"Morocco" (Par). Not so hot and $21,800 poor for this site. Ted Claire on stage in debut as resident m. c.

Sheridan Sq. (R-K-O) (1,200; 15-25-35-50)—"Derelict" (Par). Proportionately as poor in East Liberty as downtown; maybe $4,000, although doubtful.

Stanley (WB) (3,700; 25-35-60)—"Up the River" (Fox). Winnie Lightner in person great draw at $36,800; biggest figure here since "Singing Fool"; sensational gross, with all credit going to Lightner.

Warner (WB) (2,000; 25-35-60)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Down in second week to $6,000; bad figure here; first week hardly justified hold over.

Louisville Falls Off, 'Morocco'-'Lightnin'' Fair

Louisville, Dec. 16.

(Drawing Population, 500,000)
Weather: Cool

Grosses were down last week in spite of fair entertainment all around. National was socked the hardest for a low figure of $9,000.

Poor judgment used in booking "Hell's Angels" into the State immediately after "War Nurse." Result was somewhat feeble patronage for this accepted special. Marlene Dietrich scored a mild sensation in "Morocco." Feature held the Rialto nearest to usual of any house in town.

Estimates for Last Week

Alamo (4th Ave.) (1,100; 15-25-40)—"Little Accident" (U). Dropped in spite of Fairbanks, Jr., and Slim Summerville, strong draws locally; near $3,500, off.

Brown (Brown) (1,509; 15-25-40)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). House making a desperate struggle to win regular patrons with stunts and two-for-one coupons in local thrift books; bridled last week to $2,000.

Mary Anderson (R-K-O) (1,387; 30-50)—"Widow from Chicago" (FN). Edward G. Robinson took billing over Nell Hamilton and Alice White; $2,900, under average.

National (Bass) (2,300; 30-50)—"The Squealer" (Col), F-M "Smiles" on stage. With no permanent m. c., someone from the units fills this spot; $9,000 lowest since recent opening but shows profit.

Rialto (R-K-O) (2,940; 30-50)—"Morocco" (Par). Marlene Dietrich liked and return of Menjou also helped; $3,750 a slight slump.

State (Loew) (3,252; 35-50)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). Right after "War Nurse" was too much for the flaps and their b. f.'s; fair down at $9,000.

Strand (4th Ave.) (1,365; 35-50)—"Lightnin'" (Fox). Not bad at $4,300 but submerged a little.

WARNERS BELOW 11 ON VOLUME

Whole List Cracks As Steel Goes Below 135 After Sharp Battle — Eastman Plunges to Near 42—Par and Fox Hold Near Old Lows.

By AL GREASON

The market broke through to brand new lows again yesterday (Tues.) and this time on fairly large volume, approximating 4,000,000 shares for the first time since October.

Amusements got into the decline in a more active way than has been the rule for a fortnight, the slump hitting in certain spots. Warner Bros. dropped below 11 and closed at 11 even on sales of nearly 50,000 while Eastman Kodak crashed to 142, recovering to 144 at the close.

No group and few individual stocks were spared. Standard Oil of Jersey did a tail spin to 45 and Steel broke all old resistance points touching 134½, but only after a spirited battle. Turnover here was well above 100,000 shares.

Tax selling, sales by banks in preparation for the year-end condition statement to the banking department were blamed in public pronouncements, but it all seemed to be a part of the general pessimism in which the Street and traders uptown have been steeped since early October.

One ray of hope came in a better performance in the bond market, but there were few indications in yesterday's close that the day was likely to mark the end of the present bear market.

Paramount probably gave the best account of itself, the sponsoring clique pegging their favorite at 36⅝, about the spot where it has shown strong resistance in the worst recent days of the decline. Fox also was well taken and seemed for the time to have frightened off the short sellers, who found better prospects in other directions.

Loew held its bottom of last Saturday, but never rallied from the steady pounding it received, closing at the low of the day, 42½. Sales totaled close to 15,000 shares.

Unconvincing Rally

The rally of Monday—anything that shows plus at all is a rally this fall—didn't carry conviction. It had too much the aspect of being strong armed upward. Even Wall Street veterans cannot remember a long bear market that ever found a bottom and made the turn about on a day of casual trading like that session. A selling wave practically always builds itself up to a crest and breaks in a shower of spray more or less spectacular.

The Monday opening looked set for such a selling climax, but after the first hour Street powers took the situation in hand and by practically pegging Steel and American Can, forced covering by timid shorts. That kind of buying held the market up for the rest of the day, but it was conspicuous that anywhere above the new bottoms volume dropped off sharply.

Dealings in the first half hour totaled 770,000 shares and by noon

(Continued on page 22)

Yesterday's Prices

STOCK EXCHANGE

	High	Low	Last	Net Chge.
2,200 Cons. F...	12⅞	12	12	—¼
15,200 East. F...	151	142½	144	—4⅝
34,000 Fox	39¼	34¼	35	—4
2,000 Gen. Th...	8⅝	7	7	—⅝
16,100 Loew	46¾	42½	42½	—2¾
17,300 Par	38	36¾	36¾	—⅝
2,700 Pathe	2⅝	1⅞	2
24,600 R-K-O ...	16¼	14⅝	14⅝	—1⅛
1,400 Shub	4⅜	4⅛	4⅛	—¼
44,000 W. B....	13⅛	10⅞	11	—2

BONDS

$27,000 Gen. Th...	59	58½	58½	—1½
10,000 Loew	100	100	100	—1
24,000 Par	79	78⅝	79	+1
12,000 Shub	24	20	20	—8
30,000 W. B....	61	60	60	—1

CURB

700 Gen. T. pf	28⅞	20⅝	20⅝	—1⅝
500 Col. P....	17	17	17	+ ⅜
1,100 Fox Th...	4¼	4¼	4¼	— ⅛
900 Techn	7⅝	7	7	— ⅛

B'way Houses Bend Under Pre-Xmas Pressure — 'Sin's' 2d Mayfair Week, $28,300

FIFI PUSHES CAPITOL, MONT'L, UP TO $20,000

Montreal, Dec. 16.

(Drawing Population, 600,000)
Weather: Mild and Slush

Week marked by bad showing at His Majesty's (legit) of "Love Thieves," new musical comedy, opening here. Was badly short of rehearsals and even scenery. Piece only got around $2,500 at $2.50 top. Management would have retired after first night but for extensive advertisement campaign.

Film houses spotty with the Palace picking up to the extent of $4,000 over previous week and the Capitol slightly bettering. This is believed to be the result of a three weeks' campaign of stars in person and Publix units which has boosted this house into first place in this city. Fifi Dorsay, alias Yvonne Lussier and native daughter, speaking their own language on stage and radio, helped "Three French Girls" to best gross of week at $20,000, which wasn't too bad.

Palace collected $17,000, much better than recently, and "Morocco" was a near-hit with Marlene Dietrich likely to be popular here. Loew's with exceptional vaude bill and "The Squealers" held to average.

Princess started badly with "Up the River," but word of mouth pluggling picked picture up and ended at $8,500. Neighborhoods were off.

Estimates for Last Week

His Majesty's (CT) (1,600; 50-$2.50)—"Love Thieves" (legit). Even easy going local press panned show; $2,500 deep in red.

Capitol (FP) (2,700; 40-75)—"Three French Girls" (M-G). Fifi Dorsay on stage pulled theatre into limelight; $20,000, good.

Palace (FP) (2,700; 40-75)—"Morocco" (Par). Dietrich much liked and Gary Cooper sure draw here; much better than previous week and $17,000, fair.

Loew's (FP) (3,200; 40-65)—"The Squealer" (Col). Vaude accounted for most of gross which was fair; $12,000.

Princess (CT) (2,300; 35-60)—"Up the River" (Fox). Bad weather at start brought poor houses but later show built; $8,500, fair.

Imperial (FP) (1,900; 25-40) Double bill. House seems to be on permanent downgrade; $3,500, below usual.

Roxy (Ind) (600; 50)—"Flying Scotchman" (British). Fans walking out and around $1,500, very low.

BUFFALO BIZ LEAPS, $15,000 FOR LAFAYETTE

Buffalo, Dec. 16.

(Drawing Pop., 500,000)
Weather: Rain

Business was mostly strong last week. Excellent offerings spelled good business with at least two houses topping peak figures.

Estimates for Last Week

Buffalo (Publix) (3,600; 30-40-65)—"Morocco" (Par). Lillian Roth, "Birds of a Feather." Great show; Dietrich registered heavily with local fans; Lillian Roth added personal touch which kept business soaring in line with personal appearance of Buddy Rogers week before; $36,200.

Hipp (Publix) (2,400; 40-60)—"Little Accident" (U) and vaude. Another good bill to swell business; did $20,800.

Century (Publix) (3,400; 40-60)—"Old English" (WB). Superlative film bad at boxoffice; apparently miles over the heads of local film fans; poor at $9,500.

Great Lakes (Fox) (3,400; 25-35-50)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Novel angle to this one kept takings spinning, but short of anticipated figures; around $11,000.

Lafayette (Ind) (3,400; 25)—"Her man" (Pathe). Biggest week for house since reopening two months ago; sensational business, and low price policy has got theatre-going public daffy; big at $15,000.

It was generally about the poorest week this year for Broadway film theatres. Only consolation was the first week of "The Blue Angel," which did the biggest business of the year at the Rialto with $61,000, only two grand under the record high.

Paramount slid with "Follow the Leader," garnering but $53,500. Geo. Bancroft, now personal appearing, got things off to rather a timid start on the past week end, realizing but $37,000.

Capitol also was thin with "Remote Control" for $64,400. Roxy also took quite a slide with $66,000 for the holdover week of "Lightnin'."

In its first full week "Mother's Cry" dipped slightly under with around $23,000, which can't be for long at the Winter Garden. The $9,600 "Viennese Nights" got at the Warners is disappointing. Strand got over the nut with a modest $22,000 for "Scarlet Pages."

Hughes got rid of one of his houses and United Artists opens its Colman-Goldwyn "The Devil To Pay" tomorrow (Thursday) night at $2 top. Picture is expected to finish out the Hughes lease, which goes until February. "Angels" is lingering at the Criterion until "Reaching for the Moon," also U. A., arrives late this month.

In its hold-over week "Sin Takes A Holiday" got $28,300 for the Mayfair. Globe went way below with $12,500 for "Boudoir Diplomat." "Morocco" satisfied at $32,400, and Paramountites are postponing the opening of "The Royal Family on Broadway" from Dec. 17 to 23 as the result.

"All Quiet" goes back into the Central about Dec. 20, this time at a grind and pop prices. Previously had strong $2 run at this same house.

Estimates for Last Week

Astor — "War Nurse" (M-G) (1,120; $1-1.50) (8th week). Off at $7,900.

Capitol—"Remote Control" (M-G) (4,620; 25-85-$1.50). Not good with $64,400.

Criterion—"Hell's Angels" (Caddo) (1,678; $1-$2.50) (20th week). The Gaiety closed Sunday and opens tomorrow night (Thursday) with "Devil to Pay" (UA) at $2; Criterion stalling along until "Reaching for the Moon" arrives about 29th.

Cohan—"The Yellow Mask" (BIP) (1,137; 25-50-75). Feature yanked before end of the week and foreign double-header clipped in; "Birth of a Nation" (sound) goes in the end of this week.

Globe—"Boudoir Diplomat" (U) (1,065; 25-50-75). Brought house very weak gross of $12,500.

Mayfair—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe) (2,200; 40-$1). At $28,300 that's a fair second week.

Paramount—"Follow the Leader" (Par) (3,665; 65-85-$1). Better than previous week but $58,500 is far from satisfactory; over past weekend George Bancroft's personal appearance widely ballyhooed got $37,000; just fair.

Rialto—"Blue Angel" (Ufa-Par) (2,000; 40-65-85-$1). Best picture of the year for the Rialto; smash first week of $61,000; just a couple of thousand under record.

Rivoli—"Morocco" (Par) (2,200; 40-65-85-$1) (5th week). Easing but $32,400 considered well worthwhile; "Royal Family" postponed until Dec. 23.

Roxy—"Lightnin'" (Fox) (6,205; 50-75-$1.50). Much too low for the Roxy even for a second week; $66,000.

Strand — "Scarlet Pages" (FN) (2,900; 25-50-75). Fair for $22,000.

Warners — "Viennese Nights" (WB) (1,700; $1-$2) (3d week). Mediocre $9,600 as total.

Winter Garden—"Mother's Cry" (WB) (1,418; 35-85-$1). For its first full week this one went under the line with $23,400; does not look as though it has chance for a run.

M-G Borrows Connie

Metro has secured Constance Bennett from Pathe for the role of Laura Murdock in "The Easiest Way."

Bob Armstrong also borrowed for "Within the Law" and Suzy Vernon from First National for "Singer of Seville."

$22,000 for "Paid," Criterion, And "Holiday's" $25,000, State, Are Easily Los Angeles' Best

Los Angeles, Dec. 16.
(Drawing Population, 1,500,000)
Weather: Fair

Seasonal pre-holiday drop—as expected. Continued spring temperature has the exhibitors swearing at the weather.

"Tol'able David" may point a lesson to the studios on remakes on its showing so close to home. Its $10,000 at the R-K-O tells everything. In addition to that, they're yanking "Boudoir Diplomat" at the Orpheum tomorrow, two days ahead of time. It opened with $1,700 for the week-end, which means it will be lucky to get $3,500 for the five days.

From hunger also at both the Publix-operated houses, the Paramount and United Artists. Latter, with "Lincoln," will be under $7,000 on the week, probably a new house low. However, it will be forced until the 24th, when "One Heavenly Night" comes in. Studio has assigned special educational ballyhooers to "Lincoln," counting on schools for the build-up.

"Along Came Youth" looks like another low entry at the Paramount with $15,000 indicated, which is very bad. House gives credit to the Publix units and ballyhoos the Paramount as being the home of New York stage shows, with the frank complaint that the pictures have been poor.

Only notable business getter of any outstanding importance is "Paid" at the Criterion, where $22,000 is sensational for this time of the season. This is the type of film which held the house up so well over the summer.

Estimates for Last Week

Carthay Circle (Fox)—"Min And Bill" (M-G) (1,500; 75-$1.50) (4th week). Dropped to under $13,000.

Chinese (Fox) —"Morocco" (Par) (2,028; 50-$1.50) (3rd week). Brodied five grand to $20,000; surprisingly, not getting the matinee business expected, but strong at night.

Criterion (Fox) — "Paid" (M-G) (1,600; 25-75) 1st week). Compared to the opening weeks of "Anna Christie" and "Divorcee" with $26,000 and $28,000, respectively, the $22,000 for this one on its opening week is plenty healthy.

Egyptian (UA-Fox) — "Fast and Loose" (Par) (1,800; 20-65). Big ballyhoo about the Egyptian's anniversary week, but extra trimmings didn't mean anything; $3,000 is rather awful.

State (Loew-Fox) — "Holiday" (Pathe) (2,024; 25-$1). Following its long $1.50 run, $25,000 okay.

Orpheum — "Boudoir Diplomat" (U) (2,270; 50-75). Being curtailed to five days due to poor business; got only $1,700 for the weekend; business dropped so rapidly in last few days of "Sin Takes A Holiday" previous week that final count was but $8,200.

Pantages (Fox) — "Renegades" (Fox) (2,700; 20-40-65-90). House still off with $12,000 much under par.

Paramount (Publix) — "Along Came Youth" (Par) (3,595; 25-75). Probably worse than "Virtuous Sin," which at $15,000 holds record low here under current stage policy.

R-K-O — "Tol'able David" (Col) (2,950; 30-65). At $10,000 and lucky to get that; frank antipathy exists toward remakes locally, besides there's no b.o. appeal in cast.

United Artists (Pub-UA)—"Lincoln" (UA) (2,100; 25-$1). At $6,000 way down, but not being yanked until Dec. 24, awaiting "One Heavenly Night" (UA).

Downtown (WB) — "A Soldier's Plaything" (WB) (1,800; 50-75). Sharp drop, and $12,000 poor.

Hollywood (WB)—"College Lovers" (FN) (2,756; 25-75). Also down at $12,000.

Seattle Ballyhoo No Harm to Tacoma Date

Tacoma, Dec. 16.
(Drawing population, 125,000)
Weather: Good

Orpheum had one of its best weeks in some time, stepping heavily on "Sunny." Used film right after the Liberty, in Seattle, exploiting by the heavy advertising in Seattle papers, which also reach here.

Estimates for Last Week

Broadway (Fox) (1,500; 25-60)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Novelty angle helped; $7,000, good.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (1,500; 25-35-50)—"Sunny" (FN). Marilyn Miller heavily billed; picture had real pull; $4,200.

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (650; 25-50) — "River's End" (WB). Got $3,000, fair.

Rialto (Fox) (1,200; 25-35-50)—"Sea Legs" (Par) and "Only Saps Work" (Par). Split week just fair; $6,600 and fair.

'MOROCCO' BIG IN BOS., MET TIPS OVER $40,000

Boston, Dec. 16.
(Drawing Population, 850,000)
Weather: Cold

New German star, Marlene Dietrich, was a high spot in last week's film news. Small Uptown and Olympia theatres did record biz with "Morocco." Show held for second week, with biz still going strong.

Marx Brothers, at the Met with a Buddy Rogers film, grossed $41,900; good, but not what it should have been.

Estimates for Last Week

Met (Publix) (4,380; 50-75)—"Along Came Youth" (Par). With Marx boys on stage, $41,900.

Loew's State (4,000; 30-40-50)—"The Bat Whispers" (U). Fair at $15,700.

Loew's Orpheum (4,000; 35-50-60) —"Min and Bill" (M-G). Also fair, $17,000.

Keith's (R-K-O) (4,000; 35-50-60) —"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). Last of three weeks not good at $13,000.

Keith-Boston (R-K-O) (3,000; 50-60)—"Big Money" (Pathe). Light at $15,100.

Fenway (1,360; 30-60)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Fair, $5,500.

Uptown (1,700; 30-60)—"Morocco" (Par). Record biz at $18,000.

Scollay (vaudfilm)—"Just Imagine" (Fox). Fair with $12,500.

Olympia—"Morocco" (Par). Fine on $21,000, near record.

Proctor's $20,600 Is Newark's Top—Off Week

Newark, Dec. 16.
(Drawing population, 850,000)
Weather: Cloudy

The Xmas slump hit almost everywhere. Proctor's stood out the best.

Estimates for Last Week

Branford (WB) (2,350; 25-50-65) —"College Lovers" (FN). Stage show. Return of unit brought back the locals; $19,000; n. s. g.

Capitol (WB) (1,200; 15-25-35-50) —"Big House" (M-G). Two weeks at Loew's evidently took all the gilt off; $3,100, bad.

Little (Newark M. P. Guild) (299; 35-60)—"Atlantic" (B.I.) Bad at $1,000.

Loew's State (2,800; 25-35-50)—"Sea Legs" (Par) and vaude. Flesh doesn't mean much here; $12,000; poor.

Mosque (WB) (3,281; 25-50-65)—"Scotland Yard" (Fox). Fox pictures rare here; $10,000, bad.

Proctor's (R-K-O) (2,650; 25-40-50-60)—"Brothers" (Col), and vaude. No depression here; $20,600 is good.

'MOROCCO' $18,000—K. C. 'WAR NURSE,' $13,400

Kansas City, Dec. 16.

Too much Christmas shopping to make things exciting for the theatres. At that they held up fairly well.

Both the Newman and Loew's Midland went after the femmes and spread the sex stuff strong for "War Nurse" and "Morocco." Mainstreet, with "Big Money," sought business from the comedy angle.

The Globe is again dark after five weeks of the Lole Bridge musical stock and first-run pictures. No announcement as to its reopening. Pantages has changed its opening day from Friday to Thursday, and is now a day in advance, or a week behind the other first runs down town, any way you figure it.

Estimates for Last Week

Loew's Midland—"War Nurse" (M-G) (4,000; 25-50). Hot publicity gave this one dandy start, and business held nicely; new organ policy marks first time that audience in this spot has been persuaded to sing; $13,400.

Mainstreet—"Big Money" (Pathe) (3,200; 25-35-50-60). If any proof needed that Kansas City likes its vaudeville, the steady business here is the answer; picture got strong laughs, but vaude not so forte; $15,800.

Newman—"Morocco" (Par) (1,890; 25-35-50-60). Went limit in telling and showing warmth of this one, and it was what the girls wanted; $18,000.

Royal—"Moby Dick" (WB) ($40; 25-40-50). Reviewers liked this one and gave favorable reports; however, returns just fair; $3,500.

Pantages—"Brothers" (Col) (2,200; 25-50). Dual personality drama a little too deep for the Pan bunch; in spite of enjoyable vaude bill business off; Eddie Black, new publicity director for house, and a former vaudevillian, went on for a single and stopped the show; due to changing opening from Friday to Thursday, only six days for Brothers"; $7,100.

BALTO'S WEAK WEEK, CENTURY BEST—$19,000

Baltimore, Dec. 16.
(Drawing Population, 850,000)
Weather: Fair

"Min and Bill" was the most consistent money getter that local b. o.'s have had in some time. For three weeks it grossed over $40,000. One week at the Stanley, two at the Valencia and one at the Parkway. Final week was day and dated at the latter two houses.

A bank closing and a run on another augmented the usual pre-holiday letup. Financial condition regarded as sound here and no real cause for lading the gloom.

Sunday films got a real try last week end when 90% of the members of the MPTOA took part in a Sunday charity benefit.

Estimates for Last Week

Century (Loew) —"Sea Legs" (Par) (3,200; 25-60). Under average and lowest since return of stage shows; about $19,000.

Stanley (Loew-Stanley-Crandall) —"The Bat Whispers" (U) (3,600; 25-60). Satisfactory picture but not big enough to fight pre-holiday letup; maybe $16,000, which is just pretty fair.

Keith's (Schanbergers)—"Fast and Loose" (Par) (2,500; 25-50). Legit names didn't fetch the film fans. Merely pretty good around $8,500.

Rivoli (Wilson Amus. Co.)—"Madonna of the Streets" (Col) (2,000; 25-60). Ran well ahead of average last week; $8,000.

New (M. Mechanic)—"Oh, For a Man" (Fox) (1,400; 25-50). Pretty good; below last three weeks but far from bad at about $8,000.

Valencia (Loew-UA)—"Min and Bill" (M-G) (2d week) (1,500; 25-35). Held over and satisfactory at about $2,600.

Parkway (Loew-UA)—"Min and Bill" (M-G) (1,000; 25-35). Day and dated with the Val, and ran way ahead; best for house since "Whoopee"; $4,200.

Auditorium (Schanbergers)—"Outward Bound" (WB) (1,500; 50-$1). Got great notices but too sombre to attract the masses; about $5,000.

Hippodrome (Pearce & Scheck)—"Sinner's Holiday" and tab stage show (2,250; 25-50). Off at around $6,500.

Metropolitan (Warner-Equity)—"Doorway to Hell" (WB) (1,300; 15-35). Fair; near $5,000.

Stageless Birmingham Feels Absence of Acts

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 16.
(Drawing Population, 325,000)
Weather: Fair and Warm

City is without a stage show of any sort for the first time in 25 years. Maybe that's one reason business slumped. People seemed to be disinterested in shows preferring to sit at home and figure out the Xmas problem. "Morocco" grossed better than usual at the Alabama, but "Sin Takes a Holiday" failed to prove sufficient substitute for R-K-O vaude.

Estimates for Last Week

Temple (Wise) (1,000; 25-35-50)—"Sunny" (FN). Good entertainment for flaps during first part of week but declined; $4,000, fair.

Strand (Pub) (800; 25-35-50)—"Fast and Loose" (Par). Good enough for every day type, but failed to excite; about $3,500.

Alabama (Pub) (2,800; 25-35-60) —"Morocco" (Par). Good picture and well liked; this house shows steady increase in business now with vaudeville out of opposition house; up to $6,500.

Ritz (R-K-O) (1,500; 25-40)—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). Plenty of talk around but even that did not give this house anything to brag about; first week minus vaude; $5,000.

Gray and Luguet Off Metro Lot on Coast

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Clifford Gray, working with Al Colm on the script of "The Five o'Clock Girl," story adapted from the Broadway musical for Marion Davies, is off the Metro payroll and is heading east, where he will work at Paramount's Long Island studios.

Another release from Metro's salary list is Andre Luguet, Comedie Francaise star, considered Metro's ranking French player and recently assigned to direct the French "Let Us Be Gay," with Chester Franklin as American co-director.

Luguet went out after several clashes with Franklin and has been replaced by Arthur Robison.

Seattle Hot, Then Cool To Marlene's 1st Film

Seattle, Dec. 16.
(Drawing population, 450,000)
Weather: Fair

Indifferent attractions and the approach of Xmas made grosses just so-so last week. Even "Morocco," with keenest interest and discussion in the new German gal, started big but failed to hold.

"Hell's Angels" caused the biggest stir in town and lines ruled all week for first time at reg prices. Is being held over a second week and may go third, but this is not a three-week town at this writing.

Estimates for Last Week

Paramount (R-K-O) (3,106; 25-35-50) — "Morocco" (Par). Away well, then sagged, although liked; hard saving $3,000 on cut of stage and band, but grosses much lower now; $7,000, poor.

Fifth Ave. (Fox) (2,500; 25-60)—"Oh, for a Man" (Fox). Stage show, "Fountain of Youth," with spectacular diving girls caused more talk than picture; $12,800, fair.

Fox (2,500; 25-60) — "Big Trail" (Fox). Second week and good for such; $7,200, good for holdover.

Blue Mouse (Hamrick) (900; 25-50)—"Big Money" (Pathe). Started at fair clip; $3,000, poor.

Music Box (Hamrick) (1,000; 25-35-50-75) — "Hell's Angels" (UA). First time at pop prices after two weeks' run at Fox at $1; general admish; may do three weeks; looks great; $8,000, good.

Liberty (Jensen-von Herberg) (2,000; 25-35-50)—"Bright Lights" (FN). Another good week and the second under new first-run policy; close personal attention, local independent management and ownership seem to be going over along with heavy budget for publicity; two-color ads in local papers of carefully prepared exploitation help; $4,900, for six days, fair.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (2,700; 25-60) —"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe). Equal interest this week in vaude; picture started slow, but gradually built for $10,000, fair.

B'KLYN LIMPS—PAR AT $40,700; ALBEE $29,000

Brooklyn, Dec. 16.

Again proving that the multitudes say no when it comes to comedies. First Marx Brothers, Harold Lloyd, and now Ed Wynn. "Follow the Leader," at the Paramount, went all the way down to $40,700. Biz way off the track. Maybe it's the Christmas shopping.

Fox had what it termed a world premiere, "Princess and the Plumber," for a sluggish week. Strand had excellent film, "Old English," treated with respect by the scribes.

Dailies here carrying standing heads over the theatre ads reading, "Be Happy, Go to a Theatre."

Estimates for Last Week

Paramount—"Follow the Leader" (Par) (4,000; 35-50-75). Scribes were kind to this one, but fans stayed away; stage show okay; $40,700, down.

Fox—"Princess and Plumber" (Fox) (4,000; 35-50-60-75). New picture. Fair at $35,800.

Strand — "Old English" (WB) (2,800; 35-50-60-75). Complacent house; $29,000.

Albee—"Sin Takes a Holiday" (Pathe) (3,248; 35-50-60-75). Okay at $29,000.

Met—"Du Barry—Woman of Passion" (3,577; 35-50-75). Vaude. Bid $16,500, not good.

P'TLAND'S NEAT TOTALS, TOWN'S TOTAL $71,200

Portland, Ore., Dec. 16.
(Drawing population, 400,000)

New Fox combo policy, with joint exploitation of Broadway and United Artists houses, made a break for "Hell's Angels" at the U. A. Picture clicked for a big first week and should be good for two more. The Broadway held up to reg biz with "Remote Control."

Paramount, with "Morocco," had its best week since return to all-sound policy.

Estimates for Last Week

Broadway (Fox) (2,000; 25-60)—"Remote Control" (M-G). Did okay; F. & M.'s Indian band and stage show went well; $13,000.

Paramount (Publix) (3,500; 25-60) —"Morocco" (Par). Clicked for good draw and registered well; $14,000.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (2,000; 25-60) —"Big Money" (Pathe) and vaude. Aggressive exploitation put this over for nice week; $12,000.

United Artists (Parker-Fox) (1,200; 25-60)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). Big opening week and will hold for run; $16,000.

Rialto (Publix) (2,000; 25-50)—"Only Saps Work" (Par). Did fairly; $5,500.

Music Box (Hamrick) (2,000; 15-35)—"Matrimonial Bed" (WB). Poor for this house at lowered prices; $3,000.

Dufwin (Dufwin Co.) (1,500; 25-$1.25). Pauline Frederick as guest star with legit stock in "The Scarlet Woman"; one week only, falling off last half; $7,500.

UA STRING MAY INCLUDE HOUSE IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Besides lining up sites and drawing plans to cover an initial building program of 25 United Artists' houses around this territory, with ground to be broken for the first at Santa Ana shortly after Jan. 1, Joseph M. Schenck is making deals with Indies.

During the past week two independent houses were added to Schenck's prospective chain. A 50% interest was secured in Carl Young's Capitol, at Glendale, seating 900. A similar deal was made with George Peltier, owner of the 1,800 seat Alhambra theatre, Sacramento. Peltier will operate the house for UA, buying his own pictures.

Young has Warner, First National and Columbia franchises, while Peltier has Warner, Radio, and Pathe. These picture franchises figured in the deals and will in others, with Schenck avoiding situations where the film service is not protected.

Meanwhile, UA is negotiating on eight building deals in Los Angeles territory, and in some cases is dickering with exhibitors who will build, with Schenck assuming leases and operation.

One of Schenck's surprises is a plan to include a house in the heart of Hollywood. Before deciding on Hollywood, Schenck made Fox West Coast an offer to take the Egyptian, ending a 25-year operating agreement Fox holds on the house, but was turned down.

The theatres Schenck will build, averaging 900 seats, will cost approximately $60,000 each.

FRISCO NOT SO HOT, 'ANGELS'' H. O.—$2,500

San Francisco, Dec. 16.

Nearness of Christmas gets blamed for poor film theatre receipts. "Hell's Angels," with $25,000 in its second week at the Warfield, rates highest, although more was expected.

Estimates for Last Week

Fox (5,000; 50-65-75-$1)—"Passion Flower" (M-G). Opened fair and held to better trade than looked for; about on safe side at $36,000.

Warfield (Fox) (2,672; 50-65-90)—"Hell's Angels" (UA). Made money, but $25,000 for second week unexpected decline.

Paramount (Publix) (2,698; 35-50-65-$1)—"Follow the Leader" (Par). Way below average; poor at $14,000.

California (Publix) (2,200; 35-50-65-90) — "Man to Man" (WB). Opened light and closed that way; $10,000.

St. Francis (Publix) (1,375; 35-50-90)—"Third Alarm" (Tiff). Promised something at first, but then hit slump; insignificant $6,500.

Orpheum (R-K-O) (2,270; 35-50-65)—"Boudoir Diplomat" (U). Barely reached $7,000; bad.

Golden Gate (R-K-O) (2,485; 30-40-50-65)—"Widow from Chicago" (FN). Plus ballyhoo and vaude entertainment, regular house pace of $16,000 maintained.

Diegel's Shorts

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Metro next week begins a series of instructional golf shorts using Leo Diegel, former American professional champ, now pro at Agua Galiente. Metro plans releasing the Diegel films ahead of Warner's series with Bobby Jones, which start in March.

Johnny Farrell, former open champ, is also under contract to make golf shorts for still another film firm.

ANDERSON'S YARN

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Universal is all set on a John Murray Anderson story, with the script completed this week.

Production probably won't get started until next spring, however. Sydney Foxe, stage import, goes into it as her second for U, following "Gambling Daughters."

COLOR'S '31 PRICE BATTLE

P-P "Personals" Permanent Feature, May Switch Studio Schedules to Fit

Personal appearances of film stars at deluxe theatres have been successful enough over a test period that Paramount-Publix shortly may make it a permanent and nation-wide feature of its policy. Some of the artists are credited with as much as 75% of the receipts on certain weeks and dates.

Stars welcome the personal appearance idea as it tends to help them with the fans besides which there is more coin. Remuneration runs from 25 to 50% above their studio salary.

The appearance thing also has drawbacks which P-P is seeking to overcome. Solution may result in a change of the production schedule since it will require enough time between pictures for the stars to be able to tour the country.

Special Writers

Another tough angle is the writing of suitable acts for the house showings. Special writers will be assigned exclusively to this work.

Of six stars used in the test period only two (both men) are reported as failing to stand up or to contribute to the boxoffice.

In regard to personal appearance salaries the studio splits with Publix. Only using Par. contract players for these double-edged plugs to aid the personality and the house, there is the example of one girl who got $5,000 for her Publix weeks. Her studio contract called for $3,000 so Publix paid the other two grand. This practice is generally followed in all such tie-ups between producer-exhibitor organizations.

Par-Fox Coast Deal Becomes Official Jan. 1

Fox West Coast officially takes over Par's Coast houses Jan. 1. Deal for the change was clinched Friday (12) in New York.

Sam Katz acted for P-P in this matter and it is said that Harley L. Clarke personally represented the Fox end.

If so, it is the first such move recorded for Clarke, personally, since he took hold of the Fox properties.

The only Par. Coast house not included in the deal is the Paramount, Los Angeles, which P-P has retained for itself. Fox is taking over the P-P houses on lease with rentals running to an aggregate of $750,000 yearly for 20 years. The group includes seven theatres in Frisco, Portland, and Seattle.

Los Angeles, Dec. 16.

The Paramount here, not included in deal leasing six other Publix coast theatres to Fox-West Coast, will continue the de luxe operation as now, according to local information.

A second week out this way for the eastern Publix units may still be possible despite the F-WC deal with Publix, it's said. If F-WC does not continue with Publix stage shows at the Paramount, San Francisco, among houses under leasing deal, a week for the shows to take the place of S. F. may be arranged. That may be the Paramount, Salt Lake City, a 2,200-seater declared capable of accommodating a stage unit.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 16.

Fox West Coast taking over the Paramount and Rialto here Jan. 1 makes a queer situation, due to divided Fox control. Fox Portland, Inc., is distinct from FWC and operates the major Fox houses and United Artists while FWC controls only the small upstate theatres.

FWC operation of Publix houses would put FWC in competition with its subsidiary Fox Portland, Inc., which latter also holds a 10-year United Artists contract. Likelihood is that FWC will turn over local Publix operation to Fox Portland, Inc., of which J. J. Parker is president. That would make this town into refitable Fox stronghold, with Parker's Fox Portland, Inc., controlling all Fox, Paramount, Metro, United Artists, and First National Releases here.

N. Y. AS HEADQUARTERS FOR QUIGLEY'S PAPERS

Formal announcement of his acquisition of the "Motion Picture News" and the "Exhibitors' Daily Review" was made Monday by Martin Quigley, editor and publisher of the "Herald-World." The combination will have its headquarters in New York instead of Chicago. Quigley, personally, will edit the weekly, composed of the "News" and the "Herald-World," which will be issued shortly after the first of the year under the title of "Motion Picture Herald."

Quigley, however, has not ended his trade paper buying with the "News," which, to all outward appearances, is being eliminated. He will go to the Coast in February to buy or establish a daily for Los Angeles and the film colony.

Colvin Brown, former production executive, enters the trade paper field through Quigley's activities. It is understood that he will be associated with Quigley in a high executive capacity from now on. Coming in from other activities also is Vivian Moses, whose duties will have to do with the weekly.

In regard to employees of all papers, Quigley declared that he will retain every "good" man. A number on the "News" and the "Review" have already been assured of continuance in their berths.

"Red" Kann, editor of the "News," will go with the combination, although at this writing no spot had been picked for him. Earl Hudson, part publisher of the "News," is out of the new combo entirely. Ray Gallagher, advertising manager on the "News" for years, is retained.

Jim Cron has been placed in charge of the daily with the title of general manager. It is understood that Arthur James has retired from the trade paper field and will devote his time to fiction writing.

The "Daily Review" will retain that title until January, when it will assume the Quigley name, "The Motion Picture Daily."

CHILDREN'S HOUSE COLD

Fox Changing Schedule at J. C. House—May Mean Plan Dropped

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 16.

Fox's experiment in running an exclusive childrens' theatre, at the Cameo, is bending. New show hours have been arranged in order to attract adult customers. May mean that the house is not budgeting in the clear on the straight kid angle. These new hours are from two p. m. to nine p. m. daily except Sunday. The house formerly shut down at five p. m. and opened at nine a. m.

Where it was on a three-a-day straight film policy it's now on continuous run. There were formerly two shows in the afternoon and one in the morning. What the change means is that the morning show has been shifted to the evening.

Whether the Cameo thus begins to shape as the beginning and end of Fox plans for a circuit of juvenile theatres isn't known. Despite the announced plans no other kid houses have been assigned or opened.

Regardless of whether this amgoes through, Fox people are evidently taking the Cameo as so much exploitation cost for good will in Jersey City, where the circuit has eight other houses.

PRODUCERS WANT TINTS IF CHEAPER

B. O. Value of Color Claimed Not Meriting More Than 10% Above Black and White Cost—Studios and Labs in Hot Competition

CONSOLIDATED'S BID

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

With picture producing companies currently shy on color because of the cost, indications are that a color price battle will see its inception during 1931.

Every studio and laboratory now dabbling in color is aiming for perfection at a reasonable price. Several feel that they can deliver within 10% additional to the cost of the same picture in black and white.

If the conflict develops it will probably be between Technicolor and at least a half dozen other companies, each of which feels it has overcome the cost problem of color.

Hughes' European Plant

Leading in the battle will be Howard Hughes with his recently acquired Multicolor. His $500,000 plant in Hollywood for the housing of his laboratory has been completed. He intends building a second plant in Europe to take care of color needs of foreign companies and American producers making versions there.

Consolidated Laboratories has announced active entrance into the color field Feb. 1. This organization's process is in reality the old Prisma color, the first applied to films. Recently, Consolidated purchased the patents for American use of Vitacolor which had been adapted through purchase from Prisma. Past week also saw purchase by George Musapha, in London, of European rights to the same process.

Consolidated Significance

The advent of Consolidated into the color field is regarded here as

(Continued on page 34)

U's 'Waterloo Bridge'

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

U is closing this week on the screen rights to "Waterloo Bridge," Robert E. Sherwood play produced last season in New York with Glenn Hunter and June Walker as the leads.

SEITER CAN'T MAKE IT

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

William Seiter will not direct "Aces Up" for Howard Hughes as previously announced, due to the starting date being set back two weeks.

Seiter is scheduled to direct a picture for First National, where he is under contract.

Par Keeps Kober

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Arthur Kober, Paramount writer, stays on indef, although his new contract has yet to be adjusted.

Arrangements were contingent on his dialoging of "It Pays to Advertise," the Charles Rogers picture.

Thorpe's Mascot Serial

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Richard Thorpe has been engaged to direct a serial for Nat Levine (Mascot Productions).

It'll be another wild animal affair, as yet untitled. Levine is making five this season.

U's Short Switches

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

The Sidney-Murray comedy short unit at Universal has been switched from the supervision of Eddie Kaufman to Sam Freedman.

Kaufman is supervising the Slim Summerville unit.

Producers Indicate Don't Want Uniform Contract—Would Rather Have Their Own Agreements

Politically the film industry is experiencing an upheaval without precedent. The uniform contract is reported in grave peril of never materializing, not only because of the U. S. Supreme Court's ruling, but because it is admitted inside several of the producers don't want it. The latter have quietly gone on record as preferring to do business under their own agreements.

Board's Budget Cut

Taken prophetically as spelling the doom of the uniform contract is the action of the Hays Office in cutting the budget of its Film Boards of Trade. Just $60,000 is sheared off and this economy is admitted chiefly because contract and arbitration are not on the horizon. Ordinarily the budget for the 32 boards runs into an approximate $300,000.

That the uniform contract may possibly win out, although producer spokesmen are admittedly dubious, is seen in a loophole in the Film Board budget, which provides that if additional duties are decided upon the budget may be increased next April.

Independents themselves, appreciating the seriousness of the "taxing season," are of the mind that if organizations established a legislative committee in conjunction with Will Hays, something would be accomplished.

Taking advantage of the turmoil are a few indie mouthpieces, who are selling for $1 a copy a book on what is described as a new kind of arbitration.

PUBLIX WILL SEND VAUD INTO FLA. THIS WINTER

Paramount's vaude plans include the southern states and Florida where P-P may build up several weeks of units and vaude. Schedule hasn't been definitely mapped but is to head in sometime soon and likely around Jan. 1.

Par has around 31 houses in Florida covering around 11 cities and towns.

P-P's biggest house so far as records show is the Tampa theatre, Tampa, seating around 2,000. Others range from 450 seats upwards, which means that maybe half or less of the houses will be utilized for the vaude plan.

It was not stated how many weeks may be available for the stage end but they are likely to range up from four.

CALM BEFORE STORM IN TEXAS

Dallas, Dec. 16.

The censorship fight in Texas is quieting in preparation for the showdown at Austin, state capital, next month.

New indie protective organization is progressing at snail's pace, accumulating around $2,000 for a starter. No definite plans evident, except that the battle will probably open in Will Horwitz's home town, Houston. Attempt will be made to overtake Horwitz's lead in the way of educating the exhib's main stay, femme clubs and churches, on his personal interests in his crusade.

Meanwhile, Horwitz has renewed his ad campaign, this time with H. A. Cole, Allied's manager in Texas, trailing along.

Hope of the anti-censorists looks like the Austin fight with a proposed state censorship bill almost certain. Distribs are still mum.

The new group was granted a state charter last week as the Theatre Owners' Protective Association of Texas, with Judge R. L. Walker, Sam Hefley and I. S. Melcher as charter members. Melcher is secretary. Most of legal battle will depend upon Walker and Hefley. Latter is a member of the present legislature and Walker is a former state senator and a prominent politician. Hefley's idea is to have members in toto at the capitol on the day the bill is introduced.

Horwitz is supposed to have spent around $25,000 on his newspaper splurge, plus a p. a. hired especially for the campaign, and he's still spending.

SEE EASING UP IN W. C. STUDIO ECONOMY DRIVE

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Studios' drastic economy campaigns are letting up in spots. Several ousted writers and others have been reinstated, or told to stick around for a few more weeks, when the axe will lift somewhat.

However, Paramount is using only half as many "grips" per production unit as heretofore, and head cameramen have also been pulled from chair to take charge of their own boxes.

If Some Religions Okay Sunday Films, Others Can't Ban

Chicago, Dec. 16.

After years of fighting it looks like Evanston, the class suburb, is going to have Sunday pictures.

Superior Court ruled that prohibition of Sunday flickers was a discrimination against religions, and for that reason was contrary to the constitution.

Judge is now considering the petition for an injunction to restrain the cops from interfering with the theatres when they open. Believed the court will grant the restraining writ.

Kansas City, Dec. 16.

The Kansas Supreme Court holds that Seventh Day Adventists cannot sell admissions to picture shows on Sunday despite that their religion permits them to observe another day of the week as the Lord's Day.

Decision was in a case appealed from Mankato, a small Kansas town, and confirmed the conviction of the manager of a theatre charged with having sold two tickets to a show on Sunday.

Considerable agitation relative to Sunday amusements and it is likely that the next state legislature will adopt new laws governing the theaters, and perhaps favorable to the theaters.

WB Dissolves Four Old Subsid. Corps. on Coast

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Dissolution papers have been filed for four old subsidiaries of the Warner Brothers Corporation. Subs were unused for six years.

Papers were for the original radio company, Warner Bros. of California, capitalized at $750,000; the Vitagraph Co. of California, Hollywood Film Laboratories, and the Western Enterprises Corps., latter temporarily heading land bought for the studio.

Colored Houses 65% Off as Maids, Chauffeurs Out of Work

Chicago, Dec. 16.

While picture biz generally is holding up well both in town and out in the sticks, the colored houses are in the dumps, with trade off more than 65% and causing the wholesale slicing of overhead, and resulting in instances of putting up the gates entirely.

Last week saw the closing of the Grand, one of the biggest of the colored neighborhood theatres. The Monogram, closed for some weeks, can't find anybody nervy enough to take the chance. The giant Vendome has had a hectic season, and has changed hands several times in the past few months.

Spots such as the deluxe Regal, the Michigan, or Metropolitan, which formerly skimmed along like a couple of larks are falling rapidly. Michigan hired Cerskine Tate band to help. Other houses are going to gift nights, two-for-ones, etc.

Economy Victim

Unemployment situation has hit this colored group harder, oftener and sooner than any other class. Understood that more than 50% of the available workers in this district are now laying off. Especially heavily shelved are the personal help, the maids, cooks, valets, chauffeurs, with their former bosses now doing all the house-work on their own.

R-K-O Stops News Clip of Manning-Lindsey Dispute

Picturization of the companionate marriage controversy between Bishop William Manning, of the Episcopal Church, and Judge Ben Lindsey, Denver liberal, being shown in this week's Pathe News, has been ordered off all R-K-O screens by Joseph Plunkett, general manager of R-K-O theatres.

Apparently unable to get Bishop Manning to discuss the matter, Pathe used a photograph of him while someone read a newspaper account of his denunciation of Lindsey.

So far as Pathe is informed no other theatres have banned the clip.

LID ON BURBANK

Less Freedom Around Lot for Outsiders—Also Employees

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

With production activity near, Warner's and First National are clamping the lid on freedom of the lot to employees and outsiders. Among other things, the studio edict keeps all cars off the lot, including those of department heads with special parking space allotted outside.

Reclassification of admittance to outsiders is also being devised, and is not unlike Universal's plan announced last week. Meanwhile, no one is being admitted unless properly announced from the front information desk.

M-G's Sextette

Metro this week engaged six writers. List includes Heinrich Fraenkel and Walter Hasenclever, German writers, for special translations and adaptations of German versions. Fraenkel will adapt "Free and Easy" and Hasenclever will do "Let Us Be Gay."

Others signed include Adela Rogers St. Johns, to write the treatment for "Copy Cat"; Malcolm Stuart Boylan, Paul Schofield, to adapt "A Tailor Made Man"; Edwin Justus Mayer, to complete the adaptation of "Never the Twain Shall Meet."

Best Xmas Present
Subscription to
VARIETY
$10 for One Year
Always Welcome

1st Runs on Broadway

(Subject to Change)

Week Dec. 19

Paramount—"Tom Sawyer" (Par).
Roxy—"The Middle Watch" (B. I. P.).
Globe—"Cohens and Kellys in Africa" (U).
Capitol—"Passion Flower" (M-G-M).
Rivoli—"Royal Family" (Par) (17).
Strand—"Widow From Chicago" (WB).
Winter Garden—"Mother's Cry" (WB).
Rialto—"Blue Angel" (Ufa).
Mayfair—"Hook, Line, Sinker" (Radio).
Cohan—"Birth of Nation" (Ind).

Week Dec. 26

Paramount—"Along Came Youth" (Par).
Roxy—"Part Time Wife" (Fox).
Capitol—"War Nurse" (M-G-M).
Rivoli—"Royal Family" (Par).
Strand—"Sunny" (WB).
Winter Garden—"Mother's Cry" (WB).
Rialto—"Blue Angel" (Ufa).
Cohan—"Birth of Nation" (Ind.).

$2 Pictures

"Viennese Nights" (WB) (Warners).
"Hell's Angels" (UA) (Criterion).
"Devil to Pay" (UA) (Gaiety) (18).
"War Nurse" (M-G-M) (Astor).
"New Moon" (M-G-M) (Astor) (23).
"Reaching for Moon" (UA) (Criterion) (29).

P-P "Sawyer" Survey Shows B. O. Increase On Children of 15%

That the first actual child survey made by Paramount establishes the kid problem as one based entirely on product, is indicated in statistical reports to P-P. This survey was made under the direction of Sam Katz. It pretends to a country-wide basis of analysis of the theatre situation on children and was experimented with on the showing of "Tom Sawyer" (Par). Survey showed the film increased juvenile attendance in P-P theatres from a normal 15 and 18 to 33 1-3%.

Most salient discovery, however, was that the kid attendance had a pull-over draw for other films in the split-week houses. It is maintained adult attendance grew with and after the kid shows.

Split-week average was slightly lower, however, than the full-week figures, to prove the idiosyncrasies of figures. Split weeks averaged 30% kids. The 33 1-3% was on general week runs.

Analysis is based on managers reports that give the actual percentage of children in attendance and is made from actual count of admissions paid. Territory covered takes in around 12 theatres in various parts of the country.

2-Yr.-Old Dispute

Gevaert Co., of America, which sells raw film in this country, has been trying without success to get a settlement for two years with Jack T. Cosman, its former sole agent over here. This statement was made in the New York court last week by Gevaert in applying for an order compelling Cosman to arbitrate the dispute as the contract requires.

It is alleged that Cosman owed Gevaert $20,553 on Aug. 24, 1928, shortly after the contract was terminated, that he had possession of about 400,000 feet of positive and negative film, and that he has declined to wind up the dispute.

Fox's New Policy for Developing Directors

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Fox seems to be adopting a policy of developing directors from the inside, giving promising members of the staff a chance at the megaphone. One of the recent promotions is Howard Green, for the past 18 months or so an ace writer on the Fox lot. He will direct the talking version of "A Girl in Every Port," an old Fox success.

Kenneth McKenna, under contract for leads, has been promised a chance to direct as soon as a suitable story is found, and Seymour Felix, former dance man, is just completing his first directorial assignment.

Harlan Thompson and Howard Green, staff writers, have also been approached with plans to give them megs, the same going for Kenneth MacKenna, contract actor.

Others mentioned are Sam Godfrey, stager and director for the Little Theatre, Skowhegan, Me., who will probably come out soon, and Ed Menzies, art director for United Artists.

ECONOMY PEEVE

WB-FN Small Studio Cuts Have Boys annd Girls Ired

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Warner-First National economy schedule at the combined studios at Burbank has the boys and girls out there plenty peeved. Cutting on the stenog's salaries is getting general sympathy.

Studio has also evolved such wrinkles as a 50 cent deposit for keys; no outgoing calls permitted at studio expense, etc. Incoming calls okay, but if you want to call outside, the coin-deposit wall phones take care of that.

There are other kindred small economies.

Indie Exchange Money Jam Leads Into Court

Samuel Goldstein, 32, treasurer of the Jungle Film Company, 630 Ninth avenue, was freed in West Side Court by Magistrate August Dreyer on the charge of grand larceny. Goldstein was arrested by warrant officer Daniel Fisher on the complaint of David Sohmer, secretary of the Jungle Film concern, who alleged that Goldstein misappropriated $800 of the concern's kale.

Goldstein is the agent of "The Sons of Tarzon." He placed the film with the Jungle firm. He was then made treasurer. He declared he had paid their bills. When the money came in, he frankly stated that he retained money that was due him.

"And there is plenty more due me," asserted Goldstein. There was a partial hearing in West Side Court when both parties agreed to settle their differences outside of court. Magistrate Dreyer then dismissed Goldstein, who had been fingerprinted and admitted to bail.

WB's Industrials

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

David S. Ballou has been appointed western representative for Warner industrial films, formerly handled entirely from the east by A. P. Blumenthal.

Starting Jan. 1, these industrial one-reel subjects will be made at the Warner-FN studio with Blumenthal coming out here next month to help the local organization get under way.

Milton with Hughes?

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Howard Hughes is dickering with Robert Milton, stage director, to do Billie Dove's next picture. Milton, who did "Outward Bound" for WB, is now directing "Rock Me, Julie," for Green & Gensler, in New York.

Hughes is supposedly making hurried preparations to do "Queer People," having sent a call east for one of the Graham brothers, authors, to come on here.

SONO'S "SWANEE RIVER"

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

"Swanee River" goes into production for Sono Art next week.

It is the first of 10 pictures which Webb Douglas is contracted to make. Grant Withers and Josephine Dunn have the leads.

B. O.'s Being Off Has Studios Marking Time on New Production

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Normal studio activity expected and reported since Oct. 15, and last looked for by Dec. 15, is still not in sight. Poor business conditions and reduced theatre income is being given as reasons for studio stalling, with producers not wanting to tie up too much money by rushing into heavy production at this time.

Producer sources now hold out little hope for normal activity until at least around the middle of January, saying every studio is more or less marking time.

Fact that most all studios are either up to schedule or ahead is also holding up return to normalcy, no one wanting to start in on product now that will not be released until next summer or on the 1931-32 programs.

Scores of pictures have been announced since early fall, but all are slow in getting into production. Many have been in that "preparation" stage for two months.

With Warner Bros. and First National starting again Jan. 5 or 6, general activity takes a spurt. Both studios are producing far ahead, with both almost finished on programs of 35 each sold this season. Much that will be made this spring at WB-FN plant will be sold on 1931-32 program, with releases starting Aug. 1, 1931.

In only a few cases are studios tieing up talent that is not urgently needed. This also affects writers, directors and others.

This week there are 27 pictures in production, with many of those foreign versions. Only four finished up last week, when five were supposed to start but didn't.

Changeable Sol

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Solly Violinsky is now a staff writer at First National. Solly has it all figured out;

"I'll have a guest writer every week and they'll never get wise to me."

Roxy Sees Distinct Vaude-Film Policies And So Tells AMPA

On the eve of going from the Roxy to NBC as broadcasting chief, S. L. Rothafel (Roxy) hitched up his wagon and spiked Television as controlling the future of the theatre. The prognostication was made at a luncheon at the AMPA, Thursday (11), at which the showman was guest of honor.

No big theatres in the future, said Rothafel. They will be small, intimate houses, operated by a push button effect from a central source—almost like Broadway traffic signals. These will be run on a chain store basis.

That may be Roxy's way of saying that when he built the Roxy, Broadway, he probably constructed the last of the big ones.

Sees Vaude Future

If Television does lurk around the corner, before it arrives Roxy looks for a return of vaudeville. He sees vaude going straight without film accoutrements and that the industry, as it is shaping itself now, is to fall into a double channel of theatre operation. One will be straight film. The other straight vaude.

This will come, he thinks, as soon the industry turns out better quality in production. It will mean that film shorts may improve and that the ideal film program of tomorrow will be a feature backed by shorts which can stand up.

Meeting was attended by more AMPA members than had been seen at a like gathering in over a year. Among others present were Major Bowes, of Metro, and Arthur Dent, managing director of British International Pictures, now in New York on business.

Roxy's Variety Pursuers

Roxy also spoke about his recent European trip with caustic reminder that he had never met so many newspapermen in his life.

"Everywhere I went I met a 'Variety' reporter. It got so that when I finally reached Vienna, I asked the first man I met whether he was from 'Variety.' He said, 'No,' but 20 minutes later there was a knock at my door and a 'Variety' man stood before me."

Roxy called it enterprise.

Roxy Demands Coast "Roxie" Change Name

Los Angeles, Dec. 16.

Challenging any other theatre's right to use the name of "Roxy" or "Roxie," S. L. Rothafel (Roxy) has notified Fred Siegel, operator of the new "Roxie" (former Duffwin), in Oakland, that, unless the name is taken off the house, legal proceedings will be started.

Seigel, who also operates the Spreckles, San Diego, and the Majestic here, takes the stand that he is not violating the law.

Legal opinion has it that a name or title cannot be copyrighted, but taht a trade-mark can. In a recent case, along similar lines, the Uneeda Biscuit Co. won a suit against another concern labeling itself the Uwanna Biscuit Co., with the U. S. Supreme Court deciding it.

MARION MARS READY

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

Marion Mars, groomed and nursed by Warners the past year, including farming out to the local stage production of "Young Sinners" for experience, is now ready for screen work. Her first is the femme lead opposite Frank Fay in "The Devil Was Sick."

This part will be followed by the ingenue lead in "Red Hot Sinners," with Winnie Lightner and Olsen and Johnson.

U Can't Find Suitable Teuts for "Resurrection"

Hollywood, Dec. 16.

German version of Universal's "Resurrection" is being held up due to the studio's inability to get suitable players of that nationality.

Picture was scheduled to get under way two weeks ago, but the casting problem is causing heavy headaches.

LUBITSCH'S MUSICAL

As First On L. I.—Chevalier Will Sing Only Comedy Lyrics

Ernst Lubitsch is figuring on a light musical as his first picture at the Long Island studio which will star Maurice Chevalier. Adaptation is to be from a foreign legit musical comedy for which Paramount has not yet secured full possession of the rights.

Lubitsch is off "love ballads" and will have Chevalier only sing songs unfolding comedy lyrics and some connection with the story.

No girl has been chosen as yet to play opposite the star who sails from the other side Jan. 7.

MASS. SETTLEMENT

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 16.

Settlement with judgment for the plaintiff was agreed upon by counsel in Superior Court, here, in the $2,500 suit of E. Gilmore Shepherd, of Cambridge, Mass., against the Worcester Film Corp.

Plaintiff alleged the defendant owed him a balance of $1,700 on a commission for obtaining a contract to produce a motion picture.

L. A. to N. Y.

Arlene de Haas.
Mrs. Samson Raphaelson.
Edmund Goulding.
Lonnie Dorsa.
Norma Talmadge.
Robert Flaherty.
Willis Kent.
Phil Goldstone.
Irene Robson.
Al Rogell.
Clifford Grey.
Joseph Urban.
Lew Lusty.

N. Y. to L. A.

Mike Donlin.
Roy Disney.
Mrs. Jeanette Colin.
Ralph Cohn.

WAY FOR A SAILOR

M-G-M production and release starring John Gilbert. Directed by Sam Wood. Wallace Beery featured. Scenario and dialog by Lawrence Stallings, W. L. River and Charles MacArthur from novel by Albert Richard Wetjen. Additional dialog by Al Boasberg. Photography, Percy Hilburn. Frank Sullivan, film editor. At the Capitol, N. Y., week of Dec. 12. Running time, 70 mins.

Jack	John Gilbert
Tripod	Wallace Beery
Joan	Leila Hyams
Ginger	Jim Tully
Polly	Polly Moran
Flossy	Doris Lloyd

"Way for a Sailor" throws John Gilbert for a loss instead of advancing him or bringing him back in the talkers to the place he held in the silents. And it's not his fault. His voice is okay. Star is miscast and the film seems cut to ribbons. Its sliced edition isn't very creditable. Metro claims censor trouble as the reason for it only reaching Broadway at this late date.

Sea talker should secure most of its attention everywhere through possible interest in the Gilbert problem. But if word travels that this, for Gilbert, is a setback and not an advancement, that drawing possibility may vanish. Purely as a picture, it doesn't command enough interest for better than moderate money, and probably not that in many spots.

This can't be considered complete ruination for Gilbert. His name is still there and in back of the name there is screen ability. His voice isn't at all bad in "Way for a Sail r." His diction merely doesn't suit a hard-boiled sailor character. But the voice in this film sounds suitable for the element in which Gilbert belongs, drawing room material minus the heavy love stuff.

Metro attempt to make him a rough guy, of the McLaglen type, appears a case of bad judgment. It probably won't happen again.

Story is simple and uninteresting for a long time. Too long. It jerks, due to abrupt slashes in action and dialog. Then a human turn lifts it for a moment. After that back to nothing. The extremely well done shipwreck and surging sea sequence toward the close becomes the chief excitement. Finish can't follow it.

Wonder is how such a girl as Joan (Leila Hyams) could fall for a dirty looking mugg, and the mystery continues until Gilbert gets into an officer's uniform. That happens in the last minutes. Gilbert looks pretty nice to wear such filthy duds and talks pretty nice to be involved with such an ugly bunch of sea rats.

Nothing unusual or holding in this story of the nice girl who loves a rough sailor until she learns she was foolish to fall. He sails away after telling a few lies. She learns different later.

It's really Wallace Beery's picture. He's a consistent spotlight grabber and this part was a natural for him.

Jim Tully does comedy foil for Gilbert and Beery and okay for a writer. His bushy red hair was the base for a theme gag used through the picture. A kid with the same kind of hair and pan shows up now and then and Tully keeps slipping him some change or runs. He does a bachelor sailor. Polly Moran and Doris Lloyd haven't many important lines as a couple of Liverpool femme barflies.

Points at which the most abrupt cuts are made suggest plenty of snappy stuff. Bige.

THE LASH

New Orleans, Dec. 15.

First National production and release, starring Richard Barthelmess. Features Mary Astor, Marian Nixon, Fred Kohler, James Rennie. Directed by Frank Lloyd. Based on story, "Adios," by Lanier Virginia Bartlett. Screen version by Bradley King. At the Saenger, New Orleans, week of Dec. 12. Running time, 76 minutes.

Francisco Delfino	Richard Barthelmess
David Howard	James Rennie
Rosita Garcia	Mary Astor
Dolores Delfino	Marian Nixon
Peter Harkness	Fred Kohler
Lupe	Barbara Bedford
Mariano Delfino	Robert Edeson
Juan	Arthur Stone
Concha	Mathilde Comont
Judge Travers	Erville Alderson

A good action talker in the western romantic strain. It suits Barthelmess all the way. While the picture is first released in New Orleans and right before Christmas, it probably will not be generally turned loose until after that day to preserve its full draw. It should be another Barthelmess money film.

There is plenty of capable support, with Mary Astor and Marian Nixon having too little to do. Of the two, Miss Astor should have had more inserted into her role, but all of the cast suffer in the same manner. Picture is all Barthelmess.

